LA FLECHE FOWLS. A Critical Estimate of the Value of These French Fowls.

A singular name for a singular fowl! Whether it means, as it has been usually interpreted, The Flesh, or whether it means The Arrow, from the supposed resemblance of its comb to an arrowresemblance of its comb to an arrowhead, is a matter of small consequence. The former idea, referring the fowl to the class of poultry bred with special reference to their use upon the table, seems certainly more natural, for La Fleche is a choice table breed of fowls in France and other European countries. A good many years ago Mr. Philander Williams, of Taunton, Mass., imported some specimens of this breed, but they passed out of his hands and practically ran out. I remember some years ago of learning of a remnant of the descendants of this early importation, and of riding one bitterly stormy and exof riding one bitterly stormy and ex-

TRIO OF HIGH BRED LA FLECHE FOWLS. ceedingly dark night to see them. After presenting proper credentials, and satisfying the owner that I had a legitimate purpose in view and was not a hen thief, he condescended to exhibit the fowls. They were very small, not much larger than Black Hamburgs, though even then they showed the distinctive shape of the breed. Their smail size led me to wonder how they ever came to be regarded as among the leading table breeds, and this wonder did not disappear until January, 1889, I saw at the Buffalo, N. Y., Exhibition the fowls, recently imported by McPren Scotten, of Detroit. Mich. The sight of these fowls explained the mystery, for they were large, heavy, full-meated specimens, and clearly displayed the table properties which they were said to possess. Since that time, at our leading poultry exhibitions, some fine specimens of the breed have regularly appeared, whether they, too, are recent importations, or descendants from the Scotten birds I am unable to say. I have suspected the latter, as Mr. Scotten, who is a game fancier, early disposed of his La Fleche; though it is by no means improbable that other and more recent importations have been made in the past three years. I have an indistinct recollection that some have been made by a gentleman in New Jersey.

The fowl is a strange looking one. It TRIO OF HIGH BRED LA FLECHE FOWLS.

Jersey.

The fowl is a strange looking one. It has legs of fairly good length, something of the carriage of the Black Spanish, but is more stocky in build. Its comb, probably more than anything else, gives it the reculiar expression it posseses, probably more than anything else, gives it the peculiar expression it porseses, for the comb consists of a lump of flesh between, or just back of, the nostrils, behind which rise two red spikes. The plumage is jet black, the shanks also showing in this line. With its "suit of inky black" and its two antlers, the fowl seems quite different from all others. Behind the comb there is often a small tutt of feathers, and an incipient or rudimentary crest. This ought not to be, for exhibition purposes, but nevertheless often is. The French breeders have not told us exactly how the fowl was produced, but its appearance indicates some, at least, of the elements of its composition. The tall, stately carcates some, at least, of the clements of its composition. The tall, stately car-riage and the plamage of black point to Black Spanish as one of its parents, and the fact that it was once known as to Black Spanish as one of its parents, and the fact that it was once known as the Black Spanish of France leaves little doubt of the fact. The rudimentary crest shows that some crested breed was used in its production. For a long time it was supposed that this breed was Polish, but it is difficult to reconcile this supposition with the size of La Fleche. Latterly, and it seems with a very good show of reason, the Crevecceur has been suggested as the crested breed that was used. This fowl yould give the black plumage and the desired size, and would indeed fit into the appearance of the breed under discussion. A cross of Spanish and Crevecceur would produce a fowl quite closely resembling La Fleche in size, color, shape, and other characteristics. Its table qualities have already been alluded to. The body and breast are plump, the flesh is delicate and the skin white. The color of skin and shanks handicap the breed in most American markets, as much as would a yellow skin and yellow shanks in the markets of France. I recently read an advertisement of a French poultry breeder who offered a number of varieties for sale and concluded his advertisement in words to this effect, "All these breeds are especially suitable for the table as they have dark shanks and a white skin." So do trifles make a fashion, even in the poultry markets of the table as they have dark shanks and a white skin." So do trifles make a fashion, even in the poultry markets of the world. As a layer the breed may be regarded excellent for summer months, but not a safe dependence for winter. The eggs are large, and the shells are white in color. It has been generally supposed that the La Fleche is a delicate breed. The inbred specimens were unquestionably thus affected, but I am informed by personal acquaintances, who questionably thus affected, but I am informed by personal acquaintances, who have hept the more recent importations, that they found the fowls quite hardy, ranking about on a level with our American breeds. Still the reputation for a delicacy, derived from the degenerate descendants of the earlier importations, clings to the breed, and perhaps deters some from keeping it who would otherwise be inclined to do so.

While acknowledging the many exwise be inclined to do so.

While acknowledging the many excellent qualities of this fowl, and while further stating that I believe that it can be bred to a handsome profit whether for practical or fancy purposes, yet one would not be doing his full duty to the readers of this publication if he failed to state some reasons why it does not seem that it would attain so great popularity as some breeds enjoy. The black plumage, though very landsome to look at on the fowl, leaves black pin feathers upon the dressed poultry which are less pleasant to the sight. The white skin does not make the fowl look as fat as yellow skin would; and Americans are does not make the fowl look as fat as yellow skin would; and Americans are prejudiced against the latter. Its dark shanks, while entirely suitable to a white skinned fowl, are not regarded with favor by American purchasers. All this may be unreasoning prejudice—probably it is—but one who is rearing poultry for sale cannot afford to omit Fleche is one of the best among them, but—for market that but tells the whole story.—H. S. Babcock, in American Agriculturist.

The Horse's Shoes.

Probably there is no one line of business in which so much bungling work is done as shoeing horses, especially for winter traveling, when frozen roads and ice abound. An hour spent in a blacksmith shop, where a dozen or more horses are operated upon, reveals a great deal of ignorance and quackery. Invariably the toe and the heel calks are made high, and generally too broad. They are made thus so they would wear longer; when the fact is, the opposite is the case. It should be borne in mind that, as a rule, the shorter, sharper and smaller the calks are, so long as they answer their purpose, the more effectual they will be, the longer they will last and the easier they will be for the horse. On ice, with high calks, no other part of the shoe touches; and it gives the animal a partial awkwardness as if walking upon stilts, while small sharp calks comes upon the one at the toe, but with small calks, a share of this wear comes upon the rim of shoe; hence sharp, small calks will last longer than large ones. High calks, while they confer no firmer foothold—and on very hard roads not so firm—are a potent means of inflicting injury on both the foot itself and the limb also, says Dr. Wilson in Practical Farmer. It is only from that portion of the hold which enters the ground surface that the horse derives any benefit in foothold; and it must be apparent to the most ordinary observer, that long calks which do not penetrate the hard ground are so many levers put in his possession to compelhim to wring his feet, rack his limbs and inflict untold tortures upon himself.

When to Breed Animals.

It is customary to have mares served on the ninth day after foaling. This may be well if the mare is strong and healthy, and if there appears sufficient reason for it. Young females that have been put to breeding too young, before their physical powers have become developed should have rest. Such should pass over one, two or three periods of heat. Bitches, whose offspring it is de sirable to procure, cannot be thus treated. With small

Training Colts.

A colt's education should begin the first week of its life. Then its disposition is formed better than at any other time. It is most easily impressed, and has not acquired a tendency to resist. Whatever is taught then, the colt falls time. It is most easily impressed, and has not acquired a tendency to resist. Whatever is taught then, the colt falls direct into, and it becomes, in a manner, instinctive. The young animal has nothing to unlearn afterwards, if this education is begun in time, and is kept up constantly. Young colts trained for the track, are put to work at two years old, and run races; a sort of work that requires much more difficult management than the ordinary work of the road, or the field. The farm horse may be taught anything the owner wishes before this age, and may earn its living at light work before it is two years old. A regular course of gentle and kind training is indispensible. The first lesson is the use of the halter and the confinement by it. If it is tied up in a small stall near the dam, and let loose twice during the day, and all night, and taught to be lead, the greater part of its education has been accomplished. For the whole of this consists in subservience to its owners will, which is the object and result of education. When this has been done, everything after comes as a matter of course, if no mistakes are made. The animal should never be frightened, or whipped. There is no use for a whip, at any time, with a well trained work horse. Indeed it is injurious with many naturally highspirited horses. In the use of a saddle or harness, a perfect fit is indispensable, as the principal idea running all through the training is that nothing shall be disagreeable or painful to the animal Thus by gradual teaching, its duty and business are learned, and it understands what is required of it. It is naturally willing to obey, and is pleased to work when it has never been hurt by it. But when its education is considered complete, it should not be suspended, for, like that of a man, it goes on continually, some new experience coming up at times that calls for the good management of the horse's owner.

"I wish I could go to the seashore," said Nelly Green, softly.

She sat like a little shadow in the moving gleams of the Madeira vines which Marlan; had twined back and forth over the tenement house window. "To the seashore!" said Aunt Penelope, grimly. "Marian, them vests ain't preased yet, and they're to be called for at noon, you know."

"But the seashore!" went on Nell, as if she had not heard the crabbed old woman's word. "The great, cool waves, full of green and violet light; the wet, crinkly sands; the sweet wind and the fringes of white foam! Oh, Marian, I know I should be better if I could go to the sea."

the family—the beauty, the youngest, the pet. But when Nelly fell sick and was obliged to give up school—when she continued to droop, day by day—Marian had listened wistfully to her sister's piteous words. She looked at Aunt Penelope.

"Aunt Pen," said she, "there's that money I have been saving for a button-isole machine; it would just take us all to the seashore for a week." "And what's to become of the button hole machine?" said Aunt Pen. "We must do without it," said Marian,
"No dear, no!" said Nelly, looking up with a faint sinile. "I am not yet selfish enough to allow such a sacrifice as

ing. But the next evening when she came in from delivering her latest batch of work at the vest factory, she held up three sizes of seven three slips of paper.
"Tickets for Long Branch!" said she.
"Get ready, Nell and Aunt Penelope!
We are to go on Thursday for a week!"

"Goodness gracious me!" ejaculated Aunt Pen. "And me without a dress-cap and not a yard of ruffling done-up!"
"You can make up the dress-cap to-night," said Marian, "and as for the ruffling, we must do without it, for one."

my life, to see the color come back in your cheek."

And Marian felt that she was indeed rewarded when Nelly's cheeks reddened and something like the old light came back to her eyes as the Long Branch boat steamed past the Narrows and the salt breeze fluttered her vail and lifted the little fringes of golden hair from her forehead.

bathing-suits were piled up for hire, was the tall stranger in the diamond studs and the Panama hat.

"Oh," cried Nell, instinctively, "how glad I am to see you! But who would have expected to meet you here?"

"Renting out bathing-suits at fifty and twenty-five cents an hour," said the young man, with a mischievous sparkle in his dark eyes. Which shall I have the pleasure of selecting for you, ma'sm?" to Miss Cynthia Culpepper.

That young lady drew herself up.

"The nicest you have," said she.

"Marian." she added, afterward. You really ought to teach that silly little sister of yours some of the ways of the world! She's making as much of that young man as if he was a gentleman.

And Miss Culpepper gave the darkeyed offender the cut direct, when she met him strolling on the beach, when bath hours were over, and the sunset breeze came freshest.

"Are you strong enough to walk up as far as yonder stranded sloop?" said he to Nell. "I think you would enjoy the sight. And, with my arm..."

"I should like it so much," said Nelly. But MissCynthia could not endure this.

"Young man," said she, loftly, "I don't think your employer would like this."

"My employer!"

"My employer!"
"The gentleman that owns the bath-"The gentleman that owns the bathing-suits."

"But I have nothing to do with the bathing-suits nor their owner," said the stranger with an amused look.

"In-deed!" said Miss Culpepper with scorn. "Then may I ask what you were doing there this morning?"

"Oh, certainly!" answered the stranger. "I found, when I got down to the bathing-grounds, that I had left the key of my room in the door: so I just stepped in for a moment while the man ran up to the hotel to get it for me."

On their homeward way, Nell whispered to Marian, with gleaming eyes and cheeks all rosy:

"Dear Marian, is it wrong to be engaged to him after only a week's ac-

"Wrong? No, dear," Marian ans wered; "for I think he loves you dearly." "Who do you think he is-" demanded Cynthia Culpepper, bouncing into the room where the three sat at their vest-making-"Mr. Newton, I mean?" "He is Mr. Newton," said Nelly. "He is the new partner in our firm!"

day to meet an editor who had challenged him to a game of draw poker—best three out of five—$50 ante and no limit to the game. Our chief will return home with his hat on his ear and his mule on a dead run—a conquering hero. We know it because he can do more bluffing on a pair of deuces than any man in Arizona on three aces. He will not only return with all the cash the Tombstone editor can 'rake and scrape, but with a valid mortgage for at least $1,000 on the newspaper outfit.

Having been left in charge of the Kicker office for a week, we shall proceed to make this issue an fixed one. In the first place we desire to pay our respects to Colonel Saunderson, whom the people of this town were iduotic enough to make city clerk. He was never elected "Colonel" of anything except a demijohn. We don't know what State prison he halis from but we fer imorally certain that he had from three to five years more to rerve when he escaped. On various occasions he has visited the editorial rooms of this office and given us the hand.

Next on the list comes the fat and fussy Judge Gildersleeve, whose object in coming to this locality was doubtless to lose his identity. We don't know whether he atole a horse or a cow or ran away from his family, but he looks like a man who'd commit all three offenses and rob a blindman to boot. If we can get the members of the vigilance committee together this week we shall advise that the Judge re ceive official notice to skip. When he sat in his office one day last week and observ-ed in our hearing and for our benefit that an agricultural editor who couldn't command a salary of over $7 a week was poor guano for mule grass, he forgot that the wheel of time turns slowly round, but turns just the same.

Aunt Pen. "And me without a dresscap and not a yard of ruffling done-up!"

"You can make up the dress-cap tonight," said Marian, "and as for the ruffling, we must do without it, for once."

"But about the button hole machine," said Nell, drawing her sister's face down close to hers. "Oh. Marian—Marian, what have you done?"

"Darling," whispered Marian. "I would make button-holes by hand, all my life, to see the color come back in your cheek."

turns just the same.

When we entered this town last summer, dead broke and a blister on every toe, that blatant idiot known as Joe Williams, who now represents the First Ward as Alderman, was funny drunk, as usual. He not only made sport of us as a tenderfoot, but offered us half a dollar a day to go into a cage and be exhibited as "the wild-eyed lumite from New England." Even after we had struck a job at the munificent salary spoken of he held us up to ridicule on the street and called us a red headed cacturns just the same. tus. Alderman Williams, as we have his record before us, is a thief, embezzler and deadbeat from Iowa, and we'll wager dol-lars to cents that he is arrested and taken east within two weeks.

and something like the old light came back to her eyes as the Long Branch book to her eyes and the little fringes of golden hair from her forebead.

Presently a tall. handsome young man, who sat on the other side of the book, rose and approached the party.

"I beg your pardon," said he. courted outly to Marian, "but I see that the young lady is an invalid. Would she not prefer a seat on the shady side? Mine is quite at her disposal.

"Thank you, "said Marian, gratefully" the would be pleasanter."

And then began a pleasant little travelling acquisitance.

"Which hotel are you for?" he asked, when at length the train came to a standstill in the depot.

"What a fool you are. Nelly Green!" You could easily have pretended you were going to one of the swell hotels, too."

"But it wouldn't have been true."

"True!" exhoed Miss Cynthia. I've no patience with you! You'll never see him again! And him with diamond studs in his linen and a real Panama has! Who knows what would have come of it?"

"Please to give me the cheapest bathing suit you have," said Nelly, the next morning, when the three girls went down to take their sea-baths.

"There?" exhoed Miss Cynthia. I've no patience with you! You'll never see him again! And him with diamond studs in his linen and a real Panama has! Who knows what would have come of it?"

"Who do you think he is—"demanded Cynthia Culpepper, bouncing into the room where the three sat at their vest-making—"Mr. Newton, I mean?"

"He is Mr. Newton, I mean?"

"The speaker, a fair haired young man of five-and twenty, buried his face in his hands. "I counted yon as my friend," he continued; "and what a friend you have proved yourself to be!" he went on, scorn fully. "Yesterday I was one of the happiest men alive. On the eve of my marriage to one of the purest, sweetest girls that ever breathed, my heart bursting with fond expectations with every fair prospect before me; and now, with one swift blow, this has been swept away, and all." he exclaimed, rising up and rapidly pacing the room—"all through the treachery of a friend. Do yon know what you have done?" he cried, fiercely, grasping the other roughly by the shoulder. "Last night, prompted by the best of motives, I invited you to the club. Impelled I know not by what baseness, you urged me on to drink; and then, when my condition was such that I should have gone home, where did you send me, sir?—to the home of my affianced bride. What was her horror, her indignation, on seeing me! And now, sir, she has cast me off—forever. Do you know what you have done?"

"I do," replied George Grandyard, as he looked his censor firmly in the eye. "Listen. Are you aware that in a moment of weakness I consented to be one of the ushers at your wedding?"

"Certainly I am," replied the other. "And are

. SOUTH AMERICAN

is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar. It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk. This wonderful Nervine Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nervine Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the This medicine has completely solved the problem of the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia, and diseases of the general nervous system. It is also of the greatest value in the cure of all forms of failing health from whatever cause. It performs this by the great nervine tonic qualities which it possesses, and by its great curative powers upon the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver and the bowels. No remedy compares with this wonderfully valuable Nervine Tonic as a builder and strengthener of the life forces of the human body, and as a great renewer of a broken-down constitution. It is also of more real permanent value in the treatment and cure of diseases of the lungs than any consumption remedy ever used on this continent. It is a marvelous cure for nervousness of females of all ages. Ladies who are approaching the critical period known as change in life, should not fail to use this great Nervine Tonic, almost constantly, for the space of two or three years. It will carry them entery over the danger. This great strengthener and curative is of inestimable value to the aged and infirm, because its great energizing properties will give them a new hold on life. It will add ten or fifteen years to the lives of many of those who will use a half dozen bottles of the remedy each year. IT IS A GREAT REMEDY FOR THE CURE OF

Nervous Prostration, Nervous Headache, emale Weakness, Vervous Chills, Paralysis, Nervous Paroxysms and Nervous Choking, Palpitation of the Heart, Mental Despondency, St Vitus' Dance Nervousness of Females. Nervousness of Old Age,

Debility of Old Age. Indigestion and Dyspepsia Heartburn and Sour Stomach, Weight and Tenderness in Stomack Frightful Dreams, Dizziness and Ringing in the Ears Weakness of Extremities and Fainting, Impure and Impoverished Blood. Boils and Carbuneles, Scrofula, Scrofulous Swellings and Ulcers,

Consumption of the Lungs,

Bronchitis and Chronic Cough, Pains in the Heart, Liver Complaint. Chronic Diarrhea, Delicate and Scrofulous Children, Summer Complaint of Infants.

NERVOUS DISEASES. As a cure for every class of Nervous Discress, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nervine Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most licate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the allments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous chaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and allments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous derangement.

To the Great South American Medicine Ca.:

DEAR GENTS:—I desire to say to you that I have suffered for many years with a very serious disease of the stomach and nerves. Ittled every medicine I could hear of, but nothing done many appreciable good until I was advised to try your Great South American Nervine Tone and Stomach and Liver Cure, and since using several bottles of it I must say that I am surprised at its wonderful powers to cure the stomach and general nervous system. If everyone knew the value of this remedy as I do you would not be able to supply the demand.

A SWORN CURE FOR ST. VITAS' DANCE OR CHORLA.

CRAWFORDSVILLE. IND., June 22, 1887.

My daughter, eleven years old, was severely a deted with St. Vitus' Dance or Chorea. We gave her three and one-half botues of South American Nervine and she is completely restored. I believe it will cure every case of St. Vitus' Dance. I have kept it in my family for two years, and am's sure it is "the greatest remedy in the world for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all forms of Nervous Disorders and Failing Health, from whatever cause.
