DID YOU EVER WHISTLE?

We sell for cash. Don't want any credit customers, not one, because we have made our prices so low we have no room for losses, besides we do not want our customers to pay for another's goods. When we buy we touch the undersill of low prices and when we sell we are satisfied with a very small profit. When you get our price rest assured you have the lowest price. We will not appeal to friendship or any special favor, as our prices will appeal to your pocket book from a common sense standpoint. Don't want any theory to understand that if we underbuy we can undersell. Our customers will treat you fair and square. We correct all errors, and make all wrongs right. One price and the cash down.

BIG GAME.

R. H. Armstrong Shoots the RECORD MOOSE.

A Magnificent head, Other Hunters Returning Successful.

This is game warden Robinson's busy season. In conversation with the Advocate yesterday he said that up to date he had sold nearly twice as many licenses as he had all last season which is a very good showing for Northumberland. He also says he has corresponded with a number of gentlemen who cannot come this year but have spoken for guides for next year.

R. H. Armstrong returned to town from the Little South West last Saturday night and brought with him the largest and prettiest moose head ever shot in New Brunswick as far as we can ascertain. This moose Mr. Armstrong succeeded in bringing to the ground last Friday after a long and patient wait during which he had several fine specimens within shot but he had seen a better one and would not shoot until his majesty came within range. Sandy Johnstone was his guide and several times he advised "Bob" to shoot but it was no go and patience had its reward.

The magnificent head has a spread of sixty-two inches with twenty-six points on each side, with broad massive palms. It is finely proportioned and every point is perfect. Upon arrival in town the carriage was soon surrounded by a crowd and the genial and proud "Bob" was showered with congratulations. It is needless to state that the lucky hunter is very proud of his trophy and has it on exhibition at Mr. Russell's store where hundreds have called to view it.

When interviewed by the Advocate reporter, Mr. Armstrong said that altogether he had seen twenty-three moose and about half that number had come within range. He also told of hearing a fierce battle between two of these monarchs which made such a din that it aroused him out of a sound slumber at three o'clock in the morning and when he examined the ground next morning he saw plenty evidence of a fierce struggle. That part of the country seems to be full of moose and caribou.

The following parties have gone to the woods or returned since our last issue: Captain Macdougall, the English, remount officer left Monday with Ned. White for Whitney brook district to hunt moose. Messrs Ross Burchard and E. Hotchkiss of New York returned Saturday night. They succeeded in getting a very nice moose and two caribou heads.

Messrs Geo. F. Dominick and Dr. Herick of New York also returned Saturday night. They brought moose and caribou heads with them.

Lambert Snyden, and Geo. B. North, of New York and S. T. Wintz of Philadelphia returned from Cain's river with some heads. Mr. Wintz has hunted eight years in Maine but never was successful until this year and speaks in the highest terms of the country.

The many friends of Guide Ned. Way of Northwick will be pained to learn of his serious illness of Typhoid fever at his home and all wish him a speedy recovery. Ned is one of the best Guides in New Brunswick and will be much missed while he is laid off the list which we trust will not be for long.

Mr. North who was in the Cain's river with Geo. Bartlett and W. C. Bartlett and Wm. Russell as Guides succeeded in getting a fine moose head with fifty-eight inch spread with brow antlers with five points on each brow.

S. T. Wintz who succeeded in shooting a caribou on Cain's river, has returned with W. C. Bartlett to get a moose.

N. G. Deparow of New Albany, N. Y. E. J. Phillips and E. F. Morris of New Castle, Penn., and J. R. King and D. H. Greene, of Dayton, Ohio with Harry Brathwaite, Thos. Pringle, and Edward Norad as guides and Joseph and Chas. Cameron as cooks are hunting on the head waters of the south branch of the Little Southwest. They went in from Boiestown.

A. A. Quackebush of New York with John Scott as guide is on Clearwater, Southwest after moose.

Isadore Morse, Boston, Daniel Munro, guide, Arch. Munro, packman, and John G. Fairley as cook is also hunting for moose on the headwaters of the Miramichi.

F. M. Smythe, S. T. Mather of New York and D. L. Ransome C. B. Labaskie, who were in on McKiel Brook with Wm. Griffin as guide have returned. Mr. Smythe killed a fine moose with a fifty three and one half inch spread with twenty-eight points.

YACHT RACES.

Much Interest Manifested Here. COLUMBIA WINS.

No Race Yesterday—Shamrock Leaving When Race Called Off.

(SPECIAL TO THE ADVOCATE)

New York, Oct. 1.—Fine fifteen mile breeze in early morning indicated good racing as time approached for starting the wind had fallen to four miles. Columbia got the lead at the start. Columbia led for a long time but near the first turn the Shamrock passed her and was over three minutes ahead when the race was declared off as the yachts were unable to finish in time limit.

New York, Sept. 28.—In the oldest and most soul-stirring race ever sailed for the old America's cup, the white flyer Columbia today beat the English challenger over a windward and leeward course of 30 nautical miles by the narrow, heart-breaking margin of 39 seconds. As Lip-ton's latest aspirant for cup honors must allow the defender 43 seconds on account of the 833 square feet of canvas in her sail area the official record, under the rules gives her the victory by 1 minute and 22 seconds.

As a spectacle the contest was superb. From the time the two skyscraping racers crossed the starting line until they fled across the viewless finish line four and a half hours later, the result was in doubt and the excitement aboard the excursion fleet increased until it became frenzied.

So evenly matched were these two scientific racing machines that never after they started were the rival skippers out of each other's hail and more than three-fourths of the time they were so close that Charlie Barr, who had the tiller aboard the American, could have tossed a biscuit to Captain Sycamore on the Shamrock. For miles as they beat their way to the outer mark the black shadow of Shamrock's huge club top sail was painted on the big mainmast of the Columbia and for an hour on the run home, with the two yachts flying like scared deer before the wind, they ran almost beam to beam as if they had been harnessed.

The memory of the races between the Genesta and Puritan in 1865 and Durawest's first Valkyrie and Vigilant in 1893, which have been treasured by yachtsmen up to this time, will be forgotten after the magnificent duel of today. In the years to come yachtsmen of two nations will recount the thrilling story of the celebrated race between the Columbia and the Shamrock II, sailed off New Harbor in the first year of the new century.

T. Allen Hilles of Wilmington, Delaware, A. H. Harrington, of Erie, Penn. with Carol Bering and Geo. McKay as guides and Jas. Street as cook, and a packman have gone to the North branch of the Big Seovogh.

Dr. McManus and Mr. Wheatmore of Blackville were hunting on Dungeness last week with Ronald McDonald as guide and succeeded in getting a fine moose each.

Dr. Lewis of Providence, R. I. is hunting at Forks, Main Northwest with Ed. Menzies as guide and Archie Stewart as cook.

Mr. Pitman who has been hunting on North Pole is expected out today.

Capt. Henage, of H. M. S. Naobe now at Halifax has made arrangements to spend two weeks on the Miramichi to hunt big game. Wm. Griffin is his guide.

Recently a large bull moose appeared at Blackville and Chas. Corbett, a son of Rev. Mr. Corbett's procured a license and went after it and shot it. It is a good specimen and Charlie is proud of his trophy.

Theron R. Strong and Theron G. Strong of New York have returned with a moose and a caribou. White brothers were their guides. They were delighted with the country.

At Vancouver

VANCOUVER, B. C. Sept. 30.—The Duke and Duchess of York completed their transcontinental tour westward today and are the guests of the people of Vancouver. Their special trains made the run down through the valley of the Fraser River this morning and at 11.30 o'clock pulled into the Canadian Pacific depot.

Clarke Wallace Ill

TORONTO, Sept. 30.—A consultation of a number of eminent physicians was held this afternoon at Woodbridge regarding the condition of Hon. N. Clarke Wallace. At the close of the consultation the physicians announced that Mr. Wallace was dangerously ill of pernicious anaemia. From other sources it was learned that no hopes are held for his recovery.

OVER THE WIRES.

Trouble Between British and Turks. AMERICANS DEFEATED.

Forest Fires Quebec, Fire at Gagetown. Shooting Accidents.

Big Ransom.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—According to the Telegraph's correspondent in Constantinople a ransom of $125,000 has now been demanded by the captors of Miss Stone, American missionary.

Trouble Threatens.

BOMBAY, Sept. 28.—A British naval force is concentrating in the Persian Gulf; three warships are already on the spot and they will be augmented by the gunboat Assaye, which has already left Durrahees, and the flagship, the second-class cruiser Highflyer. The third-class cruiser Pomone will also sail for the Persian Gulf as soon as he has sailed. It is thought trouble is impending at Koweyst. According to a report Turkey has 30,000 troops at Basra, commanded by Edhem Pasha, with the object of Koweyst, though the Turks must not let troops be intended to traverse Arabia suppress defection in Yemen.

Brigandage in New Mexico.

PUEBLA, Mex., Sept. 28.—Brigands recently obtained entrance to the Hacienda De Lajoya, in this state, taking advantage of the hour when the workmen reported to the office of the Hacienda. One of the robbers shot Senor Lastiri, owner of the place the bullet entering the abdomen. Lastiri fired at the bandits and killed his assailant. Lastiri was then wounded by a man in the right arm but continued firing his pistol with his left hand when the clerk came to the rescue and opened fire on the robbers, killing four of them. Then the band, seeing that their attempted robbery was likely to cost them dear, fled.

The man who guided the robbers to the Hacienda, which is surrounded by wooded hills, has been arrested. Mounted gendarmes are scouting in all directions and it is expected the entire band will be captured or shot.

Collision on I. C. R.

MOORETON, Sept. 28.—At Point DuChene last night quite a collision occurred near the I. C. R. round house. Train No. 12, due to arrive at 6 o'clock, collided with the engine driven by Joe Moore, sr., and both engines were disabled and quite badly damaged. A signal was up for No. 12, but was not lighted. No one was hurt.

Insurgents Active.

MANILA, Sept. 28.—A disastrous fight between United States troops and insurgents occurred yesterday in the Island of Samar, near Balangiga. A large body of insurgents attacked Company C, 9th Infantry, only 24 members of the company escaping.

Of the survivors who have arrived at Basey, 11 are wounded.

Sarkentine Wrecked.

News reached the city last night by telephone from Hopewell Cape to The Daily Telegraph, that the barkentine Bahama, from New York to Hillsboro in ballast, had grounded in the Pettibon. River on Saturday night, and would probably be a total loss.

Quebec Forest a Sea of Flames.

QUEBEC, Sept. 28.—A despatch from Fort Neuf light, Saguenay, says: A terrible bush fire has been raging here since this morning and unless the gale of wind abates the entire village will certainly be destroyed. A bush fire started to burn about a month ago in the back woods and seemed to be dying out, but the strong wind blowing during the last few days fanned the flames and caused the fire to regain somewhat. People are leaving their houses, fearing they will fall prey to flames. It is not certain how the fire started, but it is attributed either to berry pickers or woodmen.

A later report tonight says three houses have been burned and the fire is now within three acres of the telegraph office. The fire is sight frightful to behold. The forest is actually a sea of flames, a strong easterly wind driving the fire across country and sweeping everything before it. Fortunately the wind tonight is blowing in a direction opposite to the buildings, but if it changes nothing can save the village from total destruction.

Gagetown Fire.

GAGETOWN, Sept. 28.—Early this morning the grist mill of Messrs. Joseph and Chas. H. Brown was totally destroyed by fire. Beside the destruction of all pertaining to the mill property a considerable quantity of grain was lost as well as a good horse belonging to Wm. Simpson. The mill was new and well equipped and the loss is all the more deplorable since there was no insurance.

ation to The Priesthood Richibucto, Kent Co.

The Right Rev. Bishop Barry of Richibucto, on Saturday the 21st, of September for the purpose of conferring the sacred rite of Priesthood on the Rev. H. H. O'Leary, S. T. L., lately of Montreal Grand Seminary, but after the conferring of the priesthood, about to leave for Italy where he intends making a post-graduate course in theology and ecclesiastical subjects. The Canadian College at Rome has been by desire of the Pope established and placed under the care of the Sulpician Fathers whose special vocation is the education of young men aspiring to the priesthood. The Rev. Mr. O'Leary made a brilliant course of studies at Montreal, and will, no doubt, distinguish himself among the many who are studying in the Eternal City. Saturday, the 21st September, being Ember Saturday, is selected by the Catholic Church as one of the few days on which Sacred Orders are conferred. Hence the ceremonies which are quite lengthy, commenced at 6.30 a. m., in order that the Bishop and priests assembled, might be in a position to connect with the trains, and reach in good time their several missions for Sunday. The Coadjutor Bishop of Chatham conferred the Sacrament of Orders. The Very Rev. Father Edouard, V. G. of St. Louis was Archbishop for the occasion. The Rev. F. Varrilly took charge of the ceremonies, the Rev. M. P. Richard meanwhile assisting the young priest who was about to be ordained. In addition to these in the sanctuary the Rev. Father of the Endist Seminary of Raquet, Revs. P. W. Dixon of Newcastle, E. J. Bannou of Richibucto, N. Power of Nelson, S. J. Crumley of Blackville, E. W. Murdoch of Renous, E. P. Wallace of Campbellton, F. Bouchard of Dalhousie, F. X. P. Campbell of Barnaby River, J. Whetton of Balmoral, J. McLaughlin of Chatham, J. Gertin, D. D., Professor at Memphracks College, and F. Martineau of Kingston with others.

The Coadjutor Bishop having finished the Mass of Ordination addressed the congregation, referred feelingly to the fact that although surrounded by relatives and friends in great number, these most immediately interested in him, namely his father and mother, had a few years ago bade adieu to the scene of their early labors and were now, he hoped, looking from their home in Heaven and offering prayers for one for whom they, as is evident, prayed and carefully educated while here below. He asked the crowded congregation to offer fervent prayers for the young man now entering a new career now commencing to live another life. The Bishop monopolized the attention of the people who, no doubt, will comply with a request made on such a solemn occasion. The Rev. Superior of the Caracut Seminary preached in French, speaking fluently and eloquently. The Rev. Father Dixon preached in English, speaking as follows:

ON THE CHRISTIAN PRIESTHOOD IN ITS RELATION TO THE SACRIFICE OF THE NEW LAW.

"Thou art a Priest forever according to the order of Melchisedech." (Ps. CIX, 4.)

The inspired writer tells us that in the early days of the Creation men were wont to look upon their

Any Lady Can Use Dr. Chase's Ointment.

It is Antiseptic, Cleansing and Healing—Beautifies the Skin and Cures Pimples, Blackheads and Irritated, Itching Skin. There is no single preparation you can name that is more useful in the home than Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it is so clean, refined and creamy that it deserves a place in every lady's toilet. It is a delightful application for rough, red skin, pimples, blackheads and irritated, itching skin. It promptly heals chapped lips and hands, burns, bruises and wounds of all kinds. During the hot weather Dr. Chase's Ointment is in constant demand for soothing and healing. It is especially useful for the treatment of the face, finding it invaluable. Mothers use it for their babies, as it does not clog the pores of the skin like powders do. Then it must be remembered that beside being a skin beautifier, Dr. Chase's Ointment has a powerful medicinal quality, thoroughly curing each and every form of Eczema, Salt Rheum, Baby Scum, Itching Head, Itching Skin Disease. Sixty cents a box, all dealers, or postpaid from Edman, Bates & Company, Toronto.

neighbor's property with a somewhat jaundiced eye, and that scenes of rapine were not infrequent. It is the state of human affairs. History has been repeating itself ever since. Strength is weak, force is its first enemy, and vice versa. In the Book of Genesis an illustration of this truth is given in certain principles of the country, wise in revolt against the sovereign. The results are of the usual kind. Laws human and divine are forgotten and trampled upon. On this occasion, Abraham is represented as avenging wrong done his nephew. Gathering his servants and dependents of every degree, he attacks the enemy, restores the goods unjustly seized and held, thus acquiring for himself a reputation for prowess and evidencing his sense of justice.

On his return from the field of battle we are told that he is met by Melchisedech, the King of Salem. Around this personage there is thrown a halo of romance. His past history as well as his future fate are apparently unknown. St. Paul writing to the Hebrews speaks of him as "without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life, but likened to the son of God, continuing a priest forever." We are not given in the Sacred Writings his ancestral history; hence St. Paul so describes him, although we all know that he is not the product of spontaneous Generation. He is thus described not without a purpose; for he is the type of Christ, the Great High Priest of the New Law who, although having no father on earth, had One in Heaven; yet having a mother on earth, had none in Heaven. Abraham and Melchisedech were persons of distinction possessing and exercising noble influence. They were also priests. But on the present occasion Melchisedech exercises the priestly functions, as his was of a superior order. Abraham acts a passive part. How does Melchisedech do it? How does he show the superiority of his priesthood? He shows it thus, and in a threefold way. He, first, offers bread and wine in sacrifice; secondly, he blesses Abraham; thirdly, he receives tithes from Abraham, as is evident from St. Paul who writes to the Hebrews on the transfer of the priesthood, says:—"For this Melchisedech, King of Salem, priest of the Most High God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings and blessed him; to whom also Abraham divided the tithes of all; who indeed first by interpretation is king of Justice; and then also, king of Salem; that is, king of peace." The Eternal God, speaking through His prophet reversing the centuries and seeing the Man—God thus addresses him: "The Lord hath sworn, and he will not repent:—Thou art a priest forever according to the order of Melchisedech." With the advent of the firstborn of the old or Aeonian priesthood would cease, to be succeeded by a priesthood superior to the old,—infinitely so,—by one, moreover, that is destined to last forever.

That the Son of God in His incarnate condition should be a priest and the priest of the New Law, tells us something of man's relations to God, his connection with Him, and his dependence on him. Never in history were these conditions forgotten. At the very dawn of man's creation we find Abel and Cain offering sacrifices to the Creator in recognition of their dependence and of His sovereignty. The inspired writer referring to this, says:—"And it came to pass after many days that Cain offered of the fruits of the earth gifts to the Lord. Abel offered of the firstlings of his flock and of their fat." Gen. IV, 3, 4. The offerings, as in the present instance, may have been acceptable, or not, but the principle is recognized, and the duty inculcated. Never during that long period that elapsed between the primeval fall and Christ's coming did sacrifice cease. Man's passionate cry ever was with the prophets:—"What shall I offer to the Lord that is worthy? Whose voice shall I heed before the High God?" Mich. This feeling was not confined to the Hebrews, whom God favored in many and signal ways. It was felt by all peoples, whether wandering in the desert, or building magnificent cities. His notions of the Divinity may have been crude—His ideas perverted; but the principle of dependence, the idea of sovereignty, the necessity of sacrifice, were ever recognized. The pagan historian Plutarch tells us that the Egyptians, against an Egyptian of his day, he says:—"Should you travel the world over you may find cities without walls, palaces, letters, laws, wealth, coins, but a city destitute of temples and of Gods, offering no prayers, not making vows, not consulting oracles, not offering sacrifice to obtain favors, not turning aside evil by sacred offerings, none has ever seen. This testimony of a pagan historian tells us that deep down in our nature there is an instinct demanding union with, and recognition of, God in the form of sacrifice. In the Law of Nature the priestly functions were performed by the heads of families or tribes for and in the name of the families or tribes,—the victims being generally chosen by the offerer. In the Mosaic Law God Himself prescribes the forms or ceremonies which were quite elaborate in their way. The priesthood is confined to the tribe of Levi, but to the sons of Aaron, while other members of the Levitical tribe occupied minor and less honorable positions.

The acknowledgment of the Creator's absolute dominion and of the creature's absolute dependence on Him, suggests three moral obligations inherent in his very existence, viz. the obligation to adore and worship God, to give him thanks for benefits received, to petition Him for other benefits now and in the future, the Creator being free to grant the request or otherwise lend it a deaf ear. But if the creature violates the divine laws, he incurs the obligation of making due atonement, reparation or satisfaction to the Infinite Justice of God. This is called Propitiation. Hence four obligations embracing our duties to God, to which the four great ends of sacrifice correspond. Four sacrifices different in purpose and manner of offering were, therefore, in existence under the Old Law, or previous to Christ's coming. They were ordered by God Himself. Domesticated animals on which man by the care taken of them had impressed the image of himself, were substitutes for the sacrifice. By the sacrifice, man acknowledged publicly the supreme dominion of God, and his own absolute dependence. But of themselves they were of no value. Their worth depended on the disposition of the priest who offered them and on the faith which referred them to God, valuing them as types of the sacrifice yet to come. St. Paul calls them weak and needy elements. Hence the anathemas which the Eternal hurls through His prophets against sacrifices offered by unclean hands and from sinful hearts. Isaiah speaking in His name says to the Jews:—"Offer sacrifices no more in vain. Incense is an abomination to me. . . . When you stretch forth your hands, I will turn away my eyes from you; and when you multiply prayer, I will not hear; for your hands are full of blood."

Adequate adoration, praise, thanksgiving and reparation are not within man's capacity. The Second Person of the divine Trinity clothing Himself in our nature comes to effect this fourfold work. No other creature can do it. "Therefore, coming into the world he said: Sacrifice and oblation thou wouldst not; but a body thou hast fitted to me. Holocausts for sin did not please thee. Then said I: 'Behold I come,' Hebr. X, 5, 6, 7. The very moment that the Son of God clothing Himself in flesh enters his mother's womb, becoming one of us, he assumes the office of priest, making intercession for us. Being the offerings of the Man God, they are always acceptable. "Through him, with him and in him" as the Missal puts it, do we discharge our obligation to God. This office he commences to discharge from the very moment of his incarnation. Like a giant he runs his course. The Baptist still in his mother's womb is sanctified in the divine presence; Elizabeth filled with the Holy Ghost becomes cognizant of the mystery that has taken place, and addressing Mary says: "Blessed art thou amongst women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb. And whence is this to me that the mother of my Lord should come to me? For behold, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in my ears, the infant in my womb leaped for joy. And blessed art thou that hast believed, because those things shall be accomplished that were spoken to thee by the Lord." He gives to Zachary the gift of prophecy, to his Virgin-Mother an illumination of knowledge and a wealth of grace hitherto unknown. During the 33 years of his earthly existence, he by consecutive steps prepares to ascend the cross. On the eve of his death he institutes for all time the unbloody sacrifice, and on the following day offers the bloody sacrifice of himself on the cross. His priesthood is different from that of the Old Law; for there now exists but one priest, one victim, one sacrifice, one altar. In the Old Dispensation priest succeeded priest. In the New there is no succession. The priest whom we see on the altar is, as St. Thomas Aquinas tells us, made one with him and shares in his priesthood. Christ is, in the words of the great Tertullian who defended Christianity some seventeen hundred years ago, the "Catholicus Patris Sacerdos," which translated literally means the "Catholic Priest of the Father," or as it is explained the "Priest of the Catholic Church." He is, in the words of St. Cyprian who wrote in the same century, the "Summus Sacerdos Patris" the High Priest of the Father, who in order to fulfill the mission given him of "priest forever according to the order that is, according to the rite of Melchisedech," must for all time to come offer sacrifice in bread and wine. How will he do it? He has ceased to live amongst us in visible form, as when here on earth. He will do it. At that altar on which he first changed bread and wine into his body and blood, he made provision for the future. Having by the words: "This is my body, and this is my blood" changed the bread and wine into his body and blood, Soul and Divinity, he immediately said to those who sat with him at table: "Do this for a commemoration of me." Do what I have done. Day after day perpetuate this sacrifice "ac-

that he continueth forever, hath an everlasting priesthood." He has no successors, but only vicars. Hence the council Trent giving us the Catholic teaching, says that the "Sacrifice of the altar can never be defiled by the wickedness or unworthiness of the offerer, the reason being that Christ and none other is the chief offerer and priest of the mass. St. John Chrysostom who lived in the fourth century of our era, says:—"When thou holdest the priest offering the sacrifice," consider not the priest as celebrating, but behold the hand of Christ invisibly stretched forth. St. John is only one of a hundred witnesses to the fact that the teaching of the Catholic Church to-day was the teaching of the same church fifteen hundred years ago. That was the teaching in apostolic times, St. Paul assures us. Writing to the Hebrews (XIII, 10) he says:—"We have an altar whereof they have no power to eat, who serve the tabernacle." An Altar always supposes sacrifice, sacrifice supposes a priest, Altar, victim or object to be sacrificed, priest are terms supplementary of each other. The Greek translation for the term altar is "Thusiastion" as any tyro in Greek knows, means a place on which sacrifice is offered.

My Brother,

You have been this morning elevated to the priesthood. Your priesthood is the priesthood of Christ. Great is the honor; but great also is the responsibility. If in the Old Law God said to His priests:—"Be ye holy as I am holy," what must he demand of us! He does not place before us as models mere creatures of the earth, somewhat borne down by imperfections; He does not ascend higher, and tell us of the heights to which His Saints have risen; He does not speak of angelic strength, nor even of the transcendent virtues of the Virgin Mother—none are to be the ideals—none the models after which our lives are to be fashioned. He gives us Himself and says to us—"Be ye holy because I am holy." Meditate on my life. He says to us in substance; You will each day ascend this altar. You will offer sacrifice in my name. At thy bidding I come down from the

EVENTS of the WEEK

SOMERVILLE, TEXAS, Sept. 26.—B. W. Long and George Johnson, the negroes wounded in the recent riot, have died. While matters are quiet, most of the ringleaders of the negroes being in jail, there is grave apprehension that all of the trouble is not over.

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Mrs. Mary David was shot and almost instantly killed here this morning. Her son and two companions were loading and unloading a single-barrelled shot gun in the David kitchen, when the gun was accidentally discharged just as Mrs. David entered the room. She died before medical aid could reach her.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 26.—Antonio Maggio, the alleged anarchist, who is said to have declared several months ago that he knew President McKinley would be killed before October, has just had a preliminary trial before United States Judge Newcomb, of Silver City, and was held under $10,000 bonds to await the action of the United States grand jury and Las Cruces, which meets Oct. 7.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—A trek to

Mexico is contemplated by the Boers, according to a cable despatch from London to the Globe, which says:

"Part of the land in the Flores-hales estate, a concession from the government of Mexico to certain financiers, one of whom is a member of the House of Commons.

"The purchase price has been set down at $2,500,000, which will buy 20,000,000 acres, this being the aggregate of two concessions now in the hands of syndicates. The smaller of the two estates comprises 5,000,000 acres.

"This land has seaboard of 200 miles and will thus offer shipping facilities, which were denied to the Boers in South Africa and which they so much desired."

LONDON, Sept. 26.—On the return of the Duke of Cornwall from abroad he will be created Prince of Wales. By conferring the title after an interval following upon his own demission of the title, the King is strictly following precedent. The title of Earl of Dublin, which is also borne by the heir apparent, may be conferred later.

CRAMPS, CHOLERA, DIARRHOEA and all Summer Complaints in Children and Adults readily cured by Fuller's Blackberry Cordial. Always reliable. At all dealers at 25 cents.

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

In the S. S. Islander Enquiry.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 26.—The most sensational evidence yesterday in the inquiry into the loss of the steamer Islander was given by Mr. Green, of Tacoma, who said he saw Pilot Leblanc and Capt. Foote go aboard at Skagway and the gang plank was too narrow for the pilot. The captain did not appear to be intoxicated, but he had been drinking. Green had seen him in the bar several times during the course of the evening before the vessel struck. Statements that the two officers mentioned had been drinking were also made by other passengers, while a number of them stated that absolutely no alarm was given after the vessel struck.

SENSATIONAL STORY.

Of Trouble Between Turkey and England.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—The Patri prints a sensational story to the effect that a conflict has broken out between Great Britain and Turkey, saying that three British warships have been ordered to the Persian Gulf to suppress revolts at Toust, in the province of Bagdad, and that the Turkish government has despatched a strong detachment of troops with instructions to oppose the landing of the British force. Russia, Germany and France, the paper says, have agreed to support Turkey.

NERVOUS AND SLEEPLESS. Two horrors crowded into one life, the product of poor digestion, and the poisons that are thereby formed within the body. There's just one method of cure for this terrible condition—plenty of food, but food properly digested. That's the difficulty—the digestive power of the stomach must be improved. Rich, red blood formed, strength given to the organs to drive out poisons; then comes strength, vigor and endurance. Ferrozene does all this and more: it makes sick people well; weak people strong. ## BABY IN THE HOME.

A Joy and Treasure When Good Natured and Healthy.

All children in every home, in the country meet at some time or other a medicine such as Baby's Own Tablets, and this famous remedy has cured many a little life. Mothers insist upon having it because it contains no opiate or harmful drugs. It is purely vegetable, sweet and pleasant to take and prompt in its effect.

For example, fever, colic, constipation, diarrhoea, stomach, indigestion, indigestion, Baby's Own Tablets are a certain cure. In fact in almost any disorder common to children these tablets should be given at once and relief may be promptly looked for.

Never give the babies so-called soothing medicines which simply put them into an unnatural sleep. These tablets are small, sweet, pleasant to take and prompt in acting. Dissolved in water, they will be taken readily by the smallest infant.

bosom of my Father in Heaven. Then he holy; be consumed with a burning zeal for my honor and my glory for God "is a consuming fire." Let this altar of the New Law be to you more than was the burning bush in Herod of which the Eternal one said to Moses in the days of old—"Come not nigh hither, but put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the ground whereon thou standest is holy." Yours will be the privilege of standing on holy ground. Throw off your shoes, that is, all wickedness or sin, stand consistently, stand firmly. You can do it. Christ will say to you, "My grace is sufficient for thee." In return for which God will say to you—"I will be thy reward exceeding great." He promises you in return for faithful service not the good things of this world, not applause and admiration which follow success in some special line, not honors such as worldlings covet, not wealth for which the princes of fortune work, not sensual delights in which the unclean wallow—He promises you something higher and holier, He promises Himself—that which constitutes Heaven.—The great God Himself whom you will see face to face—an ocean of beauty, limitless, over which your eyes will stray—pure delights such as the eye hath not seen, nor the ear heard, nor the mind conceived.

FIREPROOF PAPER.

Lately the paper pulp mills have been experimenting with fireproof paper. In fireproofing wood it has been found necessary to inject into it under great pressure non-inflammable chemicals, and thus neutralize the inflammable material of the wood. It has been found that these fireproofing substances can be introduced into the paper pulp much easier than they can be injected into wood. Many attempts have been made to mix the right chemicals in the paper pulp to render the paper made therefrom fireproof, with not a little success. The wood pulp that is compressed into molds for general household uses, such as for wainscoting, ladies ceilings and moldings, can be made fireproof in the same way as the paper. The fireproofing material is mixed with the soft wood pulp which is then hardened through hydraulic pressure.

This line of experiment opens a world of new possibilities. Should they succeed in producing perfect fireproof wood pulp there would be nothing to prevent them from furnishing our builders and marine architects with nearly all the interior wood trimmings in pressed material. The demand for such fireproof wood pulp products would be extensive. The navy is demanding such material for their battleships and cruisers, and the builders of the great sky-scrapers in our cities are just as anxiously looking around for the same thing. The interior trimmings of railway cars, ferryboats, ocean and river steamers, public halls and hotels are nearly all made of hard wood treated with oil, so that it is more inflammable than in the natural. All this trimming of wood forms a daily menace to thousands of people, in case of fire. The whole trade is merely waiting for the proper fireproof wood to make revolutionary changes in its methods.

It proves the difference between Stanfield's and those that are simply branded "Unshrinkable," "Guaranteed," etc. Stanfield's remains the same in shape and size, as soft and pliable as when purchased. Every garment bears the guarantee of the Truro Knitting Mills Co. to return your money if they shrink. No special directions for washing. As the pants receive more wear than the shirts, they are made of heavier material. Stanfield's Unshrinkable Underwear is sold on a positive guarantee against shrinking in the wash. Your money back if it does.

THE WAY TO MANAGE A WIFE.

Simplest thing in the world, declared the man who has married his third wife and lives in the second block from Woodward on a fine cross street. It's this way: Give a woman the last word, keep still, look disappointed without looking defiant, and she'll be merciful to you nine times out of ten. Now you want me for a little stag poker party?

Yes. You'll just fill out the number. Well, sir, just drop in this evening and see how I'll get my wife's permission. Works like a charm I tell you. There'll be more or less of a squall, but don't you care. Just keep a close eye on me at the finish.

The caller dropped in at 8. There were ten minutes devoted to the weather and other current topics, when the caller asked his host to attend the party mentioned. Let me see, rubbing his chin. I guess I can come round all right enough. We have no engagement that night, have we, my dear?

We have, and the brows of my dear were knotted. Why, I didn't recall it. Where were we going?

We were going to remain at home, right here where you belong at night. I'm opposed to gambling and I'm opposed to night-hawking. You have a very binding engagement, and I won't thank any one for urging you to break it either, and the caller felt like throwing his hands into the air.

Now, my dear, from the husband, in soft bass tones and after a long pause, never mind. You'll excuse me this time Jones. I couldn't think of leaving my wife when she wants me here. Find some one else, old man.

Well, of course, she laughed cheerfully. I wouldn't like to spoil the party and I do like to have John enjoy himself. He works so hard, you know, Mr. Jones. But you mustn't meet two often or play too high. I must insist on your going, John. I was too selfish.

Then when John insisted just as hard that he wouldn't think of going against her, she ordered him to go. He walked down to the corner with Jones, and when the policeman passed them he judged from their hilarity that they were not getting home a minute to soon.

Gentlemen,—I fell from a bridge leading from a platform to a loaded car while assisting my men in unloading a load of grain. The bridge went down as well as the load on my back, and I struck on the ends of the sleepers, causing a serious injury to my leg. Only for its being very fleshy, would have broken it. In an hour could not walk a step. Commenced using MINARD'S LINIMENT, and the third day went to Montreal on business and got about well by the use of a cane. In ten days was nearly well. I can sincerely recommend it as the best Liniment that I know of in use.

IT STRIKES THE HEART.

Not only is the victim of Rheumatism a constant sufferer, but he lives in continual dread that the disease will reach the heart which means sudden and unexpected death. Rheumatism can only be cured when the uric acid is removed from the blood by the healthy action of the kidneys. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills make the kidneys healthy and vigorous, and so gradually and thoroughly cure Rheumatism by removing the cause. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box.

POLAR RESEARCH.

The return of Mrs. Peary from the polar region is an interesting event. The courageous wife of a courageous explorer went north to look for her husband in the spring of 1900. She had already accompanied him on an expedition, so that her voyage for his relief was not wholly a novel experience. Lieut. Peary is one of the most level-headed of all the explorers. He is full of pluck, but coupled with it is a wise discretion. He takes no needless risks. Commander Cheyne, of the British Navy, who spent a good deal of his time in polar regions, used to say that the deaths among Arctic explorers were usually due to a disregard of ordinary precautions. Peary seems to have proved this, for he went on one expedition and came home safely. Then he went on another and took his wife with him, and had a pleasant time. Then he went on a third, and followed him according to arrangements, spent a year with him, and came home again, safe and well, leaving him to spend another winter in the North.

This is the best testimony that can be given to his admirable management. Peary has reached 83 deg. 50 min. North latitude, which is about three degrees south of the farthest points reached by Nansen and Amundsen. He says that his explorations seem to dispose of the possibility of land being found at the North Pole, and while he is not hopeless of reaching the Pole next year, he says that the broken character of the ice, which is rarely solid for any great length of time, may prevent. He is not unhelpful that next season may be one of open water in the far north, and he is ready to take advantage of it should such be the case. Peary is a fine explorer, and he does his work, not for the spectacular interest attaching to it, but purely in the interests of science.

HIDE-AND-SEEK AMONG THE BOERS.

There seem to be enough Boers uncaptured to give the British about all they want to do for some time to come. For several months now it has taken an average of ten Britons to keep the track of one Boer, and ten have generally failed in the work. There still remains to a race like the brave South Africans, after all their battle against the odds of great numbers, this guerrilla warfare, and it is idle to expect that a people who have sacrificed everything on earth, except honor, for their homes and their liberty, will make an abject surrender to their enemies until the last means of opposition is exhausted.

No event of this century, not even our own Civil War, offers such a theme to the historian of the future as the protest of the South African Republic against the onslaught of a great Power. Even the English are saying in their newspapers and their reviews, and in their speeches, that there is no glory for England in the war. Inasmuch as the credit is wanting on the side of the giant who is using his strength, so much greater will be the glory to the little band which has dared to risk everything for freedom.—Philadelphia Post.

TRADE OPPORTUNITIES IN AUSTRALIA.

The fact that there are two or three ships now in St. John harbor loading for Australia emphasizes the interest our people naturally feel in trade with the antipodes. The advice of Mr. J. S. Larke, Canadian commercial agent in Australia, to Mr. George H. Hees, chairman of the tariff committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, are therefore of moment to our readers. If our manufacturers are seeking markets abroad, he says, they will find that the Australian colonies are most attractive fields to explore. A perusal of his letter leads one to infer that not only the comparatively raw material of lumber which we ship, but almost anything in the way of manufactured goods can be placed very readily among the distributing facilities of the new commonwealth and the outlying islands. Certainly no one would think of exporting wool, mutton or butter to Australia, but there are thousands of articles natural to Canada and desired among our friends on the other side of the world, which it would readily pay us to send them. Mr. Larke's abilities to supply information in regard to the markets under his cognizance, ought to be taken advantage of by Canadians anxious to extend their export trade.—Telegraph.

Leaving Dawson.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 30.—Steamer City of Seattle has arrived from Skagway with 314 passengers. Crowds are no longer coming out from Dawson, and 200 were to have arrived in Skagway on the day the Seattle started south. The steamer had $900,000 worth of gold.

Much excitement is reported in the Atlin district on account of the discovery of what is believed to be the "mother lode" of the district.

Six cases of smallpox are reported from Dawson.

The Glenora, which sailed from Wrangle last spring, has reached Dawson by way of St. Michael.

Dangerous sport.

ST. STEPHEN, N. B., Sept. 30.—Another shooting accident in the woods occurred on Saturday night near DeWolfe Corner, in this county. Daniel McNich, with a companion named Bert White, was out in the evening looking for deer, and had come out of the woods and was resting beside the road, when two other hunters came in sight. White whistled to call their attention, but they mistook it for the whistling noise of a bear. One of them said he was going to shoot, but McNich and White, apprehending no danger, made no answer. Both then raised their guns to fire, but fortunately only one gun went off. It was held by John Dinamore, and his bullet went through McNich's shoulder, inflicting a dangerous wound.

A surgeon was summoned and the wounded man made as comfortable as possible.

Boers Repulsed By British.

DURBAN, Natal, Sept. 30.—A force of 1,500 Boers, commanded by Gen. Botha, made an attack which lasted all day long on Sept. 26 on Port Natal, on the border of Zululand. The burghers were repulsed, but at a heavy cost to the garrison, whose losses were an officer and eleven men killed and five officers and thirty-eight men wounded. In addition, sixty men are missing, of which number many are believed to have been killed or wounded. The Boer commandant Opperman and nineteen burghers are known to have been killed.

Revenue Buoyant.

OTTAWA, Sept. 30.—The Dominion revenue received from customs for the three months ending Sept. 30 amounts to $5,035,094. This is an increase of $488,925 or nearly half a million dollars, over the same time last year. The increase for the month over September, 1900, was $282,810.

Found Drowned.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 30.—Robert Brims the well-known Halifax brewer, was found drowned in Cornwallis River on Sunday.

Killed by Kissing Bug.

You can't make him eat either. You can stuff food into a thin man's stomach but that doesn't make him use it.

Scott's Emulsion can make him use it. How? By making him hungry, of course. Scott's Emulsion makes a thin body hungry all over. Thought a thin body was naturally hungry didn't you? Well it isn't. A thin body is asleep—not working—gone on a strike. It doesn't try to use its food.

Scott's Emulsion wakes it up—puts it to work again making new flesh. That's the way to get fat.

B. C. Mining Disaster.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 30.—President Dinwiddie, president of the Wellington Colliery Co., has received the following despatch from Alex. Bridon, manager of the Extension mines of that company situated near Ladysmith:

"Fire occurred in No. 2 slope at No. 3 level, which made such headway that in half an hour it was half way up the slope spreading to the air ways, and working to No. 2 and No. 3 mines. I was obliged to stop both of the mines after two explosions. Have lost some men, but cannot say how many."

A special despatch from Nanaimo says: "No. 5 slope at Extension is on fire and dense clouds of black smoke can be seen from here. Late reports say that from 8 to 15 men are in danger, if not lost. It is said that it was impossible to get air to them, and that they are probably dead. The fire broke out this evening. The cause is not yet known."

British Successes.

LADYSMITH, Natal, Sept. 30.—The British success at Fort Itala is now known to have been greater than was at first reported. Two hundred Boers were killed and more than 300 were wounded or captured.

Report Denied.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The officials of the British foreign office deny that Great Britain contemplates establishing a protectorate over Koweit, on the Persian Gulf.

LATE LITERARY NEWS.

Little is thought and less is known by the average man concerning the lives and aims of the 400,000 men and boys who delve under the surface of the earth in places of darkness and danger, where hardly a day goes by without recording the death by falls of rock, coal or slate of more than one unfortunate miner. An article on this subject at once impartial and vitally interesting is contributed to THE COSMOPOLITAN for October by John Mitchell, President of the United Mine Workers of America, whom every one recalls as the man who organized the miners and carried through to a successful termination the great anthracite strike of 1900.

BLACKVILLE

Too late for last issue.

The Underhill Baptist Church was the scene of a very interesting event on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 25th, when Sadie J. Vickers was united in holy matrimony to Ward T. Corney.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Kings of Doaktown, before a large number of friends and relatives.

The bride was becomingly attired in blue poplin with white satin trimmings and hat to match.

Miss Ethel Corney acted as bridesmaid, attired in a costume similar to that of the bride, while the groom was ably supported by his cousin, Trian W. Crawford. Suitable music was furnished by Miss Iva Barry. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the groom where a sumptuous repast was served.

The presents were numerous and costly. Miss Cynthia Carnathan is visiting relatives in this place.

We are sorry to report the serious illness of Mrs. Theo. Barnett. Dr. Wilson is the attending physician.

Mrs. M. Jardine paid a flying visit to Doaktown last week. She is contemplating a trip to Boston this fall. She will be greatly missed by her many friends.

Mrs. Fieger of Chatham, and Mrs. Matheson of Newcastle are the guests of Mrs. Justus Underhill.

INDIANTOWN

A quiet wedding took place at St. Bridget's church, Indiantown, on Wednesday last, when Miss Margaret Hogan was united in marriage to Mr. John Close by the Rev. E. S. Murdoch. The bride was becomingly attired in navy blue broad cloth with white trimmings and was attended by Miss Mary L. Close as bridesmaid while the groom was ably supported by Mr. John Dorrans as best man. After the ceremony the happy couple drove to the bride's home, where a sumptuous dinner awaited them. The bride was the recipient of many useful presents which are as follows.

Mr. and Mrs. James McErimman of East Taunton, $10.00 gold piece; Miss Agnes Hogan, sister of the bride, father and mother, gave a linen table cloth; 1/2 doz. chairs, and two vegetable dishes; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hogan, a bed quilt; Mr. Stephen, a bed spread; Miss Susie Gillipie, a parlor lamp; Miss Bernette Murdoch, a glass tea set; Mr. and Mrs. John Doolan, a lamp; Miss Julia Hayes, a glass tea set; Mr. and Mrs. James Schofield, a linen table cloth; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hambrook, a gold lined water pitcher; Mr. William Close, a lamp; Miss Annie Close, a cream pitcher; Mr. Jerry Hallihan, 2 pair of towels; Mrs. Hallihan a china butter dish; Mr. Jeremiah Hallihan, a glass cream pitcher; Miss Mamie Singleton, a water pitcher; Miss Alice Hambrook, a silk cushion; Mr. and Mrs. James Close, a lamp; Miss Mary Walsh, 1/2 doz. coffee cups and saucers; Mrs. Walsh a pair of towels; Mrs. Jeremiah Donavan, a pair of towels; Mr. Patrick Buggy, a mustache cup and saucer to the groom; Miss Bertha Buggy, a china cup and saucer; Mr. and Mrs. James Buggy, a hooked rug; Mr. Michael Close, 1 pair of towels; Miss Lena Close, a china pitcher.

BOIESTOWN.

A very serious accident occurred at Hayesville, York Co., on Monday morning last. While Fred Palmer of that place was in the act of carrying away some dynamite cartridges, which had fallen overhead to the floor, without exploding, they burst in his hands, lacerating one so badly that Dr. W. A. Irvine of Boiestown found amputation of the member necessary and so performed the operation. The other hand was also very badly injured as well as his face and eyes.

Mr. Palmer is yet in a critical condition. Messrs. Smith of San Francisco, Ransom and Zebinsky of New York and Mather of Chicago who have been on McKel Brook for two weeks hunting big game returned to Boiestown on Wednesday last much pleased with their success. They secured two moose on the trip one having a splendid pair of horns measuring fifty inches and having twenty-eight tips. Griffin of Stanley was their guide and Messrs. John McCoy and Walter O'Donnell were canoe-men. These gentlemen propose returning again next year.

A very pretty wedding took place at the Presbyterian church Hayesville, Wednesday last at 2 p. m., when Mr. George Moir of that place was united in holy matrimony to Miss Ella Green daughter of Mr. Chas. Green of the same place. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. H. M. Clark, pastor of the upper Miramichi Presbyterian churches.

Luncheon was served in a tent on the lawn in front of the residence Mr. and Mrs. Moir left on the Canada Eastern express next morning for a short bridal tour. The newly wedded couple have the best wishes of all for their future happiness and prosperity.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Chas. T. Duffy was successful in securing a diploma on his lumbering sleds which he had on exhibition at the Fredericton Fair. They were certainly an excellent specimen of sleds and the fact of the above ought to tell the Miramichi lumbermen and those from outside, whom they should patronize when in need of such supplies.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Betsy Ayles Arlie's Crossing took place on Sunday. The remains were laid to rest in the Methodist cemetery here. Rev. M. R. Knight pastor of the Methodist church officiating. A large concourse of people turned out to pay the last tribute of respect to one of the oldest residents of the vicinity. The deceased had passed the four score mark, being upwards of 81 years of age.

James D. McMillan of Nelson was in the village on Monday.

The Wm. Richards Co. Ltd., are making large shipments of mill wood to parties in Fredericton and places along the Canada Eastern railway. Last week the firm shipped several carloads of deals to Chatham.

LOWER LUDLOW.

Mrs. John Orr and family of Masardis, Maine, are home spending a few weeks with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. David Stewart and other friends and relatives here.

Mrs. Otto Hilderbrand and Mrs. Charles Lyons of Doaktown were visiting Mrs. Nelson at this place.

Mr. George and Alexander O'Donnell, have commenced their winter operation on Cains River for Mr. William Richards of Boiestown.

Mr. Theo. and Herman O'Donnell are operating on Cains River for Mr. Richards. Several other parties will start this week for the lumber woods.

The sports from Cains River and up river have returned home again. They got some very fine moose and caribou and are well satisfied with their trip.

Mr. John Price was summer logging on Big Hole Brook for Mr. W. R. McCloskey of Boiestown, twined in 160 logs in one day with one horse. The correspondent heard John say so.

The farmers have finished digging and report the potato crop as good as last year, some say better.

Mrs. Nelson was visiting her daughter Mrs. Ernest Russell at Doaktown on Sunday last. She was accompanied by her son, Willard.

A quilting party and dance was held at Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart's on Friday last. Music was well furnished for dancing. Mr. Lewis Price played the violin assisted by Miss Maggie O'Donnell on the organ. Everyone enjoyed themselves well, and all thank Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart for their kindness and wish for another good time in the near future.

Mr. Thomas Carroll has made a fine improvement to his place by building a beautiful barn this summer.

WHITNEYVILLE.

The farmers in this section are busily engaged in digging their potatoes. The crop is much better than at first expected the potatoes being large, dry and quite plentiful in the ground.

Partridges are not very numerous this season, thus many are deprived of their annual sport.

Sunday was observed as Children's Day in the Presbyterian church here. The church was neatly decorated with wreaths of cedar and autumn leaves and flowers. The words "Canada for Christ" done in green and white gave the whole a significance which was most impressive. The programme for the day was well carried out by the pastor, Rev. J. D. Murray and the officers, teachers and scholars of the Sunday School. Much praise is due those who took an interest in training the children and trimming the church.

Mr. Allan Curtis of Great Works, Me., paid a flying visit to his old home here a few days ago.

Mrs. Jane Dunnett has returned from a visit to friends in Newcastle. Mr. Richard Cluston and Miss Mabel Cluston of Lower Derby were in this place on Sunday.

Mrs. W. D. Curtis returned home on Friday, after having spent a week or more visiting friends in Protectionville.

Miss Barbara Morrison entertained a number of her young friends on Wednesday, it being her birthday. All present spent an enjoyable time.

Mrs. Robert Matchett and Mrs. Wm. McDonald of Redbank spent a day last week with friends here.

We are sorry to report the illness of Albert Iardine. He is down with typhoid fever, and as yet does not seem much better. Dr. Desmond is in attendance.

SOUTH ESK

Mrs. Patrick Hurley who was visiting friends in Red Bank has returned to her home.

Miss Dora Whitney who was seriously ill we are glad to say is recovering.

The hustling of threshing is nearly over which was a small job as the oat crop was very light.

The McTavish Bros. of this place one day last week threshed 273 bushels in 8 1/2 hours. Beat that if you can.

There is quite a lot of logs in the grab-all yet, I am afraid they are going to freeze-in.

LOWER BLISSFIELD.

The weather through this section of the country for the several months has been very dry.

Miss Annie Smith is visiting friends at Maryville.

Mr. A. Clowater and Miss McCarthy of Boiestown are visiting relatives of this place.

Miss Annie Mersereau of this place and Miss Sadie Boyce of Doaktown, started on Wednesday morning last for Boston, Mass.

Nearly all the farmers are through digging potatoes for the season and report fairly good crop, one farmer's crop was reported as turning out thirty barrels from one.

TETEAGOUCHE.

A very pretty wedding took place in the church of the Ascension, Teteagouche, at 4 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 18th, when Mr. Charles P. Payne, was wedded to Maite Synthe, both of Teteagouche. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Cuthbert of Newcastle.

The bride looked charming in a gown of cream silk grenadine trimmed with cream silk applique, chiffon, baby ribbon and orange blossoms, and wore a very becoming veil caught with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a large bouquet of white chrysanthemums and sweet peas, and was attended by her sister Mina, the maid of honor being Miss Dora E. Payne.

Both of these young ladies were very becomingly attired in cream cashmere, trimmed with cream applique, lace, and baby ribbon.

The groom was ably supported by his brother Gordon.

The church was decorated with cut flowers and potted plants, the altar rail, lectern, prayer desk and front being wound in green with white flowers.

After the ceremony the newly married couple, with immediate friends and relations returned to the home of the bride's parents where all partook of a "bountiful repast," after which all drove to the home of Mr. Payne where a very enjoyable evening was spent in music and dancing, supper being served at 12.

The high esteem in which the bride was held was clearly made manifest by the many valuable presents of which she was the recipient. The presents present to the bride was a handsome gold watch and chain.

Mr. and Mrs. Payne leave in the course of a few days for their future home in Ecanaba, Michigan, followed by the well wishes of a host of friends.

UNDER TWO FLAGS

By "OUIDA"

memories of that past back to him.

And this was Cigarette's reward—to hear him mutter wearily of the proud eyes and of the lost smile of another!

The dawn came at last. Her constant care and the skill with which she had cooled and dressed his wounds had done him infinite service. The fever had subsided, and toward morning his incoherent words ceased, his breathing grew calmer and more tranquil. He fell asleep—sleep that was profound,

dreamless and refreshing.

She looked at him with a tempestuous shadow darkening her face that yet was soft with a tenderness that she could not banish. She hated him.

She ought to have stabbed or shot him rather than have tended him thus. He neglected her and only thought of the woman of his old order. As a daughter of the people, as a child of the army, as a soldier of France, she ought to have killed him rather than have caressed his hair and soothed his pain.

Then gently, very gently, lest she should awaken him, she took her tunic

skirt with which she had covered him from the chill of the night, put more broken wood on the fading fire and with a last lingering look at him where he slept passed out from the tent as the sun rose in a flushed and beautiful dawn.

"I will never know," she said to herself as she passed through the dis-ordered camp and in a distant quarter collected herself among the hay of a forage wagon and, covered up in dry grass

like a bird in a nest, let her tired limbs lie and her aching eyes close in repose.

She was very tired, and every now and then as she slept a quick, sobbing breath shook her as she slumbered like a wounded fawn that has been wounded while it played.

CHAPTER XIV.

WITH the reveille and the break

of morning Cigarette woke, herself again. She gave a little petulant shake to her fair

form when she thought of what folly

she had been guilty. "Ah, bah, you deserve to be shot!" she said to herself afresh. "One would think you were a silver pheasant, you grow such a little fool!"

Her first thought was to take care that he should never learn what she had done for him. The Princess Corona would not have more utterly dis-belated to solicit regard through making a claim upon gratitude than the fervent little warrior of France would have done. She went straight to the Tringio, who had known her at her mission of mercy.

"Have a heed, Georges, never to whisper that I had anything to do with saving that man I called to you about," she said.

"And why, my little one?"

"Because I desire you," said Cigarette, with her most imperious emphasis. "They say he is English and a ruined noble. Now, I would not have an Englishman think I thought his six feet of carcass worth saving for a ransom."

The Tringio chuckled. He was an Anglophobe, I understand. Thou art very right, Cigarette. If we have ever obliged an Englishman, he thinks his obligation to us opens him a neat little door through which to cheat us.

It is very dangerous to oblige the English. They always hate you for it.

That is their way."

"He is safe," thought Cigarette, and she made her way toward the place where she had left him, to see how it went with that man whom she was so careful should never know that which he had owed to her. It went well with him, thanks to her. Care and strength-were employed far out trusting their own dead into the soil; others were removing the tents and all the equipage of the camp; others were busied with the wounded, of whom the greatest sufferers were to be borne to the nearest hospital (that nearest many leagues away over the wild and barren country), while those who were likely to be again soon ready for service were to be escorted to the headquarters of the army. Among the latter Cecil had passionately entreated to be numbered. His prayer was granted to the man who had kept at the head of his chasseurs and borne aloft the tricolor

through the whole of the war trumpet on which the dawn had risen and which had barely lulled and sunk by the setting of the sun. Chateauroux was away with the other five of his squadrons,

and the zouave major, the only officer of any rank who had come alive through the conflict, had himself visited Bertie and given him warm words of eulogy

and even of gratitude that had soldier-ly sincerity and cordiality in them.

"Your conduct was magnificent," he had said, as he had turned away. "It shall be my care that it is duly reported and rewarded."

Cigarette was but a few seconds

absent; she soon bounded back like the swift little chamels she was bringing with her a huge bowlful of red wine with bread and butter in it.

"This is the best I could get," she said; "it is better than nothing. It will strengthen you."

"What have you had yourself, little one?"

"Ah, bah! Leave off thinking for others; I breakfasted long ago," she answered him. (She had only eaten a biscuit well nigh as hard as a flint.)

"Take it—here, I will give you."

She perched herself on the wheel

like a bird on a twig; she had a bird's power of alighting and sustaining herself on the most difficult and most airy elevation; but Cecil saw his eyes on the only soldier in the cart

besides himself, one of the worst men in his regiment—a murderous, sullen, blatant, evil wretch, fitter for the bench of the convict galleys than for the ranks of the cavalry.

"Give half to Zackrist," he said. "I know no hunger, and he has more need of it."

"Zackrist! That is the man who stole your lance and accoutrements, and got you into trouble by taking them to pawn in your name, a year or more ago."

"Well, what of that? He is not the less hungry."

"What of that? Why, you were going to be disgraced for the affair, because of the flies and gnats were fastened, doling their will uninterrupted.

As he caught her glance a sudden reddish glow of shame shone through the black, hard skin of his sunburned visage—shame to which he had never been touched when discovered in any one of his guilty and barbarous actions.

"Ugh!" he growled savagely. "He gave me his wine. One must do something in return; not that I feel the insects—not I; my skin is leather, see you; they can't get through it, but his is white and soft—bah—like tissue paper."

"I see, Zackrist. You are right. A French soldier can never take a kindness from an English fellow without outwitting him in generosity. Look,

here is some drink for you."

She knew too well the strange nature with which she had to deal to say a syllable of praise to him for his self devotion or to appear to see that, despite his boast of his leather skin, the stings of the cruel winged tribes were drawing his blood and causing him alike pain and irritation which, under that sun and added to the torment of his gunshot wound, were a martyrdom

as great as the noblest saint ever endured.

And all through the march she gave

Zackrist a double portion of her water dashed with red wine, that was so welcome and so precious to the parched aching throats, and all through the day.

Cecil lay asleep, and the man who had thieved from him, the man whose soul was stained with murder and pillage and rapine, sat erect beside him, letting the insects suck his body and pierce his flesh.

It was only when they drew near the camp of the main army that Zackrist beat off the swarm and drew his old shirt over his head.

"You do want to say anything to him," he muttered to Cigarette. "I am of leather, you know; I have not felt it."

And she dashed the spurs into her mare and galloped off at the height of her speed into camp—a very city of canvases, buzzing with the hum of life, regulated with the marvelous skill and precision of French warfare, yet with the carelessness and the picturesqueness of the desert life pervading

it.

What she had done had been told long before, and on the evening of the

in the early night to take the news of the battle, and the whole host was on watch for its darling, the savior of the honor of France. Like wave rushing and of some tempestuous ocean,

the men swept out to meet her in one great surging tide of life, impetuous, passionate, idolatrous, exultant, with all the vivid ardor, all the uncontrolled emotion of nature south born, sun antured. As her soldiers had done the night before, so these did now—kissing her hands, her dress, her feet, sending her name in thunder through the sun-

lit air, lifting her from off her horse and Cecil's glance followed Cigarette's.

With a cry he sprang to his feet and stood entranced, gazing at the stranger. She saw the startled answer in the longing love, the agony of recognition, in his eyes. She saw the impulse in him to spring forward and the shuddering effort with which the impulse was controlled. He turned to her almost fiercely.

"He must not see me! Keep him away—away, for God's sake!"

He could not leave his men. He was fettered there where his squadron was camped. He went as far as he could from the flamelight into the shadow and thrust himself among the tethered horses. Cigarette asked nothing; com-prehended at a glance, with all the tact

of her nation, and sauntered forward to meet the officers of the regiment as they came up to the picket fire with the yellow haired English stranger.

The eyes of the stranger lighted on her,

and his voice laughed in mellow music

to his companions.

"Your intemperance is perfect; your ambulance is perfect; your camp cookery is perfect, messieurs, and here you

The WHIRL of the TOWN

Mr. Wm. O'Brien of Upper Derby, is very ill.

There was a heavy thunder storm last Sunday night. The rain was badly needed.

The I. C. R. will issue return tickets to St. John on Oct. 16th good to return on the 15th for one second class fare.

Invitations are out for a social dance in the Temperance Hall, Douglastown, on Monday, October 7th, under the auspices of Douglastown Division, No. 6, A. O. H.

Don't forget Dr. Killam's lecture in the Methodist church here, Wednesday night at 7.30. Miss Killam has had some thrilling experiences and a rare treat is assumed for those who hear her.

At the Police Court, Friday morning, William Crane was committed for trial on the charge of having entered Dr. Baxter's rooms and robbed him. Mr. Brown appeared for the defense and Mr. Thompson for the Crown.—World.

Leonard Brennan, 18 years of age, of Teteouche, while making a rivet with the head of a ten-penny nail on Monday last, was struck in the left eye with a piece of the metal. He went through the eyeball. In danger of making a mistake. It is also a good adv. for the Advocate.

A shooting accident occurred at Northbrook last week. Daniel Hogan, a son of Pat Hogan was visiting at Daniel Mullin's, and while there the talk drifted to shooting and Mr. Mullin said he would show the others how to shoot. He picked up a Winchester and took aim and then changed his mind and lowered the rifle and turned partly around and accidentally went off and the charge of light bird shot struck young Hogan in the head. Seven grains entered, four in the rear and three in the forehead and face. He was brought to town where the wound was dressed and no serious consequences are expected.

The following officers were elected at the regular meeting of Newcastle Division No. 45 last Thursday evening: W. P. E. McGrath, W. A. Geo. Dalton, R. S. W. Sutherland, A. R. S. Thos. Roy, F. S. T. A. Clarke, Treas.—Daniel McGrath, Chap.—Rev. A. F. Brown, Con.—Walter Rundle, A. C. Wesley Pickles, I. S.—J. B. Robertson, O. S.—Donald McGrath.

Wedding Bells. The home of Mr. John Clark, Nelson, was the scene of a pretty wedding Tuesday evening, when his daughter Marion was united in marriage to Mr. Edward Bateman, of the same place. Rev. Mr. McIntosh of Douglastown performed the ceremony in the presence of about fifty guests.

At the residence of the bride's parents on the 17th inst., by the Rev. T. H. Cuthbert, Joseph Daniel Dickson, Napan, to Miss Elizabeth Christians Ellis, Salmon Brook.

Presbytery of Miramichi.

The Presbytery of Miramichi met in St. John's Church, Chatham, on Tuesday, the 24th inst. There were fourteen ministers and two elders present. A large number of elders' commissions were sustained. Rev. Mr. Carr, Campbellton, was nominated as moderator of the coming Synod. A hearty and unanimous call from Tabusintac in favor of Rev. J. R. McKay, was sustained and ordered to be transmitted. Rev. W. Hamilton was appointed to supply New Brunswick or six months, and Mr. Angus Firth to supply Kouchibouguac until the next regular meeting of Presbytery. Dr. Campbell's suggested methods for the increase of contributions to the century fund were discussed, and recommended to the consideration of sessions. A very helpful conference on the recommendations of the century fund committee and the spiritual aspect of the movement was held which occupied the greater part of the afternoon session. The next regular meeting was appointed to be held in St. James Hall, Newcastle on the third Tuesday in December and the Presbytery adjourned to meet in St. John during the meeting of Synod at the call of the moderator.

DID YOU EVER WHISTLE?

We sell for cash. Don't want any credit customers, not one, because we have made our prices so low we have no room for losses, besides we do not want our customers to pay for another's goods. When we buy we touch the undersill of low prices and when we sell we are satisfied with a very small profit. When you get our price just assured you have the lowest price. We will not appeal to friendship or any special favor, as our prices will appeal to your pocket book from a common sense standpoint. Don't want any theory to understand that if we underbid you we can undersell. Our salespeople will treat you fair and square. We correct all errors, and make all wrongs right. One price and the cash down.

BIG GAME.

R. H. Armstrong Shoots the RECORD MOOSE.

A Magnificent head, Other Hunters Returning Successful.

This is game warden Robinson's busy season. In conversation with the Advocate yesterday he said that up to date he had sold nearly twice as many licenses as he had all last season which is a very good showing for Northumberland. He also says he has corresponded with a number of gentlemen who cannot come this year but have spoken for guides for next year.

R. H. Armstrong returned to town from the little South West last Saturday night and brought with him the largest and prettiest moose head ever shot in New Brunswick as far as we can ascertain. This monarch Mr. Armstrong succeeded in bringing to the ground last Friday after a long and patient wait during which he had several fine specimens within shot but he had seen a better one and would not shoot until his majesty came within range. Sandy Johnstone was his guide and several times he advised "Bob" to shoot but it was no go and patience had its reward.

This magnificent head has a spread of sixty-two inches with twenty-six points on each side, with broad massive palms. It is finely proportioned and every point is perfect. Upon arrival in town the carriage was soon surrounded by a crowd and the genial and proud "Bob" was showered with congratulations. It is needless to state that the lucky hunter is very proud of his trophy and has it on exhibition at Mr. Russell's store where hundreds have called to view it.

When interviewed by the Advocate reporter, Mr. Armstrong said that altogether he had seen twenty-three moose and about half that number had come within range. He also told of hearing a fierce battle between two of these monarchs which made such a din that it aroused him out of a sound slumber at three o'clock in the morning and when he examined the ground next morning he saw plenty evidence of a fierce struggle. That part of the country seems to be full of moose and caribou.

The following parties have gone to the woods or returned since our last issue:—

Captain Mandaley, the English remount officer left Monday with Ned. White for attorney brook district to get a moose.

Messrs Ross Burchard and E. H. Hothelshin of New York returned Saturday night. They succeeded in getting a very nice moose and two caribou heads.

Messrs Geo. F. Dominick and Dr. Herick of New York also returned Saturday night. They brought moose and caribou heads with them.

Lambert Syden, and Geo. B. North, of New York and S. T. Wintz of Philadelphia returned from Cain's river with some heads.

Mr. Wintz has hunted eight years in Maine but never was successful until this year and speaks in the highest terms of the country.

The many friends of Guide Ned. Way of Northwick will be pained to learn of his serious illness of Typhoid fever at his home and all wish him a speedy recovery. Ned is one of the best Guides in New Brunswick and will be much missed while he is laid off the list which we trust will not be for long.

Mr. North who was in the Cain's river with Geo. Bartlett and W. C. Bartlett and Wm. Russell as Guides succeeded in getting a fine moose head with fifty-eight inch spread with broad antlers with five points on each brow.

S. T. Wintz who succeeded in shooting a caribou on Cain's river, has returned with W. C. Bartlett to get a moose.

N. G. Deparow of New Albany, N. Y. E. J. Phillips and E. F. Morris of Newcastle, Penn., and J. A. King and D. H. Greene, of Dayton, Ohio with Harry Braithwaite, Fringle, and Edward Norad as guides and Joseph and Chas. Cameron as cooks are hunting on the head waters of the south branch of the Little Southwest. They went in from Boiestown.

A. A. Quakerbush of New York with John Scott as guide is on Clearwater, Southwest after moose.

Ladmore Morse, Boston, Daniel Munn, guide, Arch Munn, packman and John C. Fairley as cook is also hunting for moose on the headwaters of the Miramichi.

F. M. Smythe, S. T. Mather of New York and D. L. Ransome C. B. Labuskie, who were in on McKel Brook with Wm. Griffin as guide have returned. Mr. Smythe killed a fine moose with a fifty three and one half inch spread with twenty-eight points.

YACHT RACES.

Much Interest Manifested Here.

COLUMBIA WINS.

No Race Yesterday—Shamrock Leading When Race Called Off.

(SPECIAL TO THE ADVOCATE)

New York, Oct. 1.—Fine fifteen mile breeze in early morning indicated good race but as time approached for starting the wind had fallen to four miles. Columbia got the lead at the start. Columbia led for a long time but near the first turn the Shamrock passed her and was over three minutes ahead when the race was declared off as the yachts were unable to finish in time limit.

New York, Sept. 28.—In the closest and most soul-stirring race ever sailed for the old America's cup, the white flyer Columbia today beat the English challenger over a windward and leeward course of 30 nautical miles by the narrow, heat-breaking margin of 39 seconds. As Lipton's latest aspirant for cup honors must allow the defender 43 seconds on account of the 833 square feet of canvas in her sail area the official record, under the rules gives her the victory by 1 minute and 22 seconds.

As a spectacle the contest was superb. From the time the two skyscraping racers crossed the starting line until they fled across the shimmering finish line four and a half hours later, the result was in doubt and the excitement aboard the excursion fleet increased until it became frenzied.

So evenly matched were these two scientific racing machines that never after they started were the rival skippers out of each other's hail and more than three-fourths of the time they were so close that Charlie Barr, who had the tiller aboard the American, could have tossed a biscuit to Captain Sycamore on the Shamrock. For miles as they beat their way to the outer mark the black shadow of Shamrock's huge club top-mast was painted on the big mainsail of the Columbia and for an hour on the run home, with the two yachts flying like scalded deer before the wind, they ran almost beam to beam as if they had been harnessed.

The memory of the races between the Genesta and Puntan in 1885 and Dunraven's first Valkyrie and Vigilant in 1893, which have been treasured by yachtsmen up to this time, will be forgotten after the magnificent duel of today. In the years to come yachtsmen of two nations will recount the thrilling story of the celebrated race between the Columbia and the Shamrock II, sailed off New Harbor in the first year of the new century.

T. Allen Hilles of Wilmington, Delaware, A. H. Harrington, of Erie, Penn. with Carol Bering and Geo. McKay as guides and Jas. Street as cook, and a packman have gone to the North branch of the Big Seveglie.

Dr. McMannus and Mr. Whitmore of Blackville were hunting on Dunganven last week with Ronald McDonald as guide and succeeded in getting a fine moose each.

Dr. Lewis of Providence, R. I. is hunting at Forks, Main Northwest with Ed. Monias as guide and Archie Stewart as cook.

Mr. Pitman who has been hunting on North Pole is expected out today.

Capt. Henesage, of H. M. S. Naobe now at Halifax has made arrangements to spend two weeks on the Miramichi to hunt big game. Wm. Griffin is his guide.

Recently a large bull moose appeared at Blackville and Chas. Corbett, a son of Rev. Mr. Corbett's procured a license and went after it and shot it. It is a good specimen and Charlie is proud of his trophy.

Theron R. Strong and Theron G. Strong of New York have returned with a moose and a caribou. White brothers were their guides. They were delighted with the county.

At Vancouver

VANCOUVER, B. C. Sept. 30.—The Duke and Duchess of York completed their transcontinental tour westward today and are the guests of the people of Vancouver. Their special trains made the run down through the valley of the Fraser River this morning and at 11.30 o'clock pulled into the Canadian Pacific depot.

Clarke Wallace III

TORONTO, Sept. 30.—A consultation of a number of eminent physicians was held this afternoon at Woodbridge regarding the condition of Hon. N. Clarke Wallace. At the close of the consultation the physicians announced that Mr. Wallace was dangerously ill of pernicious anaemia. From other sources it was learned that no hopes are held for his recovery.

OVER THE

Trouble Between British and Turks.

AMERICANS DEFEATED.

Forest Fires Quebec, at Gagetown. Shooting Accidents.

Big Ransom.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Associated Press Telegrams correspondent in Constantinople has a ransom of $125,000 has now been demanded by the captors of Miss Stowe, an American missionary.

Trouble Threatened.

BOMBAY, Sept. 28.—A British warship is concentrating in the Persian Gulf. War ships are already on the spot. The British fleet is being augmented by the gunboat which has already left Durresch. The third-class cruiser Pomone will be sent for the Persian Gulf as soon as he is ordered. It is thought trouble is impending. Kowey, according to a report, has 30,000 troops at Basra, commander Rihem Pasha, with the object of Kowey, though the Turks assert that troops are intending to ravage Arab tribes and suppress rebellion in Yemen.

Brigandage in New Mexico.

PUEBLO, Mex. Sept. 28.—Brigands recently obtained entrance to the Hacienda de Lajeros, in this state, taking advantage of the hour when the workmen report to the office of the Hacienda. One of the robbers, shot Senor Lastiri, owner of the place the bullet entering the abdomen, a bullet fired at the bandits and killed him. Lastiri was then wounded by a bullet in the right arm but continued firing with his left hand when the clerk saw the robbers and opened fire on them, killing four of them. These the bandits, thinking that their attempted robbery was to cost them dear, fled.

The man who guided the robbers to the Hacienda, which is surrounded by hills, has been arrested. Mounted bandits are scouting in all directions and is expected the entire band will be captured or shot.

Collision on I. C. R.

MONROVIA, Sept. 28.—At Point DuChene last night quite a collision occurred near the I. C. R. round house. Train No. 12, due to arrive at 6 o'clock, collided with the engine driven by Joe Moore, sr., and both engines were disabled and quite badly damaged. A signal was up for No. 12, but was not lighted. No one was hurt.

Insurgents Active.

MANTLA, Sept. 28.—A disastrous fight between United States troops and insurgents occurred yesterday in the Island of Samar, near Balangiga. A large body of insurgents attacked Company C, 9th Infantry, only 24 members of the company escaping.

The company were at breakfast when attacked, and made a determined resistance, but the overwhelming number of the insurgents compelled them to retreat.

Of the survivors who have arrived at Basey, 11 are wounded.

Barkentine Wrecked.

News reached the city last night by telephone from Hopewell Cape to The Daily Telegraph, that the barkentine Bahama, from New York to Hillsboro in ballast, had grounded in the Pettoctid River on Saturday night, and would probably be a total loss.

Quebec Forest a Sea of Flames.

QUEBEC, Sept. 28.—A despatch from Port Neuf Light, Saguenay, says: A terrible bush fire has been raging here this morning and unless the gale of wind abates the entire village will certainly be destroyed. A bush fire started to burn about a month ago in the back woods and seemed to be dying out, but the strong wind blowing during the last few days fanned the flames and caused the fire to regain somewhat. People are leaving their houses, fearing they will fall prey to flames. It is not certain how the fire started, but it is attributed either to berry pickers or woodmen.

A later report tonight says three houses have been burned and the fire is now within three acres of the telegraph office. The fire is a sight frightful to behold. The forest is actually a sea of flames, a strong easterly wind driving the fire across country and sweeping everything before it. Fortunately the wind tonight is blowing in a direction opposite to the buildings, but if it changes nothing can save the village from total destruction.

Gagetown Fire.

GAGETOWN, Sept. 28.—Early this morning the grist mill of Messrs. Joseph and Chas. H. Brown was totally destroyed by fire. Beside the destruction of all pertaining to the mill property a considerable quantity of grain was lost as well as a good horse belonging to Wm. Simpson. The mill was new and well equipped and the loss is all the more deplorable since there is no insurance.

Ordination to The Priesthood at Richibucto, Kent Co.

The Right Rev. Bishop Barry, with some sixteen priests met at Richibucto on Saturday the 21st, of September for the purpose of conferring the sacred rite of Priesthood on the Rev. H. M. O'Leary, S. T. L., lately of Montreal's Grand Seminary but after the conferring of the priesthood, he left for Italy where he intends making a post-graduate course in theology and cognate subjects. The Canadian College at Rome has been by desire of the Pope established and placed under the care of the Salesian Fathers whose special vocation is the education of young men aspiring to the priesthood. The Rev. Mr. O'Leary made a brilliant course of studies at Montreal, and will, no doubt, distinguish himself among the many who are studying in the Eternal City. Saturday, the 21st September, being Ember Saturday, is selected by the Catholic Church as one of the few days on which Sacred Orders are conferred. Hence the ceremonies, which are quite lengthy, commenced at 6.30 a. m., in order that the Bishop and priests assembled, might be in a position to connect with the trains, and reach in good time their several missions for Sunday. The Coadjutor Bishop of Chatham conferred the Sacrament of Orders. The Very Rev. Father Pelletier, V. G. of St. Louis was Archpriest for the occasion. The Rev. F. Varrily took charge of the ceremonies, the Rev. M. F. Richard meanwhile assisting the young priest who was about to be ordained. In addition to these there were in the sanctuary the Rev. Superior of the Redemptorist Seminary of Carleton Place, Rev. P. W. Dixon of Newmarket, E. J. Bannion of Richibucto, N. Power of Nelson, S. J. Crumley of Blackville, E. W. Murdoch of Renou, E. P. Wallace of Campbellton, F. Boucher of Dalhousie, F. X. P. Campbell of Barnaby River, J. Wheton of Chatham, J. Gertin, D. D., Professor at Memorial College, and F. Martineau of Kingston with others.

The Coadjutor Bishop having finished the Mass of Ordination addressed the congregation, referred feelingly to the fact that although surrounded by relatives and friends in great number, these most immediately interested in him, namely his father and mother, had a few years ago bade adieu to the scene of their earthly labors and were now, he hoped, looking from their home in Heaven and offering prayers for one for whom they, as is evident, prayed and carefully educated while here below. He asked the crowded congregation to offer fervent prayers for the young man now entering a new career now commencing to live another life. The Bishop monopolized the attention of the people who, no doubt, will comply with a request made on such a solemn occasion. The Rev. Superior of the Carleton Seminary preached in French, speaking fluently and eloquently. The Rev. Father Dixon preached in English, speaking as follows:

ON THE CHRISTIAN PRIESTHOOD IN ITS RELATION TO THE SACRIFICE OF THE NEW LAW.

"Thou art a Priest forever according to the order of Melchisedech." (Ps. CIX, 4.)

The inspired writer tells us that in the early days of the Creation men were wont to look upon their neighbor's property with a somewhat jealous eye, and that scenes of rapine were not infrequent. It is the story of human affairs. History has been repeating itself ever since—Strength or brute force asserts itself, whenever feasible.

In the Book of Genesis an illustration of this truth is given us. Certain proceedings of the country rise in revolt against the sovereign. The results are of the usual kind. Laws human and divine are forgotten and trampled upon. On this occasion, Abraham is represented as avenging wrong done his nephew. Gathering his servants and dependents of every degree, he attacks the enemy, restores the goods unjustly seized and held, thus acquiring for himself a reputation for prowess and evidencing his sense of justice.

On his return from the field of battle we are told that he is met by Melchisedech, the King of Salem. Around this personage there is shown a halo of romance. His past history as well as his future fate are apparently unknown. St. Paul writing to the Hebrews speaks of him as "without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life, but likened to the son of God, continuing a priest forever." We are not given in the Sacred Writings his ancestral history; hence St. Paul so describes him, although we all know that he is not the product of Spontaneous Generation. He is thus described not without a purpose; for he is the type of Christ, the Great High priest of the New Law who, although having no father on earth, had One in Heaven, yet having a mother on earth, had one in Heaven. Abraham and Melchisedech were persons of distinction possessing and exercising much influence. They were also priests. But on the present occasion Melchisedech exercises the priestly functions, as his was of a superior order. Abraham acts a passive part. How does Melchisedech do it? How does he show the superiority of his priesthood? He shows it thus, and in a threefold way. He, first, offers bread and wine in sacrifice; secondly, he blesses Abraham; thirdly, he receives tithes from Abraham, as is evident from St. Paul who writing to the Hebrews on the transfer of the priesthood, says:—"For this Melchisedech, King of Salem, priest of the Most High God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings and blessed him; to whom also Abraham divided the tithes of all; who indeed first by interpretation is king of Justice; and then also, king of Salem; that is, king of peace." The Eternal God, speaking through His prophet Isaiah, thus addresses him: "The Lord has sworn, and he will not repent—Thou art a priest forever according to the order of Melchisedech." With the advent of the Man—God, the old or Aaronic priesthood would cease, to be succeeded by a priesthood superior to the old, infinitely so,—by one, moreover, that is destined to last forever.

That the Son of God in His incarnate condition should be a priest and the priest of the New Law, tells us something of man's relations to God, his connection with Him and his dependence on him. Never in history were these conditions forgotten. At the very dawn of man's creation we find Abel and Cain offering sacrifices to the Creator in recognition of their dependence and of His sovereignty. The inspired writer referring to this, says:—"And it came to pass after many days that Cain offered of the fruits of the earth gifts to the Lord. Abel offered of the firstlings of his flock and of their fat." Gen. IV 3, 4. The offerings, as in the present instance, may have been acceptable, or not; but the principle is recognized, and the duty inculcated.

Never during that long period that elapsed between the primal fall and Christ's coming did sacrifice cease. Man's passionate cry for redemption was never forgotten. Adequate adoration, praise, thanksgiving and reparation are not within man's capacity. The Second Person of the divine Trinity clothing Himself in our nature comes to effect this fourfold work. No other creature can do it. Therefore, coming into the world he said: Sacrifice and oblation thou wouldst not; but a body thou hast fitted to me. Holocausts thou didst not please thee. Then said I: "Behold I come." Hebr. X, 5, 6.

The very moment that the Son of God clothing Himself in flesh enters his mother's womb, becoming one of us, he assumes the office of priest, making intercession for us. Being the offerings of the Man God, they are always acceptable.

Through him, with him and in him, as the Mass puts it, do we discharge our obligation to God. This office he commences to discharge from the very moment of his incarnation. Like a giant he runs his course. The Baptist still in his mother's womb is sanctified in the divine presence; Elizabeth filled with the Holy Ghost becomes cognizant of the mystery that has taken place, and addressing Mary ever was with the prophet:—"What shall I offer to the Lord that is worthy? Wherewith shall I kneel before the High God?" Mich. This feeling was not confined to the Hebrew whom God favored in many and signal ways. It was felt by the pagan, whether wandering in the desert, or building magnificent cities. His notions of the Divinity may have been crude,—his ideas perverted; but the principle of dependence, the idea of sovereignty, the necessity of sacrifice, were ever recognized. The pagan historian Plutarch tells us this. Writing against an Epicurean of his day, he says:—"Should you travel the world over, you may find cities without walls, palaces, letters, laws, wealth, coins, but a city destitute of temples and of Gods, offering not prayers, not making vows, not consulting oracles, not offering sacrifice to obtain favors not turning aside evil by sacred offerings, none has ever seen." This testimony of a pagan historian tells us that deep down in our nature is there an instinct demanding union with, and recognition of, God in the form of sacrifice. A priest, an altar and a sacrifice were, therefore, always in existence. In the Law of Nature the priestly functions were performed by the heads of families or tribes for and in the name of the families or tribes,—the victims being generally chosen by the offerer. In the Mosaic Law God Himself prescribes the forms or ceremonies which were quite elaborate in their way. The priesthood is confined to the tribe of Levi, but to the sons of Aaron; while other members of the Levitical tribe occupied minor and less honorable positions.

The acknowledgment of the Creator's absolute dominion and of the creature's absolute dependence on Him, supposes three moral obligations inherent in his very existence, viz, the obligation to adore and worship God, to give him thanks for benefits received, to petition Him for other benefits now and in the future, the Creator being free to grant the request or otherwise lend it a deaf ear. But if the creature violates the divine law, he incurs the obligation of making due atonement, reparation or satisfaction to the Infinite Justice offended. This is called Propitiation. Hence four obligations embracing our duties to God, to which the four great ends of sacrifice correspond. Four sacrifices different in purpose and manner of offering were, therefore, in existence under the Old Law, or previous to Christ's coming. They were ordered by God Himself. Domesticated animals on which man by the care taken of them had impressed the image of himself, were substitutes for men. By the sacrifice of them, man acknowledged publicly the supreme dominion of God and his own absolute dependence. But of themselves they were of no value. Their worth depended on the disposition of the priest who offered them and on the faith which referred them to God, valuing them as types of the sacrifice yet to come. St. Paul calls them weak and needy elements. Hence the anathemas which the Eternal hurls through His prophets against sacrifices offered by unclean hands and from sinful hearts. Isaiah speaking in His full heart, says:—"Offer sacrifices no more in vain. Incessant is an abomination to me. . . . When you stretch forth your hands, I will turn away my eyes from you; and when you multiply prayer, I will not hear; for your hands are full of blood."

Adequate adoration, praise, thanksgiving and reparation are not within man's capacity. The Second Person of the divine Trinity clothing Himself in our nature comes to effect this fourfold work. No other creature can do it. Therefore, coming into the world he said: Sacrifice and oblation thou wouldst not; but a body thou hast fitted to me. Holocausts thou didst not please thee. "Blessed art thou amongst women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb. And whence is this to me that the mother of my Lord should come to me? For behold, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in my ears, the infant in my womb leaped for joy. And blessed art thou that hast believed, because those things shall be accomplished that were spoken to thee by the Lord." He gives to Zachary the gift of prophecy, to his Virgin-Mother an illumination of knowledge and a wealth of grace hitherto unknown. During the 33 years of his earthly existence, he by consecutive steps prepares to ascend the cross. On the eve of his death he institutes for all time the unbloody sacrifice, and on the following day offers the bloody sacrifice of himself on the cross. His priesthood is different from that of the Old Law; for there now exists but one priest, one victim, one sacrifice, one altar. In the Old Dispensation priest succeeded priest. In the New there is no succession. The priest whom we see on the altar, as St. Thomas Aquinas tells us, made one with him and shares in his priesthood. Christ is, in the words of the great Tertullian who defended Christianity some seven hundred years ago, the "Catholicus Patris Sacerdos," which translated literally means the "Catholic Priest of the Father," or as it is explained the "Priest of the Catholic Church." He is, in the words of St. Cyprian who wrote in the same century, the "Summus Sacerdos Patris," the High Priest of the Father, who in order to fulfill the mission given him of "priest forever according to the order that is, according to the rite of Melchisedech," must for all time to come offer sacrifice in bread and wine. How will he do it? He has ceased to live amongst us in visible form, as when here on earth. He will do it. At that altar on which he first changed bread and wine into his body and blood, he made provision for the future. Having by the words: "This is my body, and this is my blood" changed the bread and wine into his body and blood, Soul and divinity, he immediately said to those who sat with him at table: "Do this for a commemoration of me." Do what I have done. Day after day perpetuate this sacrifice 'according the order of Melchisedech," viz, in bread and wine. This accounts for the ceremony at which you have assisted this morning, a ceremony or rite by which, in obedience to the divine command, a young levite is ordained by the pontiff or bishop in whom resides the plenitude of the priesthood, enabling him to carry out the divine "do this in commemoration of me." Through this young priest who has been ordained, and through others such as he, will the words which God puts into the mouth of the Prophet Malachi be realized: From the rising of the sun even to the going down, my name is great among the gentiles; and in every place there is sacrifice, and there is offered to my name a clean oblation; for my name is great among the gentiles, saith the Lord of hosts' Malachi I, II. In every clime, under every sun,—wherever a Catholic priest sets foot, this daily sacrifice is offered according to the "order" or rite of Melchisedech. Although truly or in every sense a priest, he knows that his priesthood is the priesthood of Christ;—that therefore, when by the awful power given him, he consecrates and trans-substantiates bread and wine, he does so as Christ's agent and Christ's instrument. Therefore, he says not: "This is the blood of Christ," or, "this is the body of Christ," but rather: "This is my body," "This is my blood." On this account, Suarez who occupies a front rank in Catholic theology, says that at the moment of consecration the sacred humanity of Christ by actual and physical concurrence works the miracle of Trans-substantiation. On the cross the sacrifice was meritorious and satisfactory; on the cross we were redeemed; on the altar the work of redemption is carried out.

The Fathers of the Church, on this account, tell us that Christ is truly, as prophesied of him, "a priest forever" because he is forever engaged in offering the sacrifice of the mass. Hence, as St. Paul remarks, the difference between the priesthood of the Old Law and that of the New. In the VII chapter of Hebrews, speaking of this he says: "And others indeed were many priests, because by reason of death they were not suffered to continue. But this, for that he continueth forever, hath an everlasting priesthood." He has no successors, but only vicars. Hence the council Trent giving us the Catholic teaching, says that the "Sacrifice of the altar can never be defiled by the wickedness or unworthiness of the offerer, the reason being that Christ and none other is the chief offerer and priest of the mass. St. John Chrysostom who lived in the fourth century of our era, says: "When thou beholdest the priest offering the sacrifice," consider not the priest as celebrating, but behold the hand of Christ invisibly stretched forth. St. John is only one of a hundred witnesses to the fact that the teaching of the Catholic Church to-day was the teaching of the same church fifteen hundred years ago. That it was the teaching in apostolic times, St. Paul assures us. Writing to the Hebrews (XIII, 10) he says:—"We have an altar whereof they have no power to eat, who serve the tabernacle." An Altar always supposes sacrifice, sacrifice supposes a priest. Altar, victim or object to be sacrificed, priest are terms supplementary of each other. The Greek translation for the term altar is "Thusiastation" as any tyro in Greek knows, means a place on which sacrifice is offered.

My Brother,
You have been this morning elevated to the priesthood. Your priesthood is the priesthood of Christ. Great is the honor; but great also is the responsibility. If in the Old Law God said to His priests:—"Be ye holy as I am holy," what must he demand of us! He does not place before us as models mere creatures of the earth, somewhat borne down by imperfections; He does not ascend higher, and tell us of the heights to which His Saints have risen; He does not speak of angelic strength, nor even of the transcendent virtues of the Virgin Mother; none are to be the ideals—none the models after which our lives are to be fashioned. He gives us Himself and says to us—"Be ye holy because I am holy." Meditate on my life. He says to us in substance: You will each day ascend this altar. You will offer sacrifice in my name. At thy bidding I come down from the

EVENTS of the WEEK

SOMERVILLE, Texas, Sept. 26.—B. W. Long and George Johnson, the negroes wounded in the recent riot, have died. While matters are quiet, most of the ringleaders of the negroes being in jail, there is grave apprehension that all of the trouble is not over.

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Mrs. Mary David was shot and almost instantly killed here this morning. Her son and two companions were loading and unloading a single-barrelled shot gun in the David kitchen, when the gun was accidentally discharged just as Mrs. David entered the room. She died before medical aid could reach her.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 26.—Antonio Maggio, the alleged anarchist, who is said to have declared several months ago that he knew President McKinley would be killed before October, has just had a preliminary trial before United States Judge Newcomb, of Silver City, and was held under $10,000 bonds to await the action of the United States grand jury and Las Cruces, which meets Oct. 7.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—A trek to

Mexico is contemplated by the Boers, according to a cable despatch from London to the Globe, which says:

"Part of the land is the Flores-hales estate, a concession from the government of Mexico to certain financiers, one of whom is a member of the House of Commons.

"The purchase price has been set down at $2,500,000, which will buy 20,000,000 acres, this being the aggregate of two concessions now in the hands of syndicates. The smaller of the two estates comprises 5,000,000 acres.

"This land has seaboard of 200 miles and will thus offer shipping facilities, which were denied to the Boers in South Africa and which they so much desired."

LONDON, Sept. 26.—On the return of the Duke of Cornwall from abroad he will be created Prince of Wales. By conferring the title after an interval following upon his own demission of the title, the King is strictly following precedent. The title of Earl of Dublin, which is also borne by the heir apparent, may be conferred later.

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

In the S. S. Islander Enquiry.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 26.—The most sensational evidence yesterday in the inquiry into the loss of the steamer Islander was given by Mr. Green, of Tacoma, who said he saw Pilot Leblanc and Capt. Foote go aboard at Skagway and the gang plank was too narrow for the vessel. The captain did not appear to be intoxicated, but he had been drinking. Green had seen him in the bar several times during the course of the evening before the vessel struck. Statements that the two officers mentioned had been drinking were also made by other passengers, while a number of them stated that absolutely no alarm was given after the vessel struck.

BABY IN THE HOME.

A Joy and Treasure When Good Natured and Healthy.

All children in every home in the country need at some time or other a medicine such as Baby's Own Tablets, and this famous remedy has cured many a little life. Mothers insist upon having it because it contains no opiate or harmful drugs. It is purely vegetable, sweet and pleasant to take and prompt in its effect.

For simple fever, colic, constipation, disordered stomach, diarrhoea, irritation accompanying the cutting of teeth and indigestion, Baby's Own Tablets are a certain cure. In fact in almost any disorder common to children these tablets should be given at once and relief may be promptly looked for.

Never give the babies so-called soothing medicines which simply put them into an unnatural sleep. These tablets are small, sweet, pleasant to take and prompt in acting. Dissolved in water, they will be taken readily by the smallest infant.

Mrs. John McEwan, Bathurst Village, N. B., writes: "My baby was almost constantly troubled with colic before I gave him Baby's Own Tablets, but since giving them to him he has not suffered. Every mother should keep these tablets always at hand."

They cost 25 cents a box. You can find them at your druggist's or, if you do not, forward the money direct to us and we will send the tablets prepaid. The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Dept. T., Brockville, Ont.

Ordination to the Priest-hood.

bosom of my Father in Heaven. Then be holy; be consumed with a burning zeal for my honor and my glory; for God "is a consuming fire." Let this altar of the New Law be to you more than was the burning bush in Herod of which the Eternal one said to Moses in the days of old—"Come not nigh higher, but put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the ground whereon thou standest is holy." Yours will be the privilege of standing on holy ground. Throw off your shoes, that is, all wickedness or sin, stand consistently, stand firmly. You can do it. Christ will say to you, as he said of old to another priest: "My grace is sufficient for thee." In return for which God will say to you—"I will be thy reward exceeding great." He promises you in return for faithful service not the good things of this world, not applause and admiration which follow success in some special line, not wealth for which the princes of fortune work, not sensual delights in which the unclean wallow—He promises you something higher and holier, He promises Himself—that which constitutes Heaven—the great God Himself whom you will see face to face—an ocean of beauty, limitless, over which your eyes will stray—pure delights such as the eye hath not seen, nor the ear heard, nor the mind conceived.

FIREPROOF PAPER.

Lately the paper pulp mills have been experimenting with fireproof paper. In fireproofing wood it has been found necessary to inject into it under great pressure non-inflammable chemicals, and thus neutralize the inflammable material of the wood. It has been found that these fireproofing substances can be introduced into the paper pulp much easier than they can be injected into wood. Many attempts have been made to mix the right chemicals in the paper pulp to render the paper made therefrom fireproof, with not a little success. The wood pulp that is compressed into molds for general household uses, such as for wainscoting, dados, ceilings and moldings, can be made fireproof in the same way as the paper. The fireproofing material is mixed with the soft wood pulp which is then hardened through hydraulic pressure.

This line of experiment opens a world of new possibilities. Should they succeed in producing perfect fireproof wood pulp there would be nothing to prevent them from furnishing our builders and marine architects with nearly all the interior wood trimmings in pressed material. The demand for such fireproof wood pulp products would be extensive. The navy is demanding such material for their battleships and cruisers, and the builders of the great sky-scrapers in our cities are just as anxiously looking around for the same thing. The interior trimmings of railway cars, ferryboats, ocean and river steamers, public halls and hotels are nearly all made of hard wood treat-

Washing tells the tale.

It proves the difference between Stanfield's and those that are simply branded "Unshrinkable," "Guaranteed," etc. Stanfield's remains the same in shape and size, as soft and pliable as when purchased. Every garment bears the guarantee of the Truro Knitting Mills Co. to return your money if they shrink. No special directions for washing. As the pants receive more wear than the shirts, they are made of heavier material. Stanfield's Unshrinkable Underwear is sold on a positive guarantee against shrinking in the wash. Your money back if it does.

ed with oil, so that it is more inflammable than in the natural. All this trimming of wood forms a daily menace to thousands of people, in case of fire. The whole trade is merely waiting for the proper fireproof wood to make revolutionary changes in its methods.

THE WAY TO MANAGE A WIFE.

Simplest thing in the world, declared the man who has married his third wife and lives in the second block from Woodward on a fine cross street. It's this way: Give a woman the last word, keep still, look disappointed without looking defiant, and she'll be merciful to you nine times out of ten. Now you want me for a little stag poker party?

Yes. You'll just fill out the number.

Well, sir, just drop in this evening and see how I'll get my wife's permission. Works like a charm I tell you. There'll be more or less of a squall, but don't you care. Just keep a close eye on me at the finish.

The caller dropped in at 8. There were ten minutes devoted to the weather and other current topics, when the caller asked his host to attend the party mentioned.

Let me see, rubbing his chin. I guess I can come round all right enough. We have no engagement that night, have we, my dear?

We have, and the brows of my dear were knotted.

Why, I didn't recall it. Where were we going?

We were going to remain at home; right here where you belong at night. I'm opposed to gambling and I'm opposed to night-walking. You have a very binding engagement, and I won't thank any one for urging you to break it either, and the caller felt like throwing his hands into the air.

Now, my dear, from the husband, in soft bass tones and after a long pause, never mind. You'll excuse me this time, Jones. I couldn't think of leaving my wife when she wants me here. Find some one else, old man.

Well, of course, she laughed cheerfully. I wouldn't like to spoil the party and I do like to have John enjoy himself. He works so hard, you know, Mr. Jones. But you mustn't meet too often or play too high. I must insist on your going, John. I was too selfish.

Then when John insisted just as hard that he wouldn't think of going against her will, she ordered him to go. He walked down to the corner with Jones, and when the policeman passed them he judged from their hilarity that they were not getting home a minute to soon.

Stanstead Junction, P. Q., 12th Aug., 1893.

Messrs. C. C. Richards & Co.

Gentlemen,—I fell from a bridge leading from a platform to a loaded car while assisting my men in unloading a load of grain. The bridge went down as well as the load on my back, and I struck on the ends of the sleepers, causing a serious injury to my leg. Only for its being very fleshy, would have broken it. In an hour could not walk a step. Commenced using MINARD'S LINIMENT, and the third day went to Montreal on business and got about well by the use of a cane. In ten days was nearly well. I can sincerely recommend it as the best Liniment that I know of in use.

Yours truly,

C. H. GORDON.

POLAR RESEARCH.

The return of Mrs. Peary from the polar region is an interesting event. The courageous wife of a courageous explorer went north to look for her husband in the spring of 1900. She had already accompanied him on an expedition, so that her voyage for his relief was not wholly a novel experience. Lieut. Peary is one of the most level-headed of all the explorers. He is full of pluck, but coupled with it is a wise discretion. He takes no needless risks. Commander Cheyne, of the British Navy, who spent a good deal of his time in polar regions, used to say that the deaths among Arctic explorers were usually due to a disregard of ordinary precautions. Peary seems to have proved this, for he went on one expedition and came home safely. Then he went on another and took his wife with him, and had a pleasant time. Then he went on a third and she followed him according to arrangements, spent a year with him, and came home again, safe and well, leaving him to spend another winter in the North.

This is the best testimony that can be given to his admirable management. Peary has reached 83 deg. 50 min. North latitude, which is about three degrees south of the farthest points reached by Nansen and Amundsen. He says that his explorations seem to dispose of the possibility of land being found at the North Pole, and while he is not hopeless of reaching the Pole next year, he says that the broken character of the ice, which is rarely solid for any great length of time, may prevent. He is not unhelpful that next season may be one of open water in the far north, and he is ready to take advantage of it should such be the case. Peary is a fine explorer, and he does his work, not for the spectacular interest attaching to it, but purely in the interests of science.

HIDE-AND-SEEK AMONG THE BOERS.

There seem to be enough Boers un-captured to give the British about all they want to do for some time to come. For several months now it has taken an average of ten Britons to keep the track of one Boer, and ten have generally failed in the work. There still remains to a race like the brave South Africans, after all their battle against the odds of great numbers, this guerrilla warfare, and it is idle to expect that a people who have sacrificed everything on earth, except honor, for their homes and their liberty, will make an abject surrender to their enemies until the last means of opposition is exhausted.

No event of this century, not even our own Civil War, offers such a theme to the historian of the future as the protest of the South African Republic against the onslaught of a great Power. Even the English are saying in their newspapers and their reviews, and in their speeches, that there is no glory for England in the war. Inasmuch as the credit is wanting on the side of the giant who is using his strength, so much greater will be the glory to the little band which has dared to risk everything for freedom.—Philadelphia Post.

TRADE OPPORTUNITIES WITH AUSTRALIA.

The fact that there are two or three ships now in St. John harbor loading for Australia emphasizes the interest our people naturally feel in trade with the antipodes. The advice of Mr. J. S. Larke, Canadian commercial agent in Australia, to Mr. George H. Hoes, chairman of the tariff committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, are therefore of moment to our readers. If our manufacturers are seeking markets abroad, he says, they will find that the Australian colonies are most attractive fields to explore. A perusal of his letter leads one to infer that not only the comparatively raw material of lumber which we ship, but almost anything in the way of manufactured goods can be placed very readily among the distributing facilities of the new commonwealth and the outlying islands. Certainly no one would think of exporting wool, mutton or butter to Australia, but there are thousands of articles natural to Canada and desired among our friends on the other side of the world, which it would readily pay us to send them. Mr. Larke's abilities to supply information in regard to the markets under his cognizance, ought to be taken advantage of by Canadians anxious to extend their export trade.—Telegraph.

Leaving Dawson.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 30.—Steamer City of Seattle has arrived from Skagway with 314 passengers. Crowds are no coming out from Dawson, and 200 were to have arrived in Skagway on the day the Seattle started south. The steamer had $300,000 worth of gold.

Much excitement is reported in the Atlin district on account of the discovery of what is believed to be the "mother lode" of the district.

Six cases of smallpox are reported from Dawson.

The Glenora, which sailed from Wrangle last spring, has reached Dawson by way of St. Michael.

Dangerous sport.

ST. STEPHEN, N. B., Sept. 30.—Another shooting accident in the woods occurred on Saturday night near DeWolfe Corner, in this county. Daniel McNich, with a companion named Bert White, was out in the evening looking for deer, and had come out of the woods and was resting beside the road, when two other hunters came in sight. White whistled to call their attention, but they mistook it for the whistling noise of a bear. One of them said he was going to shoot, but McNich and White, apprehending no danger, made no answer. Both then raised their guns to fire, but fortunately only one gun went off. It was held by John Dinmore, and his bullet went through McNich's shoulder, inflicting a dangerous wound.

A surgeon was summoned and the wounded man made as comfortable as possible.

Boers Repulsed By British.

DURBAN, Natal, Sept. 30.—A force of 1,500 Boers, commanded by Gen. Botha, made an attack which lasted all day long on Sept. 26 on Port Natal, on the border of Zululand. The burghers were repulsed, but at a heavy cost to the garrison, whose losses were an officer and eleven men killed and five officers and thirty-eight men wounded. In addition, sixty men are missing, of which number many are believed to have been killed or wounded. The Boer commandant Opperman and nineteen burghers are known to have been killed.

Revenue Buoyant.

OTTAWA, Sept. 30.—The Dominion revenue received from customs for the three months ending Sept. 30 amounts to $8,005,094. This an increase of $488,925, or nearly half a million dollars, over the same time last year. The increase for the month over September, 1900, was $282,810.

B. C. Mining Disaster.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 30.—Premier Dunsmuir, president of the Wellington Colliery Co. has received the following despatch from Alex. Bridon, manager of the Extension mines of that company situated near Ladysmith:

"Fire occurred in No. 2 slope at No. 3 level, which made such headway that in half an hour it was half way up the slope spreading to the air ways, and working to No. 2 and No. 3 mines. I was obliged to stop both of the mines after two explosions. Have lost some men, but cannot say how many."

A special despatch from Nanaimo says: "No. 5 slope at Extension is on fire and dense clouds of black smoke can be seen from here. Late reports say that from 8 to 15 men are in danger, if not lost. It is said that it was impossible to get air to them, and that they are probably dead. The fire broke out this evening. The cause is not yet known."

British Successes.

LADYSMITH, Natal, Sept. 30.—The British success at Fort Italia is now known to have been greater than was at first reported. Two hundred Boers were killed and more than 300 were wounded or captured.

Little is thought and less is known by the average man concerning the lives and aims of the 400,000 men and boys who delve under the surface of the earth in places of darkness and danger, where hardly a day goes by without recording the death by falls of rock, coal or slate of more than one unfortunate miner. An article on this subject at once impartial and vitally interesting is contributed to THE COSMOPOLITAN for October by John Mitchell, President of the United Mine Workers of America, whom every one recalls as the man who organized the miners and carried through to a successful termination the great anthracite strike of 1900.

By "OUIDA"

memories of that past back to him. And this was Cigarette's reward—to hear him mutter wearily of the proud eyes and of the lost smile of another! The dawn came at last. Her constant care and the skill with which she had cooled and dressed his wounds had done him infinite service. The fever had subsided, and toward morning his incoherent words ceased, his breathing grew calmer and more tranquil. He fell asleep—sleep that was profound, dreamless and refreshing.

She looked at him with a tempestuous shadow darkening her face that yet was soft with a tenderness that she could not banish. She hated him. She ought to have stabbed or shot him rather than have tended him thus. He neglected her and only thought of the woman of his old order. As a daughter of the people, as a child of the army, as a soldier of France, she ought to have killed him rather than have caressed his hair and soothed his pain.

Then gently, very gently, lest she should waken him, she took her tunic skirt with which she had covered him from the chills of the night, put more broken wood on the fading fire and with a last lingering look at him where he slept passed out from the tent as the sun rose in a flushed and beautiful dawn.

"He will never know," she said to herself as she passed through the disordered camp and in a distant quarter coiled herself among the hay of a forage wagon and, covered up in dry grass like a bird in a nest, let her tired limbs lie and her aching eyes close in repose. She was very tired, and every now and then as she slept a quick sobbing breath shook her as she slumbered like a worn-out fawn that has been wounded while it played.

CHAPTER XIV.

WITH the revolve and the break of morning Cigarette woke, herself again. She gave a little petulant shake to her fairy form when she thought of what folly she had been guilty. "Ah, bah, you deserve to be shot!" she said to herself. "One would think you were a silver pheasant, you grow such a little fool!"

Her first thought was to take care that he should never learn what she had done for him. The Princess Corona would not have more utterly disdained to solicit regard through making a claim upon gratitude than the fiery little warrior of France would have done. She went straight to the Tringlo, who had known her at her mission of mercy.

"Have a heed, Georges, never to whisper that I had anything to do with saving that man I called to you about," she said.

"And why, my little one?" "Because I desire you," said Cigarette, with her most imperious emphasis. "They say he is English and a ruined milord. Now, I would not have an Englishman think I thought his six feet of carcass worth saving for a ransom."

The Tringlo chuckled. He was an Anglobophile. "I understand. Thou art very right, Cigarette. If we have ever obliged an Englishman, he thinks his obligation to us opens him a most little door through which to oblige the English. They always hate you for it. That is their way."

"He is safe," thought Cigarette, and she made her way toward the place where she had left him, to see how it went with this man whom she was so careful should never know that which he had owed to her. Care and strengthening nourishment and the skill of her attendance had warded off all danger from his wound.

"How goes the day, M. Victor? So you got sharp scratches, I hear? Ah, that was a splendid thing we had yesterday! When did you go down? We charged together!" she cried gayly to him. Then her voice dropped suddenly, with an indescribable sweetness and change of tone. "So you suffer still?" she asked softly.

Coming close up to where he lay on the straw, she saw the exhausted languor of his regard, the heavy darkness under his eyelids, the effort with which his lips moved as the faint words came broken through them.

"Not very much, my dear, I thank you. I shall be fit for harness in two or two. Do not let them send me into hospital. I shall be perfectly—well—soon."

Cigarette awayed herself upon the wheel and leaned toward him, touching and changing his bandages with clever hands.

"They have dressed your wound ill. Whose doing is that, I think? Ah, that is nothing. I have been half cut to pieces before now. This is a mere bagatelle. It is only—"

"That it hurts you to breathe? I know. Have they given you anything to eat this morning?"

"No. Everything is in confusion. We—"

She did not stay for the conclusion of his sentence. She had darted off quick as a swallow. Of the few hundreds that had been left after the terrific onslaught of the past day some were employed far out thrusting their own dead into the soil; others were removing the tents and all the equipment of the camp; others were busied with the wounded, of whom the greatest sufferers were to be borne to the nearest hospital (that nearest many leagues away over the wild and barren country, while those who were likely to be again soon ready for service were to be escorted to the headquarters of the main army. Among the latter Cecil had passionately entreated to be numbered. His prayer was granted to the man who had kept at the head of his chassours and borne aloft the tricolor through the whole of the war tempest on which the dawn had risen and which had barely lulled and sunk by the setting of the sun. Chateauroux was away with the other five of his squadrons, and the zouave major, the only officer of any rank who had come alive through the conflict, had himself visited Bertie and given him warm words of encouragement and of gratitude that had soldierly sincerity and cordiality in them.

"Your conduct was magnificent," he had said, as he had turned away. "It shall be my care that it is duly reported and rewarded."

Cigarette was but a few seconds absent; she soon bounded back like the swift little chamois she was, bringing with her a huge bowlful of red wine with bread broken in it.

"This is the best I could get," she said; "it is better than nothing. It will strengthen you."

"What have you had yourself, little one?"

"Ah, bah! Leave off thinking for others; I breakfasted long ago," she answered him. (She had had only a biscuit well nigh as hard as a flint.) "Take it—here, I will hold it for you."

She perched herself on the wheel like a bird on a twig; she had a bird's power of alighting and sustaining herself on the most difficult and most airy elevation; but Cecil turned his eyes on the only soldier in the cart besides himself, one of the worst men in his regiment—a murderous, ruffian, black-browed, evil-wreathed, sinner for the bench of the convict galley than for the ranks of the cavalry.

"Give half to Zackrist," he said. "I know no hunger, and he has more need of it."

"Zackrist! That is the man who stole your lance and accoutrements, and got you into trouble by taking them to pawn in your name, a year or more ago."

"Well, what of that? He is not the less hungry."

"What of that? Why, you were going to be disgraced for the affair, because you would not tell of him, if Vireton had not found out the rights of the matter to him?"

"This, M. Victor—that you are a fool!"

"I dare say I am. But that does not make Zackrist less hungry."

He took the bowl from her hands, and emptying a little of it into the wooden cup that hung to her belt, kept that for himself, and, stretching his arm across the straw, gave the bowl to Zackrist, who had watched it with the longing, ravenous eyes of a starving wolf, and seized it with rapid avidity.

A smile passed over Cecil's face, amused despite the pain he suffered. "That is one of my 'sensational tricks,' as M. de Chateauroux calls them. Poor Zackrist! Did you see his eyes?"

Cigarette shrugged her shoulders in silence, then, poisoning herself on the wheel, she sprang from thence on to the back of her little mare which she had brought up, having the reins in one of her hands and the wine bowl in the other, and which was fresh and bright after the night's repose.

"I will ride with you, with my spear," she said as a young queen might have promised protection from her escort. He thanked her and sank back among the straw, exhausted and worn out with pain and with languor. The weight that seemed to oppress his chest was almost as hard to bear as when the actual pressure of his dead charger's body had been on him.

Four other troopers were placed on the straw beside him, and the mule carts, with their mournful loads, rolled slowly out of camp eastward toward the quarters of the main army. Gnats and mosquitoes and all the winged things of the African air tormented them, and, tossing on the dry, hot straw, they grew delirious, some falling asleep and murmuring incoherently, others lying with wide open eyes of Zach's senseless, straining misery. Cigarette came to the side of the temporary ambulance in which Cecil was placed. He was asleep—sleeping for once peacefully, with little trace of pain upon his features, as he had slept the previous night. She saw that his face and chest had not been touched by the stinging insect swarm. He was doubtless screened by a shirt hung above him dexterously on some bent sticks.

"Who has done that?" thought Cigarette. As she glanced round she saw without any linen to cover him Zackrist had raised himself up and leaned slightly forward over against his comrade. The shirt that protected Cecil was his, and on his own bare shoulders and mighty chest the tiny armies of the flies and gnats were fastened, doing their will unintercepted.

As he caught her glance a sudden ruddy glow of shame shone through the black, hard skin of his sunburned visage—shame to which he had never been touched when discovered in any one of his guilty and barbarous actions.

"Ugh!" he growled savagely. "He gave me his wine. One must do something in return; not that I feel the insects—not in my skin is leather, see you; they can't get through it, but his is white and soft—bah—like tissue paper."

"I see, Zackrist. You are right. A French soldier can never take a kindness from an English fellow without outrunning him in generosity. Look, here is some drink for you."

She knew too well the strange nature with which she had to deal to say a syllable of praise to him for his self-devotion or to appear to see that, despite his boast of his leather skin, the stings of the cruel winged tribes were drawing his blood and causing him alike pain and irritation which, under that sun and added to the torment of his gunshot wound, were a martyrdom as great as the noblest saint ever endured.

And all through the march she gave Zackrist a double portion of her water dashed with red wine, that was so welcome to the parched and aching throats, and all through the march Cecil lay asleep, and the man whose soul was stained with murder and pillage, and who sat erect beside him, letting the insects suck his veins and pierce his flesh.

It was only when they drew near the camp of the main army that Zackrist lost foot of the swam, and drew his old shirt over his head.

"You do not want to say anything to him," he muttered to Cigarette. "I am of leather, you know; I have not felt it."

And she dashed the spurs into her mare and galloped off at the height of her speed into camp—a very city of canvas, bazaar, and the hum of life, regulated with the marvelous skill and precision of French warfare, yet with the carelessness and the picturesque of the desert life pervading.

What she had done had been told long before by an orderly riding hard in the early night to take the news of the battle, and the whole host was on the march, the savior of the honor of France. Like waves rushing on, the men swept out to meet her in one great surging tide of life, impetuous, passionate, exultant, with all the vivid ardor, all the uncontrolled emotion, of nature south born, sun nurtured. As her soldiers had the night before, so these did now—kissing her hands, her dress, her feet, sending her name in thunder through the sunlit air, lifting her from off her horse and bearing her in a score of stalwart arms triumphant in their adoration.

She was theirs—their own—the child of the army, the little one whose voice above their dying brethren had the sweetness of an angel's song and whose feet in their joyous homeward flight lulled the swift and dazling flight of gold-winged orioles. And she had saved the honor of their eagles; she had given to them and to France their god of victory.

"It was nothing," she answered them. "It was nothing. It was for France." For France! They shouted back the beloved word with tenfold joy, and the great sea of life beneath her tossed to and fro in stormy triumph, in frantic paradise of victory, ringing her name with that of France upon the air in thunder shouts like spears of steel smiting on shields of bronze.

She stretched her hand out and swept it backward to the desert border of the south with a gesture that had awe for them.

"Hush!" she said softly, with an accent in her voice that hushed the riot of their rejoicing homeward till it lulled like the lull in a storm. "Give me no honor while they sleep yonder. With the dead lies the glory!"

CHAPTER XV.

THREE weeks after the battle of Zarrilla Cigarette, in conversation with Cecil, had been scoring England.

"We talk of Albion—there is one of her so-called soldiers," "I detect your country; but, my fairy, I must confess she breeds uncommonly handsome men."

She was a dilettante in handsome men. She nodded her head now and then, some yards off, at another of the campfires stood, with some officers of the regiment, one of the tourists—a very tall, very fair man, with a galant bearing and a wavy beard that glittered to gold in the light of the flames.

Cecil's glance followed Cigarette's. With a cry he sprang to his feet and stood entranced, gazing at the stranger. She saw the startled amaze, the longing love, the agony of recognition, in his eyes. She saw the impulse in him to spring forward and the shuddering effort with which the impulse was controlled. He turned to her almost fiercely.

"He must not see me! Keep him away—away, for God's sake!" He could not leave his men. He was fettered there where his squadron was camped. He went as far as he could from the flamethrower into the shadow and thrust himself among the tethered horses. Cigarette asked nothing; comprehended at a glance, with all the tact of her nation, and sauntered forward to meet the officers of the regiment as they came up to the picket fire with the yellow-haired English stranger. The eyes of the stranger lighted on her, and his voice laughed in mellow music to his companions.

"Your intendant is perfect; your ambulance is perfect; your camp cookery is perfect, messieurs, and here you have even perfect beauty too. Truly campaigning must be pleasant work in Algeria."

Then he turned to her with compliments frank and gay and full of a debonaire grace that made her doubt he could be of Albion.

Retort was always ready to her, and she kept the circle of officers in full laughter round the vedette fire with a shower of epigrams that would have made her fortune on the stage of the Chatelet or Folies Marigny. And every now and then her glance wandered to the shadow where the horses were tethered.

"Ah! Why was she always doing him service? When they were quite gone, she came softly to him. She could not see him well in the gloom, but she touched his hand."

"Dear! How could you do that! He is gone."

He could not answer her to thank her, but he crushed in his little warm, moist palm. She felt a quiver shake his limbs.

"Is he your enemy?" she asked. "No."

"What then?" "Oh, my dear, I love best on earth."

"Ah!" She had felt a surprise she had not spoken that he should flee thus from any foe. "He thinks you dead, then?"

"And must always think so?" "Yes." He held her hand still, and his own wrung it hard, the grasp of comrade to comrade, not of man to woman. "Child, you are bold, generous, pitiful; for God's sake, get me sent out of this camp tonight. I am powerless."

There was that in the accent which struck his listener to the heart. He was powerless, fettered hand and foot as though he were a prisoner; a night's absence, and he would be shot as a deserter.

"I will try to do it," Cigarette simply, without anything of her audacity or of her vanity in the answer. "Go to the fire! You are cold."

You have ingenuity, compassion, tact; you have power here, too, in your way; for the love of heaven, get me sent out on some duty before dawn! There is Biribi's murder to be avenged—would they give the errand to me?"

She thought a moment. "We will see," she said curtly. "I think I can do it. But go back, or you will be missed. I will come to you soon."

She left him then, drawing her hand quickly out of the clasp of his. Cecil mechanically returned to the fire at which the men of his company were cooking their welcome supper and sat down near them, rejecting with a gesture the most savory portion which with their customary love and care for him they were careful to select and bring to him. He set like a man in a dream, while the loosened tongues of the men ran noisily on a hundred themes as they chaffed each other.

"He said once that he would take my hand before all the world always, come what would," he thought. "Would he take it now, I wonder? Yes; he never believed against me."

And as he thought the same anguish of desire that had before smitten him to stand once more guileless in the presence of men and once more bear untarnished the name of his race and the honor of his fathers shook him now as strong winds shake a tree that yet is fast rooted at its base, though it sway awhile beneath the storm.

"How weak I am!" he thought bitterly. "What does it matter? Life is so short, and I am a coward indeed to fret over it. I cannot undo what I did. I cannot if I would. To betray him now! God, not for a kingdom if I had the chance! Besides, she may live still. And even were she dead, to tarnish her name to clear my own would be a scoundrel's baseness—baseness that would fall as it merited. For who could be brought to believe me now?"

As he sat with his head bent down and his forehead leaning on his arm, while the hard blizzard that served for a plate stood unnoticed beside him with the food that the soldiers had placed on it, he did not hear Cigarette's step till she touched him on the arm. Then he looked up. Her eyes were looking on him with tender, earnest pity.

"Hark, I have done it," she said gently. "But it will be an errand very close to death that you must go on—"

He raised himself erect eagerly. "No matter for that. Ah, mademoiselle, how can I thank you?"

"Chut! I am no Paris demoielle," said Cigarette, with a dash of her old acrimony. "Ceremony in a camp"

Pour! You must have been a court chamberlain once, weren't you? A great thing I have done certainly! Got you permission to go and throw a card at old King Death, that is all there! Loup-a-griffe-de-fer is coming to you. That is your summons."

The orderly so nicknamed approached and brought the bidding of the general in command of the cavalry for Cecil to render himself at once to his presence. These things brook no second's delay in obedience. He went, with a quick adieu to Cigarette, and the little Friend of the Flag was left in his vacant place beside the fire.

And there was a pang at her heart. "Ten to one he goes to his death," she thought. But Cigarette, little mischief though she was, could reach very high in one thing; she could reach a love that was unselfish and one that was heroic.

A few moments, and Cecil returned. "Rake," he said rapidly in the French he habitually used, "saddle my horse and your own. I am allowed to choose one of you to accompany me."

Rake, in paradise and the envied of every man in the squadrons, turned to his work—with him a task of scarce more than a second—and Cecil approached his little Friend of the Flag.

My child, I cannot attempt to thank you. But for you I should have been tempted to send my lance through my own heart."

"Keep its lungs for the Arabics, my friend," said Cigarette. Enthusiastically she brushed away the French he more brusquely because that new and bitter pang was on her. "As for me, I want no thanks."

"No; you are too generous. But none the less do I wish I could render them more worthy than by words. If I live, I will try; if not, keep this in my memory. It is the only thing I have."

He put into her hand the ring she had seen in the little bonbonniere—a ring of his mother's that he had saved when he had parted with all else and that he had put off his hand and into the box of Pett Reine's gift the day he had entered the Algerian army.

Cigarette flushed scarlet with passion he could not understand and she could not have disentangled. "The ring of your mistress! Not for me, if I know it! Do you think I want to be paid?"

"The ring was my mother's," he answered her simply. "And I offer it only as a souvenir."

She lost all her hot color and all her fiery wrath. His grave and gentle courtesy always strangely stilled and rebuked her. But she raised the ring off the ground where she had flung it and placed it back in his hand.

"If so, still less should you part with it. Keep it. It will bring you happiness one day. As for me, I have done nothing."

"You have done what I value the more for that noble disclaimer. May I thank you thus, little one?"

Gates' Certain Check. For All SUMMER COMPLAINTS.

Bayside, June 22, 1900

Dr. A. B. Gates,

Middleton, N. S.

Dear Sir:—I received your kind letter some time ago but was unable to answer until now. I am selling quite a lot of your medicine and consider them wonderful remedies for sickness. About two years ago I was very much RUN DOWN and in poor health generally. I began using your Bitters and Syrup and at once noticed a marked improvement in my health and was soon as well as ever. My son and daughter have both used your CERTAIN CHECK with the most wonderful results and in the case of the latter I believe it was the means of saving her life after everything else had failed. I could name several in this neighborhood who have been cured by your medicines. One gentleman, a doctor of Halifax, bought a bottle of Certain Check for his little daughter, who was suffering from dysentery, and it made a speedy cure. These and numerous other instances of a similar nature show what wonderful medicines yours are. Trusting that you may be spared many years to relieve the sick and afflicted and wishing you every success, I am

Yours very truly

Don't forget Dr. Killam's lecture in the Methodist church here, Wednesday night at 7.30. Miss Killam has had some thrilling experiences and a rare treat is assumed for those who hear her.

At the Police Court, Friday morning, William Crane was committed for trial on the charge of having entered Dr. Baxter's rooms and robbed him. Mr. Brown appeared for the defence and Mr. Thompson for the Crown.—World.

Leonard Brennan, 18 years of age, of Tete-gouche, while making a rivet with a file head of a ten-penny nail on Monday last, was struck in the left eye with a piece of the metal, which cut through the eyeball. Information set in and it was found necessary to remove the eye to save the other one. Dr. Nichol performed the operation on Wednesday.

At the Salvation Army barracks tonight will be given a very special lantern service called "Help at hand" by Eugene Joseph Parker the travelling representative of the Salvation Army social work. This intensely interesting service illustrated by many splendid lantern views will make an evening of highest pleasure and profit. Come one, come all.

Fifty or sixty of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. D. Chasman surprised them on Tuesday evening by calling upon them, bearing silver presents and the where-withal for a sumptuous supper for the twenty-fifth anniversary of the popular couple's wedding day. Robert Murray, Esq., read and presented an address suitable to the occasion and Mr. Chasman responded in fitting terms. A most enjoyable evening was spent in social amusements of different kinds and wishes were expressed for many happy returns of the day.—Advance.

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere. Rally day was very much enjoyed in the Methodist Sabbath School of Newcastle. The exercises were held in the audience room of the church. Quite a number of visitors were present. 91 scholars answered to their names. The report of secretary Hay was well prepared and encouraging in every respect. Interesting addresses were given by Sept. Thos. Clark and Pastor Finkles. Scripture readings, music by the school, a song by the infant class and a recitation by a number of infants class added to the interest.

Last Thursday, a young man named John McKenzie, a sailor of Liverpool, England, 23 board the Valona at Newcastle. Ritchie's wharf fell from the fore Royal yard and was killed. Coroner F. J. Desmond, M. D., empaneled a jury and took the evidence of Capt. Burnly, the mate and a seaman and the jury returned a verdict of accidental death. It appears that the deceased and another man were engaged in preparing to send down the fore Royal yard and in some way he lost his footing and fell, striking the crossbeams and it is thought this caused his death. This young man was a capable sailor and had been to sea for six years. The body was interred in St. Mary's cemetery. The floral tributes were numerous and pretty.

It is a reprint of Mr. Manterson's letter together with an article on big game which appeared in the Advocate last June and it has proved to be a good adv. as Game Warden Robinson has had numerous enquiries from people into whose hands these folders have fallen. It has a map of New Brunswick with New-castle in large red letters so that there is no danger of making a mistake. It is also a good adv. for the Advocate.

A shooting accident occurred at North-ack last week. Daniel Hogan, a son of Patk. Hogan was visiting at Daniel Mullin's, and while there the talk drifted to shooting and Mr. Mullin said he would show the others how to shoot. He picked up a Winchester and took aim and then changed his mind and lowered the rifle and turned partly around and accidentally it went off and the charge of light bird shot struck young Hogan in the head. Seven grains entered, four in the rear and three in the forehead, and face. He was brought to town where the wound was dressed and no serious con-sequences are expected.

Presbytery of Miramichi.

The Presbytery of Miramichi met in St. John's Church, Chatham, on Tuesday, the 24th inst. There were fourteen ministers and two elders present. A large number of elders' commissions were sustained. Rev. Mr. Carr, Campbellton, was nominated as moderator of the coming Synod. A hearty and unanimous call from Tabusintac in favor of Rev. J. R. McKay, was sustained and ordered to be transmitted. Rev. W. Ham- ilton was appointed to supply New Brandon or six months, and Mr. Angus Fifth to supply Kouchibouguac until the next regu- lar meeting of Presbytery. Dr. Campbell's suggested methods for the increase of con- tributions to the century fund were discus- sed, and recommended to the consideration of sessions. A very helpful conference on the recommendations of the century fund committee as to the spiritual aspect of the movement was held which occupied the greater part of the afternoon session. The next regular meeting was appointed to be held in St. James Hall, Newcastle on the third Tuesday in December and the Presby- tery adjourned to meet in St. John during the meeting of Synod at the call of the moderator.
