HAPPY MOTHERHOOD

The happiness of motherhood is too often checked because the mother's strength is not equal to her cares, while her selfish devotion neglects her own health. It is a duty of husband or friend to see that she gets the pure medicinal nourishment in Scott's Emulsion, which is not a drug or stimulant but nature's concentrated oil-food tonic to enrich and enliven the blood, strengthen the nerves and aid the appetite. Physicians everywhere prescribe Scott's Emulsion for overworked, nervous, tired women; it builds up and holds up their strength. Get Scott's at your nearest drug store.

LAURIER TO VISIT US.

It is announced that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is to visit the maritime provinces next month. He will address four meetings, of which one will be at Moncton and another at Grand Falls on Aug. 29. He will pass through Hartland, and it is needless to say that at every point the white plumed chieftain will be met with great cordiality.

After his trip here he will go west on tour. Our own F. B. Carvell has been honored with an invitation to accompany him.

An exchange says: "Mr. F. B. Carvell will accompany Sir Wilfrid Laurier on his western tour. The able member for Carleton county will render good service to his chief and party. His pronounced views on the need of a downward revision of the tariff will commend him to the people of the west, and his admirable fighting qualities will be not less appreciated. He will go with the prestige of having uncovered such a record of tory wrong-doing in his own province as has not been surpassed in the history of any province since confederation.

LET THE PEOPLE SPEAK

The Toronto Globe says the people of New Brunswick must choose a new political head. The St. John Globe, which has been one of Premier Fleming's strongest supporters, and which has been very reluctant to believe that anything reflecting upon him as the leader of the government would be revealed by the inquiry, feels itself constrained now to say that "it must be apparent to Hon. Mr. Fleming himself, as well as to his party, that his usefulness as a political leader is gone," and it adds that "if he has not already tendered his resignation the lieutenant-governor should insist that he do so at once." The Globe further says that there should be an immediate appeal to the people.

It is evident from an interview which a member of the legislature, whose name is not mentioned, has given to the Globe, that there is a disposition on the part of Mr. Fleming's supporters to sacrifice him and re-organize, and endeavor to hold on to power. That is surely not the thought which is in the minds of the electors of New Brunswick. The Fleming government and its supporters must be held responsible not only for the timber limits graft, but for the Southampton Railway graft, and for the even more amazing condition of affairs which there is no reason to doubt will be revealed in connection with the St. John Valley Railway. They are responsible, moreover, for rushing through the house the two million dollar bond guarantee for the Valley Railway, in the face of the charges which were made by Mr. Dugal, when they should have insisted that the charges be investigated and disproved before any more public money was voted for that enterprise.

It is inconceivable that the people of this province would give another lease of power to the men who have so grossly mismanaged its affairs, and brought about a condition which makes New Brunswick politics a by-word throughout Canada. The legislature must be dissolved in order, as the Globe says, "that the people of the province may express their opinion as to the future management of provincial affairs."—St. John Times.

Crops, with the exception of potatoes, are very backward. The cause of this is the drought of nearly four weeks. Rain came Friday, followed by an extremely heavy shower Saturday morning. This has revived and put new life in everything. Potatoes are looking well. Bugs are erratic, some fields of potatoes being literally covered with the pests and other fields almost entirely clear of them. The merchants have had a chance to dispose of the large quantity of paris green and other poison left over from last year.

Farmers will start haying this week, but not on a very large scale until the following week, when haying will be in full swing. The crop will be fair with a much larger per centage of clover than usual.

A serious auto accident happened on Sunday afternoon at Florenceville when four young men from Easton were hurled from the car and two of them injured, one very severely. The driver and owner of the car, Jas. Keirstead, in some way lost control of the car and it went in the ditch and in trying to get it squared away again the car upset. Mr. Keirstead's arm was broken in two places, beside being very badly torn and bruised. He is now at the Centreville hotel and is considered in a very serious condition. Mr. Langley had his elbow dislocated. The other two, G. Smith and C. DeLong, escaped without serious injury. The injured men were hurried to Centreville to Dr. Brown's office, where they were put under ether and properly attended to by Dr. Brown, assisted by Dr. Peppers.

Mrs. W. Wiggins (nee Miss Bessie Harold) is visiting her mother.

Several of the Reid boys, also their sister and husband, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Reid.

Roy Lee, Jas. Lee and Chas. Cliff were fishing at Miramichi last week and report a successful trip.

Wilnot Harold is building a large barn with basement to be used as a potato cellar.

The crews of Italians who have been working on the railroad here putting in a switch to the gravel pit on Chas. Currie farm went to Woodstock Monday night.

A crew are working on the station which is to be built on the London farm at the upper end of the village. This is to be one of the largest stations on the road—55 feet long, with two waiting rooms, baggage room and office.

Miss Humble of Fredericton is visiting here.

I wish to thank the people for their patronage in the past and to let them know that I have a new stock on hand, including some large parlor mirrors and some very handsome real hand paintings, oval concave shape. Am prepared to frame or enlarge pictures either in the flat or oval shape. Have a good supply of hymn books, also a fine line of bibles and testaments. Also have the agency for the Thomas organ and pianos.

PLAYING A PART

A Story of the War Between the States

By F. A. MITCHEL

When the war between the states opened we were a contented family living on our plantation not far from Nashville, on the south side of the Cumberland river. I was then a girl of twenty and had been at a boarding school in Ohio. Our circle consisted of father, mother, my two brothers, Clarence and Arthur, myself and Clarence.

When I say that Clarence was a slave it may appear remarkable that I should speak of her as one of our family circle. In the first place, she had so little negro blood in her veins that no one would have known from her appearance that she had any at all. Her skin was fair; her hair was light, with a tinge of red in it; her eyes were dark.

The occupation of Nashville by the Federal troops in the spring of 1862 was different from that of the beginning of our cities. It was at the beginning of the struggle, and most of the southern people believed that when the Yankees came down upon us they would come with fire and sword. The consequence was that when it was known they were advancing upon us from Bowling Green, Ky., and coming up the Cumberland river our people began to make preparations for flight. The night before the evacuation of the city every luxury in the way of eatables and drinkables was consumed. In every house where there were such luxuries were parties feasting and drinking. On that night there was a singular mixture in Nashville of terror, sacrifice and conviviality.

The next morning the major crossed the Cumberland and surrendered the city to the Federal commander advancing from Bowling Green. We had packed all our valuables—we had no transport for the heavier articles—and went to a plantation of my mother's brother some twenty miles to the southward. Having been at school in the north, I knew something of the northern people and did not believe that we should all be put to the sword. I wished to remain in the house, believing that my presence there would be a protection. But mother would not hear of such a thing. She said the house might be burned to the ground rather than that I should expose myself to a lot of vandals.

We had got well started on our journey when some one asked, "Where is Clarence?" I supposed she was in another conveyance than mine, but she was not. She had done what I had wished to do—remained in the house. We had gone too far on our journey to turn back, so it was decided by mother, who was director general of our helms, my father and brothers being away in the army under General Albert Sidney Johnston—that if Clarence insisted on being murdered it could not be helped. So we pursued our journey to my uncle's plantation.

I was very much chagrined that Clarence had taken the risk—if indeed there were any risk in what she had done—that I proposed to take myself. I did not for a moment believe that she would remain at home for the purpose of falling into the hands of the Yankees in order to get her freedom, for she could have had it for the asking at any time. I felt sure that she had remained to do what she could for the preservation of the place. After a few days, not hearing that those few persons who had awaited the coming of the enemy had been put to the sword, I determined to go back and see what was the condition of our abandoned home. So without saying anything to mother or any one else I told one of the servants to saddle my horse, and I started up the road for our plantation.

A few miles ride brought me to the Federal pickets, and on stating that I wished to return to my home I was permitted to pass. I found the yard occupied with tents and sentinels peering about the house. I was riding up to the front porch and saw Clarence come running down the steps and toward me. I drew rein, thinking she might wish to see me alone, and she did. I was surprised to see her in one of my best dresses and wearing some of my ornaments.

"Don't come any farther till I tell you," she said. "The house has been taken for the headquarters of one of the generals. I thought that if I made him believe I was one of the family and not a servant it would help me to induce him to protect the place. He is doing everything I ask him. He even stopped the men from using the furnaces for fire. But your coming is going to break me all up. What shall we do?"

I thought a few moments before replying. Should I turn back and leave her to play her game? I preferred to remain.

"I tell you what we'll do, Clarence. You know I'm very dark skinned. I can pass for an octoroon. I'll be maid and leave you to go on playing mistress."

Clarence tried to think of some other way out of it, but failed, and I, dismounting, led my horse around to the barn, while Clarence went back into the house. When I had taken off the saddle and bridle I joined her. While passing through the hall I met a young officer, who looked at me with evident

TOOK "CITY OF BLOOD."

Admiral Rawson's Rockets Spread Terror in Benin.

That intrepid sailor, Sir Henry Rawson, who became Governor of New South Wales, and had the reputation of being the most widely beloved member of the naval service, is commemorated in a biography just published in London.

The expedition against Benin in Africa, the "City of Blood" was the last considerable and important expedition, undertaken by the British navy. Asked for an estimate of the cost and length of time required for success, he named the sum of $250,000 and the space of six months. He took the city in four months and at a cost of $150,000.

When the expedition started, it was not even known exactly where Benin was; but Rawson made no mistake, and, having got within range of where he believed it to be, he had a couple of rockets fired in the direction of the city.

"Little did the admiral know the effect those rockets were going to have in Benin. It would hardly be credited that at a mile distant, and fired only in a general direction, they should have pitched into the ju-ju compounds. A Benin woman afterwards described what happened:

"The compound was thronged with people, when suddenly from the blue appeared two hissing thunderbolts, which fell into the very heart of the sacred precincts. Not a white man in sight! Yet here were two messengers from the skies. Truly the white men are gods!" they said, and ran panic-stricken, from the place."

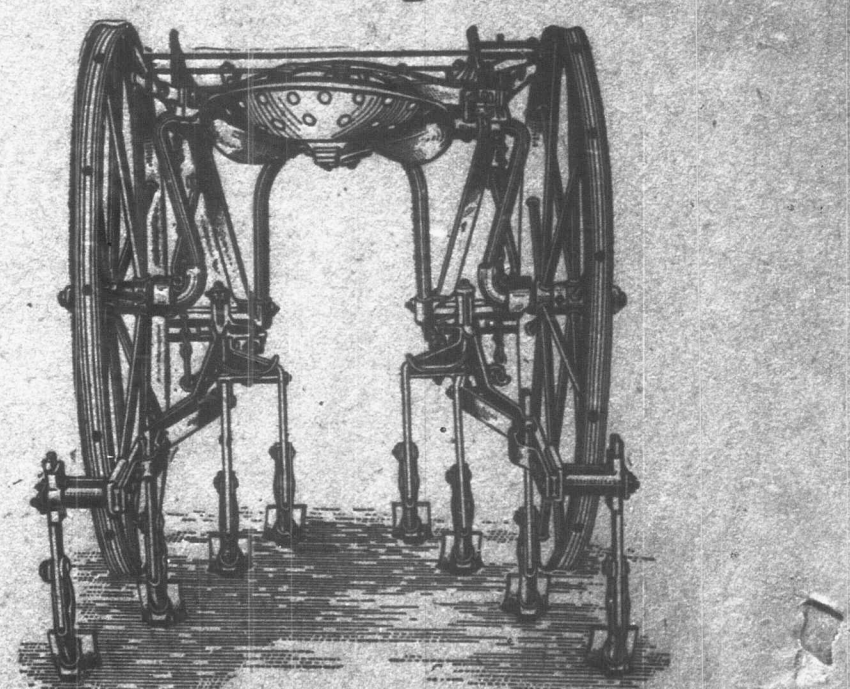

Nevertheless, though the city was easily taken, there was some sharp fighting on the way up, and the losses, both in officers and men, were considerable. The following extract, from a letter quoted in the book, from an unknown correspondent, shows what his men thought of their chief:

"The admiral doffed his uniform immediately on landing, and, attired only in trousers and shirt and a big helmet, walked every step of the journey, plodding along with the aid of a walking-stick, although he was nearly fifty-three years old. His grand example kept the men well together, and although at times he could hardly put one foot before the other, so great was his fatigue, he gallantly refused the services of carriers. His trust in the force was most kind and considerate, and when our poor fellows were buried, the admiral cried as if he had been their father."

The campaign was hardly over when Rawson fell sick with malaria, which left him with arthritis in the hip-joint. He suffered agonies from this disease for the rest of his life.

The Benin expedition is an episode of very real note in the history of the navy. But Rawson fought also in China, in Egypt, and on the East Coast of Africa. He was a favorite of everybody, from King Edward and the Duke of Edinburgh downwards, a great naval tactician, a gunnery enthusiast, and, above all, a model of all manly qualities, both in his public and his private life.

The Oliver Riding Cultivator

The Oliver Riding Cultivator, stands in a class by itself, by reason of the fact that it is built right, with larger range of adjustments and can be adapted to do good work under all conditions in the potato field. Oliver quality has a name the world over.

In Anroostok County alone sixty-five per cent. of the Potato Cultivators used are Oliver's.

The feature of the Oliver cultivator that appeals to all farmers who have used it or have seen it at work, is the excellent work that this implement does. By an ingenious arrangement the gangs are held parallel and therefore always cut a uniform distance apart, no matter how far they may be shifted to the right or to the left. On the Oliver cultivator neither of the gangs leaves an uncultivated strip between the shovels, nor does one gang cut a narrower width than the other when the cultivator is shifted to the side.

Lowell-Cox

The marriage of Elmer Blaine Lowell of West Farmington and Miss Bessie Phillips Cox took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Earl A. Reed, Lewiston, at six o'clock Wednesday evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. A. Blaisdell of Pine street Free Baptist church.

Lewiston, the single ring service being used, and the bride and bridegroom were unattended. The bride was prettily gowned in white and her flowers were roses and sweet peas in shower bouquet.

The ceremony was performed beneath an arch of evergreens from center of which was suspended a wedding bell. The altar was at the rear of the arch against a background of ferns. The house was decorated with cut flowers which ornamented the mantle above the fireplace and with evergreens and daisies which were interwoven with the balusters.

A wedding luncheon was served and while the guests were engaged with this, the couple slipped away through a rear exit and escaped in an automobile in waiting on a side street.

Mr. Lowell is the son of E. Howard Lowell of West Farmington and is associated with his father, who is a senior member of the firm of Lowell-Whitten. He is a graduate of Farmington high school and attended the University of Maine. Mrs. Lowell is a native of New Brunswick but has lived with her sister for several years. She is a graduate of the Maine General Hospital, Lewiston.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell will make their home at West Farmington.—Exchange.

Woodstock Deacons Meeting

The quarterly meeting of the Woodstock Deacons was held in Hartland on Wednesday, opening at 8 a.m. with holy communion. Those present were: Revs. H. F. Rigby, Centreville; J. B. Flewelling, Canterbury; E. M. Fenton, McAdam; J. B. H. Done, Southampton, and N. Franchette, Hartland.

Matters connected with the business of the deacons were thoroughly discussed and some propositions made for the advancement of its work.

Rev. Mr. Fenton gave a report of the work at King's College and urged a greater interest in this institution from which the majority of the clergy of the diocese are drawn. In his remarks he stated that the Church in the old country had for a long time been sending men to aid the church in Canada, and he thought it about time that the people here should rely more on themselves for workers, and this could more readily be done by a generous support of this institution of learning.

In the evening service was held in Burt's hall, the preacher being Rev. J. B. H. Done, who spoke first to the clergy and then to the congregation. His address was well conceived and ably delivered. The collections of the day were placed to the credit of the building fund for the new church to be erected here and amounted to $16.50. The clergymen left for their respective parishes today.

DEMAND FOR RESIGNATION OF FLEMMING

And for an Appeal to the People is Insistent Sackville Tribune: Will Governor Wood preserve the good name of the province, by forcing the government to resign and dissolving the legislature?

Halifax Chronicle: There appears to be only one thing for Premier Flemming of New Brunswick to do, and to do it quickly—get out of office. The story he told in the witness box, taken in conjunction with the astounding revelations of "graft" made before the royal commission, ends his usefulness as a public man.

Toronto Globe: When the premier of a province makes such admissions in the witness box as Premier Flemming of New Brunswick made on Thursday there can be but one end to the story. After the royal commission reports New Brunswick will have to choose a new political head.

Moncton Transcript: His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Wood has a grave responsibility resting upon him; a trial to which happily few of the lieutenant-governors of Canadian provinces have been subjected; viz. the dismissal of a premier, under whose personal direction a corrupt undertaking was carried out.

The people should be given immediately the opportunity of pronouncing their verdict upon the transaction and the political party responsible therefor.

Moncton Times: The facts brought out are such that Mr. Flemming's usefulness as a member of the administration is greatly impaired, if not altogether destroyed. He should resign.

Chatham World: Premier Flemming has again announced his intention to "come back" as soon as the enquiries are over. Should he do so, no matter what the result of the enquiries is, his return to active participation in the control of affairs would unquestionably result in his government being swept out of power at the next election.

St. John Globe: The revelations in connection with the crown lands and the Southampton Railway scandal, to say nothing of the Valley Railroad, are so astounding that it must be apparent to Hon. Mr. Flemming himself, as well as to his party, that his usefulness as a political leader is gone. If he has not already tendered his resignation, the lieutenant-governor should insist that he do so at once.

Under a new leader there should be an immediate appeal to the electorate, so that the people of the province can express their opinion as to the future management of provincial affairs.

Sackville Post: Mr. Carvell may not be able to prove extortion on the part of Mr. Flemming, but we fear the premier's usefulness has been very greatly impaired. In fact we cannot see how he can continue to act as leader of the government of this province.

As soon as possible the friends and supporters of the provincial government should be called together, and the situation discussed thoroughly. In the meantime we think Mr. Flemming should send in his resignation to the lieutenant-governor.

At this the joy riders also "rubbered", and their car was going at such a rate that it went into a ditch completely overturned, righted itself and turned end for end in the road.

When the damage was reckoned up it was found that one had a broken arm, another a dislocated shoulder and the remaining two pretty badly shaken up. The injured autoists are now in the Centreville Hotel under the care of Drs. Brown and Peppers, while the auto is being doctored at Florenceville.

WAS THE OLDEST CADI

"SQUIRE" MCKINLAY OF RIDGE-TOWN RESIGNS AT 90.

Venerable Western Ontario Police Magistrate Was For Some Time the Oldest Occupant of the Bench in Active Service in Ontario—Was Always Active in Behalf of Public Interests.

John P. McKinlay, who has just resigned the office of Police Magistrate of Ridge-Town, Ont., has been for some time the oldest occupant of the Magisterial Bench in active service in Ontario. "Squire" McKinlay, as he is called, entered his ninety-first year on January 1 and is still in the enjoyment of sound health. He was born in Aldborough Township, the son of Peter McKinlay, a native of Perthshire, and after his school days learned the trade of carpenter. For a time he resided in Ohio, and then

MR. JOHN P. MCKINLAY returned to Howard Township and purchased a farm near Ridge-Town, where he lived until 1899, when he moved into town.

Mr. McKinlay always took an active interest in the welfare of Ridge-Town, and was for years a member of the council. He was appointed Police Magistrate in 1886, and during his long term of office endeavored to "temper justice with mercy," seldom erring on the side of severity. In education, in sport, in industry, he has long been associated with every movement looking towards the advancement of these interests in the town. In his earlier days he was a strong supporter of the Reform party, but since accepting office he ceased to take part in party politics.

Care of London's Statues.

The brilliant emerald and blue-green stains which have appeared so conspicuously on the stonework of the Gladstone Memorial recently in London have attracted much attention. The memorial has just been cleaned, and it is the washing of the dirt off the stone that has made the stains, which are old, so very conspicuous.

Enormous care is taken of London's statues and memorials, according to Mr. Barnes, chief architect of the Office of Works. "Since we took over the control of statues and monuments recently," he said, "I have been making a special study of the cleaning question. We never touch soap and water, and rub them with brushes. Sometimes they are simply polished with dry cloths. I keep skilled men who rub and dry softly, and wash and polish. It is fatal to chisel and scrape, and scrub and sandpaper. We do not try to remove the black deposit of soot on the statue. It forms an even coating all over, and does not destroy the lines of the original. It acts as a preservative."

Whole Sermon From Memory.

One of the most remarkable blind girls in London, Eng., is Miss Mabel Green, who has been blind since infancy. Miss Green is engaged in successful work, and is an accomplished shorthand writer and an accurate and quick typist, but her outstanding gift is that of a prodigious memory. She went to the morning service at the Baptist Church, Park square, N.W., conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer, and although she did not take a single note, except mentally, she afterward reported the whole sermon in shorthand on a special Braille machine invented by Henry Stahsen, the secretary general of the National Institution for the Blind.

Quaint Custom.

The ancient custom of a race deciding the rent was witnessed at Bourne, Lincolnshire, Eng. A race was run by two boys during the letting of what is known as the "Whitewashed Meadow," and on the return of the winning boy the last bidder was returned the tenant for the ensuing year.

Subsequently an adjournment was made to the nearest licensed premises, where a repast of bread, cheese, and onions was prepared. After repast the rent money was paid, and the bread, which is distributed to householders in the town.

A Women's Church.

A women's church, with women officers and a woman minister, is to be established in Wallasey, Cheshire, Eng. Women will preach the sermons, offer the prayers, provide the music, and take the collection, and no man is to have a hand in the administration of the church.

A Tiny Dog.

The smallest white Pomeranian at a recent show at the Botanical Gardens in London would easily go into the proverbial pint pot, and was photographed in one of the show cups.

Primitive Baptist General Session

Conference met in session with the Primitive Baptist church of Bristol.

The first service began at 10.30 a. m. Saturday and was well attended by clergymen and laymen.
Elder Uriah Killcollins of Maine led the service; central thought of theme was prayer. Many Bible truths and helpful things were spoken in connection with subject. The speaker very plainly showed the lack of prayer, especially family prayer. This service was very helpful and many expressed a desire to be more in prayer in the future.

At 2.30 the regular conference meeting was held, nearly every available seat being taken.
Moderator C. H. Orser spoke for a few minutes at opening of service reviewing the past year and exhorting the people to be steadfast and true to Christ in future.
The testimonies in the service were many and strong. At close of service the Lord's Supper was observed when 115 ardent followers of Christ humbly and solemnly took part in remembrance of him who died on Calvary for them.

Saturday evening, 8 p. m. met in business session reports of the churches were read and discussed.
Sabbath morning prayer service led by Elder G. E. Orser. Leading thought Obedience. She testimonies were many and exceedingly helpful. At 11 a. m. Elder P. J. Quigg came to the platform and addressed the people for a short time. His language seemed to add new fuel to the already kindled fire which burned unceas-ingly until by force of circumstances the meeting had to be closed to give time for afternoon service. At the same hour Elder G. A. Giberson occupied the pulpit in the Presbyterian church.
This service was also well attended and carried a strong spiritual influence.

Again at 2.30 people assembled for worship, Rev. A. Hatfield led the service. His text was taken from Jude 3rd verse. The speakers language clear and plain showing the need of more earnestness on the part of Christians in contending for the Faith. Near the close of service an exceedingly large number of Christians pledged themselves to contend more earnestly for the Faith in future. Rev.

Thomas Stairs spoke from the Presbyterian stand to a crowded house. This service was one of great spiritual blessing to all.

Once more at 7.30 people gathered for worship. Rev. J. M.
Mallory spoke in the P. B. pulpit to a crowded house and was much appreciated by all present, meeting was one of power and blessing.
Elder Hart of Houlton at same hour addressed a large crowd in the Presbyterian church. Subject "Unchangeable love of God".
This service was very helpful, especially to weak Christians. At the close of service there were a number of requests for prayer.

At 8.30 a. m., Monday, met in business session. Meeting opened by singing, Scripture reading and prayer and then declared open for business. At roll call a very large number of delegates, and all of the clergy were present.

Records of the last year were read and approved by the Conference. A number of committees then made their reports.
Reports of delegates to Nova Scotia conference heard and approved; delegate Bro. J. R. Blauvelt, from Nova Scotia being present was heard from also.

Installations of officers: C. H.
Orser, moderation, Executive and other conference officers of last year were reinstated. Two new churches were received into followship of Conference. At the close a vote of thanks was extended by the meeting to members of the Presbyterian congregation of Bristol for the use of their church and kindness shown during the session also to the people and congregation of Primitive Baptist church in caring for Primitive Baptist Conference. Monday evening at 7.30 people gathered for worship, service conducted by C. H. Orser was helpful and we trust much good will accrue from it.

We have great reason to return thanks for this year's work, an increase in every department of the work. The new churches organized. One new one well under construction, and others under contemplation. One or more new churches to be dedicated in the near future. One hundred and fifty baptized this year which means an increase in baptisms of about seventy-five above last year. No death among our ministry, and three working on Conference license. Death rate among churches small or about the same as last year.

Honor and praise and Glory be to him that sits upon the Throne, and unto the Lamb for ever more.

WM. PLUMMER THE CHAMPION FOX HUNTER

(From Mars Hill View)

A man to be just a little bit more intelligent and "foxy" than a fox, must have more than ordinary intelligence, for the fox is considered the cutest animal that walks the wilds of Maine, and a trapper that gets 'em must get down to nature and make a mighty study of this beautiful fur-bearing animal.

While at Lakeville recently the editor of the View, Mrs. Lowell and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Morton, who so kindly donated their car for the trip, were loyally entertained at tea at the home of W.
W. Wilson, probably Lakeville's largest merchant and mill owner, and after tea the editor was introduced to Wm. Plummer, the champion fox hunter of Maine and New Brunswick, and a man now 77 years old and as keen intellectually as a school boy—and a whole lot more "foxy."

We found the old gentleman seated on the veranda of his snug cottage near Mr. Wilson's smoking pipe of peace. He impressed us at once as being a very intelligent man, and as we sat there enjoying a smoke with him he spun off yards and yards of fox and animal stories, until we began to think that Joe Knowles was several laps behind.

William Plummer was born in Sunbury County, Parish of Sheffield, moving to Waterville on a farm when he was 22 years old.

Later he opened a shoe repairing shop in Jacksonville, where in 40 years he accumulated a good bank account. Selling out his business he took to hunting, especially foxes, and the success he met with added several thousand more to his account.

In one winter Plummer, who had three fox grounds to look after, snared 205 foxes, doing the work himself. Aside from getting foxes he caught muskrat, mink, weasels, shot ducks and large game. Even today, at the age of 77 years, the old trapper takes his shot gun, an English imported gun, given him by his son, and goes down by the lake and streams in Lakeville and brings down a duck or two at the first pop out of the gun, and this without the aid of spectacles.

The old fellow never trapped many foxes—snared them as we would a rabbit. And this snaring secret he has taught to many men for $25.00 each. He is so well versed in the fox that he can set a snare right where they have their "runs." Along old fences he has set snares, for the fox will travel along a fence until he finds an opening near the ground to get thru.

The old trapper here laughed, lit his pipe and told the View editor of how for once a fox got the best of him. He went out one morning on the crust and found a fox in a snare. Just before getting to the fox Plummer that he saw him move. Going to the fox he tickled his eyelid to see if he would wink. Nary a wink or a movement came from the fox.

Taking him from the snare he hitched a rope to his body and to a cane which he carried over his shoulder to carry the fox. He travelled to several other snares with fox number one over his shoulder apparently dead. He climbed over four fences with the fox dangling from his shoulder.
Coming to another snare he laid the fox down and went to adjust the snare when, hearing a rustle, he looked around and there was the supposed dead fox cutting across the snowy field at a very lively clip. The cane, which was a heavy one, would jill-poke and throw the fox until at last it struck in the crust in such a way as to hold Mr. Fox solid, and Plummer who was giving wild chase all the time quickly dispatched the fox as did Joe

FLY PAD
POISON

Every ten cent packet will worth of any sticky fly killer.

Knowles the bear—by a clip over the nose.

Plummer told of another case of fox cunningness. A trapper he had taught to snare foxes got one which played dead. The man carried the fox, a small one, over his arm, and while going by a house a dog came out and barked.
The supposed dead fox on the hunter's arm immediately jumped to the ground and off to the woods in the fraction of a minute.

Plummer is a widower. His wife left him 33 years ago and went to Boston where she conducted a boarding house. Three years ago Plummer got word she had died, and not having heard anything from her he supposed this report to be true. He has one son working in St. John, who comes home to Lakeville most every summer to see the old gent.
This son draws a salary of $40.00 a week and sends his father a check for $25.00 each month for living expenses, although there is no need of it for Plummer, the great fox hunter, has a good bank account in a Woodstock bank and wants for nothing.

Plummer also showed the View editor a mink trap, a weasel trap and a mouse trap, all designed to catch them alive. These traps he makes himself and are a mighty skillful contrivance. He sells them from 25 cents to $1.00 each, according to size.

When asked how many foxes he had caught he replied probably over two thousand. When asked about the black fox farms he said there was not a black fox in New Brunswick. Said that people had told him time and time again of seeing a black fox, but they were in all probability fishes, which are about the size of a fox and very black. He has an idea that a black fox can be crossed with the red fox and get a very fine grade of fur.

Plummer gave the View editor valuable hints as to how to catch fish—of how to catch animals, of their habits. He is a mighty interesting man to meet, and of more than ordinary intelligence.

Found a Friend in Dr. Chase

His Medicines Proven Effective, and Always Kept at Hand in This Home.

Mrs. Chas. Lovell, Agassiz, B. C., writes:—"I feel it my duty to tell you what a great friend Dr. Chase's medicines have been to myself and family.
I cannot praise his medicines too highly, and Dr. Chase's name is a household word in our home. Well, quite a number of years ago I sent to you for a sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment for protruding piles, and, having used the sample and found relief, I sent to a neighboring town for four boxes, and I am completely cured.
"I have also used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for constipation, and, after using them, I am completely cured of this dreadful disease. I am the mother of ten children, of whom nine are living, and when seven of my children were all very bad with whooping cough, caught in the middle of a severe winter, I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and they were all cured before the winter was over, and now we are never without Dr. Chase's medicines in our home, and I recommend them to all."
