Grammar Paper Brings Out Usual Original "Howlers."

Problems of the grammar paper in the recent entrance examinations had some of the youthful candidates befuddled a bit and a few prize "pippins" have been drawn from the several hundred papers written. Here are two samples of unconscious humor that have come to the surface:
Question—Give the correct form, "raise" or "rise," and give reason, in the sentence, "She can't get the bread to (raise, rise)."
Answer—"Rise" is correct, because she hadn't any yeast."
Question—Fill in the blank, "The foot of the ox is in the trough."
Answer—"The head of the pig is in the pail."

Arthur W. Cutten's Profits in July Corn Estimated by Chicago Brokers.

CONTROL ELEVATORS

Grain Growers To Govern Five Largest Elevator Companies in United States.

Associated Press Despatch.
Chicago, July 15.—Profits of between $1,500,000 and $1,800,000 are estimated by brokers to have been made by A. W. Cutten, Chicago grain merchant, formerly of Guelph, Ontario, in a sale of 300,000 bushels of a big holding of July corn at around $1.10, in addition to large profits on recent wheat advances at from 20 to 25 cents a bushel in the Chicago and Winnipeg markets. James A. Patten, whose attempts to corner wheat, corn, oats and cotton have made him famous and brought him fortunes, is also reported to have reaped considerable profits through recent disposal of 2,000,000 bushels of oats purchased in May, when dealers predicted big losses. A cash corn yesterday sold for $1.12, a cent less than last year's high point, while July corn was quoted at $1.10. The recent jump of corn of 40 cents caused Cutten's profits, brokers say, July wheat reached the highest mark of the season, with $1.23 in Chicago and $1.32 in Winnipeg. A month ago Mr. Cutten predicted corn would reach a dollar a bushel before the end of July. He persisted in this belief, and wet weather, which retarded the crop, vindicated his judgment. Mr. Cutten, who predicted a higher price for wheat, has been one of the largest holders of futures in the Winnipeg market.

TAMMANY HALL WORKS UNDER FIFTH LEADER

Judge Olvanev Said To Be Man Who Has Courage To Say "No."

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, July 15.—Tammany Hall was functioning today under the fifth leader it has had since William M. Tweed, in 1867, instituted the one-man leadership method of control for the famous organization. Judge George W. Olvanev, elected yesterday, took over the reins immediately after the death of the late leader, Charles F. Murphy in April. In many ways the new leader possesses the same qualities that characterized his immediate predecessor. While he is not so reticent as his predecessor, he is known among his political associates as a man who has the courage to say no when it is required. The new leader was born on the east side near the boyhood home of Governor Smith. He is a close friend of the governor.

CONFIRMS REPORT

Elaborate Collection of Handcuffs and Fighting Paraphernalia Discovered.

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, July 15.—Investigation by an agent of the United States government has confirmed in every detail the story of a piratical attack told by the captain of the French steamer Mulhouse, the Times says. The investigation, conducted along Rum Row, off the New Jersey coast, has revealed the existence of bands of pirates on heavily-armed, high-powered boats. Many ships have been victimized, according to the story told the Times by the government agent. The agent's name is not revealed, the Times stating that his report has not yet been forwarded to Washington. The agent described a visit made by government agents to one of the pirate craft, which he describes as a motor boat about 50 feet long, and driven by three Liberty motors. This boat, he said, was capable of a speed of 30 or 40 miles an hour. The agents found 50 men on board the suspected pirate, and in the hold they found an elaborate collection of handcuffs, rifles, pistols, knives and clubs. The government agents are reported to have stated: "The report made at Halifax by the captain of the French steamer has been fully confirmed by our investigations."

CARLOAD OF ALE HELD AT BUFFALO

Believed To Have Come From Brewery in London.

Special to The Advertiser.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 15.—A freight car belonging to the Canadian National Railway, and containing about 15,000 bottles of Canadian ale, has been seized by customs inspectors. A similar seizure a month ago caused an exchange through diplomatic channels, and this latest capture will add to the controversy. The car was labelled "scrap tin." Inspectors broke the seal and found ale valued at more than $10,000. The bottles were covered with layers of tin. They were stored in 130 barrels. Inspector Peter B. Miller had the cargo removed to a government warehouse. The shipment is believed to come from a brewery in London, Ontario. Before making the raid, Inspector Miller secured a search warrant. A squad of government officials accompanied him. On June 6, three freight cars, also property of the Canadian National Railway, and containing more than 10,000 bottles of Molson's Ale and Dow's Old Stock were attached by the government. The cars were billed to contain hay and straw. No arrests have been made in either case.

TWO NEW MOONS TO APPEAR BEFORE PRESENT MONTH ENDS

Planet Has To Gain 29 1/2 Days Each Calendar Year.

MARS IS CLOSER

Will Be Plainly Visible to Londoners on Night of August 23.

There will be two new moons this month. In every month, except February, there is a phase of the moon that appears twice. In July this year it happens to be the new moon. The reason for this is that there are twelve and a half lunar months in the year, which makes twenty-nine and a half days in a lunar month. This means that every two years there is an extra moon. The moon, therefore, has to gain one lunar month over one calendar month every year. Speaking of the appearance of a phase of the moon twice in a month, Dr. F. R. Kingston, University of Western Ontario, stated today that such a repetition did not mean that a new moon or a full moon or the quarters always repeated themselves, sometimes only intermediate phases are visible. Dr. Kingston states that Mars is now coming closer to the earth. On August 23 it will be nearer the earth than it has been at any time during the last 100 years. It rises in the southeast about 10 o'clock, and is plainly visible at 11 p.m. It is a distinct red in color.

CANADA'S YIELD OF WHEAT IS PROMISING

Chicago Story Concerning the Conditions in Dominion Is Termed Nonsense.

DRY AREA SMALL

Estimates Give Probable Crop This Year at 318,640,000 Bushels.

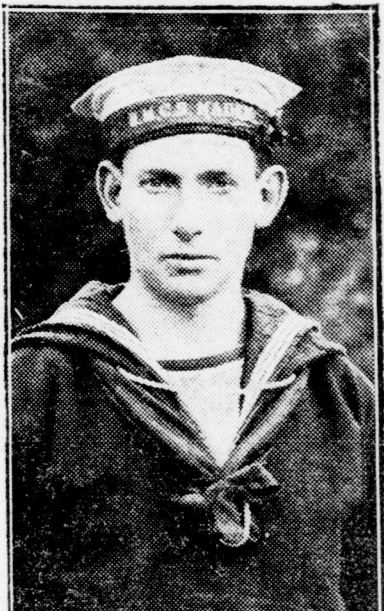

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, July 15.—Predictions in the Chicago wheat pit that Canada's wheat crop will be less than one-half of last year, are stated here to be "nonsense." Advances indicate that droughts in Saskatchewan are not general in the province. Latest returns available show that the condition of the Canadian wheat crop on June 30 was 92 per cent of the average yield for the period 1914-23. This average is 16.0 bushels per acre. Estimates based on returns to June 30 give the probable crop at 318,640,000 bushels, compared with 474,199,000 bushels, the record crop of last year.

MANITOBA CROPS GOOD.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Winnipeg, July 15.—Manitoba crops appear to be in excellent shape, although somewhat late, but lack of moisture, high temperatures and hot winds have taken a very heavy toll of the crops both wheat and coarse grains in Saskatchewan and Alberta, according to a crop report issued by the Manitoba Free Press today. There is little complaint from Manitoba points the crop is admittedly about two weeks later than last year, but present conditions are quite favorable, and with showers from now till harvest in order to enable the heads to fill out, a good average yield may be expected. In Saskatchewan and Alberta conditions south of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway may be said to be fairly good, but working north in both provinces, conditions gradually become worse and many points in Central and Northern Saskatchewan and Alberta report conditions as serious, and several points state that rain must be received immediately to save the crop.

An Uneven Crop.

The growth of the wheat crop appears to be very uneven throughout the west, running from six inches to over three feet. From 25 to 100 per cent is in the show, and 75 to 95 per cent is in head. Manitoba appears to have sufficient moisture for the time being, although points state that further rains immediately would be helpful. The lack of moisture in Saskatchewan and Alberta is severe, the great majority of points stating that rain is badly needed. The damage from cutworms or other insects is light. There has been no damage from hail. The conditions of the coarse grains are mostly fair in Manitoba, but Please See Page 2, Column 2.

DROWNING VICTIM'S BODY IS LOCATED

Remains of Norman J. Elliott Shipped to St. Marys For Burial.

Special to The Advertiser.
Grand Bend, July 15.—After working ceaselessly two days, searchers this morning at 11:30 succeeded in locating the body of Norman Elliott, 21, of St. Marys, who was drowned while bathing here Sunday afternoon. The body was found in about ten feet of water just south of the pier, after the entire water front had been dragged with grappling hooks and nets. The position of the body bore out the theory that Elliott had been seized with cramps when swimming. Scores of villagers and summer residents here united in the search, and all worked tirelessly from the time when the first alarm was given Sunday until this morning, when the youth's body was finally located. Elliott and a chum, Roy Golding, had been camping here since last Thursday night, despite the fact that the lake was rough, they went in bathing together. Elliott, when only a short distance from shore, was seen to fall when a large wave struck him and then go out into deeper water when a second wave hit him. The body was forwarded this afternoon to St. Marys for interment. He is survived by his mother and father and one sister, Pearl.

Cut In Gasoline Prices In U.S. Not Expected To Affect Canada

FOUR REFINERIES FILLING DEMAND

London Oil Man Uncertain of Future Price of Gasoline.

BIG DROP IN U.S.

Speaking of the price of gasoline in London, S. D. Baby, manager of the Imperial Oil Company, stated today that the future of gasoline is filled with uncertainty. So uncertain that he would not venture an opinion of a probable drop in the price here. Asked if the violent drop in the States would not have an effect on the Canadian market, Mr. Baby stated that at first thought one would expect it to affect Canada; on the other hand, there are three or four refineries in Canada that are able to supply all the gasoline consumed in the Dominion. The largest refinery in the British empire is located at Sarnia, Canada, therefore, has its own gasoline problems.

The retail price of gasoline has gone down to 12 cents a gallon in Rochester, and 16 cents in Albany. On Long Island gasoline is selling at 19 cents.

Motorists who are on the lookout for stations where they can save a cent or two a gallon, find bargains along the New York highways, where the prices vary from 16 to 26 cents. Over-production and lack of storage facilities for large quantities are given as the reasons for the drop in price at a season of the year in the United States, when gasoline is most in demand.

W. F. NICKLE EXPLAINS PRIVY COUNCIL ACTION

Says Judgment Affects Only Two Charges Against the Bank Directors.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, July 15.—The privy council's dismissal of the appeal of the directors of the Bank of Canada, in respect to the charges against the directors of the Home Bank of Canada was accepted with brief comment by Hon. W. F. Nickle on his return to Queen's Park today.

"The privy council is the appellate tribunal of final resort," he pointed out, "and it has declared what is the effect in its opinion of the federal legislation that is law, and the government of Ontario, the same as any litigant, must abide by its decision."

Mr. Nickle was careful to explain, however, that the judgment of the privy council only affects the two charges which were brought against the bank directors under the provisions of the bank act, one on grounds of making "negligent returns," and the other on grounds of "wilfully falsifying returns."

It was against the decision of Mr. Justice Macdougall and the court of appeal, declaring in favor of granting a speedy trial on these two charges, that the province carried the case to the privy council.

"But the criminal charge of conspiracy is still triable by jury," Mr. Nickle declared.

Except for unseen developments, the conspiracy charge will come up for trial in its regular order at the fall assizes.

U. S. COAST CUTTER MAKES LAST CRUISE

Ordered Abandoned After 50 Years of Service in Arctic Regions.

Associated Press Despatch. Washington, July 15.—The venerable coastguard cutter, The Bear, has made her last journey to the Arctic. She is pinched in the ice somewhere a thousand miles north of Umanak, two propellers are broken, she has a score of dents in her sides, and coastguard headquarters has radioed orders to give up, to return home from the fiftieth annual cruise into the Far North.

It was on May 2 that The Bear, in command of Capt. Crocker, steamed away from the Golden Gate. Her skipper brought back a broad intelligence to aid all peoples, to assist commerce and open lines of communication.

A brief radio came through from Capt. Crocker today. It told in a few words the story of the disappointed crew and insurmountable ice that blocked the northward way.

REFRESHMENT BOOTH TAX IS BROUGHT UP

Treasurer Points Out Soft Drink or Cigarette Licenses Are Held.

Refreshment booths, stationed on half the street corners of the residential districts of the city, came up for discussion of the finance committee last evening. Treasurer James Bell pointed out today that these booths were now taxed for either cigarette licenses or soft drink licenses or both.

In many cases the booths are simply a few pieces of lumber and some canvas or a small tent. Some of the aldermen are suggesting these booths could be assessed and a business tax imposed. Assessment Commissioner Harry Bennett points out that there is some difficulty in doing this as the tents can be moved from place to place and the actual value of the booth is seldom over $100 if it is that much.

Hendry of this city was turning into a garage yesterday when a big American touring car driven by a woman crashed into it and badly damaged it. The police were notified and the woman was taken to headquarters.

Later a summons was issued to her to appear today to answer a charge of reckless driving. She did not appear, and Mr. Hendry then learned that the police could not hold the car, and as only a summons was issued to the woman, which she ignored, he can secure no redress as she has gone. It was stated that requests had been made for legislation that would enable the crown authorities in such cases to hold autos for security, but nothing has been done.

Interallied Conference On Reparations Opens In London Tomorrow

FRENCH PREMIER CROSSES CHANNEL

More Than 150 Delegates Will Be Present at Opening.

OPTIMISM PREVAILS

Associated Press Despatch. London, July 15.—Preparations were virtually completed today for the meeting here at the foreign office tomorrow morning of the inter-allied conference, believed by many to be one of the most important of international events in several years. The purpose of the conference, in brief, is the discussion of methods for putting the experts' report on reparations into effect.

More than 150 delegates, experts and advisers will be present when Premier MacDonald opens the conference and hears the responses of the leading plenipotentiaries. Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Japan will each be represented at the conference table by several delegates. American Ambassador Kellogg will be the only accredited representative of the United States, but Col. James A. Logan, Jun., one of the most familiar with the complexities of the reparations problem, will sit beside him as his official adviser. The only other American who is likely to participate is Owen D. Young, a member of the Dawes committee on the German budget and currency problems, and known to the British as the man behind the Dawes report. While Mr. Young's presence in London is entirely unofficial, the American ambassador yesterday afternoon held a lengthy conference with him and Col. Logan, and it was not doubted that the inter-allied conference was the principal subject of their conversation.

On the eve of the conference a decided atmosphere of optimism prevails. Both American and British observers today assert that they hope the deliberations at the conference will be productive of an arrangement which will end once and for all time the quarrels and misunderstandings that have embroiled Europe since the Great War ended.

DELEGATES ARRIVE

Associated Press Despatch. London, July 15.—The French, Italian and Belgian delegations to the allied reparations conference arrived in London today. Their suites they numbered about 100. GREAT BATTLE PREPARED FOR SPRINGBANK THURSDAY

Whether Springbank Park will be big enough to hold the large crowd of soft ball fans eager to witness the game between county officials and the Pro Patria team of the Orange Lodge League, on Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock, is a question.

The "Orange" will be led into battle by no less a star than "the" Hodgins, who, it is said, has walked the ball from the pavilion to the pump-house on more than one occasion.

The county gang will be led to the slaughter by Assistant Treasurer McClarty, assisted by Sheriff Graham. County Clerk John Stuart, as the warden of the county, C. C. Henry, who hails from Metcalfe.

Two newspapermen, against whom the county officials hold a grudge, have been asked to umpire the proceedings, and they will preside over the affair, providing they can locate a couple of suits of armor for the occasion.

ORPHAN CHILDREN ARE GIVEN HAPPY OUTING AT LAKESIDE

James Cooper, Belle River Millionaire, Host of Happy Throng.

VARIED PROGRAM

Lots To Eat, Swimming, Fishing and Racing Make Up Great Day.

Another happy outing was spent at Port Stanley this afternoon when the children from the Protestant Orphan's Home and the Thronton Bay Hall home were guests of James Cooper, former Londoner and now a millionaire of Belle River, whose special hobby is children. He furnished all the transportation, street cars to take the little ones to the station, and two special coaches on the 11:20 L. & P. S. train. A comedian was engaged to keep the children laughing on the trip to the resort. Fancy paper hats were furnished the boys on the way down and to keep the girls in the running for high spirits they were given whistles.

As soon as the train arrived at Port Stanley the children were taken over to the cafeteria and given a luncheon that would have made the king sit up and take notice. Some of the people in charge of the children were afraid that there would be a lot of sick boys blushing tomorrow for there were no blushing violets when it came to packing away the food.

Immediately following the luncheon a large sports program was the order of the day and this held in digesting the luncheon. Everything that could be placed on a program was there and more prizes were given than could be beaten.

After the sports came the swimming. At one for a swim and the privilege of a real swim were allowed to go in paddling. After the swim came a boat race on the lake and although no fishing lines were allowed some of the boys caused the fish to jump in the water to grab the bait.

The party, which numbered 75, was in person in charge of Mr. Cooper on the way down and he was assisted by W. E. Kelly, inspector of Child Welfare Society. Mr. Cooper left immediately after the luncheon but the rest of the program was capably managed by the other men.

J. Laidner (Conservative, South Vancouver), calling for the establishment of such account, but this was amended by agreement to provide for the study of the plan by the government. Chairman Vien, in moving the adoption of the report, said that it had been unanimously agreed to by the committee, upon which Hon. H. H. Stevens (Conservative, Center Vancouver), and J. J. Hughes (Liberal, Prince Edward Island), members of the committee, said they would dissent from the resolution. It was the scheme of a company which sought incorporation under the name of the Confederation Bank and Power Company with a capitalization of half a million dollars, and with headquarters at Montreal. The bill did not proceed beyond preliminary stages.

ENGLAND WOULD LIMIT DRUG MANUFACTURE

France Holds Out For Curtailing Trade by Control of Sales.

Associated Press Despatch. Geneva, July 15.—Failure still marks the efforts of the special government delegates who are trying to agree on the draft of a convention which will be submitted to the big international opium conference in November. The opinions of the experts show wide divergence with France and Holland on one side and England and the other.

France is holding out for the limitation of the opium and cocaine drug trade by a strict control of production and illegal sales rather than by direct limitation of manufacture. England desires a convention which will limit the manufacture in all countries.

It is understood that if the United States cannot obtain the acceptance of her fundamental principle of limiting the production of opium and cocaine, she will at least back Great Britain in its efforts to limit the manufacture of drugs.

THAMES PARK POOL IS FOUND SANITARY

Medical Officer of Health Conducts Test of Water in Tank.

CONTENTS FILTERED

While it contains a small percentage of coliform bacilli, Thames Park swimming pool is reported by Dr. Downham, medical officer of health, to be cleaner than the two swimming pools situated in the river.

Tests have been made by Dr. Downham of the water contained in the Thames Park pool and that running past Beecher's Island and Bir-kett's Flats. The test of Thames was a Monday morning one, and of the same water that had been used on Saturday and which had been in the pool over Sunday. No chlorine of lime had been put in over the week-end and it was therefore not so free from disease germs as it would be under ordinary circumstances.

This was an answer to people who persisted in claiming upon the "uncleanliness" of Thames Park pool, the general manager of the public utilities commission stated today. The fact that Thames Park was reported to be free from disease germs, and that the swimming stations in the river was due to the fact that the Thames Park pool was filled with filtered water, whereas the water in the others was from the open river, with the drainage from above the city coming into it.

FREIGHT WRECKED NEAR KINGSCOURT

Ten Cars Ditched—Traffic Tied Up—Passengers Re-Routed.

Derailment of ten cars of a west-bound freight train, just west of Kingscourt Junction on the St. Clair division of the Canadian National Railway, about 6:30 last night caused heavy damage and tied up the line for most of the night. Fortunately no injuries were reported amongst the train crew, and the tie-up on the line was relieved by all night work of wrecking crews from London, Sarnia and Hamilton.

Official reports of the smash were lacking here though it is believed a broken wheel on a box car near the front of the train caused the derailment. The derailed cars were thrown to both sides of the right of way, blocking both east and west lines. Over 100 feet of track were torn up. Six of the wrecked cars were filled with merchandise. The derailed cars were smashed badly and several were piled up on top of others. Calls were put in immediately for auxiliary crews and equipment from Sarnia and London. The local crew left at 7 o'clock. The Hamilton auxiliary, the closest on the line, was called and passed through London at 11:30 o'clock on its way to the scene of the wreck.

Passenger traffic between London and Sarnia was impaired. The 5:40 train out of London was following close upon the wrecked freight, and passengers were transferred at the scene of the wreck to a special train which was run out from Sarnia to the other end of the wreck. Later trains, east and west, were routed over the old single track route on the London-Stratford line, reaching St. Mary's Junction. The through night train from Sarnia east was routed direct through Stratford and to Paris on the Buffalo and Goderich line.

Special trains were run out of London last night to accommodate local passengers to Stratford and Watford. As the wreck was just west of Kingscourt Junction, the cut-off through Glencoe was of no use in routing through trains to and from Sarnia.

EXCHANGE RATE ON FREIGHT IS FIVE-EIGHTHS PER CENT

Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, July 14.—A resolution, moved by Senator MacDonnell and adopted by the Senate today, would have parliament called (with necessary exceptions and modifications) on the second Tuesday of January in each year. At the present time there is no fixed date for the opening of parliament.

Senator MacDonnell thought that if no date was fixed, at least the government should give the approximate date of the next session before prorogation of the session in effect.

SENATE ADOPTS MacDONNELL'S Resolution For Having Legislature Called.

Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, July 14.—The rate of exchange in connection with shipments of freight between points in Canada and the United States from July 15 to July 31 inclusive will be 5-8 of 1 per cent. DELEGATIONS PRESENT PROTESTS AT MEETING

Maurice Gootson Asks Board of Health To Halt Continued Persecution

CLAIM DAIRY NOISY

Certified Milk Will Make First Appearance in the City.

Delegations were not lacking at the monthly meeting of the board of health last evening, and among the deputants was Maurice Gootson, well-known junk dealer, who came to protest against continued "persecution" by various officers of law and order in the city. His specific kick was that Sanitary Inspector Sanders had laid a complaint against him and a police court case had resulted, from which he had been discharged and told to clean up.

Mr. Gootson took pains to explain that his yard had been cleaned up and was nothing like the condition the sanitary inspector charged it was on the day in question. He left the committee rooms after expressions of hopes for peace and happiness had been heard.

Another delegation came from the neighborhood of the new Spettigue Dairy on Clarence street, to protest the presence of a dairy in their neighborhood. They couldn't sleep, the ratepayers claimed. The matter was referred to the finance committee to handle.

Approval was given the initiative shown by Ray Lawson, a milk producer, and to Silverwoods, Limited, who will supply the first certified milk available in London. Certified milk, declared by some leading authorities to be the cleanest and purest milk available, has been on sale in some of the larger cities of the Dominion, but this will be its first appearance in London.

Plumbing Again. Much discussed on the street and in the city council, the plumbing bylaw came up for revision and action. Recommendation was made that application forms for plumbing instal-

Five Give Lives In Attempts To Rescue Others

Special to The Advertiser.

Detroit, July 14.—Eleven persons are dead today as a result of bathing tragedies near Detroit and in other parts of Michigan. Five of the victims met death in attempting to rescue others.

Four lives were lost in the Clinton River near Mt. Clemens. Paul Roy, 42, Town Hall road, near Gratiot avenue, and his wife Cecilia, 37, both drowned when they plunged into the river attempting to save Walter Brooks, 10, and his brother Leonard, 8, who had stepped into a deep hole while wading.

The two boys also perished. latinos read so that purchases of plumbing would be made by the plumber or the owner of the property. As the permit now reads it is supposed that only the plumber can purchase plumbing equipment.

The plumbing inspector was instructed to write to Toronto for information on vents and other plumbing equipment, interpretation of statutes being wanted. The department of health will be asked to give a ruling if sinks can be installed in laundry basements and used as laundry tubs, and not require special plumbing as for sinks.

Reports were heard from Dr. Downham, M.O.H., R. H. Sanders, sanitary inspector, Dr. C. S. Tamlin, V.S., dairy inspector, and J. C. Young, plumbing inspector, showing detail of inspections carried on during June.

THE RENDEZVOUS WHOLESOME STORY

Tragedy of Old and New Russia Presented At Loew's

SOME LAUGHS TOO

Picture fans who like a wholesome story, in which a thought has been given to restraints and wherein the too sentimental close-up has been almost eliminated, will enjoy Marshall Neill's "The Rendezvous" that opened at Loew's yesterday.

Marshall Neill presents a tragic story of the old Russia and the new. In it is seen a vivid picture of the life of a little Russian princess, who through the death of her mother, and the forced desertion of her father, is left in the care of servants, who return to peasantry. It is a picture filled with dramatic and stirring incident. Its restraint is its strength; for it lacks all those wild oracles that made for sensation.

Attractive Foils. The Russian setting, with its quaint villages and picturesque old world peasantry, prove attractive foils for the cast which includes a British Tommy snatched from a Bainsfather cartoon and a handsome American army officer. To temper the tenseness of the dramatic moments, the British private replaces tears with laughter. To bring out all the charm of a wholesome story of the love of a man for a maid is left to the American army officer. For a glimpse of Russia during the reign of Czar Nicholas II, are shown the days when the empire was tottering to its fall.

Lucille Rickson, one of the youngest of Neill leading ladies, is a pleasant change from the sophisticated stars of the film firmament.

A Snub Pollard comedy and a news weekly round out the bill.

NOTED TIGHTROPE ARTIST IS DEAD

Once Rode Over Niagara Falls On a Bicycle On a Rope.

Canadian Press Despatch. Galt, July 14.—The death occurred at his home in Brantford this morning of Professor Andrew Jenkins, who was one of America's most noted tightrope walkers, having ridden a bicycle on a rope over Niagara gorge in 1869. Deceased was 80 years of age and almost blind at the time of his death.

He was born in England and came to Canada when 6 years of age, localizing in Brantford. He saw Blondin walk across Niagara on a hempen cord 65 years ago. That exhibition started Jenkins on his career, and after touring Canada and the United States, on Sept. 10, 1869, he rode a bicycle on a rope over the Niagara gorge.

Has Your Husband Got Indigestion?

Nothing creates more domestic discord quicker than an attack of indigestion, and nothing gets rid of indigestion quicker than Bisurated Magnesia. No man can be sweet tempered, good natured or even mild when his stomach is constantly sick, sour, gassy, and upset. If your husband has stomach trouble neither scold nor pity him, but help him by seeing that he has a supply of Bisurated Magnesia (either powder or tablets) constantly at hand. A teaspoonful of powder or two tablets taken in a little water after meals will instantly neutralize the acids in his stomach that are causing his trouble and he can enjoy his meals with no more fear of indigestion. Bisurated Magnesia is the special form of Magnesia used by thousands to neutralize stomach acidity and quickly overcome indigestion—do not confuse with Milk Magnesia. Block or Citrate of Magnesia. Insist on Bisurated. Its action is prompt and sure and it can be obtained at small cost from any reliable drug store.—Adv.

GERMAN PEOPLE FEARFUL OF FATE

British and French Policy Compromise Creates Feeling of Unrest.

By EDGAR ANSEL MROWER, Special Cable to The London Advertiser and Chicago Daily News. Copyright. Berlin, July 14.—Disappointment and uncertainty have seized Germany since the news of Prime Minister MacDonald's "compromise" with Premier Herriot, over military evacuation of the Ruhr, it was learned.

The Germans hoped that the presence of two Liberal premiers would make for a settlement on a really friendly basis. Herriot, they believe would be favorable to such a settlement, but he is influenced by active French nationalists. MacDonald understands the necessity of such a settlement and realizes the absurdity of increasing rather than abolishing the powers of the reparations commission, but MacDonald is influenced by Herriot.

The foreign policy of two great countries is therefore in German opinion dictated by an active group of French jingoism and war makers, who are not even a majority in their own country. But it must be admitted that the Germans are none too active themselves in hurrying necessary legislation. Their feeble internal policies, unwillingness of the cabinet to take a stand for or against the nationalists, the unwillingness of the nationalists to approve or disapprove flatly the Dawes report, and the general tendency to use

EAST MEETS WEST AT A TEA AND THE EAST PAYS TRIBUTE

Experience Among Western Women Forces Admiration
From an Easterner.

SPLENDID SPEAKERS

Mrs. Lloyd, Wife of Former London Pastor, a Guest
Here.

As public speakers, as organizers, and in their grasp of public affairs, western women have progressed far beyond their eastern sisters in the east. This was a tribute paid them this morning by a woman, herself an easterner, whose seven years' residence in the west have forced her to a thorough admiration of farm women of the prairie provinces, both in their management of the homes and their part in public life.

The tribute comes from a woman in a splendid position of authority on home life. The wife of a minister has contact with many homes other than her own. Five

MRS. LINDQUIST TELLS WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
Did for Her

Kansas City, Mo.—"I was left in a very serious condition after childbirth and no one thought I could ever be any better. Then came the 'Change of Life' and I was not prepared for what I had to suffer. I had to go to bed at times to be perfectly quiet as I could not even stoop down to pick anything from the floor. I did not suffer any pain, but I was decidedly nervous and could not sleep. For nearly two years I was this way, and the doctor was frank enough to tell me that he could do no more for me. Shortly after this I happened to see in a newspaper an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In a few days the medicine was in the house and I had begun its use and I took it regularly until I was well. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to others who may have the opportunity." Mrs. MAY LINDQUIST, 2814 Independence Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

years in Saskatchewan and two years in Alberta have given Mrs. Lloyd, wife of Rev. A. E. Lloyd, a former pastor at Ridout Street Methodist Church, a new and most favorable impression of western women. On leaving London Conference, Mr. Lloyd went to the pastorate of Wesley Church, Edmonton. Mrs. Lloyd's first impression of western women was to be created before ever reaching her new home. Visiting with friends at a farm on the journey out, she was guest of honor at a tea, to which thirty-five women from farms in the vicinity had been invited. Twenty-eight of these were able to attend the duties of their home to attend.

"Never at a tea anywhere," Mrs. Lloyd said, "had I heard so general a high standard of conversation. The women belonged to the Alberta Homemakers' Club. They were keenly aware of every movement on foot for home improvement or for educational progress, and they knew exactly in what fields new movements were most necessary. Many of them were school teachers, and they used their training for that profession as a basis for the new problems of marriage. I was most surprised later to find that in the west the search for education does not end with marriage. Before marrying, women lay the foundation for a university education, and when they go back with renewed ability to their college course. Women who go to the university in Edmonton in their own limousines are as keen scholars and perhaps keener than the young girl who is looking forward to a profession."

Church union is of necessity a part of an interview with a western woman, and particularly one so closely connected with the ministry as Mrs. Lloyd. But the announcement in the morning papers that the Senate had with slight amendment, ratified the bill, was nothing of a surprise. The west has looked forward to nothing else.

"Church union with us," Mrs. Lloyd said, "is accomplished. The difficulties in connection with the legal process were bound to arise, but they would have been settled when the bill had been presented. If it had been delayed another ten or twenty years, there would still be some who would not concede that time was ripe for union. Each conference in the west has issued a little map. Union changes are marked with red pins, and non-union with black. It is only in the cities and occasional thickly populated district where the black pins are left. Union has come to stay in the west because the churches could no longer get along without it. In our own charge, union with the Presbyterians was proposed last winter, and only delayed until the bill was finally passed."

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd, following five years in the Edmonton charge, were invited to Washington Avenue Church, Medicine Hat, where they are now in their second year. Within a short time, Mr. Lloyd is coming east to join his wife as the representative of the Alberta Conference on the Social Service Council, which meets in Toronto at the end of the summer. Together they will visit Theodora, Port Stanley and other former stations in London Conference. During his stay in the city, Mr. Lloyd will conduct services at Ridout Street Church, & charge remembering him as one of the best-liked of all its pastors. It was during Mr. Lloyd's pastorate that the congregation erected their new church, to replace the little frame mission building in which services were first held. While in London, Mrs. Lloyd is a guest with her cousin, Mrs. Young, 371 Wellington street.

The local Red Cross have appealed for flowers to take to the patients at Byron Sanatorium. One is reminded of the scheme whereby members of the Toronto Horticultural Society will share their gardens with citizens less fortunate. Cards have been recently sent out, bearing invitations to seven picked gardens of the city, on certain dates, with specified hours. Toronto may gaze to its heart's content then on tall masses of blue delphinium, low banks of Shasta daisies, and slim, straight hollyhocks, their green buds holding promise of such glorious color. This movement for liberality of gardens spreads. St. Thomas has its civic trial ground, a thing of beauty. London has gorgeous parks and all season long, visitors to the choice gardens of the city are so numerous that sometimes the joint duties of host and gardener must become arduous.

At Hamilton recently an historic event occurred. Mrs. Evelyn E. Colquhoun of Barton Lodge, made a garden party on the lawns of her home, the occasion of handing over to the Dominion archives at Ottawa, through the assistant archivist, Mr. James Mitchell, the valuable historical documents which record the deeds of the Men of Gore, the name history has given to the Hamilton volunteers, with whom Mrs. Colquhoun's father, the late Col. William Gourlay, served with distinction. The records, carefully treasured, in a military chest, deal with the career of this heroic band of men in their defence of Canada. It was a distinction and privilege for any woman to make her country such a gift.

When the edict went forth in China that the natives of flouting eye must forever dispense with their queues, nobody dreamt it had any connection with our own fair daughters. But time has commenced to show a marked connection. Enterprising Chinese merchants bought up huge stocks of the abandoned braids to pursue their then thriving industry of hair-nets. But promptly the fair of this continent adopted the bobbed-hair craze, abandoning the hair-net as swiftly as the Chinaman had been forced to abandon their queues. Once so prosperous, the hair-net merchant is not as flourishing as the man who sells rubber-tipped buggies.

CHEAP TEAS NOW VERY DEAR. Cheap tea is dear. This is easily proved. If you've been using, say, a 50¢ tea (a year ago it cost only 30¢) you have only to buy a 2-lb. package of RED ROSE ORANGE PEKOE TEA, the finest of teas for 45¢, and you'll find it goes as far as the other pound.—Adv.

McEvoy performed the ceremony in the absence of Dean Rogers. The bride wore a pretty gown of bisque georgette, trimmed with point applique, and she carried a shower of Butterfly roses and lily-of-the-valley. She was attended by Mrs. Leonard Thomson, as matron of honor, who wore a yellow georgette gown with a black lace hat and carried a bouquet of roses, larkspur and marguerites. Mr. Leonard Thomson acted as best man. The ushers were Messrs. Walter J. Sleeper and Karl Rindellhart. Will True Love Make Up for All Other Disadvantages After Marriage?—Shall She Marry Without an Engagement Ring or Put Off Her Wedding for One?—The Man Who Has the Habit of Treating Every Woman But His Wife as a Lady.

Dear Miss Dix—Do you think that a girl should consider these questions before marriage?

Going to live in a small town, when she has been born and reared in a city?

The social standing of the man's parents?

The salary he receives? Is it advisable to marry a man who has no home or money to give his wife, but who has a heart full of true love?

If love is strong enough, will it make up for all other disadvantages?

ANSWER:

Inasmuch as life after marriage is not lived in a fairy tale, but in a very practical and material world, it is certainly highly important for a woman to consider before she takes the fatal step every aspect of the case, and just what her chances for happiness will be under the new conditions.

Certainly her environment will be a most important thing to her, and still more vital will be the kind of a family into which she marries, for her husband's people will be her people henceforth, their name hers, and their blood will flow in her children's veins.

Many city-reared girls can never adjust themselves to small town or country ways, and never cease to pine for asphalt. Many girls are miserable when taken away from their own families and old friends, and many girls who marry the sons of plain, uncultured parents are ashamed of their in-laws, and bring trouble and discord thereby into their marriages.

A girl does well never to marry a man unless she loves him enough to say with Ruth: "Thy people shall be my people, and thy country my country, and thy God my God."

As for marrying a man who has nothing but true love to give his wife, that is a dangerous venture, unless he also possesses, in addition to a heart, plenty of grit.

Poverty is nothing if a man has energy and initiative, and is willing to work, but without these it is hopeless. Just love isn't enough to marry on, because you will find that you are just as hungry after marriage as before; that you have to have clothes, and a roof to cover you, and unless you have these you will be miserable. You will care little for the state of your affections when your stomach is clamoring for food.

If a man really loves a woman, he hustles out and makes the money to support her, so my advice to you would be to wait until he gets the home for you.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am engaged to a young man who is very fond of me, and who is very dear to me, but he did not give me a ring, as we wished to save money to get married. I do not care for it myself, but our friends keep asking me where my ring is, and as my fiancé does not want me to be embarrassed, he wishes to buy me a ring. But if he does this, we would have to put off our wedding at least a year, as the ring will take all the money we have saved up to get married on.

Should he buy me a ring now, and wait for the wedding, or should we get married, and wait for the future when he will be able to buy me one?

NELLIE.

ANSWER: Have enough courage, Nellie, to live your own life, and spend what you can afford to spend regardless of what your friends say. An engagement ring is a pretty, sentimental ornament, and one that every girl would like to have if her fiancé can afford to give her one, but it is the wedding ring that really counts. With that on your finger you can laugh at the girls who are still unmarried, and whose sweethearts are still paying for their engagement rings.

It is the high cost of living, and the fact that girls expect their fiancés to spend so much money upon them, that accounts for the growth of the old maid crop. It costs so much to be engaged, that a man has nothing upon which to get married.

To get married without an engagement ring will be a sort of emancipation proclamation. It will serve notice on your friends that you are going to start out in life according to your own honest, common-sense ideas and that you are going to buy only what you can pay for, and live in the manner in which you can afford, instead of running in debt trying to do all the things they expect of you.

It is trying to keep up with their neighbors that ruins thousands of young couples. They feel that they have to live in an expensive house because the Smiths have one. They feel they have to have costly furniture because the Browns have one. They feel they have to have a car because the Jones have one. And so they run into debt and are always trying to stave off the bill collector. Before you know it, they are blaming each other, and quarreling and fighting, and their happiness goes on the rocks.

Don't think that people will laugh at you for having the backbone to do without things you cannot afford. They will honor and respect you for it. And, take it from me, the poor man who won't go into debt to buy an engagement ring is mighty apt, twenty years later, to be able to buy his wife a three-karat solitaire, while the man who buys his sweetheart an engagement ring on the installment plan is pretty sure to have to pawn it before the honeymoon is over.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I want to know what you think of a man who is captain of a bowling league, and who refused to let a certain young man bowl because he swore in front of some ladies. Yet this same man curses his wife and children whenever he gets angry with them.

ANXIOUS.

ANSWER: I think the man is a cad, and that it is a pity he hasn't somebody to discipline him and show him where he gets off. But I think he has plenty of company. There are thousands of men who talk to their wives as they would not do to any woman who had a man to protect her, or who was their own size. There are plenty of men who do not seem to think that their wives are ladies and entitled to be treated as such.

The Speedy Heating Electric Range

Several years ago we came to the conclusion that no woman likes waiting around for her kitchen range to heat up. So we set out to make Moffats Electric Ranges the speediest heating ranges manufactured. And that is just what they are today.

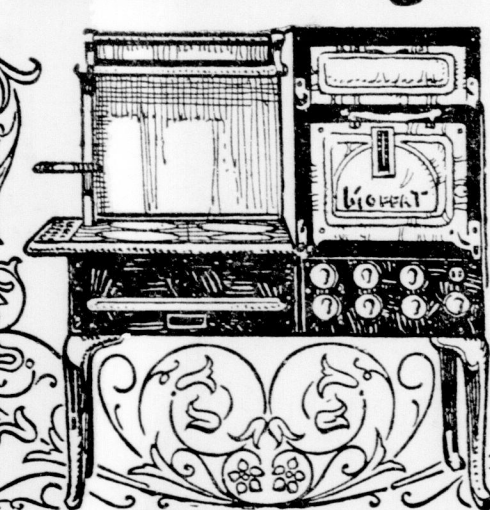

With a Moffat Electric Range in your kitchen there is no delay or tiresome waiting for the elements or oven to heat up. The snap of the switch brings intense heat with astonishing speed to the range top or oven elements.

They are Inexpensive to Operate

No heat is wasted. Every degree of heat is directed toward the cooking of your food. Food is cooked in shorter time. That means less current is used.

If you save, say, 10 minutes at each meal, you save 30 minutes of time and current every day. That comes to 180 hours in one year—a worth-while economy you must admit.

Moffat Electric cooking is truly economical. The ranges themselves are moderately priced, and the cost of operating is low. Can you afford to do without a Moffat any longer? Consult your local electrical dealer for an estimate or write Moffats, Limited, Weston, Ont.

Britain Has Done It—Will U. S.?

The pastor of a community church near Detroit preached a sermon in which he declared it was sacrilege for the Ku Klux Klan to burn the fiery cross.

This pastor mysteriously disappeared, and after eleven days was found with the letters K. K. K. burned on his back.

This sort of business enters a larger sphere than a difference between an individual and an organization.

It constitutes a direct and flagrant challenge to all the forces of law and order in United States. It is a challenge to United States to assert whether it can guarantee the liberty of the individual.

Missionaries were captured by Chinese bandits on May 25, among them being Canadians, Australians and Americans. It was a long way from Britain, not in a place situated on the outskirts of a great and easily reached city like Detroit.

The bandits conceived the idea of releasing two prisoners to arrange for a ransom. Instead the arrangements took the form of a British gunboat poking its nose into a port a long way removed from Canada, Australia or United States.

There was no question about paying the ransom demanded by the bandits. They had interfered with the liberty of British subjects, just as the K. K. K. has interfered with the liberty of that minister near Detroit. In fact, in the latter case more grievous harm was done to the individual than in the case in China.

But the main point in both is the same. An injustice had been done; subjects that were entitled to freedom of thought and action had been denied these things.

The bandits in China were many times farther removed from the heart of the British Empire in London than Detroit is from Washington, the official seat of United States.

But that was not allowed to stand in the way. There were American citizens held in that far-off Chinese bandit camp, but that was overlooked. It was their good fortune to be prisoners in the same camp with men of a nationality that was quick and sure to guard their safety.

The British gunboat did not fire a shot. There was no desire for revenge; all that was asked was justice, and that gunboat made it certain it would be done.

Today the Canadian, Australian and the United States missionaries are safe and on their way to the coast because Britain has a sincere regard for the liberty of the individual.

Today that pastor from near Detroit lies in a hospital with great letters branded on his back, and it has been done within a few hours' journey from Washington.

It will be very interesting, now that Britain has demonstrated that she can secure justice for United States citizens held in a remote bandit camp in China, to note whether Washington can render the same service to one of her own residents who lies in a hospital only a comparatively short distance from the doors of Washington.

What the Scales Have to Say.

Ottawa sends out a new despatch every day that the session of 1924 is almost over.

The session has already been too long, and it is longer and registers more tonnage in words than the sessions of 1922 or 1923.

Even the weigh scales give their silent opinion on this point. The House of Commons debates for the three sessions weigh as follows:
1922 10 pounds
1923 12 pounds
1924 13 pounds

And the 1924 Debates have not ceased to come. With morning sessions added they grow in size, and this year's papers will probably reach the 15-pound mark before parliament is through.

Many of the members of parliament have not learned the value of brevity, or the principle of speaking only when they have something to say that will shed new light on the matter under discussion.

Something About the Hotel Scribe.

Speeches in the Senate, and references in Conservative newspapers, make much of the fact that Sir Henry Thornton bought the Hotel Scribe in Paris as European headquarters for the Canadian National Railways.

Some of the references to the deal seek to convey the impression that the people of Canada have been made the victims of a very bad piece of business; they ask when it was that Sir Henry Thornton became an expert in the matter of Paris real estate.

If there has been a complaint lodged that seems to have some reason behind it, it is that Sir Henry acted on his own initiative in making the purchase. He should have consulted with his directors. The claim that he should have brought the matter before parliament is not so well based, for once it was known that the Canadian government wanted to buy that Paris property, the price would have soared.

But now that the deal has been closed, what has Canada secured? Has she been gold-bricked and swindled, or has she really secured a good property on a basis that can be justified as a good business proposition? That really has a great deal to do with the question.

The Hotel Scribe is not a hotel. That name is gathered from the French. It is an office building that cost, including commission and the French transfer tax, $2,600,000. The building has a frontage of 180 feet on the Rue Scribe, and 105 feet on the Rue Capucine. It is in the business section of Paris, close to the Grand Opera House, and around it are the leading hotels, banks and railway offices. It has a floor space of 126,594 feet, and is in demand for office purposes.

The Ottawa Journal says that the government pays at the rate of $1 to $1.50 per square foot for buildings it rents in Ottawa. Space in the heart of Paris would be worth more, but on the Ottawa basis, the Hotel Scribe would bring $190,491 per year, which is better than seven per cent on the investment. The National Railways do not require anything like the space that is represented in that building, so should be able to show a very nice rental as a source of revenue to set over against the carrying charges on the purchase price.

Some of the evidence brought out in the evidence before the special committee that investigated the purchase is as follows:

Major Bell, deputy minister of railways: "Before I left we had three banks negotiating to get part of the ground floor. It is the finest site in Paris. We can use the space we need, and still pay six per cent on the investment, and probably a small amount to wipe out the capital."

Sir Henry Thornton: "We have inquiries from responsible parties whether we would consider an offer of 40,000,000 francs (the price paid for the building) in cash, plus free office space for such quarters of reasonable size as we might care to reserve from the property."

Louis Pratt, a Canadian businessman in Paris, who was in Ottawa at the time of the inquiry: "The general opinion of businessmen in Paris was that it was a good buy, and it was thought over there that $3,000,000 had been paid for it."

These are all reasonable statements. They point to one thing, that the purchase was an investment that will not add to the debt of Canada. It is covered by the ownership of a property that will more than pay its way. If the Dominion had never been made a party to any poorer transaction there would not be much for the ratepayers to worry about.

A Bright Spot in Police History.

Officers at the American side of the Niagara River were called upon to risk their lives a few hundred yards above the falls to rescue men whom they had placed under arrest for smuggling.

The smugglers' boat was disabled and was drifting to sure destruction, when the officers secured another boat and put out into the treacherous waters, taking the smugglers' boat in tow and bringing it back to shore a short distance above the brink of the falls.

There may have been the thought in the minds of the officers that the smugglers were breaking the law, and must be taken at all costs, but the chances are there was a better motive than that for the brave deed.

It is far more likely that the smugglers drifting in a helpless boat to sure death became two men who had to be rescued. The men ceased for the time to be law-breakers, and their pursuers officers. The human element is likely to rise over any lesser barrier in such a case.

The whole incident makes a bright chapter in police history.

Do the Thing Up Right.

It would appear as though there were an unwritten rivalry in seeing who can make the most complete smash in an automobile. The business of bumping into the fender of another car, or of cutting off a wheel or a running-board, has been accomplished so many times that it has become a very old trick.

The garage man who arrives with his little derrick does not even look surprised. There is danger of him, as he adjusts the chains, saying that only a week ago there was a worse smash at the same corner.

So it is necessary to get a car that costs about the price of a small house and lot, and make a complete wreck. A despatch from Oshawa tells how the thing was done near there on Sunday:

"Eyewitnesses declare the car was going north at a terrific speed, when it swerved into the ditch and, striking a culvert, took away with it a rock weighing about 300 pounds and carried it fifty feet before the car turned a somersault. A rural mail delivery box was struck and it came through the windshield and was later picked up from inside the car. The body of the car is destroyed, the motor being driven out of its bed and the wheels and rear axles knocked off and smashed beyond repair. The car, costing about $2,000, is a total loss."

That is a complete way of doing business. No person was hurt. It is good for the automobile business; it gives people something to dodge first and look at afterward, and also provides a certain amount of copy for the newspapers. It is also an excellent way to keep one fool driver off the road for a while.

Note and Comment.

A Komoka man has a hen that laid 315 eggs in a year. The other 50 days were taken up clucking and molting.

After all the members of the family have been to the barber shop it's awful hard to tell who's really head of the house.

A new sort of borer that is invading flower gardens is called "Papaema Nitela." Have you a little Papaema Nitela in your home?

The chief of police has purchased a span of horses for the London patrol wagon, at a cost of $400. But, you see, this is one of those "Twenty Years Ago Today" items.

Where do they get that phrase, "bride-elect," to hang on to a sweet young thing about to be married? Probably from the fact that there was just one ballot and it was marked in the affirmative.

A champion woman swimmer preached in a church at Boxford, Mass., and afterward went down to the pond and showed the people how to swim. There was a remarkably good attendance at the after meeting.

Dr. Frank Crane

THREE ENEMIES OF LIFE

There are three devils, sworn enemies to the human race, at work night and day to exterminate us as quickly as possible, and to make life miserable for us so long as we cumber the ground.

Their names are:
Hurry,
Worry and Indecision.
It is not work that wears us out, but these three.

First Hurry. Its immediate result is overstrain. And many people suffer from jangled nerves, dyspeptic stomachs and sleepless nights, simply because they have done, not too much work, but work that was too confused and crowded.

The antidote to Hurry is System. Many a nervous wreck might be cured by a few first lessons in orderly thinking.

Second, Worry. As Hurry is from lack of order, so Worry is from lack of courage. It is fear in its subtle disguises. It comes camouflaged as a sense of responsibility, or a natural anxiety, or a great love, or the religious feeling.

Really it is sheer weakness, the cowardice of a nature that shrinks from the necessary give-and-take of the struggle for existence.

If a thing is inevitable, adjust yourself to it. If disaster looms, front it bravely. If responsibility is great, do your best and look pleasant.

Third, Indecision. You never can know absolutely what is best. But your business is to know only what is probably best.

Decision rests on a balance of probabilities, not on perfect judgment. All forceful people decide quickly. They may be no nearer right than those who hesitate, but they have the advantage of having done something. It is a matter of habit. And if we accustom ourselves to deciding rapidly in favor of what is probably best we save ourselves infinite distress.

Fiddles or Violins

I've heard some fiddlers in my time, a scapin' at the bow and string, they made a noise like mud and bricks when roads break in up in spring.

And often, too, you hear the folks propound this interesting riddle, why is the violin now, and then some other time a fiddle?

You've heard a fiddler on the job, he gives you lots of creaks and shivers, much like a man a-savin' wood and runnin' into knots and slivers.

He lays the resin on his bow, he sticks it on like jam on bread, and rasps a tune that makes you sure that music's gone and cashed in dead.

Another chap he comes along and takes the fiddle in his hand, and he ain't started two feet through 'em till you've moved to some other land, where 'trees is bendin' in the breeze, and little streams go ripplin' by, and where the birds is singin' out from underneath a clear blue sky.

And then he seems to change the place, it's evenin' time and all is still, and little sheep with tinklin' bells is comin' home from down the hill, and then he seems to think it's time for little folks to turn for rest, he plays the time, the dusky time, just when the sun has gone out west.

It's just the same in lots of things that folks is tryin' for to do, we see it almost any day, folks that look on like me and you.

One man he does his job and quits, and no one's pleased with what he's done, he knewed as how he'd botch the thing before he ever had begun; while some one else will do the thing, perhaps some humble little part, but when he's through he's made a job far sweeter than an apple tart.

I guess it's so the whole way through, we see it as we jog along, there's some what do the thing just right, while others do the same thing wrong.

And in the race there ain't no doubt 'bout who's a-goin' ahead and win, it's him who passes up the fiddle, and starts a-playin' the violin.—ARK.

The Reward of Service

(From the Wheatley Journal)

A. H. Hickson, who has had charge of the scraping of the provincial highway from Wheatley to Pigott side road for the past four years, received word this week that his services were no longer required. His dismissal is certainly not due to any lack of efficiency in keeping the road in as good shape as possible, for his particular beat has often been referred to by travellers as "one of the best pieces of road between Windsor and London."

He was faithful, conscientious and honest in the performance of his road duties, but another fellow wanted his job and party patronage got in its work.

A few weeks ago a similar dismissal took place in Romney Township, and patronage again filled the gap.

Any person, or government, who will dismiss a faithful servant for no other reason than to give a party friend a job, does not exhibit good sound business ability, and is hardly worthy of the confidence of the people.

"Canada in the Making"

By JOHN F. SINCLAIR.

The following is one of a series of eleven daily articles appearing exclusively in The Advertiser. Where opinions on controversial matters are expressed in these articles, they are not necessarily the opinions of this paper but those of the author, John F. Sinclair, who will be remembered by those who read his series, "Can Europe Hold Together?" published in The Advertiser several months ago.

CHAPTER 9—THE PROBLEM OF TRANSPORTATION.

Sir Henry Thornton is president of the Canadian National Railways. This is the name given to the government-owned railway system of Canada. It is a huge system, the largest in the world. It comprises 22,000 miles of track, more than the total railway mileage of Austria, Bulgaria, Greece, Finland, Norway, Portugal, Rumania and Belgium combined. These nations together have more than 52 millions of people. Canada has but nine millions.

But not only has Canada the greatest government owned railway system in the world; she also has the greatest privately owned system in the world. The Canadian Pacific Railway system, with 15,000 miles in Canada and 5,116 miles in the United States.

This company owns and operates a fleet of 60 ocean and coastal vessels, great gross tonnage of 417,000 tons, valued at more than $60,000,000. It owns and operates a chain of large Canadian hotels extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It owns bonds and stocks of other corporations valued conservatively at over 130 millions. It has "other investments," in land, municipal securities, mineral wealth, townships, etc., of over 183 millions, but worth according to its own auditors more than 200 millions.

All of this is in addition to its enormous holdings in railroad property and equipment valued at $25 millions.

It will take a few figures from their last annual report for the year ending December 31, 1923. Let American railroad men read these figures and weep.

Reserves (for a rainy day)	$55,000,000
Other reserves	45,000,000
Special reserves	2,550,000
Still other reserves	82,000,000
"Out" reserves, in other assets	112,000,000
Surplus revenue from operation	131,000,000

Grand total (for rainy days)

No wonder the $260,000,000 of common stock of the C. P. R. is selling at $180 a share on the New York stock market. Under the very able management of E. W. Beatty, and others who preceded him, combined with the generosity of the Canadian government itself, the C. P. R. is a very rich, powerful, closely-knit and successful organization. This is the organization with which Sir Henry Thornton, as president of the Canadian National Railways, must reckon in making a great national asset out of the 22,000 miles of road under his control.

Let us now return to the problem facing the Canadian National Railways, and the Canadian people, as the new proprietors of this enterprise, which is capitalized at more than one and a half billions of dollars.

Today Canada has one mile of railway for every 200 people, as against 400 people in the United States, and 2,500 people in Great Britain. To understand the problem we need to go back a few years and survey the field.

4,000 MILES LONG AND 150 MILES WIDE.

In reality, Canada is a nation 4,000 miles long and 150 miles wide. Industrially and socially the so-called maritime provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, with their large fishing activities, are a nation apart from the rest. So is Quebec, with its small peasant ownership. So is Ontario, with its growing emphasis upon large scale manufacturing.

So is British Columbia, the present bread-basket of the British Empire. So is the great west, engaged in mining, lumbering and shipping activities. These sections are all engaged in industry and life. The part played by the railways in building up these several parts into one nation cannot be over-emphasized. Her very life has forced this unusual development.

The first Canadian railroad was built in 1836, between St. Johns, Quebec, and La Prairie. It was 14 miles long and operated by horses. In 1850 there were only 64 miles of railway in all Canada.

A line was completed in 1856 between Toronto and Montreal. This was the beginning of the Grand Trunk system in Canada. By 1867, when the British North America Act united Ontario with Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, there were only 341 miles of railway in the maritime provinces. The national government agreed to complete certain lines in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick if these two provinces would enter confederation. The work was completed in 1876, and the railway was called the Intercolonial. The Dominion of Canada has owned and operated this road ever since, a period of 48 years.

Then in 1871 came the first transcontinental railway system. British Columbia demanded it as a price for entering the confederation. The work began in 1874, but was not vigorously pushed for lack of funds. In 1880 the government entered into a contract with the so-called C. P. R. syndicate, granting them "all portions of the line completed or under construction, a cash subsidy of 25 million dollars, and a land grant of 25 million acres, free admission of materials for railroad construction, and protection for twenty years against competing lines."

The work was finished in 1885. In building this road the C. P. R. naturally chose its right-of-way along the center of population and through the most fertile territory. Having first choice, it naturally thought it chose the best. Later developments may disprove this.

SECOND ROAD IS STARTED.

In 1896 a second transcontinental line was started. It was promoted and financed by two vigorous and determined Scotchmen—Mackenzie and Mann. By 1902 they had completed the line from Winnipeg to Port Arthur. But stormy days were ahead. The territory which they were opening was rich in natural resources but poor in population and overheads were large. Still the Scotchmen persisted.

The national government helped with guarantees of the bonds. So did the several provinces. The railway cost was being paid for by the bond issues and the Canadian government stood back of the bonds. Actually these men built 9,265 miles of road.

But the two resourceful Scotchmen had not figured on the great war. Immigration stopped, and so did the flow of capital. The Canadian Northern road could not meet expenses. It was badly financed and over-financed. The government was forced to take it over in 1917.

While the Canadian Northern was pressing forward in the early and prosperous years of the twentieth century, the Grand Trunk, looking with envy upon the Canadian Northern, was pressing forward in the early and prosperous years of the nineteenth century. The C. P. R. decided to build a line also to the Pacific coast. This was to be the third transcontinental line.

So the government of Canada and the Grand Trunk agreed that the Dominion government should build the road from Winnipeg to Moncton, New Brunswick, and lease it to the Grand Trunk for fifty years with no rental for the first seven years, and then one per cent of the cost of the construction annually for the remaining forty-three years. This part of the road was called the National Transcontinental.

The western half of this new transcontinental road was to run from Winnipeg to Prince Rupert, a distance of about 2,800 miles, and was to be built by the Grand Trunk, the government guaranteeing the interest on its bonds up to 75 per cent of the cost of construction. This road was called the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Both the government and the Grand Trunk set to work. The government completed its work in 1915. By that time it had spent more than 150 millions of dollars cash in carrying out its part of the contract.

The Grand Trunk also finished its part, but it did not figure on the war.

OUT WHERE THE WEST BEGINS

By GRIFF CRAWFORD.

Dobe Sam came ridin' from the ranch one summer day.
Whoooin' and a shootin' down the streets of Santa Fe.
Thirty minutes later he was silent as the rocks.
Ridin' calm and peaceful in a little wooden box.

Alkali Ike laid down on the sand.
And a rattlesnake bit him smack-dab on the hand.
The bite would have killed him (I honestly think).
But a passing cow-puncher gave Ike a big drink.
That at first was refreshingly pleasant and cool.
Then bit like an adder and kicked like a mule.
It cured him, all right, of the rattlesnake bite—
But he died from the liquor the very same night.

The Revelation.

The Sunday school teacher had been telling the children about some of the Biblical miracles and had just finished with the story about the loaves and fishes, telling them how a small quantity had been divided between many people.

"Aw that ain't nothin'," piped up little Georgie in the front row. "You ought to see my mother cut me when we have unexpected company for dinner."

The telephone operator is the only individual who can eat onions at luncheon and get away with it.

Oh! These Flappers!

Carrots stood rooted in the ground. While apples up a tree were found.

Cabbages covered up their heads. The lettuce covered in their beds. While all the peaches who had seen Turned, with envy, a vivid green.

Certainly.

We were joy riding.
My girl of girls was at the wheel.
I looked at my watch, listened a bit, then murmured in her ear:
"Peezy, I think we'd better head for town and stop at the first filling station."

We "headed" all right, and she stopped the car in front of a restaurant (the finest, too).
Now, dear editor, would you call a restaurant a filling station?

If you want to get round a charming girl you can do so better with your arms than with your conversation.

The Solution.

"So many men are forever complaining of domestic troubles. Now my wife has always obeyed me implicitly."

"How on earth do you manage it, old chap?"

"On our wedding day I told her to do exactly as she pleased."

Ross Williams told us the other day: "My wife and me don't go in society much. Her hair's still long."

Compensated.

Mr. Allen, a man about town in a certain city in Oklahoma, never missed an opportunity to make conversation with the Indians who frequently came to town.

One day, while talking to a Cherokee whom he had known for some time (Mr. Allen discovered that the Indian had been expounding religion to his tribesmen in their settlement some miles distant).

"How much money do you get for preaching?" asked Mr. Allen.

Orphans Have Happy Time As Guests of Real Friend

James Cooper of Belle River Gives Picnics For London Children.

AT PORT STANLEY

Inmates of Mount St. Joseph Treated Yesterday—Protestant Children Today.

Special to The Advertiser
By a Staff Reporter.
Port Stanley, July 14.—James Cooper of Belle River, former Londoner, and millionaire manufacturer,
a particular friend of all children and especially orphans, who arrived in London yesterday, made plans soon after his arrival in the city for two big picnics for the children in various orphan asylums in this outlet at Port Stanley yesterday and today. Every season Mr. Cooper makes a call on the various orphanages of Western Ontario to treat the kiddies,
who have come to almost worship
him. One hundred and fifty kiddies from the Mount St. Joseph Orphanage were treated to a wonderful outing at the lakeside this afternoon, and tomorrow afternoon the children of the Protestant orphanages of London will spend the day at the lakeside as his guests.

Today's party left London at 10:30
in a special coach, and from that time on the kiddies had one grand and glorious time. On the way down candies and toy balloons were distributed to all.

Comedian Pleases.
A model of Charlie Chaplin entertained the children on the train to Port, and made the ride one of joy
for everyone, including the sisters, who were expecting to be left out of the fun. He did all the antics of the famous comedian and added some of his own contrivance that would do credit to comedians now drawing high salaries. The guests arrived at the beach at 11:30, and there followed a big rush for the Cafeteria, where a delicious lunch was served and all kinds of goodies were dished out.
The main part of the program was carried off in the afternoon, when the children were treated to free rides on the Erie Amusement Company's amusements and the enthusiastic sport program run off at the lakeside. The older children were allowed to go for a swim in the lake, and to ease the hearts of the younger ones who were disappointed on not being allowed a dip, he arranged for them to go paddling. The excursion launch was chartered for the afternoon, and after the children were tired of swimming in the water they were taken out for a ride upon the glimmering lake.

The Sports.
At 4:40 the return trip was made to the city, the coaches being loaded with the happiest group of children ever assembled together, thanks to James Cooper.

The results of the sports are:

WHITE FANG by Jack London

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

The wolf pack, routed after depredations on two northland sled drivers, take the trail for new game. They find it under the leadership of a she-wolf that looks like a former sled dog, and old One-Eye, the latter raised to the favor of the she-wolf after many deadly encounters with younger rivals. Meat is plentiful in the new region and with the arrival of spring the pack breaks up with the she-wolf and old One-Eye going their ways for the mating season. On the banks of the Mackenzie she selects their lair. Old One-Eye realizes there is a family to feed. He again takes the trail for meat. Skillfully obtaining provisions for the new family, he gains closer contact with his home life.

INSTALLMENT 8. THE GRAY CUB.

He was different from his brothers and sisters. Their hair already betrayed the reddish hue inherited from their mother, the she-wolf; while he alone, in this particular, took after his father. He was the one little gray cub of the litter. He had bred true, in fact he had bred true, physically, to old One-Eye himself, with but a single exception, and that was that he had two eyes to his father's one.

The gray cub's eyes had not been open long, yet already he could see with steady clearness. And while his eyes were still closed, he had felt, tasted and smelled. He knew his two brothers and his two sisters very well. He had begun to romp with them, a feeble, awkward way, and even to squabble, his little throat vibrating with a queer rasping noise (the forerunner of the growl), as he worked himself into a passion. And long before his eyes had opened, he had learned by touch, taste, and smell to know his mother—a fount of warmth and liquid food and tenderness.
She possessed a gentle, caring tongue that soothed him when it passed over his soft little body, and that impelled him to snuggle close against her and doze off to sleep.

Most of the first month of his life
had been passed thus in sleeping;
but now he could see quite well, and he was awake for longer periods of time, and he was coming to learn his world quite well. His world was gloomy; but he did not know that, for he knew no other world. It was dimly lighted; but his eyes had never had to adjust themselves to any other light. His world was very small. Its limits were the walls of the lair, but as he had no knowledge of the wide world outside, he was never oppressed by the narrow confines of his existence.

But he had early discovered that one wall of his world was different from the rest. This was the mouth of the cave and the source of his life. He had discovered that it was different from the other walls long before he had any thoughts of his own, any conscious volitions. It had been an irresistible attraction before ever his eyes opened and looked upon it. The light from it had beat upon his sealed lids, and the eyes and the optic nerves had pulsed to little spark-like flashes, warm-colored and strangely pleasing. The life of his body, of every fibre of his body, the life that was the substance of his body and that was apart from his own personal life, had yearned toward the light and urged his body toward it in the same way that the cunning chemistry of a plant urges it toward the sun.

Always in the beginning, before his conscious life dawned, he had crawled toward the mouth of the cave. And in this his brothers and sisters were one with him. Never, in that period, did any of them crawl toward the dark corners of the back wall. The light drew them as if they were plants; the chemistry of the life that composed them demanded the light as a necessity of being; and their little puppet bodies crawled blindly and chemically, like the tendrils of a vine. Later on, when each developed individuality and became personally conscious of impulses and desires, the attraction of the light increased. They were always crawling and sprawling toward it,
and being driven back from it by the mother.

It was in this way that the gray cub learned other attributes of his mother than the soft, soothing tongue.
In his insistent crawling toward the light, he discovered in her a nose that with a sharp nudge administered rebuke, and later, a paw, that crushed him down or rolled him over and over with swift, calculating stroke.
Thus he learned hurt; and on top of it he learned to avoid hurt, first, by not incurring the risk of it, and second, when he had incurred the risk, by dodging and by retreating.
These were conscious actions, and were the results of his first generalizations upon the world. Before that he had recoiled automatically from hurt, as he had crawled automatically toward the light. After that he recoiled from hurt because he knew that it was hurt.

He was a fierce little cub. So were his brothers and sisters. It was to be expected. He was a carnivorous animal. He came of a breed of meat killers and meat eaters. His father and mother lived wholly upon meat.
The milk he had sucked with his first flickering life was milk transformed directly from meat, and now,
at a month old, when his eyes had been open for but a week, he was beginning himself to eat meat—meat half-digested by the she-wolf and disgorged for the five growing cubs that already made too great demand upon her breast.

But he was, further, the fiercest of the litter. He could make a loud rasping growl than any of them. His tiny rages were much more terrible than theirs. It was he that first burned the track of rolling a fellow cub over with a cunning paw stroke.
And it was he that first gripped another cub by the ear and pulled and tugged through jaws tight clenches.
And certainly it was he that caused the mother the most trouble in keeping her litter from the mouth of the cave.

The fascination of the light for the gray cub increased from day to day.
He was perpetually departing on yard-long adventures toward the cave's entrance, and as perpetually being driven back. Only he did not know it for an entrance. He did not know anything about entrances, passages whereby one goes from one place to another place, much less of a way to get there. So to him the entrance of the cave was a wall—a wall of light. As the sun was to the outside dweller, this wall was to him

the sun of his world. It attracted him as a candle attracts a moth. He was always striving to attain it. The life that was so swiftly expanding within him, urged him continually toward the wall of light. The life that was within him knew that it was the one way out, the way he was predestined to tread. But he himself did not know anything about it. He did not know there was any outside at all.

There was one strange thing about this wall of light. His father (he had already come to recognize his father as the one other dweller in the world, a creature like his mother, who slept near the light and was a bringer of meat)—his father had a way of walking right into the wall,
the far wall and disappearing. The gray cub could not understand this. Though never permitted by his mother to approach that wall, he had approached the other walls, and encountered hard obstruction on the end of his tender nose. This hurt.
And after several such adventures,
he left the walls alone. Without thinking about it, he accepted this disappearing into the wall as a peculiarity of his father, as milk and halfdigested meat were peculiarities of his mother.

In fact, the gray cub was not given to thinking—at least, to the kind of thinking customary to men. His brain worked in dim ways. Yet his conclusions were as sharp and distinct of those achieved by men. He had a method of accepting things without questioning the why and wherefore. In reality, this was the act of classification. He was never disturbed over why a thing happened.
How it happened was sufficient for him. Thus, when he had bumped his nose on the back wall a few times, he accepted that he would not disappear into walls. In the same way, he accepted that his father could disappear into walls. But he was not in the least disturbed by desire to find out the reason for the difference between his father and himself.
Logic and physics were no part of his mental make-up.

Like most creatures of the Wild,
he early experienced famine. There came a time when not only did the meat supply cease, but the milk no longer came from his mother's breast.
At first, the cubs whimpered and cried, but for the most part they slept. It was not long before they were reduced to a coma of hunger.
There were no more spasms and squabbles, no more tiny rages nor attempts at growling; while the adventures toward the far white wall ceased altogether. The cubs slept, while the life that was in them flickered and died down.

One-Eye was desperate. He raged far and wide, and slept but little in the lair that had now become cheerless and miserable. The she-wolf, too, left her litter and went forth in search of meat. In the first days after the birth of the cubs, One-Eye had journeyed several times back to the Indian camp and robbed the rabbit snare; but, with the melting of the snow and the opening of the streams,
the Indian camp had moved away,
and that source of supply was closed
to him.

When the gray cub came back to life and again took interest in the far white wall, he found that the population of his world had been reduced.
Only one sister remained to him. The rest were gone. As he grew stronger, he found himself compelled to play alone, for the sister no longer lifted her head nor moved about. His little body rounded out with the meat he now ate, but the food had come too late for her. She slept continuously, a tiny skeleton flung round with skin in which the flame flickered lower and lower and at last went out.

Then came a time when the gray cub no longer saw his father appearing and disappearing in the wall nor lying down asleep in the entrance.
This had happened at the end of a second and less severe famine. The she-wolf knew why One-Eye never came back, but there was no way by which she could tell what she had seen to the gray cub. Hunting herself for meat, up the left fork of the stream where lived the lynx, she had followed a day-old trail of One-Eye.
And she had found him, or what remained of him, at the end of the trail. There were many signs of the battle that had been fought, and of the lynx's withdrawal to her lair after having won the victory. Before she went away, the she-wolf had found this lair, but she had not dared to venture in.

After this the she-wolf in her hunting avoided the left fork. For she knew that in the lynx's lair was a litter of kittens, and she knew the lynx for a fierce, bad-tempered creature and a terrible fighter. It was all very well for half a dozen wolves to drive a lynx, spitting and bristling, up a tree; but it was quite a different matter for a lone wolf to encounter a lynx—especially when the lynx was known to have a hungry kitten at her back.

But the Wild is the Wild, and motherhood is motherhood, at all times fiercely protective whether in the Wild or out of it; and the time was to come when the she-wolf, for her gray cub's sake, would venture
the left fork and the lair in the rocks,
and the lynx's wrath.

COWAN HARDWARE, Limited

125-127 DUNDAS ST. PHONES, 3461-3462.

Indicated W.O.B.A. Entries Closing July 17th Will Reveal Revival of Interest

Entries For W.O.B.A. Point To Big Revival of Interest

Close On July 21, But Clubs Already Have Made Big Response.

ADD NOVELTIES

The large number of entries already beginning to come in for the W. O. B. A. tournament to be held on the greens of the London Bowling and Rowing Club, beginning on Monday, July 21, at 1 p.m., is taken by the officials as an indication that the 25th annual tournament will be the most successful yet held in the history of the association. The entries for the rink tournament will close on Thursday, July 17, and for doubles on Tuesday, July 22, at 8 p.m. Entries may be filed with the secretary, C. K. Bluff, 870 Wellington street, London. Phone 3464. The draw will be made on Friday and will appear in Saturday's paper.

There are three rink trophies to be completed for the tournament—the London Free Press, Tecumseh and Turnbull trophies. The London Thistles, having two legs on the Turnbull trophy through victories in 1921 and the following year, are out to win the trophy for the third time, and thus secure permanent possession of it. Competition in the various other rink contests will be correspondingly keen.

A new trophy the Liberty Trophy, has been presented by the London firm of Scott-McFalls, Limited, for doubles competition. A feature of the tournament will be the All-Comers vs. London match, 16 rinks a side, to be played off on Monday evening, July 21, at 7:30 p.m. on the greens of the London Bowling Club. Following this match the annual meeting of the association will be held in the club rooms of the London Club. The third in the series of mainline tournaments in aid of the entertainment fund for the W. O. B. A. tournament is being held on Wednesday afternoon next on the greens of the London Bowling Club.

A certain revival of pride by all clubs in the association seems indicated by the early entries, and also a revival of the rivalry which made W. O. B. A. victories the most prized of all sporting trophies.

SOLDIER JONES IS K.O. VICTIM IN 8TH

Reddick Away in Lead When Blow and Fall Combine For K. O.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, July 14.—Jack Reddick of Moose Jaw knocked out Soldier Jones in the eighth round of their scheduled 10-round fight here tonight. Jones weighed 173½ pounds and Reddick 169½.

The fight was for the light heavyweight title of Canada, which Reddick took as the result of his knock-out win in their previous meeting. It was a somewhat unsatisfactory ending, Reddick being credited with a knockout in the eighth round when Jones was partially knocked down and fell to the canvas, landing on his head and injuring his head and back to such an extent that he lay on the ground for several minutes and was not lifted back into the ring until referee Hughie Hayes had tolled off the count of ten. While the knockout was partially the result of the fall from the ring, Reddick was so far ahead on points that the bout came conclusively that he is the better man.

Reddick, having vivid recollections of his reception in the first round of their initial battle, was very cautious at the opening, and for two or three rounds did little in the way of a determined offensive, being content to dance away from Jones and make the better miss. Jones landed several light, half-glancing blows with his left in the first round, and on his aggressiveness had a margin of points at the start of the second, but from then on Reddick took the lead, and as the bout progressed jabbed away with his left and inserted a right cross occasionally with telling effect. His tactics, while of the safety-first order, were the correct ones against the possessor of a punch like the one Jones packs around. As Reddick piled up point upon point Jones only hope was to land his famous haymaker, and while Reddick took a few chances the loser generally fanned the air, although he did jar the Westerner at times.

Chief Halton, 193½ pounds, of Jamestown, won from Fred Schell, 158 pounds, of England, on a foul.
Bobby Hamilton, 115½ pounds, of Syracuse, defeated Allan Holmes, 113½ pounds, of Toronto, on a decision in a six-round bout.
George Smith, 124 pounds, Toronto, fought six rounds to a draw with Willie Cunningham, 132 pounds, of Buffalo.
Fred Saltell, 128 pounds, of Winnipeg, knocked out Al Reich, 130½ pounds, of Toronto, in the third round.

Golf AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT.

PUTTING ON A SLOPING GREEN

MUST JUDGE FORCE "BORROW" ENOUGH TO COUNTERACT IT.

SOMETIMES YOU MIGHT BORROW A FEW INCHES AND A FEET.

PLAY FOR HOLE—NOT FOR A POINT.

How should a player proceed when about to putt on a sloping or rolling green?

Answered by BOB McDONALD, Winner of the Metropolitan Open championship, 1921 and 1923. One of the longest drivers in the game though using only a 12½-ounce driver.

In putting on a sloping green you must first judge the amount of slope, consider the force of gravity, and "borrow" enough to counteract it. Sometimes this "borrow" will amount to as much as six feet.

Do not pick out some particular point to shoot for in judging this allowance for gravity, but always shoot directly at the hole.

PARISIENNES NO MATCH FOR 'GRADS'

Edmonton Girls Teach "Frog-ettes" 69-17 Lesson.

Special to The Advertiser.
Paris, July 14.—The Edmonton girls' basketball team defeated the Paris girls' team in the basketball match in the Pershing Stadium today by a score of 69 to 17.

The Canadian girls scored snappily while their Paris competitors showed some of the old-fashioned style. Miss "Abbie" Scott and Miss D. Johnson were the forwards for the Canadians in today's match. Miss Constance Smith was centre; Miss Mary Dunn and Miss Martin were guards.

In the first period the Canadian players carried the ball to the Canadians' basket, but the defence of the Canadians was strong enough to prevent the Parisians from obtaining a single shot.

The second period began practically as a repetition of the first, but the Canadian girls soon started in to score and they continued to score frequently until the ball was not to be seen again returning to their defence territory.

Much better cheering marked the play of the Paris girls in the third period.

CHICAGO

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, July 15.—With Winnipeg prices jumping wildly, and with continued reports from the north-western states and Canada, wheat here ran up forecasts of showers in Canada, however, led to increased selling pressure on the advance, and caused unusually rapid fluctuations, that extended over a range of about 3c. Trade was on a large scale, but much more of a two-sided character than has recently been decided further gains and later by a succession of swift changes, mostly well above yesterday's finish.

Flurried buying on the part of previous sellers carried September corn up above any price heretofore reached this year. As soon as demand from this source was filled, though, the market underwent a strong reaction. The opening appeared to be governed almost altogether by temporary speculative pit conditions.

Oats followed the changes in corn, but kept within relatively narrow limits. Starting unchanged

TWO PROBLEMS FACED BY POSTAL EMPLOYEES

Officers of Association Meet This Morning To Decide On Action.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, July 14.—It was stated tonight that the outcome of the visit of a group of Toronto officials of the Postal Employees' Federation to interview the government authorities in Ottawa, in regard to the reported order that 40 part time helpers in the Toronto office would be dismissed from the service, and the rumor that postal employees would soon be called upon to sign a pledge not to participate in any strikes, was a request from those who had gone to

Ottawa, that the officers of the various branches of the association hold a meeting in Toronto at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.
It is understood that the men who have gone to Ottawa have wired back asking that instructions be decided on at this meeting and a reply sent to them at once, as they had arranged to return to Toronto on the train leaving the capital at noon. Branches of the association in a number of other large cities, it is stated, will also hold meeting tomorrow morning.

TWO BILLS ARE DROPPED TO HASTEN PROROGATION

Ottawa, July 14.—Another step towards prorogation of parliament was made today when two items of legislation were dropped from the order paper, without debate, by request of the minister of justice. The first was a bill in regard to transfers in the civil service.
The second item was a resolution proposing changes in the appointment and pay of judges in admiralty.

RETAIL GROCERS PICNIC TOMORROW

Regular Summer Train Service Will Be Augmented With Specials.

NOVEL PROGRAM

The Retail Grocers of London, long known to summer pleasure seekers as among the greatest fun providers of the age, are all set for their annual excursion to be held tomorrow to Port Stanley.

A colossal program of sports, outstripping any other offered this year in any other Western Ontario picnic, has been completed after weeks of work by busy committees, and everything is in readiness to lift the lid and provide the fun for the thousands.

The London & Port Stanley Railway is working in close co-operation with the grocers, and nothing has been overlooked that would add to the comfort, convenience and enjoyment of the picnicers from the time their journey commences till they get back home.

The full regular summer train service, providing for trains each hour each way every day, is to be augmented with specials to any extent necessary to accommodate the crowds. A big contingent will doubtless go down in the morning for the three ring circus of summer revelry starts early at the lakeshore and continues on till late at night.

The splendid band of the First Hussars has been engaged to provide the music on Inverie Heights, while the big sports program is carried out, including such outstanding features as a 100-yard championship sprint for amateurs, the prize for which is a trophy offered by S. F. Lawson. Any sprinter who carries off the trophy for three years will come into permanent ownership of it. The grocers pride themselves, and quite properly, too, on an ingenious line of novel and comic sports, all of which are open to the world, and the prizes are always well worth while.

The Scotch and Irish dancers will also have their thing in special competitions on the heights, while prizes will be given by the grocers in waltzing and fox-trotting competitions to be held at the casino at 4 o'clock.

The big baby show is to be conducted in connection with the L. & P. S. contest to discover the grand champion baby of the 1924 Port Stanley season. Every competitor will receive a prize, while the awards for the winners are all of unusual value.

Gum Chewing Aids the Teeth

You have the authority of doctors and dentists for this statement. Your own experience will prove it, if you will use WRIGLEY'S after every meal.

The following quotations from a recent work on teeth and health are worth remembering:

"Dentists have found that the exercise of gum chewing brings about a better nutrition of the teeth. . . ."

"The cleansing action of the gum between the teeth helps to keep them free from the particles which lodge in the crevices and cause decay."

The busy man—or woman either—rarely has time to clean the teeth after eating. Yet they should be cleaned, and the meanwhile the parents will receive an amount increasing as the years advance, from $100 in the first year to $400 in the tenth or any later year within the period. Everyone has the same fair and equal chance that brought victory in last year's competition for the Northern Life prize to little Eileen Muncie, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Muncie of 375 Maitland street. The little champion, the 1923 was introduced to the contestants in the recent Dominion Day celebration.

Girls' softball is one of the popular sensations of the day. The sport has developed a coterie of thousands, because few attractions give the spectator more thrills and laughs. The grocers have stepped in with a championship between the London Brownies, who played the Cleveland Favorite Knits at Port Stanley on Dominion Day, and the fast S. & I. Thistles.

The windup of the evening will be the big fun carnival on the board walk and the L. & P. S. beach movies, the feature attraction for which will be Lon Chaney in "While Paris Sleeps." Added comedies will be "The Ghost" and "Fatal Photo."

All the retail grocers of London have L. & P. S. tickets on sale at the unusual excursion rates for the convenience of their patrons. Everyone who goes to Port Stanley on the L. & P. S. will receive from the retail grocers a numbered ticket entitling him to participate in the big drawing to be held on the heights at the close of the afternoon sports. The holders of the lucky numbers will receive bags of granulated sugar, chests of tea, boxes of soap and big, valuable hampers of family groceries. Tickets for the drawing will also be given out at the L. & P. S. depot.

The splendid L. & P. S. Symphony Orchestra, which has created such a favorable impression among the lovers of good music who visit Port Stanley each Sunday afternoon, and evening, will have something of unusual merit for next Sunday. The same splendid corps of musicians will appear on the heights in the afternoon at 3:30 and in the evening at 8:15.

OPTIMISM IS HIGH FOR CROP IN WEST

Yields Will Be Determined by Future Rainfall, Says
Report.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Winnipeg, July 14.—The crop outlook generally for the Prairie Provinces gives every reason for optimism, although yields will largely be determined by future rainfall and the absence of hail and pests, says the weekly crop report of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Good progress has been made under favorable weather conditions of the past week and, according to the report, early wheat is rapidly coming into heading stage, heavy rains experienced over large areas in the three provinces providing moisture urgently needed by late sown crops.

In Manitoba, the wheat crop is looking healthy and strong, and has fine roots, but as yet is late. With intermittent rainfall until maturity of cereals, a good crop seems assured in Manitoba. No damage has been reported from insect pests.

The condition of all grains in Saskatchewan is reported to be making satisfactory progress. In the northwest and west central districts it is doubtful whether the precipitation of the past week will materially improve conditions. With liberal rain at intervals from now on, the crop, generally speaking, should be well up to the average.

Prospects of a good crop in Alberta are reassuring, the report states, although rain would prove beneficial in many districts.

Unless rain falls in abundance over many districts along the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway a disastrous drought is fore-shadowed. The heavy rains of last week came too soon to relieve the critical condition in this area.

Ideal weather for fruit growing is reported from British Columbia and promising yields are predicted.

FRIENDSHIP REKINDLED BY COMMITTEE ACTION

Prime Minister MacDonald
Foresees More Friendly Relations With France.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, July 14.—The fact that the experts committee had been appointed and that United States representatives were present as members of the committee had undoubtedly tremendously contributed to the possibility of beginning afresh friendly or at any rate more friendly relations between Great Britain and France, Prime Minister MacDonald declared to the House of Commons today.

The prime minister said that he had gathered from conversations in Paris with Premier Herriot and others that if a United States citizen were appointed to the reparations commission to safeguard the creditors of the £10,000,000 loan to Germany, France would undoubtedly insist that the extra appointee to the commission should have his purpose confined to safeguarding creditors of the loan, although he would be allowed to speak and vote.

The executive committee of the organization, which unanimously voted for Judge Olivan, also passed a resolution endorsing the Democratic national ticket and pledging its "undivided and loyal support" to the candidates, John W. Davis and Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska.

OVER TWO MILLION IN CANTEEN FUNDS

House Gives First Reading To Bill Providing For Distribution.

Ottawa, July 14.—The House this afternoon debated the resolution, which provides for the distribution of the canteen funds, which were accumulated during and immediately after the war. The total amount, with accrued interest, to be divided is $2,268,926. The resolution was adopted and a bill based thereon given first reading.

The resolution provides that $20,000 will be held for payment of outstanding accounts; that $100,000 will be administered from Ottawa by a central board of three trustees for the purpose of maintaining an adjustment service for the benefit of ex-service men; that the sum of $50,000 will be paid to the United Service Fund of Great Britain with an equal amount to the American Red Cross for meeting payments necessary to assist ex-members of the Canadian expeditionary force. The residue of the canteen funds, according to the resolution, is to be divided among the provinces on the percentage basis. The percentages are: Alberta, 7.34; British Columbia and the Yukon, 10.28; Manitoba, 10.70; New Brunswick, 4.20; Nova Scotia, 6.43; Ontario, 41.64; Prince Edward Island, 8.57; Quebec, 12.71; and Saskatchewan, 5.88. These provincial allotments will be administered by provincial boards of trustees, and will be expended according to the wishes of those interested.

MABER SAYS $300,000 COST OF REVALUATION

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, July 14.—Roughly estimated, the cost of the proposed plan for the revaluation of property held by soldiers under the soldiers' settlement act would be $300,000, S. Maher, secretary of the soldiers' settlement board, said in giving evidence before the House of Commons committee on pensions and re-establishment this morning. The committee has under consideration alternative schemes for revaluation or the waiving of interest on payments made by ex-soldiers holding land.
