Little Gray, Old Lady Makes Annual Pilgrimage To City's Historic Shrine

Mysterious Visitor Pays Regular Homage at Tablet Which Marks Spot of First Dwelling in London.

TABLET MARKS SITE OF FIRST LONDON HOME.

Ninety-nine years old and just hitting its stride. That's London. Upon land which a century ago was a thick forest, traversed only by wild animals, Indians and an occasional white adventurer, there has risen the Forest City as it is known today, a place of homes, a highly important manufacturing center, in short a typical Canadian city with sound institutions and a general ambition to attain to better things in a civic way.

But what is there to remind Londoners and visitors here that this municipality has reached the four score and nineteen mark?

Tablet Tells Story. A bronze tablet fastened to the walls of the Jenkins manufacturing plant at the corner of Ridout and King streets tells the story in these words:

"On this site in the year 1825 the first dwelling was erected in the town plot of London by Peter MacGregor. The site of the city of London was selected in 1792 by Lieutenant-Governor Simcoe. This tablet erected by the London and Middlesex Historical Society in 1906."

That is all it says, but to the casual passerby who stops to read its wording it has a strong message, a message which says that this almost insignificant bronze tablet is a symbol of the growth London has experienced from the days when Dundas street was but a cow trail up to the present when the Forest City is ranked as the sixth most important manufacturing center of the dominion.

This little tablet is entirely unpretentious when compared with the average run of such mementoes and little is known of it by the average Londoner. There are thousands in this city who are not even aware of its existence.

But there is one little old lady who looks upon it as something to be cherished—probably because its wording links the autumn of her life with the springtime of long ago.

to see that the tablet is still there to tell its message of the evolution of a thriving municipality from a muddy crossroads.

Aghast at Removal. Once the tablet had been taken down to be cleaned shortly before her yearly visit took place. She came and stood aghast, thinking its absence due to the depredation of some vandal hand. So alarmed was she by this thought that she could not rest until she had found the true reason for its removal and had then personally superintended the work of re-erecting it.

Each succeeding visit of the little gray lady finds her shoulders bowed a little more, her step a little slower and her words a little more unpretentious, but her spirit is unchanged. Before the snows of many more winters have painted a darker hue on the face of the tablet she will have gone forth on a more ethereal pilgrimage, leaving her care of the bronze memorial to other hands, and if this is carried out as she would have it the story of the founding of London will never die.

FEW ILLEGAL SALES, MORE HOME BREW MADE

Police Official Discusses Decrease in Number of Convictions Here.

Increasing demand for permits to manufacture home brew indicates there is less bootlegging in the city, according to Inspector of Police Thomas Lucas. His contention that there has been little or no illegal sales of liquor in the city during the past month is borne out by police court records which reveal no convictions on liquor selling charges.

Most of the liquor consumed nowadays, according to the inspector, is dispensed in the city in a few cases of moonshine or bootleg stuff. They either go to one extreme or the other, drinking dissipated liquors or poisonous rubbing alcohol.

CAR AWAITING OWNER. An abandoned motor car, found by detectives on Craig street, near Wortley road, is awaiting an owner at police station. The car is believed to have been stolen either from Toronto or Hamilton. It carries license number 176-463.

The car was left standing on Craig street for more than 24 hours. It was taken to police station by Detective Sergeant Henry Down.

LIONS ARE TOLD OF ARMENIAN HORROR

Rev. R. D. Pierce Speaks to Clubmen About Relief Work in Canada.

Pathos and mirth had a share in the program at the weekly dinner of the Lions club held last night in the Tecumseh house.

The speaker of the evening, Rev. R. W. Pierce, spoke on behalf of the Armenian relief work in Canada. He himself had been stationed in Beirut, Armenia, when Turkey entered the war and when the Ottoman force attacked that place took part in the 300-mile retreat to Aleppo. He and his wife with their two boys had to travel this in a small cart and during the whole of the terrible journey had to endure the sight of dogs devouring the bodies of the murdered Armenian men, women and children all along the line of march.

The Turks eventually entered Aleppo as well and occupied that place for a space of three years. During this time Mr. Pierce and his family were held in a filthy Turkish prison along with a small band of other Anglo-Saxons.

The organization with which Mr. Pierce is connected conducts a school for orphan Armenian boys at Georgetown, Ontario, and for useful careers as Canadian citizens. To interest Canadians in this work a group of 20 boys are touring Ontario, giving a stirring account of the larger centers. They will be in London on Nov. 3.

The Rev. Fr. Russo, procurator-general of the Franciscan Order and a personal friend of the pope, was a guest of the club at the dinner which preceded the meeting. He was introduced by Dr. Hugh Stevenson.

Bonnie Hart gave a very interesting and instructive address on radio and its future.

The humor was furnished abundantly by "Scotty" MacKellar and his Shubert male quartet. Some of the numbers sung by the group were of a more serious nature and the inevitable "sobriety" kept the gathering in an uppour with his jokes and comic songs.

Bert Parsons, seated between the Rev. Fr. Russo and the Rev. Fr. Stevenson, was the most prominent figure in the Roman church, the successor of St. Francis of Assisi, occupied the president's chair.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL BLAMES WINNIPEG

Tells United Church Conference City To Blame For Present Liquor Conditions.

Canadian Press Despatch. Winnipeg, Oct. 23.—The first Manitoba conference of the United church, which Wednesday night listened to a vigorous arraignment of the liquor laws, last night heard the other side of the question.

Wednesday Mayor Ralph H. Webb charged that the provincial government and the law courts were to blame for allowing infringements of the liquor act to continue. At night Hon. W. R. Craig, provincial attorney-general, blamed the city for any fault in the enforcement of the law in Winnipeg.

The attorney-general declared that by virtue of an agreement made between the city and the provincial government in 1919, it was the duty of the city to enforce the law with regard to liquor. He denied that Mayor Webb had ever approached him for support on the floor of the provincial legislature charges made by the mayor, and declared that there was "deliberate propaganda" against the province to undermine confidence in the liquor act. This propaganda, he charged, had the definite object of obtaining freer sale of intoxicating liquor.

VEHICLE LIGHT DISCUSSION TO COME UP IN DECEMBER

Middlesex county councillors have yet to consider the advisability of passing a bylaw compelling all vehicles to carry lights at night. County Clerk John Stuart stated today that he had received a communication from the Ontario Motor League asking the council to pass such a bylaw, but it could not be presented to the council until December.

"This matter has never come before the council as the members would take the same action as the Waterloo council did yesterday, and turn it down on the same grounds, namely: that the government should first pass legislation on lights that are suitable for all classes of vehicles and should be observed in all parts of the province," declared Mr. Stuart.

THREE MARITIME PREMIERS SPEAK IN MEIGHEN'S CAUSE

Canadian Press Despatch. Amherst, N. S., Oct. 23.—Three Maritime premiers last night took stand for Maritime recognition and Maritime rights. Transportation, immigration, protection and the "exodus" of the people of Canada to the United States were discussed by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Hon. J. B. M. Baxter and Hon. J. D. Stewart, when the three premiers of the same political faith appeared upon the same platform. Emphasis was laid upon the urgent necessity of a solution of the transportation problems existing between the east and central Canada and Premier Rhodes dealt with the solution as offered by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Three thousand people packed the auditorium. Hon. Percy G. Black, chairman of the Nova Scotia highway board, presided.

TO HEAR DRAINAGE REPORTS. Westminster township council, at its next session on Nov. 3, will consider the reports of the township engineer regarding the proposed Maple Grove survey, south of the city. The engineer states that the cost of one drain will be $3,050 and the other $1,811. The reports were received yesterday by E. S. Hunt, Westminster township clerk.

Church School Will Mark 51st Anniversary Sunday; An Epoch In London South

Askin Street School Preceded Church and Has a Fine Record of Achievement.

GROWTH CONTINUES

Late Sir George Gibbons Was One of School's Earliest Superintendents.

Marking its 51st anniversary the Sunday school of the Wesley United church will observe the event with special services next Sunday. The anniversary belongs to the Sunday school alone, for in reversion of the usual order the church was the offspring of the Sunday school, not the Sunday school of the church.

During its 51 years' of services the Sunday school has served both its church and community well. Many of the preachers in the Canadian church today received the major portion of their Christian teaching in the school. For over half a century the school has gone on uninterrupted in its great task of Christian education. At first, with very inadequate equipment and few scholars, it has grown, until today it is one of the largest schools in Canada, giving its work in a thorough manner.

Yet even today, progress has not stopped; the school has not reached the zenith of its accomplishments; and in spite of the new school the pupils are becoming too many for the building.

No Church In 1874.

In 1874 London South was served only by itinerant preachers, who held services wherever convenient. There was no Methodist church in the district, and those of that faith were compelled to go to the North street church, now the Metropolitan United. The adult members did not mind, but it was difficult for the children to go to a great distance, and consequently, only religious education the child was to have had to be secured at home.

Ready to this condition certain Methodists in the district asked the North street church to establish some sort of a school for the children of their children could obtain the rudiments of a Christian education. This request was granted, and in 1874 a Sunday school was founded for the district, which about 25 children in attendance. No building was erected, but the sessions were held in the little red brick schoolhouse of Askin street, opposite the location of the present Victoria school.

Dr. Flesman, a converted Jewish rabbi, was placed in charge by the North street church, and under his guidance much progress was made. The zeal which Mr. Flesman had for his faith was much greater than that of the children alone, and gradually adults, who had hitherto been outside the pale of any church, began to attend the sessions of the school. Dr. Flesman became a real missionary pastor, and the Sunday school began to feel growing pains, as the adults showed a tendency to crowd the children out.

Decision was then made to form a separate church. About this time, however, Dr. Flesman took up with a larger sphere and was lost to the fledgling church. About the time of his removal the school had outgrown the red brick schoolhouse, and the present site of Wesley United church was purchased and a regular congregation formed. This was in 1876.

Gibbons Superintendent.

At the same time as the removal to new quarters one of the most noted men that London ever gave to public life in Canada became superintendent of the school, George Gibbons, who was then but a young student lawyer. However, he was interested deeply in the affairs of the church and in the education of the young. He was a member of the North street congregation, and as a tribute to his religious zeal he was made head of the young Sunday school. A young head for a young school proved a highly successful combination and remarkable growth ensued during his term as superintendent. He was a worthy successor to Dr. Flesman. Mr. Gibbons served for only a few years, however, his legal duties absorbing virtually all his time.

By this time both the school and the church were firmly on their feet and had outgrown their mission status and had become a full-fledged self-supporting congregation. The Sunday school had doubled in numbers and had about ten teachers, and the church had a full-time minister.

Progress has never stopped, and today the Sunday school is one of the largest of its denomination in the dominion, and the largest in the city of London. The average attendance exceeds 600, and there are nearly 50 teachers at work every Sabbath. A few years ago a large addition was built to the then commodious quarters and a gymnasium district included. The Sunday school now has every facility for its work, as a center of both moral and physical education in a Christian environment.

Proud of Orchestra.

The distinction of having the largest Sunday school orchestra in the province, west of Toronto, also belongs here. Dr. James Smith the orchestra has reached a high state of perfection, and each Sunday over 50 musicians turn out. Premier Rhodes at the Ontario musical festival in Toronto, in its class, were won by these musicians, and critics acclaimed them as the best orchestra of its type it had ever been their privilege to hear.

The organization of classes for all sorts of people has been one of the chief achievements of the school. It was a pioneer in extending the field of definite religious education, by means of the Sunday school, and now boasts several classes, comprised of adults, which meet regularly every Sunday afternoon.

Special services to mark the anniversary will be held next Sunday in the church. They will be largely conducted by young people who attend the Sunday school. Rev. James Philip, field secretary of the Ontario boys' work board, will be the preacher at the morning and evening

AUTO THROWN FORTY FEET WHEN STRUCK BY TROLLEY

Driving north on Maitland street early last evening, William Davidson of 57 Dakin street was struck by a North Belt street car which was proceeding east on Dundas. The street car carried the auto a distance of 40 feet. M. Davidson escaped injuries, and the car was damaged very little. The street car was in charge of Conductor Ernest Bisley, 31 Barker street, and Motorman George Mulina, 473 Elizabeth street.

AUTOS COLLIDE.

A car driven by Alex. Green of 334 Lorne avenue collided last yesterday afternoon with a truck driven by J. H. Taylor of 145 Barker street. Green was travelling north on Adelaide street near Oxford, while Taylor was coming south on Adelaide and it is said, endeavored to make a left hand turn onto Oxford. Neither car was badly damaged.

EIGHT SPEAKERS FOR LABOR MASS MEETING

Eight speakers will address a mass meeting to be held in the east end town hall tonight in the interests of John Colwell, Labor candidate in this riding. Among those who will give addresses is one woman, Mrs. J. F. Thomson, who has been playing a prominent part in the windup of the Labor campaign.

On the speakers' list are Ald. John Ashton, Ald. Thomas Chitt, Dr. H. A. Stevenson, H. B. Ashplant, Arthur Mould, Mrs. Thomson, and the candidate.

The Labor campaign committee is also sponsoring a public meeting to be held in the central colliery on Tuesday night. "Jimmy" Simpson, manager of the Toronto Labor temple, and candidate in Northeast Toronto, will deliver the main address.

BEER-RUNNING SCANDAL PREDICTED IN CHICAGO

Charges Involve Police Officials, Five Breweries and Several Railroads.

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Charges involving scores of Chicago policemen and officials, five big beer syndicates, five railroads and many of their officials and several prohibition agents, will be brought before the federal grand jury, as the result of a six months' investigation by prohibition officials. Federal agents declared that the evidence may bring about the greatest beer-running scandal since the 18th amendment became law. They said the evidence will show that eastern breweries, with the connivance of the railroads, have been running as much as $5,000,000 worth of beer into Chicago since the prohibition laws became effective.

The investigation followed the seizure of 1,000 barrels of beer at Morton Grove, a suburb, last month and the arrest of a policeman and six other men.

COLDER WEATHER SEES FLARE-UP OF SPEEDING

Special motorcycle officers will patrol city streets until the snow flies owing to the tendency among motorists to "speed up" during colder weather in the belief that the motorcycle men have been taken off the roads, according to Chief of office Robert Birrell.

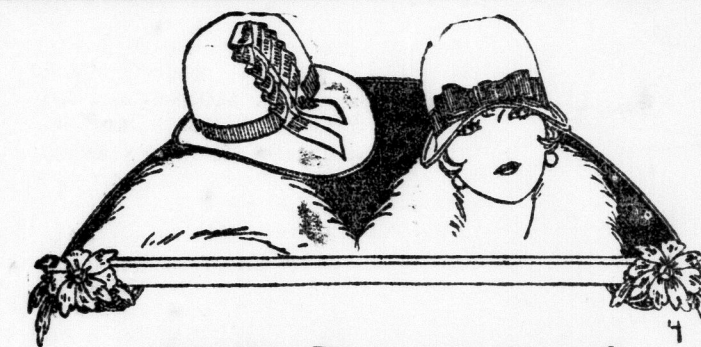

Speeding in the city has increased considerably during the past few weeks, court records show. As many as fifteen speeders have been convicted so far this week. Three paid fines of $10 and costs each out of court this morning.

HOOF-MOUTH DISEASE BREAKING OUT AGAIN

English Cattle Raisers Greatly Concerned Over Recurrence of Malady.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Oct. 22.—Cattle raisers are worried over a recurrence of the foot and mouth disease at several places in England. Scarcely had the minister of agriculture's withdrawal of the last restriction dealing with the disease been announced when an isolated outbreak was reported. Since then there have been several others. The reports have come from scattered districts.

Yesterday there were no arrivals from foreign ports. Under the restrictions any sheep or cattle coming in must be immediately slaughtered.

The fox hunters also are much concerned over the fresh outbreak, as hunting is not allowed in the affected areas, since horses and dogs crossing low pastures are likely to carry the infection away with them. All hunting in Cheshire has been forbidden. If the disease extends to Leicestershire, where the Prince of Wales contemplates hunting shortly, this sport will be stopped.

Vast Audience Thrilled As Blind Organist Plays

Dr. Hollins, World-Famous Composer, Sways Crowd With Beautiful Compositions.

IMPROVISES THEME

World famous as an organist and composer, Dr. Alfred Hollins of Edinburgh found St. Paul's Cathedral packed last night for his recital, the first of the Western Ontario concert series, which is being given under the management of Harry T. Dickinson.

When the first lovely notes of the Mendelssohn Sonata No. 1 fell upon the ears of the audience, there was a hush of expectancy. And from this number throughout the entire program, with its amazingly beautiful improvisation and compositions by the artist himself, the audience was filled with an ever-increasing wonder at the genius of the man.

He has sometimes been called the wizard of the organ. Those who heard him last night would not doubt the correctness of any such name. From his fingers and from his toes sprang magical music. Oftenest his playing is quiet and restrained. But in the color passages in his descriptive numbers and in his improvisation he lets himself go. The whole church swells with beautiful music which seems almost heavenly in its conception and interpretation.

Dr. Hollins is famed as much for his improvisations as his own musical creations and interpretations. His is the musical genius alone which enables him to improvise so exquisitely on a theme which is entirely new to him.

Improvises Theme.

Last night he was given a theme by Dr. L. Balogh of St. Peter's Cathedral. After it had been played but twice, the artist of the evening was ready to improvise. With amazing skill did he work with this new found story, so that it grew and grew into a beautiful musical structure. Perhaps, to an audience unaccustomed to improvisations of such amazing beauty, this number was the favorite of the evening. It was difficult, however, to gauge the feeling of those who must refrain from applause because they were in the cathedral. And Dr. Hollins' own

Old Sol Suffers Flock of Spots

Special to The Advertiser.
Washington, Oct. 22.—Magnetic storms on the earth may be expected as a result of the flock of sun-spots now visible on the sun, and the needles of compasses on the earth may be affected, causing trouble in navigation, according to J. A. Fleming, of the department of terrestrial magnetism of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

These spots are now visible on the telescope used to display the sun. According to attendants this is the largest number of sun-spots seen at one time since the sun passed through its period of minimum activity about two years ago. The largest of the 17 visible spots is about 20,000 miles across.

compositions, as set down on the program, made a big appeal.

Of these he played a group including Andante in D, Scherzo, and Theme with Variations and Fugue, all of his own creation. The exquisite loveliness of the passages throughout captivated the audience. It was a Hollins number, the Concert Overture, No. 3, in F Minor, brilliant and satisfying. Dedicated to Dr. Ernest Macmillan of Toronto, at one time his pupil, it seems to have a special interest for Canada.

Dr. Hollins' interpretations of Bach, Cesar Franck, Mendelssohn and Nesbitt can only be described as the work of a master musician, of one who comes so closely into sympathy with the men themselves that he cannot help but play their works acceptably. The Cesar Franck Prelude, Fugue and Variation, and Bach's Toccata in F were brilliantly rendered.

Nesbitt's Pastoral "On the Moor" was handled with loving care by Dr. Hollins. As he played, one seemed to feel the "Scent of pine and purple heather. Crested hillocks wild and free. The lark's sweet song, the whaup's weird cry. And the distant croonin' of the sea."

These are the lines which the composer has prefixed to this piece. And they were caught up by Dr. Hollins into beautiful music.

REDUCTION OF SENATE IS ELLIOTT'S SOLUTION

W. Middlesex Conservative Would Also Cut Salaries by $1,000.

Parkhill, Oct. 22.—An elective senate, half the size of the present body, and with salaries reduced by $1,000 was the solution offered tonight by Wm. Elliott, Conservative candidate in West Middlesex, when he discussed the question of senate reform.

Hon. George S. Henry, minister of public works in Ontario, was the principal speaker at the rally held here tonight. He advocated a high protective tariff, and urged that there should be a reduction in the expenditures of the dominion.

The third speaker of the evening was George A. Elliott, M.L.A. for North Middlesex. W. H. Bortram, president of the local Conservative organization, was chairman. The meeting was held in the town hall, and was attended by about 300 people.

WELL-KNOWN STOCKMAN DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Galt, Oct. 22.—John Brown, 73, one of the best-known stockmen in Ontario, died this morning after an illness of eighteen months. At one time he was one of the largest shippers of cattle from Canada to the United Kingdom, but in recent years had devoted his attention principally as an exhibitor, the stock of John Brown and Sons being prominent at all big shows.

PREMIER'S CHALLENGE GOES UNQUESTIONED

Shows Clearly That Tariff Reductions Has Not Injured Single Industry.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Brantford, Oct. 22.—Brantford people today are all talking about the great speech given last night here by Premier King. The point of his address most talked about was his direct challenge to any one in the audience who could show that the tariff reductions made by the present government had injured a single industry in this city. After making the challenge the prime minister paused a few seconds so that there was ample opportunity for an acceptance, but not a voice was raised.

The effect of the address removes some of the misapprehension regarding protection, which the premier showed clearly is not the cure-all, and if pushed to extremes would kill the very industries it is supposed to help. Brantford has, without doubt, improved industrially in the last two or three years. W. G. Raymond, local member, came in for much praise by other speakers during the evening. His own short address was quite typical with its invincible logic, moderate tone and cheerful strain. The audience was probably half Conservative. There were many present from Brant county, and word is being received here that the Progressive, E. H. Standing, will defeat F. Smoke, the Conservative in the county.

where he discussed, assisted by Dr. James McQueen and Miss Kate Keachie of Galt, and Karl Homuth, M.L.A., Preston, all the issues of the present campaign, giving statistics to show that conditions were improved and that the Mackenzie King government was not responsible. He also emphasized that he firmly stood for a tariff, a tariff advisory board and senate reform.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1925.

Slandering Canada.

Billboards in London are carrying the announcement that Canada is the highest taxed country in the world, and the sanction of Frank White, the Conservative candidate, is given to that statement by the use of his name on the board. The same statement is made in Conservative literature.

The man in Britain knows that his taxes are more than he can stand. He would like to make a fresh start in Canada, but here are Canadians themselves telling him that Canada has the highest tax in the world. That means he would be worse off here than where he is.

It would be bad enough to broadcast such warblings were they true, but when they are not true it is nothing short of plain slander on the Dominion of Canada to make capital for the Conservative party.

Canada has no desire to hide the fact that she is paying her share for an honorable and outstanding participation in the world war, but Canada resents the use of this burden for political exploitation.

From a source far removed from Canadian politics—the chancellor of the British exchequer—we take the following comparison of per capita taxation in English-speaking countries:

	1913-14	1923-24
	In Sterling	In Sterling
United Kingdom	4 11 0	12 5 3
New Zealand	3 3 0	12 5 3
Australia	3 8 1	8 1 9
Canada	3 8 2	7 19 10
United States	1 7 11	6 14 10
South Africa	1 9 0	3 9 11

Of the two English-speaking countries with a lesser rate of taxation than Canada, one, South Africa, has such a large native and colored population that the per capita figures mean very little. The other, United States, was very much later in entering the war than Canada, and did not incur anything like the per capita obligation from the source that Canadians did.

The facts about per capita taxation in other lands were readily available had the local Conservatives cared to use them. Instead of Canada being the highest taxed nation, her standing is among the most favored, her per capita rate being exceeded by Australia, New Zealand and Great Britain, taxation in the latter being more than double the Canadian rate.

It is conceivable that in the heat of an election campaign there should be hard things said of men and parties, but an effort to slander the Dominion in the eyes of the world can come under no such exemption.

A Very Old Method.

Mayor Richardson of St. Marys addressed a Conservative rally in his own town, and in the course of his remarks said he had "just learned of an important industry in town that had been offered certain inducements to move over to United States. The company was waiting to see how the election came out next week; if the vote went in favor of Mackenzie King then the company would be compelled to accept the offer."

Mayor Richardson did not mention which particular factory he had in mind. It would have been fairer had he done so, and also explained why and when it had become necessary for United States to offer inducements to a Canadian industry to move to that country, because for years the movement has all been in the direction of American plants locating branch industries in Canada.

There is only one plant in St. Marys that is not working. The Cement Co. had a good year's business and are running full time, employing 175 hands; the St. Marys Flax Co. employs from 45 to 50 people and has not been shut down in six years. The Richardson Foundry Co. is employing 35 men and running full time; the Woolvening Milling Co., a new industry, is busy with 30 men working there; Maxwell's, Limited, established 40 years ago, employs 90 men and is working five days a week. Did Mayor Richardson have reference to any of these plants?

The mayor discussed conditions in St. Marys with an Advertiser representative a week ago, and said "conditions generally are fair. There is some unemployment, but not as much as last fall. . . . Taking it all around, I would say that the future of St. Marys as a town promises the same as in the past, a slow, solid growth."

That was only a week ago, and Mayor Richardson seemed to think conditions were fairly good; unemployment was falling off and the prospects were for future growth along very substantial or "solid" lines, as he called it. His statement a week later before a Conservative rally was different; a factory—unnamed—was thinking of leaving town if Mackenzie King is returned to power.

That form of campaigning is not of the best order. It is calculated to produce unrest in the minds of workers in all the plants; it has in it the subtle suggestion that if the workers do not vote Conservative they are going to be out of employment.

Neither is Mayor Richardson's logic good, because it is short-sighted. A factory in St. Marys or any other place is established with the idea of remaining in existence. There can be no guarantee to it that Conservative or Liberal governments will remain in power indefinitely; it must do business under whatever government is in office, just as thousands of factories in all countries have done for years. No manufacturer is going to say "If the people of this country dare to elect this or that government then I'll pick up and get out." Things are not done that way, not in St. Marys or any other place.

This form of last-minute campaigning resembles the plan followed by Conservatives in West Lambton in 1921 when they spread the report that the oil refineries would leave if the Liberals were returned. The Liberals were returned but the oil refinery did not depart. Instead it went ahead and spent millions on plant extension.

That New Immigration Policy.

The advertising material which is being used by the Conservative party has special reference to a new sort of immigration policy. By it the country can be filled up with people in a week or ten days. Here is the formula:

"Increase our population—start a big immigration movement and the rest will follow as a matter of course! Easier said than done? Not at all! All we have to do to start the tide of immigration flowing through our ports is to hold out to the prospective immigrant the assurance of a steady job at good wages. Give him that and he will come in his thousands—yes, in his tens of thousands."

The reference is of course to immigrants for towns and cities and for jobs in towns and cities.

The King government's policy is different. It seeks by a process of careful selection to give assistance to those whom it believes will be able to make a success in the agricultural lands of Canada, either as farm owners, farm hands or domestic servants. The government does not believe that it is good policy to seek immigration that will further congest the larger centers of population.

Larger town and city population will follow as a result of the development of our farm areas, the increasing of mineral production, etc. That is the logical and proper course of development. We doubt very much if Labor will endorse the plan laid out in the Conservative campaign literature. Labor men will resent the idea of flooding the cities with more workers simply for the sake of having more people in the country.

The one certain way for them to voice their protest in this election is by voting for E. S. Little, the King candidate, who is supporting the policy of selective immigration as opposed to the rush-then-in policy of the Conservatives.

Not One Charge Made.

In the four years that the King government has held office at Ottawa there has never been one charge made that public funds were being improperly handled or that there had been misappropriation in any way.

It has not been necessary to read any Garlands or Posters out of the party because they desired to make private fortunes out of public service.

It is a clean, honorable record that the King government is able to bring before the people, and it is high ground from which to appeal for a renewal of the people's confidence.

He Might Explain.

Donald Sutherland, Conservative candidate in North Oxford, speaking in Woodstock, was critical of the Liberal government.

After remarking that there had been no general tariff cut, he said "It has not been severely touched. The government has not the courage to change the tariff or does not believe in its own program."

What is it that troubles Mr. Sutherland? Is he complaining because the tariff has not been cut?

Note and Comment.

London's magistrate says it is not the business of police to interfere with girls who expose their knees by rolling their socks. The police have too many other skin games to watch.

Ottawa says that it is not obligatory to observe the public half-holiday on October 29. The best plan is to vote Liberal early in the day, get your work done in good time and be prepared to celebrate the victory in the evening.

Honesty in theory is excellent, but better still in actual practice. Richard Bryant, a car cleaner on the Canadian Nationals, found $1,370, the entire savings of Henry Davis, who had come from England to join his family in London. That the owner of the money should have had it returned to him so quickly is the sincerest compliment that could be paid to the men in the employ of the C. N. R.

Some idea of the complexity of Western Canada's vote is shown in the nationalities registered in the Prince Albert (Sask.) riding. They include not only all English-speaking nationalities, but also with French, German, Belgian, Scandinavian, Mennonites, Donkshobors, Ruthenians, Ukrainians, Poles and Russians. Charlie McDonald is Liberal candidate there, and when he addresses his electors in broad Scotch they all know what he had intended to say.

Sad But Very True

Some folks we meet they spend their time on talkin' what they used to do, they boast about their family tree and of the blossoms which it grew.

One chap I'm thinkin' of just now he tells me time and time again about the time when he was young and beat up sixteen wicked men. How they come at him for a fight, and heaved at him tin cans and rocks, but in them days he was a giant and had the sinew of an ox.

Another chap he pauses too to tell when he was twenty-one, he split ten cords of wood a day and reckoned it a bit of fun.

"I mind the time I took my gun and went onto the bush one day, I saw six bears behind the barn, I never let one get away. And farther on I met a wolf and well nigh shot the brute in two, before I quit I caught a fox and killed a wicked bobcat too."

But this old world may pause to hear such yarns as folks be passing by, but all the same it grins a spell and winks a meaning sort of eye.

It may be thrillin' like to say you killed the bear that ate your cow, but this old world it measures folk by what they can produce right now.

MAKING OUT THE AVERAGE.

(From the St. Catharines Standard.)

A LIBERAL who is not given to loquacity informed the Standard this week that he had read the Globe as usual, and had found a scintilla of condemnation of Mr. Meighen's policies, and two scant criticisms of Mr. King's platform.

TRUE FABLE.

(Life)

THE rich man had a tummy-ache one night. His doctor had a set of X-rays taken and called in a number of specialists for consultation before deciding at which hospital to operate. His dentist insisted that all his teeth should come out. His lawyer advised him to make a new will. He had about given up hope when suddenly he lost all his money.

Whereupon everything was forgotten and he became perfectly well.

SELECTING A HUSBAND.

A noisy bunch tracked out of their club late one night, and up the street. They stopped in front of an imposing residence. After considerable discussion, one of them advanced and pounded on the door. A woman stuck her head out of a second-story window and demanded, none too sweetly: "What do you want?" "I wish thine residence of Mr. Smith?" inquired the man on the steps, with an elaborate bow.

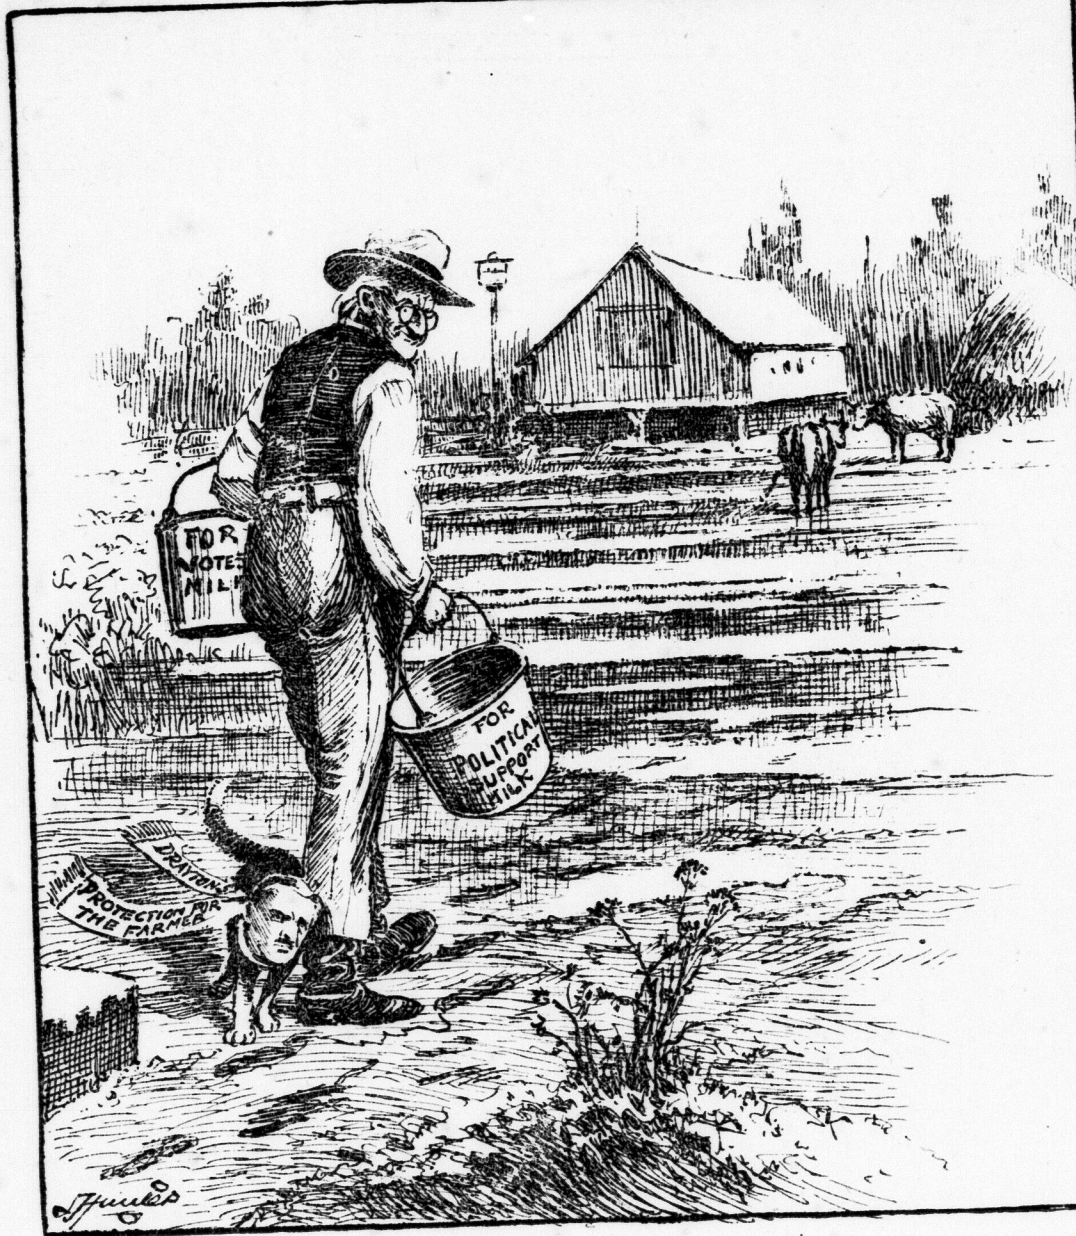

"Is it what you want?"

"Is it possible I have the honor of speaking to Missus Smith?"

"Yes. What do you want?"

"Dear Missus Smith! Good Missus Smith! Will you—hic—come down and pick out Mr. Smith? The rest of us want to go home?"

Mr. King's War Record.

Londoner Thinks the Facts Should Be Continually Placed Before the People.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—Please allow space in The Advertiser for a few words re your editorial of Oct. 13, "The Premier and the War Years." The editorial should be printed in lots of hundreds of thousands of copies and scattered broadcast all over Canada, because there is a low, mean, yes, scandalous—campaign being carried on in every part of the country re Mr. King's war record.

Everywhere I go I hear it whispered and, in some cases, spoken out loudly: "King ran away to the States while the war was on, and hid himself instead of doing his bit for his country."

The above-mentioned editorial and more should appear in every issue of The Advertiser till election day.

Well-informed Conservatives know in their hearts that through all his sorrow and afflictions during that period he did his best, and no man could do more. They know that had Mr. King been sent overseas he never would, at his age, have been sent into the trenches, but like only too many others would have been given a fat job in the safety zone with little or nothing to do, but he swelled the enormous cost of the war, which he has been working successfully to reduce.

A FAIRPLAY CITIZEN.

Hank Finds a Plot.

So He Asks If Mr. Meighen's Fears About Raising Prices Have Any Bearing on Home Brew.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—I can't help wondering what Mr. Meighen's big idea is in keeping the price of raisins down. This is a period he did his best, and no man could do more. They know that had Mr. King been sent overseas he never would, at his age, have been sent into the trenches, but like only too many others would have been given a fat job in the safety zone with little or nothing to do, but he swelled the enormous cost of the war, which he has been working successfully to reduce.

Some of the boys out our way use a few raisins now and then, when making a little home brew, and neither Meighen nor King could run the government. Yours very truly,

SAM CHURCHILL.

Sarnia Man Thanks Such Course Might Be Very Good for Mr. Haney.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—There is a boy in this town by the name of Haney. He went out to make some speeches for the Conservative party, and I think that Meighen should have taken him across his knee and spanked him before he went out, as he said from the platform that he hated King. Meighen told me that he asked him the reason why he said that in his speech. He said the reason was because he hated King and knew that neither Meighen nor King could run the government. Yours very truly,

SAM CHURCHILL.

Why Men Leave.

Stratford Worker Says It Is Necessary To Go Down to a Man Conservative Election Literature.

The Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—It rather amuses me when I read the pointed statements in the Conservative press about young men migrating to the U. S. A. On the face of it it is true, but taking a more fundamental reasoning, one is impressed with the purposely misleading idea, catering for votes.

The reason given for this migration to Uncle Sam's domain is "free trade," when in reality it has but very little to do with free trade. In the first place, under the King government we have not free trade, nor does the King government advocate it. The Conservatives know this, but they like to hoodwink the people into believing that free trade is high tariff, is just what Canada needs. But the working people of Canada need no such thing.

Put a heavy duty on luxuries that the rich can afford to pay for, then such luxuries will be manufactured in Canada; but let us have free trade in food-stuffs that the working man must have, and this would have a tendency to reduce prices and make it easier for the man who is compelled to work for small wages under the grinding despotism of the capitalist system.

Speaking of wages brings me to the point of the cause of so many young Canadians going to the U. S. A. for work, not because there is a lack of work here, but because of the small wages paid by Canadian manufacturers, who are not satisfied with small profits, but must need aim at large profits—aiming at millions.

Henry Ford built up his mammoth industry through small profits, giving the highest wages of any manufacturer to his employees.

Woolworth, operating probably the largest retail chain of stores in the world, made his millions through small profits.

In manufacturing any article there is a certain profit attached to it. This profit is divided as follows: The cost of raw material, the wear and tear of machinery, and the general upkeep of factories, the wages paid to workers and the net profits to capitalists. The profits to capitalists are regulated by the demand for the manufactured article and the wages paid to the producer. This is the real cause of so many young Canadians going to the U. S. A. and not the tariff.

On the other hand, when men are plentiful, such as now, the working man is compelled to work for smaller wages under unavoidable circumstances, thus giving a higher profit to the capitalist. Then the married man generally has to grin and bear it while the young and enterprising single man skips over to Uncle Sam, where he gets bigger wages and better working conditions. This is the real cause of so many young Canadians going to the U. S. A. and not the tariff.

The majority of manufacturers are short-sighted, living in the "now" instead of the future. Where the wage earner does get his share of the profits, such as Henry Ford's and a few others, the manufacturers not only become more popular but more prosperous. Even among merchants, the one who sells the cheapest becomes the most prosperous in the end.

ORTHODOX PRIESTS DENIED EQUAL STATUS WITH SOVIETS

Associated Press Despatch.

Moscow, Oct. 22.—Premier Rykoff told a delegation of orthodox priests and bishops today that he was regretfully unable to act on their recent appeal for an equal civil status with citizens of the soviet state, explaining that granting such rights would require special legislation.

The priests at the Russian Reform church conciliar, which closed last Monday, framed a petition asking for the privilege to vote, to hold government offices, to publish religious literature and to have educational facilities for their children equal to those granted the children of the laboring and peasant classes.

Burlesque Makes Colorful Season's Debut In London

Stolen Sweets Greeted at Grand Theatre With Packed Houses.

CHORUS SPARKLING

Burlesque made a colorful season's debut in London yesterday, when Stolen Sweets opened at the Grand Theatre before packed matinee and evening audiences. If Stolen Sweets heralds the coming of other shows of its class and diversity of entertainment, theatre-goers can rest assured that a weekly treat is in store for them. Stolen Sweets is a sparkling musical revue, presented with a dash of joyfulness by a versatile collection of burlesque artists.

Margie Pennetti is the headliner. This girl, with remarkable powers of mimicry, a sweet appearance, and ability to sing and dance, is outstanding. She leads the show from the commencement and rushes her choruses and second characters through pleasing hours of entertainment to an irresistible finale. And she is supported by an able cast which includes singers and comedians with talent for entertainment.

Stolen Sweets is gorgeously presented. The many scenic changes and variety of costume stamps it as high a class show as any first-rate musical comedy. There is a freshness and gaiety to the chorus of sixteen pretty girls. There is comedy in every skit and turn. Stolen Sweets does not appeal as straight burlesque. It is a musical revue of a style that is a great deal more pleasing.

Charles Marshall and Morris Levine, comedians of the show, pair well together, and in a number of turns which are in reality acts of vaudeville, they display the happy knack of making slapstick an enjoyable spectacle.

Each chorus scene of Stolen Sweets is particularly unique for burlesque, offering a wealth of display and extravagance of presentation. Two stand out above the others, however. The one of a Chinese slave market equals the color and setting of Chu Chin Chow, and the other of a subway station where extreme characters of the world are gathered smacks of rollicking English music halls.

Stolen Sweets, which is to be presented at the Grand Theatre each afternoon and evening for the remainder of the week, reveals all the necessary essentials to popularity, and if its successors are of an equal class, the season's run will be unsurpassed.

RAILWAY MERGER AIDS ST. THOMAS

Pere Marquette President Is Optimistic While Making Annual Inspection.

DISCUSSES GAS CAR

Special to The Advertiser. St. Thomas, Oct. 22.—President and General Manager Frank Alfred of the Pere Marquette railroad, made his eleventh consecutive annual inspection of the Canadian division today. He does not favor the gas-car on this division at this time. Discussing the proposed merger of the P. M. R. and the Nickel Plate system and others, he said: "It takes a long time for these mammoth plans to be worked out. It is possible, however, that a decision may be reached before the end of the year, but new difficulties keep cropping up every day. Such a move, I might say, would be entirely beneficial to the St. Thomas department."

AT THE THEATRES

CAPITOL THEATRE.

Son of His Father.

Based upon fact and photographed on the scene of its actual happening, the film taken from Harold Bell Wright's story, A Son of His Father, starring Bessie Love, Warren Baxter and Raymond Hutton, now showing at the Capitol theatre, is a masterpiece of realism. Depicting faithfully the events narrated by Wright, and with stars well-known to the public as actors, this picture does not disappoint.

The story is a fascinating one, revealing as it does a long, uphill struggle against smugglers, who attempt to gain possession of the ranch, and provides thrills aplenty, mingled with pathos and comedy, not to forget the love interest around which this story is based.

Walter Heirs in Off His Beat, a Capitol comedy, is a real laughter-stirring picture, and Patne Review fill in a bill that would please the most critical.

Music is supplied by the Capitol Little Symphony orchestra.

LOEW'S THEATRE

The Lady Who Lied.

There's quite a difference between such photoplays as The Lady Who Lied, the feature picture at Loew's theatre for the latter part of this week, and most society melodrama. The setting is shaded with medieval romanticism. The big jobs in the play are too creditably handled to make the picture anything but entertaining.

Lewis Stone, ever the restrained, philosophical gentleman of fortune, is the monumental attraction of the drama, which has to do with the elderly son of a wealthy American family, who, having completed an interesting past, seeks the hand of a titled English lady during the carnival of Venice. Of course, conflict has to be provided, and delicate things of the gentleman's past are dug up, an untruthful lady appears on the scene, and there is little satisfaction until a fairly saccharine finish comes.

There are some delightful portions on the vaudeville bill, including a Japanese sort of turn, in which

AIRMAN KILLED AS PLANE FALLS

Pilot Mathews Meets Death at Camp Borden When Machine Crashes To Ground.

ENGINE STALLED

Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, Oct. 22.—Pilot Officer Robert G. C. Matthews, son of Major Robert Matthews, now in Kailshell Montana, met death this afternoon at Camp Borden in a flying accident. Announcement to this effect was made with regret by the department of national defence on receipt of a wireless message advising of Pilot Officer Matthews' death.

From the account received at the department, it appears that Matthews, who was undergoing a course of flying instruction at Camp Borden, was flying solo in an Avro training aeroplane. He was trying a landing test. It is stated, during the course of his qualification for pilot, and when approaching the ground the machine appeared to lose flying speed, stalled and fell. The machine was too close to the ground to allow the pilot to regain control.

Pilot Matthews, it is reported, was instantly killed. The late pilot officer was born at MacLeod, Alberta, on July 17, 1902, and graduated from the Royal Military College in June, 1924. He played on Camp Borden's senior rugby team.

An Adventure of the Great Lakes

By HAROLD TITUS

INSTALLMENT 18.

Haines story had lost conviction for the brothers, and their meeting with John settled them in their opinion that Haines had not told all he knew, or else had told much more than he actually knew.

So the master of the North Star was without support in his ambition to rid the village of the man who had broken in on his courtship of Janet Needham. More the fruit of transitory emotion. The casualness with which John threw him into the water, the utter absence of fear in the man's eyes, the way in which he met the man's wrath with the calmness of a man who would grind his teeth and curse loudly and try to stimulate that race to the point of action again, but he could not.

Night after night he sat on the white boulder of Little Summer and smoked furiously and tried to plan. But things got in the way of his plans: for Goodheart, for one thing; memories, too, memories that fostered doubt and kept crawling up to shake his confidence. Ah, Val Haines had memories!

Those memories kept sleep from him at night, made him prow through the village along the country roads when others slept, and they became so poignant that at times they roused him from his chair at meals and set him cursing the cook and the rest of his crew.

When he rowed over to the island he covered the distance as though something more tangible than memories pursued him, sending his skiff beached in the cove. His lifting of the bass net was more perfunctory than ever now. He would jump out to the skiff and run through the bushes, dropping to his knees beside the white boulder and striking matches to have a good view of the lake about it. Always when no other tracks than his own showed there a sign of relief slipped from his lips.

He came nearer to approaching contentment there than in any other place. Anyone listening would have believed when he talked aloud—for he did talk—that he was conversing with another person. No one was near him, of course, but his words would have yielded that impression for he said things such as these:

"You'll wait, I know you'll wait. You're mine. . . . The very best friend I have. . . . If it weren't for Goodheart you'd be out, by now. . . . You'd come out of your nest. . . . He's being here that's changed. . . . But you'll go to work for her—for me, I mean—before long. . . . I'll promise you that. . . . That's my promise!"

And each night that he left the boulder he would kneel at its north side and pat the ground with his hand, almost as in a gesture of affection or reassurance.

But there was little assurance about the man himself. He was afraid, afraid of shadows and memories and afraid of a man who refused to be frightened.

Twice weekly, when the day's life was in, he wheeled his tug to Escanaba with his fish and the fish netted by the other rigs to start them on their way to market. He was always alone in the tug house on that trip and often took with him only Blackman, his silent, busy engineer.

It was less than a three-hour run for the North Star. They docked, transferred the boxes of iced fish to express trucks, and returned at once, being gone scarcely ever more than six hours on the errand.

But one afternoon there was trouble with the pump and the tug drifted, idly off Corona Shoal until darkness came, while Haines and Blackman worked over the broken-down apparatus. They docked late and the trucks were not waiting for them.

Haines cursed over the delay. He cursed at every little thing that went wrong now. He left the tug, telephoned to the express office, and fumed while he waited for the truck to appear. When it did the driver had no help and to make certain that his shipment would go toward Chicago that night, Haines himself mounted the seat beside the other and went with him to the railway station.

When the work was done and the truck gone toward its garage, the fisherman stepped into the waiting-room of the station on a minor errand. It was warm in there and pleasant after the raw October winds outside and he spread his hands to the stove to dry them from the cold slime accumulated by handling the boxes.

His eyes roved, the walls idly, taking in the Safety First slogans, the warnings against forest fires and other things that are posted in the men's waiting-rooms of Northern railroad stations.

A poster on a bulletin board attracted him. Rather, the one word which he could make out from where he stood caught his attention. The word, printed in heavy black letters, was:

REWARD

After a moment Haines moved closer to the wall, peering at the finger print, and at the prison photograph of the man set in the middle of the poster.

A prison photograph. Front view: profile view—prison numbers across the chest—prison shirt over the broad shoulders.

It was a photograph of Carl Garrison, murderer, escaped convict from Marquette penitentiary.

That type blurred before Val Haines' eyes. He saw nothing but that face, stunted, haggard, hopeless, looking out at him from its background of white paper.

Carl Garrison, the poster said, but the photograph was of John Goodheart.

Haines' pipe, gripped between his teeth, commenced to vibrate. One knee shook. He removed the pipe with an unsteady hand and groped for his coat pocket to put it away.

His gaze held on those melancholy eyes in the photograph as though he were powerless to tear it away. A long breath slipped from him and he backed off a step, lifting one hand toward his face as though to shut out a terrible sight.

The telegraph key in the closed ticket office stuttered. A heavy gust of wind roared in the chimney, and the outer door swung open a bit; then closed with a light thud.

Haines whirled as though to confront an enemy, and swallowed in relief when he saw that no one had entered. He stared about the room and then, striding to the door, drew it open and half ran from the building.

For blocks he walked, keeping to side streets, in the breeze, hands crossed over his belly. Whenever a car passed him he averted his face from its lights; when ever he saw other pedestrians he turned off to another street.

His heart raced and faltered and sped on. His pace was unsteady, his eyes in the photograph as though he were powerless to tear it away. A long breath slipped from him and he backed off a step, lifting one hand toward his face as though to shut out a terrible sight.

And of a sudden, on a street in intersection, under the bright light, with people approaching him he stopped and laughed. Laughed! He laughed harshly, and the corner of his mouth broke through his conversation short and staccato. He did not seem to notice.

"What's the joke?" one of them asked, grinning.

"Joke?" Haines asked, without even looking at him, and laughed again. "It's me!"

The men went on, chuckling to one another, thinking that such actions could only be symptoms of stimulant. They were not far wrong. An amazing thought was stimulating Val Haines. His dismay was gone, his chagrin was dissipated; the irritability that had been in him for weeks slipped away and this fright which had made him flee the depot was absorbed. He was happy—happy in a savage manner.

He buttoned his coat, thrust his hands into its pockets, turned, and took his way back through the town, working across to Ludington street.

The wide thoroughfare was brightly lighted. People came and went in numbers and Haines moved with them, chin high, smiling. He was like a man who sees some long-sought end within his reach.

Across the way a policeman sauntered and the smile went from the fisherman's lips. His gray eyes flickered with their malevolent light and he cut across toward the office.

His mind was made up—for a moment. Halfway to the opposite curb he hesitated, as his determination wavered. Then he went on, taking a deep breath.

He passed the officer with a casual nod and, when a few paces beyond, muttered to himself:

"Not yet, By God, not yet!"

He turned and retraced the way he had taken in his flight from the station. The building was still deserted although the agent had shoved up the glazed window of the ticket office. Voices came to him from the women's waiting-room and in the men's a lone youth walked aimlessly around. Others were on the platform. One followed Haines into the room.

He tried to appear to be a casual waiter for the train's arrival, but his eyes persisted in straying toward the reward poster. The lad whom he had found in the room gazed at it and read what Haines had written there, and Haines' heart rapped his ribs as he watched the boy. He felt relief when the youth turned away, unimpressed. Faintly the whistle of a locomotive came to his ears. Feet shuffled on the floor, the doors opened. . . . A bell changed, its sound coming nearer and clearer. The locomotive slid past the station, fire streaming from the tires of its drive wheels. . . . He was alone in the room.

The agent's voice, talking into a telephone transmitter. . . . A quick look. . . . The man's back was toward the open ticket window. One step and he was within reach of the bulletin board; one sweep of his arm and the poster was torn from the wall to reveal the news that John Goodheart was Carl Garrison and had no right to be moving about among free men. He thrust it into the front of his shirt. Not into a pocket. He treasured it too highly for that. He tucked it in against his body, against his hot skin.

Haines hastened out through the disembarking passengers and the platform crowd. He walked swiftly down to the harbor front and boarded his tug. Blackman was waiting for him and cast off the lines. Without a word Haines entered the pilot house, rang for speed ahead, spun the wheel, and piloted his craft out from beneath the shadow of the ore dock, out into the channel, past the light-house with its flashing red eye, and down Little Bay de Noc toward Green Bay and the way home.

Settled on his course he laughed, here alone with no light save the faint reflection from the binnacle. He filled his pipe and fired the tobacco with great attention to detail, such as a man will give in whose heart is a pronounced sense of well-being.

After a time he looked out on the deck, first on the port side, then on the starboard, but Blackman was not to be seen; he was down in the little fire, between boiler and engine.

Val Haines was alone with his secret and his smile, which no longer pursued him; memories at which he could laugh now.

He drew the poster from his breast and smoothed it carefully, holding it close to the compass that he might see.

He read every word that was printed on it, but he did not look at the face of Carl Garrison until he was finished. When he did he swallowed sharply and folded it carefully, holding it by his heart which beat a trifle rapidly.

"Hell, and I was afraid!" he said to himself. "Afraid! . . . After all these weeks! . . . And when I've got him—got him—in my hand. . . . That!" He gripped his fingers into a tight fist. "To squeeze—to squeeze! To squeeze the breath out of his body and the—the high-and-mighty—"

JANISSE FREED ON ALL COUNTS

Jury Finds Husband of Woman Facing Shooting Charge Is Innocent.

Canadian Press Despatch. Windsor, Oct. 22.—Arthur Janisse, accused of murder on three counts, was acquitted late this afternoon in the supreme court, Sandwich, after the jury had deliberated just eighteen minutes. His wife, Ruth A. Janisse, was tried on a similar charge last week, the charge being reduced to manslaughter. She will come up for sentence, it is expected, the first of next week. The two were arrested following the shooting of Clayton McMullin, young battery service station proprietor, on Aug. 12.

The counts against Janisse were: (1) murdering Clayton McMullin, of poisoning Ruth Janisse to murder, and of harboring and maintaining her after the murder, knowing it to have been committed.

Who it seemed the prisoner for "foolishness." Mr. Justice Grant's charge was equivalent to an order to the jury, to acquit the accused.

Coming to discussion of the second count, of inciting his wife to commit the murder, the court reviewed the evidence from the time Janisse and McMullin and his wife at the first of this year.

From that time on, "the court said, "in the words of defence counsel, that man must have suffered the torment of hell. His actions from that point on are incomprehensible to me. I cannot believe I could have done what he did, or stood for what he stood. That he did so, however, is uncontroverted evidence, and we must believe it. Perhaps he has more Christianity than I have; at any rate these are the things he did."

"If there was any evidence before us that Janisse said 'I'll get McMullin, or I'll get even with McMullin, or anything of that nature, my charge would be vastly different. But there is no evidence that he ever expressed such feelings to anyone. The evidence is before us, and we must accept it, no matter what we suspect."

Pointing out that no evidence was introduced to show that Janisse knew his wife had the revolver, the court continued to review the events of the night of Aug. 12.

"In my judgment he did wrong not to take his wife home on that night," the court said. "But he did nothing for which we can convict him. I think the man was foolish. I think he was a fool to allow his wife to risk burning her fingers again. But we cannot convict him for being foolish. He was weak, and occasionally he was weak results in effects as bad as if one were criminal, but we cannot convict a man for being weak."

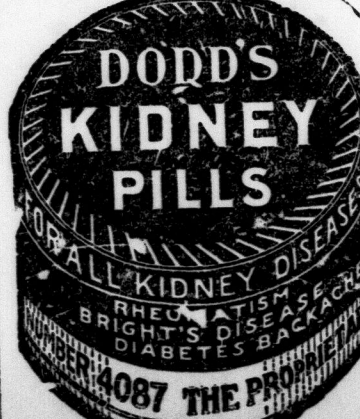

Have No Evidence. "I must say to you," the court continued, "frankly and fairly, that we have no evidence Arthur Janisse had any knowledge or idea his wife was following McMullin for the purpose of shooting him."

"We may have our suspicions of what Janisse knew and thought, but we cannot hang a man on suspicion, and we cannot convict a man on suspicion. Whatever your suspicions and my suspicions may be, there is no evidence here on which you can convict him of being an accessory, aids or abets."

"Janisse was a fool, but you cannot convict a man for being a fool before the fact, or a good thing for most of us. If you could our jails would be full."

"If you have a reasonable doubt," the court concluded, "and I think you have occasion for reasonable doubt that Janisse knew what his wife intended to do, it is your duty to bring in a verdict of not guilty."

Following the charge, Mr. Frapp requested that the jury be instructed that they might draw whatever inference they chose of the accused's

FRANCE WILL FACE FIGHT NEXT WEEK

Financial Crisis Expected To Reach Climax at Opening of Parliament.

Associated Press Despatch. Paris, Oct. 22.—The financial crisis in France is expected to come to a head with the reopening of parliament next week, when M. Caillaux, the finance minister, will introduce measures by which he hopes to provide for every eventuality, including the payment of war debts. It will then be decided whether socialist policies shall be introduced into the French fiscal system.

The socialist group in the chamber of deputies is determined to take an aggressive attitude, and has notified the government that it will insist upon a discussion of interpellations on the financial situation before all other questions.

The socialists will demand a capital levy to balance the budget and provide a fund for the payment of France's debts to the exclusion of further inflation or increased taxation.

M. Caillaux's measures will probably involve a further limited inflation, with a sinking fund to retire new bills, and increased taxation. The political situation arising from the conflict of the opposing programs of the government and part of its parliamentary majority is so complex that no political experts risk forecast of the outcome.

The uncertainty as to the future gives rise to alarming rumors, but the French nation as a whole, with undisturbed equanimity, watches the franc tumble with increasing rapidity, and listens to the threatening reports of a capital levy, inflation, and a possible cut of from 30 to 50 per cent in the interest on government bonds without a trace of financial stampede. This is the saving feature of the situation, and the bourse today, despite the weakness of the franc, was firm.

conduct apart from the evidence before the court.

Pointing out that no evidence was introduced to show that Janisse knew his wife had the revolver, the court continued to review the events of the night of Aug. 12.

"In my judgment he did wrong not to take his wife home on that night," the court said. "But he did nothing for which we can convict him. I think the man was foolish. I think he was a fool to allow his wife to risk burning her fingers again. But we cannot convict him for being foolish. He was weak, and occasionally he was weak results in effects as bad as if one were criminal, but we cannot convict a man for being weak."

Have No Evidence. "I must say to you," the court continued, "frankly and fairly, that we have no evidence Arthur Janisse had any knowledge or idea his wife was following McMullin for the purpose of shooting him."

"We may have our suspicions of what Janisse knew and thought, but we cannot hang a man on suspicion, and we cannot convict a man on suspicion. Whatever your suspicions and my suspicions may be, there is no evidence here on which you can convict him of being an accessory, aids or abets."

"Janisse was a fool, but you cannot convict a man for being a fool before the fact, or a good thing for most of us. If you could our jails would be full."

"If you have a reasonable doubt," the court concluded, "and I think you have occasion for reasonable doubt that Janisse knew what his wife intended to do, it is your duty to bring in a verdict of not guilty."

Following the charge, Mr. Frapp requested that the jury be instructed that they might draw whatever inference they chose of the accused's

WOMEN and THE HOME

MRS. C. A. STEWART BELIEVES IN VOTE

Wife of Minister of Interior
"Does Her Bit" in Political Arena.

Mrs. Charles A. Stewart, wife of the minister of the interior, who is taking an active part in her husband's campaign in West Edmonton, was not "born to politics," like some others of the wives of cabinet ministers, but ever since her husband got into politics she has "done her bit" to help him along in his career. She has pronounced views as to the place of women in politics. One day last winter she was at a gathering in Ottawa when the conversation turned upon the subject.

One lady present (the wife of a Conservative) declared:

"I think it would be better for women to let politics alone. If they don't vote, at least they don't do any harm."

To which Mrs. Stewart quickly rejoined:

"Would you call it a day well spent if you sat down in the morning and folded your hands and in the evening said: 'Well, I haven't done anything, but at least I haven't done any harm?'"

Nobody was left in doubt concerning her views as regards the proper use of the ballot by women. Mrs. Stewart is, by the way, a native of Midhurst, Simcoe county, and has twice visited her childhood home since the fortunes of politics took her and her husband to Ottawa.

MRS. CALVERT SPEAKS TO TECUMSEH MOTHERS

Members Hold One of Finest Meetings—Entertain Teachers of School.

The best and largest meeting ever held by the Tecumseh avenue mothers' club was held last evening in the school, with the president, Mrs. J. F. Calvert, presiding.

The feature of the evening was an address by the president on her attractive summer home in Algonquin park, which was illustrated with many fine views of the cottage and surrounding territory, while she told of the birds, flowers and wild animals to be seen there at all times of the year.

Entertain Teachers.

The evening was also the occasion of the entertainment of the teachers of the school by the mothers. A reading was given by Miss Jean Metcalf, and Miss Elsie Kerr, who was privileged to spend some time with Mrs. Calvert at her summer home during the holiday months, gave a piano number.

During the meeting it was announced that the girls of the domestic science department of the school were going to have a sale of home-cooking on Nov. 6 to raise funds for the screen and lantern being obtained for use at the Tecumseh avenue school. Another aid to this aim will be the tea for which Mrs. E. Pewes, McClary avenue, is loaning her home on Nov. 12, when the children in her district will entertain.

President Speaks.

Mrs. Turner, president of the London Union mothers' club, who had just returned from Toronto, brought a message from the meeting of the Home and School federation there on "International Thinking." J. T. Parkinson, principal of the school, took the opportunity last evening to introduce the new assistant principal, S. A. Young, to the mothers.

At the conclusion of the evening a social time was enjoyed. The hall was most attractive with Halloween decorations.

Peter Starts Tour of Investigation To Find Where Ruddy Mouse Lives

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

It really was most unkind of Ruddy the Red-Backed Mouse, to invite Peter Rabbit to call on him at his home and then say that he was going home that very minute and actually disappear right in front of Peter's eyes. But this is what he did. Yes, sir, he did so. It seemed to Peter that he just vanished in the most mysterious manner. One instant he was sitting there in front of Peter, talking to him, and the next instant he had disappeared. You see, with that little red coat of his it was a very easy matter for Ruddy to disappear amongst the red leaves on the ground. He just slipped in amongst them and then kept perfectly still.

"Hold on, Ruddy! Wait a minute!" cried Peter. "Wait a minute and I'll come and make that call right now."

Ruddy sat perfectly still and kept perfectly still, although down inside he was chuckling. Of course it was a noiseless chuckle. He could see Peter staring eagerly in this way and that way and every way. Peter looked right at Ruddy without seeing him, and Ruddy wanted to laugh right out. Finally Peter began to hunt all about. Once he sat down back to Ruddy so close that Ruddy could have pulled the long white hairs in Peter's funny short tail. But he did nothing of the kind and presently Peter gave up. That is, he gave up hunting for Ruddy and started to hunt for Ruddy's home.

When Peter is by himself he sometimes talks to himself. There are many people like Peter in this respect. "It's a queer thing," said Peter, "that Ruddy's home isn't far from here. Anyone with such short legs isn't likely to travel very far. I ought to be able to find his home without any difficulty at all. He may be smart in hiding himself, but I don't believe he can hide his home so that I can't find it. I'll hunt around a bit."

It was right then that Peter discovered that he didn't know where to look. More than once he had seen Ruddy sitting in a stump. This means, of course, that Ruddy could climb. Peter thought of Whitefoot the Wood Mouse and how Whitefoot sometimes hid his home in a dead tree. Could it be that Ruddy did the same thing? On the other hand Ruddy's nearest cousin, Danny Meadow Mouse, seldom did much climbing and nearly always built his home in the ground, or sometimes in the ground. Could it be that Ruddy did as Danny did? It was right then that Peter realized that he didn't know where to look.

He began by looking in all the stumps and dead trees for holes. He found several, but he had no way of

ROYAL CIRCLE GIVES EXCELLENT CONCERT

Local Artists Delight Audience at Centennial United Church.

One of the very finest concerts ever given in the Centennial United church was presented last evening under the auspices of the Royal Circle class of the Sunday school, of which Mrs. Joseph Calkins is the teacher and Miss Eva Reid the president.

The artists of the evening were Miss Rose Tuck, contralto; Harry Henderson, tenor; Douglas Hoover, baritone; Miss Isabel Mortimer, reader; Miss Dorothy Cahill, violinist, and the Misses Edythe Belmont and Gladys Udy, who rendered piano duets.

From the opening selection right through the program to the finale the interest of the audience was held. They responded to the songs of the soloists with much enthusiasm and were held in wonderment with the violin selections. Miss Mortimer charmed with her readings and caused many a hearty laugh.

The pianists excelled themselves for the occasion. Miss Udy was the accompanist of the evening as well.

An outstanding delight of the program was the Sunday school orchestra under the direction of Gordon Mills. With much harmony they played many favorite numbers and received in return a great deal of applause, as did the other artists of the evening.

Rev. Hazen, pastor of the church, acted as chairman.

Following the concert, which was presented in a room where palms and mums made an effective background, the entertainers of the evening were delighted to be entertained by the class to a social time and dainty refreshments.

The regular monthly meeting of the Birrw. A. was held recently at the rectory with a good attendance. Miss A. Scott, the president, occupied the chair. The study book, "The Church of Christ," introduced by Mrs. Shore proved interesting to all. A portion of it is to be taken up at each meeting.

The autograph quilt not being finished as soon as expected, nothing definitely was decided in regard to the sale of it. The treasurer gave her report and also showed samples of W. A. Christmas cards, for which she received a number of orders. At the conclusion of the meeting the hostess served a dainty lunch and a pleasant time was spent in social intercourse. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. M. Hoyle.

KERWOOD W. M. S.

Kerwood, Oct. 22.—The October meeting of the W. M. S. of the United church was held recently at the home of Mrs. J. H. Richardson with about 20 present. The president, Mrs. Brunt, opened the meeting, and all repeated the apostles' creed. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Nichols, and two of the Heralds responded with interesting clippings.

The devotional leaflet was read by Mrs. George Johnson, and Miss Irene Eastbrooke favored with a beautiful solo.

Mrs. J. H. Richardson then introduced the new study book, "Building With India." She also gave a short sketch of the work of the W. M. S. Mrs. J. J. Earley gave the closing prayer. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Earl McLean, the meeting to be an open one.

Thornton Has Changed C.N.R. Deficit To Surplus—Let Him Finish His Job

THORNTON HAS CHANGED DEFICIT TO A SURPLUS IN OUR NATIONAL LINES

Railway Deficit For 1922 Was $11,543,000—In 1922 There Was Surplus of $2,886,000; In 1923 a Surplus of $20,430,000, and in 1924 a Surplus of $17,244,000.

CANADA HAS CUT COSTS—BOOSTED REVENUE

The railway problem of Canada has been taken hold of with vigor and energy. What was needed most was a competent man to put in charge of all the government railways and to get rid of three or four organizations which were operating them during the Conservative regime.

To select any man from one of the old organizations to run the consolidated railway would have been a mistake. The government secured Sir Henry Thornton, the most outstanding man available. During the two or three years he has been in charge of the Canadian National Railways he has justified his appointment beyond all question.

The year ending December 31st, 1921, the last of the Meighen administration, there was a net deficit from railway operations of all lines now embraced in the Canadian National system amounting to $11,543,000.

Deficit Turned to Surplus.

For 1922, the first year of the King administration, the deficit of the preceding year had been changed to a surplus of $2,886,000. Sir Henry Thornton had only been appointed as chief executive in October, 1922; hence the railways could scarcely be expected to show the fruits of his management in the short time elapsing before the close of that year.

The year 1923, the first whole year of Sir Henry Thornton's management, operating surplus increased to $20,430,000, bettering the operating conditions of the previous year by $17,543,000, and bettering the operating conditions of the year 1921, the last of the Conservative regime, by $31,974,226.17.

For 1924 the surplus of revenue over expenses amounted to $17,244,000.

The decrease of operating revenue in 1924, as compared with 1923, was explained to a considerable extent by the decrease of crop movement in 1924, compared with 1923, the year of the bumper crop in the west.

Expenses Cut $14,000,000.

A noteworthy feature of the 1924 annual statement of the Canadian National Railway, presented to Parliament by Mr. Hon. Geo. P. Graham, was the fact that operating expenses had dropped from $32,794,835.53 to $18,794,835.53. An improvement of $14,000,000.

It must be kept in mind the surpluses of operating revenue over expenses have been produced after substantial reductions in freight rates.

The government and the government railway alike are bent upon reducing operating expenses. At the last session of parliament, ten million dollars would be saved next year by cutting out unnecessary expenses of every kind. The estimates for the railway for the current fiscal year were reduced by $17,500,000.

Saved $2,000,000 in Interest

Important saving in interest charges has been made during the past year as the result of successful refunding transactions. Loans floated in New York for the Canadian National Railways, and the refunding of maturing Victory Loans have enabled a saving in interest of $2,643,264.92 a year.

The controllable expenditures of the government for the current fiscal year will be five per cent less than they were for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1925. The Mackenzie King government set its face like flint against all extravagance.

It believes that all taxation over and above what is needed for economic administration is but robbery of the people. The services of no less than 4,455 persons in the public service in various departments have been dispensed with. This means more work for those who are retained, and it means a saving of five million dollars to the people of Canada.

NO ELECTION ADVICE AT CATHOLIC MASSES HERE

"I don't consider it particularly significant" was the way in which Mr. Rev. M. J. Brady, pastor of St. Mary's church, this morning commented upon the despatch from Montreal to the effect that at all masses in the Catholic churches throughout Canada this Sunday exhortations will be made to the people to refrain from party and all dishonest acts in the forthcoming federal election.

"That's the rule in the Catholic church at all times," Monsignor Brady declared. "Our people know that party is a sin at any time, and they don't need any additional advice along this line on special occasions such as elections."

FRANCE WILL NEGOTIATE STATE RAILWAY BONDS

Associated Press Despatch, Paris, Oct. 22.—The official Journal publishes a decree authorizing the minister of finance to negotiate one million six per cent bonds of a face value of 500 francs each. The bonds will be redeemable only one year prior to 1932 and the price conditions of the issue will be announced at an early date. The proceeds will be utilized for state railway needs.

who has given Canada an operating surplus on her national railways instead of an annual deficit. Operating costs have been cut to the bone. Mr. Meighen says he would step in "with a strong hand."

TWISTING THE TRUTH

Real Causes of Depression Were Beyond Government's Control — Conservatives Are Condemning Their Own Policy of 1921.

(Manitoba Free Press.)

Governments have a habit of claiming credits for all the prosperity that comes to the country, and opposition is just as sure to place upon the government the responsibility and blame for bad times and all their unfortunate results. The opposition in Canada has had a rare opportunity in the last four years on account of the depression and the exodus to the United States, and these have been capitalized to the limit for the sake of pressing upon the country the great Conservative nostrum of high protection.

The deflation period had struck Canada, and the consequent depression had well set in while the Meighen government was still in office, and it continued after the King government came in at the end of 1921. That depression was bound to come, regardless of what either government might have done. The prices for farm products had fallen heavily, and general business and financial institutions were badly hit. Factories were closed both because the industrial equipment of the country had outgrown its needs and because the purchasing power of the farmers, who form a large proportion of the population, had been greatly diminished.

Everybody realized that these were the actual causes of the country's troubles. But the Conservative party, during whose regime the slump had come and who appealed to the people in 1921, not on a policy of higher protection, but on approximately the same policy as that which the King government maintained, has had no compunction about declaring that this tariff policy is the main cause of the unfortunate conditions which have existed since they left office.

Who Is the Tinkerer?

The local Conservative paper says: "Any further tariff tinkering would be ruinous to the industries of London and Western Ontario."

In 1911, Mr. Meighen urged reduction of the tariff. In 1920 he advocated moderation and condemned high tariff as "unsound in principle." In 1925, he wants to change all the tariff by making it as high as possible.

What is tariff tinkering anyway? And what is stability?

Only Five Years Ago Mr. Meighen Condemned The Higher Tariff Plan He Now Is Preaching

"We can never have a high tariff in Canada. In the first place a high tariff is unsound in principle in that it tends to eliminate one of the factors of competition, namely, foreign goods."

Who spoke these words? Mr. Forke, leader of the Progressives? Premier King? Hon. Mr. Drury? No. These are the words of Hon. Mr. Meighen. He spoke them in parliament in 1920 when he was premier of Canada.

Just five years ago Mr. Meighen said "a high tariff is unsound, and his reason was that a high tariff eliminates competition. In other words it creates a monopoly, and monopoly means high prices."

Today Mr. Meighen wants to raise the tariff as high as possible. He says Canada will be ruined if the tariff is not raised. He wants to force a policy which he himself has described as "unsound in principle."

THEY FACE THE FACTS OUT THERE

Western Canada Not Fooled by Present Propaganda—Want Moderate Tariff For Basic Industries.

(Manitoba Free Press.)

An impartial examination of the real causes of the troubles through which the country has been passing reveals the sham and camouflage of the propaganda for higher protection.

When the so-called "national policy" was adopted in 1879 it had been claimed for it that it would stop the emigration to the United States, and bring permanent prosperity to this country. But the exodus continued at a very heavy and discouraging rate, and the country was not saved from trade depression, that of the early nineties being particularly severe.

And now, while the Conservative party declares that the only thing that will prevent national bankruptcy or the absorption of Canada by the United States is the raising of the tariff wall, the country is steadily improving its position without this specific and even in the face of some reductions in the tariff. It must be very disconcerting to the Conservatives, but it should be apparent to Canadians in general that what is needed is a moderate tariff and concentrated efforts to stimulate immigration and development of the basic industries, which a higher tariff certainly would not do.

E. S. LITTLE ATTACKS 'FRIGHT' CAMPAIGN

Tells Perrin Employees a Vote For Liberals Will Not Endanger Jobs.

London's Liberal candidate, E. S. Little, was given a splendid reception at the D. S. Perrin plant at noon today. The dining-room was full of employees. Mr. Little was introduced by John Revans, who stated that the Liberal candidate had needed little introduction, being well-known because of his many years in the city council and as mayor. Mr. Little's address was applauded at several points.

He hoped that all were interested in politics. He asked his audience not to be frightened by the Conservative billboards. "For all over this country," he said, "an attempt is being made to tell you that you will lose your jobs if you vote for the government. If you vote for the Liberals, ladies and gentlemen, you will be voting for a continuation of the prosperity which has started and is continuing during the regime of the Liberal government. There can be no doubt in the minds of anyone or in the minds of the employees of the Perrin Company, that prosperous times have set in. My own industries are working overtime, and I understand that the same conditions apply here. Do not let yourselves be frightened or deceived. After a war hard times may be expected, as anyone who knows anything about history realizes. Those poor times have nearly passed out. Business which was necessarily changed during the war has readjusted itself. In London there are just as many manufacturers supporting the government as there are opposing it."

Mr. Little, reviewing the history of the government in the last four years, showed that it reduced taxes, cut the cost of living. The value of the dollar had returned. He pointed to his own municipal record as having been endorsed by the voters of the city by increasing his vote every time he ran for public office.

Mr. Little promised to be just as active at Ottawa as in municipal affairs, said Mr. Little. "There isn't the slightest doubt that Mr. King will form the next government. The Conservatives can't hope for a majority. Mr. King will be prime minister, and I am asking you to send him a supporter from London rather than a man who will sit in opposition. I think I can get greater recognition for London if elected."

Mr. Meighen Has Changed Three Times In 15 Years From Low Tariff to High

In 1911 He Urged Reduction—In 1920 He Said High Tariff Impossible and Wanted "Moderate Protection"—In 1925 His Plan Is General Increase—Is This Stability?

Political supporters of Hon. Arthur Meighen represent him to the public as the man with the clear-cut policy which never changes. He stands four-square, they say, on the grand old policy of forty years ago—high protection—and from it he never wavers.

In building up this legend for the public, no agent has been more active in repeating its time-honored phrases than the local Conservative paper, and the mantle of determined purpose which it flings over Mr. Meighen includes in its ample fold Mr. J. F. White of London.

The facts, however, are quite different.

MR. MEIGHEN HAS ADVOCATED THREE TARIFFS. The facts are that Mr. Meighen has jumped around in his tariff ideas to cover every form of policy. He has favored reduction at one time, moderation at another, higher tariffs at another. He at present is urging a "higher and higher" protection, but from his past record he is quite likely to urge something else a year from now.

WANTED REDUCED TARIFF IN 1911.

In January, 1910, Mr. Meighen, then in opposition at Ottawa, wanted the duty on agricultural implements reduced. He went so far as to move a resolution to that effect. You will find it on page 1915 of the Canadian Hansard for the session of 1910-11, the date being January 18, 1911. This was Mr. Meighen's resolution:

"That in the opinion of this house a reduction on the duties on agricultural implements is now due to the agriculturists of Canada, and is in just accord with the true ends of a protective tariff."

Mr. Meighen's remarks in support of his resolution make interesting reading in view of his public addresses today when he is saying that a reduction in the duty does not mean lower prices in Canada.

This is what Mr. Meighen said in the house of commons in January, 1911, when sitting as member for Portage la Prairie:

"Now, sir, what are the manufacturers of agricultural implements enabled to do? They are able, under this tariff, to exact a higher price than they could exact if the tariff were lower. I do not believe it will materially, and I think it will render some relief to the farmers of the west, many of whom, notwithstanding any statements that have been made here, are struggling between success and failure every hour. It will afford some relief to them and I believe it is the bounden duty of the government to so afford it."

That is very interesting reading in view of Mr. Meighen's statements at Winnipeg three weeks ago that lower duties do not mean lower prices to the consumer. Compare what Mr. Meighen said in 1911 with what he is saying in 1925 and draw your own conclusions as to the ruggedness of the rock of his stability.

WANTED "MODERATE PROTECTION" IN 1920.

That was Mr. Meighen in 1911 when in opposition, when he was anxious to help the western farmer by a lower duty on the implements of production. By 1920 Mr. Meighen had veered around to where he was telling the house of commons that he was for "moderate protection." He was in power then. This is what he was saying:

"We can never have a high tariff in Canada. In the first place a high tariff is unsound in principle in that it tends to eliminate one of the factors of competition, namely, foreign goods." That was Mr. Meighen in 1920. What about 1925? Mr. Meighen is now the leader of a party that wants to put up the tariff brick for brick with the leader of the United States, which has the highest tariff in the world. If that isn't going to be a high tariff we would like to know what his idea of a high tariff is. And yet in 1920 Mr. Meighen was saying that Canada could never have a high tariff.

Mr. Meighen may be perfectly honest; he has a perfect right to change his mind. But he should be careful about hurling charges of shifting and wobbling at others. He has been pretty well around the circle himself. Is Mr. Meighen prepared to argue that what he said was good for the west in 1911 isn't good for the west today? And when are we to believe him? Are we to believe him? Are we to believe him in 1911 when he said that a high duty enabled the manufacturers to exact a higher price, or are we to believe him in 1925 when he says that lower duties do not mean lower prices to the consumers?

MEIGHEN WANTS TO CHANGE NOW.

The favorite argument of the local Conservative paper is that Mr. Meighen will give tariff stability. Is changing the tariff to make it higher now stability? Is reduction in 1910, moderation in 1920, and increase in 1925, now stability? Is there any way of getting tariff stability except a sample of stability? Is there any way of getting tariff stability except through the non-political tariff board which the Prime Minister proposes?

Mr. White, the Conservative candidate in London, does not represent Mr. Meighen. His desire is to change the tariff. He wants to make it higher. And he is following a leader who has changed his course on the tariff from one extreme to the other, three times in 15 years.

ONLY ONE POLICY FOR STABILITY.

Mr. E. S. Little, in supporting the Prime Minister, represents the only sensible kind of tariff stability—continuance of present moderation and scientific survey by a tariff board. And it is the only kind of tariff policy which will serve the needs of all nine provinces and safeguard the confederation of Canada.

THE TARIFF BOARD TO GIVE FAIR PLAY

Would Stop Meaningless Discussion of Free Trade and High Tariff, Both of Which Are Impossible—Non-Political Board Would Mean Stability, Fair Protection, Fair Prices and Fair Wages.

By JOHN LEWIS.

The establishment of an advisory board is one of the most important measures relating to the tariff ever introduced in Canada and its influence on future tariff legislation is well worthy of consideration.

The tariff has been a bone of contention in Canada for many years, and especially since the agitation for higher protection under the name of the National Policy began some half a century ago. On one side there have been used free trade arguments, on the other arguments for a tariff higher than Haman's gallowes. In office, neither party has gone to the extremes represented by the more eager controversialists. There has been an element of unreality in the debate. This has been due, not so much to insincerity as to the force of habit and tradition, and the human love of argumentative strife, which is observed not only in politics but in religion. When ministers were faced with the business of framing tariffs, they found themselves forced to compromise—a word of sinister meaning with some people, but not necessarily involving any immoral departure from principle.

Free Trade or High Tariff Impossible

We have been told so often that free trade is not possible in Canada, that it is needless to dwell upon that point. High protectionists are not so willing to admit that their policy is not workable in Canada, yet in office that is recognized by Conservatives. A notable illustration of this was given in 1921, when unemployment was so bad that a resolution was moved in the house of commons declaring that immigration ought to be suspended. Mr. Meighen and Mr. Hocken, both Conservatives, dwelt upon the depression in words that have been so often quoted during this campaign. But the remedy of a higher tariff was not applied or even proposed by Mr. Meighen or the minister of finance, Sir Henry Drayton. In fact Mr. Meighen during the previous session declared that a higher tariff was impossible. Sir Henry Drayton did nothing to stem the tide of imports, which in 1920-21 reached the enormous total of 1,249 million dollars. Now he talks of cutting off some seven-ninths of our imports. This is the distinction between talk out of office and practice in office. The thing he talks of cannot be done. The tariff must be moderate, not only because of the needs of revenue, but because of the varying conditions of different parts of Canada.

Board Will Give Information.

The advisory board may have the effect of shutting off a certain amount of controversial "hot air" about the tariff. Moreover, it will permit of a collection of facts about industrial conditions, instead of wild campaign talk. A minister of finance will have at his command a body of information, systematically arranged and analyzed. In the past he has been pestered by interests clamoring for special favors. If strong, he might resist these, but he might not have under his eye the information necessary to meet their arguments. In future he will be much more thoroughly informed.

Would Check Unfair Wages.

There is no sufficient check upon combines and extortion. There is no sufficient check upon sweating or other unfair conditions of labor. The advisory board might do much to strengthen such safeguards as exist. When a plea is presented for the increase or maintenance of a tariff duty, inquiry should be made as to whether the industry concerned is really beneficial to Canada, whether the manufacturer is really keeping faith. How many people does he employ? What are the labor conditions? What kind of goods does he produce, and at what prices? Employment of labor is the argument put forward for protection, and the extent of employment and the wage bill are the tests showing how far the argument holds good in any particular case.

Give Stability to Industry.

No manufacturer who is content with fair profits and who is fair to his employees and the consuming public need fear the investigation. Besides, it will give an element of stability to industry which does not now exist. Such changes as would be based upon scientific observation of political conditions, rather than upon violent agitation. The advisory board is a new departure, and much will depend upon the manner in which the idea is developed. But it has possibilities of great usefulness.

INCREASE OF FIFTY PER CENT SEEN BY CHAIN STORE HEAD

Metropolitan Business Executive Reports Remarkable Reversal in Smallware Trade.

BUSINESS IS GROWING

The Metropolitan Smallwares store in London will finish the year with a fifty per cent or even larger business increase over 1924.

This compelling indication of prosperity in Western Ontario was given by the Advertiser today by Walter P. Zeller, general manager of the Metropolitan Stores, Limited, of Canada. Trade in smallwares is considered a fair barometer of general conditions, and according to the general manager of the Metropolitan Stores have never been so healthy a success as they have in the past year. And business is still increasing.

Nine in Western Ontario. Nine of the eleven stores on the Canadian chain are in Western Ontario. Comparing 1925 records with those for the first ten months of 1924, Mr. Zeller estimates that 1925 will show a gain of SIXTY PER CENT over 1924.

When the fact is considered that the former company was taken over at an almost bankrupt level in 1922, the reversal is extraordinary in the smallwares trade, the general manager asserts.

Two factors have brought the Canadian company to its present height of success, Mr. Zeller says, and each share of the success has been made by the Metropolitan Stores have made the difference. The first factor was the success in the past two years that they have been conducive to prosperity. Coupled with this social policy of the company, the policy of smallwares store chain.

There is no question about times being good. Mr. Zeller declares that, although the smallwares trade doesn't fluctuate as much as the department store or specialty shop businesses, we feel depression periods acutely. In the London store, but it also holds for the eleven stores as a whole. Our policy country.

DENMARK REFUSES TO GIVE REDS CHURCH

Danish Supreme Court Rules Against Allowing Bolsheviks' Claim.

Associated Press Despatch, Copenhagen, Oct. 22.—An if in answer to the church of the aged, a member of the Russian, Maria Fedorovna, mother of Czar Nicholas II, and others of the czarist court, the Danish supreme court yesterday reversed a lower court's decision which had ruled that the beautiful Russian church in Copenhagen, the church of the Soviet state, the supreme court disallowed the claim of the bolshevik envoy to possession of the church and its adjoining priory and dwellings.

The dispute has long been agitating the distinguished colony of czarist refugees in Copenhagen. The dowager empress has spent hours on her knees in the church praying for the congregation's right to retain its place of worship.

There was a touching scene when the president of the supreme court announced his decision. Tears streamed down the faces of veterans of the old regime, like the former minister, Baron Meyendorff, who told the correspondent "We are exceedingly happy that God has heard our prayers and not delivered his church to anti-Christ."

What Makes Him Change?

In 1911, Mr. Meighen stated in parliament: "A reduction on the duties on agricultural implements is now due the agriculturists of Canada."

This is the policy of the prime minister, but Mr. Meighen now says it has ruined Canada.

Fenton Shows Attack Was Made Without Foundation—Is Surprised at Tactics.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Correspondent.

Ingersoll, Oct. 22.—The South Oxford nomination meeting held at Ingersoll this afternoon produced one of the most amazing situations in the political history of South Oxford, when the sitting member, Donald Tillenburgh, the returning officer of allowing registrars to pad the lists with illegal names by his consent. The accusation came at the end of a speech by Mr. Sutherland, where considerable heckling was present, which seemed to make the speaker very nervous, but the accusation was promptly met by Mr. Denton.

Mr. Denton went to the platform and declared that he was surprised that Mr. Sutherland would stoop to such low tactics in an effort to win an election, and proved that the whole accusation was mere political propaganda.

Mr. Sutherland in his speech also stated that a certain registrar's office was closed nine hours before the time subscribed by the act. Mr. Denton ably proved that the said office remained open for three hours past the allotted time.

Mr. Denton has filled public offices for several years with the utmost confidence of his electors, and the attack upon him is resented.

Mr. Sutherland tried to apologize after the meeting, realizing the bad mistake he had made, but matters are not likely to rest at this point.

FERGUSON ORDERS THOROUGH SURVEY

Premier Instructs Thorough Survey Be Carried Out by Board of Inquiry.

IN VARIOUS SCHOOLS

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—Giving his instructions to Dr. F. W. Marchant, chief director of education for Toronto, who will preside over the board of inquiry into the working of regulation No. 17 in the English-French schools of the province, Premier Ferguson, as minister of education, today stated that "a comprehensive and thorough survey of the situation should be carried out, with a view to determining the efficiency of the schools, means for improving the instructions and plans for securing a more constant supply of qualified teachers for the schools."

Premier Ferguson wrote Dr. Marchant as follows:

"I desire to have an investigation made of those schools in the province attended by pupils who speak the French language. The investigation conducted by you between 1910 and 1912 arose as you are aware, from complaints of the general inefficiency of those schools. Following that inquiry the present regulations, embodied in circular No. 17, were adopted. The purpose of these regulations was to insure that all pupils could receive a practical working knowledge of the English language without interfering with adequate instruction in French or depriving French-speaking children of training in their mother tongue.

"These regulations have been in operation now for over twelve years and I am desirous of obtaining accurate information respecting their practical working, especially in respect to the efficiency of pupils in the English and French languages.

"Under the circumstances, I wish you to undertake this investigation, and I have asked His Honor Judge Scott of Perth and Louis Cote, barrister, of Ottawa, to join with you in making the inquiry. A comprehensive and thorough survey of the situation should be carried out with a view of determining the efficiency of the schools, means for improving the instruction and plans for securing a more constant supply of qualified teachers for the schools.

The inquiry may be made in the manner believed by the board—of which you will act as chairman—to be the best will act to reach the end in view, and all necessary assistance required to do the work will be provided."

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—With nominations all in and only five more days remaining before the polls open in 245 constituencies the federal campaign is at its climax. The most remarkable feature of the campaign at this stage is the lack of excitement or intense interest on the part of the public. In some places this condition approaches apathy. The explanation which old-time politicians advance regarding it is that it is due to widespread confidence in the return of the government. Election excitement, they point out, is only present when the outcome is in doubt, when the government of the day is threatened by the force of the opposition campaign. If the Conservative campaign had made headway, it is maintained, feeling would be running high.

Despite the indications of increased government strength, however, and the assurance of a Liberal victory, close and interesting contests are under way in many ridings throughout the dominion. Both parties have succeeded in bringing out strong men as their standard-bearers. Former provincial premiers, present provincial ministers, former leaders in federal politics and many representative citizens are offering themselves for the house of commons. In New Brunswick, for example, Hon. W. F. Foster, now secretary of state, but formerly premier of the province, is in Nova Scotia, while in Prince Edward Island the provincial minister of public works, Hon. J. A. MacDonald, is contesting a seat. Quebec, such old war horses as Henri Bourassa and Sir George Perley have returned to the ring. Two members of the Laurier family, relatives of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, are candidates in the Montreal district. In Manitoba, ex-premier Norris and Hon. Robert Rogers are opponents. In Alberta, Hon. R. B. Bennett is attempting a comeback.

Premier at Ottawa.

Ottawa is preparing for the first important event of the campaign locally, the meeting here Saturday, at which the prime minister will speak. Campaign halls are crowded every night for meetings at which the Liberal candidates, Messrs. Chevrier and Wilson, have no out-

JUDGE TAKES OWN LIFE AFTER KILLING WIFE

Body of Aged Jurist Is Found Hanging From Hook
in Office.

Associated Press Despatch.
Joigny, Department of Yonne, France, Oct. 23.—Under a burden of 76 years and seeing want and misery staring him in the face, Judge Ernest Leblanc, who was about to be retired from the bench, hanged himself in his office here after having killed his wife, 72 years old, and his niece, Marie Louise Kollon, an orphan, aged 7.

This is the hypothesis of the police. The judge was supposed to have gone to his home near Chalon sur Marne three weeks ago. The clerk of the court, having to submit a legal document to the judge, endeavored to get in touch with him. Being unable to do so, the clerk came to Joigny. The shutters of the judge's home were drawn, and the clerk, alarmed, notified the police. Breaking in on the door, the police and the clerk found the judge hanging from a hook in his office and the bodies of his wife and niece on a bed upstairs. Physicians were unable to say what was the exact cause of death, but they expressed belief that it was due to strangulation.

The judge's pension would have been 4,000 francs a year, less than $200. He was too feeble to add to this sum by work.

Oscar St. Pierre Removed To Hospital at Chatham—Four Others Escape.

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, Oct. 22.—One person was severely injured and four others had a narrow escape when two cars sideswiped on the provincial highway west of Kent Bridge last night. The heavier car, driven by Ed. Marchand, of Dover, came to a halt against a tree. His companion, Oscar St. Pierre, suffered injuries which necessitated his removal to the St. Joseph's hospital. His hips were dislocated badly, but no bones were broken.

The left wheels, fenders and running-board of the other car were torn off by the collision, the driver, Clin Shaw of Dresden, and his wife escaping injuries. Their baby was hurled through the windshield, but beyond a slight scratch on her face was not hurt.

In New York to buy some clothes, he insists that the $100,000 is the first instalment he is going to get back of nearly $1,000,000 which he had lost in Wall Street speculation and lost at the gaming tables of Athens, Cannes and Deauville. On arrival in Florida from Cuba on a transatlantic steamer, he was met by a few hundred dollars of his Wall Street money left, and spent most of that while looking around for a job. He got a job as real estate salesman at the week with D. P. Davis, who was selling "hot dogs" on a street corner a few years ago.

Enormous Crowd Welcomes Mannix

Australian Archbishop Says
Irish Prosperity Not Yet Achieved.

Associated Press Despatch.

Dublin, Oct. 23.—An enormous crowd which held up traffic in the central streets of Dublin for two hours today welcomed Archbishop Daniel M. Mannix of Melbourne, Australia, when he arrived to receive formally the freedom of the city voted him in 1924. Archbishop Mannix's support of the Irish republican cause prevented holding this ceremony before today.

After the ceremony Archbishop Mannix addressed the crowd, declaring he still maintained the right of the Irish to govern themselves without interference from outside sources. Those who stood for that principle five years ago, but since had changed their minds, he said, were wrong. The archbishop continued, "He had been up and down the country and found nobody willing to bear this out. Ireland, he said, could never be prosperous until it was governed by the people of Ireland."

LUTHER-STRESEMANN VICTORY IS PREDICTED

Associated Press Despatch.
Berlin, Oct. 23.—The parliamentary leaders tonight predict a safe majority in the reichstag for the Luther-Stresemann ministry, when the Rhine pact and arbitration treaties, initiated at Locarno, come up for ratification.

A plenary session of the cabinet under the chairmanship of President von Hindenburg today recorded its complete concurrence with the proposals of the German delegates at the security conference and the foreign relations committee of the reichstag which subsequently met.

Dr. Luther and Dr. Stresemann, present, also indicated in the course of its deliberations that there would be no opposition from the middle parties to the long-term pact. Dr. Stresemann's personal organ, Die Rundschau, asserts there is every indication that the great majority of German nationalists will support the government in which their party is represented, when the peace treaties come up for ratification.

COURT-MARTIAL PAPERS SERVED ON COL. MITCHELL

Associated Press Despatch.
Washington, Oct. 23.—"Conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline" was charged against Col. William Mitchell today in court martial specifications served upon him as a result of his attack several weeks ago on the conduct of the army and navy air services.

The statement issued by Col. Mitchell at San Antonio after the attack on the St. Louisah, said the formal accusation, constituted insubordination and was "highly contemptuous and disrespectful" to the war department.

It was in this statement that Col. Mitchell declared the loss of the Shearwater was due to continuing almost treacherous conduct of the air services.

How It Started In the Balkans

Associated Press Despatch.
Paris, Oct. 23.—M. Kalkoff, Bulgarian premier, in his appeal to the league of nations, gives the Bulgarian version of Monday's incident, with which the trouble between Greece and Bulgaria began.

He said a Greek soldier crossed the frontier and fired on a Bulgarian sentry on Belasica mountain. The Bulgarian killed his aggressor, after which a Greek detachment advanced to carry off the body. The Bulgarians, he said, exchanged the firing continuing into the following day.

Without waiting to reply to a Bulgarian offer of mediation, M. Kalkoff continued, Greece sent troops and artillery which occupied the Struma valley and shelled the town of Pirich and the Maritopol railway station.

Later a Greek aeroplane bombed a bridge near the village of Levonovo, wounding five Bulgarian soldiers. This aggression was possible, he said, because the Bulgarians had received orders not to oppose the Greek advance.

Better Conditions Give Impetus to Industry, Says W. F.
Darch.

A RAPID RECOVERY

The leather goods business has shown a distinct improvement since last year, and prospects for continued progress are bright, William T. Darch, of J. Darch & Sons, told The Advertiser this morning.

In its extensive rural trade, the Darch firm has felt the beneficial effects wrought by the good crops of the past two seasons. Better conditions, noticeable during the past twelve months in both urban and rural districts, have proven a splendid impetus to industry, Mr. Darch asserts.

"Canada has made a rapid recovery from the depression period which followed the war, and at the present time I am confident that the country is entering a period of prosperity that will be felt by every class of people," Mr. Darch declared.

"We have no complaint to make about business in leather goods," he added with a smile, "all the horses haven't disappeared yet, according to the brisk trade we have enjoyed in harnessware."

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES ARE HELD AT MONKTON

Special to The Advertiser.

Monkton, Oct. 22.—Very successful anniversary services were held in Knox Presbyterian church on Sunday and Monday. On the Sabbath thoughtful addresses were delivered by Rev. James Foote, B.A., B.D., of Exeter. A feature of these services was a fine male quartet from Knox church, Stratford.

On Monday evening the ladies of the congregation served a hot supper in the basement of the church. The weather had weather the attendance was large.

A splendid program followed provided by Mr. Wilkinson, bassist, Miss MacIsaac, reader, and Miss Ewart, concert whistler, all of Stratford. Rev. Mr. Bennie of Mitchell was chairman.

Old Relics Found In Cornerstone

Wallaceburg Hall To Be Replaced by Hydro Building.

Special to The Advertiser.

Wallaceburg, Oct. 22.—Interesting relics of the year 1876 were found concealed in a tin box in the cornerstone of the old town hall, the demolition of which has just been completed, and upon which site will be erected the new hydro-electric building at a cost of $25,000.

The relics comprised coins, newspapers, a fashion paper, a small ring, a declaration. The last-named, signed by a notary public, signified that the stone had been laid by Bro. John Fisher of Pynx lodge, A. F. and A. M., on September 11, 1876, and included in it the names of the most important citizens of the town, and the governor-general, Lord Dufferin, of the province mentioned in it only one is living, W. J. McDonald, who is still a highly-esteemed resident of Wallaceburg.

The terms for the erection of the new building have been considered by the commission, the award being made to Chester McGregor, local contractor.

Mystery Plane Is Total Wreck

Baysboro Park, Baltimore, Md., Oct. 23.—Great Britain's mystery plane, the super-marine Napier S-4, crashed this morning during the navigability trials and is a total wreck. Capt. Henry C. Baird, the pilot, is suffering from immersion and shock, but escaped injury.

How It Started In the Balkans

Associated Press Despatch.
Paris, Oct. 23.—M. Kalkoff, Bulgarian premier, in his appeal to the league of nations, gives the Bulgarian version of Monday's incident, with which the trouble between Greece and Bulgaria began.

He said a Greek soldier crossed the frontier and fired on a Bulgarian sentry on Belasica mountain. The Bulgarian killed his aggressor, after which a Greek detachment advanced to carry off the body. The Bulgarians, he said, exchanged the firing continuing into the following day.

Without waiting to reply to a Bulgarian offer of mediation, M. Kalkoff continued, Greece sent troops and artillery which occupied the Struma valley and shelled the town of Pirich and the Maritopol railway station.

Later a Greek aeroplane bombed a bridge near the village of Levonovo, wounding five Bulgarian soldiers. This aggression was possible, he said, because the Bulgarians had received orders not to oppose the Greek advance

GRIZZLIES READY FOR BORDERITES

Team Is in Fine Condition For Gruelling Battle in Sarnia.

LINE IS STRONGER

Another thorough workout and a short review of signals last night completed the Grizzlies' gruelling training period in preparation for the battle with the Imperials in Sarnia tomorrow afternoon, which may either bring the end of London's rugby hopes for this season or bring about a renewal of the annual struggle between the borderites and the locals.

Sarnia teams in the past have acquired the winning habit because they watch for the breaks. This year they have been successful in the same trick, but the Huestis clan is going to be on the outlook for this sort of thing on Saturday.

Altogether the locals are stronger, and benefited much in their game against Toronto Varsity last Saturday. The Queen City stalwarts used a new code of interference, and it worked. The game was really a lesson for the Grizzlies, so they are expected to spring something new against the Sarnians.

The line is a great deal stronger than it was two weeks ago, and the back division, with the addition of Jerry Goodman, has also improved. Goodman is likely to do a lot of the booting. He is an experienced player and has lots of ability, especially in bucking and open-field running.

The game tomorrow means a lot to the Grizzlies, and their supporters can depend that they will be in there fighting every inch of the way. Sarnia, without doubt, the man that the locals will have to watch, and he is not going to get a chance to get away. Sarnia can depend on that.

There will be no drastic changes in the lineup, and the same team that faced Varsity will lock horns with Sarnia. Tonight the final workout will be a quiet affair, a chuck talk and a signal drill being the main features. The team will leave by

Ring Disappears As Boxer Sleeps

Associated Press Despatch.
Chicago, Ill., Oct. 22.—Lady Luck isn't trailing Fred Fulton, once Federated Perseus, Minnesota plater. Fulton fought Sergeant Jackson Adams in Belvedere the other night and was flattened like a strip of linoleum in one round.

Before the fight Fulton pulled a diamond ring off his finger and asked a 24-hour acquaintance to hold it until after contest. The acquaintance, Fulton says, did a sneak while Fred was unconscious on the floor of the ring, and hasn't been seen since. The ring was valued at $1,500.

auto about 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

IMPERIALS EXPECT FIGHT.

Sarnia, Oct. 22.—Victory for Sarnia Saturday means rugby oblivion for London for another year.

Fighting with their backs to the wall, and snarling defiance to the blue and white shirted local squad, Doug Huestis and his London intermediates, defeated twice in the district race, but still supremely confident of their superiority, will throw their strongest shock troops into Saturday's game here to keep the thin flame of their district chances flaming.

London Learned.

London picked up a bunch of pointers in their game last Saturday with the University of Toronto, and have been working them into their play during the past week. They promise to be a much-improved team to smash into the unbeaten Sarnia aggregation here.

But around these parts there has been no inactivity. Jack Newton has been handling the squad without gloves all week, and the defects are being picked out and held up in front of them with all the trimming taken off. The result of the driving is being already manifest. The team has been snapping into the signals with a bite and fight that has been missing in an intermediate team here before, and if they keep them up the Londoners are due for one of the biggest surprises they ever encountered from the usually meek Sarnia team.

Should Be Battle.

With the district title hanging on the result, the fans, and there will be hundreds and hundreds of them, will see two grimly determined teams battling with all they have to pull a victory out of the fire of combat.

NEW SCRAPPER LOOMS ON FEATHER HORIZON

Roby Goldstein Touted As One To Lift Crown From Kid Kaplan.

By FAIR PLAY.

New York, Oct. 22.—Roby Goldstein, who has had a fast run in the feather division, is being touted by his manager, Hymie Kaplan, as the best bet to wear the purple mantle now worn by Kid Kaplan of Meriden, Conn.

Hymie is not going to make the mistake of rushing his fighter ahead. He is content to accept a few dollars to handle a preliminary scrapper, and he has seen many embryo champions whipped before they graduated out of the six-round class.

Several months ago Kaplan watched Jimmy Slattery stand petrified with astonishment as Dave Shade weaved in crouching and sending punches from unexpected angles.

Hymie has made it his business to pick out the unorthodox fighters to face Goldstein, so that the lad knows just what to do when facing them. The southpaw slugger, fighter and fancy stepper do not mean a thing in young Roby's life.

Goldstein's next opponent, Earl Baird, the sensational featherweight of Seattle, will bring out everything he has.

WESTERN HOCKEY LOOP OPENS NOVEMBER 23

Portland Rosebuds Will Oppose Vancouver Maroons in Initial Encounter.

Vancouver, Oct. 22.—The Western Canadian hockey league season will open here on Nov. 23, the earliest in the history of the game on the coast. It was announced here today that the Portland Rosebuds oppose the Vancouver Maroons here on that date.

The full schedule to be released shortly, will show Calgary, Edmonton and Saskatoon playing their first games on the coast.

It is estimated that close to 40 major league players will have jobs in the Florida winter league, which is being sponsored by big real estate interests. There will be one league around Miami which will give money players winter employment on the diamond whether it is good for them or not.

Eight Teams To Compose Intercounty Loop In 1926 London Champs Included

W. H. Heise of Preston, Succeeds W. A. Smith As President of Enlarged League.

KITCHENER ENTERS Delegates Favor One Big Group With Double Schedule For Season.

Special to The Advertiser.

Galt, Oct. 22.—W. H. Heise of Preston is the new president of the Intercounty baseball league, succeeding W. A. Smith, who retired after two years in the chair. In recognition of his services to the organization the league nominated President Heise, Secretary J. W. Scott and George Nethercott of St. Thomas as a special committee to secure a suitable gift for him.

The Intercounty league, in 1926, will be composed of eight clubs. Kitchener, which dropped out last year, announced today, through Harry Tolton, that they would be back next year, and the three former southern counties teams, London, St. Thomas and Stratford, all expressed a desire to remain in the Intercounty circuit.

The league, therefore, will be composed of Guelph, Kitchener, Preston, Galt, Brantford, London, St. Thomas and Stratford. No decision was made as to whether the league in 1926 will operate as eight teams or whether it will be divided into groups as last year, that being left to the semi-annual meeting in the spring, but several delegates expressed themselves as in favor of only one group and a double schedule.

Year Successful.

The report of the secretary, J. W. Scott, was an exceptionally fine one, showing a most successful season, although it marked the first since 1920 that the Intercounty winners did not reach the finals. There was only one protest during the season. The report of the treasurer, J. M. Kearns of Guelph, showed a substantial balance in the treasury.

Galt and Brantford will enter the intermediate series next year, and Guelph and Hespeler will in all probability be in it.

The chief debate of the annual meeting, which was held at the city hall, arose over the recent removal of Sammy Kitchin from Kitchener to Preston and with regard to an unwritten law in effect in the Intercounty by which its members pledge not to tamper with players of other teams in the group. There was a general discussion, in the course of which the retiring president, W. A. Smith, strongly endorsed the understanding, declaring that it was responsible for the league becoming the best in the province. Opinions were frankly expressed, but no action was taken, that being left to the semi-annual gathering, when certificates are passed.

Officers Elected.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, W. H. Heise, Preston; vice-president, J. M. Kearns, Guelph; secretary, J. W. Scott, Kitchener; treasurer, W. McKinnon, Brantford; delegates to the O. B. A. A., the president and the secretary. The appointment of the executive was left over, so that the various clubs could make the choice of their representatives.

In reply to a question of Mr. McIntyre of St. Thomas, that city was assured a berth in the league to who ever took over the franchise now held there. The question of umpires came up, and it was decided to engage them as soon as possible.

The question of the reinstatement of players from the Intercounty who were suspended for taking part in tournaments was discussed, but W. A. Smith of the O. B. A. A. executive pointed out that personal application would have to be made and that it was necessary to impose these penalties to put a stop to a bad situation in Western Ontario that was harmful to the league.

Honorary members were granted to the league statistician, Art Lowe, Kitchener, and to the secretary.

After the Battle

Another story has cropped out concerning the possible sale of the New York National league club. This time Steve Ekins of West Virginia is mentioned as one of the buyers. The team, which was sold, said that Charles A. Stoneham would not step out of the club entirely, but that certain others would.

Tommy McCarthy, the young catcher, drafted by Detroit from Waterbury of the Eastern league, has made a mighty jump in baseball. He was catching semi-pro ball in 1924 and the late season was his first in the professional game. He is regarded as a pretty finished workman and Cobb will, no doubt, keep close tab on him.

Charley Hollocher, indisposed Chicago Cub shortstop, who was out of the game all of this year, has indicated that his health is improved and hopes to be able to play next season. If he does he will be a big worry off the Chicago Cub's hands. Charley was one of the best hitting short fielders in the business until 1924 when he had to cut his season early.

A report broke out in Pittsburgh last week that a syndicate of local men, including Fred Clarke, was to buy the club from Barney Dreyfuss. Some of the names mentioned in the rumor as being in the purchasing syndicate were Joe Joseph, wealthy oil magnate; State Senator John Harris, Henry Townsend, president of the Pittsburgh hockey club, and State Senator James Coyne.

They held a "day" in honor of Bob Shawkey, Yankee pitcher, in Brookville, Pa., Oct. 15, and working for the home town outfit, with Wally Schang catching, Bob turned in a 3 to 1 win over Sykesville, a neighboring town team. The biggest part of Shawkey's day was that he fanned 18 of the opposing hitters and gave but one hit.

Harry Hooper, veteran outfielder of the Chicago White Sox, has requested a release in order that he might carry on negotiations for the management of a minor league team. Hooper has been in the major leagues for 17 seasons, baing with the Boston Red Sox prior to going to Chicago. Years ago he, with Speaker and Duffy Lewis, composed what was regarded as the greatest outfield in the big show.

Stanley Coveleskie and Fred Marberry, Washington pitchers, each received $1,000 bonus for their work during the season. Covey had the best record of any American league pitcher. When the announcement was made, Clark Griffith again took occasion to deny that Gossin and Peckinbaugh were to figure in a swap with the Boston Red Sox. He did say, however, that he would not stand in Peck's way if the veteran had an opportunity to become a manager.

Although it has been denied that Peckinbaugh would leave the Washington team, they are beginning to be up to something. The latest is that Howard Ehmke, Phil Todd, Waite Hoyt, Bob Meusel, Lou Gehrig, Spencer Adams and Peck are to figure in some sort of a three-cornered churning with the Yankees Red Sox and Senators involved. Just how such a swap would work out remains a very interesting, but very dark matter.

A report was current last week that the Chicago Cubs for a trade which would take Rabbit Maranville to the Reds. It was also reported that the Reds were dickering with McGraw for some kind of a switch. One story said that President Herrmann and Manager Hendricks were trying to get Snyder, Meusel and Terry in a deal in which Laque and Hargrave would go to McGraw's team. Of course, the whole thing was denied.

A plan originating in Muskogee, Okla., to have a million persons give a dollar each which would be used to purchase a ball club for Walter Johnson, has not met with complete favor with the big pitcher. His chief fear is that the public might think he needed money. "I wouldn't like the impression to get out that I need aims or anything like that," said Johnson. The idea fostered in the little Oklahoma city is to give Johnson a Class AA ball club as a popular tribute to him.

GEHRINGER BATS WAY TO DETROIT

Former London Second Sacker Now Real Welder of Willow.

GETS MOST HITS

Special to The Advertiser.
Toronto, Oct. 22.—Work has been started on the new park of the Toronto club, but outside the construction activities at the Maple Leaf stadium, there has been very little doing in official baseball circles here since the close of the International campaign, in which the local team made the race with Baltimore clear to the lead, and was practically "rained out" of whatever chance it had for the pennant, a fact perhaps unique in the annals of organized baseball. Postponements at Rochester during the last week of the season ruined the Leafs' chances for overtaking the Birds, and tined the gray around Dan Howley's temples a lighter shade, for the local pilot, believed his team had an almost even chance for the flag.

The slugging attack of the Leafs gave them the leadership in team batting, and they stood well up in team fielding, all the teams, with the exception of Providence, being closely bunched in this department. In individual prowess Joe Kelly, slugging right fielder of the locals, topped the league hitters in the matter of home run hits, 20 circuit wind-ups being a reminder of the damaging power of his big back bat.

Charley Gehringer, whom Ty Cobb says will be his regular second baseman next year, tied with John Rose of Baltimore, and Bill Kelley of Buffalo, for third place among the home run hitters, each member of the trio planting 26 clouts beyond the legitimate barriers of the playing field. Dick Sheedy, Jack Dunn's elongated first baseman, came second in this respect with 27. Gehringer also led the league in the matter of total bases on hits, his 216 biggest being good for 232 bases. The youngster, than whom no more graceful or gifted infielder could be found anywhere, seemed to feast on international pitching, although he only hit for 292, and had but three home runs, in the Class B Michigan-Ontario league in 1924. Perhaps the story youth will be like Hornsby, Bottomley, Wheat and other stars whose batting averages grew the higher they rose in the profession.

BRONCOS ON BIT FOR O. A. C. TILT

Determined Bunch of Gridders Will Face Guelph Aggies Saturday.

A somewhat crippled, but nevertheless determined, bunch of gridders will face Art Wilson and his O. A. C. intercollegiate here tomorrow afternoon.

The determination to win is assured as the Western Broncos, under the fighting spirit of Coach Pickley, have taken a new lease on this season's struggle, and if this spirit, and anything, then the purple and white are champs without any more fighting.

Tomorrow's game is the only gridding battle here which can claim the title of high-class calibre, and London fans are sure to go on mass to the campus at Western can easily accommodate three thousand, and every inch of available space is expected to be filled.

The many games in quick succession, coupled with bad weather for training, has put a number of Western's men on the bench because of injuries, but with the second team out of the running now Coach Pickley can draw upon a greater number of subs, and that is exactly what he will do on Saturday afternoon. He will throw into the game all his reserve power, and if the Aggies go home with a victory they will know that they had the battle of their lives.

Wilson, the star kicker for O. A. C., will find a new team lined up against him on Saturday, and he will be greatly watched throughout the whole game. It is admitted that Guelph has the heavier line, but then the Broncos have been well drilled and more than anything else, are determined to put up a strong fight, which will show that last Saturday's game was not the kind of contest they are accustomed to exhibiting.

The team, in other words, is capable of a better performance. On last Saturday's showing Guelph was the better team, but they had the advantage of a week's preparation, while Western went into the game with Comfort, Kennedy, Howell and Jordan, a complete condition, while Conkle has been out of the game altogether. Conkle's knee is rapidly improving, and Jordan is rounding into condition again, while Comfort, Calder, Russell, Turville, White and Maxwell, the O. A. C. will find a hard hitting and determined line, while the half line in Warren, Kennedy and Simpson, they will find a trio of great kickers, particularly in the open field.

The game commences at 2:45. R. F. S. Baird of London is the referee.

Coach Pickley will be ready Saturday with the best team he has, and one around the local school is confident they can win.

Games in the recent series between the Lou Gehrig, New York Yankees' first baseman, is trying out for the Savage Institute basketball team. Gehrig is a student at the institute and figures he can handle a basketball the same as he does a baseball.

MCCARTHY TAKES CHARGE AT ONCE

New Manager of Chicago Cubs On Books For Two Years.

Special to The Advertiser.
Chicago, Ill., Oct. 22.—The Cubs have a new manager and a city championship and just about all the athletes have gone home. They'll be back, of course, as soon as they get the call, but in the meantime there'll be a lot of speculation as to just what the Bruins and White Sox will be able to do next season. The winning of the city title by the Cubs was totally unexpected by the experts, but was a fitting finish for the Sox, who were all out of luck the last six weeks of the season. Nothing broke for them after Manager Collins was hurt, mainly because the team was without reserve strength.

The Cubs won their title, and with it about $250 apiece by playing all around the team that held third place in the American League race for three quarters of the season. Manager Gibson's team hit the ball in the pinches and had the pitching. Five games, exclusive of the nineteen-inning tie with which the series opened, were played. The Cubs won four of them and the one they lost was the only one in which they had to change pitchers. That was a commendable performance considering that the Sox are supposed to be fairly good hitters.

The yarn about the new Cub management broke before the city series had ended. It had been secretly settled, at least, about two months ago, and the interested parties hoped to keep it under cover indefinitely. That was equivalent to trying to carry 190

A loose ball and an open goal gave Bill Mitchell, little center forward of the Ealing public school soccer team, a chance to score a goal against the Rectory street eleven yesterday, and he did. pounds of steam in a wash boiler. It couldn't be done. Rumors started popping way back in August, but President Wm. Veech of the Cubs, matured to conceal the truth. He gave out an unquestionable source down east. There is no getting around the fact that they held a couple hitters and to get them undoubtedly will require the spending of a large and juicy quantity of Wm. Wrigley's wampum.

SPORT SNAPSHOTS

A few years ago the Buffalo club had as a members of its pitching staff a husky, good-natured chap named Rube Kissinger, who was a natural comedian and a good story teller. Here is one of his tales: On Rube's return to his home town at the end of the pennant season he met a friend of his who bewailed the loss of a pet dog.

"How did he die?" queried Rube.

"It was this way," replied the owner. "The dog started across the railroad tracks as a train hove in sight travelling at high speed. The dog was nearly across the track when the engine struck him. He died by inches."

"Too bad," sympathized Rube, who then told his friend the story of a dog who had met with like misfortune.

"It was like this," said Rube, "a circus parade was passing one day when the pup ran out barking only to be seized by an elephant's trunk, and thrown over the top of the house, and he died by the yard."

Fans at Sportsman's park, St. Louis, had a good laugh during one of the Cardinals and Brooklyn. Manager Robinson was making all sorts of shifts in an effort to get some runs over.

Presently Windy Kelly, the announcer, megaphoned to the crowd that "Hudson is now running for Ford." It sounded like a six-cylinder machine replacing a four-cylinder wheeler, and the crowd was quick to get it.

The player Kelly called Hudson was in reality Hudson, a recruit.

Walter Christensen, star outfielder of the St. Paul American Association club, has been sold to the Cincinnati Nationals. First baseman Nicholas, another player to be selected later, and cash was handed over for Christensen.

On the Side Lines With C.S.G.

The Western Broncos have absorbed the fighting spirit of Coach Clarence Pickley, and that should mean something in their crucial battle with Art Wilson and his Aggies here Saturday afternoon.

Wilson has had a great run of field goals in the last two games, but that's bound to break some time, and it might as well happen on Saturday.

Sarnia has been busy this week working out a system of interference. The opinion is, locally, that they have interfered enough.

"SPORTSMEN"—HAVE YOU SEEN 'EM?

The amateur-professional problem becomes more complicated the more it is studied. There is a problem even of the intermediary class for which Mr. Gustavus T. Kirby has coined the name sportsmen, comprising those who prepare competitors for their contests—professors, coaches, teachers, trainers, handlers, etc. Should the sportsmen be permitted to judge amateur contests? Here is a case, in Mr. Kirby's opinion, where the measuring stick of amateurism should not be applied, the competency of the official being the important matter. That this question should have been argued at the recent Olympic congress at Prague is a sidelight on the perplexities surrounding sport for sports' sake.

Mr. Kirby's resume of the Olympic discussion deals also with the question of the amateur's maintenance. Suppose an athlete loses pay by absence from work during competition. May he be compensated for his lost wage by his athletic association or by private assistance without losing his amateur status? The congress decided that he may not, and that is Mr. Kirby's view, but he points out that the worker has some excuse for his plea when he sees that amateur stars are getting theirs in some way. He mentions no names, but speaks of glaring examples of young men, and perhaps, too, of young women, who, without any visible means of support, travel around the world with all the luxuries of clothes and comfort and pleasure as would the man of financial means, and who compete week in and week out in all kinds and sorts of sports competitions, and who not only hold themselves out as amateurs, but are more or less accepted by the governing body of their particular sport as such.

It is certainly a nice point to decide where legitimate expenses end and luxury begins. The whole question of amateurism seems to be a network of hairline decisions. No sharp line is discernible. Where money is concerned in sport, be the payment to athletes ever so indirect and circuitous, amateurism and professionalism overlap and interlace. The problem has been attacked only piecemeal, as in the tennis player-writer compromise. Mr. Kirby pleads again for a congress, to be called by the American Olympic committee, of all national sports governing bodies and other organizations interested in amateur sports, to discuss both written rules and the ethics behind them, so that there may be a better understanding of the situation and an honest purpose of enforcement of rules agreed upon. "It is impossible," Mr. Kirby says, "to draw a line between amateurism and professionalism upon any other premise than that of sport for sports' sake on the amateur side and sport for the living, in whole or in part, which can be had therefrom on the professional side." This line may stand out on paper like the great wall of China, but in practice it is overstepped with ease. Sport has become a vast industry and it grows increasingly difficult to keep business out of any department of the game.

NOT SO BRISK.

The general impression has been that the new professional hockey moguls were wild-eyed looking for players, and nowhere was this impression more generally credited than among the hockey players themselves. The release of four men by the Montreal team indicates that the moguls are not so bad off that material of any kind will do. Three of the released men, while beyond the average run of years for hockey players, could still give many of the amateurs who are supposed to have had wild offers a lot of points about the winter pastime. These are Skinner, Berlenquette and Ernie Parkes, the ex-Kitchener boy. Ganton Scott, the fourth man, apparently had little justification for hopping into the professional ranks in the first place.

Making the jump into professional hockey will still be a serious move even when there are many more teams than there are now. It is not the same thing as making the jump in baseball, for even here the mediocre player can always find a berth somewhere in the minors, and failing that, there are thousands of places in baseball to the one in hockey where ordinary ability can command a good job among the semi-pros.

SUZUKI WILL NOT DEFEND BILLIARD TITLE THIS YEAR

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, Oct. 22.—Kamekichi Suzuki, holder of the United States national junior 18.2 ball line billiard championship, will not defend his title this year, having returned to Japan. Plans are well under way, however, for a junior tournament.

C.N.R. MEETS UNITED VETS IN BRISCO FINAL SATURDAY

Tight Struggle For Cup Is Promised Local Soccer
Fans.

RAILROADERS READY

Saturday afternoon at the Sackville street grounds C. N. R. and the United Vets of St. Thomas will meet in the final of the Brisco cup series.

This should be a great battle, largely from the standpoint that both teams have had great seasons this year. The Railroaders will send their interprovincial team into the fray intact, and this fact vouches well for the local's chance of victory.

C. N. R. can boast of one of the strongest teams in the interprovincial loop. The front line is one that has a great deal of experience on the attack, while the defence is always able to show the rest of the trucks of the game. One of the main features that makes that valuable is their accurate passing, and if the forward line is with them, as it usually is, the Vets' goal is promised a lot of trouble.

The St. Thomas players are no weaklings either. They also have a great deal of experience to back them in the struggle. A tricky forward line and good boots on the backfield make them dangerous opponents.

Brownies and Macs Meet on Saturday

Decide Major League Championship in Final Game.

With two victories apiece, Brownies and McCormicks meet at Federal Square, Saturday afternoon in the deciding game, which will give either team the major league girls' softball title.

Brownies started the series off with a bang, smothering two wins before the Macs got started, but the McCormicks soon got going and spoiled the hope of registering victories in the next two games and forcing another tie.

There is not much to choose between the outfits. They both are fast and show lots of pep. It's a toss-up as to which will ultimately win the title.

TO LAY CORNERSTONE.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—The ceremony of the laying of the cornerstone of the new Metropolitan Life Canadian head office building, at Ottawa, corner of Bank and Wellington streets, will be held Wednesday, Nov. 4, at 2:30 p.m. Among those who will attend the memorable function will be President Bailey Fiske and Mr. A. F. C. Fiske, head of the Canadian head office.

WEST CONFIDENT EAST'S ON RUN

Pirates and Reds Seen As Principals in 1926 National Season.

By JOHN B. FOSTER.

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, Oct. 22.—The western half of the National league is confident that it has the eastern half on the run for the season. The Cincinnati outfi is beginning to figure that Cincinnati and Pittsburgh will make the battle in 1926, Chicago and St. Louis look like comers.

With Hornsby at the head of the club all this year," said Herrmann, "St. Louis will get into the fight more effectively than ever before, but only if they can get a first baseman and make a clean sweep of the league."

Three western clubs finished in the first half of 1925—Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis—and Barney Dreyfuss says they should have all four first division places next year.

For five years the National league has been the theatre of a great struggle, and the organization was mouldering with dry rot, owing to the great similarity of its championship contests like 1921, the Giants winning all the time up to the last game.

In fifteen long years the west was successful in only three.

President John Heydler, in commenting upon the great success of the eastern clubs, said the predominance of the west in the past was easily responsible for this. He pointed out that New York was always the champion, and that the west turned out to be the winning pitchers of their time.

The youth of the Pittsburgh team of this year in Heydler's opinion, makes it a very dangerous rival for any team for more than on season to come.

That opinion is rather generally held throughout the league and the section of the National, because of it, more confidence is placed in the west.

Three years to come than it has been in many years. The Cincinnati, after winning the 1919 championship, lost it very next year to the Red Sox.

LAVENDER ADDRESSES

KNOLLWOOD MEETING

Speaks of Rights of Workingman Before Conservative Gathering of 25.

Twenty-five, including speakers, were gathered together in the name of the Conservative party in Knollwood Park school last evening.

I. J. Lavender presided, and in his opening remarks vigorously attacked The Advertiser, alleging that it had been unfair in its reports of Conservative meetings held in the East.

He lauded the candidate, and declared that the workmen of Knollwood Park did not want to be represented in parliament by a man who considered no interests other than those of the farmers. No conscientious workingman could vote for Archie L. Hodgins, he declared.

The feature address of the evening came from Mrs. Chellworth, a recent acquisition to Conservative platform strength. In a comprehensive address, Mrs. Chellworth displayed a wide knowledge of the financial problems of both Canada and England. She reviewed concisely the history of the free trade policy in Britain.

Escape GERM PERILS

That threaten THROAT & CHEST

The germs of colds, grippe, influenza, and throat troubles are a real peril to everybody. Carried in with the air we breathe they fasten on to the soft delicate membrane of the breathing passages, multiply rapidly and spread irritation and inflammation wherever they go.

The safest and best means of combating this germ peril, is to dissolve a Peps tablet in your mouth whenever the throat feels in the least sore or inflamed.

Peps are a soothing, invigorating and germ-destroying medicine. Their volatile fumes thoroughly disinfect the throat, bringing quick relief from pain and irritation. They put an end to mischievous germs before they are able to carry trouble along into chest and bronchials.

Genuine Infection-Killing Tablets.

Note that every genuine Peps tablet is wrapped in a silver jacket to preserve its freshness and strength. It is also stamped with registered name—PEPS.

PEPS

Whilst Peps are an expensive remedy to produce the demand has become so great that it has now been found possible to reduce the price to 25c. box of 25 silver-jacketed tablets. Of all druggists.

WOMAN BRAVES AFRICAN PERILS

Mrs. Delia J. Akeley Accomplishes Record Feat in Transversing Dark Continent.

Special to The Advertiser.
New York, Oct. 22.—For the first time in history a white woman has crossed darkest Africa alone. She is Mrs. Delia J. Akeley of the Brooklyn museum of arts and science.

Armed only with ordinary travel papers and carrying credentials as a special correspondent of the North American Newspaper Alliance, she started from Lamou, on the east coast of Africa, on October 16 of last year.

She came out at the mouth of the Congo river, on the west coast, on September 3, and arrived in New York today.

After a three months' perilous journey through the jungles and deserts of East Africa, she reached Nairobi and sent out her last communication with civilization.

Entering the Central African jungle at Ka-Sinyi, on Lake Albert, with only twelve cartridges, she reappeared at Matadi on the Congo river five months and 26 days later, with three cartridges unspent and five hitherto unknown specimens of jungle animals. This was Mrs. Akeley's third visit to the dark continent.

She is about 50 years old and her previous visits were made with her husband, Carl Akeley, the famous explorer, who persuaded Theodore Roosevelt to make his African hunting trip.

Five Months' Struggle.

Mrs. Akeley spoke today of her latter and more difficult stages of her journey, her unprecedented five months' struggle across Central Africa to the Atlantic. She saw only two white men during this time, a Belgian official and a Swiss trader, and was entirely alone in charge of her convoy of black porters.

"I ventured with a slender stock of ammunition, because I was unwilling to wait for more at Lake Albert," she said. "The penalty I paid came four months later in the forest, where the pigmies, a Congo tribe, yellowish in color, and averaging four feet in height, coveted the use of my gun against elephants, whose meat was needed for food, and against whom their only weapon was poisoned arrows."

"Decoyed by the pigmies before a herd of elephants I escaped with my cartridges unspent, but fell under a charging buffalo which had been wounded by an arrow. Limping back to my camp with a badly injured thigh, I immediately distributed my reserves of palm wine, tobacco and salt to the menacing pigmies. During the feasting I escaped with my

Bandits Steal Empty Pouches

Associated Press Despatch.
Chicago, Oct. 22.—Ten men were without expected valuable loot today after a well-organized holdup of three Federal Reserve Bank messengers on La-Salle street, in Chicago's financial district.

J. B. McDougal, governor of the bank, after checking the contents of the pouches and package, announced that they did not contain a dollar.

Preparation Inadequate.

"The first stage of my trans-African journey across the Somali desert had to be undertaken without adequate preparation, because I received warning that the governor was about to forbid my trip, because of its danger to a woman. I forestalled his message by plunging up the Tana river in a dugout with two blackes."

Mrs. Akeley began her African explorations with her husband in 1905 as a collector of birds and butterflies. On that trip she used a gun for the first time, killing an eland and a gazelle with the first two shots she had ever fired. Beginner's luck like that, she says, gave her the confidence that has made her one of the world's famous markswomen.

She will spend the next few months writing and lecturing. She will leave again for Africa in March on another expedition for the Brooklyn museum.

Indigestion

When chronic, is best relieved by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

In most cases, indigestion results from torpid liver and sluggish bowel action. Tablets for the stomach and aids to digestion fail in this chronic form of indigestion. You must get the filtering and excretory organs right before you can expect permanent relief and this is best accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Chronic indigestion is a very common condition. On this account many suffer for years not realizing that relief is at hand in the form of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Headaches, biliousness, spells of constipation and diarrhoea are among the accompanying ailments.

What a relief it would be to be free of this condition which makes one feel so miserable and it is so easy by using this well-known regulator of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—In large advertising space throughout the country Mr. Meighen, under direction of Conservative headquarters in Toronto, issues a denial over his signature of what he describes as a "whispering campaign," to the effect that he is in favor of the amalgamation of the two railways.

In reality this advertising is a belated attempt on the part of Mr. Meighen and his campaign directors to overtake a blunder he himself made at the very outset of his stumping tour.

If there is "whispering" with respect to Mr. Meighen's intentions regarding the railways, it is due to his own admissions. There is unmistakable evidence of alarm on the part of the public as to Mr. Meighen's policy concerning the National railways, and it is traceable, not to any "whispering campaign" instituted by his opponents, but to his own statements. Supporters of the National railways, and believers in national ownership, found cause for apprehension in Mr. Meighen's speech at Winnipeg on Sept. 19.

Made Ambiguous Statement.

In that speech the Conservative leader emphasized the debt on account of the National railways, and

Dropped Dead Playing Tennis

Canadian Press Despatch.
Kingston, Oct. 22.—While playing tennis at Queens university this evening, R. McTavish, a freshman in the science faculty, whose home is in North Bay, dropped dead. He was playing a strong game, when he suddenly collapsed on the court and never revived. His father is a conductor on the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway.

Trying to Cover It Up.

Deeper significance was given Mr. Meighen's ambiguous statement by the fact that it was picked up and emphasized by the principal newspaper supporter of amalgamation, the Montreal Gazette. It was supposed in Ottawa that Mr. Meighen had gone thus far in an effort to win the approval of the enemies of the National railways in Montreal.

Mr. Meighen, it is remarked, has not repeated the assertion he made in Winnipeg since the alarm it gave rise to was called to his attention. But it was that speech which caused the "whispering," which he is now attempting to overcome. It is a matter of further significance that the Conservative campaign in Quebec is being supported by avowed enemies of the National railways, whose latest plan of getting them out of the way is that of amalgamation with the C. P. R.

Interment in Rodney Cemetery.

that he had committed himself to the amalgamation of the national railways with the C. P. R. What, it was asked, was the thing "we have got to do, that we don't like?" Mr. Meighen did not say, but in the same part of his speech he mentioned that the thing he did not like was amalgamation. The assumption was that if he could not end national railway deficits by stopping expenditures on Scribe hotels and Yonge street skyscrapers, he would be prepared to go in for amalgamation.

MOVING VAN TRIES RIVER NOSE DIVE

Narrowly Escapes Bath When Gangplank Chain Breaks at Sarnia.

Special to The Advertiser.
Sarnia, Oct. 22.—The ferry boat Lawrence was delayed fully an hour today when a chain on the gangplank broke just as a moving van, owned by the Tripp Moving and Storage Co. of Port Huron, was passing over. The breaking of the chain caused the van to slide between dock and boat. It was hauled back to land by a truck and transported to Port Huron on another ferry boat.

The van was being driven by Vern Dutton, who was accompanied by Reed Lovett, a helper. Both live in Port Huron.

The death occurred at Mooretown on Thursday of Mrs. Grace Chambers, widow of John Chambers, a former well-known farmer of Moore township. Mrs. Chambers was aged 76 years 11 months, and had resided in the township all her life. The funeral will be held on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Fromfield cemetery.

George Boca of Sarnia township was arrested by High County Constable R. J. Whiting and Provincial Constable W. A. Scott on a warrant charging forgery at the village of Wyoming. Police claim that Boca was driving his car while intoxicated when arrested, and he will probably also face a charge on that score.

Are Balloon Tires Durable? Goodyears Are

EVERYBODY knows that good balloon tires are easy-riding, comfortable, easy on the car.

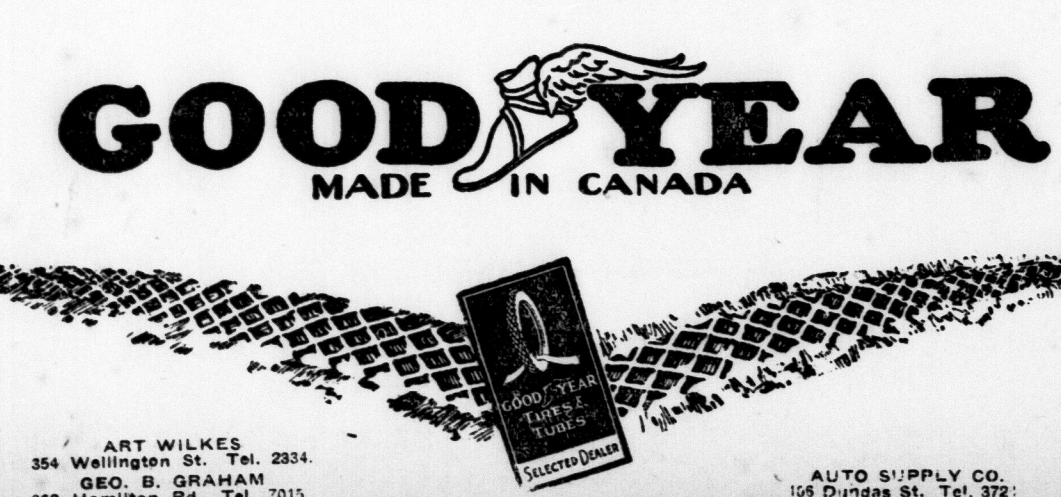

Goodyear users know that balloon tires can be durable also—because Goodyear Balloons are giving remarkable mileage.

The big reason for this plus-durability in Goodyear Tires is SUPERTWIST.

SUPERTWIST is a cord fabric unlike anything which has gone before. It stretches much more. Under blows of the road it yields instead of breaking. It protects the tire against stone bruises, carcass breaks and similar injuries.

So much does SUPERTWIST increase the life of a tire that it is now used in all Goodyear Cord Tires. Your Goodyear Selected Dealer has them.

TEACHERS HEAR FEDERATION HEAD

200 Delegates From Perth Institute Open Annual Sessions at Stratford.

Special to The Advertiser.
Stratford, Oct. 22.—Mayor Tom Brown welcomed to the city about 200 delegates at the annual meeting of the Perth County Teachers' Institute, which opened sessions this morning in the assembly hall of the Stratford Normal school. The president, W. S. Walkom, principal of Hamlet school, presided. An inspiring devotional period was led by Canon Cliff of St. James' church. Miss J. C. Gaudy, secretary-treasurer, gave the report. In his presidential address, Mr. Walkom outlined the aim of education, and then showed how this aim was to be realized from the standpoint of the child, the teacher and the curriculum. At this afternoon's session, Miss R. J. McQueen, M.A., president last year, gave an address. Dr. Augustus Thomas, commissioner of education, Augusta, Maine, and president of the World's Federation of Teachers held in Scotland last year, delivered his first address, and spoke again in the evening.

Miss Georgina Baxter.
After being ill only a week, Miss Georgina Baxter, aged 63, a life-long resident of Downie township, died today. She was born on the farm on which she died and had spent her entire life there. Surviving are two brothers, Robert and John Baxter, with whom she lived.

Henry Bullard.
The death of Henry Bullard of Seaforth occurred at the home of his niece, the Misses Salvadge, 176 Hibernia street. He came here about two months ago on a visit, and was taken ill and unable to return home. The late Mr. Bullard was born in Godshill 71 years ago, and while still a boy he came to Stratford. Pseudo Labor Sympathizer Dropped By Conservatives From Roster of Speakers

Status of H. C. Fester Makes Him Unwelcome Among London Laborites.

HAS NOW LEFT CITY

So adverse is the sentiment of London labor towards H. C. Fester, of Hamilton, "labor" member of the provincial minimum wage board, that local Conservatives hurriedly dropped their plans for having the pseudo workers' sympathizer speak on behalf of Frank White here.

Mr. Fester has not been seen in the city since he addressed two meetings in the interests of A. King Hodgins, Conservative candidate in East Middlesex, on Monday night. Labor officials declare that he used discretion in not taking the platform in the London riding.

According to H. B. Ashplant, prominent labor man, Fester "knows enough of his status here not to linger any longer than is necessary." "There is no doubt that Fester is on the payroll of the Ferguson government for none other than political purposes," Mr. Ashplant asserted.

The wage board member is a cigar-maker by trade, local officials explain, and was a member of the Hamilton trades and labor council, but has been repudiated by that body for his anti-labor actions.

The big majority of the audience town hall on Monday night were "observers" from the ranks of local labor supporters. It was originally planned to question the speaker before the auditors' seats, but when labor men saw that his real audience only consisted of a handful of persons, they allowed him to finish uninterrupted.

he followed the trade of machine blacksmith here. For the past few years he had resided in Seaforth. He was a member of St. James' Anglican church there. Survivors are the widow, who was Miss Elizabeth Ruff, one son, Henry Bullard of Seaforth, and two sisters, Mrs. D. Easson of this city and Mrs. MacDonald of Carleton Place.

BURNS' CHURCH, MILVERTON, MARKS ANNIVERSARY

Special to The Advertiser.

Milverson, Oct. 22.—The anniversary services of Burns' church were conducted by Rev. J. M. Nichol of Listowel. The fowl supper and entertainment the following evening were very successful despite the inclement weather and the handicap of having the hydro power off part of the evening. The musical program was supplied by the Schubert Quartet of London. Their selections were well received. In the absence of the moderator, Rev. G. B. Duncan, Stratford, Mr. H. Baird occupied the chair.

HYDE PARK HELPS CAUSE OF DR. ROSS

Dr. Clifford Reason, A. M. Latchford, Mrs. Hall, Address Liberal Rally.

TOWN HALL CROWDED

Special to The Advertiser.

Hyde Park, Oct. 22.—Hyde Park, historical stronghold of Conservatism last night tendered Dr. C. C. Ross, Liberal candidate for East Middlesex, one of the most encouraging receptions of his speaking campaign in the present contest. Every seat in the town hall was occupied, and some electors stood throughout the meeting. There was a large percentage of women in the crowd, and veteran campaigners declared the rally to be a remarkable tribute to Dr. Ross and the Liberalism which he represents. "There were rousing cheers for the candidate and the premier."

Speakers were Dr. Ross, the candidate; Mrs. W. A. Hall, Brampton; Dr. Clifford Reason, London, and Austin M. Latchford, Toronto barrister, and son of Mr. Justice Latchford, Duncan Ross of Lucan, former Liberal standard-bearer, president, and paid very splendid tributes to Dr. Ross.

The Brunswick trio, a London troupe of Scottish entertainers, provided some very happy and entertaining numbers during the evening, and led the singing of patriotic songs at the opening and close of the meetings.

Makes Fighting Speech.

The reception to Dr. Ross was rousing. Though the candidate showed that he is rapidly developing into a good campaigner, and his fighting speech was replete with a fund of argument in favor of King policies.

Mrs. Hall has spoken at other meetings in the riding. Tonight she tendered a particular appeal to women, a speech which was entirely devoid of partisan bitterness. Her urge was to the women to come out and vote and take part in politics. "Ottawa is like a batchelor's house—women should take a hand in improving it."

She spoke of the franchise as initiated by Liberalism. It was the best party for men and women who were progressive. Mrs. Hall advocated national unity, abolition of sectionalism and endorsement and wide national policies.

Extravagance of wartime governments, for purposes other than the payment of war expenses, were discussed by Dr. Ross in a fighting address. He recounted the costly expenditure on a merchant marine on which there had been a loss of $70,000,000 of after-war expenses of $17,165,292, of which there was no tangible profit to the dominion, and of fourteen big contracts let by Mr. Meighen after he had been voted out of office in 1921.

Dr. Ross told of the splendid name given Canada by the Hon. John S. Martin, minister of agriculture in the provincial Conservative government.

Mr. Meighen's Panacea.
Canada would not get well by using any of Mr. Meighen's pills, declared the doctor. The country needed the construction gear of Mr. King, rather than the wrecking crew of Mr. Meighen.

"I ask you to vote for the Liberal policies, not that I have anything against the Progressive in this riding or the Progressives in general, for their policies and ours are much alike, but remember that a vote for a Progressive in a three-cornered fight might land the high tariff man on top."

Dr. Reason pointed out that Conservatives in the last election found three-cornered fights their easiest task. Some 30 of the 50 Conservatives who were returned had won in three-cornered fights. A personal tribute was paid to Dr. Ross, who had been quick to respond to an appeal by Dr. Reason to go overseas during the war for hospital work.

Comes From One Pocket.

Austin Latchford, Toronto, gave a very splendid accounting of the protection tangle into which the Conservative leader had plunged himself and his friends. "Tariff is taxation," declared Mr. Latchford. "The Conservatives say they will reduce the taxes. How? By increasing the tariff! Tariff is taxation; it perhaps doesn't sound so bad, but that's what it is, and you pay just as much in the end."

Mr. Latchford pointed out that such products as the Ford automobile, were manufactured in Canada and sold for just as much more in the dominion as a 35 per cent protective duty permitted. The Canadian Ford Company was making millions of dollars. It would be more patriotic for Canadians to buy Fords in Detroit and pay duty to the Canadian government than an extra 35 per cent profit to American capitalists. Protection would drain the country of its money, for American capitalists would become ensconced firmly in Canadian cities, make their profits at as much profit as tariff would permit, and then sent their excess profits in the United States.

Dr. Ross speaks in Lambeth tonight, and at Dorchester on Monday.

WORK IS STARTED ON LINE TO ROUYN

Company Builds Line For C. N.
R. On Money Advanced by Prominent Bankers.

Special to The Advertiser.
Montreal, Oct. 22.—More than one statement was issued by Sir Henry Thornton, chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways, from the headquarters of the system
here today:

"There has been more or less discussion in the press with respect to the construction of a railway from Orbigny, on the National Transcontinental, to Rouyn, Quebec, which important interests propose to make, for the purpose of serving a large mining development. More than one competitive project for the construction of a railway into the Rouyn district seemed to be under promotion, and prompt action was, therefore, essential if the National railway system was not to find itself eliminated from the field. For these reasons it was decided that a line should be built by a separate company and financed without calling upon the resources of the Canadian National.

Work Commenced.
Work on the line has commenced.
The contract having been let to the lowest bidder. The estimated cost of the line is somewhat less than three million dollars, and the following arrangements have been made with respect to finance: As the work proceeds the funds necessary for the payment of the contractors will be advanced by well-known bankers. Interest will be paid at the rate of four and a half per cent per annum, but will be paid only as the work is done. The line will be owned by the company. Upon completion of the work and the determination of the exact cost, bonds will be issued and sold for that amount. The company has been authorized in the usual way to lease the property from the constructing company for a period of thirty years at a rental based upon four and a half per cent interest and sinking fund requirements. The crown has the right under the lease at any time to acquire title to the whole of the property upon assuming the outstanding bonds.
Upon the expiration of the lease the crown acquires title to the whole of the property without encumbrance, the rental having discharged all obligations.

No Commissions Paid.
"It may be definitely stated that no commissions, fees or emoluments of any sort have been or will be paid to anyone.
"The province of Quebec has subsidized the undertaking to the extent of $50,000 per annum for five years, and the Noranda Mines Company has also agreed to contribute $20,000 a year for five years against any defects which may appear."
