THE FRASER INSTITUTE.

SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

The accounts for the year ending 30th June, 1895, duly audited, are appended to this report, the various schedules show details of the receipts and disbursements of the Institution during the past year.

The ordinary revenue derived from the Fraser building and other sources has not greatly varied from that of former years. The cost of administration has only slightly increased, but exceptional expenditures have been incurred in improvements and repairs of the reading-room and Hospital building, and in replacing the old elevator in the Fraser building by an electric motor, with a view of greater efficiency and economy in working. From these causes there has been an excess of expenditure over receipts, from all sources, of $3,811.83; and while some items on both sides of the account have been exceptional in their character, it is obvious that the outlays must be very seriously diminished, at the loss of efficiency, or that some means must be devised to increase the ordinary revenue.

The farm property of the Institute, having for a number of years yielded very poor returns by way of rental, the governors decided to sell a portion thereof so soon as in their judgment a reasonable price could be obtained. The MacMartin farm of 54 arpents was sold in 1891 for $9,450.00, of which $4,450.00 has still to be collected; and this year an option to purchase the Knox farm, 424 arpents, with the adjoining water power privilege, for the sum of $100,000.00, has been granted to Mr. Thomas Pringle. There seems great probability that the transaction will be successfully carried through, in which event the revenue of the Institution will receive a much needed augmentation.

It is a satisfaction to report that the attendance has so increased that it has necessitated greater accommodation for readers. This has been arranged for to such an extent that the 61,000 who have attended during the past year (an increase of 13,500) have been comfortably seated, and by the removal of the Library of the Law Faculty of McGill further provision is practicable in the future. An encouraging increase is also to be reported in regard to the number of regular borrowers in the Circulating Department.

This, no doubt, is largely due to the wider acquaintance with the extent and importance of the Library, and to the efforts which have been made to add to its attractiveness. It is a gratifying recognition of its value that the donations during the past year, which amount to nearly five hundred volumes, have been selected with an appreciation that the greatest need of the Library is for works of accepted merit.

Over seven hundred and fifty volumes have been bound and repaired, thus rendering them available for readers, while arrangements have also been made for the constant supervision and repair of books; but it is to be regretted that a portion of the public have not yet risen to a true appreciation of the privileges extended to them, inasmuch as a number of cases of wilful mutilation and pilfering have to be noticed.

Nearly seven hundred volumes have been added by purchase—these include the most important works of recent English fiction, a fair number of biographies, complete translations of Balzac, Dumas, Saint-Amand, and of separate works of other French and Russian authors, some of the latest works on electricity, many of recent travel, and care has been taken to complete such sets as were hitherto unpublished or missing. The French section of the Library has received equal care; further additions have been made to the literature of the Napoleonic era, and to military and general history, some critical and biographical studies have also been purchased, and for the first time in many years especial attention has been given to Canadiana.

The Governors fully recognize that the value of the Library is in a large measure dependent on an intelligent and constant selection of reading matter, and the public may rest assured that with its co-operation every effort will be made towards this end.

R. B. ANGUS, President.
