" Qual in Buccam venerit scribits."-CICERO. Hitherward-Hitherward. List to my story, Full of deep wonder,

Ancient and gory! Full of God; glory! Riddle my riddle, And I will excuse you But if you're not able Perhaps I'll abuse you:

My master was lowly To whom I belonged Still I am exalted By fine trumpet-tongued. None ever knew him Or heard of his name ; Yet long as the world lasts

Shall be my fame. Despised and destroyed. And clean cast away, 'Twas a prophet who rais'd me From the dust where I lay.

I was not my own. But belong'd to another, Was bone of his bone, And so was my brother We worked night and day And ground all our bread. The' I was not myself Until I was dead Then God did exalt me. And gave me such power,

That it made me a wonder From that very hour. When living I drank water more and more, When dead I yielded it but not before; When I ving I was harmless as could be, When dead my teeth were gorg'd with human that, and gore.
