

MUCH HARD SUFFERING IS CAUSED BY MEXICAN FIASCOS

NAVY LOST MORE IN TAKING VERA CRUZ THAN IN ENTIRE SPANISH WAR

Seventeen Dead From Sharpshooters--Ray of Hope That Villa Will Remain Neutral While Huerta is Being Dealt With.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—With the complete restoration of order in Vera Cruz, the safe exodus of Charge O'Shaughnessy and his staff from Mexico city, and a transport carrying reinforcements of troops, pleading swiftly through southern seas, President Wilson and his advisers to-day were on alert for a counter move by Huerta, and awaiting the development of any positive attitude by Carranza, the constitutionalist chief. The sporadic outbreak in Nuevo Laredo where evacuating Federals fired across the Rio Grande and drew a pelting of bullets from the American border patrol and the reported arrest of several Americans by Huertistas authorities at Orizaba scarcely served to alter an already absorbing situation.

Officials to-day awaited news of the reception by Carranza of a telegram sent by constitutionalist representatives in Washington advising him to remain neutral, and declaring the United States intended to withdraw its forces from Vera Cruz as soon as reparation for Huerta's offences had been obtained. A ray of hope that the constitutionalists would remain neutral was contained in the reported utterances of Villa, the military chief under Carranza. Despite that, however, officials declined to rest assured, and the strengthening of the border patrol continued to-day.

Representative Kent of California took to the White House to-day a telegram from a friend in El Paso, whom he described as well informed, stating that in his opinion the constitutionalists would remain quiet if "properly treated."

Huerta in the anti-American atmosphere of Mexico City that was marked last night by desecration of a statue of George Washington might make a definite move to-day, it was thought. Since he had given the American charge his passports, a positive declaration of war would not be surprising to officials here. His next move, it was believed, would develop whether it would be necessary for the American forces now in complete possession of Vera Cruz to proceed further—perhaps to Huerta's capital.

While officials of the war and navy departments worked under stress in preparation for any eventualities, Col. Goethals in Panama had ordered the canal zone placed on a specific war footing and Texas troops were ordered towards the border to help Federal troops patrol districts where there was any danger of outbreaks or raiding by marauders from south of Rio Grande.

Congress had its share in the crisis by enacting the army volunteer army bill which the president was expected to sign to-day. It provides means for raising a volunteer army in emergencies.

Meanwhile Rear Admiral Badger with his marines and blue jackets were restoring order in shell scarred Vera Cruz. The sinister cost of the first move in the war drama was shown by official figures that seventeen Americans perished and 77 were wounded in the seizure of the Mexican port. That was more than the casualties of naval engagements of the entire Spanish-American war when sixteen Americans were killed and 68 wounded. Official messages early to-day reported that the wounded on the hospital ship in Vera Cruz harbor were satisfactorily responding to treatment.

Inquiries over the disposition of the bodies of the marines and blue jackets who perished in the seizure of Vera Cruz reached the war department to-day. Representatives Moore and Vane of Pennsylvania were informed that the victims of the house top snipers would be returned to their home towns by the government on northbound ships.

Rebels Are Attacking Tampico

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Constitutionalists have renewed their attack upon the Mexican Federal garrison at Tampico. This was reported to the Navy department early to-day by Rear Admiral Mayo at Tampico, through Rear Admiral Fletcher at Vera Cruz. The department issued the following statement this morning: "In a despatch from Vera Cruz, dated April 25, Admiral Badger reports the following from Admiral Mayo at Tampico: "The Paterson and Paulding have arrived at Tuxpan. The Esperanza sailed for Galveston with 140 Vera Cruz refugees and 220 Tampico refugees. The Dixie sailed for Galveston with 575 refugees. The total number of refugees, including other ships not mentioned, sent to Galveston is 1,954. So far as is known, all Americans are out of the district around Tampico. The Constitutional attack on Tampico is in progress to-day. Gunboats are firing."

NOW RUINS WHERE FINE CITY STOOD

Nuevo Laredo Was Sacked and Burned by Mexicans.

Sharp Interchange With Americans Across the River.

LAREDO, Texas, April 25.—Smouldering ruins in what was once the populous Mexican border town, Nuevo Laredo, and hundreds of destitute refugees huddled in every possible shelter here, were visible reminders to-day of the desolation wrought here yesterday by Mexican Federals, who burned and dynamited their once strong hold.

Excitement occasioned when the Mexicans began firing across the international line at their sharp interchanges with the United States border patrol subsided quickly when the Federals retreated but left a strong feeling of uneasiness in its wake. All night a reinforced patrol aided by citizen volunteers, guarded the river front, and heavy guards were maintained at the two international bridges. It was feared other attempts to dynamite the means of communication between the two countries would be made.

Two Mexicans were shot yesterday in attempting to destroy the bridges. Some of the more nervous citizens fear another visit of the federals to attack Laredo itself, but army officials, though every precaution is being taken, believe there is no danger. There was no further trouble during the night.

It was definitely ascertained to-day that the wild shooting of the Mexicans have done no damage on American, on the Mexican side however, destruction was complete. Fires were still burning throughout the city to-day, as there is no fire fighting apparatus available. Among the larger buildings ruined is the American consulate which was first dynamited; the post office, the municipal building, the Concordia Theatre, the Mexican National Railroad shops, which in times of peace employed several hundred Americans and the flour mill. So far as known, no lives were lost in the fire.

Miss May Davies was awarded $7,000 for breach of promise in her suit against George Wettlauffer, at Toronto. A witness, Constable McMullen, was arrested charged with perjury.

AMERICANS DESTITUTE IN FLIGHT

After Four Years of Revolution They Are All Penniless.

Touching Incident In Regard to Closing of Mills.

EL PASO, Texas, April 25.—With the arrival here to-day of 97 American men, women and children, refugees from Madero, and 12 picked up by the train at Chihuahua, Americans who have been leaving the country since the Tampico incident are now practically all out of the state of Chihuahua.

The remnant in the city of Chihuahua with the exception of a few who are determined to remain to the last will leave to-morrow on the regular train.

At Naco, Douglas and Nogales on the Arizona-Mexican border, they are arriving by the hundreds every day, and the state of Sonora, save in isolated ranches and camps, not yet reached by warnings, is now practically denuded of them.

After four years of revolution, practically every American in northern Mexico is now a refugee, and property worth many millions of dollars in mines, ranches, factories and other industries has been left behind.

Many of these industries have remained operative partially at least through every difficulty and discouragement of robbery, taxation, uncertain communications and even personal danger of employes, but almost the last one of those Americans who built and maintained them has been driven out by the developments of the affair at Tampico.

W. W. Grubb of Madero, where the great saw mills are, has persistently, but inconstantly, continued to do business, said: "The closing of the mills meant much to us," he said, "but I guess it means more to the thousands of Mexicans employed. There was a big crowd of them at the station when we went away, and some fairly begged us to stay. I don't know what will become of them now that their employment is gone. It was a sad scene, and I didn't have an enemy in the crowd. In fact through the whole trip we encountered nothing but courtesy, and not a sign of enmity."

The contract for Section 4A of the new Welland Canal, to connect with the old canal, has been let to Maguire and Cameron for slightly less than $84,000.

ALL SIGNS POINT TO EXTENSIVE WAR TODAY PREPARATIONS MADE

Presbyterian Missionaries Said to be in Danger in Mexico--Carranza Protests Against American Invasion--Latest News of the Situation.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Anxiety was expressed to-day at the headquarters of Presbyterian board of foreign missions over the safety of several of its missionaries in Mexico. Word was received yesterday that five missionaries had arrived at Vera Cruz from Mexico City with the other Americans aboard the British refugee train. The board sent a cable message to Mexico City inquiring as to the safety of the Rev. H. S. Phillips, who has been working at Zitacuaro. Other missionaries not heard from include Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Wallace, the Rev. N. J. Elliott, of Long Beach, Cal., and the Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Malloy of Corsicana, Texas.

Eligible for Service. NEW YORK, April 25.—Officers in charge of army recruiting stations here called the attention of former soldiers to the Army reserve act of 1912 under which they are eligible for active service if called upon by the president. This act provides that men honorably discharged with a rating of "good" can enlist in the reserves if not over 45 years old and physically capable.

There is a great army of these former soldiers who can join the regular army and serve while needed and not for a stated term. They cannot enlist with the rank they held when discharged, but as privates.

Retired men are not barred from the reserves.

Getting Wireless Ready. NEW YORK, April 25.—A powerful wireless outfit, said to be the largest ever constructed for use of an army in the field, is packed and ready for shipment at Bedloe's Island. Orders are expected from Washington to forward the outfit to Vera Cruz.

The set was constructed by signal corps men and was originally intended for use in Alaska. It has a steel mast two hundred feet high and five feet in diameter at the base. Its estimated radius is 2,500 to 3,000 miles and if set up at Vera Cruz it will be able to hold communication with the great aerial station at Arlington, Va.

Rebels May Take Tampico. JUAREZ, April 25.—An official report from Constitutional sources predicts the early fall of Tampico into the rebel hands. The report declares that the Rebel Commander General Caballero called on the Federal general to surrender or leave the city and fight it out in the open. The latter declined both proposals and the report said a furious attack characterized by sanguinary street fighting began and continued all day.

War Officials Confer. WASHINGTON, April 25.—A lengthy conference in the early morning hours to-day between Secretary of War Garrison, chief of Staff General Wotherspoon, Major-General Wood and other officers, was the culmination of a night of bustling activity at the war department. Strict secrecy was maintained as to the conference, but conditions on the Texas border and the movement of the troops to Vera Cruz were said to have been considered.

Snipers Still Busy. VERA CRUZ, April 25.—Conditions here continue to improve, although during the night there was some sniping operations by sharpshooters even in front of the Hotel Diligencia, the outdoor tables of which were filled with diners. The shootings were not of enough consequence to attract the attention of navy headquarters on shore.

Carranza Protests. LONDON, April 25.—A cablegram from Venustiano Carranza dated Chihuahua saying he protests most energetically against the American invasion of Mexico has been received by a local Spanish press association in Madrid according to Exchange Telegraph Company's despatch. Carranza's message added the Mexican people would unite to fight against the invaders to the last breath, and that of the 17,000 Spaniards in Mexico many were ready to fight by the side of the Mexicans.

SENTENCE WAS SUSPENDED ON YOUNG MAN

False Pretence Case Was Heard in Police Court This Morning

"In future I will impose a severe fine upon all men who jump their bail bonds," said Magistrate Livingstone this morning when a drunk was brought before him who had been found on the 18th of April drunk and bailed. He did not appear and was arrested yesterday. He said he did not remember anything of the matter but the magistrate reminded him that he was sober when he was bailed and the excuse did not work. A sad story of the downfall of a medico lay beneath the charge of false pretences against Fred Kitchen and Wm. King. Together they had on Thursday tried to raise enough to get a few drinks. Kitchen has had an account with the Bank of Hamilton and he made out a cheque drawn upon that bank and asked King to get him five dollars upon it. King endeavored to do so and meeting Wm. Burns got him to give him eight dollars on the cheque. Upon this both Kitchen and King proceeded to enjoy themselves. Burns then tried to cash the cheque but found that it was no good and then he

Firemen Received Call

Last evening about 6.30 the firemen received a call from "Gaywood" the home of Col. M. F. Muir for a grass fire, that was endangering his buildings. Chief Lewis dispatched three men with chemicals, shovels, brooms, etc. to the scene of the blaze, but on their arrival the fire had been extinguished by some neighbors who formed a bucket brigade. D WATER IS WORST ENEMY OF THE ARMY of Surgeon of the United States Army Makes a Statement.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Bad water is the army's worst foe in Mexico if war is declared, according to M. L. Maus, chief surgeon of the army division, which has headquarters on Governor's Island. The chief surgeon explained, were so far modern methods that if an army should be sent into Mexico City entirely new system would have to be provided. He estimated that millions of dollars would be expended in the United States for sanitation from a health standpoint. The occupation of Mexico would be a good thing for that country. To insure pure drinking water, Col. Maus said that filters would be a part of every army division equipment and for water proved too impure for use, it would have to be boiled. He did not express concern except disease among the soldiers, which is typhus in Mexico City, which is responsible for the large mortality among infants in that city, he said. With the sanitation system, that army would provide in the country, even typhus, he declared, would be conquered.

Montreal woman was sentenced to prison in New York city, she pleaded guilty of a charge of petty larceny.

Brantford Music Lovers to Hear Mme. Clara Butt at Hamilton

No musical event has so stirred a city as a concert by Mme. Clara Butt, the voice-wonder of the world. She sings in Hamilton at the Lyric on Thursday evening of next week, April 30. A large delegation from Brantford is going, and as special attention is given to out-of-town patrons, it is an easy matter to secure seats. By sending word to R. F. Brown, Man., at Nordheimer's Music Store, Hamilton, seats will be reserved. Mr. W. H. Webling is also looking after reservations for Brantford people. The immense success of Mme. Clara Butt in Chicago was immediate and complete. Reporting the concert, the critic of the Evening Post said in part: "It is something vastly more important than art that Clara Butt brings to us; it is a vital, human fact. Those great tones roll forth from her with the elemental quality of the ocean surges, and back of that limitless volume, ever flowing on with resistless power, there is a heart as big that is giving itself to you in all sincerity. Her art is many-sided and ripened into perfect maturity, all of which receive their due share of your attention, but the overpowering thing as those mighty billows of tone, brilliant as with the rays of the morning sun, and richly tinted as when he sets blazing in the evening sea, that flood the hall filling your inmost consciousness with their beauty."

MUCH INTEREST IN LOCAL MAUSOLEUM

It is very pleasing to note the interest the best known people of the city are taking in the beautiful mausoleum that is to be built in the Mount Hope cemetery this summer. It stated sufficient subscriptions have been obtained to positively assure its erection as promised by the local company, Manager Cleaveland with his efficient staff of gentlemanly salesmen who have been ready at any time during the day or evening, to devote their entire time for the purpose of educating the people in the way this building is to be constructed. Its material, cost, and explain its minutest detail whether or not the people desire to make a subscription, and its forceful advertising, in order to acquaint the people of Brantford what a building of this kind would do for them. Mr. Cleaveland says that it is not a question of what his company can get in profits, but more to the point, how good this building can be built with a view of making it the best building that will ever be built in the Dominion. The city of Brantford is certainly to be congratulated on being able to get a magnificent chapel entirely of marble and bronze without cost to the city, capable of sheltering 500 people when services are held, with an endowment fund sufficient to give perpetual care.

SAVED THE LIVES OF 19,759 BABIES Effect of Pasteurized Milk Campaign in New York in One Year. WASHINGTON, April 24.—The great progress that has been made in New York city saving the lives of babies was described in a paper by Nathan Straus, read to-day before the International Child Welfare Congress. Mr. Straus, who was unable to be present, had a friend read the paper, and telegraphed his greetings to the congress. In writing of the child welfare work Mr. Straus recalled that when he began his milk campaign, twenty-three years ago, nearly half the deaths were in children under five years, while now less than one-fourth of the deaths are in this age group. At the same time, he pointed out that in the entire country 3,000,000 babies die each year without reaching their first birthday anniversary. Referring to the duplication of his pasteurized milk stations by other private agencies and by New York City, and the adoption by the city of regulations requiring the pasteurization of all milk except that which is certified. Mr. Straus said that the death rate in New York among children under five years had fallen year by year from 98.5 per 4,000 in 1891 to 37.3 in 1913, and that this meant that 19,750 lives had been saved last year. After dwelling upon the elaboration of effort and the multiplication of measures for the welfare of the child, Mr. Straus said: "I beg you to mark well and to hold fast to the fundamental truth that much of the sickness that robs the cradle and prostrates the mother with grief is unnecessary and can be avoided by the simple expedient of pasteurizing the milk that is fed to the babies, so that their food may not by any chance be to them the means of death. This is the foundation of the work of child welfare, the fundamental factor."

Obituary Late Miss Sarah Morey The sad death at the age of 45 years occurred yesterday of Miss Sarah Morey, who was well known in Woodstock, where she had for many years resided. She leaves two sisters in this city to mourn her loss, Mrs. A. Brown and Mrs. John Rutter of this city. The remains will be shipped to Woodstock to-night and burial will take place at that town on Monday. A wide circle of friends will mourn the loss of a good and faithful friend.

BABIES IN BRANTFORD Are Just as Precious as Babies in New York An article in Mail and Empire of April 24 states that in New York last year 19,750 babies' lives were saved, as a result of pasteurizing. Mothers, these facts mean much to you. We are in a position to supply you with first-class pasteurized milk. Don't hesitate. Order now. Hygienic Dairy Co. 54 - 58 Nelson Street Phone 142

Pest House Broken Into. The pest house, situated in the Mt. Hope cemetery, was broken through Thursday night by a thief or thieves, and as far as can be ascertained, not an article stolen. The gravediggers at the cemetery, yesterday noticed that the place had been entered, and reported the matter. It was then found that the storm door of the institution had been torn from its supports and an entrance effected through a window, which had been nailed up. Within the next hour, which has not been used for some time, not a thing had been touched, the beds were not touched and the articles, which lay round, had not been disturbed.

Ladies Aid at Home. Marlborough St. Church was crowded on Thursday evening when the Ladies Aid gave an 'At Home' to the members and friends of the congregation. THE COURIER

Published by The Brantford Courier Limited, every afternoon, at Dalhousie Street, Brantford, Canada. Subscription rate: By carrier, $3 a year by mail to British possessions and the United States, $2 per annum.

Saturday, May 25, 1914

TO RECOUP DEPOSITORS.

In the Dominion House yesterday Hon. Mr. White, Finance Minister, introduced the following resolution:

"Resolved, that it is expedient to provide that there may be paid out of the consolidated revenue fund of Canada a sum not exceeding $1,200,000, to be paid to persons who were creditors for money on deposit in the Farmers' Bank of Canada, the respective amounts standing to their credit in the books of the bank when the bank suspended payment."

This is another of the bungling legacies left by the Laurier Government. It may seem at first blush an unwarranted thing to take from the public chest in order to reimburse unlucky depositors, but the circumstances in this instance were exceptional.

Despite the warnings of Mr. Osler, M.P., and other financial authorities, that this institution had not been planned on a proper or a safe basis. Hon. Mr. Felding, then Finance Minister, granted a certificate, thus making the Government responsible for giving its countenance and sanction to a rotten undertaking.

OUR CORNERED COTEM.

The Courier proved right up to the hilt that the Expositor had wantonly and without one scintilla of just cause attempted to depict Brantford's fine new public building as a bungle.

Did the organ, as it should, do the many thing and apologize? Not on your life! Instead it makes this assertion during the course of an editorial:

"The Courier did not deny the Expositor's story, because it could not. As a matter of fact, the information came, in the first place, from an authoritative and well-informed source, and was thoroughly investigated by the Expositor and confirmation received before it was published. Even the Corrier admits that there was bungling in the preparation of the plans."

It would be very hard to parallel the above for bold-faced effrontery and mendacity. It is unnecessary to assert that this paper did not for one moment, or by any stretch of the imagination, assert any such thing as alleged. What did appear was the statement that two offices intermittently occupied by the Gas Inspector and the Weights and Measures Inspector might be moved to another storey and the increased area be added to the customs examining room.

Be it remarked that said offices have not yet been installed, and are simply on the plan. Probably our sapient cotem, if it had a building in course of erection, and some small readjustment was advisable, wouldn't do the same because the original plan must be worshipped as a fetish, but because it happens to be the possessor of narrow-minded views, it should at least give others some credit for possessing common-sense. To charge such a circumstance as evidence that the whole structure had been bungled is, of course, piffle unworthy of a two-year-old youngster. Our cotem closes its article with the words:

"It now repeats the statements, but merely as statements of fact and a matter of news, and not, as our contemporary would have people believe, because it is any less proud than the Courier of the handsome new building that is being erected."

And having thus made the admission that it is a "handsome" building, the organ should stop attempting to throw mud on the same. It is to be hoped that this incident will constitute the much-needed lesson to our contemporary, that because a political opponent secures something on behalf of the public need, he, and that should be attacked and misrepresented.

BRITISH DIPLOMACY.

A despatch from Washington says: "On all hands, one meets the profoundest admiration for British skill in diplomacy, and especially for Sir Edward Grey, whose example in recognizing Huerta as de facto President of Mexico, until Mexicans themselves decided otherwise, the United States, all say, would have done well to follow."

John Bull certainly knows the diplomatic game far better than any other nation of which there is any record. He keeps in training a corps of discreet men for just that class of work, and the marvellous results are seen in India, Egypt and throughout the world. He can keep his temper when necessary, such as with reference to the Venezuelan matter, and strike hard when he deems the time opportune. His Foreign Secretaries, no matter which side is in power, have practically all proved themselves to be giants, and when occasion arises they receive a most united support. It was Canning who in the eighteenth century got Monroe, then U. S. President, to promulgate the famous doctrine which bears his name, and he made the suggestion for the simple reason that the disturbed state of affairs in Europe rendered it desirable that Great Britain should not have any worries on this continent. Canning took this course because he felt that the Old Land would have a great possible responsibility lifted if he could persuade the U. S. President to declare the American policy of "neither entangling ourselves in the broils of Europe, nor suffering the Powers of the Old World to interfere with the affairs of the New." Canning was just one of many brilliant and far-seeing occupants of the foreign portfolio. More recently the Empire has had such men as Salisbury, Rosebery, and now Sir Edward Grey.

TRIBUTE TO HON. DR. PYNE.

There has been a no more persistently-abused man in Ontario than the Minister of Education. From the Cross Corners "Screacher" to the Toronto Globe, Liberal papers, year in and year out, have sneered at and jibed him, while the Doctor has gone quietly ahead, effecting more reforms in his important department than any previous occupant. Yesterday, at Toronto, his fellow-members of the Legislative Assembly presented him with a silver tea service and an address, in token not alone of his devotion to Sir James Whitney during the long illness of the latter, but also as an evidence of their appreciation of the manner in which he has filled his portfolio.

Among the many reforms in which he has taken part may be mentioned the abolition of the School Book monopoly, the re-organization of Toronto and other universities, improvements in the condition of secondary and elementary education, the teaching of agriculture and trades, the increased pay of teachers—these and very many other things stand to his great credit, and confound his would-be traducers.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Up to date war has not been officially declared by the United States upon Mexico. Proceedings thus far will have to be characterized as a game of ping-pong.

The attention of the local Grit organ is called to the fact that some rain fell on Brantford's new public building this morning. More bungling?

Stratford Herald: "Any Canadian who may still entertain yearnings toward reciprocity, and ultimate free trade, between Canada and the United States, should consider carefully the facts presented in the Dominion House of Commons recently by Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., who quoted freely from a speech lately made in the British House by Mr. Page Croft, M.P. The facts and figures presented showed free trade Britain up to great disadvantage with respect to her exports and imports compared with Germany and the United States."

Uncle Walt

The Poet Philosopher

CHICKENS.

Now man goes forth and makes his garden, a hard and painful grind; and then the crime beyond all pardon destroys his peace of mind. His neighbor keeps a string of chickens, and they, in ill-repute with greed, come o'er and scratch to beat the dickens, and dig up all the seed. And then the man whose wasted labor has set him seeing red, walks o'er to see that hennish neighbor and manures his head. Thus village feuds are often started, and people raise the deuce, and men and dames are broken hearted because some hens ran loose. In any town where leggy chickens run loose, in scores of law, you may be sure that trouble thickens and hearts are sore and raw. Old hens and roosters have created more trouble, caused more tears, than could in seven weeks be stated by seven auctioneers. If you must keep a herd of Dorkings or other brands of fowls, oh, take them where their frantic workings won't stir up grief and howls. To some lone wilderness resort them, some desert far away, there you may cuddle them and sort them, and watch the blamed fools lay.

Birthdays of Note

SATURDAY, APRIL TWENTY-FIFTH

M. R. EMILIUS JARVIS celebrates his fifty-fourth birthday today by retiring from the Commodoreship of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, to which office he has been elected eleven times.

At their destination they were met by Clayton and Mr. Philander in a huge touring car belonging to the former and quickly whirled away through the dense northern woods toward the little farm which the girl had not visited before since childhood. The farmhouse, which stood on a little elevation some hundred yards from the tenants' house, had undergone a complete transformation during the three weeks that Clayton and Mr. Philander had been there.

The former had imported a small army of carpenters and plasterers, plumbers and painters from a distant city, and what had been but a dilapidated shell was now a cozy little two-story house fitted with every modern convenience procurable in so short a time. "I couldn't think of your living in the hole we found here," said Clayton to Jane when they were alone. "Oh, Cecil, I wish I might repay you as you deserve—as you would wish," said Jane.

"Why can't you, Jane?" "Because I love some one else." "Canter?" "No." "But you are going to marry him. He told me as much before I left Baltimore." "The girl winced. "Is it because of the money, Jane?" She nodded.

"Then am I so much less desirable than Canter? I have money enough." He said bitterly. "I don't love you, Cecil," she said. "I respect you. If I must disgrace myself by such a bargain with any man I prefer that it be one I already despise. I should loathe the man to whom I sold myself without love, who-soever he might be."

"You will be happier," she concluded, "alone, with my respect and friendship, than with me and my contempt." He did not press the matter further, but if ever a man had murdered in his heart it was William, Cecil Clayton, Lord Greyrooke, when, a week later, Robert Canter drew up before the farmhouse in his purring six-cylinder.

A week passed—a tense though uneventful week for all. Canter was insistent that Jane marry him at once. At length she gave in from sheer loathing of the continued and hateful importuning.

It was agreed that on the morrow Canter was to drive to town and bring back the license and a clergyman. Clayton had wanted to leave as soon as the plan was announced, but the girl's tired, hopeless look kept him. He could not desert her.

Something might happen yet he tried to console himself by thinking. In his heart he knew that it would require but a tiny spark to turn his hatred for Canter into the blood lust of the killer.

Early the next morning Canter set out for town. In the east smoke could be seen lying low over the forest, for a fire had been raging for a week not far from them, but the wind still lay in the west and no danger threatened them. About noon Jane Porter started off for a walk. She would not let Clayton accompany her. She wanted to be alone.

she said, and he respected her wishes. In the house Professor Porter and Mr. Philander were immersed in an absorbing discussion of some weighty scientific problem. Esmeralda, dozing in the kitchen, and Clayton, heavy eyed after a sleepless night, threw himself down upon the couch in the living room and soon dropped into a fitful slumber.

To the east the black smoke clouds rose higher into the heaven. Suddenly they eddied and then commenced to drift rapidly toward the west. On and on they came. The inmates of the tenant house were gone, for it was market day, and none there was to see the rapid approach of the fire.

Soon the flames had spanned the road to the south and cut off Clayton's return. A little detachment of the wind led slightly to the north, then blew back, and the flames nearly stood still as though held in leash by some master hand.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY. Grandma's Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens so Naturally That Nobody Can Tell.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also cures dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy. brought the police upon the affair. Kitchen who presented an appearance of refinement, although dressed shabbily was an old university man and had passed his medical course and gained his degree and for many years had practiced successfully in Princeton. However, the drink mania seized him and ended in his being brought to his present state. He admitted making out the cheque and said he thought he had an account there. He said that King was an innocent man as far as the charge was concerned. Burns was asked why he had not made the cheque payable for eight dollars in place of the ten, he not giving that amount. He replied that when he got the cheque cashed he was going to refund two dollars to the defendant. Dr. Faskett announced that he was present to make restitution and upon this being known the prisoners were let off upon suspended sentence on payment of cost.

Bryan Will Not Resign

[By Special Wire to The Courier]

WASHINGTON, April 25—Secretary of State Bryan to-day emphatically denied widespread and persistent reports that he would resign from the cabinet. When informed of published reports that he would relinquish his post should war be declared against Mexico, Mr. Bryan said: "The subject of my resignation has never been discussed with anybody by me."

BUXTON'S EVIDENCE

WINNIPEG, Man., April 25—John H. Buxton, turned back at the border in attempting to get into the United States, is still in Winnipeg, but refuses to be interviewed. The Telegram (Conservative) this morning editorially declares Attorney-General Howden is "open to grave criticism" for his action in releasing Buxton, who would be a most important witness for the crown should Hagel and Westlake, convicted largely on his evidence, succeed in their application for a new trial. The Telegram declares it is absurd to think Buxton would return to Winnipeg as a witness should be once get away, and says it looks as though his absence would result in a "mistriage of justice."

Latest Doings Among Local Corps—Guard of Honor For Duke of Connaught.

St. George's Day is gone and has been honored. The ideals which are maintained and can never die, are those which this mystical warrior is supposed to have been possessed of: courage, chivalry and untarnished honor.

A scout has these in his code of honor; they are the source from which the noblest graces of upright living spring.

They are bound up in the lives of those pioneers, missionaries, hurable civilians and soldiers and sailors of the Empire.

Mungo Park, the dauntless pioneer of the Gold Coast, David Livingstone, the light of darkest Africa; Richard Cobden and John Bright the social regenerators of the early days of Queen Victoria; Sir Henry Havelock and Gen. Gordon, men whose lives are memorable by reason of fearlessness and downright unflinching integrity.

These names have the inspiration of St. George, they are the code of scoutcraft; and the silent vow we make to follow in their traditions, is but the inward striving, of these mighty forces.

6. Brant (Trinity) Troop

This troop celebrated the eve of St. George's Day last Wednesday by hoisting the National flag over their headquarters in scout fashion. A successful evening's work was gone through and the boys are keenly looking forward to coming events in the scout world.

Next Wednesday the usual meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Full uniform to be worn, signalling and first aid outfits to be carried.

On Saturday at 2 o'clock, meet at Troop headquarters, for a paper chase.

Saturday, May 16th, Paris scouts are raiding the city, and this troop asks the various troops of the city to rally and help defend Brantford, capture the Paris men and bring their prisoners to the troop headquarters for light refreshments. Details will be announced next week.

The Scouts program for the display on fraternal day during old home week is now complete, and will be a representation of "One hour in a scout camp", in which five picked patrols will illustrate tent pitching, cooking, life saving and various sports, including "Bunny the Bear," and "tub-tilting." An endeavor will be made to secure trophies for the competitive events held during this week.

Brant Avenue Church troop is preparing for the summer's work, and should make a good display on the 9th inst, with the additions to their equipment which is being made.

Members of this troop have now got telegraph lines installed and are becoming proficient in this branch of signalling.

Scouts T. and K. Ruddy of the Dufferin patrol, have now got their wireless telegraph in working order, which is going even one better than the other members of the patrol who are connected by telegraph.

Grace Church troop has been re-organized to some extent, a distinct division being made between the senior patrol, to which S. M. Bentham is giving his personal attention, and the junior division which is being handled by Troop Leader Henwood.

A special endeavor will be made by the Scout Council to arrange a dispatch run on a large scale between Brantford and Paris some time next month. Scouts from each district will endeavor to get through with dispatches which will necessitate two games.

H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught will be received by a guard of honor picked from the local troops on the occasion of his visit to Brantford. All the local scout troops will be on parade at the station where they will be inspected. A picked patrol from each troop will form a flying escort and accompany the Chief Scout by automobile to the Bell Homestead and Golf Club.

The executive of the Brantford Scout Council met at the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday to discuss plans for the furtherance of the scout movement during the coming season.

Several important matters were discussed, and with the support which the council is now extending the work will make rapid strides locally. This is the first time in two years that the executive of the council has met without a special call being extended.

The newly organized Eagle patrol of Zion Church, spent this afternoon in the country, where scout games and dispatch running were indulged in, the headquarters dog "Masco" taking a prominent part.

The headquarters troop is forging ahead and will form part of the guard of honor for the Chief Scout on the 9th inst.

NEW SMALLPOX HOSPITAL SITE

It is Ticklish Question Which Still Remains to be Settled.

The special committees of the city and township councils appointed to get together in the matter of a new smallpox hospital, met yesterday and looked over possible sites on Terrace Hill and West Brantford. The question of a site is now up to the township, and the supposition is advanced that no matter where the hospital is located there will be a kick from surrounding residents. In the matter of cost, a verbal agreement has been reached whereby the township will pay one-fifth and the city four-fifths. The committee which met yesterday were made up of Mayor Spence, Ald. Pitcher, Ryerson, Broadbent and Dr. Pearson.

The Executive of Old Home Week are more than pleased with the success to which the special envelope for that week are meeting. Blain received an order for 16,000 from one firm.

Envelopes can be secured from the executive and bookstores in small quantities, and they hope that every citizen will use them and thereby help to advertise this celebration.

Next week the Decoration Committee will meet on Monday night and on Tuesday night the Parade and Music committee will meet.

From Agony to Health

How Sufferers from RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO and SCIATICA, may find speedy, welcome relief and certain cure

KEPHALDOL

Pronounced KEPH-AL-DOLE

At last the victims of these torturing complaints—men and women whose lives are long-drawn-out agony—may look with hope, confidence—certainty—to pain's most glad departure.

In Kephaldol is offered, for the first time, a remedy which not only has medical endorsement for its efficacy in all cases of RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, and SCIATICA, but is also guaranteed to be a perfectly safe pain-killer, containing nothing to injure the heart or any other bodily organ.

Kephaldol is prompt and reliable, causes no intestinal irritation, and has none of the characteristic after-effects of quinine and phenacetin. Kephaldol brings, indeed, untold blessings to pain-wracked humanity: joy of perfect life again to those who, perhaps for many years, have dragged through a tormented existence. Kephaldol is prescribed and praised by doctors, and gratefully appreciated by sufferers.

MR. JOS. WOOD, Derby Road, Marsden, Eng. tells of his remarkable recovery. His own words are—"I have been of work three years and six months, and nothing I could get did me any good. I was suffering from Lumbago and Sciatic Rheumatism. Had six weeks in the hospital, but the doctor said he could do no more for me. "I got some Kephaldol on Friday. On the morning of Wednesday I had no pain and no painful joints. I felt a new man, and have had no return of it. "One of my workmates was of work 12 months. After taking Kephaldol he tells me he has now no pain. Another who had been laid up 11 weeks is also free from pain now. Every day I am asked for the name of the stuff that has sent me to work again. Kephaldol is now taken for three or four miles around here."

H. Company Holds Jolly Snoker Last Night at the Armories—Military Orders.

H company held their annual company social and sing-song in the men's institute last night. Col. Serfat Piley was in the chair and there were present Capt. Cutcliffe, Lieut. Fraser and Bennet. The smoke lent genial fumes and in its inspiration many excellent musical turns were sung. Pie, Murphy as at all functions taking the men by storm, singing his masterpiece "Bonnie Bessie Lee." "Wait for the Murphy Man" is the slogan at the armories, "Barney from Kilarney" was another from his repertoire of Irish humor.

Among the others were recitations and Pte. Lahque was in good elocutionary style as he rendered the stirring story of the American Civil War—"Barbara Fitchett." In a song that had the roll of the high seas Pte. Garner was in an element, which seemed at once natural and accustomed. Sergt. Fayle, Sergt. Sapy, and Pte. Dear were quite of barrack room flavor and their favorite soldier choruses got heartily sung. On being called upon to speak, Col. Howard gave a very interesting talk on some aspects of soldiering as he saw them on the continent and particularly in the Swiss army. He emphasized the fact that he felt every man ought to be able to bear arms for his country, and he wants each man to try to bring in a recruit and only those of the best stamp—"there's a uniform for that kind only," he concluded. Capt. Cutcliffe responded to an oration which demonstrates his popularity and put up a nice little speech encouraging the "boosters" who have been doing excellent recruiting work. Shooting would soon commence and many Saturdays could be spent profitably and enjoyably on the ranges where there would be instructors willing to help all in their practice. The graphonola was in constant requisition and many dances were impromptu and if lacking in ball room graces, quite as enjoyable. A splendid cold supper was partaken of amid quips and constant fire of good natured jollying. Accompanying on the piano was Mr. Fred Lind, who was most acceptable and able in the versatile variety he lent himself to. Some where after 12 o'clock God Save the King terminated a rollicking night. The members of C Company are reminded that the annual theatre and supper party will take place next Wednesday evening. The Co's Secy, Pte. R. Cross has reserved boxes on

A Plain Colonial Cement House

DESIGNED BY CHAS. S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.
This house is planned with a front porch, the main house being 36 ft. and the piazza at the side 12 ft. making 48 ft. width by depth of 28 ft. and estimated to build for $4500. It is set low to the grade and the stories are 8 ft. 6 in. and 8 ft. 6 in. height with the roof cornice brought down close over the second story windows.
It is a sunny and pleasantly arranged house with a large living room across the main front and a porch and vestibule entrance at the left. In the center of the living room a wide front window, and between the two side windows a desk. In one corner of the room there will be a great wing chair, while near the fireplace will be drawn two deep easy chairs. Near another window will be a small stiff upright chair, while temptingly near comparatively small outfit.
The walls all down stairs in today's house and the hall of the second floor we will paper a light pinkish tan, the rugs of both living and dining room to be of a much darker tan.
In the center of the living room we will place a long rather narrow table, between the two front windows a low broad couch, and between the two side windows a desk. In one corner of the room there will be a great wing chair, while near the fireplace will be drawn two deep easy chairs. Near another window will be a small stiff upright chair, while temptingly near shelves on either side, and at the right a wide opening into the dining room. At the rear is the kitchen with a convenient pantry connecting with the dining room. The stairs are liberal in size and on the combination order with grade entrance to the basement underneath and short section of stairs from the kitchen connecting with the main platform. The piazza or sun room at the left is connected with the living room by wide French windows and is 12 ft. in width by 14 ft. in depth, enclosed with glazed windows and screened.

The second floor has three large bed rooms and one small bed room, each provided with ample clothes closets. A large bath room is provided and stairs leading to the attic which is used for storage purposes. There is in addition a sleeping porch above the main sun room connecting with the main hall. There is a good basement under the entire house with laundry, heating rooms, etc.
The main floor is designed to be finished in Mission oak or fir and the second floor in birch. The exterior is cemented with a "pebble dash" finish, and all of the trimmings stained dark brown and the roof the same.

Furnishing To-day's House

A BEAUTIFUL long living room is always a source of delight to a woman, for its possibilities of attractiveness are great, and such good effects can be attained with all with ferns; have great wicker chairs and tables; a lounge with cushions galore; a wicker desk and sewing table; little low wicker rockers, all overloaded with fat cretonne covered cushions, and here will always be a place to drop down and get new strength for the day's work. Through the winter a softening touch can be given by curtains of the same flow-

Equal Franchise Ladies In a Complaining Mood

Their Slight Request For Endorsement By the City Council Turned Down—A Letter From the Secretary.

Members of the Equal Franchise Club do not like the recent action of the City Council as will be seen from the following letter.
The Equal Franchise Club have noted with regret the scant courtesy accorded them by the majority of the Municipal Council, when dealing with their very moderate request that the Council pass a resolution in favor of extending the municipal franchise to married women on the same basis as now enjoyed by all widows and spinsters.
Alderman Hollinrake, has, in the past, professed himself in favor of equal franchise, and we were surprised that when he had the opportunity to back up his expressed convictions, to find him drawing back. We should like to ask the worthy gentleman upon what basis he makes the statement are not in favor of securing the municipal franchise. Has he recently taken a census of the opinions of the married women on this question.
The Club would also like to ask Alderman Pitcher if his wife is not a separate entity, with an individuality of her own, which he cannot represent.
Mayor Spence referred to the percentage of women who voted at the last election, and also on the Street Railway By-law. The Equal Franchise Club desire to know what percentage of the male voters voted on the Railway By-law. Would the worthy Mayor also tell the Club whose vote it was which so very nearly carried the Local Option By-law when that question came before the voters.
The Mayor has failed, however, to refer to the well-known fact that the last Hospital By-law was carried by the vote of the women.
His Worship further stated that he did not believe in placing the women on the same basis as many of the men who now have the vote. Judging by his decision, he does believe in placing us in the same category as the insane, paupers, criminals and minors.
The Equal Franchise Club believe in equal franchise for all competent men and women.

ered cretonne as covers the chairs and cushions, and if lined with a soft old rug, or other color if preferred, would diffuse a soft light over all.
One of the bed rooms would be attractive done in a tan cretonne with great peacocks perched on great rose bushes which are covered with deep red roses and green leaves. The couch and chair coverings could be of solid green, while the curtains and cushions have the peacocks. The rug had best be a very deep tan or dull green. The little touches in the room could be of red.
Another room of gray wall paper and rug could have curtains and furniture covering of blue, with the inner curtains of soft white marquisette.
In the third room we will use pink; the paper gray, the rug a soft gray green; the inner curtains the same white marquisette; the outer area of white covered with great trailing sprays of pink water-lilies. The couch and the easy chairs we will do the same, with the cushions for the couch done in all pink, and the chair at the dressing table we will cover with the pink green of the rug.
For the last bed room, again we will use the gray rug and gray walls, and the same marquisette curtains. As this room is too small for large pieces of furniture, we will cover the small chairs in green, while at the windows we will hang the long soft gossam, in a midnight yellow. These two colors give the feeling of space more than do most others, and so are always good selections for such rooms.

LOUISE GOODLON FALCONER.
NEW CHINESE CREPE.
CHINESE crepe is extremely fashionable, and many gaudy articles are being made from it. When it becomes soiled, make a strong lather of boiling water and a good white soap. Allow this to cool and wash the crepe by pressing it with the hands. Rinse it in salty water, to set the colors, and dry in the open air. Wash the crepe as quickly as possible to prevent the colors from running.

the wheels of progress cannot be stayed; the Woman's movement is with us, and we have not a doubt of the ultimate result.
Have those worthy gentlemen who opposed our request, ever given the subject serious consideration? Have they ever read even one volume on the question, or discussed the matter intelligently with one person?
The Equal Franchise Club desire to express their sincere gratitude to the gentlemen, who so nobly championed our cause, and trust that we may in the future have the opportunity of showing the same in a more practical form.

Yours truly,

Shriners at London.
The annual spring ceremonial session of Mocha Temple is always a family affair, the number of visitors from other shrines being small as compared with the December session. However, it is none the less enjoyable and the candidates are initiated into the mysteries with as much energy and fire works accompaniments as they would have been, had there been scores of visiting patrols and potentates. c

LIGHT PRACTICE ONLY WAS HELD YESTERDAY

Red Sox Regulars Continue to Make Good Showing - Pitchers Are Slowly Rounding Into Mid-Season Form.

Owing to a cold west wind blowing across the diamond, Manager Deneau put his squad through only a light workout yesterday afternoon at Agricultural Park. Batting and fielding practice was indulged in and the men showed lots of pep despite the chilly breeze. The squad was minus the services of both Nichol and Foinston, who were yesterday released to Woodstock, in the semi-pro league.

Nevitt is Hard Worker; Saints Expect Good Year

St. Thomas Canadian League team's training camp, Charlotte, Mich., April 23.—The weather was ideal for baseball here Wednesday. Hardly a cloud was to be seen, and the temperature registered about 65. But one workout was indulged in starting at half past twelve and lasting until about 4.30. As usual the boys took their hike into the country in the morning, as an appetizer.

But seventeen players were out to practise, as Mort Hammon, a south-paw, was released in the morning, and left for his home in Pennsylvania at 12.40.

The boys are looking better and better each day and to-day there are but one or two who are feeling at all stiff or sore. The pitchers have all got over their stiffness due to the administrations of 'Chief' Nevitt. 'Chief' is right there when it comes to fixing sore arms and is busy every night rubbing and bathing three or four of the fellows' wings.

Sporting Comment

Well, the rattle of the tin can has been heard and several pseudo ball-players have departed from our midst, as was noticed in this column yesterday. More are due to-day for the woods, and that will mean that next week will witness the real Red Sox down to hard work. How different from the indecision of former years, when for weeks the town was burdened with the care and keep of a lot of young men, of whom it could have been said the first day that they never would make ball players and who would have been better employed on the farm. It is different this year, and we congratulate Rube Deneau.

"You need have no worry about those pitchers," said Deneau, last night; "they will be in shape opening day." As a matter of fact Deneau has instructed his hurlers not to do any real work until the weather is warmer and they have been at it for a few days longer. No use pitching for records at this stage of the season.

Chubby Coose and the Rube had an argument yesterday. Coose remarked to the manager that unless he felt better in seven or eight days he thought he would go home. "What's that," remarked the Rube. "If you don't look better in two or three days you will go home anyway." Coose does not look like the same player he did two years ago. He has not the ginger; although he is very anxious to show something particularly after being released at Dayton.

Rickart is reported to have the job at third base cinched. He is a good hitter and a good gingery player all round. Moreover he has had experience and that helps a whole lot. Deneau figures he was lucky to get him. He fits in well with Honeck.

Eddie Taylor did some fancy work around first base yesterday which pleased the fans immensely. Taylor is about as nifty a player as has ever graced the Red Sox team. It does not seem likely that he will play first base, but is more likely to go to second. This is only a report, as it is pretty hard to dope out the Rube's intentions. This much is known that Taylor is going to be in the game every day, and that Ivers is going to play right field. Deneau is sure that he can make Gabby into a dependable fielder. In that case it will be either Deneau or Taylor for first base. If Taylor went there, it would leave provision for a utility man, as Taylor could be removed and Deneau go to the bag as occasion arose. This would leave Wagner at his old job at second. When fans get a glimpse of Taylor, they will appreciate the fact that he is a cracking good player, and it is a case of using him to get the best results. Taylor wants to be in the game every day.

In Hamilton five teams have started out to sell 700 book tickets for the local club. The Brantford book tickets were issued this week and it is hoped there will be a good response.

The Hamilton Rowing club team has been offered a game here next Wednesday with the Sox.

Here is the dope as far as we are able to guess it. Catcher, Lamont; pitchers—Chase, Carroll, Connell, Gero, Worfel; first base—Deneau or Taylor; second base—Wagner or Taylor; shortstop—Honeck third base—Rickart or Beltz; left field—Burns, centre—Sandusky; right—Ivers; utility—Coose, Taylor or Wagner. The above are only given as possibilities of the situation.

Sport was one of the subjects touched upon by the Rev. C. E. Jenkins in an address at the S. O. E. banquet Thursday. When the reverend gentleman says sport, he thinks of something different to that picture which is instantly conjured up in the minds of the average Canadian fan. He does not allude to thousands of people attending a baseball game or to any other sport which the majority watch. This is not sport in his estimation. Sport consists in playing the game not merely watching it, and he said so as one of the varsity soccer men. Active participation in the game made sport, but mere watching, never.

Why do the papers publish so much sport, he queried. "If I read all the sporting news of one paper, I would have time for nothing else," he continued. It was not good for thousands of people to go and watch a football match, a cricket match or a baseball game. That was not the true spirit of sport. "Mind you, I do not deny sport, and I am a believer in sports for all youths."

When his little boy grew older he hoped to teach and practice him in the art of cricket and football, two of the most manly sports which he thought existed. He had been asked by a local secretary to attend a football match and he was going to see it. But he saw no sense whatever in the craze for sport which causes fans to devour all the pages of sport printed.

Sport of this kind was not beneficial to the country. It did not help to build up the physique of the nation. The men who had built the nation in the past had not watched the games. They had taken part in the game. A to-day he would like to see the young men of the Empire take a more active part in the games of sport.

HOW TO EARN MONEY

Imagine a youth earning $286,000 in the last four and a half years in the prize ring. That is just what Ad Wolgast, the Michigan wildcat, and former lightweight champion of the world, has done. Tom Jones, his manager, is authority for the statement. If these figures be correct Manager Jones al-ways must have a nice little wad tucked away in some financial institution, for managers usually get on an average of twenty-five per cent of their fighter's winnings. If Tom Jones had the manager's proportion of that sum he would be on easy street with his share.

These are not the dreams of a highly imaginative individual. A champion commands a big sum for his appearance in the ring. He knows the public will pay to see him fight especially if he is pitted against a worthy antagonist. Take for instance the present champion, Willie Ritchie who dethroned Wolgast. Ritchie received about $17,000 for fighting Wolgast in Milwaukee not so long ago. His latest battle with Harlem Tommy Murphy, whom he severely whipped in twenty rounds, netted him $15,000—he having been guaranteed that sum, win or draw. In the near future he will hook up with Charlie White in Milwaukee or Jimmy Duffy, of Lockport, most likely to later, if Manager Foley keeps his word with the matchmaker of one of the Buffalo clubs. It will be a matter of dollars, however, speaking of the Buffalo probability. Ritchie is reported to have been offered $12,000 by Tom Andrews, of the beer city, to meet Charlie White.

Ritchie's manager promised to have the lightweight champion in Buffalo for his first fight following the Murphy bout, provided he defeated the Harlem lad. That battle is now a matter of ring history. Ritchie is guaranteed $10,000 to meet Duffy in Buffalo. It is now up to Foley to keep his word with the Buffalo club.

Speaking of $15,000 and $10,000 purses for lightweights should make the stars of the past stir uneasily in their slumbers. How many men are there in this world who can command the sum of $15,000 for half an hour's work?

Tom Jones produced a letter from Wolgast a few days ago. The Dutchman wrote he was to receive $5,000 for fighting a youngster named Tillman in Hudson, Wis., and that he had been offered $9,000 to meet Leech Cross in New York city. "And," chirped Jones, "I have in my pocket a letter from Jimmy Coffroth offering me $50,000 for Wolgast in four fights, he to receive that sum, win, lose or draw. That's going some eh?"

I guess it is.

Adam Reidt, a farmer of Wallace township, after chopping grain in his barn was killed by being caught between a pulley and the belt of the engine he had evidently tried to throw off.

HEADACHY, COSLIVE, BILIOUS—"CASCARETS"

Liver and bowels are clogged—Clean Them To-night. Feel Bully.

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; decayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10 cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

The Piker

They call him a "piker"—perhaps they were right. He didn't spend much with gang. On drinks and cigars he was certainly "tight." And to tip gave him really a price. He never "threw money around" a prince. Or played "the good fellow" at the club he was known as a "quince" and a "quince." And the stuns that he squandered were small.

But his family had what his p could afford. And he slaved for his girls and boys. He'd lend to a comrade in need his board. Without any boasting or noise. He would help any chap in the D and Out club. Though the fact was not blazy to fame. But waiters declared him a "ch skate" and "dub." And spendthrifts considered "tame."

Well, here is the moral, too pe to miss. And one it is wise to recall. "A sport is a sport, but a piker this is the bulkiest sport of them al

LONDON SEES BRILLIANT SEASON WITH OPENING OF THE ROYAL OPERA

This Event is the Signal for the Starting of a Round of Important Events—One of the Most Remarkable on Record Was the Underground Party Last Week at Welbeck Abbey.

AMERICANS GATHERING FOR THEIR "INVASION"

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, April 25.—The season, which is likely to be brilliant, made an early commencement with the opening of the Royal Opera House on Monday—an event which is the signal for a round of important fixtures. The King and Queen were absent in Paris, but they have subscribed for the season, and the royal box frequently will be lent to members of the royal family when the King and Queen are not present. The King prefers his usual corner in the royal omnibus box on the pit tier.

There is some talk of the gala performance for the King and Queen of Denmark. The court will be in residence at Buckingham Palace in May, and great state ceremonies are to mark the presence of the King and Queen of Denmark. The Royal Academy opens at the beginning of May and is an event influencing the movements of many county families who time their arrival in town for the private view. In fact, the season opens on Monday with the prospects of offering every element of success if the political horizon clears and no untoward happening intervenes.

Never before has the month of May had fair to be of such exceptional brilliance. With a hall given by Lord Curzon on May 4 at his fine house in Carlton House Terrace for Lady Irene Curzon's debut, when the King and Queen will attend and dance, the season will be fittingly inaugurated. Lady Irene inherits the good looks of her late mother, who was the famous Miss Lettice.

The Duchess of Devonshire also announces a royal ball at Devonshire House on May 14, when the King and Queen will attend.

Duke's Underground Ball.

The most interesting event of the week was at Welbeck Abbey, world famous for the vast underground apartments, which will be the scene of a memorable ball in celebration of the coming of age of Lord Titchfield, eldest son of the Duke and Duchess of Portland. The Duke of Portland already has made public gifts, including recreation grounds in Nottinghamshire, to the amount of $150,000 to commemorate the coming of age of his only silver wedding. There were 1,400 guests present, including Prince Alexander of Teck, who is stopping with the Duke and Duchess of Rutland, Lady Diana Manners, Lady Salisbury, Lord Cranborne, Lady Mary Cecil, Lord and Lady Henry Cavendish-Bentinck, Lord Grenfell, Marquis de Soveral, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Midway and Comtesse de Baillet Latour. Many from the neighboring barracks and camps of the Sherwood Rangers, the South North Hussars and the Derbyshire Yeomanry made bright military display of variegated uniforms.

'White Wolf's' Brigand Band Sacks, Burns and Murders and Laughs at the Troops

China Is Terror Stricken by the Ravages of the Most Desperate Outlaw That Has Looted Communities Since Days of the Taipings—Peking Powerless to Stop Outrages.

LEADER A BRUTAL KING WHOSE WORD IS LAW

(Special Dispatch.)
PEKING, April 25.—DEAD men, women and children, a wide swath of smouldering embers, a string of ruined cities, a trail of tears of thousands, are being left in the wake of the fast moving brigands commanded by the notorious "White Wolf," a more brutal and more desperate than any that has menaced China since the days of the terrible Taipings.

"White Wolf" is no stranger to the Chinese, though he has not risen to world notoriety till recent months. He has long been a terror in the region of North Hupah and South Szechuan, mostly confining his attention to robbery under the guise of the holding up of Chinese villages remote from railway communication and garrisons of troops, not murdering for pleasure, but killing when necessary to obtain the wherewithal for his band to live and enjoy life.

Troops that have been sent against him have failed entirely in the campaign, the mountain paths, the difficult passes and the local knowledge of the bandits of ways combining to bring about their discomfiture. The peasants and the townspeople in the region ultimately abandoned attempts to capture the band and compromised with it by agreeing to pay regular sums for immunity from ravages.

"White Wolf" was the king whose word was law. Peking had no power for him and meant nothing to the unhappy farmers, who found it much more profitable to pay "White Wolf" to leave them alone than to pay the government to protect them. Government influence and authority thus lapsed and the brigands were eventually left to act upon their own sweet will in a large area, the government being content to permit them to conduct themselves as they would so long as they did not overdo the thing by coming too far east into regions where their deeds would find chroniclers in the press and thus bring discredit upon the government.

His Savage March.

He burned villages, town and farmstead, massacred inhabitants without let or hindrance, and when the newspapers began to report the terrible outrages then the government awoke to a sense of its responsibilities. An army of from 30,000 to 40,000 troops was sent out fully equipped for war. They are alleged to have hemmed "White Wolf" and his followers in the Anhui mountains, forcing reports of desperate battles poured into Peking; telegrams chronicled the daily slaughter of hundreds of brigands, and eventually the general in command announced that the end was about to arrive—"White Wolf" and his bandits were tightly held and the gallant troops were about to descend upon them from the face of the earth. A battle was fought; despatches arrived in Peking declaring the break-up of the desperadoes, and the country was told to be at peace—the soldiers had triumphed!

THE NEW GERMAN ARMY REGULATIONS

(Special Dispatch.)
BERLIN, April 25.—The semi-official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung states—The new regulations prepared by the military and its co-operation in the suppression of internal disturbances will shortly be communicated to the troops. These regulations, drawn up by the Prussian Ministry of War, have received the assent of the Federal States concerned and of the Statthalter of Alsace-Lorraine.

Loat and Murder.

Hundreds poured into the city disguised as farmers, and many mounted the walls to help the citizens discover the first coming of the brigands. A signal from the distance showed them that the leader and his followers were arriving, and in compliance with an arranged signal the brigands within commenced firing on the populace when the brigands without opened their attack. The gates of the city were thus kept open and resistance was useless, the bravest of the citizens having been killed before they knew where they were.

As "White Wolf" approached the gates the cry went up—"Old White Wolf is in. He is going to kill the rich and save the poor. All keep indoors and you will be safe." The wealthy donned ragged clothes and sped to the houses of the poor; women and girls, terror stricken, crept beneath beds, hid under straw and farm produce or hid to commit suicide in wells or water holes.

SHORT STORIES

A characteristic story of Dr. Parker was told the other day by a clergyman, who had it from an old minister who was much interested in Joseph Parker's early work as a local preacher. One Saturday he met Parker and asked him whether he had an engagement for Sunday.

"Yes, was the reply, and Parker went on to specify the place.

"Are your sermons ready, Joseph?" asked the minister.

"I have the morning sermon," was the reply, "but I am not sure about the evening."

"Well, Joseph, what is your text for the morning, and how do you treat it?"

Parker went over what his text and the outline of his sermon.

"But, Joseph," said the minister, "that is very clever, but it is not the real meaning of the text. If you will look at the commentaries you will see that you are wrong."

Parker thanked him and went his way. On the Monday the minister again met his friend.

"Well, Joseph how did you get on yesterday?"

"Very well," was the reply.

"How did you manage?"

"Well," he said, "in the morning I preached my sermon, and explained the text in my way, and at the close I said, 'This is how I understand it. But learned men understand it differently, and I will tell you in the evening how the learned men understand it.'"

They all came back in the evening and Joseph had a happy day.

Some stories told about Mrs. Weldon, the celebrated "Modern Fortia" who recently passed away, indicate what a clever woman she was.

She once set the court laughing owing to her replies to counsel.

"You are Mrs. Georgiana Weldon," she was asked.

MARRIAGE WITHOUT LOVE IS BIGGEST OF ALL MISTAKES

Says Dorothy Dix

These are the great mistakes on the matrimonial calendar - To marry on insufficient means because when the bill collector begins to pound on the door, Cupid jumps out of his window.

To marry a woman because she is a parlor ornament and expect her to turn into a kitchen utensil as soon as the marriage ceremony is over.

To marry a man or a woman to marry with the intention of making over the other one's character to his or her ideal.

To marry a person whose tastes are not similar to your own.

To marry out of your own class either socially, financially, intellectually or morally.

To cut out the jolly because you are married. During courtship flattery is an aid to success. After marriage it is a necessity.

To fall into the error of thinking that matrimony gives one the privilege of eating onions, wearing frothy clothes and telling unpleasant truths in the home circle.

For a husband or wife to curtail the other's personal liberty. The man who opens his wife's letters and the woman who goes through her husband's pockets will inevitably come to rate each other.

To try to live together twelve months in the year. To be separated too much. To try to live with either his family or her family.

Not to settle the money question before marriage. To appeal to outsiders to arbitrate their family spats.

To try to live in boarding house or hotel. The lack of a home is the best aid to divorce.

For the wife not to have plenty of work to do to fill up her hands and thoughts. To marry until the woman has had her fill of admiration from man, and the man is tired of running with the boys.

For the man not to throw responsibility on his wife's shoulders, and make her feel that she must be his real helpmate, instead of a doll to dress up and play with.

BLACK HAND SECRETS REVEALED BY CHIEF OF SECRET SERVICE

The Baffling Mystery of the Barrel Murder By William J. Flynn

Introduction.

MAGINE a monstrous spider web in place of filaments of silver and threads of gold. Each slender strand of the web is a living organism electrified by human energy and intelligence.

The web spans all directions, its centre being a certain desk in the city of Washington, and radiates to a thousand points scattered over the United States. At the desk sits William J. Flynn, and through his eyes the United States Secret Service, of which he is chief, sees all things which are of a special interest to Uncle Sam. Here is an intellect—a most supernatural force—literally touching and controlling every thread of this wonderful spider web organization.

A quick nod from the chief, the nervous clicking of a telegraph key and one of the filaments of the web is galvanized into activity and a criminal or a band of lawbreakers is helplessly entangled.

Imagine this and you will gain a glimpse of the scope and potency of the Secret Service Bureau and you will understand something of the work of Chief Flynn.

Each day there come to his desk in the Treasury Building, Washington, reports from operatives scattered all over the country, informing the head of the bureau of the movements in detail of the criminals for whom the web is ready.

These operatives are men of many nationalities. Sometimes they communicate with Washington by telephone, sometimes by letter, less often by telegraph, but should one of them see him in conversation with another he would never guess of what the two were talking.

This is the man—William J. Flynn, chief of the United States Secret Service—who will tell, in a series of ten articles, written expressly for us, more than has ever been revealed of the workings and the exploits of the Secret Service. There are many things which Chief Flynn cannot make public. A little slip of the tongue, a word too much emphasized, and he would have to do a score or more of faithful agents of the service to a horrible death. Not only this, but he must in no way impair the competency of the bureau of which he is chief.

For a year and a half he made such a phenomenal record that John Wilkie, then Chief of the Secret Service, sent him to Pittsburgh as head of the Western district of Pennsylvania. So promptly and decisively did he clean up this district, which was infested with counterfeiters, that Wilkie made him Chief of the Department of the East.

Mr. Flynn has been engaged in almost a constant battle of wills with counterfeiters for more than fifteen years, most of the time in New York, the busiest centre for the making of spurious notes in the United States.

By William J. Flynn, Chief of the United States Secret Service.

THIS IS a "Black Hand" Society. It is not a figment of fiction, nor the invention of a reporter; it is the coin of avarice, but a group of men banded together by such obligations and for such detestable purposes as to readily test the credulity of the American mind.

I have had men in authority ask me if such a band of criminals actually exists in America, wishing to know the truth so that they might lend their aid in any effort put forth for the purpose of suppressing and removing from our midst the organization.

Giuseppe Morello and Ignazio Lupo, the Wolf, leaders of the society, languish behind bars in the federal prison in Atlanta, Ga. Comito, the Sheep, whose confession helped to put them there, is in the Argentine, where he has reason to feel secure against the vengeance of the band, knowing that were he killed many Black Handers would lose their lives for his. Many of the men who were once powerful in the society are slain or have been placed by less violent means where their FRANCES CONNORS left her little room in an east side tenement house early on the morning of April 12, 1933, to go to the bakery for rolls for breakfast. Mrs. Connors was a normal woman and thereby endowed with a generous share of curiosity.

As she passed in front of the New York Market Works, at avenue D and Eleventh street, she noticed a barrel standing near the curb. An overcoat was thrown over the head of the barrel. It was a decent looking coat, not ragged enough to be thrown away, and Mrs. Connors' curiosity grew.

Why should any one, even a wealthy person, throw away an overcoat which was not worn out.

In this work Chief Flynn pitted himself against the mighty power of the Black Hand and its murderous leaders, and it is chiefly his desperate fight against this organization that he will tell in his own way in these articles. Many stories will be related for the first time, and several mysteries which have long baffled the police of New York and other cities will be cleared up. If there is any doubt in your mind that the Black Hand exists you should read these articles. Chief Flynn himself says that its organization and methods tax to the utmost the credulity of the American mind. It is difficult to believe that such a body of men can flourish in a matter of fact America, yet it does, and Chief Flynn will divulge for the first time the very ritual of the society, the secret ceremonies they hold, and the way in which they plot murder and execute their schemes.

How does the Chief know this ritual? That would be telling the story too fast. He will describe it in his own way.

"A detective," he says, "should have some natural ability and a whole lot of common sense. He should also be patient and industrious. False whiskers and rubber boots belong to the melodrama—best seats in the house thirty cents."

How does the Chief know this ritual? That would be telling the story too fast. He will describe it in his own way.

That is what Chief Flynn did with the Lupo-Morello band, as you shall see—read in all its astounding and dramatic details, which reveal facts never before made public.

Mr. Flynn was born in New York City forty-five years ago. After being educated in the public schools of the city he went into the plumbing business and into the Secret Service. If you were to ask the chief why he deserted plumbing for his present profession he would probably tell you:—

"Oh, I got tired of working so hard and seeing my men do the same. I might have become a promiscuous plumber had I stuck to the job, but I am glad I followed my bent and am now a detective."

There are a score of stories of his fairness and kindness. An instance is the treatment he accorded to Comito—the Sheep—whose confession will be detailed in the subsequent articles. This, by the way, is another of the things described for the first time, and it plays upon the keyboard of all the emotions and passions that go to make up humanity.

Recently a man high in the federal government in Washington questioned the existence of a Black Hand organization. For several nights Chief Flynn was closeted with this official, telling him just what he is going to tell in this newspaper.

Do you doubt that there is a Black Hand in America? This official no longer doubts. Here Chief Flynn begins to tell you why.

activities are harmless, but the work of the Black Hand goes on. The headquarters of the Black Hand Society are in New York city, and it is there its members are most active in preying on their countrymen, robbing the unwary and living up to their pledges to grow wealthy by terrorizing Italians, to hurl bombs to destroy the property of those who refuse to submit to blackmail, to kidnap little children, to shoot horses, to poison the animals of their enemies, to make counterfeit money and to commit murder when there is necessity.

All that I know of this organization I must not tell, for to do so would jeopardize the lives of men who serve the government unknown to society, unknown even to one another, identified in the files of the United States Secret Service merely by surname. Should I divulge the names of these men—and I am the only person who knows them—THEY WOULD MEET CERTAIN DEATH.

But that is quite a story in itself. For the present I must show you why I make the categorical statement, "There is a Black Hand Society."

Mrs. Connors stepped to the barrel, lifted a corner of the garment and peered in. A cry of terror broke from her lips. She dropped the coat back over the grizzly thing she had seen and staggered, pale and shaken, away from the barrel.

Other persons had seen her strange actions. In a moment a little group, also fired by curiosity, collected. The frightened woman stammered out what she had seen. Some one ran for a policeman, and an ambulance was sent for, and the crowd grew.

Meanwhile a policeman drew the body of a man from the barrel into which it had been jammed. When the ambulance surgeon arrived he announced what all had known. The man was dead. A strip of gunnysack had been wound around his neck, hiding a dozen wounds, any one of which would have caused death. The neighborhood was in a panic. The Police Department was at sea, and the entire city of New York was agog before Mrs. Connors recovered from the shock of her discovery.

William J. Flynn

highly receding, covered with thin curly hair of a light brown tinge. His mustache was streaked with gray. On the left cheek were two old scars which formed an inverted letter "V". Photographs of the man were made promptly and compared with pictures in the rogues' gallery at Police Headquarters, but the victim was not to be identified in that way. The police investigation of the circumstances of the crime failed to disclose the man's name.

The markings on the barrel led to no discovery of value. The letter, which was regarded as perhaps the most prominent clue, turned out to be only tantalizing. Half a dozen more words unobscured, perhaps only a single word, might have told so much. There was a tendency on the part of many to attribute the crime to a woman or at least to a woman in the motive, because of the letter. However, as the identity of the victim was not established, there was no woman toward whom suspicion might point.

All this I read in the evening papers. I was at that time watching in New York a band of Sicilians whom I suspected of certain crimes of which I shall treat hereinafter. Should I divulge the names of these men—and I am the only person who knows them—THEY WOULD MEET CERTAIN DEATH.

But that is quite a story in itself. For the present I must show you why I make the categorical statement, "There is a Black Hand Society."

talked a fourth man, whose face was unlit, stood alone on the sidewalk near the door close to the flickering glare of the street light smoking. The three men were evidently arguing and presently they hung up a piece of bagging as a curtain at the door to the street. While I knew the men to be still talking, a covered wagon stopped in front of the shop and two men left it and entered the store. One of them came out almost immediately and drove away. Shortly after eight o'clock the visitors to La Duca's place left. They divided into two groups, the stranger going toward the Bowery with Morello and Pecoraro.

All this on the evening of April 12. Now as I sat smoking and pondering the whole thing two nights later the feeling grew that the stranger I had seen in the little butcher shop and the man who was found in the barrel might be one and the same person. Yet the pictures did not seem to portray the same features exactly as I remembered them, and the suit of the dead man was described as blue while I remembered him to be clothed in brown. Of course he might have changed his clothes before meeting his death, but this was not likely.

I could not eliminate from my memory the covered wagon I had seen two nights before. It seemed to possess me. Finally I gave myself up to finding a reason for its presence and the unusual conduct of its drivers.

The more I thought the more I believed that it was the means by which the dead man had been transported from the place where he met his doom to the pavement in avenue D. The men were Italians and associates of the Black Handers. Then, again, the fact that the man I had seen and had hung the bagging standing apart from the street just outside the door, where he could not hear the talk, all strengthened my suspicions that the man in the barrel was the man I had seen. I knew much of the inside workings of the gang and felt that in some way the stranger had incurred the hatred of the Black Hand.

The murder was not within my province, yet I wanted, if possible, to solve it, partly for my own satisfaction, partly because every fresh fact I learned regarding the organization I was after could be used by me to advantage.

It was in a peculiar, slanting ray of light that I had seen the stranger and I determined to reproduce to the best of my ability the same lighting effect, and make certain of the man before committing myself. Accordingly, I went to the morgue and viewed the body in the same kind of light in which I had first seen the face. I was no longer in doubt. The dead man was the stranger of La Duca's butcher shop.

To prove this was a different matter.

To prove this was a different matter.

Several of my men went with me to the Morgue. We measured the body according to Bertillon methods. Still the man had not been identified, nor did his measurements correspond with any record in the Bertillon files.

I was positive I was correct in my statement that I had seen the man as described, but I was troubled by the fact that the clothing was blue instead of brown, as I had seen it. Finally, with the aid of my men, I rigged up a light in my office such as I had seen the man standing near on the night of April 12. The clothes were brought from the Morgue and placed under the light. Sure enough, they looked brown instead of blue. I was then sure I was right and that the man had been a victim of the Black Hand.

I at once notified Inspector McCluskey, and his men, working in conjunction with certain mine, arrested eleven of the gang. They were Giuseppe Morello, Ignazio Lupo, Messina Genova, Vito La Duca, Pietro Inzerillo, Domenico Pecoraro, Lorenzo Lobido, Giuseppe Panara, Giuseppe La Lama, Nicola Testa and Luciano Perrino.

All these men were Sicilians, and most of them when arrested were armed with knives or revolvers. On Morello the police found a .45-calibre revolver and a knife tucked in the waistband of his trousers. A cork fixed on the point of the blade prevented it scratching his leg and allowed him to bring it into play with a single motion of the wrist, much more readily than had he carried it in a sheath.

Luciano Perrino, known as "Il Bove" or "Tomasso Petto, the Ox," carried a pistol in a regulation holster and a stiletto in a sheath. Most of the men arrested were in the possession of permits to carry revolvers, issued by the Police Department of New York. It was this round-up of desperate men, most of them armed, which did much to bring about the passage of the law forbidding the carrying of dangerous weapons.

Now, while it was established beyond reasonable doubt that the man whose body was found jammed into the barrel was the stranger I had seen in Vito La Duca's meat shop, we were still at a loss to identify him.

The eleven prisoners were taken to the Morgue, and each one separately was confronted with the murdered man with whom he was acquainted with him.

When Morello, whom I had seen walking with the murdered man, viewed the body he showed not the slightest sign of recognition or of agitation, though my men and detectives watched him as animals do their prey. He shrugged his shoulders and volunteered the statement "Don't know."

Domenico Pecoraro, whom I had also seen with the victim when he left the butcher shop, was quite as laconic. He shrugged his shoulders as only an Italian can, and varied the formula by muttering the words "No understand."

The other nine prisoners denied all acquaintance with the victim of the murder. None of them had ever seen him, they said.

We then hoped that relatives or friends would claim the body and thus establish the victim's identity, but for all we could tell after days of waiting he had died without a single friend, with no relative to care whether he went to Potter's Field or not.

The police redoubled their efforts, but to no avail. Every clew, and there were few enough of them, led to nothing. Each new line, which was run down to no purpose, left the case more baffling.

Joseph Petrosino was at that time in the Italian squad of the New York Detective Bureau. He received an anonymous letter telling him to keep off the case and describing the murder as a "vendetta," which seemed to be the name of the letter; sufficient reason for the name of the letter. Petrosino showed this letter to me. Here was a clew worth following. The writer was evidently afraid to divulge his name, even to the police, out of fear of the vengeance of the terrible Black Hand. I knew of no man so well qualified to handle the case as Petrosino himself, so after carefully thinking out a plan of procedure, I suggested that he go to Sing Sing prison, where several of the Lupo-Morello band were serving terms for counterfeiting.

Petrosino took with him a photograph of the barrel victim and showed it to several of the convicts whom he knew to be identified with the Black Hand. They professed ignorance of the dead man's identity.

It seemed as if it was to be the same story over again, but at last Petrosino showed the photograph to Giuseppe De Priema, and without telling him of the murder asked him if he knew whose likeness it was.

De Priema glanced at the detective and alarm showed in his face. He clutched at the pastebord on which was the likeness of the murdered man's face. "That is Maruono Benedetto, my brother-in-law," he cried. "What has happened?"

The detective told him that Benedetto was murdered. Giuseppe De Priema fell to trembling like a leaf. Fear distorted his features. He knew the power that was behind the knife that had slit the throat of Maruono Benedetto, his brother-in-law.

The detective told him that Benedetto was murdered. Giuseppe De Priema fell to trembling like a leaf. Fear distorted his features. He knew the power that was behind the knife that had slit the throat of Maruono Benedetto, his brother-in-law.

He overcame his fear and it turned to anger. He cursed the murderers in his cell, he shook his fist against the bare walls and he swore a vendetta against the man who had slain his relative by marriage. When he was calmer he convinced Petrosino beyond reasonable doubt that he had identified the victim correctly.

He described a watch chain which had been found in one of Benedetto's pockets and described the curious crucifix which had been found with the body. He told of the scar on the murdered man's forehead and other unmistakable marks of identification. Benedetto, he said, was a scoundrel and lived in Buffalo. For some months he had been out of work, and De Priema believed he had recently been operating with a band of counterfeiters in New York. This, of course, was the Lupo-Morello gang, but De Priema, for reasons of his own, would not tell much. Nor would he tell, if he knew, who was likely to have committed the murder. His was vengeance, and he did not intend to aid the law to take over his prerogative. He steadfastly denied that he had the slightest idea who was the guilty man or men.

At last it was learned who the barrel victim was, and Petrosino returned to New York. Together we went to Police Headquarters and examined all the letters and papers taken from the men arrested as suspects in the case. Among the possessions of Luciano Perrino, or "Petto the Ox," I found a pawn ticket for a watch which had been pledged in a Bowery pawn shop for one dollar on the day of the murder.

We went to Buffalo for Benedetto's wife. To the minutest detail she described the watch which her husband had worn. The one which "the Ox" had pawned was procured and it tallied in every particular with the woman's description. She was certain, when it was shown to her, that it had belonged to her husband. Before seeing it she described certain markings and engravings which could have been known only to a person familiar with it.

With the evidence in hand, "Petto the Ox" was indicted by the Grand Jury for murder in the first degree. The other suspects had been held on a charge of murder without bail, but as the evidence was not sufficient to hold them Magistrate Barlow turned them over to the Secret Service continued to watch them, however, and what developed from this surveillance will be the subject of later chapters.

At this time came fresh evidence of the existence of the Black Hand organization. "Petto the Ox" was apparently penniless and counsel would have been provided for him by the State, but suddenly, apparently from nowhere a great fund was raised.

High priced counsel were engaged to fight his case in court and money was spent freely in a campaign for his release. This money for the greater part was contributed by members of the society. Some of it was wrung from terrified Italians, some of it was raised from the "compatri," or godfathers of members of the gang. Every Sicilian has two "compatri," and they are bound to aid their charges when they are in trouble.

Meanwhile the police worked tirelessly in efforts to accumulate evidence against Petto. The watch which he had named was the only incriminating evidence they unearthed. It was morally certain who had murdered Benedetto, and reports from my men strengthened my belief.

From information in my possession I was certain the Black Hand organization was furnishing the funds to conduct Petto's defence. It was to my interest to find out just who were in this organization and just where the money came from, for I knew the hand to be engaged in counterfeiting. It was at this time that I learned a great deal about the organization of the Black Hand. While Petto was in the Tombs I ascertained that every member of the band was fitted with a town about twenty miles from Buffalo, New York. It was in Palermo that Joseph Petrosino was later murdered while executing a mission for Commissioner Bingham, of the New York Police Department.

I was seeking to get one or more of my operatives into the inner circle of the Black Hand, and I learned that a man to accomplish this must be from Corleone, or he must come recommended by a member of the society who came from Corleone or lived there at present.

"Petto the Ox" was in the Tombs four months awaiting trial. During this time the police bent every effort to produce evidence against him which would hold in court. Meanwhile the Black Hand was raising money for his defence, and my men were working to the confidence of the members of the Black Hand. Nevertheless, scarcely a piece of evidence which would have held for a moment in a court of law was unearthed by the police. Petto steadfastly denied his guilt, of course. There was no witness to the crime. Petto had not been seen with the victim by any person who was available as a witness, and the watch was the only slender clew which connected him with the crime.

There were a dozen different ways in which that could be accounted for. Petto's lawyer asked that the prisoner be released on his own recognizance. The ground that there was not sufficient evidence upon which to bring the accused to trial was a fair hope, but it was vain. "Petto the Ox" was released.

The barrel murder was more of a mystery than ever. The one man to whom circumstance pointed as guilty of the crime was discharged by the court because there was not sufficient evidence against him to make a conviction possible. The police tried other clews. They worked once more upon the theory that there was a woman in the case. They tried to find some person with a grievance against Benedetto, but they failed.

Petto disappeared from his accustomed haunts, but the eyes of the Secret Service followed him and the long legged Sam hovered over him, ready to strike. What happened to "Petto the Ox" and how I finally solved the mystery of the murder of Maruono Benedetto, which was never solved by the police, I will tell in the next week. It forges another link in the chain of evidence against the Black Hand.

The chain of evidence against the Black Hand.

A Civil War break is Feared by Government

Gravest Concern Held as to W Ulster Outcome Will

(By Special Wire to the Courier) LONDON, April 28.—Standing yesterday's emphasis apparently well based, that not a single fresh soldier yet moved towards Ulster from Dublin persist that all attempts are under orders against any breach of the truce on brief notice. The fact is that as yet the government is yet undecided what course to follow in the House of Commons regarding Ulster, especially in view of the gun-running which visited the King's Hotel when the cabinet met.
