CONCENTRATED GOVERNMENT WILL FOLLOW WAR IN FRANCE

Declares Premier Briand, Who Looks For Revision, Remoulding and Re-Adaption of Present Political Methods in That Country

By Courier Leased Wire. Paris, Oct. 17.—The remoulding of French political methods after the war resulting in a concentration of government, is predicted by Premier Briand, according to a conversation the premier has had with friends which is recapitulated in The Figaro by Alfred Capus, the dramatist and member of the French Academy. M. Capus quotes the premier as saying: "I do not pretend to do more than sketch the main outline. As the result of lessons which it cannot escape I believe our country will resume independence the notion of direct council and authority. There will be this difference, that while under past regimes this authority was imposed upon it historically and by custom, to-day it is the country itself which demands it from its elected representatives as well as from its business."

Heaviest Fighting of Entire Battle on Somme Front Occurred Last Week

With Peronne and Bapaume as Their Objectives, Franco-British Made Furious Drives Against Courcellette, Frennes, Chaumes and Other Points of Great Strategic Value

Berlin, Oct. 17.—By wireless to Sayville—"Detailed reports about recent fighting on the Somme front show distinctly that the actions between October 9 and October 13 are to be reckoned among the greatest actions of the whole Somme battle," says the Overseas News Agency. "The objectives of these great French and British efforts were Bapaume and Peronne. Moreover, numerous hostile attacks of violence were directed against the front from Courcellette to St. Pierre Vaast wood, north of the Somme and between Frennes and Mazancourt and against Chaumes, south of the river. Of these engagements those north of the Somme were most severe."

"On October 10 an d11 the main centres of combat were north of Thiepval, north of Courcellette, near Sully-Saillies, and in the vicinity of the St. Pierre-Vaast wood. On October 12 a great and well co-ordinated attack was launched over the whole front from Courcellette to Bouchavesnes."

"The enemy's attacks abated somewhat on October 13. He concentrated his efforts against Sully-Saillies and St. Pierre Vaast wood, as well as the district east of Bouchavesnes. "There is no possible doubt that the enemy attempted to reach a decision with this enormous effort. Especially on October 12, he planned to break through on the largest scale. All prisoners declare that the losses of the British, especially the British, reached an amount heretofore unknown. Reports of German troops fully confirm this. Prisoners state 'French infantry companies now number only one machine gun company. "Prisoners speak of the attack as the 'Hell on the Somme' and useless slaughter."

ROUMANIAN FORCES EVACUATE POSITIONS NEAR KRONSTADT

Make Orderly Retirement in Order Strategically to Shorten Line of Battle, and Thus Concentrate Line of Defence

By Courier Leased Wire. London, Oct. 17.—(New York Times cable)—The London Times correspondent with the Roumanian forces telegraphs "Roumanian troops west of Brasso, (Kronstadt), began an orderly retirement from their positions on the evening of October 8, passing Brasso during the night. To-day they are taking up positions in the foothills, defending the entrance to the Frecdel Pass. This movement represents a redistribution in order to shorten the line and not in the slightest degree forced by any local necessity."

"With the long western front, which the Roumanians had to defend in the face of increasing numbers of Teutons, it was deemed wiser not to expose the advanced positions to any sudden manoeuvres. During the retirement the Germans were not even in touch with the Roumanian troops and the movement has been made quietly and entirely without panic or the smallest demoralization among the Roumanians. I have personally seen the positions now being taken, which are about twelve miles from the original positions. The nature of the country is such that the Roumanians should head it. While the situation at present does not present any acute aspects and there is not the slightest panic, it emphasizes the potential menace which the massing of heavy German strength against the Roumanians might involve."

IN TWO YEARS

London, Oct. 17.—Announcement that the London and Port Stanley Railway has already between $50,000 and $60,000 in the treasury as surplus earnings and that expectations are that the first two years of electrified operation, ending on June 30 next, will show a profit of at least $80,000, was made to the city council by Sir Adam Beck last evening. Sir Adam appeared before the council in connection with business of the road relating to the financing of additions to shops and barns, the construction of the new bath house and tea room at Port Stanley and the general improvements along the line to the extent of $50,000 and the purchase of $75,000 worth of new rolling stock. Recently the council authorized the expenditure of $42,000 on the first account, but has found necessary to provide further office accommodation and to build a vault and perform other works in the interests of the people and their railway, and the amount was accordingly raised last night to $50,000.

Russians are in Heavy Fighting

By Courier Leased Wire. Petrograd, Oct. 17.—via London, 1.15 p.m.—Teutonic troops are heavily counter-attacking the Russian lines to the southwest of Lemberg the war office announced today. The attacks were launched after bombardments of great intensity in the district north of Korytnia and near Bolshortse, five miles north of Halicz. The Russians killed fifty prisoners and one machine gun during the fighting. In the Carpathians near the junction of the Roumanian, Hungarian and Bukowinian borders where the Austrian and German forces have assumed the offensive, the Russians repelled all attacks, the statement says.

Berlin, Oct. 17, via London.—The Russians have suffered a heavy defeat in Galicia, the war office announced today. Repeated attacks were repulsed and trenches on a front of one quarter miles were taken by the Austro-German forces. Nineteen hundred prisoners and ten machine guns were captured.

Allies Send Note of Grave Nature

By Courier Leased Wire. London, Oct. 17.—Vice-Admiral Fournet, commander of the Anglo-French fleet in the Mediterranean, has handed the Greek government a note of an extremely grave character, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, from Athens, dated yesterday. Following the presentation of the note King Constantine, it is added, fled to the capital in haste from the royal residence at Tatol. The railway stations of Athens and Piraeus, the city hall at the capital and Castalia barracks have been occupied by French and Italian sailors to the number of 1000, while 150 bluejackets with two machine guns have been stationed in the municipal theatre, according to a Reuter despatch from Athens to-day. The city is quiet. An urgent cabinet council has been summoned. It is officially explained, adds the despatch, that the detachments landed will assist the police in stopping demonstrations which threaten trouble. Allied crews were put on board the battleships, the correspondent says, and the Greek crews were landed and sent to Athens. On October 11 the Allies took over the entire Greek fleet except those vessels mentioned in to-day's despatch. This measure, it was explained, unofficially, was intended to insure the safety of the allied shipping.

HOME OFFICERS To Have a Chance to Visit Firing Lines.

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—Prominent officers at militia headquarters in Ottawa and in the different divisional areas in Canada will likely be given an opportunity in the next few months of visiting the battle front. Since the war started these officers though keen to go on active service have had to remain at home because of the important and pressing work incidental to the organization of the Canadian troops. Circumstances are now such as to permit a party of them to go overseas and familiarize themselves with the service conditions at the actual front.

Artillery Fire is Violent

By Courier Leased Wire. Paris, Oct. 17.—12.30 p.m. Violent artillery fighting is in progress on the Macedonian front. In the region of the Cerna River, the war office reports, the Serbians checked a Bulgarian counter-attack.

Fire at Borden

Capt Borden, Tuesday, Oct 17.—A fire broke out in headquarters, the main building in Camp Borden, at 1 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning. The entire building seems doomed. Frederick L. Yeomans, who has been awarded the Military Medal, is a son of Dr. H. A. Yeomans, of Belleville. The 160th (Bruce) Batt. left London for the east. The 170th Battalion had many visitors at Camp Borden.

German Newspaper Suppressed for Divulging too Much.

London, Oct. 17.—According to the Vossische Zeitung, says a Reuter despatch from Amsterdam to-day, the commander of the second German army corps has forbidden the publication of Pommersche Postzeitung for printing an article entitled "Destruction of the Bremen," the German commercial submarine. After the article appeared the newspaper received a warning for violating the censorship regulations. It is now established, it is added, that the news of the destruction of the Bremen was incorrect.

FOUR DAYS MORE OF CLUB OFFER; ARE YOU GOING TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF IT?

Great Club Offer is on This Week and Will Furnish Opportunity For Making Big Bargains

The great club offer that was announced in The Daily Courier Monday evening made a hit with the majority of the candidates. Each realizes that he must do his best in the next four days if he expects to win one of the many prizes. This is the time that shows who has friends. Some say it is hard to get subscribers. Did it ever occur to you that it is hard for the other candidates? In a campaign of this kind there is no place for the class of people that expect to win a lot of fame and fortune without work. From now until the close of this vote offer candidates will have to work every spare moment. Some are going to. Are you? You will have to get the business if you expect to win one of the valuable prizes The Daily Courier is going to give to someone in the next few weeks. The great club vote offer began Monday at 8 a.m. and will close on the minute, 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21. The amount of business you have on that date will mark your progress. Any contestant in the campaign can win the grand prize in the next four days if he gets down to business. The idea in announcing this vote offer was to give the candidates that have not made the best of their time the chance to store up the votes that they have lost since the beginning of the campaign. It also gives the candidates that have done good work the same chance. But they must get the business if they expect to win, and this business must be in the office by 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21. Many a victory has been lost by not sticking to the race. Some are too confident and they have enough votes to win the grand prize. To this class we might say this: That it is the opinion of the campaign department that unless they get good and busy the next four days, when the votes are counted they will find that instead of winning the grand prize that they are sure of at the present time, they will find the judges will award them a small prize. Don't blame the campaign department if this is the case. We have tried ever since the beginning to have you do better work, and still we urge you to have a little more determination. No race is won or lost until the gong rings out the announcement of the close. If you are in the lead in the campaign you cannot allow someone to grab this opportunity. So far you are behind, this is your time to catch up and win the prize you so much wanted at the beginning. Think this over, candidates, and act accordingly. Continued on Page Four Prominent Hamilton Man Makes Supreme Sacrifice at Front.

Well-Known Athlete, son of President of the Hamilton Spectorator. By Courier Leased Wire. Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 17.—Word was received here to-day that Major Gordon H. Southam, commander of the Hamilton sportsman's battery, son of William Southam, president of The Spectorator Printing Company, has been killed in action. Major Southam was one of Canada's famous football stars and prominent in many other lines of sport.

REFUSED TO WORK FOR GERMAN

Belgian Workmen Were Accordingly Arrested, and Some Shot.

By Courier Leased Wire. London, Oct. 17.—The Amsterdam correspondent of the Exchange Telegram Company wires the following: Three hundred workmen in a Ghent factory, who refused to work in German munition factories in Belgium, have been arrested and sent to Germany. Twelve, who resisted, were shot. The Germans everywhere are forcing the Belgians on the railroads, their own personnel having given out.

Austro-Germans are Repulsed

Bucharest, Oct. 17, via London, 4.33 p.m.—Austro-German attacks in Transylvania are being repulsed by the Roumanians, the war office announced to-day. The Roumanians are holding positions west of the frontier.

APPEAL FROM KING GEORGE

Monarch Urges Co-operation of All For Red Cross Fund.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 17.—The following cablegram from His Majesty King George has just been received by the Provincial British Red Cross committee, its commendation of Red Cross work, and that the practical example set make a powerful appeal for Oct. nineteenth. "The work of mercy jointly carried out by the British Red Cross Society and the order of St. John of Jerusalem has evoked among my people the deepest feeling of gratitude and pride. From what I have seen at home and at the front I fully appreciate the splendid work the society has accomplished, as it is only by a united empire that victory will be secured. So for the relief of those who suffer in its attainment must we stand equally united. I have great pleasure in giving five thousand pounds as a donation to the fund, upon the recognition of which there must be ever-increasing demand. (Signed) George R.I." Her Majesty, Queen Mary and his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales have also commended the work and contributed ten thousand pounds each to the empire wide, our day collection. THE SITUATION. Public interest just now continues to centre in the determined efforts of the Teutons to over-run and devastate Roumania in the same ruthless manner as they did Belgium and Serbia.

THE SLANDER BRIGADE. The London Advertiser becomes exceedingly hysterical every time it even thinks of a Conservative. It speaks of the "Purple-faced Conservative press," and in a recent issue said:

"Conservatism of to-day is not a doctrine based on principle, but on the lowest form of public morality, which if it were applied to the individual Canadian would cause him to be regarded as a double-dealer, a liar and a grafter, as well as a strutting bully and a card sharp."

There are some decent Liberal papers, of course, but a certain section of them, of which the Advertiser is an example, seek to depict everything Tory as rotten and smelling to high heaven and a sphere or two beyond that.

Such sheets are in the same class as the Liberal members in the House of Commons who fired a broadside of accusations and when it came to proofs before a commission of judges they were totally unable to prove their contemptible insinuations.

The election record of London Liberals in the courts is not in any way such as to warrant the Advertiser in posing as the mouthpiece for a purty gang whose members ought to be wearing halos.

Muck raking and slander constitute in large part these days the sole stock in trade of a certain wing of the Laurier host, and Conservative leaders are subjected to an amount of innuendo and aspersion which constitute in themselves a complete illustration of the class of mind which can forge much traducings.

Sniping of that sort not only outrages the feelings of decent citizens but in the long run completely defeats its own utterly unworthy ends.

RED CROSS APPEAL. Canadians have given very generously in connection with war appeals but not yet to the extent of feeling it. This will have to be the case individually and collectively before hostilities are ended.

Just now the British Red Cross Society is asking for further funds. The needs which are constantly growing in connection with this work, now require from $22,000 to $25,000 a day and surely there is no one who fails to realize the paramount nature of the claim imposed upon all of us by such work.

The people of Great Britain have attended to all the various war demands in a most magnificent way but in this instance the appeal is Empire wide, as it should be, for the service is on behalf of the men from the overseas dominions as well as her own.

Ontario gave one and a half millions to the fund last year and it is hoped to do even better this year.

At a public meeting held last night in Toronto, the objective for that city was placed at $750,000, and the Mayor announced that the Municipal vote would be $75,000 as compared with $50,000 in 1915.

The audience rose to its feet and stood while Sir John Hendrie read the following message received from the King:—"The work of mercy jointly carried out by the British Red Cross Society and the Order of St. John of Jerusalem has evoked among my people the deepest feeling of gratitude and pride. From what I have seen at home and at the front, I fully appreciate the splendid work the society has accomplished. As it is only by a united Empire that victory will be secured, so for the relief of those who suffer in its attainment must we stand equally united. I have great pleasure in giving $5,000 as a donation to the fund, upon the resources of which there must be ever-increasing demands.

(Signed) "GEORGE R.I." Without doubt the residents of Brantford and Brant County will also heed this urgent call.

SCOTT WITHDRAWS. Premier Scott of Saskatchewan has relinquished that office on account of continued ill-health. He didn't win the position in the first place, for it was given to him by Sir Wilfrid Laurier when Saskatchewan became a Province in 1905.

Of late years his administration has fallen upon stormy times. Six of the Government supporters in the House were adjudged guilty even after a restricted enquiry, of graft and corruption, and one supporter was recently sent to the penitentiary.

The fact of the matter is that the people at the first chance will throw out the Saskatchewan outfit in the same manner as the Manitoba and British Columbia Governments were recently made to walk the plank, and also some years ago the Ross Government in this Province.

The withdrawal of Mr. Scott, will have no effect either one way or the other with regard to what is clearly on the cards.

THE DEPARTURE OF THE CONNAUGHTS. Very unostentatiously did the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia take their departure yesterday from Canadian shores. This was in accordance with the desire of His Royal Highness, who felt that during this time of war stress, any elaborate farewell would be out of place.

The incident is characteristic of his entire career and of his democratic notions. In the trappings of Royalty as such, he has never taken any delight and his manners have always been unassuming, albeit he has always fittingly maintained the dignity of his position with the happy bon homie which so pre-eminently characterized his brother, the late King Edward.

The people of this Dominion will heartily agree with a recent estimate by a London paper, in which it was said of him that he possesses the great gift of putting people at their ease and to the charm of social intercourse adds conspicuous tact, large knowledge of the world, great experience of men and things and a broad common sense rarely at fault even in the most difficult circumstances.

It can be truthfully said of him, that he deserved and commanded success throughout his entire occupancy of Rideau Hall, and that his consort and daughter also proved his able coadjutors.

Canadians were proud in the first place to know that the only surviving son of the beloved Queen Victoria was to become their Governor General and after close acquaintance they now part with him and his with a feeling of genuine regret. May all three yet be spared for many years of happiness together.

NOTES AND COMMENTS. At an Episcopal convention in St. Louis, a move has been inaugurated to have the word "obey" struck out of the marriage service. The average woman doesn't do it anyway, so what's the difference.

It is announced that another dash is to be made after Villa. By the way, it is usually "after."

To The Grave

Geo. A. Calhoun. On Sunday, Oct. 15th at two o'clock a large and impressive funeral took place from 93 Erie Ave., the residence of Mr. Jay A. Calhoun, the cricketer father of the late George A. Calhoun, who met his death by accident, Oct. 11th, 1916, when on route from Cookville to Toronto.

The unfortunate young man, who was well known in Brantford, was Mr. J. A. Calhoun's youngest son, and was born on Sept. 13, 1889. He leaves to mourn his loss, his young wife, who is prostrate with the shock, with two children of tender years; also two brothers, William L., of 142nd London's Own, who leaves for overseas to-morrow, and Percy Jay, of Canadian Engineers, London, both young soldiers being present in their regiments, also Mrs. J. A. Calhoun, his step mother, and Mrs. D. Kelly, his only sister, of London.

The service at the house and grave was conducted by Rev. G. H. North, with music by Mrs. Russell, and Mr. Dunham. The floral tributes were both many and very beautiful, and consisted of the following: Sheaf, from father and mother; wreath from Mr. and Mrs. J. Calhoun; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Calhoun; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. S. Kelly; wreath, Hydro Electric Commission, Toronto; sprays, Mr. and Mrs. J. Nicholson; Ladies Gospel Tabernacle, Baracca Class, Tabernacle, Mr. and Mrs. McNight, Mrs. James Spencer, A. J. Reach employes and office staff, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dick, Mrs. F. Lyng, Galt; Mr. W. A. Crooker, Mr. and Mrs. J. Peckham, Mr. and Mrs. Shanahan, I.C. Class, Gospel Tabernacle, Messrs. M. Shaull and R. Scott.

Friends from a distance were Mrs. C. W. Crawford, Detroit, of Ford Auto Works, Mrs. E. Wilson of Detroit, both aunts of deceased, Mrs. S. Kelly of London, Mr. and Mrs. J. Calhoun, London, Mr. W. L. Calhoun, Borden Camp, Mrs. F. Lyng, Galt.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. E. Nichol, C. Gardiner, M. Chauk, R. Scott, R. Heatley, H. Bygrave, K. Toronto and London papers please copy.

Man Held at Sarnia as Jail Breaker Belongs to 149th Battalion.

LEGION OF HONOR. Paris, Oct. 17.—Monsignor Emile Lohbodey, Bishop of Arras, has been decorated with the cross of the Legion of Honor for the heroism and devotion with which he remained at his post of duty under fire.

The official decree says: "He remained at Arras amidst the first lines from October 1914, to June 1915, under a bombardment which was some times very violent. He exerted himself unselfishly for the accomplishment of his ministry, visiting the soldiers, burying the dead, assisting ambulances, giving to all a magnificent example of calm, sangfroid, energy and duty fully done under the immediate menace of the enemy."

CANADA WILL SUPPLY FISH

Contract Closed to Export $1,000,000 Worth Weekly.

For Use of the British and the Allied Forces.

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—Contracts which have been made in England for supplies of Canadian fish for the British and allied forces promises a trade of something like a million dollars weekly.

General Hughes while in England discussed with the British Board of Trade the question of such a supply, and negotiations were begun which have resulted in an order for 1,500,000 pounds of frozen fish. The purchasing, at General Hughes' suggestion, will be done through the War Purchasing Commission, at least until the business becomes well established. Apart from British orders, there is a very strong likelihood of the French and Italian governments taking large supplies of this fish, so that there is a prospect of a large trade from Canada. Canadian troops are to be supplied with canned fish. Civilians in Great Britain, General Hughes says, are taking to fish as a diet in lieu of meats, which are much more expensive and no more nourishing.

By Courier Leased Wire. Chicago, Oct. 17.—Prosperity marked the American League season just closed, according to B. B. Johnson, president of the organization, who is back at his office here to-day after an absence of two weeks, during which he attended the world's series.

"Only one club in the league lost money," he said, "and some teams practically made up what they lost through the invasion of the Federal League. Philadelphia is the only club that lost money."

Mr. Johnson said he did not have the final figures at hand, but was of the opinion that the Chicago Americans stood at the head of the list in total attendance.

CITIZENS' MEETING.

The public meeting in connection with the organization of a semi-centennial celebration in Brantford on July 1 next will be held to-night in the council chamber of the city hall, a large attendance being looked for. The committee temporarily in charge of affairs will submit to the public for ratification a slate of officers and committees to carry out the work.

BRANT COUNTY CONTRIBUTIONS

In Connection with the Red Cross Fund.

The following is the copy of a letter sent to the Expositor by Mr. A. E. Watts, County Clerk.

Dear Sir,—I noticed in Saturday's issue that you made the statement that the County of Brant had contributed $2,000 to the British Red Cross Fund in answer to the appeal from the fund last year.

The contribution of the County of Brant on that occasion was $500.00, not $2,000. While the County of Brant may not always be its full share in connection with public appeals and other public matters, yet it is unfortunate that what the County does do is frequently misrepresented and in this way, without doubt, unintentionally, the efforts of the County in aid of charity and other public works, are belittled, and this causes a certain amount of ill-feeling and friction.

I understand the County Council intend to discuss the question of a grant in answer to the present appeal of the British Red Cross, at its sitting to be held on Trafalgar Day. The council also desires every resident of the county who can do so, to supplement the grant of the council. It is therefore desirable that there should be no misunderstanding in connection with this very laudable object. I remain, Your obedient servant,

A. E. WATTS, County Clerk.

YOU can save Belgian lives!

Though you cannot fight and kill Germans, you can give and save some of their helpless Belgian victims, three million of whom must be fed or starve. So little is needed to feed a Belgian family, and so economically are contributions handled by the Belgian Relief Commission, that there are very few of us who could not provide for at least one family through this winter, or till the end of the war.

$2.50 a month—less than 10c. a day—will do it! How easily you could save that much from your little indulgences—and how much it would mean to some Belgian mother and her hungry little ones!

With the City Police

The first serious charges to appear before the Magistrate, or violation of the Ontario Temperance Act, occurred this morning at the police court, when John Milton, proprietor of the Bodega, William Fraser, of the Belmont and the Bixel and Labatt Brewing Companies, appeared. The hotelkeepers were charged with selling intoxicating liquors and the brewing companies with having supplied them with liquor for re-sale. The cases of John Milton and the Labatt Brewing Co. were adjourned until to-morrow, while the other charges were laid over for a week. Accused of being drunk while in charge of an automobile, Robert Cammell was fined $25 and costs of $3.10 or one week in jail.

SOCIAL EVENING AT WESLEY CHURCH

Epworth League of Elm Avenue Visited There and Gave Programme.

Elm Avenue Epworth League of Echo Place visited Wesley League last night and put on an excellent program.

There were about 100 members of both leagues present. The Elm Avenue League was accompanied by the orchestra of the church, which greatly added to the delight of the number of events on the program. The orchestra has now no less than seven members at the front fighting for King and country, and at present consists of half its regular size.

Mr. Craddock, president of Elm Avenue League, opened the program by briefly stating that he was glad Elm Avenue had the opportunity of visiting Wesley League. He then called upon Miss Deagle, who presided during the evening.

The program consisted of: Selection by the orchestra; lesson by Mrs. Craddock; prayer, Miss Mae Wood; cello solo, Mr. H. Morris; reading, Miss L. Tear; solo, Mrs. F. Smith; selection by the orchestra; piano solo, Miss B. Davidson; reading, Miss M. Edmondson; address, Miss Ida Crandell; solo, Miss Alberta Williams; selection by orchestra.

At the conclusion of the program, a dainty lunch was served by Wesley League which was very much enjoyed by all.

Rev. D. E. Martin spoke briefly on behalf of Wesley League, saying that he was glad to have Elm Avenue visit them, and that perhaps Wesley League would be able to return the visit at some future time. He also drew attention to the convention of Epworth Leagues being held in Paris Methodist church to-morrow afternoon and evening. Mr. Craddock, on behalf of Elm Avenue, extended an invitation to Wesley League for a return visit. He said that although Elm Avenue was only a small league it had accomplished a great deal for its size. Miss B. Davidson, the new president of Wesley League, also spoke briefly.

Young Man Walked from Norwich to city for that Purpose.

Quite a romance was brought to light with the return of the soldiers to the city from camp last night. A week ago last Saturday morning a young man presented himself at the depot and applied for enlistment. He was examined and accepted, giving his age as 19 years. After sending the new recruit to camp, those in charge were surprised to receive a visit from the parents, who reside in the vicinity of Norwich, requesting that their son be discharged, basing their claim on the fact that he was under age. They were persuaded, however, to let the matter rest until the arrival of the battalion in the city. Last night a consultation of the boys and his parents was held in the presence of some members of the battalion, when the following story was told:

On the Friday evening previous to his enlistment the young man set out from home and walked the whole distance here, and was found waiting admission when Privates Tutt and Hodge arrived at the headquarters at 7 o'clock and was immediately signed up. After some discussion, during which the soldier declared his intention to remain in the army, his parents finally acquiesced, and he is now the proudest wearer of the uniform in the city.

Course Given Library Work

A splendid course in the different branches of library work with a special course for librarians of the children's division, was recently held in the new Dovercourt branch of the Toronto public library under the supervision of the Department of Education. The course is said to be the most thorough of its kind ever held in Ontario, and the benefits derived from it by the 21 students in attendance from every part of the Dominion, should greatly aid in augmenting the efficiency of our library service throughout the province.

The students were addressed during the course by Dr. Peene, Minister of Education for Ontario, who declared that the library performed one of the most important functions of education, and that librarians should be accorded the same educational standing as school teachers.

Engineers and Firemen Receive Substantial Increase in Pay.

Arrangement Satisfactory to All Has Been Reached.

Montreal, Oct. 16.—The Grand Trunk Railway Company today issued a statement to the effect that after lengthy negotiations the locomotive engineers and fireman on the G.T.R. system have been granted an increase in pay, "with the result that an agreement has been reached mutually satisfactory to the interests concerned."

The increase was not stated, but representatives of the unions concerned state that the increase amounts to 15 per cent. spread over three thousand men. A few weeks ago the Grand Trunk increased the pay of the conductors, brakemen, baggagemen and yardmen, five thousand men participating in the increase.

One of Assassins of Archduke Ferdinand Dies in Prison.

By Courier Leased Wire. Berlin, Oct. 17.—(By wireless to Saville.)—Nedjo Kerovic one of the conspirators in the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir apparent to the Austrian throne, in 1914, has died in a military prison, says a report from Sarajevo, Bosnia, given out by the Overseas News Agency.

Three of the conspirators in the assassination of the archduke were executed in February, 1915, and Jakov Zilovic and Nedjo Kerovic were sentenced to imprisonment for life, but it was later commuted to twenty years. Gaxrio Brinzip, the actual assassin, was sentenced to twenty years in prison.

World's Record is Equalled

Stockholm, Oct. 17.—Twelve thousand people yesterday witnessed the games in which a group of star American athletes competed against representatives of the Scandinavian countries. The event of the day was the 1,000 metres run, in which two Swedes, Zander and Bolin, equaled the world's record of 2 minutes 21 seconds, finishing abreast, well ahead of Ted Meredith, the former American quarter-mile champion, who on Saturday won the 400-metres dash in fast time. Meredith's time yesterday was 2:38 7-10.

Bob Simpson, an American sprinter, won the 110-metre hurdles in 14 8-10 seconds, which surpasses the Olympic record by one-fifth of a second.

The American team won the relay race. The summaries:— 1,000 metres run (1,093 yards, 22 inches)—Zander and Bolin, Sweden tied; Ted Meredith, America, 3rd. Time, 2:21 2-10 seconds. 110 metres, hurdles (120 yards 10 7-10 inches)—Bob Simpson, America, won; Fred Murray, America, 2nd. Time, 14 8-10 seconds. 200 metres (218 yards 2 1/2 inches)—Fred Murray, won; Bob Simpson, 2nd. Time, 32 2-10 seconds. Shot put—Jansson, Sweden, won. Distance, 3,326 centimetres (43 feet 7 1/2 inches). Fred Murray, America, 2nd (1,246 centimetres).

400-metre relay (437 yards 15 inches)—American team won; Scandinavian team, 2nd. Time, 43 5-10 seconds.

BATTLE OF SOMME

Return Bookings Asked for This Great War Picture Throughout Old Land.

(From the London Cinema)

When we predicted "The Battle of the Somme" would make history for the cinema trade, we never thought our words would so soon be justified by proof. Without a doubt the battle picture has introduced many thousands of people to the cinema who had so far regarded the pictures as—well, a little beneath them. All of a sudden they had seen the world's greatest moving tragedy, correctly pictured in all the majesty of its unequalled motion. For the first time in their lives they realized the cinema was a force that has to be reckoned with as a purveyor of history.

Theatres where "The Battle of the Somme" had been booked for three days have asked for extensions to six days, and houses that have booked the film for a week have wanted return early bookings. Some cinemas are even asking for a second return.

The Courier has made arrangements to show this great picture shown in Brantford on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 2nd, 3rd and 4th. There will be matinee as well as night performances each day and a children's matinee on Saturday morning.

Uncle Sam: "Be careful, there, or I'll begin milking through this hat."—Toronto Telegram.

Toronto Not For the American

President McCaffery, who saw the two games in Brooklyn for the world's championship, is back in Toronto. He went to New York with Lol Solman, and the two local magnates hobbled with the big fellows of the big leagues.

Mr. McCaffery says there is nothing in the story that Toronto will take Washington's place in the American League. Ban Johnson likes Toronto, but the time is not yet ripe for the much-talked-of change. "Bill" Carrigan, the Red Sox manager, gave the Toronto party a hearty handshake. He wears the wrist watch given him when he was here this season.

NEW LEADER IN THE AMERICAN

Cobb Has Led League Up to Present Season, Since 1906.

For the first time since 1906 there is a new leader of the American League in batting. Tris Speaker has beaten out Ty Cobb. A comparison of the 1916 record of Cobb with his mark of last season is one that shows a decrease. He is not hitting as high, has not stolen as many bases, and in scoring runs has fallen below his mark. Cobb, says the Pittsburg Leader, is a great ball player, even if his record has fallen, and far better than anyone else in the major leagues today. He is so far superior to any of his rivals that he can take several more big drops and still be out in front. Although Cleveland paid $57,500 for Speaker, and Tris has led Cobb in hitting this year, there is no question of which man is the more valuable to a baseball team. Cobb is faster, uses his brains more, and his out-guessing of the opposition would make him more valuable on offence even if he hit 100 points below Speaker. The leaders of the American League are far superior to the leaders in the National circuit. Since Honus Wagner fell from his lofty position no one has come up to keep a comparison between the top-notchers of the two circuits.

POPE'S APPEAL FOR BELGIANS

Pontiff Requests Aid of American Children for Those of Flanders.

By Courier Leased Wire. Rome, Oct. 17.—The pope has made an appeal to the Children of Happy and Prosperous America to aid the million and a half unhappy children of Belgium.

The request of the pontiff is the result of a visit paid by George Barr Baker of New York, who came to the vatican at the instance of Herbert Hoover, chairman of the American commission for relief of Belgium.

Mr. Baker told the pope that the Belgian children were reduced below normal weight and were suffering bodily ills through under nourishment. He said that tuberculosis was increasingly prevalent and had risen from seven to over thirteen per cent. Mr. Hoover proposes to give the children a supplementary daily meal of a cup of chocolate or milk and one sweetened biscuit made with lard. Experience has shown that this addition to their diet will maintain their condition at normal and will restore those already weakened. The cost of this meal is three cents for each child daily, and Hoover hopes to obtain the assistance of American Catholic clergy in enlisting the American children in relief work.

BAD COLD? TAKE "CASCARETS" FOR BOWEL TONIGHT

Get a 10-cent box. Colds—whether in the head or part of the body—are quickly overcome by urging the bowels free and keeping the bowels free of poison. Take Cascarets to-night and you will wake up with a clear head and your cold will be gone. Cascarets work while you sleep; they cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels. Remember the quickest way to get rid of colds is one or two Cascarets at night to cleanse the system. Get a 10-cent box at any drug store. Don't forget the children. They relish this Candy Cathartic and it is often all that is needed to drive a cold from their little systems.

BITTER FIGHTING IN TRANSYLVANIA

Roumanian Retreat Was Enforced by Heavy Guns of the Austrians.

By Courier Leased Wire. London, Oct. 17.—The latest despatches from Bucharest show that fighting of an extremely bitter character is still going on in all the Transylvanian Passes. According to news despatches the Roumanian retreat from Transylvania was chiefly due to the heavy guns of the Austro-Germans which outranged the Roumanian artillery.

Military experts draw attention chiefly to the Predal and Buxen Passes, the former leading directly to the valuable oil fields of Prahova valley while the latter is the road to the important railway junction of Buxen connecting Bucharest with northern Roumania and Russia. In neither of these passes have the invaders made serious headway yet.

Bucharest despatches generally regard the situation optimistically. They point out that it is only necessary for the Roumanian forces to hold out a short time before the cold winter sets in. The winter will enable the shifting of numerous Roumanian formations from points where winter campaigns are impossible.

Music and Drama

At the Grand

In their first appearance in Brantford, the Royal Alexandra Grand Opera House last night when they presented a three act drama of the tenderfoot, entitled "The Conspiracy." The theme of the play deals with the investigation into police graft conducted by Attorney Whitman of New York into the police graft system of that city.

If any of the players should be selected as deserving of special merit, Mr. H. W. Chamberlain, in his portrayal of Winthrop Clave, would be so favored.

In his description of that character he displayed a wonderful ability of calibre not usually found in stock companies, and he was ably supported by the remainder of the company. To-morrow night "The Chauffeur," a New York comedy success will be presented, and on the following evening the members of the 215th Broadway Theatre will accept Manager Whitaker's invitation to be present last night, will be entertained.

The Brant

A logical refutation to the belief of many who hold that the popularity of Charles Chaplin, as a motion picture comedian, is on the decrease, were the two enormous audiences yesterday in attendance at the Brant Theatre, where the inimitable comedian, now appearing in his latest production, "One A.M.," is one of the chief attractions. One of the chief attractions is said advisedly, for the bill now being presented at the Brant comprises perhaps more feature attractions than ever before in the history of that popular playhouse.

Chief among the other attractions offered is the ever popular Cleo Ridgley in her latest triumph in the art of motion pictures, and an episode of the engrossing and enthralling photo-play series "Who's Guilty?", wherein Tom Moore and Anna Nilsson appear as joint stars. The Quintanos Concert Band presents a musical number of exceptional strength and merit, which cannot fail but prove pleasing to all.

Two young women and a young man were injured near Parrsboro, when their automobile plunged into a deep brook during a cloudburst. Two years of war have served to demonstrate the value of the port of St. John as an economic factor in the great European struggle.

A soldier, A. Flecken—an Englishman—was found dead on the roadside near Halifax. Heart disease is said to have been the cause of death.

THE HOT WEATHER TEST makes people better acquainted with their resources of strength and endurance. Many find they need Hood's Sarsaparilla, which invigorates the blood, purifies refreshing sleep and overcomes that tired feeling.

SISTERS THREE

"Murderer, you would say! Perhaps if I had not been stung by it all—first Harold's letter, and the knowledge that he had come to me to tell me all and ask my help, and that I had held him back from speaking, and then the thing that he had done in haste and desperation, lest anything should come to stop his going to the front, with his men, and then following by telegram soon after I got that terrible letter—the news of his death—perhaps but for all these things I might have felt for other people, might have felt shame, remorse. But I did not! I was stung. Harold's letter had come too late. The trial was over; Jim Kildare was sentenced. The old father was dead. That news came soon afterwards—I forget exactly when. He had written to make some enquiries. I said I could give him no information; that was through our lawyer. Then some one told me he was dead, and I breathed more freely. There was only the boy himself."

"Only! With five years of penal servitude before him!"

Miss Willoughby raised her head and gazed out of the window with a strange, gloomy bitterness.

"I disliked Jim Kildare," she was jealous of him; Harold thought so much of him. Sometimes when I wanted him he failed me because he was going somewhere with Jim Kildare. Sometimes when he came he brought young Kildare with him, and I felt how much more his friend was to him than his sister. And so I became jealous of him. Allardyce I do not know how bitter a thing jealousy is."

The girl shook her head. That tormenting emotion had played no part in her young life.

"By nature I am a very jealous woman. I think that is one reason why I have never married. My wealth has attracted suitors, but always I have felt that others were preferred before me, that I was only valued for what I possessed. I have sent them all away. It was jealousy which angered me against Jim Kildare. It hardened my heart against him. He had robbed me of so I told myself—of a great deal of Harold's love. If he had to suffer himself, I told myself I did not care."

"But you did care. I knew from the very first that you were a very sad woman."

They had been over this ground before; they did not cover it again. Miss Willoughby spoke in the same dreary bitter way, looking all the time out straight before her with wide open but unseeing eyes.

"And now I have been feeling enough to part with my secret. And you, child, will betray me."

"No I shall not."

"You think that now, but one day you will find that you cannot help yourself. That old man—"

"Yes he will have to be told," said Allardyce slowly; "but it is you who will tell him, not I."

"And when he knows do you think he will hold his peace? Do you think the world will be ringing with the tale before a month is over, and the name of Willoughby—"

"Please wait a minute. I am very ignorant about such matters. I am only a girl; I do not know. But surely the men who are in power—who have the power to open the doors of the prison for Jim Kildare—will not want to blacken the honorable name of a soldier who gave his life for his country. Surely no one would want to bring Captain Willoughby's name forward. I do feel quite certain of that."

Silence fell between them. Allardyce, as she had said, was but an inexperienced child. She knew nothing of such matters, but it seemed to her that she spoke reason and truth. Also she felt that she had said enough; and she rose quietly and bent to kiss her hostess good-night.

"You have been very good to let me talk to you like this. Are you sorry that you asked me to come?"

"I cannot tell. I do not know. You will have to let me go away and think."

"And you will come and see us at our house on the Sunset Crags? You will come and stay with us? You shall have my room, with the view out to sea and over to Sunrise Reef. And I will take you across some day when the day is dawning, and you will find some one who is waiting and watching for the help that you will bring."

Then Allardyce went softly away, leaving Miss Willoughby sunk deep in brooding thought, and the next day she went back to her sisters and her home.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Gipsy met her on the threshold with a bear-like embrace. Audrey had fetched her from the station in the carriage which had brought them home upon the occasion of their arrival. In the background hovered Mrs. Gosling, eager for a look at her darling after two weeks' absence.

You are such a little mouse that one isn't going to miss you scarcely at all," said Gipsy, when she had piloted Allardyce safely up to her room, brilliant with a wealth of roses that the sisters had gathered and placed there to give her a welcome. "You steal about like a little shadow, and are more often absent than present. And yet, after a bit of being without you, we find we want you back. Queer of us, isn't it, Cissy? Now tell me what it was you went away to do and whether you have accomplished your mission."

"Oh, Gipsy, what do you mean?"

"My dear Cissy, do you think that we others do not know that you have had something on your mind a long while now? Audrey won't ask you anything—she is simply appallingly discreet, but I'm made differently, and I've come to the conclusion that you wouldn't have run away just in the middle of the most heavenly weather—not even to oblige Miss Willoughby—unless there had been something behind. Cissy, dear, I won't ask questions if you don't want to answer them; but remember this—if it's anything I can help in—well, let me."

Gipsy was half in and half out of the big window, her hands upon the sill, her gaze turned towards the sea. Allardyce, who had been washing the dust of the journey away,

THE ONLY MEDICINE THAT HELPED HER

"Fruit-a-lives Again Proves Its Extraordinary Powers"

Rochester, Que., March 2nd, 1915.

"I have received the most wonderful benefit from taking 'Fruit-a-lives'. I suffered for years from Rheumatism and change of life, and I took every remedy obtainable without results. I tried 'Fruit-a-lives' and it was the only medicine that really did me good. Now I am entirely well—the Rheumatism has disappeared, and the terrible pains in my body are all gone. I hope that others, who suffer from such distressing diseases, will try 'Fruit-a-lives'." MADAME ISAIE ROCHON.

now came and stood close beside her, looking away towards the long serrated reef which stood up black and grim and gloomy against the rose of the western sky.

"I don't think I want to talk to anybody about it just yet, Gipsy, but I love to think that you—that you care."

Gipsy faced round and threw her arms round her sister's shoulders. There was something in the expression of Gillian's arch and merry face which Allardyce dimly felt had not been there when she went away.

The next minute her own arms were clasped fast round Gipsy's neck and there was a little break in her voice as she exclaimed—

"Oh, Gipsy, that will!"

"Ah, that was just after you left! Sometimes I wake up in the night and see it all. Cissy, I think I looked to other people as though the brute was going to spring at Viking, but I caught one glimpse of those glaring yellow eyes, those great blood-stained fangs, and I am almost sure he was going to spring at my throat. I haven't told anybody. It seems worse now than it did at the time—if you know what I mean. I was very cool and off-handed about it just when it had happened, but that was because I hadn't time to think and didn't realize the meaning of the situation. But now, in my dreams or when I lie awake—"

"Oh, Gipsy, I can understand that so well! And it was Gaston Lebreton who was going to spring at Viking, but I caught one glimpse of those glaring yellow eyes, those great blood-stained fangs, and I am almost sure he was going to spring at my throat. I haven't told anybody. It seems worse now than it did at the time—if you know what I mean. I was very cool and off-handed about it just when it had happened, but that was because I hadn't time to think and didn't realize the meaning of the situation. But now, in my dreams or when I lie awake—"

"And then—think of it, Cissy! Perhaps he will have to go—to leave the country—to tear up his life by the roots. And all because people behave so badly to him for something he has never done and had nothing to do with! I call it a shame. If his own mother had not told me I would not have believed it."

"Yes, I do now. I could not help knowing her after that. I went to have tea with her last week, and she showed me all over the place. It was simply fascinating. You can't think what a lot of hobbies he has, or how splendidly everything is managed, and what a lot of employment it gives to the place. And other—and we know something of the value of that. And yet it may come to this—that they will sell off everything and go away—"

Gipsy suddenly stopped short as though struggling with some strong gust of feeling, indignation being one of its chief ingredients. She made a swift and telling gesture with her hands.

"I could trounce them all for being so unjust and narrow-minded! They ought to be ashamed of themselves!"

"You mean about General Kildare's son?"

"I mean about everything. Mr. Lebreton was a hard old man and did many harsh things. That was the culminating act, I suppose; but he was unpopular before that. Uncle Richard disliked him, as we know. There was some sense with him, because of that right of way trouble; but I can't see why everybody had to be nasty. And Madame Lebreton was nice herself, and Gaston most of his time away at school and college and travelling! That's the mean part of it. He couldn't help these things; and now he has to bear all the burden of unpopularity and his mother is ostracised too. That makes him angry and sore. So he is talking of going away—selling everything and starting fresh on the other side of the world. I call it a disgusting shame if he is driven out like that!"

ARMENIA

Of course there were dolls of all nations at the doll convention. But there was one doll Jane, the little mortal girl who'd come with her own doll in a fairy balloon, could not for the life or her place. She was a dark-eyed, olive-skinned doll with black hair and long, very long eyelashes. Her feet were bare, her full spirit brightly colored. She wore a strange white apron with a border and a gaudy handkerchief tied around her head. Strangest of all—on her back she carried a beautiful earthen pot.

Jane asked her what the pot was for. The queer doll handed Jane a candy and Jane ate it. When she repeated her question it came out of her mouth in strange foreign words that the doll immediately understood.

"In my country," said the doll, "we carry water in just such jars. There are no water pipes."

Then she told Jane that her name was Armenia and she came from the country for which she was named.

Now Jane was a very curious little girl and presently she peered into the water jug. The minute she did so she felt her nose pinched dreadfully. A second later a queer little old man popped out of the water jar and laughed and laughed and laughed with a dreadful cackle. Then she jumped to the ground and began skipping wildly around. Armenia turned pale.

"It's an Armenian goblin!" she cried. "Oh, dear, I must catch him and take him back with me or all the goblins in Armenia will come down to know where he is."

Well, my dears, from that time on excitement reigned in the fairy forest. All the dolls tried to help Armenia catch the goblin. How he'd gotten into the water jar in the first place was a mystery. All the forest elves came running, too, to help, but that Armenian goblin was so tricky it seemed as if they'd never catch him. He turned himself into a camel. He turned himself into a goat and then all at once he turned back to a goblin, save that he made himself ten times his size. You couldn't have gotten him back in the water jar with a shoe horn.

"Put me in the jar!" he mocked. "Put me in the jar!" And when they all stood around and stared at him, he added pertly:

"Only the touch of a mortal hand can make me small enough to get into that jar again unless I choose."

Now Jane, of course, had been turned into a doll by the elf who called in the fairy balloon for her doll, Clarissa, and now she hurried away to hunt him.

"Peter! Peter Prank!" she called to the elf. "Fare me back to a mortal with your fan of water-lily petals."

Peter Prank did so and Jane, stealing up behind the goblin, touched him on the shoulder. Then she clung very fast to his coat, and when in her hand was a tiny old man, struggling furiously. Whereupon they put him in the water jar, corked it tightly with grass and Armenia took him home.

as fast as he can pelt; his eyes distorted by old booze, the course of safety he would choose. In haste he wheels from passing cars, and makes the dodging walker swear, and kills a lawyer here and there. He is a messenger of death; and any man whose dark blue coat suggests long sessions at the bar, should never run a motor car. If "Safety First" is what you mean, you can't mix gin and gasoline.

A Stiff Neck in the Mind.

It's as hard to get enjoyment when your mind is set against it as it would be to admire something beautiful when you had to twist round a stiff neck to see it.

I know a woman who had her mind set against living in a house with a member of her husband's family. She made herself miserable over it until somehow she came to her senses. "I am letting this spoil my life," she said. "I won't think about it any more."

"No, I don't like her," she said when I asked her how it worked. "but I don't mind her any more."

That's a sample of what one can accomplish by setting one's mind the right way.

"Murderer, you would say! Perhaps if I had not been stunned by it all—first Harold's letter, and the knowledge that he had come to me to tell me all and ask my help, and that I had held him back from speaking, and then the thing that he had done in haste and desperation, lest anything should come to stop his going to the front, with his men, and then following by telegram soon after I got that terrible letter—the news of his death—perhaps but for all these things I might have felt for other people, might have felt shame, remorse, but I did not! I was stunned. Harold's letter had come too late. The trial was over; Jim Kildare was sentenced. The old father was dead. That news came soon afterwards—I forget exactly when. He had written to make some enquiries. I said I could give him no information; that was through our lawyer. Then some one told me he was dead, and I breathed more freely. There was only the boy himself."

"Only! With five years of penal servitude before him?"

Miss Willoughby raised her head and gazed out of the window with a strange, gloomy bitterness.

"I disliked Jim Kildare. I was jealous of him; Harold thought so much of him. Sometimes when I wanted him he failed me because he was going somewhere with Jim Kildare. Sometimes when he came he brought young Kildare with him, and I felt how much more his friend was to him than his sister. And so I became jealous of him. Allardyce you do not know how bitter a thing jealousy is."

The girl shook her head. That tormenting emotion had played no part in her young life.

"By nature I am a very jealous woman. I think that is one reason why I have never married. My wealth has attracted suitors, but always I have felt that others were preferred before me, that I was only valued for what I possessed. I have sent them all away. It was jealousy which angered me against Jim Kildare. It hardened my heart against him. He had robbed me of so much of myself—a great deal of Harold's love. If he had to suffer himself, I told myself I did not care."

"But you did care. I knew from the very first that you were a very sad woman."

"They had been over this ground before; they did not cover it again. Miss Willoughby spoke in the same dreary, bitter way, looking all the time out straight before her with wide open but unseeing eyes.

"And now I have been feeling enough to part with my secret. And you, child, will betray me."

"No I shall not."

"You think that now, but one day you will find that you cannot help yourself. That old man—"

"Yes he will have to be told," said Allardyce slowly; "but it is you who will tell him, not I."

"And when he knows do you think he will hold his peace? The whole world will be ringing with the tale before a month is over, and the name of Willoughby—"

"Please wait a minute. I am very

THE ONLY MEDICINE THAT HELPED HER

"Fruit-a-lives Again Proves Its Extraordinary Powers"

Rochester, Que., March 2nd, 1915.

"I have received the most wonderful benefit from taking 'Fruit-a-lives'."

I suffered for years from Rheumatism and change of life, and I took every remedy obtainable without results. I tried 'Fruit-a-lives' and it was the only medicine that really did me good. Now I am entirely well—the Rheumatism has disappeared, and the terrible pains in my body are all gone. I hope that others, who suffer from such distressing diseases, will try 'Fruit-a-lives'. now came and stood close beside her, looking away towards the long serrated reef which stood up black and grim and gloomy against the rose of the western sky.

"I don't think I want to talk to anybody about it just yet, Gipsy, but I love to talk to you—that you care."

Gipsy faced round and threw her arms round her sister's shoulders. There was something in the expression of Gillian's arch and merry face which Allardyce dimly felt had not been there when she went away.

The next minute her own arms were clasped fast round Gipsy's neck and there was a little break in her voice as she exclaimed—

"Oh, Gipsy, that wolf!"

"Ah, that was just after you left! Sometimes I wake up in the night and see it all, Gipsy. I think it looked to other people as though the brute was going to spring at Viking, but I caught one glimpse of those glaring yellow eyes, those great blood-stained fangs, and I am almost sure he was going to spring at my throat. I haven't told anybody. It seems worse now than it did at the time—if you know what I mean. I was very cool and off-handed about it, just when it had happened, but that was because I hadn't time to think and didn't realize the meaning of the situation. But now, in my dreams or when I lie awake—"

"Oh, Gipsy, I can understand that so well! And it was Gaston Lebreton who saved you?"

"Yes, he risked his own life. Think if he had been bitten and mauled by a rabid wolf!"

The sisters shuddered in sympathy. How terribly near had been that unspeakable horror both to Gipsy and Gaston!

"And then—think of it, Cissy! Perhaps he will have to go—to leave the country—to tear up his life by the roots. And all because people behave so badly to him for something he has never done and had nothing to do with! I call it a shame. If his own mother had not told me I would not have believed it."

"Oh, Gipsy, do you know Madame Lebreton?"

"Yes, I do now. I could not help knowing her after that. I went to have tea with her last week, and she showed me all over the place. It was simply fascinating. You can't think what a lot of hobbies he has, or how splendidly everything is managed, and what a lot of employments he has one way and another—and we know something of the value of that. And yet it may come to this—that they will sell off everything and go away—"

Gipsy suddenly stopped short as though struggling with some strong gust of feeling, indignation being one of its chief ingredients. She made a swift and telling gesture with her hands.

"I could trounce them all for being so unjust and narrow-minded! They ought to be ashamed of themselves!"

"You mean about General Kildare's son?"

"I mean about everything. Mr. Lebreton was a hard old man and did many harsh things. That was the culminating act, I suppose; but he was unpopular before that. Uncle Richard disliked him, as we know. There was some sense with him, because of that right of way trouble; but I can't see why everybody had to be nasty. And Madame Lebreton so nice herself, and Gaston most of his time away at school and college and travelling! That's the mean part of it. He couldn't help these things; and now he has to bear all the burden of unpopularity and his mother is ostracised too. That makes him angry and sore. So he is talking of going away—selling everything and starting fresh on the other side of the world. I call it a disgusting shame if he is driven out like that!"

ARMENIA

Of course there were dolls of all nations at the doll convention. But there was one doll Jane, the little mortal girl who'd come with her own doll in a fairy balloon, could not for the life of her place. She was a dark-eyed, olive-skinned doll with black hair and long, very long eyelashes. Her feet were bare, her full sprigs brightly colored. She wore a strange white apron with a border and a gaudy handkerchief tied around her head. Strangest of all—on her back she carried a beautiful earthen pot.

Jane asked her what the pot was for. The queer doll handed Jane a candle and lit it. When she repeated her question it came out of her mouth in strange foreign words that the doll immediately understood.

"In my country," said the doll, "we carry water in just such jars. There are no water pipes."

Then she told Jane that her name was Armenia and she came from the country for which she was named.

Now Jane was a very curious little girl and presently she peered into the water jug. The minute she did so she felt her nose pinched dreadfully. A second later a queer little old man popped out of the water jar and laughed and laughed and laughed with a dreadful cackle. Then he jumped to the ground and began skipping wildly around. Armenia turned pale.

"It's an Armenian goblin!" she cried. "Oh, dear, I must catch him and take him back with me or all the goblins in Armenia will come demanding to know where he is."

Well, my dears, from that time on excitement reigned in the fairy forest. All the dolls tried to help Armenia catch the goblin. How he'd gotten into the water jar in the first place was a mystery. All the forest elves came running, too, to help, but that Armenian goblin was so tricky it seemed as if they'd never catch him. He turned himself into a camel. RIPPLING RHYMES BY WALT MASON

The man who drives a motor car where crowds of human beings are, should have his wits as bright and keen as is the sparking gasoline. A motor is a deadly thing, that, sure to slay and wound and mangle unless the driver's safe and sane, possessed of clear and active brain. How sinful, then, the sodden skater who says, "Be careful, be careful, along the crowded streets to fly, I'll drink four fingers of old rye." With tangled feet beneath his belt, he goes as fast as he can pelt; his eyes distorted by old booze, the course of safety he won't choose. In haste to get to other bars, he knocks the wheels from passing cars, and makes the dodging walker swear, and kills a lawyer here and there. PEOPLE ask me why my tea tastes so good. First, I use freshly drawn water. When boiling briskly I pour it over the leaves, allowing the tea to steep, not boil, five minutes. Next, I pour the tea off the leaves into another pot. In that way you get the flavor of Red Rose Tea in all its fullness and richness. Try it. In sealed packages only.

HERE IT IS

4	2-Year Subscriptions	500,000 Votes	4
	1-Year Subscriptions	160,000 Votes
	6-Monthly Subscriptions	80,000 Votes

This Gives Each Candidate the Great Chance to Store Up Votes Required to Win Prize Desired!

Big Cut in Votes Next Week!

Candidates will have to cash every possible promise this week if they expect to win. Each week candidates have been complaining to the Contest Department about not being able to cash their promises, and have been asking for more time. We have gone the limit—it is up to you, candidates, this week to win or lose. Those who expect to win have got to cash their promises if they expect to win. Excuses will never secure anybody an automobile. It takes votes to win. There is only one way to get them, and that is by securing subscriptions to The Daily Courier. This is no contest for the loafer—it is for live, energetic and popular men and women. Success will crown the efforts of the candidates who have the grit and determination to fight to the finish.

Success or Failure This Week

This is the critical week for every candidate. There are still plenty of subscriptions to be secured, and the candidate who is not strong enough to go out and get them will fall by the wayside. There is not a candidate in the entire contest who could not win if they would do their best. Get up this very minute, make up your mind you will win that grand prize Touring-Car this week. Let this week be your banner week. You can if you are determined and do your best.

Candidates must have at least one club of four in order to get these votes. Read conditions in the contest story on another page.

Big Club Offer Ends 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21

Call your friends together, tell them you want to get enough votes to win the grand prize Auto, and you must have their assistance. United efforts will bring amazing results—do not blame anyone but your self if you are not in the land of plenty of votes next Saturday evening—do not be over-confident, for there is not a candidate in the contest to-day who has anywhere near enough votes to win the automobile. This is a great contest—the very best and strongest people in this part of Brantford are competing—it will be a great honor to win. Those who produce the greatest results this week are likely to be in the land of plenty of votes. Start right out this second, make up your mind you will be there.

LET THIS BE YOUR SLOGAN—"SUBSCRIPTIONS TO-DAY" OR BUST---AND YOU WILL WIN!

the Prizes

Next Saturday night at 8 o'clock the last day of the Great Club of Candidates and their friends but but three days left in which to win on this great offer. As this is the largest vote ever given in the history of the contest, so it behooves all candidates to get busy between now and Saturday, Oct. 21.

Test Your Mettle
Candidates should strain every fort this week to have their vote cords grow as large as possible. A few more votes when resources are exhausted may be the turning point in making your favorite contestant a winner of a prize worth hundreds of dollars.

The great value of the prizes and the honor and the public records attaining success are important factors now being held worthy of consideration. Just three more days which to work for the prizes, the destiny of the world has sometimes been changed within an hour. Empires have been made and made in a single fearful hour, so the result of this campaign likely to be decided by what is accomplished in these three days. Valuable prizes are hanging in the air waiting to be plucked by the who have the energy and the determination to win them.
