There is one medicine which will overcome this condition more certainly and more quickly than any other, and this is Dr. Chase's Kid ney-Liver Pills.

This medicine gets the bowels in action at once and by awakening the liver and kidneys ensures the thorough cleansing of the filtering and excretory systems.

With the poisonous obstructions removed, the digestive system resumes its healthful condition, appetite improves, pains and aches disappear as well as irritability and depression. FACE TO FACE.

While Dessie was thus plaguen by ner doubts and fears, matters were moving fast outside. Mrs. Davenant who had returned had been the signal for some very energetic actions on the part of Tom Cheriton. He could not leave his nucle in consegience of the latte 's critical condition, but be set some machinery in motion which could not but have 'm portant consequences.

Mrs Davenant told him frankly and fully all that she knew about de Mon talt, disclosing without reserve the incidents which had culminated in the meeting of herself and Dessie at Rirmingham station But she added that there was evidently something more behind than Dessie's possession of the rubies, though the girl would say nothing.

"Are you sure this is the man?" Cheriton asked. "Quite sure?"

"I tell you we spoke together about when I saw him at that infatuated woman's house, where he played me that trick.'

'And he didn't attempt to deny himself?

Instead of that, he ran away, leaving me the letter I have given you."

"Can you guess why he bolted?" "No; but I should think to get the widow out of our way. He has two objects-to make that woman his wife, and so stop our mouths out of Dessie's regard for her; and secondly to get possession of the rubiesto frighten Dessie out of them."

"I think I see what to do," said Cheriton, after a pause of thought. 'I wish I could get up to town to Dessie. But wishing's no use. I shall wire a hint of the truth to someone who'll move heaven and Barrett, Miss Annie, earth to outwit the Frenchman. > With that he despatched a telegram to George Vezey, to his London address, tealing him that he had found Ball, Albert, retd. out the true history about the Count Brady, Michael, le Montait, and urging him to wire at once where Mrs. Markham was.

George Vezey was at Brighton when this telegram was delivered, and it was sent on to him by post. It reached him the next morning, and he replied at once that he had met Mrs. Markham and de Montalt at the staion; she was staying at the Grand Hotel, and that, if the facts were wired him, he would see her at once. Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe,

The germ can only prosper when the condition system give self and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can

London, May 27 .- From King George V., it is said, came the hint to London really fine man, he will not speak hotels and caterers in anticipation of he coronation crush

According to reliable authority the King, in the hearing of Lord Northeliffe, expressed the "strong hope" that the fetes of the Empire would be nae scruple to say sae in such terms exploited, not selfishly, but patriotias were consistent wi gude manners cally by all. Lord Northcliffe did the

By a week-end journal, which "already can detect signs of the approaching slump of prices to a raional level," the Americans are bidlen to come ahead and risk it.

They are told that "in all probabilty even if the weather is loyal, it will be easy to secure on both days of the state visit to the city an excellen seat almost anywhere along the oute for the price of an orchestra chair in a Broadway theatre, and, it it rains, as probably it will, for a marter of a dollar.

New Yorkers and Chicagoans "who ike a gamble above everything else,' are urged to take this flier. So greatly do applications present at the crowning exercises tax the space available at the Abbey that the King has directed that Westminster Abbey be kept open after the function for inspection by the public for much longer period than it was on the occasion of his father's coronation. The thrones and all the other specal structures will be left for a fortnight, at least, exactly as at ceremony As a public curiosity concerning deails has risen higher than at the time of the crowning of Edward VII. and as visitors promise to be 100 per cent. more numerous despite all the reports of high charges, enormous crowds will go to the Abbey to inspect the regalia and Coronation theatre.

Week by week King George . advances in the favor of his people who dress will be as white as when you are coming to appreciate his tactful courses and somewhat grave demeanor, at their full value, as was demonstrated in many ways to-day during the "Home celebrations" of the anniversary of his birth, which actually falls on June 3.

Occurring contemporaneously with the nation's rejoicing, the parade of 10,000 children in Hyde Park serves to associate the ideas of Empire and the royal personality in the minds of the youngsters by an object lesson not to be forgotten lightly.

It was at the King's particular desire that the parade styled "The Sweetest Note in the Coronation Octave," is to be held during his birthday jubilations at home.

Thanks to a frequent personal touch in the Royal management, it is George the man, even more than George the King, about whom popular interest is gathering.

To Joseph H. Chamberlain, recuperating at Cannes, he wrote in his own hand-writing an urgent invitation to "join us on coronation day."

On learning that the Duke of Granton, who was severely wounded at Inkerman in the Crimean War and whose ninetieth birthday falls on Coronation Day, was confined to his room with a cold, he sent a message of hope that the Duke would not fail to "pay me as high a compliment as you paid my grandmother when you went to see her driven from church after being crowned." Absolutely nothing vital to the success of the Coronation is being over looked by King George.

Training of Teachers.

We are pleased to find that the importance of the better training of our school teachers is gradually being better realized. The work which has been inaugurated by Mr. Barnes in the Normal Training School of the Church of England denomination is but the beginning of better things. At present the usefulness of this school is hampered:—(1) by an inadequate supply of pupil teachers of sufficient scholastic standing to take full advantage of the course offered; (2) by the impossibility at present of classifying pupil teachers according to their standing, and adapting courses suitable to the classification adopted, (3) by the lack of a school annex, conducted on the principles inculcated by Mr. Barnes, where the lines laid down are followed and where the pupilteachers may see the theory taught in may practice Practice under one management with sey is in her 85th year. an eye to intelligent harmony.

Mrs. Tucker is Enthusiastic Over the Children's Festival.

Mrs. Tucker is charmed with the idea of the giving the children a high old time in Coronation Week. She is broud that we have such men in the community ready to do their level best to make the children, the poor children in particular, have one good square blow out, one happy romping day out in the sunshine, with good stirring music and everything going with a swing. 'Twill do more to still up a true patriotic feeling than anything else she can dream of. Heretofore; Mrs. Tucker says, we laid corner stones on occasions like this. and weary men trotted out with stiff frock coats, bulged beaver hats and shiny faces to do honour to the occa sion. They felt, they knew, that section of the community were outside the ring of rejoicement, but no one seemed to have the happy knack o knowing how to include the poo children in the gay festivities. No doubt on their way back from cele brating many men met many pale faced children who stood around the corners and gazed in wonder at the 'grand men" in their stiff attire; but that was their share of enjoyment Now, thanks to the Press and the gentlemen who started the ball a-rolling the children are going to actually take part in the celebration. It's an easy matter, Mrs. Tucker says, to clap a man on the back and say well done. but the men who have taken up this matter deserve more than mere words of encouragement. Every young sport in the country can help them in this great undertaking by handing in a donation no matter how small. One section of this community seem to pay the piper on all occasions such as this, and Mrs. Tucker thinks this is unfair, for we all "fool away" many's the half-dollar that could be devoted to help this Children's Celebration out. She has, therefore, authorized me to hand in to the Telegram her small mite and hopes that other wo men like her will follow suit. 'Twill be a grand sight to witness the thousands of children eploying a genuine old-time picnic, and the children will be so impressed that they will in later years recall with pleasure the happy day they spent at the time of the Coronation of our beloved

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

The carpenter is driving some nails into a plank; the ostler's blithely striving to clean a charger's shank; the baseball artist pitches, the farmer plows for riches, the hired man's digging ditches, or toiling at a crank. The sailor ties his bowknots and shins up tarry ropes; the baker cooks his doughnuts, the grocer sells his soaps; some chaps are busy clerking, or engine levers jerking, and other men are working, producing white men's hopes. I look upon my neighbours, and have new faith in man; each busy at his labors, and doing what he can; to be forever doing, achieving and pursuing, a-sawing wood and hewing-that is the only plan. But now the weird spellbinder appears upon the scene; he gnashes tusk and grinder with fierce and awful mein: he makes the toilers weary of work that once seemed cheery; he springs some foolish theory that rankles in his bean. The talkers, O the talkers, who rant and pirouette! Discouragers and and mockers of all who toil and sweat! Declaration of London. Evening Special Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-Day.

The Imperial Conference discussed the Australian complaint that the Dominions had not been consulted in reference to the Declaration of London and the agreement concerning which was adopted at a conference. Sir Edward Grey pointed out that a refusal to agree to the ratification of the De- a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Patclaration would be a great blow to the cause of Arbitration. Premier Laurier thought that the claim that the Dominions should be consulted by the Imperial Government when treating or negotiating was unjustified. He said that the Arbitration Treaty with the States might not be carried through if the Declaration was not ratified.

STANDARD BREAD is the old farm-house loaf, made by milling good, sound, sweet, dry wheat, and taking out of the Flour the coarser bran.

STANDARD BREAD is not a patent food, or a patent bread. It is just good sound BREAD, and it is called "STANDARD" by everyone, because it agrees with a standard fixed by eight eminent medical men in a Manifesto, published first by the "Daily Mail" on January 26th, 1911, and since widely republished by the newspapers of the world.
