CHAPTER XXXIII.

The lovely young face grew whiter and colder. The very longing of her heart was to listen to his love story and to tell him how she reciprocated his affection. She would have given life almost to look into his dark loving eyes; but her pride was greater than her love.

Sir Lisle wondered. Surely he had not been mistaken in thinking that this beautiful bright young girl cared for him?

"It may be, my darling," he said, "that my words are rough. I am not accomplished in the art of love-making—you are the only one to whom I have ever opened my heart—and I know not what to say, except that I love you, Diana, and ask you to be my wife."

He had taken one of her hands in his before she had time to prevent it, and she could not withdraw it from his warm, firm clasp.

"Do you remember, Diana," he continued, "when I asked you to give me this ring? I was going to ask you to give me the hand that bore it; I ask you now, Diana, have you no word for me, no look of encouragement? Oh, my queen, I am beginning to fear! Why are you so silent, so cold? Last night you cheered my heart by your smiling radiance and gracious condescension—why will you not smile now?"

Ah, Heaven, why? Since then the Diana who loved him had died; the girl now before him was but her avenger.

"It cannot be," he added quickly, "that I am mistaken! His voice grew hoarse and low as he spoke, "I am not a coward; but, if you send me away from you, Diana, I shall die! I can never face life without you now, because the hope of winning you has sprung to life in my heart. You will not be cruel to me; you will not doom me to a life of misery? Diana, my darling, my own and only love, will be my wife?"

Then she turned her white set face to him.

"No," she replied slowly; "I can never be your wife, Sir Lisle Scarsdale."

His face grew white as her own, and quivered as from the agony of a death-blow.

"No!" he repeated. "Oh, Diana, my love, you cannot be so cruel! For Heaven's sake, think of what you are saying!"

"I have thought of it," she said, "and my answer, my only answer, is 'No.'"

He recoiled as though the words had stabbed him to the heart; while Diana felt that she could not bear the excitement much longer. Her eyes were growing dim, she could not see, her senses were failing her; while he was kneeling in supplication at her feet, his handsome face, white with pain, raised pleadingly to hers.

"Think, my darling, think!" he said. "You cannot mean 'No'; you must not say 'No' to me. My love, Diana, do not say 'No'!" He had caught her hand in his and was kissing it with uncontrolled passion.

"I have no other answer to give," she said defiantly. "Take that as my final answer, and leave me."

Then he stood before her with outstretched arms, a look of yearning love on his face which, but for her pride, must have touched her heart. "I will not believe it; I will not take 'No' for an answer. You have not looked into your own heart, Diana. If there be any truth in woman's words or looks, you love me; if not, they are all false!"

"I am not false, nor are my words false, Sir Lisle Scarsdale. I say 'No' and I have no other answer to give you."

"I will not believe it!" he cried, with the energy of despair.

"It is true," she said.

"You will not marry me, Diana?"

"No," she replied.

"You do not love me?" he asked; and this time he was keen enough to detect the slightest hesitation before she spoke. He went to her, and, laying his hands on her shoulders and looking anxiously into her face, said, "Diana, tell me frankly—you are always frank—why will you not marry me?"

"I am not bound to give my reasons," she said.

"You have more than one, then?" he asked.

"I have many," she replied.

"I wish I understood you, Diana," he said, sadly, "for I am sure that you love me even now. Though you look proud and angry, I read love in your face."

"You read falsely," she declared; but the proud figure dropped, the pale face grew paler. She had reached the utmost limit of her strength. Then, nerving herself for a final effort, she said, "Sir Lisle, leave me. I—I have no more to say. Our interview is ended."

There was something in her voice which compelled obedience. But he would not leave her thus; he went to her and kissed her hands.

"I will not take such an answer, Diana," he said. "I will go now; but my lips to-morrow."

And, glancing at her sorrowfully, he left the room.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Sir Lisle could not and would not believe that his love was unrequited. He was perhaps one of the least vain of men, yet he had felt sure that Diana loved him. She was so free from artfulness—she could not have been coquetting with him; and he had an idea that with Diana's love would be a sacred thing—something to be revered and held apart. She had been so sweet, so gracious in her manner to him; and he could not believe that she would have allowed him to embrace her as he had done, to hold her for one brief minute in his arms, if she did not love him. He felt that, if he had asked her in that moment to be his wife, she would have said "Yes," and he reproached himself bitterly that he had not done so.

What, he asked himself again, had caused this revision of feeling? Last night he had kissed her, and by the light in her lovely eyes he was sure she returned his love. She could not have been more sweetly acquiescent. This morning he had found her cold and proud; he had asked her to be his wife—and she had refused him.

He tried to recall every incident of the previous evening. When Evadne came into the conservatory, Diana, blushing, conscious, and beautiful, had broken suddenly from his arms. He knew that Evadne had not seen him kiss her. Diana had hastened away; he had remained for a few minutes talking to Evadne, and they had returned to the drawing-room together. After that he had not seen Diana until she came down to breakfast with changed, haggard face. In the meanwhile what had happened? Nothing that he could hear of—nothing that he could understand. He had remained for some time in the drawing-room, hoping every moment that she would return. When he found that she did not, he went in search of her. Vainly he sought her in the music-room, the picture gallery, and elsewhere where he thought it possible she might be; but there was no trace of her. Then he heard from Evadne that she had gone to her room and would not return. He had thought that it was a favorable sign for him—that she was happy, and did not care to mix with the crowd again. Still it was strange that she had not wished him good-night, that she had sent him no message, that she had left him without one word. He had, however, overheard a remark of Lady Cameron's when she found that her step-daughter had unceremoniously left the visitors and gone to her room.

He could think of nothing to account for the change in her conduct, and yet he felt sure that, even while she refused him and sent him away, she loved him. It was that which made him more hopeful. If there were a mystery, he would unravel it.

It so happened that just before luncheon he sauntered into a little ante-room in search of something, and found Diana there. She had still the same pale, troubled face; and Sir Lisle's heart melted at the sight of her. He laid his hand on her arm; but she shook it off with a proud gesture of annoyance. Sir Lisle placed it there again, and there she let it remain, as though disdainful to show her dissatisfaction a second time.

"My darling, Diana," he said, "you have dismissed me; I will not go. You have given me 'No' for an answer; I will not take it. You have been cold and cruel to me; I will not heed it. My love for you is great and deep as the boundless sea; I will be faithful and loyal to you."

"You have had my answer," she told him, in a low, hoarse voice, full of misery.

"Granted," said Sir Lisle; "but, Diana, I shall never relax my efforts until I have won you. The pride, cruelty, and coldness with which you may treat me I shall bear; but my suit shall triumph in the end."

"I do not care to discuss the matter any further," replied Diana.

She was almost weary of the struggle.

H.P.

SAUCE

At Lunch Time

Make a point of trying H.P. Sauce, you will be delighted with the new and delicious flavour—quite distinct from ordinary sauces.

He would have liked best to lay her head on his breast and sob out all her grief to him; but he was a Scarsdale, and her tears should not rejoice because she became Lady Scarsdale. Pride turned her to stone again.

"You are so well worth winning, my queen," he said, "that I would work for you as Jacob did for Rachel, and I would wait my whole life if I had the hope of making you my wife even at its very close. You cannot grieve such love as that, Diana."

"I will try," she answered.

"I love you so well, dearest," he continued, "despite your coldness, that I would rather spend one hour with you in misery than a life of happiness with another. Ah, Diana, you may contact your brows, you may curve your sweet lips; but you must listen! I cannot stifle the feeling that you care for me a little; I cannot help hoping against hope; I cannot resist appealing against what seems to me a cruel rejection, and, in thinking it over, I am convinced there is a mystery connected with it, and that mystery I am resolved to solve."

In that moment her determination was taken. He should never solve the mystery, nor should he know that she cared for him. Before night he should hear of her engagement to Lord Clanronald. Then he would believe that she had refused him because she loved another.

But Diana was mistaken; it was incredible that he should believe anything of the kind.

"I shall be glad, Sir Lisle, if you will refrain from mentioning the subject to me again; it displeases me," said Diana, with a quietly gesture; and before he had time to answer her she had quitted the room.

She knew that one word of hers would turn Lord Clanronald in any direction that she wished him to go, and her mind was quite made up. Before the morrow's dawn she would have struck a blow at the Scarsdales; she would have scattered her ladyship's plans to the winds.

That afternoon Diana, in her trailing robe of blue and white, swept down the terrace. Lord Clanronald saw her, and went to her side at once. The heiress turned to him with her brightest smile.

"It is such a lovely afternoon," she said, "I wonder that every one is not out riding or driving."

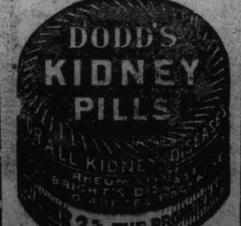

"I would far rather be here than anywhere else," he responded gallantly.

At this moment Diana bitterly realized how guilty she had been in sending from her the man she loved; and she could not, try as she would, encourage the man she intended to marry.

Lord Clanronald could hardly believe his own good fortune, could hardly believe that he was walking with the beautiful brilliant girl whom he had blindly and silently worshiped for so long. He hardly knew how to talk to her—she was so clever, so intellectual, so infinitely superior in every way to himself.

Peace Conference Likely Close To-day.

Big Storm and Loss of Life Reported By Boston Fishery Fleet.

AGAINST LARGE ARMY.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. Disagreeing with the War Department recommendations for a permanent army of 600,000 men, Gen. Pershing today told a joint meeting of the Senate and House Military Committees that he thought that number could be placed at an outside figure of 275,000 to 300,000 and possibly less. The cost of maintaining a large army the General said was an element which in his opinion would make it impracticable to set the figure any higher. The General said the regular army would be sufficient to protect the nation against a sudden attack and to meet America's international obligations both on the American continent and elsewhere and that this should be backed by a trained citizen reserve.

FISHING GROUND SWEEP.

BOSTON, Oct. 31. Vessels fishing out of this port lost many of their men when the squall swept over the fishing grounds last Tuesday. Crews returning here today told how vessel after vessel from which men were cut off while hauling trawls. The schr. Reading reported that she had lost traces of sixteen of her men in a squall and fog. Three of these men rowed eighty miles to safety at Newmarket and six others were reported picked up by another vessel. This Ethel B. Penney came in the harbor with her flag at half mast for three of the crew who strayed away. The Athens is reported to have lost one man and Elk two.

REPORT UNFOUNDED.

LONDON, Oct. 31. Early Morning. There was no confirmation of the reported evacuation of Catchina and according to the view of the War Office the report is unfounded.

INJUNCTIONS SOUGHT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. Injunctions restraining the officers of the United Mine Workers of America from conspiracy to violate the Food and Fuel Control Act, will be sought by the Government to-day at Indianapolis it was said at the White House.

ELECTION IN FIUME.

FIUME, Oct. 31. Gabriele D'Annunzio has issued a proclamation to the city of Fiume, fixing November sixteenth as the date for the election of a Deputy representing Fiume in the Italian Chamber of Deputies. The D'Annunzio bureau of information announces that "Commander Luigi Bizzo, of the Italian navy will be the candidate." Commander Rizzo will be remembered as the Naval officer whose daring exploit resulted in the sinking of two Austrian battleships off the Dalmatian Coast. He is now Commander-in-Chief of the D'Annunzio sea forces.

THE CLOSE OF THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

PARIS, Oct. 31. The end of November may see the close of the Peace Conference which has negotiated the Peace Treaties with Germany and Austria and has carried the negotiations with Bulgaria well towards completion. Unless the conference can speedily reach an agreement with Rumania and compel it to discontinue its interference in Hungarian affairs, there seems little chance that a Peace Treaty can be negotiated with Hungary at present. The Conference will probably close without making the Treaty.

WORKLESS SOLDIERS TO GO IN CAMP.

LONDON, Oct. 30. The Canadian Government will probably receive representation soon regarding the opening of a camp here for a very limited period for soldiers who took their discharge and now find themselves workless. It will also be represented that although these men have now absolutely no legal claim for repatriation, it will be wiser to grant this concession. Before this is done, however, it is urged that some organization in Canada must be prepared to look after them on arrival, otherwise their condition in Canada will be as bad as it is here.

IRISH REPUBLICAN PARLIAMENT.

DUBLIN, Oct. 29. The Sinn Fein press bureau says the Irish Republican Parliament met in private session at the Mansion House Monday evening. There was a full attendance of members. It was announced that Irish trade representatives had been appointed, working in France, Italy, Switzerland and the Argentine, and that J. T. Fawcitt had opened offices as Irish Consul General in New York City. The Press Bureau adds that the session lasted from 7 o'clock in the evening until one o'clock the following morning.

IRISH PARLIAMENT'S ACTIVITIES.

DUBLIN, Oct. 30. The meeting of the Sinn Fein Parliament last night was in direct defiance of the Government's proclamation. The people are interested to know what the Government will do about it. The meeting being illegal, the Irish papers are forbidden to mention it. A report circulated by the Sinn Feiners says that a National Inspector of Fisheries will be appointed, that a Civil Service scheme is being arranged to embrace all local officers; and also that National Arbitration Courts and Labor conciliation

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for the greatest remedy. Ready and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest becomes easier, phlegm loosens, breathing you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest cures are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 18 ounces of a family remedy—you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Spruce extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

bodies will be formed. Estimates for the coming financial period, says the report, were laid before the house and the necessary votes of credit adopted. The six Sinn Fein members for Dublin have sent to the American Consul a copy of alleged instructions for searching the effects of American seamen. The latter says: "As these instructions constitute a hindrance to lawful trade of America with Ireland, we, the elected representatives of the City of Dublin, request that you transmit copies of them to your Government."

LIVE.

The grieving and the hurt of life Are often hard to bear. And every hour of bitter strife Is tinged with despair. There's much of pain and much of woe For every man to meet. Life's burdens weary us, but Oh, Its happy days are sweet.

Sometimes the dismal days seem long, Sometimes our hearts are sad; We wonder as we hear their song What makes the robins glad. But when our skies grow blue once more

And we have dried our tears, When joy is dancing round the door, How bright the sun appears!

When enemies our path beset— And we must bear their blows; When hate and envy make us fret The world seems filled with foes. Then we would shun the haunts of men

And go where striving ends, But life is all worth while again When we are with our friends.

Life's burdens oft are hard to bear But all its joys are sweet; Along the dreary lanes of care Men walk with lagging feet; They wince beneath the hurt and pain Which fate to all must give. But when the laughter rings again, How good it seems to live!

Doctors Fail

Terrible case of Eczema—contracted when a mere boy—fought violence for ten years, with half dozen specialists. Both legs in terrible condition. Almost a nervous wreck. It took just 8 bottles of D.D.D. to clear up this case.

This is the late testimony of a prominent newspaper man. Ask your druggist and he will tell you what D. D. D. has accomplished in your own neighborhood. Your money back unless the first bottle relieves you. Try it to-day.

Personal Mention.

Constable P. Foran of King's Cove is at present in the city. He came here during the week with a female patient for the Lunatic Asylum.

Mr. J. W. Morris, Supt. Reids Electrical Department has gone to Nova Scotia, to visit his mother, who is dangerously ill there.

Schooner Lost.

The schooner Victorine, Capt. Way, became a total wreck at Newtown, B. B. She had put in there out of the storm, and dragging her anchors, was forced on the land. She had on board at the time a full cargo of fish from Labrador. Luckily all the crew escaped without injury.

Big Loss.

A fire took place at Hodge's Cove, Saturday last, and destroyed a large store and all its contents, to the value of 2,000 dollars. The place was owned by Stephen Smith, and the loss to him is severe, as he carried no insurance on the place. How the fire originated is not known.

What People Are Saying

A Chiffon Wife.

"There is the girl who has a tailor-made nature, as well as the clinging, softly-draped woman, or, as a clever novelist expressed it recently, 'A man who has two sisters generally inclines to a chiffon wife.'"

—"Olivian" in the Sphere.

D'Annunzio The Rebel.

"I take upon myself all the blame and every blow. I am proud of my actions. I shall shelter each one of you with my body. The real Italian army is a hero, and is formed by you combatants without blemish and without fear."

Secure Isolation a Myth.

"The 'next war,' hanging over the nations as an inevitable doom, would prove in its coming that secure isolation is a myth in this shrinking world. These are considerations which tower mountain-high above the personalities of the week."

—The Observer.

Viscount Grey.

"Viscount Grey had a farewell interview with the Prime Minister at 10, Downing Street. I met the new Ambassador walking along Whitehall. He was wearing 'dark-coloured glasses, but he threaded his way through the traffic with the easy self-confidence of a man blessed with the most perfect eyesight. His health is practically fully restored. His complexion, which has lost the pallor of former days, is a deep brown, the effect probably of long sunny days by the riverside."

—London Correspondent of the Glasgow Herald.

Whitehall Pharos.

"Whitehall is brimful of Pharos in waterproofs!" says Mr. Tim Healy in the Sunday Express.

"The Government is offering to the public a large stock of mackintosh capes made for cavalry at the extraordinarily low price of 18s. apiece," says the Daily News.

"But the public do not know about it, and the Government is taking practically no steps to tell of the extraordinary bargain that awaits it."

Cost of Living Up 115 Per Cent.

It is reported in the Board of Trade Labour Gazette that the average increase in retail prices of the principal articles of food at September 1 was 115 per cent., as compared with July, 1914, the corresponding figure for plenty in the old days in Russia," says the Nation. "With an unrivalled genius for some forms of art and for unsystematic speculation, the Russians were never a capable people in the world of action and organisation."

"NEXT WINDOW."

"It is quite possible to wait for several precious minutes in a queue at a booking office, only to be told when one's turn comes that one is at the wrong pigeonhole. This could be obviated by a diagram."

—WAYS AND MEANS.

Of Tremendous Consequence.

"This Report is a document of tremendous consequence, and all who know that a nation does not live by bread alone (nor by coal, nor by any material wealth) should study it carefully."

—Morning Post, on "The Army and Religion."

The Future Commons.

Lord Haldane says that if you take the House of Commons as about 700 in number, a General Election might well yield about:—

120 Labour members.
100 young Conservatives of the most progressive type, under Lord Robert Cecil.
100 detached Irish members of various opinions.

RELAXING TO

There's one grand thing about this business of relaxing, you can apply the principles that govern it to so many phases of life. For instance, you can relax to the weather. Haven't you ever noticed how much mental energy people use up on the weather. When we have a rainy spell of three or four days, how many people get to feeling that they can't be at ease in their minds till it clears off. "Oh, dear, it's raining again," they say gloomily when they wake up to find it still pouring; or, "I feel as if I should scream if the sun didn't come out," or, "This is the third day it has rained, it seems as if it must clear off to-morrow."

How They Push Against the Rain.
Can't you feel the sense of pushing and straining mentally in each of those sentences? And what a waste of energy it is!

Wouldn't all those people be better off if they simply made up their minds that when it got ready to clear off it would clear off; that there wasn't any way they could hurry it; that after all, it didn't make the slightest real difference to them (of course, I do not refer to the cases where rain definitely interferes with some plans) and that they might as well relax their attention, think about something else, and let the Lord attend to the weather.

"The Wind Makes Me So Nervous."
Then there are the people who detest wind and who have to make a certain amount of fuss when the wind blows. I do not mean merely that they object to walking against the wind. That is tiresome, of course, though one does not gain anything by adding to one's physical burdens the mental burden of a dejection, but even when they are inside a house and the wind is outside these people fuss about it. "I hate to hear the blinds rattle," they say, or, "the wind makes me so nervous." Meanwhile the wind bloweth

PROBLEMS.
Some mighty problems now confront us, there is a crisis every day; one problem cannot, some others haunt us, and take the joy of life away. The times are grave; I hear my neighbors denouncing things; they rant and roar; they have suspended all their labors to argue at the Blue Front store. I do not join them in their ranting, their crisis rags I do not chew; all day they see me gallivanting on useful errands, fro and to. The times are grave; we make them graver by quitting work to paw the ground, e'en though the spels we make may savor of wisdom widespread and profound. I let the problems go to thunder; we are with statesmen well supplied; who tear the Jim-crow things asunder, to see what works they have inside. And all the day I'm busy tolling. I'm banking up my humble shack, to keep my cherished spuds from spilling when come the wintry storm and rack. There's too much talk and too much twaddle, there's too much piffle, wind and bunk; and while my neighbors rant and dawdle, I'm salting down another plunk. There's too much idle, bootless drooling, too much of larynx and of lip; when all the fellows quit their fooling the problems will get up and skip.

Why Not Tax Names?
Why not—here is a hint for Mr. Chamberlain—tax freak names? If people will burden their babies with names by the dozen, or with those of a more or less topical nature—well, make them pay. What chance of longevity had a girl named Irene Jacoby Fanny Jessop Cavendish de Renzi Selina Anna Susannah Shelton Peter? None. She died young, in fact, at Lambeth, and, of course, the coroner's officer decided that an inquest was necessary.

Yet, undeterred by this fearful warning, a man named Pepper—plain Arthur Pepper—christened one of his daughters Ann Bertha Cecilia Diana Emily Fanny Gertrude Hypatia Inez Jane Kate Louisa Maud Nora Ophelia Phyllis Quince Rebecca Starkey Teresa Ulysses Venus Winifred Xenophon Yeni Zeus.

Just as great an infliction on its owner may be the topical name. During the Crimean War there was a tremendous run on Alma, and long afterwards registrars became equally familiar with Rhodesia and Isabella as names for girls.

Kitchener's victory set a lot of people off again, with the result that Omdurman became plentiful, and one poor little beggar was handicapped with Gordon Kitchener Omdurman.

Then came the Boer War, during which this sort of thing was hit off in the doggerel:

For the baby's name is Kitchener
Carrington Methuen Kekewich
White
Cronje Plumer Powell Majuba
Gatacre Warren Colenso Kruger
Capetown Mafeking French Kimberley Ladysmith Bobs
Union Jack and Fighting Mac—Ly-dite—Pretoria—BLOBS!

But the craze reached its height in the early days of the late war, when such combinations as Jellicoe French, Albert Nicholas, Louvain Mons, etc., were freely bestowed on hapless infants.

Now the pendulum has swung back again, and the old favorites have returned to popularity. George, Ronald, and Edward for boys, and Joan, Kathleen, and Irene for girls, occur most frequently in the registers at Somerset House, though Welsh parents blessed with girls show a great liking for Megan, probably because of the hold on their affections that Mr. Lloyd George's daughter has gained.

Ticketing children with strings of names, however, still continues, and a check is needed for that, if only because of the high cost of paper! So what about a name tax?

MUTT AND JEFF— JEFF HANDED MUTT A BOUQUET AND MUTT HANDED JEFF A PIE ON THE BEAK. By Bud Fisher.

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor
C. T. JAMES, Editor

Saturday, November 1, 1919.

The Last Lap.

The contestants in this campaign are now on the last lap of the race, and the Government candidates lead in the estimation of the public. All the cries of the Opposition have been responsible in part for the enormous feeling of sympathy towards the Cashin party and against the Coaker "control" and the Squiresite followers. The sectarian cry has been exploded by Fox and others telling the people in all sincerity to vote for them on merit alone, and the people are going to vote according to merit, and not according to the dictates of Coaker or the windy promises of Squires. The Advocate is, perhaps, the most ludicrous paper that ever struck our shores for its big headlines and bluff articles and faked messages are the laughing stock of all intelligent men. Does the Advocate editor take himself seriously when he thinks the people are led away by his bluff and blustering paper methods. Because the barrel is good for a few bets, is that any reason why the Advocate writers should call the election won? Talk of buying votes. The Opposition has even appropriated campaign funds out of the corporation barrel for the purpose of inducing the people to believe the present Government is defeated. But not yet! The Advocate is in a sorry plight, and this is shown by its reprint of Reid's letter of 1916 again yesterday, and its latest tirade of abuse against Morine. Re the financial affairs of the F.P.U., we have only this to say that Union men and shareholders in the concern have stated that it was $70,000 in debt now. Whether so or not, we are not prepared to say, but we do say it were better for the shareholders if Coaker attended more to business and less to concocting messages and prophesying. We all know that the Union was saved before by Crosbie, Cashin and others, whom Coaker now ridicules and abuses to the best of his ability, and no one will doubt his ability in this respect.

The vilest kind of literature is being distributed widecast by the Opposition. The heebers are more than busy trying to capture votes by any means in their power for Squires and his crowd. But even the hiring of rotor cars to take the papers out will not save Grimes in Port de Grave, nor his partners in Harbor Main and Ferryland. The Advocate proves its reliability by querying whether the railway tie up at present by the recent storms, was done intentionally or not. Could one go further in imbecile writings? Voters be on your guard, Coaker is sick, but his few paid supporters are busy after your vote. If you value your prosperity and your independence, vote for progressive liberalism. You know how that some of the Opposition heebers intend polling more than once on Monday, if possible, so as to get Squires in somehow in the West End. You know how that Squires has come out against labor, and has by so doing, turned all honest men against him. You know how that Squires' writers have shouted and writhed, as they wrote over the $30,000,000 war claim, which will be paid Newfoundland by Britain, as soon as convenient, and not in thirty years' time, as the Post says, and all because the Opposition knows that this war claim means additional prosperity to us, extra provision for our heroes and dependents, and because such prosperity spells death to Squires and Coaker. Squires has been tested and tried, and found wanting. Don't be fooled by thinking the country wants a change (for the worse) or that it is right for Squires to get in simply because Cashin has been there for 27 years. Reason the issue out to-day and vote as conscience and reason dictate, and don't throw away your vote, but vote for Cashin and his party for they ARE Coming Back.

The Telegram does not want to back you. The Telegram only wishes to point out to you the really true condition of affairs at present, for no reliability can be placed on the barrel-bought-press of the Government opponents. Squires is on the last lap of the race, but he is away behind, and the reason is not far to seek. He combined with Coaker. Had he not done so there would have been a slim chance of his gaining the electorate, but that chance was too delicate to go on, for the people know Squires and his dealing with the Reids, and so would not trust him with the premiership of this country, but in uniting with Coaker, the bitter foe of St. John's, he killed even that chance of success, and to-day seeks to gain sympathy votes by telling of those terrible rocks placed in the road for the purpose of wrecking one of his campaign cars, bought so says report, out of the advanced confederation money. It won't be rocks he will be up against on Monday, but mountains. The goal looms ahead, and the winners are still working to break previous records. The Opposition are also working but they have cold feet which makes it impossible for them to keep the pace, but are working merely to mitigate their sense of defeat and chagrin, especially the aspirant for the model farm ministry. Voters, think not that Squires means the good of you when he knifes the labor candidates. He will knife Coaker next or vice versa. Therefore vote for unity of captain and crew and not for dual leadership. Cashin and his party are men, tried and true, and you have their records to prove it; so then think of Squires and his notorious offences, of Coaker and his crazy schemes, of Cashin and his strong judgment, and vote for Cashin and colleagues, for on Tuesday next you will have the gratification of knowing that CASHIN IS BACK!

Unmsaked.

Squires and Coaker have said many things, and have been guilty of many things, which have justified the laborers of St. John's in having little to do with either of them. In view of all that each has said, especially Squires, who stated that Newfoundland laborers were incompetent to do his house furniture, and had to import a man from Halifax for the purpose, it was nauseating to read of Squires' solicitude for the workmen of this city, as shown by some of the earlier writings in the Star. It is therefore more sincere to read at the present time how that the Star and Post are against the labor candidates, and have accused them of being with the candidates of the Government. As Mr. Linegar, one of the labor candidates said, "it was a deliberate lie, and the writer knew the falsity thereof." Squires would not publish the manifesto of the labor candidates because he was no friend of labor, and the majority of these industrious men recognized this, and held aloof from Squires and his nominees. His insincerity has now been finally shown up, and he has shown by the articles of his heebers that he has no regard for the workmen of St. John's, except in so far as he may get their support, and so enrich himself, reduce the country to ruin, and with Coaker, make the lot of the workmen, especially of this city, merely worse than it now is. The mask which Squires wore for some time past with partial success, has now been completely torn away and the man is revealed in all his baseness and duplicity of nature. Workmen of St. John's will vote for one who has proved himself so unworthy of your vote? Squires to-day is leagued with corporations who are fighting for your ruin, and as long as they get their pull they are reckless and unconcerned about you and yours. Vote then for the candidates of Cashin, for he promises to grapple with the various problems of to-day in a sensible way, and to do all possible for your welfare without jeopardizing the finances of your country. Vote then for the Liberal Progressive candidates and save your country, your homes, your families and all you hold dear from everlasting ruin.

Betrayed!

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—As an instance of how the labor candidates are being betrayed, I will mention a case in which a noted heeler of R. A. Squires is going around the streets working overtime to prevent labor candidates from being elected, and yet this same heeler had the cheek to sign the nomination papers of one of the candidates. With a pen he puts down his name as a leading supporter of the candidate, and then with a still-tetter he stabs him and the other two men right through to their hearts. Everybody knows who this notorious, contemptible heeler is, and he even has gone so far as to put out some of the "barrel" money against the very man he nominated, for when he bets on his own particular cronies Squires, you may be sure he will not vote for the workmen. Laborers, and all other workmen, open your eyes quick to the treachery on all sides of you, and to the fact that you are only being made tools and cat-paws of by Squires and Coaker! Turn them down badly and cast in the whole of your votes for Bennett, Mullaly and Martin, then you will get more than even with your betrayers and seducers.

Yours truly,
BARTER'S HILL,
St. John's, Oct. 29, 1919.

Don't Believe Them.

An organized attempt is planned by the Squires heebers to start out in the early morning of Monday with a lot of literature, faked messages, and reports from the outports and other tricks to cajole some votes from the favorite side. Electors we caution you not to listen or be swayed by any of those slick tricks. The moment you see a Squires agent mark him well and stand up firm against his bluff and nonsense, as everyman of them is paid to go around the streets for the purpose of tricking and fooling every voter they meet. Give them the go-by then, and just to show them how you despise their tricks go to the polls and vote dead against their candidates. Above all disregard their papers, their dogers and their pamphlets for they will be all full of lies intended to deceive you. Don't believe anything whatever that any Squires man or paper will tell you, but be sure and vote for Bennett, Mullaly and Martin in St. John's West and Higgins, Vinnicombe and Fox in St. John's East.

Vote for Squires and Have Taxation.

The Squires heebers were around the streets yesterday distributing pamphlets to the effect that if you vote for Squires he will get after the profiteers. Yes he would get after them alright, he would get after them in the same way that he got after Reid when the Government appointed him to investigate Reids claims against the Colony. He got after Reid then so slick that, according to Coaker, he took a graft of $500 in Bank of Montreal notes and put them in his own pocket. He will get after the profiteers sure, as he got after the Reids, and the result will be instead of the Government now collecting the profiteers profits for your benefit they would likely go into "you-knows" pockets and you would be forced for more taxation to make good the loss in the meantime.

OUR WAR INDEMNITY.

What The 'Star' Called a 'Cod.'

Further explaining his remarks at Petty Harbor meeting, the Prime Minister has handed us the following for publication:—

NEWFOUNDLAND

Dominions No. 632.

Downing Street.
Sir,—As your Ministers are aware, it is provided under Part VIII, Section 1, Article 233 and Annex II. of the Peace Treaty with Germany, that there shall be set up in Paris an Inter-Allied Commission, to be called the Reparation Commission, to determine the amount of damage for which compensation is to be made by Germany and deal with other matters connected with reparation.
2. The organization which will be necessary in connection with this Commission is at present under consideration, but it is proposed that the Delegate of Great Britain on the Commission should be advised by a Committee in London containing representatives of the various Departments of His Majesty's Government which are concerned. It is not possible to constitute this Committee formally, pending the ratification of the Peace Treaty and the appointment of the Delegate of Great Britain on the Reparation Commission, but His Majesty's Government are anxious that the Governments of the self-governing Dominions should be associated with the Committee's work, and accordingly when the Committee is formally established, it is proposed to ask your Government to nominate a representative to serve on it.

3. I will inform you by telegraph as soon as the Committee can be constituted; in the meantime your Ministers may wish to consider whom they desire to nominate as representative of the Newfoundland Government.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient humble servant,
MILNER.
Governor:
Sir C. Alexander Harris,

Remember Pay Night.

This afternoon and night of Saturday will serve as a reminder to the large army of people who work in the factories, stores and other concerns of St. John's that it is the welcome occasion when the pay roll is made up and when the weekly wages are received by the workers. The pay time is the most welcome time of the week and long may conditions continue in St. John's so that the pay days will go on and yet even more employment be given to enhance the general welfare. All industrial workers should contrast this with what would likely happen were Coakerism to succeed at the polls; the pay day and the pay roll would then be stopped forever in St. John's and nothing but want and misery would follow in its wake. With the reduced taxation now made certain by the return to us of the war indemnity of Thirty Million Dollars and the consequent lowering of the cost of living, the outlook for the future to all wage earners will be bright and cheerful. Help along this happy state therefore by destroying Coakerism and voting instead for Higgins, Vinnicombe and Fox in St. John's East and Bennett, Mullaly and Martin in St. John's West.

Labourites Betrayed.

WORKINGMEN BE ON YOUR GUARD
It is now become evident that quite a number of persons who had been supporting the Labour Candidates up to the present time are secretly working for Squires, and intend voting for him and his candidates on Polling Day. These men were foremost when Labour representation was at first decided upon in calling out the three Labour Candidates who are at present contesting St. John's West. They have been working for them on their committee during the past month, but now wishing to play both ends against the middle, and make sure that they will have two chances instead of one, they have gone over to the Opposition party, and intend to vote for the Bolsheviks on Monday next.
These men have been marked. It has been noticeable the past night or two that they have been present at the Liberal Reform Party's headquarters, while at the same time they have been endeavouring to keep up the appearance of being supporters of the three labour men. The workingmen would do well to beware of these men and their fell designs. They are traitors to the cause of Labour. When it suited them they supported the Labour Candidates, and now thinking that they have little chance of success, they have deliberately betrayed them, and gone into the Opposition camp. These "scabs" will get their just deserts when their election is over, and their conduct stands fully revealed to the labouring men of the City.

Harbor Grace Liberals

FALL IN LINE WITH ST. JOHN'S.
Greetings are extended by the Telegram to the Liberals of Hr. Grace, the second city of the Island, on behalf of their compatriots in St. John's, with the hope that as the Liberals of the Capital are supporting the popular cause, Harbor Gracians and other Liberals in Conception Bay will fall in line and do likewise. We assure our friends across the Bay that the sentiment in St. John's to-day is one of intense determination in favor of six men sure for the Liberal Progressive Party. Let us hope then to count in Hr. Grace and every part of the Bay as contributing victors to Monday's great triumph for the same good patriotic cause. As a parting word we ask them not to forget their good tried and true friends Piccott and Parsons and to extend similar support to their worthy colleague Josiah Gosse.

At Waterford Hall.

The Liberal Progressive candidates, Messrs. Bennett, Mullaly and Martin, visited Waterford Hall this morning and got a very cordial reception there, and assurances that they will not be forgotten on polling day.

Rampant in Bay de Verde—Simple-Minded Men Taken Advantage of—Could Not Vote for "Green"—Read Hickman and Whiteway's Messages. (Special to Evening Telegram.)

GRATE'S COVE, Oct. 31.

We held successful meeting in Bay de Verde last night. Having meeting here to-night. Have thoroughly canvassed the district from Freshwater to Grate's Cove and have found a large majority in our favour than we expected. We have found the sectarian cry rampant. Simple-minded men have been taken advantage of. We were told by one man that he could not displease his Maker by voting for "green," as there are all colors of roses excepting green.

It is your votes on Monday next that will decide the destiny of Newfoundland during the next few years. Let St. John's and Conception Bay stand firm and true to the Liberal Progressive Party and S. M. P. Cashin and the victory is ours. If contemptible sectarian cries do not poison your minds and warp your judgment, the present Government will have the majority when the ballots are counted. Of this feel quite confident. Judge the parties and the men on their merits and vote accordingly, and the battle won for the Liberal Progressive. Sectarian cries will fall flat the day after the ballots are in the boxes, and the very men who used them want to hear no more about them and if they give any attention to the subject at all it will be only to laugh in their sleeve at those upon whom they think they have influenced.

Squires Show the C

If any proof were necessary to establish the tyrannical and autocratic spirit assumed by the presumptuous and self-constituted leader of the Opposition his uncalculated and impudent attack upon the Labor Party in the West End, would forever settle the matter. Through the columns of the Star on Thursday and republished in the Post yesterday morning, Squires, in the most dictatorial and arrogant manner possible tells the Laborers of this city of St. John's what they should and what they should not do. This is the limit of his impudence, unless there is more to come.

What connection Richard Anderson Squires has with the Laborers of St. John's we fail to see. Has he ever given them employment? Has he ever employed to give, or would he give if he had it to give? We fail to see where his interests in the laborers come in. As a labor-giving individual he may employ a couple of men to put in coal once a year, a few apprentices in his office and possibly a char-woman or two. There ends his employment of the laborers.

And now Dr. Campbell—what labor has he to give? Is it to employ a man or woman to endeavor to scrub the "spots off his cracker"—that foreign and forbidden-looking animal of which he makes such a pet, and which accompanies him in his rounds during his visits by day or night?

And then Mr. Frowner—We fail to see what large amount of employment he gives, nor are we aware that he has interested himself in the welfare of the laborers until a few days ago. So much for these self-constituted patrons of the laborers and their interests. Now contrast these "captains" of industry all employers of laborers with such men as Hon. A. E. Hickman, whose business runs into the millions of dollars annually. Hon. A. W. Piccott, the energetic representative of the Goston Pew Co. whose purse is ever open to the fishermen and the laborer. Sir John C. Crosbie, the rough diamond, who never refuses to do a good turn even for his political opponents, and who is ever ready to take risks in the seal-fishery and every other industry, thereby giving hundreds of people an opportunity to procure employment, and enable themselves and their families to live in comfort. Cashin, ever ready to assist in any charitable or laudable undertaking. Higgins the brilliant young lawyer, who is first to be employed when any of our people get in difficulties. # A FINAL WORD!

To the Electors of St. John's and Conception Bay.

It is your votes on Monday next that will decide the destiny of Newfoundland during the next four years. Let St. John's and Conception Bay stand firm and true to the Liberal Progressive Party and Sir M. P. Cashin and the victory is ours. If contemptible sectarian cries do not poison your minds and warp your judgment, the present Government will have the majority when the ballots are counted. Of this we feel quite confident. Judge the parties and the men on their merits and vote accordingly, and the battle is won for the Liberal Progressives. Sectarian cries will fall flat the day after the ballots are in the boxes, and the very men who used them will want to hear no more about them, and if they give any attention to the subject at all it will be only to laugh in their sleeve at those upon whom they think they have influenced in this way to gain their votes. It would be the most embarrassing thing in life for the sectarian fire bug, to ask him a few weeks after the election or any time during the rest of the year about that whispering statement or that vile secret circular which he made use of to obtain your vote. He would not want to have the subject referred to at all because he knows in his heart that he made a fool of you, or as the late E. M. Jackman used to say, that he "coddled" you and gave you the dope to last long enough to have your ballot safely dropped in the box for his side. He stole away your intelligence and judgment for a day. That was long enough for his purpose. Whether you came back to your normal senses after the election was over, was no business of his. You had served your turn. Good Night! Don't bring up the subject to him again. But mark this. After it is all over, you see him get the price and the reward (if his side wins) of having stolen your judgment and your conscience, while you fall into the rank and file of the unknown units, your judgment and your conscience safe from attack by sectarian fire bugs for four years. The fact that he lets you alone all that time, should be enough to prove to you that you were in no danger after all, and that you were doped and your mind wrapped for a special purpose, viz., to get you to vote against a party which your reason unassailed and left to itself, told you was the party most deserving of your vote, and the most likely to give good government to Newfoundland. Voters of Conception Bay and St. John's! If you consider the two parties now before the country; the standing and character of the men composing them and vote on merit alone, you, we have no doubt will give the Government to M. P. Cashin's Party, and not to that led by R. A. Squires. It has been said, and written so often that the destinies of the country would not be safe in the hands of Squires and Coaker, that it now seems to be weak and trite to repeat. But at the risk of being boring and monotonous we do repeat it with all the earnestness and sincerity that we can summon. We say that it would be a "Black Day"—a disastrous day for Newfoundland if these two men should get control. In a short time one of the two would get the supreme control, and that man would be Coaker. Are you going to have such a man run Conception Bay and St. John's the two most intelligent districts in the Island? In Coaker's palmy days when he was at the top notch of his success Conception Bay and St. John's

"saw through him" and he could make no headway with his wild, unfair and impracticable schemes. The people were too intelligent and their wisdom is being justified every day since. He now has joined up with Squires, his former bitter enemy, the "Black Rascal," and he puts him over on St. John's and Conception Bay with a more refined brand of dope which he hopes that Squires will be able to make you swallow in lieu of the F.P.U. dope, that intelligent people refuse to swallow either in St. John's or, Conception Bay. But Coaker would be Squires' master, and if you vote for Squires' men you vote for the control of Coaker, a condition that the people of St. John's and Conception Bay will never, never permit. Athens, with her brains and intelligence, saved all Greece in many a crisis before the inevitable disintegration came, so v/1 St. John's, Carbonear,

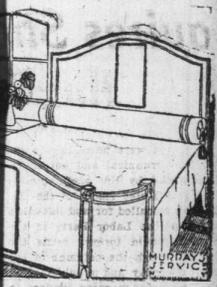

Bay de Verde, Harbor Grace, Harbor Main and Port de Grave united with St. John's save Newfoundland from becoming a laughing stock to the outside world by preventing her from being at the mercy and the disposal of a semi-civilized man like W. F. Coaker, whose greatest asset is that he is in complete ignorance of his own inferiority. Squires knows all this better than any of us, so he keeps Coaker's name in the back ground, hoping to deceive St. John's and Conception Bay. But we do not think he will succeed. Rise then on Monday in your might, electors of St. John's and Conception Bay, and join with the West in turning down this plotting pair of political desperadoes. Roll up a big vote for safe, sane government under Sir M. P. Cashin and his candidates, for let St. John's and Conception Bay stand true on Monday next and the COUNTRY IS SAFE.

Squires Shows the Cloven Hoof.

If any proof were necessary to establish the tyrannical and autocratic spirit assumed by the presumptuous and self-constituted leader of the Opposition his uncalculated and impudent attack upon the Labor Party in the West End, would forever settle the matter. Through the columns of the Star on Thursday and republished in the Post yesterday morning, Squires, in the most dictatorial and arrogant manner possible tells the Laborers of this city of St. John's what they should and what they should not do. This is the limit of his impudence, unless there is more to come.

What connection Richard Anderson Squires has with the Laborers of St. John's we fail to see. Has he ever given them employment? Has he employed to give, or would he give employment to St. John's laborers even if he had it to give? We fail to see where his interests in the laborers come in. As a labor-giving individual, he may employ a couple of men to put in coal once a year, a few apprentices in his office and possibly a char-woman or two. There ends his employment of the laborers.

And now Dr. Campbell—what labor has he to give? Is it to employ a man or woman to endeavor to scrub the "spots off his cracker"—that foreign and forbidden-looking animal of which he makes such a pet, and which accompanies him in his rounds during his visits by day or night?

And then Mr. Brownrigg—we fail to see what large amount of employment he gives, nor are we aware that he has interested himself in the welfare of the laborers until a few days ago. So much for these self-constituted patrons of the laborers and their interests. Now contrast these "captains" of industry all employers of laborers with such men as Hon. A. E. Hickman, whose business runs into the millions of dollars annually. Hon. A. W. Piccott, the energetic representative of the Gorton Pew Co, whose purse is ever open to the fishermen and the laborer. Sir John C. Crosbie, the rough diamond, who never refuses to do a good turn even for his political opponents, and who is ever ready to take risks in the seal-fishery and other industry, thereby giving hundreds of people an opportunity to procure employment and enable themselves and their families to live in comfort. Cashin, ever ready to assist in any charitable or laudable undertaking. Higgins the brilliant young lawyer, who is first to be employed when any of our people get in difficulties. Walsh always on hand to look after the interests of Placentia and St. Mary's. And so we might go on, but must not omit Cyril Fox, whose eloquence is sufficient to place him at the head of our public speakers—whose character is above reproach, and whose family has been respected in Newfoundland for over a century.

All these men carefully avoided insulting or making any reference to the movements of the Labor Candidates. The Telegram has not done so. We believed, and we believe now more firmly than ever, that the interests of the laborers as well as the people generally were safe in the keeping of the present Government, and we further believe that many of the laborers think so themselves. If they require work to-morrow is it to R. A. Squires, Dr. Campbell or Mr. Brownrigg they would go, or is it to such men as Hickman, Crosbie, Piccott, Cashin and others in the Government side? Is it to Coaker, Guppy, Scammell, Targett, Grimes and such like? We think the laborers can judge for themselves, and therefore when three labor candidates were put in the field we knew that the laborers, as a body, would ask themselves the question, "how" can our candidates assist us even if elected to the House of Assembly? We can be more powerful outside, and make our influence felt with greater effect on both parties by holding aloof from the House of Assembly. In the House our representatives, if elected, would be compelled to court the support of one party or the other, but by remaining outside, both parties would be compelled to court our support, and we could demand that our rights would be protected.

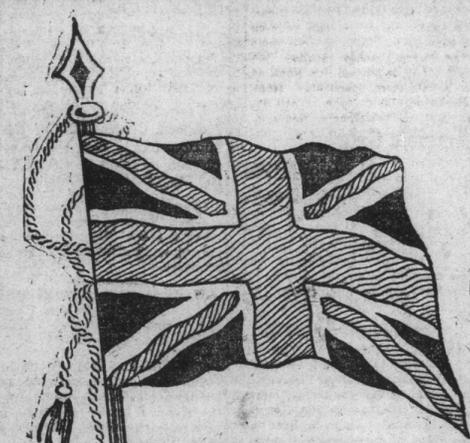

That is the way you reasoned it out, and that is why we carefully avoided interfering with the Labor candidates, but the Evening Telegram would not interfere with their rights as British subjects to assert that right in placing candidates in the field. We know that many of the laborers are of our opinion—that their strength exists in standing aloof from representation in the House, that outside they can demand that their interests be protected. We have seen politics brought into several institutions, but we fail to see where such has ended satisfactorily for those concerned. These are plain words, without in any way interfering with the Rights and Liberties of the laborers or any class of people. We say again—we fail to see how three men, even if elected, can better their condition under the present circumstances, but we uphold them in their right to do as they think best in the interests of those concerned. It is the duty of the laborer, fisherman or any other class of men to uphold the interests of the Captains of Industry, so long as they are treated fairly and receive a proper remuneration for their work. But they have their rights as British subjects and the Telegram is the last to interfere or insult them in their efforts to better their condition, although we may not agree with their mode of doing so. It has not been so with the Coaker-Squires-Guppy-Scammell combination and the Laborers should look up the Star of Thursday evening and the Post of yesterday morning. Their impudence and interference should not be forgotten. Squires and Coaker have already assumed the positions of Dictators.

An undue assumption of superiority is indeed one of the commonest manifestations of silliness visible in the commercial, industrial, literary, artistic, legal, political or even domestic life around us. Give one's self airs, emphasizing one's power, ruling with a high hand, playing the role of the "masterful" boss—all such action is as prevalent to-day amongst the Coaker-Squires-Guppy factions as when Shakespeare stigmatized it in—
"Man, proud man,
Drest in a little brief authority,
Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven
As make the angels weep."

Liberals of St. John's Block the Game of Squires & Coaker.

Line up now Liberals of St. John's for you have always been the warriors in every campaign and never yet met with defeat. Show Squires and Coaker that you are able to block their game, that you are alive to their tricks, that your wits are sharper than theirs, and that yours are the hands that can match them any day when it comes to a fight at the polls when your principles and welfare are at stake. Rub it into them in good shape, and marshal all your forces, so to bear down upon them in one solid compact form that cannot be resisted. Show them under right and left, in front and on the wings, East and West, and on every side, till you overwhelm them by the strength of all your efforts. Don't slacken in the least on Monday, be up early and be active and keep the pressure going all day long. Every vote must be mastered for the fray and every effort possible made to make this victory one that we shall never forget. You have them on the run already, they are trembling in their shoes for they know they are up against men who know not fear, and who when their minds are made up to win a glorious victory nothing will ### Rally Round the Flag of Freedom, And Protect it From Mob Rule.

Patriotic Newfoundlanders, inheritors of the great traditions of the founders of the illustrious British Empire, strike the blow on Monday next, with all the force at your command, so that the Flag of Freedom, which protects you from the violence of mob rule, may not be trailed in the mire to your country's everlasting disgrace. Men are at work now in this election capable of carrying their extreme views to such a dangerous pitch that they would not hesitate to tear that flag to tatters and defy the law and order which is the duty of good government, and a flag which stands for equal rights to every section of the people. The passions of illiterate men have been so inflamed of late that nothing would be too vicious for them to attempt, and their loyalty has been so undermined, because of the preachings that the Government had no business to give a befitting welcome to the son and heir of His Majesty the King, that disrespect for that emblem of the Empire must of necessity have taken root in the minds of those prepared to believe anything that their poisoners may seek into their brains. Take no risk then that would lead to a condition of affairs in this country that would make life intolerable and that would give to men of unreasoning, maddening views, the sole control of all our institutions. That Flag of Freedom, that pure and unsullied emblem that symbolizes all that stands for justice, honor and liberty, fair play to every man must continue to float over our heads, to signify that Newfoundland is a country where peace and good order reigns, and where Bolshevism will not be tolerated.

stop them till that victory is won. Block Squires and Coaker now with all your might and show them that the sentiment of St. John's cannot be captured towards the support of their trickery. Away with them then into the shades of oblivion.

Big Popular Meeting Casino To-Night!

Attend in Your Thousands to Hear the Popular Premier and Your Chosen Victory Six.

A magnificent popular monster meeting will assemble at 6 o'clock to-night in the Casino Theatre as the finishing stroke before the battle of the ballots begins on Monday morning. All who wish to see this monster, enthusiastic gathering, should attend, for it will afford a lasting impression on the mind of every man, woman and child in the city that will serve to remind them of the determination of a patriotic populace, when an enemy is out to destroy them, to overwhelm all the strength that their dastardly assailers can bring to bear. There will be lively speeches from the People's Prime Minister, Sir M. P. Cashin, as well as from each of our conquering, can't lose, heroes, whom the patriotic voters of St. John's have chosen to lead on this fight for liberty and the right to live in this city that's ours. There will also be such popular outbursts of applause as will make the rafters ring and resound in echoing form from all the hillsides of St. John's as well as other joyous manifestations to delight the multitude. It will be the liveliest gathering of a people bent upon protecting the popular rights that ever yet assembled to do justice to a great cause and it will clinch the promises of a notable victory when polling day arrives. Let the thousands assemble there, from all over the city, and surrounding suburbs to witness this triumph of the people against Coakerism and the ignoble Tory purpose of the still more ignoble Squires.

In a Nutshell.

Like the sun, the modern gas fire warms solid objects—such as the furniture of a room or its occupants—without appreciably raising the temperature of the intervening air. At the same time the products of combustion in their passage up the chimney flue keep the atmosphere in healthy motion.

That is gas fire science and gas fire hygiene in a nutshell.

Six Men Sure With Rattling Majorities.

Wherever you go to-day all over the streets of St. John's, or in the homes of the people, you will find one outstanding sentiment prevailing, and that is six men sure in the District of St. John's for the Government.

All the interest now is centred in regard to the size of the majorities for the respective teams, in the West as well as in the East. The wonderful enthusiasm of the past few days regarding the "six men sure" slogan is a reminder of the sentiment long ago when the whole town went wild in favor of Whiteway and Progress and the Grand Old Liberal Party, except that in the present year the popular sentiment and enthusiasm is of much greater magnitude. Keep it to that. Liberals of St. John's: let no man steal your lines, let no Guppyite, regular or irregular, dependent or independent, switch you off the track. Keep on the enthusiastic, popular side and snow down with a blizzard force—determination the whole of the Guppyite crew. How proud you will feel then to be on the right and popular side, to be able to shake the hand of your patriotic fellow-citizen when the victory is won, and exclaim with delight—"It is great, it is magnificent; how happy I am to think that I helped to win such a glorious victory!" Only a short time now is left to all waverers to make up their mind, so to them we would say "fall in men to the ranks of the Liberal Progressives and help to swell up the big majority which is now the aim of every patriot." Not a single man must be left unpolled; not one vote must we permit to drift away so that every supporter must now make this his own personal purpose and do more to help the cause than give his own personal vote on Monday. Get one or two or a dozen of your friends to join with you in bringing to the polls every man who is entitled to vote. Then when all is over, when "cease firing" is heard at 8 p.m. Monday, let us gather on the historic Beach in St. John's East when the count is finished, in all our thousands, and make the welkin ring for Higgins, Vinlocke and Fox; and when the same occurs in St. John's West, let the multitude assemble at Buchanan Street and send the cheer up into the skies for Bennett, Mulally and Martin.

At the City Hall.

The Municipal Council held its regular weekly session Thursday evening. The Mayor presided, and Councillors Ayre and Yimcoombe were present.

After reading of minutes, etc., the following matters were disposed of: The Secretary Public Works Department wrote that attention would be given to the holes opposite the Seamen's Institute on Water Street, where arch was erected.

The Superintendent of Constabulary wrote that he had given instructions to have the owner of land on New Gower Street that was in a dangerous condition, notified to put same in proper repair.

The Reid Nud. Co. acknowledged Council's letter and said matters would be attended to.

The Secretary of the Gas Co. stated attention would be given to lamp, Circular and King's Bridge Road.

Gibbs & Barron sent a communication protesting against Council's action in refusing a permit to build on the Southside to Mrs. Dillon. In the opinion of the Council it would be a backward step to allow houses to be built where there was not water or sewerage.

Greely & Hammond were given permission to build shed rear 92 Duckworth Street.

A McNamara's request to erect coach house on Robinson's Hill was acceded to.

Jas. B. Hall's plan of house, Prince of Wales' Street, was passed. Chas. F. Lester was given permission to instal an electric motor in workshop.

A number of residents of Casey Street and vicinity asked for a light corner of Casey Street and Flower Hill. City Engineer will report on this.

Application of residents of Wickford Street for a tank will be enquired into.

Mrs. Wm. Scott's application to repair dwelling and build addition, was granted.

Jas. W. Moore requested permission to build outhouse rear of 81 Duckworth Street. The law for that erection calls for buildings of brick or stone. And unless addition conforms to the law, a permit cannot go.

Moses Butt's application to build shed on Flower Hill, was deferred for plan and particulars.

Dugald Mann requested permission to build garage on Topsail Road. Plan will have to be submitted and the engineer in the meantime is to report on the widening of Shaw's Lane near his property.

The City Engineer's report on work in the various departments throughout the city, was read.

It was decided on the report of the Engineer to place a light at the corner of Coronation and Charlton Streets.

C. M. Hall's plan of dwelling house and shop, Bate's Street, was approved.

J. T. Martin was given a temporary permit to erect shed in Sheehan's Shute; shed to be removed by June 1st.

The Health Officer's weekly report was submitted.

Plan of proposed layout of property LeMarchant Road, was submitted and will be referred to the owners for consideration.

After disposing of routine business and passing pay rolls and bills, the meeting adjourned.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, Oct. 24th, 1919.

THE NATIONAL RAILWAY STRIKE.
As I mail this article Great Britain is in the throes of the national railway strike. Train services everywhere have stopped and only irregular and occasional runnings have been arranged by means of volunteer help and to satisfy particular points of popular pressure. The carriage of goods by railway is almost non-existent and therefore the general trade and industry of the country is tied up with a severity which will increase unless the strike is rapidly negotiated off, as seems possible upon the date of mailing this letter. There is no need to amplify here what it means to have all the railways stopped, nor would any further words be wanted to indicate how business men generally fear a further extension of the strike to all transport workers by road and water. Neither is there any need to go into the details of the dispute. It is a wage question and both sides appear to have been obstinate. These few lines, however, may indicate that as this letter is mailed conditions in this country are decidedly not good, although the Government, assisted by the newspapers, is trying to put the best possible complexion upon matters.

A WAX-BILL.
Here is a fairly typical extract from the diary of a Londoner getting home from the city in these days of stress when the trains are either not running at all or are only available at certain limited points and hours:
5 p.m.—Left office. All buses full. Hoped that private motor would oblige. Walked towards Charing Cross. Waved stick and pulled up several cars, but all said they were going in other directions.
5.45—Piccadilly Circus. Here a number of fine cars at my mercy. Promptly mounted footboard of the largest, and owner-driver said, "Certainly, one outside, but I am only going a short distance."
5.47.—Car reached its destination. On foot again. Knightsbridge in repair and jammed with traffic.
5.50.—Albert Hall. Boarded big closed Rolls-Royce, and while I was arguing with the driver the car moved along, but the occupant opened the door and said, "Come inside." Someone got inside, and I sat by the driver, who told me he was driving a famous the holiday-maker goes on unruffled. For three days we had no newspapers, and our last letters from the great world are at the moment of writing five days old, but the philosophic mind can treat these deprivations as blessings. And on Tuesday came what seemed to many the beginning of the end—the wheels of our little local train moved again to make connections with the great main line not moving many miles away.

STRIKE LEADER THOMAS.
The railwaymen's secretary, J. H. Thomas, has a vast responsibility at the moment, and one would not like to be too critical of his published remarks. But it was a curious figure that he used as the mass meeting of 12,000 railwaymen at the Albert Hall when he spoke of the Government as having "thrown down the gauntlet which may go off as a boomerang." People who are in the habit of losing their gloves might be rather glad of a pair that could be relied on to possess the homing instinct of the boomerang.

"FIGHTS" AT THE ALBERT HALL.
Talking of the Albert Hall reminds me that those middle-aged citizens who are always delighted to ask what the late Queen Victoria would have thought of this, that, or the other development in present-time affairs have found a fresh topic lately. It appears that a syndicate has secured the Albert Hall for a number of boxing displays, or, as advisers critics prefer to describe them, "professional prize fights." A protest is now being publicly raised, partly on the ground that the hall in its inception was designed as a temple of the arts and sciences—as was, indeed, the Crystal Palace in the Southwestern outskirts of London, in the days of the long ago—and partly because Queen Victoria displayed a touching devotion for the building, which, as a matter of fact, she very rarely visited. The point is ignored that the Albert Hall in these times is a great public institution, run on business lines, and is liable to be hired by any promoter of a popular entertainment which is legal, where it is a socialist meeting, or a society ball, a boxing encounter or a toy bazaar, a huge dinner or a private firm's dance. It has been used before, I believe, for boxing matches, and no-one except the participants has been any the worse; and where the expected crowd is too large for a music hall, and too small for Olympia, it seems to suit both promoters and patrons remarkably well.

RESTLESS WINSTON.
I attended a conference one day this week where that most famous but frequently derided British statesman, Winston Churchill, had to keep silent for a full hour while another man spoke. Though he said not one word, he revealed his character by his actions. First he sat at the table. Then he pulled an armchair to the fire, plunged into it, and reit his cigar. Three minutes later he walked to the window and looked out. Next he provided to and fro between window and fireplace, swinging his eyeglasses at the end of their cord. After trying the armchair again he leant with his back against the window with his head on his hand, and so it went on. But he never missed a word of what was said.

THE BLACK RAT.
That the black rat survives in London there was ocular evidence to-day in the form of a dead specimen in the gutter of Bride Lane, just off Fleet Street. He was as black and as glossy as a piece of freshly-broken Silkenstone coal, and was quite a shapely and elegant animal, exciting none of that instinctive loathing which the gray Norwegian rat, living or dead, inspires in most people. I had not seen a black rat for nearly thirty years, and that was in an old building where I had a length of matchboarding over a shaft removed for the fun of watching their coming and going and getting up to all sorts of antics. It is commonly stated that the black rat is extinct in England—that he has been driven out or eaten up by his larger, longer, more ferocious and more cunning gray relative from the north, often called the Hanoverian rat in the belief that it swarmed over England with the arrival of George I. and his German entourage. But the statement clearly is not true; and although there are plenty of gray rats in the purlieus of Fleet Street, there are also some black.

A $30,000,000 Deal.
Although he is only thirty-six, Lord Furness, who has just sold certain of his shipping interests for $30,000,000, is one of industry's keenest captains. When the famous Christopher Furness died seven years ago, he quickly showed that he had inherited his father's remarkable powers of organization, and proved of great help to the Government during the war.
He tells the story of a steamboat which was stranded in the Mississippi. The captain could not get her off. Eventually a hard looking fellow came on board and said he was a pilot.
"Do you know where the sandbanks are?" asked the captain.
"No."
"Well, how do you expect to get me out of here if you don't know where they are?"
"I know where they ain't," was the reply.

Sir David Beatty's Great Task.

A Bee In the Square.
We live in Trafalgar Square, with four Lions to guard us, Fountains and statues all over the place! The "Metropole" staring us right in the face! We own it's a trifle draughty—but we don't want to make no fuss! What's good enough for Nelson is good enough for us!
—Recited by Lord Fisher at King Edward's Lunch.

"Lord Beatty's appointment as First Sea Lord, puts our greatest sailor in his natural place. His career fills a proud page of history," says the Daily Mail.
"The First Sea Lord takes office in an era of straitened national finance. It will be his urgent duty to carry through the drastic cutting-down and economy which are necessary in the Navy as in every other Department. The Navy-to-be lies in a present interpretation of the future, and the nation regards Lord Beatty as the man who has the capacity and imagination needed for the long-forward view."

"Sir David Beatty represents more than any other living man the Fisher or tradition, which is the Nelson tradition," says the Times. "Sir David Beatty has proved himself in action; he has now the opportunity of proving himself in administration. Superficially the qualities needed for administration are very different from those of a great leader in action. Essentially, especially in the British Navy at this time, they are the same.

"The man who is to administer the Navy now must have imagination, decision, courage, and devouring energy. He must not be content with the results of the war, immense as they have been. He must look forward, must forecast, the effects of the new doctrine of sea-power that the war brought near to perfection, must resolve to be the first to exploit war-lessons and the wisest in their exploitation. Stagnation must be the bane of his days, the nightmare of his pillow. Every influence will oppose him, for those who fear change and detest initiative are always in the majority. He will be criticised and abused, and will need continual strength of mind and character to combat these forces of inertia."
"Sir David Beatty showed these qualities as a battle leader. As a leader of the long peace battle for the soul of the Navy he will need to possess them trebly enforced. That is why Lord Fisher's book is so opposite to the day of Sir David Beatty's definite succession to the post of First Sea Lord. The same post Lord Fisher fought the same explicit that Sir David Beatty will have to fight now, and triumphed. His book is a record of the fight, and shows how success has won.

"The doctrine that the changes wrought by the war in the whole balance of sea-power, and in the relative effectiveness of its instruments, involve corresponding changes in the line of development of the Navy, is simplicity itself. But one word of caution must be added. The British Navy, besides being the greatest of war instruments at sea as well, for the seas are the ties of the Empire, before the war the German threat to British sea-power obscured for some years the peace function of the Navy: it was a minor function and had to

Slips of the Tongue.

A well-known public man in a little Staffordshire town is remarkable for his curious habit of getting hold of the wrong word. Some time ago, for instance, he made his audience laugh by asking them to carry a resolution with exclamation!

Happy Though Old.

"I am the happiest man in the world. It seems to me that I have just begun to live."
Thus Mr. J. D. Rockefeller, who recently celebrated his eightieth birthday. "I am happy because I am still able to work. My mind is as acute as it was twenty years ago. I have my health, which is best of all, and by writing my biography I am keeping my mind occupied. That is the secret of happiness in old age."

A Difference.

I am reminded by the announcement that he is likely to resign, of a good story about Dr. Diggle, Bishop of Carlisle.
"There is nothing he detests more than self-conceit. One afternoon he was travelling in a railway carriage in which a man swaggered so much that Dr. Diggle could stand it no longer and entered into conversation with the stranger."
He promptly informed the Bishop, "I am a self-made man."
"Dr. Diggle replied, 'I thought so' and added, 'If God had made you, you would have been quite different!'"
Dr. Diggle believes in learning as much as possible. When he was a boy he learnt to knit stockings and make shirts, and he can hoe a bed of turnips with the best. He began life as a poor boy, and confesses that his happiest days were spent as a curate in the slums of Liverpool.

Lord Fisher's Unconventional Autobiography—A King and His Faithful Friend—Lord Fisher in Exile.

THE ONE FISHER.

For The Man is awake, though the mornings sleep. And Brain-storms are sudden, and Jacky is deep. So he'd "sack the lot" in the morning.

Lord Fisher cried out day by day in the "Times."
Fleet cut down; And his language defied either reason or rhyme. Though the strength of it tickled the ears of the town. But Fisher's the Man, and the others but sheep: They're all to unlearn, and they're many to keep; So good-bye to the lot in the morning.

—MORNING POST.

Lord Fisher, O.M., Admiral of the Fleet, has written his "Memories," and they are to be published by Hodder & Stoughton. Meanwhile extracts appear in the Times.
The first selection told tales about Lord Fisher and King Edward.
"King Edward had faith in me," says Lord Fisher, "and so supported me always, that it is only natural I should begin this book with the remarks about him which I privately printed long since for use at my death; but events have occurred to alter that decision and induce me to publish this book.
"There are more intimate touches than those related here, which I forbear to publish. There is a limit to those peculiar and pregnant little exhibitions of a kind heart's surplus being put in print. They lose their aroma."
"A King's Faith in Fisher."
"In the Dictionary of National Biography there is a marginal heading in the Life of King Edward as follows:—
"HIS FAITH IN LORD FISHER."
"It is the only personal marginal note! From 3d. to $250 An Hour

The successful production of the Arnold Bennett's new play, "Sacred and Profane Love," reminds me that it was by winning a prize of twenty guineas offered by "The Bits" for the best humorous condensation of a novel published in these columns that the brilliant author was enabled to strike the road to fame and fortune.
At that time he was shorthand clerk in a London solicitor's office earning 25s. a week. This twenty-guinea prize spurred him to further efforts for the "Green 'Un." He began to write articles. "When I received a postal order for the first one," he once told me, "I saw the world opening before me like a flower."
He confesses, however, that at that time his average literary earnings did not exceed threepence an hour, a striking contrast to his earnings of to-day, which must work out at something like £50 an hour.

President Wilson and the Lord Mayor.

"President Wilson is an admirer of the eloquence of Sir Horace Marshall, the retiring Lord Mayor of London. He told Sir George Riddell that Sir Horace Marshall had once proposed his (the President's) health more felicitously and gracefully than he had ever heard it done on any public occasion. Sir George Riddell conveyed this high compliment at a luncheon given at the Mansion House by the Lord Mayor, who is the head of the famous newspaper distributing firm, to a number of his friends, members of the Newspaper Conference, a body representing leading London and provincial newspapers," says the Mail.

Lord Fisher's Tales of King Edward.

Lord Fisher's Unconventional Autobiography—A King and His Faithful Friend—Lord Fisher in Eruption.

THE ONE FISHER.
For The Man is awake, though the mannikins sleep. And Brain-storms are sudden, and Jacky is deep. So he'd "sack the lot" in the morning.

Lord Fisher cried out day by day in the "Times."
Fried out in the "Times" for a Fleet cut down;
And his language defied either reason or rhyme,
Though the strength of it tickled the ears of the town.

Lord Fisher, O.M. Admiral of the Fleet, has written his "Memories," and they are to be published by Hodder & Stoughton. Meanwhile extracts appear in the "Times."
The first selection told tales about Lord Fisher and King Edward.

"King Edward had faith in me," says Lord Fisher, "and so supported me always, that it is only natural I should begin this book with the remarks about him which I privately printed long since for use at my death, but events have occurred to alter that decision and induce me to publish this book."
There are more intimate touches than those related here, which I forbear to publish. There is a limit to these peculiar and present little exhibitions of a kind heart's purpose being put in print. They lose their aroma.

A King's Faith in Fisher.
"In the Dictionary of National Biography there is a marginal heading in the Life of King Edward as follows:—
"HIS FAITH IN LORD FISHER."
It is the only personal marginal note! I now descend upon it, not to be egotistical, but to exemplify one of the finest traits in King Edward's noble character—without doubt I personally could not in any way, and yet in his belief of my being right in the vast and drastic reforms in the Navy he gave me his unflinching support right through unswerving, though every egocentric effort was exhausted in the endeavour to alienate him from his support of me. He quite enjoyed the numberless communications he got, and the more outrageous the reputed the more he revelled in my recalled wickedness!

"I can't very well put some of them on paper, but the Minotaur wasn't in it with me. Also, I was a Malay? I was the son of a Chinese Princess—hence my wicked cunning and duplicity! I had formed a syndicate and bought all the land round Rosyth before the Government fixed on it as a naval base—hence my wealth! How the King enjoyed my showing him my private income as given to the Income Tax Commissioners was £382 6s. 11d. after the legal charges for income-tax, annuities, etc., were subtracted from the total private income of £750!

King Edward as Henry VIII.
"King Edward, besides his wonderful likeness to King Henry the Eighth, had that great King's remarkable attribute of combining autocracy with almost a socialistic tie with the masses. I said to his Majesty once: "Sir, that was a real low form of cunning on your Majesty's part sending to ask after Keir Hardie's stomach-ache!" By Jove, he went for me like a mad bull! and replied: "You don't understand me! I am the King of all the people. No one has got me in their pockets, as some of them think they have!" and he proceeded with names I can't quote!

"Acting on Sir Francis Knollys's example and advice, I burnt all his letters to me, except one or two purely personal in their delightful adherence to right and justice! but even these I won't publish ever—they were not meant to be seen by others. What annotated cards are those who sell Nelson's letters to Lady Hamilton! letters written out of the abundance of his heart and the thankfulness of an emotional nature full of heartfelt gratitude to the sympathising woman who dressed his wounds, his torn-off scalp after the Nile, and his never-receding calamity of what is now called neuritis, which was for ever wasting his frail body with pain and anguish of spirit as it so unfitted him for exertion.

King Rebukes Admiral.
"I mention another excellent illustration of King Edward's fine and magnanimous character, though it's to my own detriment. He used to say to me often at big functions, "Have I missed out anyone, do you think!" for he would go round in a most careful way to speak to all he should.

tration of King Edward's fine and magnanimous character, though it's to my own detriment. He used to say to me often at big functions, "Have I missed out anyone, do you think!" for he would go round in a most careful way to speak to all he should.

Just then a certain Admiral approached—perhaps the biggest ass I ever met. The King shook hands with him and said something I thought quite unnecessarily loving to him; when he had gone he turned on me like a tiger and said, "You ought to be ashamed of yourself!" I humbly said, "What for?" "Why," he replied, "when that man came up to me your face was perfectly demonaical! Everyone saw it! and the poor fellow couldn't kick you back! You're First Sea Lord and he's a ruined man! You've no business to show your hate!"

And the lovely thing was that then a man came up I knew the King did perfectly hate, and I'm blessed if he didn't smile on him and cuddle him as if he was his long lost brother, and then he turned to me afterwards and said, with joyful revenge, "Well! did you see that?" Isn't that a great heart! and is it wondered at that he was so popular?

The Gift of Proportion.
"I don't mean to urge that King Edward was in any way a clever man," says Admiral Fisher.

"I'm not sure that he could do the rule of three, but he had the heavenly gift of proportion and perspective! Brains never yet moved the masses— but emotion and earnestness will not only move the masses, but they will remove mountains! As I told Queen Alexandra on seeing his dear face (God) for the last time, his epitaph is the great words of Pascal in the "Pensees" (chapter ix. 15):—
"Le coeur a ses raisons que la raison ne connaît point."
("The heart has reasons that reason knows nothing about!")
"He was a noble man and every inch a King. God bless him!"

Lord Fisher in Eruption.
"Lord Fisher's articles in the "Times have now been reprinted in pamphlet form, and are issued by Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton at the modest price of 6d." says the Manchester Guardian. "They are, like their author, highly explosive. Lord Fisher is like a still-active volcano which, incessantly rumbling, throws out from time to time a devastating spirit of red-hot rocks and lava. The articles have shocked the more discreet, conventional minds. For nothing could be less conventional or discreet in manner or expression. "Their language is, for the columns of a sober Press, alarmingly violent, and they are brimful of an extraordinary and even beautiful self-confidence. But these are superficial defects, mere specks on the infinite energy of a great personality."
"The truth is that Lord Fisher energises incessantly, like a Dickens in the world of letters."
"These are the professional problems on which the Admiralty should now be busily engaged. What are they making of them? Nearly twelve months have passed since the Armistice, and no one knows. Only Lord Fisher is again in eruption, and perhaps this descent of red-hot rocks and lava will spur Mr. Walter Long out of Destruction at Bauline.

The damage to property at Bauline, caused by the storm on Thursday night last is very considerable, and is estimated at from forty to fifty thousand dollars. Much fish together with salt, as well as stages of every description, in which were stored puncheons, fishing utensils, moorings, coals, etc., were all swept clean away. The tide was unusually high and the sea the worst ever experienced. It will be some time before the fishermen of this thriving settlement can replace their stages, etc. but they are not dismayed, and with their usual pluck and determination, hope to overcome the loss and be ready to renew their fishery operations as usual next season. They know that this means much hard work, but as God has prospered them before, so they rely on His help again, and go to work to rebuild with renewed strength and vigor.—Com.

FOREIGN PRESS OPINION

AMERICAN.
Many Fishermen at Same Pool.
Detroit News: When Mayor Ole Hanson of Seattle resigned "to go fishing" there was natural interest in what he was to fish for, and a Washington correspondent hears that it is the presidency of the United States. That takes pretty good bait.

ENGLISH.
More Frightfulness.
London Daily Express: The sonorous title of "Städtische elektrisch Strassenbahnschienenreinigungsfrau" has been conferred on the women municipal street cleaners of Cologne.

CHINESE NEWSPAPERS.
London Daily Express: The average daily circulation of the 400 newspapers in continuous publication in China, we hear, is only about 3,000 copies apiece, but in actual practice is very much larger. This is due to the Chinese habit of never destroying a newspaper but of selling it again and again after it has been read. One copy, indeed, does service to many readers, and only ceases to be read when it falls to pieces.

CANADIAN.
The Same Old World.
Sydney Bulletin: The League of Peace starts with a powerful common enemy, for the Lenin-Trotsky party has taken up the mission of imposing its ideas on the world generally, and the world can't afford to be imposed on too much. It has another powerful enemy in Germany, which might resume the war any day, with good chances of success if militarism was let off. It has a multitude of small clients to be assisted. If they are not assisted a new Central European empire will grow again inside a year. It contains a pair of friends and fellow-members who are rather too overwhelming in their strength and their possibilities, and it is necessary to keep an eye on the best of friends, seeing that the right of League to scrap among themselves remains just where it was save for a paper instrument which hasn't even a single policeman on point duty behind it. One way and another it looks much the same old world, except that it has safely negotiated one rapid, and the next one isn't in sight yet, though the roar of it can be heard round the corner.

  - 10.—TAIT, James Sinclair Tait, of St. John's, Physician and Surgeon.

Of which all persons are hereby required to take notice and govern themselves accordingly.
Given under my hand this 24th day of October, 1919.
F. J. DOYLE,
Returning Officer.

SPECIAL NOTICE.
Every volunteer as defined by the Election Act, 1919, shall be competent to vote at the Poll on 2nd November.

Directions for the Guidance of Electors in Voting.

Each elector, on entering the room where the Poll is to be held, shall declare his name, surname and address.
After doing so he shall receive a Ballot Paper in the above form.
Each elector, if required by the Deputy Returning Officer, the Poll Clerk, one of the Candidates, or one of their agents, shall, before receiving his ballot paper, take an oath of qualification.
The voter is to vote only for three candidates.
After receiving his Ballot Paper the voter must go into one of the compartments, and with a pencil he provides, place a cross in the division containing the name of the Candidate or Candidates for whom he intends to vote, thus X.
The voter will then fold the Ballot paper, so as to show a portion of the back only, with the initials of the Deputy Returning Officer, and shall hand it so folded up to the Deputy Returning Officer, and the Deputy Returning Officer shall, without unfolding, ascertain that it is the Ballot Paper which he furnished in the election, and then immediately place it in the Ballot Box. The voter shall forthwith leave the Polling Station.
It is a crime to voluntarily spoil a Ballot Paper, or to return it to the Deputy Returning Officer, who will give him another.
It is a crime to vote for more candidates than he is entitled to vote for, or to place any mark on the Ballot Paper which he can afterwards be identified, his vote will be void and will not be counted.
The voter takes a Ballot or Ballot Paper out of the Polling Station, or immediately puts any other into the Ballot Box than the paper given him by the Deputy Returning Officer, he will be subject to be punished by the fine of Five Hundred Dollars, or by PYORRHEA.

Of all the poison taken into the blood, the germs and pus contributed by diseased gums (Pyorrhoea) are the most destructive to the human system. If every red blood cell is forced to fight against numbers of germs to the cell, the blood cannot attend to the building up of the body, and it allowed to continue the system is bound to break down and eventually you are an invalid. Kidney, stomach, heart trouble, rheumatism and many other diseases are brought on by diseased gums and teeth.
