WANTED TO HIRE!

"She belongs to the 'Chautauqua,'" suggested Miss Patty.

Beneath the hot midsummer sun The men had marched all day, And now beside a rippling stream Upon the grass they lay. Tiring of games and idle jests,
As swept the hours along,
They called to one who mused apart, "Come, friend, give us a song. news, Patty?"

When she had shut the gate behind her, He answered, "Nay, I cannot please; The only songs I know Are those my mother used to sing At home, long years ago."

Sing one of those," a rough voice cried, "We all are true men here, And to each mother's son of us A mother's songs are dear." Then sweetly sang the strong, clear voice,
Amid unwonted calm:

The Weekly Monitor.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 29th, 1893.

The election which took place on the 22rd instant to fill the seat in the House of Commons made vacant by the resignation of Hugh John McDonald, one of the members for the city of Winnipeg, seems to have taken everybody by surprise. The most that the liberals dare hope for was that their candidate, Hon. Joseph Martin, might pull through by a narrow majority. Every one else looked upon the election of Mr. Campbell, the government candidate, as a foregone conclusion, seeing how closely all the western provinces of the dominion have supported provinces of the dominion have supported when the Privy Council of England gave its | wer decision, that the legislature of Manicoba was within its rights and powers in passing that act, the people of that province on both sides of politics thought that the matter should have been dropped. The fact that it was not, has caused no small annoyance to the protestant population of the prairie province. Without doubt, however, the one more than any other to give the liberal candidate his overwhelming majority, was the desire of the people of the Northwest for a radical reform in the tariff. They have no manufacturing enterprises up there to be culture, and more particularly, wheat raising, is the one industry upon which the prosperity of the country wholly depends. And the price of wheat is now so exceedingly low that the people are brought to see the necessity of reducing the cost of production to the lowest possible point. When Hon. Mr. Foster, minister of finance, was up there a few weeks ago, the people spoke plainly and unmistakably on that point. They have now spoken a second time even more emphatically. It remains to be seen to what extent these declarations are heeded by the omes to make its promised revision of the tariff at the coming session of parliament.

-AND so the long delayed McGreevy

Connolly conspiracy trial is at last ended and a verdict of guilty has been rendered by the jury. Sad indeed is the history of this ction from the outset. At its inception Sir Hector Langevin, as the member of public works of the dominion, and leader of of the most influential and respected memhers of the House of Commons On account of the revelations made in connection with office and literally humbled in the dust. Thomas McGreevy, another member of the House of Commons, has been first expelled from that House in disgrace and now is found guilty of conspiracy to defraud the with his fellow conspirator, Connolly, has fust been sentenced to one year's imprisonment in the county jail of Carlton county. And if it be true that a good portion of the frauded, went to help make up a campaign fund for one of the political parties, and was used solely for political purposes, McGreevy's ity will experience feelings of satisfaction that these men have been duly punished for them as but the victims of our corrupt political methods. We are inclined to think half satisfied when the prison doors are closed upon these men. What of those men who make money so essential a factor in an election? Is not the corrupt votes the fountain head of all the mischief? Is it reasonable to expect honesty in our public men when the electors themselves are not honest? While condemning the McGreevys and the Merciers it is well for us occasionally to remember that these men are but the outgrowth of our present political methods. While "money talks," as it certainly does with too many of our constituencies it is only reasonable to expect that there will be corruption in high places. The first duty of every patriotic citizon is to use his best endeavors in purifying the electorate, the endeavors in purifying the electorate, the poned. danger but that the whole stream will soon favored by the McKinley tariff are preparing for a vigorous fight against any sweeping reductions when the tariff measure now being prepared comes before congress. Already strong representations have been made to the committee preparing the bill against removing the duty from coal, iron ores and certain other articles. Delegations have also been sent from Virginia to protest against the removal of the duty of twenty-five cents per bushel on potatoes, the farmers of that state fearing competition from the potatoes from Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, where, they allege, the cost Edward Island, where, they allege, the cost have produced but little effect upon the members of the committee, as it seems to be generally believed that the bill which the committee will report to Congress will have all these things on the free list. The result the committee was not complied with the committee will report to Congress will have all these things on the free list. The result all these things on the free list. The result of this committee's labors will be given to the public in a few days, and as its report will embody the policy of the administration, we shall then see 'how far the democratic party is prepared to go in carrying out its policy of tariff reform.

the Co., after the fire, was not complied with.

The case was tried at Bridgetown and the Jury found in favor of the plaintiff. An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia who allowed the appeal and directed judgment for the defendant Co., from which decision the present appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada has been taken.

does not cost anything to put a line of type does not cost anything to put a line of type in a newspaper regarding their business and movements. It does, though, and if for the benefit of an individual, he should be willing to pay for it. If no one else pays for it, the owner of the newspaper does. Space in a newspaper is the owner's stock in trade. He can no more afford to give it away than a grocer his groceries, or a haberdasher his haberdashery, or a baker his bakeries, or an oysterman his oysters. He has it for rent, and he can no more afford to furnish it free than a landlord can furnish rent free.

conclusion, seeing how closely all the western provinces of the dominion have supported the party now in power. The election of the liberal candidate, therefore, with the unusually large majority of 435 has proved genuine surprise all over the dominion.

There are of course local causes which to a greater or less extent enter into every contest and influence more or less the result. But such a sweeping victory would seem to point pretty clearly to two things: first, that the people of Manitoba, and the Northwest as well, desire certain radical reforms in the tariff, and that they will stand no nonsense on the Manitoba school question. Hon. Joseph Martin was the attorney general in the government which introduced the bill abolishing separate schools, and, indeed, himself drewup that famous measure. Whatever the people of the province of Quebec many think of that piece of legislation, the people of Manitoba, regardless of politics, undoubtedly approve of it. And when the Privy Council of England gave its when the Privy Council of England gave THE FOSTER-PRIDE WEDDING.

Address to Sabbath-school Teacher.

The following is the copy of an address presented to Miss Ida Lunderkin, on the eve of her departure for Boston, by associate teachers of the Baptist Sabbath-school, in which she has taken a very deep interest for the past three years:

To Miss Ida Lunderkin, from her co-workers in the Bridgetown Baptist Sunday-school:

Our Dear Sister,—We regret to learn that

Woodman, who was found dead on a settee on Boston common. He had killed himself with cyanide of potassium. In the pocket of the dead man was a letter to his wife, Mrs. Phobe Woodman (a pleasant appearing Nova Scotian woman of about 40 years of age), residing at 22 Decatur street, East Boston. The letter was largely personal, reciting the facts of his immediate past, telling how he vainly sought such work as he could do, without success; how terribly he had suffered with the pains in his head; deploying the fact that he had been obliged to be at ploying the fact that he had been obliged to be at ploying the fact that he had been obliged to be at ploying the fact that he had been obliged to be at peace and free from suffering over the pleasant home he had lost, now that he had no home, and describing his anxiety to be at peace and free from suffering over the pleasant houne he had lost, now that he had no home, and describing his anxiety to be at peace and free from suffering. The letter was lovingly mournful in tone, and expressed much grief that the writer could not alleviate the sorrows of his faite full helpmeet, but much rather add to them. Mrs. Woodman told the authorities that they had broken up their home and she had gone to service to earn money to help supply her husband with food.

Prof. W. H. Smith, of Montreal, in his planetary almanae says we are approaching another cold, dry winter, but not so cold as 1892-93. The prospects for rain and some are better. There will be more precipitation this year. The forecasts for January and February are:

January—A cold month with considerable downfall. Snows and rains in nothern and eastern, considerable rain in southern sections. Snowfall in the Northwest about or perhaps below the average. The 'January thaw' looks like being a marked feature.

The coldest 'dips' appear most likely towards the middle and during the last few days of the month. Seyere storms over the southern sections of the more described in the North Atlantic.

to know they were among the few whose lives were saved.

A representative of the Advertiser called on Mr. Margeson yesterday and elicited from him the following horror:

"We left Boston on Oct. 17th, 1893, for Chicago, and after spending a short time at Niagara Falls proceeded via Grand Trunk railway on board a train made up of eleven heavy cars, four or five of which were Pullman sleepers attached at the rear, all of hour on Friday morning Oct. 20th, as the train was within one hundred and sixty-five miles of Chicago, near a town called Battle Creek, a head-on collision occurred between the Grand Trunk train going west and a Raymond excursion train coming east. The heavy engines did not leave the track, but were forced into each other until their smoke stacks were only a foot apart. It was said the trains were running between thirty and forty miles an hour, until within ashort distance of the collision for they came together so suddenly that the engineers and firemen had just time to jump to save their lives, one engineer was quite badly hurt. Immediately after the engines struck, the momentum of the heavy pullman coaches at the rear caused three of the eight passenger coaches near the centre of the train to telescope so that the fourth, fifth and sixth cars from the engine scarcely occupied the space of two. A panic at once ensued, and in the still hours of the night the air was filled with the mingled screams, cries, groans and prayers, that cannot be described even by those who witnessed so terrible a scene; and to add to the sufferings of those who were imprisoned in the sufferings of those who were imprisoned in the sufferings of those who were imprisoned in the care, dreadful fires started.

Hughson can be seen by any of our citizens and will only too gladly verify the foregoing statements.

The reporter then called upon Messrs. Pikey & Co., at the Central Drug Store. The reporter then called upon Messrs. Pikey & Co., at the Central Drug Store. They do not, they inf those who witnessed so terrible a scene; and to add to the sufferings of those who were imprisoned in the car, dreadful fires started in less than two minutes, caused by the explosion of the oil lamps and the stoves thrown over in the cars. Attimes he'd glare with steady stare through space for quiet a while,
And then his loving little face would light up with a smile;
Then back into his gloomy mood—the happy smile had fled,
And left him there a lily fair—a flower all but dead.

The Angels ever hovered near, his little soul to soothe,
He never seemed to notice me, but kept that gloomy mood;
Then suddenly such ecstacyfupon his face did beam,
'Twas plain to see he soon would be safe in God's holy Realm.

What sorrow, well, no tongue could tell, I soon must lose my boy,
Yet knew above with God's kind love he'd have a lasting joy.
I'd knelt beside his little cot, while tears would fill my eyes,
And asked dear Lord, our loving God, to spare my only prize.

Thus days and weeks, long weary weeks, at last did come and go,
Twas Christmas time, the fields and trees were covered o'er with snow.
On Christmas Eve he closed his eyes; his Twas Christmas time, the fields and trees were covered o'er with snow.

On Christmas Eve he closed his eyes; his little soul had flown,
The Angels took my little prize in golden fields to roam.

And as beside his grave I stood, heart-broken through my loss;
My thoughts went back to Calvary—the Death upon the Cross,
And when I thought how Jesus died, that sin might be forgiven,
I said, "Oh, God, Thy will be done on earth as 'tis in Heaven."
