REPRESENTATIVES OF UNITED BAPTIST CHURCHES OF ANNAPOLIS CO., GATHER AT MIDDLETON

The Meetings Were Well Attended—Home and Foreign Missions Afully Discussed by Popular Speakers—Christian Education and Evangelism Among the Important Subjects

[Outlook]

The United Baptist District meeting for Annapolis County, was held at Middleton on Monday and Tuesday, May 6 and 7. The first session was on Monday evening.

The clergymen who attended the meeting were Rev. G. H. Gage, Margaretsville, chairman; Rev. R. A. Lindsay, Port George, secretary; Rev. F. H. Beals, Lawrencestown; Rev. S. A. McDougall, Nictaux; Rev. I. Brindley, Granville; Rev. G. D. Hudson, Annapolis Royal; Rev. I. A. Corbett, Paradise; Rev. F. E. Roop, Melvern, and Rev. E. A. Mason, Wolfville, secretary for Home Missions. There were also a number of laymen and lady delegates.

Rev. G. H. Gage, who presided, called upon Rev. F. H. Beals as the first speaker to discuss the subject of Home Missions.

Rev. Mr. Beals emphasized strongly the importance of looking after the home mission fields and in the present shortage of men competent laymen should be enlisted for this work. Foreign missions was the subject of Rev. S. A. McDougall the next speaker. That Japan and India had played so creditable a part in the present world crisis he attributed partially at least to foreign missions. The open door and the awakening of the Christian Church to its opportunity were features of the times. Men and women of vision were the need of the present.

At the Tuesday morning session, on motion of Revs. Beals and Hudson, the constitution was amended to permit of special meeting being called by the executive.

Revs. Hutchins, Hudson and Lindsay were appointed a nominating committee, who recommended Rev. G. H. Gage, as president; Rev. I. Brindley, vice-president and Rev. R. W. Lindsay as secretary.

Reports were received from the churches.

At the afternoon session, Rev. G. D. Hudson conducted the devotional service, followed by a paper on "Social Service," by Rev. Dr. Hutchins.

Dr. Hutchins, as Key man for Annapolis Co., was called upon to speak on the Five Year Forward Movement. Instead of the suggested general advance of 10 per cent over last year's contribution for denominational purposes he suggested that each church be considered regarding its own circumstances.

A committee composed of Revs. Hutchins, Corbett and Richardson was appointed to revise the allotment to the churches.

The Women's session was then held, Mrs. McLearn referred to the Golden Jubilee of the First Mission Aid Society in this district, to be observed in June, 1920. The aim was to raise $50,000 as a jubilee fund, $5,000 of which would be spent in the establishment of quarters needed by the missionary organization in Bolivia.

Rev. E. S. Mason then gave a stirring address. He was not quite sure whether we should pray for peace or pray that we might be prepared for the coming of peace by the banishing of our natural vices.

During this session Mrs. G. R. Beals sang a solo and Misses Evangeline Dodge and Georgie Phinney, a duet, Mrs. P. B. Bentley playing the accompaniments.

At the closing session on Tuesday evening, Rev. R. W. Lindsay read the scriptures and Rev. I. Brindley offered prayer.

Rev. F. E. Roop spoke on the great importance of "Christian Education," which should be received in the Home, the Sunday School, the Newspaper, the Pulpit, and the Higher Schools.

Rev. I. A. Corbett, whose subject was "Evangelism," urged that the earnestness in seeking the salvation of souls which belonged to the early days of the church should be revived today. The spirit of Evangelism should not be found among the clergy-men, but in the rank and file of the men and women of the church.

"Winning souls is a business and the most important business, it should therefore be carried on according to business methods."

In a strong closing address, Rev. E. S. Mason urged the needs of the work as the only standard of measuring one's efforts and sacrifices.

Rev. S. A. McDougall moved and Rev. G. D. Hudson seconded a vote of thanks to Revs. Hutchins, the Middleton people and the choir for hospitality and assistance in making the meeting a success.

The Ford tractors purchased by the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture, were found to have been tampered with by Hun spies. The same was true of those sent to the Canadian West.

FAMILY REUNION

A Pleasant Social Event Took Place At Clementsport

Mr. H. L. Jones, son of W. C. Jones, J. P., Collector of Customs, Clementsport, and Mrs. W. C. Jones, who has spent several years in the United States, in connection with railroad, and who has recently been promoted to the lucrative and important position of Freight and Ticket Agent on the New York Central Railroad, etc., at the city of Ulysses, Pa., accompanied by his newly made bride, nee Miss Nellie Eaton, daughter of the late Dr. Edelbert Eaton, and Mrs. Eaton still living of the above named city, were the guests recently of Mr. Jones' parents. The late Dr. Edelbert Eaton, besides being a noted physician for many years, at Ulysses City, also represented Potter County in the State Legislature at Harrisburg, Pa., from 1894 to 1896.

During the short stay of Mr. H. L. Jones and his newly made bride at Mr. Jones' old home, the family, consisting of Mr. O. C. Jones, D. A. R. agent, Digby, with his wife and two children; W. V. Jones, D. A. R. agent, Bridgetown, with his wife and two children and the parties already mentioned, had the privilege, on May the 5th of meeting and enjoying a sort of family reunion as three brothers, with their parents and families at the home of their childhood. A very enjoyable day indeed was spent, being the first time since the brothers left home, that this privilege was ever enjoyed.

Several things were worthy of note in the day's programme: First, the classical music, rendered by Mrs. H. L. Jones on the piano, who has been a very popular teacher for a number of years along this line. Second, the aid given by Mrs. O. C. Jones and Mrs. W. V. Jones in various ways in making the reunion attractive and enjoyable. Third, by the three brothers by the interest they manifested in the affair to make it a success, and last but not least by the sumptuous dinner heartily enjoyed by all, furnished by the head of the home, and prepared under the management and direction of the hostess, Mrs. W. C. Jones, by two efficient cooks and partaken of by the following members of the families present: Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Jones, with their children, Marjorie and Robert; Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Jones, with their children, Orpha and Lawrence.

Suffice us to say that this reunion will be a day long to be remembered in the family, and hopes are entertained that it may be again enjoyed ere a very long time elapses.

Mr. H. L. Jones and his newly made bride left on Monday, the 6th inst., for their home in the city of Ulysses, Pa., with kindly feelings and cherished memories in connection with the many friends they met, and the enjoyable time they spent during the few days they were in Clementsport, hoping ere long, to have the privilege of making a longer visit.

The Oldest Ex-M.P.

By the death of Dr. Hugh Cameron, at Glace Bay, the other day, aged 82, Judge Savary, of Annapolis, becomes the only survivor of the members returned to the First House of Commons in 1867, from the Maritime Provinces, and with perhaps one or two exceptions, from the entire Dominion of Canada.

The Greatest Woman

Who is the greatest woman in all history? One hundred and fifty school teachers recently answered the question, and with enthusiasm and unanimity the judges awarded the prize to the one who made this reply: "The wife of a farmer, of moderate means, who does her own cooking, washing, ironing, sewing, brings up a family of boys and girls to be useful members of society and has time for intellectual improvement."

Withdrawal of all road salesmen for a period of several months is the order that has gone forth from the Western Canada Flour Mills Company, Limited, of Toronto.

That this action will be of incalculable aid to the Food supply must be recognized by every person in that it removes entirely the temptation of the average consumer to purchase an unnecessary supply of flour.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM RHEUMATISM?

If you had suffered for years from Rheumatism and then had found a treatment that banished your pains and made you spry on your feet once more, would you want to keep the remedy secret, or would you want to pass on the good word to other sufferers?

It is an outstanding feature of the hundreds of letters received by a prominent firm of manufacturing druggists that after returning thanks for the relief afforded, the wish is expressed to let others know the good news.

Here are a few extracts that will interest anyone who has Rheumatism— "I have recommended Gin Pills to some of my friends who are troubled in the same way."

"Would advise all sufferers from Rheumatism to try Gin Pills."

"I recommend Gin Pills to every-one suffering as I did."

"I take great pleasure in recommending Gin Pills to all sufferers from Rheumatism."

Cincinnati Man Discovers Drug That Loosens Corns So That They Lift Out

Good news spreads rapidly and druggists here are kept busy dispensing freezons, the recent discovery of a Cincinnati man, which is said to loosen any corn so it lifts out with the fingers.
A quarter of an ounce costs very little at any store which handles drugs, but this is said to be sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.
You apply just a few drops on the tender, aching corn or toughened callus and instantly the soreness is relieved, and soon the corn or callus is so shriveled that it lifts out without pain. It is a sticky substance, which when applied and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding skin.
This discovery will prevent thousands of deaths annually from lockjaw and infection heretofore resulting from the suicidal habit of cutting corns.

SAVE OR SOME ONE STARVES—S. O. S. O. S.

A Paper by Miss Effie Potter, Read at The Patriotic Meeting at Lawrence town, and Published by Request

During the next four or five months, food conservation on this continent and among our people must be the sole aim, as stocks are dangerously depleted, particularly in the cases of cereals and meats. In Great Britain, in France, in Italy, the people are alive to the situation. They know some thing of what the next few months will mean. Their spirit was expressed by Lord Chas. Beresford the other day, when he said, "We are fighting our belts and we are going to win." Use should be made on our continent of every available substitute for wheat, beef and pork, for upon our food service depends the very lives of thousands of women and children in the Allied countries.

Notwithstanding the war, and the special need for economy, which war has brought, Canadians are wasting at a tremendous rate. We are slow in Canada to realize the serious nature of the food situation. We really do not intend to waste, but because the present generation has been so generously provided for, we do not know what saving means.

Waste is simply not saving things, which are useful. When we read, not long after war began of Germans commandeering old kettles, church images, anything made of copper for munitions, we thought we had them beaten. But it is this great national economy that has saved Germany until the present time. Saving of food, reduction of waste, substitution of other things for the essentials of our Allies are all other forms of production. The thing that is saved takes the place of the thing that cannot be produced.

The following "Ten ways to conserve" are suggested by the staff of Macdonald College:

1. Cut the bread at the table, and as required.
2. Save the crumbs from the bread board. You will be surprised how many there are.
3. Take a little less butter than you will think you will need. It will probably be the right amount.
4. Eat one more potato and one less slice of bread.
5. Eat one more spoonful of porridge and half a slice less toast.
6. If you need sugar in tea or coffee, take what is required to sweeten it. Do not leave a spoonful in the bottom of the cup.
7. Fat is scarce today. Do not leave the soap lying in water.
8. Do not eat more than you need. Eat what you require.
9. Leave a clean plate.
10. Eat slowly. Food well masticated, supplies more nourishment to the body, consequently less food is required.

What is the food waste yearly in Canada? Expressed in dollars, at least $50,000,000; expressed in wheat at $2 a bushel, 25,000,000 bus.; expressed in meat, say at 40c. per lb., it would be 125,000,000 lbs. or enough to supply a Canadian army of 500,000 men for 200 days.

We waste food in many ways:—
In peeling potatoes the loss is 20%. There is a waste in stale bread, in bread crumbs, in bread crusts, in kitchen garbage, in the fats of meats, in meats or chicken bones, in the sour milk or buttermilk that can often be utilized, in eating more than we really need, in eating the wrong kinds of food, not substituting other foods for the beef, wheat and bacon which are needed overseas, in keeping too many domestic pets, which consume good food and in leaving good food uncovered to be wasted or spoiled by vermin. The crusts we throw away would be gladly received by the starving Belgians, Serbs or Poles and other unfortunates of the war zone. The bones thrown into the garbage pails would make thousands of plates of nourishing soup. One ounce of edible meat (a one inch cube of meat weighs about an ounce) if saved every day by the 1,600,000 families in Canada, would mean a daily saving for the soldiers and our Allies of 100,000 pounds of meat, or in one year of 36,500,000 lbs. of animal food. If every Canadian family can save this one ounce of edible meat or fat every day from the garbage pail or reduce their consumption by this amount, they would save enough to provide for the meat ration of 100,000 Canadian soldiers. Instead of beef or pork of all kinds we should substitute as far as possible mutton, sausage, poultry, rabbit, game, tongue and liver. Good meat substitutes are fish, eggs, cheese, dried beans and peas. Margarine and cooking fats may be substituted for butter, but children should not be deprived of butter, unless furnished with plenty of milk. Right here it might be added that whole milk is much more wholesome for children than meat.

We are also asked to conserve sugar for overseas, so corn syrup or honey or molasses may be substituted. In cooking it will be necessary to use one quarter more.

Canada and the United States are asked this year to provide 450,000,000 wheat. It is also the patriotic duty of as little wheat as possible. For gravies and dusting flour, housewives may use barley or corn flour entirely. For wheat bread, rye bread, graham, bran, raisin, fruit or nut bread from 15 to 20 per cent of barley or corn flour may be substituted for wheat flour; in brown bread 33 per cent, in coffee cake, roll dough, doughnuts, dark sheet cake, dark cup cake, or dark cookies, 15 to 25 per cent, and in all kinds of tea biscuit, griddle cakes, or fried cakes, 15 to 40 per cent of these flour can substitute for wheat. It is also the patriotic duty everyone baking bread to use a certain quantity of mashed or rice potato in place of wheat flour. Potatoes are an addition and will improve the texture of the bread and it is perfectly safe to use them in the proportion of one quart of potato to every four quarts flour used.

Vegetables are so easily raised or obtained in our country, can be used in so many ways, and are such wholesome food that they should be used in every possible way, being careful, however, not to exclude the other foods necessary for a perfect diet.

We should not feel ourselves in anyway above saving and economizing in every way, and due regard should be given to rules and restrictions. Canada's new anti-waste laws recently published, include the following, and those who offend are subject to penalty:

- (1) When food, fit for human use, is wilfully or negligently damaged or thrown away.
- (2) When any one procures for any purpose a greater quantity than is reasonably required.

Fines for those who broke restrictions such as these in England and other countries, have been imposed already in many cases. One of England's prominent M. P.'s was recently fined $3000 for hoarding food. Marie Corelli was fined $500 for having an excess of sugar in her home.

Canada's Food Board has asked for meatless Wednesdays and the first conviction under the new regulations was of Paul Letros, proprietor of the Star Restaurant, Toronto, who was fined $25 with the option of 30 days in jail for serving pork on Wednesdays, contrary to the order of the Board. In respect to saving we have the example of even our King and Queen, who are on rations, and whose evening meal often consists simply of bread and jam.

We may find that it calls even for self-sacrifice as well as prudence on our part, but under present conditions all should cheerfully co-operate towards the great end—helping the Allies win the war. In this respect we should not follow the example of a man in England, who, because he did not care for it, refused to eat a dinner of fish prepared for him by his wife. She, feeling herself to be in the right (as the woman naturally should) informed on him, with the result that he was finally called upon to pay a fine of $25. This will, I suppose, teach two things:

- (1) That men should carefully obey their wives. (2), and not least, we should be willing to set aside our likes and dislikes in this matter of economy.

To discourage waste, to conserve to the utmost, everything that is of the nature of food, to utilize all food products, formerly overlooked or discarded in order that we may realize the staple foods for export to supply the needs of our Allies, is one of our first duties.

A member of the British Ministry of Food states: If the food line at home breaks, the holding of the trenches at the front will avail us nothing. Victory is the destination to which we must all travel. Whether we keep the rails or get wrecked at Starvation Junction depends upon how much food we provide for the journey.

SUDDEN DEATH

Mrs. James Marshall Passed Away Thursday Afternoon

Mrs. Abigail, wife of Mr. James Marshall, one of Bridgetown's oldest residents, died suddenly of heart failure while in her home on Church street last Thursday afternoon, aged 81 years.

The deceased was born in Nictaux and married Mr. Marshall sixty-one years ago. She was a member of the Nictaux Methodist church and highly respected by a large circle of acquaintances.

While bringing up a family of thirteen children, nine of whom are still living, she assisted in the making of the big "Summyside" farm, a very valuable property situated in Clarence. Besides an aged husband, she leaves to mourn their loss, three sons and six daughters: Richard, in Maine; Herbert, at Upper Grandville; Osbert, in Alberta; Mrs. J. Albert Ferrache, of Giron, California; Mrs. Charles C. Barker, San Francisco, California; Mrs. Chester Dennison, St. John, Maine; Mrs. P. E. Marshall, Haverhill, Mass.; Mrs. John LaFavor, New York; Mrs. Hampshire and Miss Una at home. There is also one brother, Dean, in the United States, and one sister, Mrs. Ephraim Power, of Weymouth, Mass.

The funeral was held from her late home Saturday afternoon with interment in the Riverside Cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. M. S. Richardson, pastor of the Bridgetown Baptist church, assisted by Rev. A. R. Feynode, pastor of the Bridgetown Methodist church. THE MONITOR extends its deepest sympathy to the bereaved ones.

DEATH IN BEAR RIVER

Mrs. W. C. Clarke Passed Away Last Thursday Morning

When a representative of the MONITOR arrived in Bear River last Thursday, all flags were at half mast and the whole community saddened, caused by the death of Annie J., wife of Willard G. Clarke, Esq., of the firm of Clarke Bros., Ltd., who had passed to the great beyond at an early hour that morning. Though Mrs. Clarke had been ill for some weeks, her death was unexpected and it is a great blow not only to her sorrowing loved ones, but to the Methodist church, of which she was a valued member, as well as to the whole community, to whom she was endeared by her gracious life and noble Christian womanhood.

The deceased was a daughter of the late Alpheus Marshall, and leaves besides her sorrowing husband to mourn their loss, three daughters: Mrs. J. H. Cunningham, of Sydney Mines; Mrs. A. G. McIntyre, of New York; and Miss Nan, at home; a sister, Mrs. L. J. Lovett, and a brother, A. B. Marshall, of Bear River.

The heartfelt sympathy of all is extended to the stricken family and relatives. The interment was on Sunday at the beautiful Mount Hope Cemetery, the services being conducted by Rev. J. W. O'Brien, of the Methodist church; Rev. F. H. Bone, and Rev. L. B. Crandall, of the Baptist Church. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

Death of Olive M. Galbraith

The St. John Telegraph says: The funeral of Miss Olive M. Galbraith, took place on Sunday, May 13th, at two o'clock, from her father's residence, 261 King street, West St. John. Interment was made in the cemetery at Lorneville, N. B. Many beautiful floral offerings were received, among them being a large wreath from the employees of the George E. Barbour Co., Ltd., where she was formerly employed, and a sheaf of roses and carnations from the office staff of the superintendent of the office of the Dominion Express Co.

The deceased, who was 18 years of age, was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Galbraith, leaving father, mother, three sisters and four brothers to mourn their sad loss. Among the sisters is Mrs. Harry S. Munroe, a former resident of Bridgetown.

KING'S COLLEGE ADVANCE MOVEMENT

A Successful Campaign Throughout St. James Parish

A very successful campaign for the King's College Advance Movement, has just been completed in St. James parish, Bridgetown. Canon Vernon, organizing secretary of the Movement, spent from Friday till Monday in town as the guest of Rev. Ernest and Mrs. Underwood at the rectory. He preached at St. James, Bridgetown, on Sunday morning and evening at St. Mary's, Belleisle, in the afternoon, and addressed both Sunday Schools.

He appealed to the congregations to make the subscriptions from the parish $1000 and by Monday evening $1100 had been subscribed, bringing the total subscription to the fund up to over $63,000. The Bridgetown subscriptions included one of $200, three of $100, one of $50, ten of $25, and five of $20. St. James parish has done splendidly. Canon Vernon was greatly aided in the work by the rector and church wardens and those who kindly placed their cars at his disposal. Additional subscriptions may be sent to Rev. E. Underwood or the church wardens, Messrs. A. F. Hiltz and W. R. Longmire.

I. O. O. F. Notes

The Second Degree Team, from Crescent Lodge of Oddfellows, Bridgetown, conferred that degree on two candidates in Friendship lodge, Bear River, last Thursday evening. Refreshments were served, followed by thanks, etc. The Bridgetown boys are loud in their praise of Bear River's hospitality. Among the prominent Oddfellows present were Past District Deputy Grand Masters H. P. Bowers, of Westport, and H. E. Wagner, of Weymouth.

Tomorrow (Thursday) evening, a First Degree team from Sunbeam Lodge, Middleton, will confer that degree on a candidate in Crescent Lodge, Bridgetown. Oddfellowship appears to be booming throughout the Annapolis Valley and Western Nova Scotia. Every lodge is busy conferring degrees, and fraternal visits, via automobiles, are numerous.

Damaged Goods

What is regarded by many as the greatest drawing card in the history of motion pictures, will be shown in the Primrose theatre, Bridgetown, next Monday and Tuesday evenings, May 20th and 21st. We refer to the great drama of sin's consequences, entitled, "Damaged Goods," which is advertised in today's MONITOR. It shows a lot of enterprise on the part of Bishop & Bishop, to bring such a high priced film to a town the size of Bridgetown, but we feel assured they will have a packed house both nights, Monday night with gentlemen and Tuesday night with ladies. It is highly endorsed by pulpit and press and is being well patronized wherever shown.

A Word to the Wise is Sufficient

We regret to learn that there is any one in Bridgetown bad enough to destroy flowers growing in the gardens along the country roads. What we should all do is to encourage the beautifying of our town and surrounding villages. It would prove a good example if Mr. Rymer, whose notice appears in another column, would prosecute these offenders to the full extent of the law. It is all right to go joy riding if you do not exceed the speed limit, but do not destroy people's property.

AN IMPORTANT EVENT

The Centenary of Sir Leonard Tilley's Birth Sublicly Celebrated in St. John

The St. John Daily Telegraph devotes a column space to the unveiling of a bronze laurel wreath placed on the monument of Sir Samuel Leonard Tilley, C. B., K.C.M.G., in Kings Square, St. John, by Judge H. O. McInerney, amid the cheers of the many people assembled.

Very prominent speakers addressed those present. This was indeed an important event in St. John and as one of the speakers expressed it, it was as much the merit of the man as his ability as a statesman that thrills the people of New Brunswick today.

One of our Bridgetown citizens, Mr. J. W. Peters, formerly of St. John, is a relative of the late Sir Samuel Tilley. His father, James Tilley Peters, and Samuel Leonard Tilley were double cousins.

Death of Charles Patterson

[Hants Journal]

Mr. Charles Patterson passed away Friday, May 3rd, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Andrew MacDonald.

After a lingering illness, Mr. Patterson was 88 years old, a faithful member of the Baptist Church for many years. He leaves three daughters and two sons—Mrs. Norman, Bridgetown; Melissa, of Windsor, and Mrs. MacDonald, of Hantsport; Frank and Albert, of Grotton, Mass. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon, Rev. L. H. Crandall conducting the services. "Face to Face" and "Somewhere Sometimes," by Messrs. Silva, Holmes, Pulsifer, Polker, were beautifully sung. Interment was in Riverbank Cemetery.

Another Business House

Mr. C. B. Tupper has leased the store on Queen street, formerly occupied by Mr. R. W. W. Parry and is putting in a choice line of musical instruments, cream separators, sewing machines, etc. Mr. Tupper is a good salesman, thoroughly reliable, believes in advertising and will no doubt meet with good success. Where to Spend Victoria Day

We wish to call particular attention to the races on the Speedway, Aylesford, which are being advertised in the MONITOR. Those who are fond of horse racing will certainly see good sport on that track Victoria Day, where every effort is being made to entertain the large crowd expected. The secretary, Mr. Craig Caldwell, who is well known in Bridgetown, is a hustler, and we feel sure that the whole affair will prove a big success.

- Sphagnum Moss as a Dressing -

Sphagnum Moss, to which attention has been drawn by the fatal accident to Mr. Harry James Smith, the American Sphagnum Moss expert, is one of Canada's natural resources, one great value of which has been brought to light by the war. The use of mosses in surgical dressings dates at least as far back as the Napoleonic wars, but the demand for and extensive use of Sphagnum Moss did not materialize until 1915, and even in the Spring of 1918 its use was in the experimental stage. So great has become the demand that Great Britain is no longer able to fill it, and Canada and the United States are now being actively exploited for this highly absorbent dressing.

The first effective work on this side of the Atlantic was initiated by Prof. Porter of McGill University, who secured samples of various qualities of moss from the British authorities early in 1916 and then explored the bogs of Eastern Nova Scotia until he was able to locate supplies of material which the same authorities accepted as perfect. The first sphagnum dressings sent overseas were made up from this moss in the autumn of 1916 by the Junior Red Cross of Guysboro, Nova Scotia.

Since then the industry has developed steadily. The McGill University Women's Union established a sphagnum department in a large laboratory very generously placed at their disposal by the University Medical School in the autumn of 1916, and from that day until this has been preparing moss and shipping dressings. Another important function of this organization has been to make up experimental sphagnum dressings of many sorts to try out the different grades of Canadian material under varying conditions.

During the winter of 1917 another work room was started at Dalhousie University, Halifax, and the Canadian Red Cross definitely adopted sphagnum for hospital dressings and prepared to open working centres on a large scale. Unfortunately the changes in the Atlantic shipping situation which resulted from unrestricted submarine warfare necessitated a temporary check on the work of exploration and development of the bogs. The late Mr. Harry James Smith of New York became interested in the possibilities of sphagnum that spring and during the same time with

Dr. Porter to familiarize himself with the technology of the subject, established a sphagnum organization at his own expense at Arichat, Cape Breton, and collected and prepared a large amount of moss. Success in the use of this material led to the adoption of sphagnum by the American Red Cross and to the formation of a department of sphagnum in the laboratory of the University of New York as technical advisor.

During the last two or three months the demand for dressings has increased to such an extent that the Canadian Red Cross has decided to start production on a large scale, and the immense output for the use of their own and the French hospitals.

No moss can of course be procured in the east until the snow melts, and sphagnum is also found on the Pacific coast. Mr. Smith, with the help of the Canadian Sphagnum Committee, procured a car of Vancouver Island moss early in the winter, and this carload (which Mr. Smith paid for out of his own pocket) proved so satisfactory that he went to Seattle early in March to organize the industry in the north-western States, and incidentally to look into the situation in British Columbia for Professor Porter, who was unable to go west at the time. As a matter of fact Mr. Smith met his death while searching for moss for the Canadian Red Cross, and thus set the seal to a life of exceptional generosity and nobility.

Sphagnum grows in moist and boggy places, and can be found in almost all parts of the country; but the moss to be used must have exceptionally full and soft foliage, and the stems while tough and elastic must be flexible, as otherwise the dressing would be liable to cause irritation.

First class material has been found on the west coast of Vancouver Island—but little or no first class surgical material has been found far from the sea, although there are immense areas of Sphagnum bog in the interior both of Canada and the United States. The best qualities of moss are likely to be found close to the margins of the bogs, and sometimes considerable areas of clean high grade material fill what was once a small pond. Before any attempt is made to collect moss in quantities all of the bogs in the district should be examined with a view to locating the largest supplies of good material, and this preliminary examination should be made by persons who have had previous experience in collecting Sphagnum.

Owing to the great variations in usefulness of different kinds of Sphagnum, and the fact that different species grow very much intermixed, the material has to be collected by people who have been trained to know good moss from bad, and even an experienced collector will often have difficulty in deciding just what to take and what to leave when he first visits a new locality.

LEMONS MAKE SKIN WHITE, SOFT, CLEAR Make This Beauty Lotion for a Few Cents and See for Yourself.

What girl or woman hasn't heard of lemon juice to remove complexion blemishes; to whiten the skin and to bring out the roses, the freshness and the maiden beauty? But lemon juice alone is acid, therefore irritating, and should be mixed with orchard white this way. Strain through a fine cloth the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing about three ounces of orchard white, then shake well and you have a whole quart of skin and complexion lotion at about the cost one usually pays for a small jar of ordinary cold cream. Be sure to strain the lemon juice so no pulp gets into the lotion, then this lotion will remain fresh and fresh for months. When applied daily to the face, neck, arms and hands it should help to bleach, clear, smoothen and beautify the skin. Any druggist will supply three ounces of orchard white at very little cost and the grocer has the lemons.

When a man is nearly frozen from a cold winter day, he will hardly stop to read a plank advertisement. Returning to Bear River. [Kentville Advertiser] Mr. R. L. Benson, who has been a most efficient caretaker of the Academy and school buildings the past years, severed his connection with the town and his work here and left this week for his former home in Bear River, where he will tan up farming.

On Tuesday, Mr. Benson was called to the school grounds and presented with a purse of $20.00, as a small token of the high esteem, which the children of the school held for him. Mr. Benson made a fitting acknowledgement of the gift and expressed his sorrow at separation from so many children, whom he had such a high esteem. Mr. Benson certainly will be greatly missed by all the scholars.

What Some People Expect. The Lunenburg Progress says: It is quite amusing to know that some people expect a publisher to select news matter entirely to their particular liking. They ask why you insert so and so, or why you don't? People should understand that a newspaper is made up of matter, which the editor feels will provide some reading for every class—not a bulk for one class. WOMAN'S NERVES MADE STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Winona, Minn.—"I suffered for more than a year from nervousness, and was so bad I could not rest at night. I would lie awake and get so nervous I would have to get up and walk around in the morning and dressings would be all dried out. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thought I would try it. My nervousness soon left me. I sleep well and feel fine in the morning and able to do my work. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to make weak nerves strong."—Mrs. ALBERT SULTZ, 603 Olmstead St., Winona, Minn.

How often do we hear the expression among women, "I am so nervous, I cannot sleep," or "it seems as though I should fly." Such women should profit by Mrs. Sultz's experience and give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For forty years it has been overcoming such serious conditions as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, dizziness, and nervous prostration of women, and is now considered the standard remedy for such ailments.

An Unexpected Meeting. ANYONE who knows the Canadian Pacific Rockies knows that north of the main line of the C. P. R. is a neighborhood of the headwaters of the Bow River there is good country. At one point where a crystal lake nestles in the chill grey rocks of 10,000 feet elevation there can almost always be found fresh indications of the peak dwellers. Now, old goat hunters will tell you that there is nothing more difficult to approach from below than a band of Rocky Mountain goats. Their keen eyes and sensitive senses, their exaggerated caution and incessant watchfulness makes it a game of highest skill. But once a hunter gets above a band of goats and they are practically at his mercy. Trained as they are in the safety of the peaks, knowing full well that danger comes from below, they watch the down slopes and are inclined to be careless about the trail behind, down which they have come in safety. An old he-goat, tall as a yearling calf and odorous as an Indian fish camp, went down to the lake to drink, and started back up the rock slide to his waiting band. It was summer, or rather early fall. Only old snow was yet in the mountains, and it lay only where the shadows of the cliffs protected it from the rays of the sun. It was above the timber line, there was no brush, but plenty of succulent lichens. The old goat was well-contented. He drank, he turned and climbed. Topping the grade, five hundred feet above the lake, he stopped astounded and angry. A fierce black animal, neither wolf nor bear nor cat, faced him with fiery eyes, gleaming teeth, and deep throat rumblings. It was the best hunting dog of a hunter. The dog had been trained to get above the goats and dispute passage until the hunter came to kill. "But what's the use of killing him when I want to get sheep further up?" the hunter reasoned, as he snatched his kodak shutter and whistled the goat and dog to heel, while the goat still stood paralyzed with amazement. Worried Farmers (By Walt Mason) The farmers were complaining, the weather was so dry; and then it started raining, from under a leaky sky; the rain came down in billows, mixed with snow and hail; and by the weeping willows, the farmers raised a wail. The farmers are now allowing, the ground is now so wet, they cannot do the plowing, which is their one best bet. They're heaving and they're roaring, they cannot sow their beans, they have to do their choring in boats and submarines. I've never known a granger who wasn't feeling sick, who was to grief a stranger, who didn't file a kick. The banker and the baker are smiling, cheerful men, and e'en the undertaker will gamble now and then. The butcher and the grocer will raise a glad hurrah, when Spring is drawing closer, and like the lambing play. The sexton and the pastor find life is full of plums, and they'll forget disaster until disaster comes. The lawyer and the tinker, the justice of the peace, pronounce this world a dinkier, and life as slick as grease. But always and forever, the farmer's face is grim; the gods all made endeavor to put a crimp in him. A song of woe, untiring, is coming from his throat, the planets are conspiring to gather in his goat. To him, there's nothing charming beneath the sullen sky—and if you've followed farming, you'll know the reason why.

A FIGHT WITH WOLVES

(By John O'Brien Price)

During the summer of 1831 Richard Teale and his family joined the stream of immigrants that was pouring westward. He left his wife and three children in Indiana, while he went ahead to Champaign County, in Illinois, to select the site for a new home. He finally bought from the government forty acres on the bank of the Okaw River, and with the help of the nearest neighbour, who lived sixteen miles away, built a house and stable of logs. Having no door or windows for the house, they framed the openings and left them uncovered. Teals then rejoined his family, and in April they loaded all their belongings, including the door and the windows for the new house, on two wagons. Mrs. Teale drove one and her husband the other, and with their two cows tied behind, they started across country to their future home. The three children—Catherine, five years old, Andrew, a year younger, and the baby girl—rode with their mother. On the morning of the day when they expected to arrive at their destination, they struck a boggy prairie, and had to hitch all four horses to one wagon. The other wagon they left behind for the time being. It was late in the evening when they drove up to the lonely cabin on the edge of the timber. Mrs. Teale soon had a fire crackling on the hearth, and set about preparing supper. Meanwhile her husband cared for the stock, and put in the windows that they had brought for the cabin. Not until he started to the wagon for the door did he remember that it was on the load that they had left behind. To the Teales the lack of a door seemed a small matter, and they cheerfully hung a quilt across the opening, and were thankful for what they had. The next morning, after Mr. Teale had felled a tree and chopped a supply of wood, he took the horses back for the wagon that they abandoned in the bog. He could not return before the evening of the following day, but his wife was not afraid to be left alone, for the pioneer life made her resourceful and courageous. During the day she was very busy getting settled. In the afternoon, she saw a lank timber wolf prowling round the stable. Calling the dogs, two large grey hounds, she set them on the animal. The dogs did not seem anxious for battle, and the wolf leisurely trotted back into the woods. Returning to her work, she thought little more of the incident, but that evening, after she had milked the cows she securely fastened the cumbersome plank door that her husband had made for the stable. About nine o'clock the children went to bed, and she took up her knitting. Suddenly she heard a wolf barking, but as that was a common occurrence she paid no heed to it until she noticed that the sound was drawing nearer. At the end of each bark there was a long-drawn wail—the wolf call for the gathering of the pack. The winter had been extremely severe, and Mrs. Teale knew that the wolves were probably half famished. Far out on the prairie came an answer. To the south along the river the wail was also taken up, and a moment later it was repeated from yet another direction. A concerted yelping suddenly arose near the stable, and the hounds, changed their barks of defiance to whimpers of fright. As Mrs. Teale went to call them in, a savage snarling came from outside the door, the dogs were tussling with a wolf. The struggling animals fell against the quilt curtain with such force that the cloth was torn from its lower fastenings. Realizing the danger, she turned the table on its end and pushed it against the curtain. Several wolves now came running up from the stable. The hounds, unable to cope with such odds, shook off their opponents and made a dash for freedom. The sound of the pursuit became fainter and fainter, until it died away. Thinking that the pack would be drawn away so far that it would not return, Mrs. Teale again took up her work. Not more than an hour had passed, however, before she heard a sniffling and scratching at the door.

Thinking that the dogs had out distanced their pursuers and circled back to the cabin she pushed back the table and raised the curtain. A wolf stood at the threshold, with yellow eyes gleaming in the uncertain light. Quick as a flash she dropped the curtain and pushed the table into place. Weak from fright, she leaned against it; for behind that wolf she had seen many yellow, rough-coated forms. Hoping that a bright light would keep the wolves away from the cabin Mrs. Teale piled all her supply of wood on the fire; but the wood was full of sap, and the fire had got so low, before she replenished it that the green logs only deadened the light in the room. The wolves, scenting the food within, fought for a place at the door. The noise awakened the baby, who began to cry. The sound seemed to infuriate the animals; as Mrs. Teale holding the child in her arms, braced herself against the overturned table. She needed all her strength to prevent them from pushing into the room. Then one wolf, springing over the backs of the others, struck the curtain above the table with such force that the cloth tore away from its fastenings at the top. The quilt could not withstand many such blows, and the wolves would soon get in. Mr. Teale had taken the gun with him; the only weapon left was an axe.

Afraid to leave the door for an instant, Mrs. Teale bade the older children who had awakened and who lay covering with fright to bring her the covers from the bed. Overhead were the rafters on which Mr. Teale planned to build solid floor; the ladder to the proposed attic was already in place. Across some rafters lay a few loose boards, and over them Mrs. Teale now threw the bed coverings. Calming the children's fears she directed Catherine to help her brother up the ladder and to sit on the loose flooring. When they were safely there, she seized the axe, and holding the baby tight, hurried after them.

There was not room enough on the boards for the children to sit down, and they all had to sit with their feet drawn up under them. The noise outside had increased, and a moment later the struggling animals pushed the table away from one side of the door, and in the opening appeared an ugly head. The dim light from the candle on the shelf and the few flickering flames that had begun to spring up among the logs made the beast hesitate, but the biting, writhing mass behind forced him into the room. He stood irresolutely just inside the door; but another sharp nose and hideous mouth appeared and bit the leg of the first creature which whirled and snapped back. The second beast was already inside, and the two stood snarling at each other. No doubt they would have fought if the odor of the food had not diverted their attention. As soon as they had found the box where the supplies were kept, they began busily to scratch and claw at it. One or two of their mates had slunk into the room, and seeing that no harm befell them, the whole pack presently rushed inside. To Mrs. Teale and the children on their perch above, the room seemed to be a seething mass of struggling animals. Catherine was trembling with fear, but she tried to comfort her brother. The baby screamed loudly.

When the wolves had devoured all the food in the box, they sniffed about the room. One big fellow leaped upon the bed and slashed the pillows with his fangs. The screaming child attracted his attention, and sitting down on his haunches, he looked malevolently up at it. Suddenly he crouched lower, and the muscles under his shaggy hide quivered. Mrs. Teale knew that he was about to spring, but she could not move. For what seemed to her hours, although in fact it was only a few seconds, she gazed at his baleful eyes. Then he leaped; she saw the sinister fangs draw near, felt the hot breath in her face, and noticed a sharp pain, as his claws, working desperately to retain a hold on the board, raked across her hand. A moment he hung on the edge, and then fell heavily on the floor. Three other wolves immediately sprang upon the bed and gazed upward with slaving mouths. Suddenly a new strength came to the mother. Taking the axe in her right hand and holding the baby with her left arm, she stood up, and with her back braced against the roof, awaited the attack. The creatures on the floor beneath, ceased their wrangling; all were looking upward, waiting. One of those on the bed moved restlessly, and, as if unable to restrain its eagerness longer, drew himself together and leaped at the prey. The axe greeted him on the nose, and with a yelp of pain he fell to the floor. The other two sprang at her almost the same time; one fell short of the mark, but the other, catching his claws in a blanket, drew his fore-quarters up on the board in front of Andrew. Mrs. Teale's first stroke with the axe, missed the beast, but her second cut a gash in the back of his neck, and knocked him partly from the platform. Hearing a frightened cry from Andrew, who in getting out of the way of the wolf, had lost his balance on the boards, Mrs. Teale dropped the axe and seized him by the leg just in time to draw him back to safety. The maimed wolf had his claws caught in the blanket, and was struggling desperately. One stroke of the axe cracked his skull; his body relaxed and fell to the floor among the pack, which at once began to fight over it.

Fearing that the children, who were now panic-stricken, might fall from their places on the boards, Mrs. Teale looked about for a way to escape, while the wolves were so busily engaged. Placing the baby on the board between her feet, so that she could use both her hands, she chopped a hole through the boards above her. Then she lifted Catherine until the child could grasp the sides of the opening and clamber out. Mrs. Teale directed her to sit astride the ridgepole, and then passed out the blankets to protect the children from the cold. Next she lifted little Andrew out to his sister, who pulled him up to a place beside her. Then Mrs. Teale, with some trouble, clambered out through the hole with the baby and gained a seat by the others.

The moon had risen and the fresh night air cooled her aching body. The wind from the south, blowing the dense smoke from the chimney into their faces, inspired her with a plan to drive the wolves from the house. With a blanket thrown across her shoulders, she crept along the ridgepole toward the chimney; when she reached it she threw the blanket over the top of it. That would drive the smoke down into the room, where the ravenous hords were quarrelling over their dead mate.

She had no more than covered the chimney when she heard a scream behind her, and looking back, saw Andrew sliding helplessly down the steep roof. At the eaves he clung a moment desperately, and then disappearing with a frightened little cry.

Mrs. Teale did not hesitate. Warning Catherine to be quiet, she untied her apron strings with her free hand, wrapped them round her neck, and knotted them beneath her chin. Placing the infant in the apron, she took the ends of the hem in her teeth, lay flat on her back, and steadying herself with one hand by grasping the outer edge of the roof, slowly slid to the eaves and dropped the seven feet to the thick sod below.

She found the boy stunned by the fall, but otherwise unhurt. Without considering the wolves, she lifted him under one arm, and holding the hem of the apron with the other hand, ran to the stable. Inside she placed the two children on the hay. The baby, worn out with excitement, fell quickly asleep. The mother worked frantically over the boy, and at last was repaid by seeing him open his eyes.

and lift up his hands to her. A few minutes later she went cautiously outside.

No wolves were in sight, and she gave a sigh of relief when she saw on the roof her daughter silhouetted against the moonlight. To set in place the rude ladder that had been used in building the house and to mount it took her only a minute, and she had soon carried the chilled and sobbing girl to the ground. As mother and daughter fled to the stable, they heard the snarling of the wolves change suddenly to sneezing and coughing. The smoke was doing its work.

In the stable, with the door tight barred, the family felt safe. The children were sleeping as soundly on the hay as if they were in their own beds; but Mrs. Teale watched until morning.

When daylight came, she ventured out to reconnoitre. Not a sound came from the house. The lower part of the quilt across the door was torn and chewed away, where the wolves had tried to make their way out of the smoke-filled cabin. The over-turned table was jammed tight across the doorway. Encouraged by the silence, she pushed aside the tattered quilt. An odor of burned hair and flesh hung in the room, and she saw the contorted bodies of twenty-seven wolves; one of them, in the agonies of suffocation, had rolled into the fire, and its half-charred body lay on the hearth. In their panic, the creatures had closed their only way of escape.

Early that afternoon, Mr. Teale arrived. The hounds, outdistancing their pursuers, had found his trail, and had come into the camp in the early morning. Their bloody and gashed condition had alarmed him so much that he had left the camp immediately and hurried to the cabin at the best speed the horses could make. In those days there was in Illinois a bounty of two dollars for each wolf killed and the money that the Teales received for the smothered pack, helped them greatly in establishing themselves in their new home.
