MAIL CLERK SUES RAILWAY COMPANY

RETURNS REGARDING SMALLPOX IN ONTARIO

Three Hundred and Forty-Two Cases in Province at Present-The Disease Spreading.

Calgary, Dec. 20.-In January, 1899, an accident occurred at Black Mud creek, about 12 miles south of Strathcona, on the Calgary & Edmonton railway. The engine passed over safely, but 12 cars were derailed and rolled down an embankment and were precipitated into the creek, owing, it is alleged by the plaintiff in a lawsuit which com-menced here, to defective construction of the trestle work of the bridge. Ken-ny, the plaintiff, was a mail clerk on the train at the time, and sustained a the train at the time, and sustained a fracture of the knee cap, which resulted part of congress. in permanent lameness. The plaintiff then brought action to recover $10,000 damages. The defence are attempting non-suit by proving that the C.P.R. company are merely agents of the Calgary, & Edmonton Railway company, and not, therefore, liable for damages.

Smallpox Spreading. Toronto, Dec. 20 .- There are at present no less than 342 cases of smallpox in Ontario, and in all 560 cases have occurred since the 1st of October. This is the net result of a statement issued to-day by the provincial health authori-ties. In Carleton county, including Ot tawa, there are 144 cases, and the dis-ease is spreading up the Ottawa valley, chiefly in the lumber camps. The spread of the disease in this instance has been from the province of Quebee. With the beginning of September hundreds of men from Quebec and Ontario counties along the Ottawa went for their winter work to lumber camps in northern On-tario, and carried with them disease into a number of centres. The disease in-troduced has spread from Ottawa centre and from the lumber camps.

Chicago, Dec. 21.-In the will of Mrs. Chicago, Dec. 21.—In the will of Mrs. Emma A. Schley, who was a sister of Roswell P. Flowers, of New York, there is a clause bequeathing $10,000 for the care of her pets. The money is placed in the hands of her maid for the pur-pose and she must care for them as long as they live. The will was field for record to perfect a real estate title. The document disposed of $2,000,000 among 159 legatees. Two cooks get $5000 each and an old washerweman $5,000 each and an old washerwoman $6,000.

Oakland, Dec. 21.-John J. Valentine, president of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s ex-press, died early this morning. He had been ill for some time, and his death has been expected for several days.

BAZAAR AT CUMBERLAND.

The Ladies' Guild of' Trinity church held their annual bazaar in Cumberland hall last Tuesday afternoon and evening. The beauty of the decorations and the fine display of useful and ornamental articles exposed for sale proclaimed good taste and refinement in those who did the work.

SOCIAL AT COURTENAY.

(Special Correspondence of the Times.) A basket social was held in the agri-cultural hall on Wednesday evening in aid of the Torrance family. The baskets, which were beautifully decor-ated, were auctioned off at high figures. Some cost the purchasers $5 and $6 each A number of friends from Cumberland came down to help with the programme.

Dublin, Dec. 21.—John P. Harden, M. F. for South Roscommon, a newspaper proprietor, has been sentenced at Ballin-lough, Roscommon, to twenty-one days' imprisonment for inciting to boycotting and the non-payment of rent. Six other persons of minor importance were sen-tenced to terms of imprisonment on the same charge, varying from a fortnight to a month. to a month.

SITUATION IN PHILIPPINES Governor Taft Takes a Hopeful View of Present State of Affairs.

Manila, Dec. 20.-Over four thousand members of the federal party called on Governor Taft to-day to bid him farewell and safe return. The governor ad-dressed 150 of the more prominent of his visitors, saying he was touched and honored by their presence. The organ-ization, he added, had done so much toward bringing about peace and giving the country a stable party that it argued more for the success of American labors than anything else during the recent critical times. The reports circulated in the United States founded on incidents connected with the war in Batangas province and the Island of Samar, the governor also said, tend to convey a wrong impression of the situation which is really hopeful. Through his officers, the constabulary teachers, the commission had excellent means of acquiring information in the organized provinces, and it considers that there was never a time when there Wilfrid Laurier offered his services as a has been so much real ground for hope-fulness and encouragement in regard to the attitude of the Filipino people to-ward the civil government. Senor Antonia Fernandez, war minister under President Andrade, and Senor Lutowsky, war minister in President Crispo's former cabinet, rebelled on Thursday against President Castro, near La Victoria. The revolutionists reached Cagina on the way to Vitta De Cura, where their partizans concentrated from all the sur-rounding districts. The movement, it is asserted, has long been premeditated, and is in accord with that of General Matoa, who is expected at Martinique to-morrow. It is considered a terrible blow against President Castro, who, im-mediately upon hearing of the uprising, dispatched troops from Maracalbo by rail, but found the lines destroyed at Cagua. Traffie-on the German railroad rail, but found the lines destroyed at Cagua. Traffic on the German railroad is interrupted, and telephone and tele-graph lines have been cut. Then the soldiers took a hand in the scoring, securing two goals in rapid succession. The Colum-bias again scored, and at half time the game was in their favor with 3 to 2. In the second half the Garrison made a vigorous onslaught, and added four more, while J. Lawson scored the fourth for the Columbias. The three half backs played a great game for the vic-tors, while J. Lawson, G. Wilson, S. Shanks and H. Gartley were the bright particular stars for the Columbias. Bread is made of vasily different mater-ials in different countries. In Lapland oats with the inner bark of the pine are used. The two together, well ground and mixed, are made into large flat cakes, and cooked in a pan over the fire. In Kamchatka, in Asiatic Russia, pine or birch bark by it-self, well macerated, pounded and baked, frequently constitutes the whole of the na-tive bread food. The Icelander scrapes the Iceland moss off the rocks and grinds it into fine flour, which serves both for bread and pudlings. In parts of Italy chest-nuts are cooked, ground into meel and resed for making bread. Purra, a variety of millet, is much used in India, Egypt, Ar-abia and Asia Minor for making bread. -----

Presently we swooped down to earth once more and this time I was able to locate myself without difficulty. Evidently I was in Calcutta, and outside the Governor-General's residency, for the viceroy him self, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, was just coming out through an avenue of sala aming Indian servants, blazing with scarlet and gold, towards an elephant and a small bodyguard of cavalry, which were in waiting. I should have liked to have decaned the ride, but I felt it would be ungrateful, so I followed Lord Curzon's example and climbed up a scarlet-clothed ladder on to my mount. I thought people in India rode on elephants in howdahs and had mahouts with harpoons as drivers but these great beasts had only saddles and bridles, just as if they had been horses. I remarked on this, and Lord Curzon told me that howdahs were used Curson told me that how dahs were used on state occasions and in tiger-hunting ""get inside and-draw-down - the - blinds sort of thing"—but he made it a rule to have an early trot, just to keep the started was that it was an exercise commently calculated to keep that imstarted was that it was an exercise eminently calculated to keep that im-portant but froublesome organ in per-manent disorder. My Electric Belt has restored health and strength to thousands of nervous, debilitated and painworn men and women. You also can be cured if you will grasp the opportunity I offer. Read what the cured say. Electricity, as turnished by my Belt, cures by giving back to the weakened nerves, muscles and organs the vitality they have lost, reducing inflammation, developing the full vigor of health and removing the effects of overwork, exposure to weather and long continued sickness.

PAY WHEN CURED.

To those who have trusted and been betrayed by seductive promises ; to those who have swallowed pailtuls of pills and liquid medicines without result except a damaged stomach and increased pain and weakness, and to those who have worn so-called electric belts, which either burned and blistered the body or gave no electricity, I offer a positive cure by means of my Electric Belt. It gives a stronger current than any other, and is guaranteed not to burn or blister. See the Gures :-

Back and Side Cured. Dr. M. A. McLaughlin :-Dear Sir,-I can say that the Belt has given me good satisfaction. The pain has left my side and back completely, and I feel as suple as a young lamb. in New York-$50 worth of popcorn all around. The little band had clung desperately to this disheveled messenger of the gods. The leading lady covertly tried to learn something about him while he was busy-ing himself in their behalf (being both grateful and a woman), but not until they were aboard the train and bidding the jubilant angel farewell did she re-cognize him. As the bell rang the angel waved his tattered hat, gave vent to an exultant yell, and she knew him for the half-frozen wretch who had taken the Italian tenor's overcoat. Then the train slid away and the angel, presumably, went off and got very drunk again-if, indeed, he had ever been sober. She had neither seen nor heard of him since. It was very queer, wasn't it? and proof that the wold is really small.

"Putting up a bluff," is an expressiv brase, even though it be slang. This is hat Boomville was doing. It was "putng up a bluff" that it was a city, whereall the neighboring towns knew it was erely a large village-and they said so with contempt and sarcasm. Each town vas well aware that it was the coming ity, and each naturally regarded the abd claims of Boomville with scorn.

Yet. Boomville possessed potentialities reatness within itself, one peculiar of American bluff being that it often of American but being that it often es in the pot, as the classics say. And coming down the street, was the who would do most to increase it nd prosperity.

John R. Keening had a smooth-shaver face-a poker-face, expression inscrutable. At first sight he ed extremely youthful; he was oung, so far as years went, but his thin countenance was as old as the Sphinx, and as unreadable. No main ver seen him angry, and his infre uent smile was as mirthless and icy as ne play of winter sunshine on a frozen He was an American money-mak machine, with the accurate mechan al brain of a cash register, and as wel adowed with human sympathy as is the il instrument. A scrupulously just he considered himself; and so he Generosity, however, was someing he knew nothing of, for there place for it on either page of his leds volume of adjustable exactn uch must balance with accuracy, a is right and proper, and whose ages must therefore be clogged by nothng superfluous.

early morning was as clear and Th still as if such a thing as atmosphere did ot rest on the earth's surface, and yet the air was there, cold but bracing, an piring breathing medium to electrify and almost intoxicate the system; a lendid iife-giving air to those who wer well-fed and well-clad, but somewhat too nuch like John R. Keening himself to howe less fortunate. The sun was bril-liant, the blue sky cloudless, yet the morning was cold—nipping cold—with the breath of hurrying mankind visible.

A close observer of Boomville's chief citizen might have said here was a min who needed all the tonic qualities of the air he breathed. His face was colorless, the firm lips down-drawn at the corners, the premature crows' feet under the eyes, strongly marked. A specialist would have pronounced him one running race with Death and not sure of winning. As a matter of fact, he did not win, for in this plain recital there are no secrets, no dramatic climax to be re ved for the end. The three floored ick structure then known as the Keenng block, pride of the town of that day, has given place to the fifteen story strucire of steel and stone, ugly as sin, practical as straight lines and right angles can make it, which is the pride of the city to-day; and if that be not success what is? Keening was even more meriless with himself than with the humblest workman in his employ. Endowed at the beginning with a magnificent vitality, acquired on a Western farm, he had come to the town and used it ruthessly. Alrealy he had overdrawn at the Bank of Health; his balance was ex-hausted, but he fought on, unheeding the warning of the cashier. He was now reasonably rich, but he had paid the rice; and to-day his cheque on the Bank of Health was to be returned-dishord

The wags of the town were in the habit of remarking that it was entirely proper Keening should be on the verge of a breakdown, because he aspired to be the greatest manufacturer of medicines the United States. It was a case of the physician being unable to heal himseif. In his early days, through strict attention to the advertising columns of the newspapers, young Keening had come to conclusion that the American people ere the most inveterate takers of medi es in the world. It occurred to him that there was a chance for a man who would put up drugs that were absolutely oure. If he could unite the name of Keening and strict honesty, he might form the nucleus of a prosperous busi-ness, for often the life of a man depended on the genuine quality of the medicine he took; and, as doses were compounded chemists, and not by the doctors selves, as was the custom in Europe it would mean money in his pocket if he could persuade any considerable body of physicians to stipulate for Keening's drugs when they wrote out their prescrip-

He got very little encouragement from the drug stores at the beginning. Adulteration and seven hundred per cent. were accustomed to amble amicably together hand in hand. Why not let well enough alone? But Keening did not trouble himself greatly about the drug stores, al-though he knew they must be his chief customers if he were to succeed. He struck at the root of things, and endeavored to get the confidence of the physi-cians a highly-educated set of men with consciences. If they failed him, he would appeal to Caesar through the advertising columns of the newspapers, sup-tosing he could get the cash or earn the credit necessary for that purpose. At first, in a single room, he compounded his drugs with his own hand, testing, experimenting, improving. Many a night he sat at his desk until day broke, writing terse letters to unknown physicians whose addresses he got from the medical direct directory. Often at the end of his re-sources, he was never discouraged, having supreme faith in his idea. Inquiries dropped in from the most unexpected quarters; a request for a sample from Texas; a slight order from California; and the enlightened postal service of the United States stood his friend, his unerring messenger boy. He swore he would make the drug stores come to him-and they did; slowly, reluctantly, no matter what the standing or despotic power of the customer demanding them. He was resolved his business methods would be as honest as his chemicals, which caused for the customer demanding them. some grumbling and dissatisfaction; but he was in inflexible man, as they soon covered who dealt with him.

It had been a hard, wearing struggle, but now there was the three story brick block in Main street, and a busy frame factory on the outskirts of the town. Keening was the chief customer of the Printing office the howmaker the never printing office, the boxmaker, the paper all p

TIME'S IMMORTALITY.

Heart! Is thy grief the solitary pang

Of this frail year dim-circling to its end? Doth Hope's soft voice, that erst endearing sang, Seem now the surfeit of a faithless friend? Oh must thou wail the weary negligence Of Time's dull finger, pointing where we would, And urging us toward Life's beatitude, Yet mocking at our solemn impotence; While we, like symbols of an antique chart, Are undeciphered still as in the start?

I saw a footprint 'mid the hour of Spring, Light as the fawn's, and as an infant's, small; And when bright Summer reached the welcoming, The foot had grown, - perchance a maiden's, tall. When Autumn to the merry husbandman Bequeathed the golden sheaf, the footprint there Maturely sank beneath the matron fair Who to the dairy bore the milking-pan: Then Winter o'er the earth his mantle drew, And snow quite hid the footprint from the view.

The infant,-maiden,-matron,-and the dust Inanimate.- are as the shifting-glass Of Life's kaleidoscope, wherein is thrust The soul's scant vision, which doth peer and pass Forth to the unspanned mystery of things; And we, as strangers on a stranger shore, Abide a tedious season, -pay our score, Ere doth the soul spread her immortal wings; And having here abode a meagre date, She wafts her vision to a vaster fate.

Oh heart! Thy doubts, thy questionings and fears Are but the substance of the soul's desire : And all the yearnings of the passing years, But melodies that fresh from Nature's lyre Are scattered by the fervent soul's unrest : And those who coldly, 'mid our little life, Deem of our busy days, deem of the strife Of aims conflicting, as a petty jest,-May ponder that Earth's things we know and do, Partake of the Celestial and the True.
