STREET RAILWAY BLUNTLY REFUSES

To Consider Lancaster Highway Board's Offer.

Law Past Last Year Must be Repealed or Tracks Will Not be Extended to Fairville.

The offer of the Lancaster highway board to bear the expense of cleaning the snow from the streets if the street railway would extend its tracks to Fairville was considered at a meeting of the street railway directors last night and refused. The company point blank refuses to have any further dealings with the Lancaster authorities until the law passed last year empowering the highway board to enforce a fine from the company if the street railway failed to clear the snow is repealed. The following letter was sent this morning:

George R. Vincent, Esq., Secretary, Municipal, City and County of Saint John, N. B.

Dear Sir:-

I am instructed by the Executive Committee of the Saint John Railway Company to state in answer to your letter of the 31st October, that it would be idle to take up with the Highway Board negotiations respecting extension to Fairville unless the question of the repeal of the law imposing a penalty of $500 for every refusal or neglect to carry out the orders of the Highway Board is also to be considered.

This part of the act is, in the opinion of our board, most objectionable and oppressive. It does not, as you appear to think, apply only to orders for removal of snow, but to orders for repairs, etc.

The law, as it now stands, allows the Highway Board to recover against our company whatever sum of money may be expended for repairs of highways, or the removal of snow, where such expenditure is rendered necessary by failure of our company to make necessary repairs to the highways or to remove the snow therefrom.

Why, in addition to this, do you want the power to enforce a penalty of $500 recoverable on summary conviction for failure or neglect to obey any orders the board may give? Would any business corporation or business man appear to enter into a contract with such a penalty attached, or where it could be enforced?

I am also directed to call your attention to the resolution passed by the Board of Directors of this company on the 26th September last, copy of which was sent to you. In that resolution it was stated that our directors would give orders for the construction of the railway to Barnhill's Corner, Fairville, the work to be completed this fall.

The last session of the Legislature relating to street railways in the county of Saint John, so that the law would be the same as it was the understanding respecting said extension was arrived at between Mr. Robinson and Mr. Lowell. Besides the penalty mentioned above the law required the removal of snow down to four inches, which is admittedly absurd.

Our directors are desirous of making an equitable and fair agreement with the Highway Board and are prepared to meet your board at any time to consider this matter.

Yours truly,

W. Z. EARLE, Manager.

St. John, N. B., November 15th, 1905.

County Secretary Vincent when seen this morning said that he had only just received the above communication. The highway board will meet within the next two or three days and an official reply will be made.

Mr. Vincent said this morning that the company's communication only went over the same old ground again, and made no direct answer to their offer.

Mr. Vincent expressed the opinion that the street railway's policy was one of bluff. They were continually hunting around for new excuses for not building the line, as they promised when they were allowed to extend to Seaside Park. First it was the question of the railway gates and when that bluff would not hold out any longer they hatched up this business about the removal of snow, now the board has removed that objection also. Mr. Vincent said that in his opinion the street railway's policy was far from an honest one.

PRAIRIE FIRE SWEEPS

DAKOTA - CHILDREN LOST

RONISTEEL, S. D., Nov. 15.-Two children are missing and many square miles of farm land have been ravaged as the result of a prairie fire that raged for two days, threatening for a time to attack Aberdeen, S. C., and the opened Rosebud Indian reservation lands. Many cattle have perished and a score of farmbuildings have been burned in spite of the three hundred farmers who are fighting the flames night and day. John L. Brimling's farm was devastated and his two daughters, aged six and eight years, are reported lost. They were at school when the fire swept the region.

ANOTHER FREE KINDERGARTEN.

Institution to be Opened Soon in Lower Cove.

Reports at Annual Meeting Tell of Good Work-Kindergartens Recommended for Public Schools.

The second annual meeting of the Free Kindergarten will be held this evening in the High School, when the following resolution was adopted: "Whereas the government's proclamation of martial law in Poland provokes insurrection, bloodshed and oppression, and the League of Nations, which we provisionally suspend the general strike, return to work and communicate with the Russian League of Nations concerning further action."

The news of the decision of the railway men to return to work spread rapidly and caused a feeling of relief. The shops were re-opened after three weeks of idleness. The authorities will start today.

The report refers to the free use of the schoolroom of St. Mary's church, entertainments given and the fact that forty-three children have been in attendance. The report concludes as follows:

"The salaries of the trained kindergarten and an assistant are the largest items of expense and as this is a missionary work we would ask all the friends of it to contribute more largely so that another school may be opened before Christmas in Lower Cove. A room has been looked at in Carmarthen street church and as soon as there is more money on hand we hope to have another free kindergarten in that vicinity. There are so many children in some localities we could easily fill four rooms out of one."

"There are three private kindergartens in every public school (two in some schools) and a lady like our Miss Robinson who is able to train young girls to do the work and who is one of our own licensed teachers, as supervisor of all these kindergartens."

THE USE OF A STREET CAR TRANSFER

Theological Student Arrested for Illegally Passing On, Defends His Action

and Corners the Judge.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.-A new point in transfer ethics was raised yesterday when Robert Morris, a divinity student in Chicago University was arraigned before Justice Callahan on a charge of offering a Cottage Grove avenue car transfer to a lady who had been cornered by the city railway company, who saw him attempt to use the transfer in the street and that he knew it was illegal to use it, but he said he could not see the justice of the law.

He contended that every nickel spent by the patrons of the street car company purchased the maximum ride on the company's lines and that if the original purchaser did not care to use all of that ride it could be no moral offense for another person to use what someone else had wittingly thrown away. Justice Callahan held that to ride on a transfer that had been found in the street was no less than robbery, inasmuch as the company was deprived of a nickel that otherwise would have been spent.

"Then you might as well say that I robbed the storekeepers when I give away an overcoat which is only half worn out because I save the recipient of the coat the necessity of buying a new one," rejoined Morris.

The student finally agreed to meet the judge again and thrash out the question thoroughly.

"He had me going some," was Justice Callahan's comment after Morris left the court room.

LONDON, Nov. 15.-At the foreign office this afternoon the Associated Press telegraphed that Great Britain had no intention of sending warships to the Neva, as reported in St. Petersburg; and that still did not contemplate that there would be any necessity for sending them.

It was further stated at the foreign office that official reports had been received concerning today's happenings in St. Petersburg, but the despatches received had caused no change in Great Britain's attitude, as the authorities here are of the opinion that the authorities at St. Petersburg would protect the lives and property of British subjects.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.-Mr. Green, the American consul at Vladivostok, has caused a removal of the Chinese from the city.

The recently imported goods on the wharves escaped destruction and are now protected by soldiers. The city is comparatively quiet, but there are rumors of more trouble for tonight, although Mr. Green expresses the opinion that there is no foundation for the reports.

DYING BOY ACCUSED SLAYER BUT FORGAVE

M. Howarth Tells Pitiful Tale of Son's Death.

Boy Said Everett Blackwood Shot Him Intentionally-Case Will be Continued This Afternoon.

(Special to the Star.)
MONCTON, Nov. 15.-The examination of Everett Blackwood on the charge of shooting Alfred Howarth on the 20th September last, continued in police court this morning. Nothing important was elicited.

Mathew Howarth, the dead boy's father, was the only witness. He said he was advised by Chief of Police Tingey that he could do nothing to Blackwood and consequently did not ask for his detention at time of the boy's death. Howarth substantially repeated his evidence of first day.

The boy, as he lay on the ground, said Blackwood lifted the gun and shot him. Later he asked the boy to forgive Blackwood, and the boy said, "I'll forgive him for Christ's sake." The boy also asked his father to pray for him, which he did, and to give his sister Lydia his playthings.

The case will be continued this afternoon.

HIS WIFE SPENT THE RENT MONEY.

Queer State of Affairs Revealed by a Suit for Rent Owning for Five Years.

The winning ways of Mrs. Captain Burpee Dickson have, according to a complicated case that was aired in the police court this morning when Mr. Holder brought suit against Captain Burpee Dickson for a quarter's rent amounting to $21.25 which he refused to pay.

When she paid the second quarter in November she won the alderman over saying that she would pay one quarter's rent $21.25 and would get the other quarter later. She did not want her husband to know that she had not paid the rent and spent the money, and to help her out in this respect the alderman acceded to her request and gave her a receipt in full.

The quarter's rent due in February, 1905, was paid by Captain Dickson, and the alderman did not mention what she had said to him. On April 20th Mr. Dickson paid another quarter's rent. The alderman said he expected the woman to keep her promise and pay for two quarters rent but she only paid him for one quarter after she received a receipt in full.

When she found he was only getting half the amount he expected to get he asked Mrs. Dickson to return him the quarter's rent she refused saying it was all right.

The Dickson home was broken up a few days later and when Captain Dickson returned home from a sea voyage he had a talk with the alderman regarding a dispute about the quarter's rent and said if he owed it he would pay it. It has been five years since the alderman saw the defendant and seeing him in the city last week had him arrested for the amount he claims he due him.

Captain Dickson, in giving evidence, said that he thought all the bills paid, and after his home was broken up he found receipts among his wife's papers for the last three quarters that he had the Holder house rented, and each receipt was signed by the plaintiff for rent received in full and to date. He had a conversation with Alderman Holder some years ago, and told the alderman if he could show that the amount was due him he would pay. At that time the alderman said he would look into the matter and that if he had received the money he must have lost it out of his pocket.

Magistrate Hittche went into the case very fully, and said that according to the evidence in the case he would give judgment in favor of the defendant, providing the plaintiff did not ask for a non-suit.

Alderman Holder asked for non-suit, saying that he would try the case over again, and his request was granted. He will therefore pay the costs of the court and bring the case up again.

In conversation with Capt. Dickson afterwards Alderman Holder said he was not satisfied and would try it again. "Then," said Captain Dickson, "I'm not through, and will sue you for false arrest."

From the present outlook the case promises to become far more interesting before it is finished.

Capt. Dickson stated to the court that his wife could not appear to give evidence, as she was away in Boston.

DID A KING'S SON DIE IN ST. ANDREWS?

Mystery of Charles Joseph Briscoe's Birth.

May Be Explained By Recently Discovered Proof of the Marriage of King George IV.

The recently discovered proofs that George IV was married to Mrs. Fitzherbert Maria Anne Smythe before his accession to the throne and the report that there was a male child who emigrated to America, leads the St. Andrews Beacon to believe that this child was a resident of St. Andrews where he died 51 years ago.

The discovery, says the Beacon, may furnish a clue to the mystery surrounding the life and death of Mr. Charles Joseph Briscoe, who resided in St. Andrews for many years and was commonly reported to be the illegitimate son of King George the Fourth. Mr. Briscoe was connected with the Imperial customs while here. He left several daughters as issue, one of whom was married to the late David Sharkey Kerr, of St. John. It was thought that before he died he would clear up the mystery connected with his birth, but he carried the secret to the grave with him, leaving directions that after the lapse of many years his grave should be opened, when the secret would be made revealed. His wishes were carried out a few years back, but the papers that were supposed to contain the hidden secret had crumbled to dust.

AUSTRALIA MAKING A CIGARETTE CRUSADE.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 14.-The efforts that are being made in various states to stem the widespread cigarette smoking evil have been at the height of intensity lately in consequence of the introduction by C. Tucker, M. P., in the South Australian house of assembly, a bill to prevent the sale and manufacture after July 1, 1906, of "cigarettes, cigarette tobacco, or cigarette papers within the states of South Australia." The principal clauses of the bill are simple, drastic, and few in number. They are:

"Any police officer authorized by a warrant signed by a justice of the peace may enter any premises which it is suspected are used for the making or manufacture of cigarettes or cigarette tobacco, or for the sale of cigarettes or cigarette tobacco, and may upon such entry seize and detain any cigarettes, cigarette tobacco, or cigarette paper found upon such premises."

"Upon the hearing of such an offence committed against the provisions of this act, the averment of the prosecutor or plaintiff in such information shall be deemed to be proved in the absence of proof to the contrary."

"Any person who commits a breach of this act shall be liable in event of a first offence to a penalty of not exceeding $100, and in event of any subsequent offence a penalty of not less than $100 and not exceeding $200."

It is doubtful whether the bill will pass. Nevertheless, public opinion is beginning to take such alarm at the spread of the cigarette evil that some heroic experiment of this kind is quite within the line of practical possibilities within the next few days. Boys of nine and ten openly smoke cigarettes with evident gusto in all the cities.

DR. J. W. DANIEL

Dr. J. W. Daniel was the first witness sworn: I arrived at the Queen's rink shortly after ten o'clock on the evening of the 30th, in response to a summons from a brother of the deceased. The young man was dead when I arrived. I examined the body carefully the next day, when Dr. Bentley and I made a post-mortem examination. When the upper half of the skull was removed considerable bulging of the dura mater was visible. When that was divided a large quantity of venous blood escaped. The effusion of blood was the only evidence of injury to the brain. The other organs of the body, including the heart and lungs, were found to be in a pretty healthy condition. There was a small red dot in the right ventricle of the heart which probably formed during the last moments of life. The clot was of recent formation. Compression of the brain caused by the effusion of blood was, in my opinion, the cause of death. A blow on the chin or other violence applied to the head might have produced the injury which caused the effusion. O'Regan's staggering might have been due to concussion of the brain, or the paralytic effect resulting from compression. In the case of the deceased the effusion of blood was very profuse and was sufficient to put out of action all the nerve centres. It would have been impossible for the deceased to have had the effusion found previous to entering the ring. Had such been the case he could not have fought as he is described as having done for six rounds.

Cross-examined by A. W. Macrae, the witness said that the effusion could not have existed before he entered the ring. Had the effusion existed before he entered the ring the tongue or the olfactory nerves might have been affected. The effusion might have been produced by a blow on the head. A blow of sufficient force to cause the rupture of the venous system found might have been struck without bearing any

The Cigarette Factory on Prince William Street Will Be Closed.

The American Tobacco Company, which is probably the largest tobacco house in the world, has bought out the Imperial Cigarette Co. of this city. Abraham Isaac, the head of the latter concern, when seen yesterday said the sale had been made, and in future the American Tobacco Co. would supply the various brands which the local company have been putting on the market. They will not, however, manufacture here, but will discontinue the works on Prince William street and supply the goods from their upper Canadian factory.

Mr. Isaac will still continue the manufacture of cigars, and on or about January 1st will remove his stock and machinery to the newly acquired property on Princess street (formerly known as the Morley Conservatory of Music), where he will manufacture on a much larger scale than at present.

The removal of the cigarette factory from here will throw quite a number of hands out of employment, though the enlargement of the cigar factory will mean an increase in the number of employees at work there.

Schooner James Parker Washed by Terrors Seas on Way From Bangor to Port Chester.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 15.—With her ensign flying union down, with Mrs. William F. Davis, the captain's wife, and two members of a bearded crew landed to the deckhouse, and with Captain Davis tied to the wheel in water that continually broke over him, trying to keep the craft head-on to the sea, the Fall River schooner James Parker, from Bangor, Me., for Port Chester, N. Y., was picked up in a leaking condition off Brenton's Reef today by the tug Solitaire and the U. S. torpedo boat Dahlgren. Mrs. Davis, with the two members of the crew, Captain Lewis and Manuel Fernando, were taken from their precarious position by the launch Columbia, which stood heroically at his post, and required medical aid as soon as they were safely landed at Newport. Captain Davis stood heroically at his post, and required medical aid as soon as they were safely landed at Newport. Captain Davis stood heroically at his post, and required medical aid as soon as they were safely landed at Newport.

The Parker, with 121,000 feet of lumber, was bound from Bangor for Port Chester, N. Y. She encountered a heavy southeast gale about two miles south of Brenton's Reef lightship. There was heavy sea running and nearly every wave swept the schooner's deck. One huge sea smashed into the cabin, sweeping out Mrs. Davis, who was prevented from being carried overboard only by grasping the casing of the door. The pumps were manned, but could make little progress in keeping down the water in the hold and they soon broke down. When the schooner began to settle, Captain Davis ordered Lewis and Fernando to the wheel, he tried to keep the schooner under way until aid should reach him. The distress signals were seen by a tugboat, which came to the rescue. The schooner was picked up by the tug Solitaire and the U. S. torpedo boat Dahlgren. Mrs. Davis, with the two members of the crew, Captain Lewis and Manuel Fernando, were taken from their precarious position by the launch Columbia, which stood heroically at his post, and required medical aid as soon as they were safely landed at Newport.

Cross-examined by A. W. Macrae: I do not know the rules that prevail here with reference to boxing. I cannot recall having seen a vicious ring fight in the fourth round. The hearing was adjourned until Friday evening at half-past seven.

STANLEY TAYLOR.

Stanley Taylor was the next witness. I was present at the bout in the Queen's Rink. The referee introduced the deceased and Northrup to the crowd. The men had seconds. The men both hit in the clinches. In every round some of the rubs were rather vicious. I never saw any clinching in any other bout. When O'Regan received the blow on the chin his head went back. He received more than three blows on the head. I do not remember the deceased getting struck in the sixth round. The deceased finished so strong in the fifth round that I was surprised to see him collapse so suddenly in the sixth.

Cross-examined by A. W. Macrae: I do not know the rules that prevail here with reference to boxing. I cannot recall having seen a vicious ring fight in the fourth round. The hearing was adjourned until Friday evening at half-past seven.

O'BRIEN LET GO.

Quebec Authorities Sent No Word About the Young Man Who Had Deserted.

James O'Brien, who has been in custody at the central station here for some days at the instance of the Quebec military authorities, was given his liberty yesterday. The escort from the military authorities which arrived here from Quebec to take O'Brien back found to their amazement that he was the wrong man. He never was in the name of the deserter for whom the police had been notified to be on the watch. O'Brien had been in jail here also, but he was never sworn in. Nevertheless, when he was arrested he admitted being a deserter, probably in the belief that enlistment was all that was necessary to qualify him as a member of the garrison. As the chief of police received no reply from Quebec as to whether this James O'Brien was wanted or not, he gave him his freedom yesterday. It was a curious mix-up.

THRILLING EXPERIENCE OF YALE STUDENTS.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 15.—After spending 12 hours in a small boat, a mile off Branford, in Long Island Sound, Harold F. Damon of Honolulu, Wm. Baxter, Jr., of Wilmington, Del., and W. H. Courson of Scranton, Pa., three Yale students, were rescued after 11 o'clock tonight from their perilous position by Captain Edward Baldwin of Branford, who put out from that place in a naphtha launch. The three students seemed little the worse for their day's experience, and when they landed on shore said they had had a fine time.

BEST OF LUCK.

"Ray" queried the man who makes a specialty of asking fool questions, "do you believe that horseshoes over your door brings you luck?"

"Sure!" replied the lawyer. "I haven't fallen on my head since I put it there."

GIGANTIC CLEARANCE OF WINTER COATS AND JACKETS!

FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

STARTS TOMORROW!

From $1.75 to $7.50 Each

$7.50 THREE-QUARTER LENGTH COATS—ALL VERY STYLISH.

A STYLISH COLLECTION OF THIS SEASON'S FANCY TWEEDS in Light, Medium and Dark colors, having Pleated Backs, Fancy Collars and Cuffs, Patch Pockets, Ornate Stitching, Graceful Drapes, with and without Belts at back.

ALSO, a number of Novelty Tweed Effects in the Again-Popular Hip and Over-Hip lengths. Like the longer shapes, these coats embrace about all the style features.

$6.75 BLACK SHORT JACKETS, PLAIN AND BRAIDED

LADIES WHO PREFER THE SOMBRE SHADE IN WINTER OUTER CLOTHING, have a notable opportunity afforded them in this lot of Hip and Over-Hip coats. Plain and Braid-trimmed in Cheviots and Beavers. Well tailored.

$6.00 THREE-QUARTER TWEEDS IN PREVAILING COLORS.

ANOTHER UP-TO-DATE GROUP, WHICH INCLUDES the patterns seen on the most stylishly-dressed women. Browns, Greens and Mixtures. Fancy Trimmings. Smart in general effect. This season's goods, all of them.

$5.00 MORE TWEEDS IN THE THREE-QUARTER SHAPE.

TO ADEQUATELY DESCRIBE THE MANY COATS WOULD BE BEWILDERING, for they represent to the fullest extent the numerous Trimming Schemes, Color-combines and Tailoring Effects of the year. This lot is as good an assortment as any moderate buyer would want.

ALSO, LACK CHEVIEG AND REAVER CLOTH JACKETS in the Hip and Over-Hip lengths. Fancy Trimmings, some with less decoration than others. AS WELL, AS HIP AND OVER-HIP JACKETS in Fancy Tweeds. Variety of color mixtures, and nice range of designs.

$3.75 HIP JACKETS IN BLACK AND FANCY TWEEDS.

SHORT LENGTHS PREDOMINATE IN THIS LINE of garments, but visitors to the sale will be surprised at the value there is in them. Ordinarily—and in other stores at present—they sell at a considerable advance on the figure we ask. The Tweeds offer a good variety.

$2.75 SHORT BLACK JACKETS, ALSO IN THREE-QUARTERS.

AGAIN THE PRICE IS LOWERED BUT QUALITY REMAINS. It is too long a story to tell just here, but you can come and see for yourselves tomorrow, that they are fashionable and worth much more money.

A FEW BLACK CAPES FOR ELDERLY LADIES will be let go at this price also, as there happens to be but a half dozen or so of them. Plain and prettily braided.

$2.00 HIP JACKETS IN GREY, BLACK AND NAVY BLUE.

THE SCARCITY OF THESE PARTICULAR COATS SUGGESTS A STILL DEEPER CUT in price to ensure the complete selling of them. Modish cut, Good Trimmings, and Solid Comfort in every one. Great knockabout jackets.

$1.75 BLACK AND GOOD GREYS IN THE SHORTER LENGTHS.

THIS IS THE LOWEST PRICE IN THE LIST, and we think the smallest ever asked by a reputable house in St. John, for Good-Wearing, New Jackets. Former prices have been entirely ignored—they were simply tumbled into the whirl of bargains, as it were.

CHILDREN'S REEFERS,
3-4 and 7-8 COATS,
From $1.00 to $6.75. All New

MANCHESTER ROBERTSON ALLISON LIMITED.

HARRIMAN GIVES J. H. HYDE THE LIE.

Denies Point Blank Former Vice President's Charges.

Declares He Never Suggested an Ambassadors-ship for the Young Man, But Says Latter Solicited His Influence

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—E. H. Harriman, chairman of the board of directors of the Union Pacific railway, former member of the board of directors of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, and connected with many railroads and financial institutions, the former friend of James H. Hyde, against whom the latter charged acts of an unfriendly nature in his testimony yesterday, was one of the chief witnesses before the Armstrong committee on insurance investigation today. Mr. Harriman was called immediately after recess and his testimony was a series of denials of the charges made by Mr. Hyde. Contrary to Mr. Hyde's statement, Mr. Harriman said Mr. Hyde came to him about a year ago and asked him to use his influence to have him appointed ambassador to France. Mr. Harriman said he would speak to President Roosevelt when he saw him, but added that he did not recommend Mr. Hyde for the post.

Upon Mr. Hyde's testimony relative to the settlement of the Odell suit being read to him, Mr. Harriman denied that he had suggested to Mr. Hyde any danger of a repeal of the charter of the Mercantile Trust Company, directly or indirectly, and stated that Mr. Hyde came to him and asked him to use his influence with Mr. Odell toward a settlement of the suit.

Mr. Harriman explained that he wanted Mr. Hyde's individual signature to the syndicate agreement of the $500,000 Union Pacific pool because syndicate wants a corporation as a member. He justified this because it was difficult to guard confidences when more than one individual represented the same interest.

He denied that he ever advised Mr. Hyde to sell his stock until after the report of the Frick committee, and said he had offered to subscribe $500,000 to assist Mr. Hyde in retaining his stock.

Mr. Harriman said that early in the morning he had been called by Mr. Hyde from attacks and had advised him to move the adoption of the Frick report, telling him that he would stand by him through thick and thin.

Mr. Hyde was the first witness of the day to tell of four offers for his stock, besides that of Mr. Ryan, to whom he sold. These offers were made by Mr. Prick and Mr. Harriman, by George Gould, by Gage E. Tarbell, representing a syndicate, and by George Young. These were made verbally, and the largest was made by Mr. Young, former president of the U. S. Mortgage & Trust Co., who offered $1,000,000. Mr. Hyde said he declined all these offers, because he did not think it the best interests of the society to accept any of them.

DEATH OF WM. MCCLARY.

ST. CATHERINES, Ont., Nov. 15.—William McClary, a former member of parliament for Welland county, died at the hospital here this morning, after an illness of several weeks.

Mr. McClary was born at Norold, Ont., in 1853, and was educated at the public and grammar schools, with a business course in Toronto.

In 1877 he married Jennie, a daughter of the late J. T. Ewart, Esq., deceased. He was a lumber merchant and had been councillor, reeve, and mayor of Thorold and warden of the county of Welland. He sat in the legislative assembly of Ontario from 1890 to 1894. He was first returned to parliament at the general elections of 1898, defeating W. M. German, by whom he was defeated in 1900.

FREDERICTON NEWS.

FREDERICTON, Nov. 15.—The death occurred last evening at Oromocto, after only a few days' illness, from pneumonia of Mr. Gratz Gratz at the age of 56. He leaves six brothers and three sisters. The deceased caught cold last Friday while attending his mother's funeral and never rallied.

F. E. Nowlan has resigned his position of manager of the Tarkenton House and expects to leave next week for Florida.

A local lumberman estimates that there will be about thirty-three million feet of lumber hung up in the river this season. There is about eight million below Grand Falls and twenty-five million above that point. Cushing & Co., Randolph & Baker, John Kilburn and W. H. Cusins are the principal owners. The lumber below the falls is in great danger of being lost.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the Majestic arrived from Gagetown. Capt. Chas. McLean stated that they found for all the way from Gagetown. It varied in thickness from one-half to three-quarters of an inch. The boat was delayed somewhat by the dense vapor which rose from the ice.

The first river boat to arrive here during the past season was the Champlain, which came up on the 19th of April, followed the next day by the Majestic. The Victoria did not come on until late in the season. She made a total of sixty-four round trips and is through for the season. The Champlain succeeded by the Pokanoket have made a total of 72 round trips and the Pokanoket is to leave for St. John tomorrow morning at the regular hour.

Fredericton and will come through if there is enough freight. This will be the last trip of the season. Miss Mabel Maxwell, daughter of Robert Maxwell, M. P. P., of St. John, who has been visiting Mrs. James Higgins for several weeks past, returned home today.

THE HUMAN EYE AS A CAMERA.

Roman Scientist.

ROME, Nov. 14.—An astounding discovery has been made by a distinguished Roman ophthalmologist. Readers of the press will remember it relating the assassination of Signor Bianchi, one of Italy's best known criminal lawyers, who was defending Captain Modugno, at Perugia, on a charge of wife murder at the beginning of last month. Professor Martini, in order to experiment with an improved ophthalmoscope invention of his, obtained the permission of the authorities to examine the eyes of the young university student Casale, who confessed the murder of Signor Bianchi. By means of his instruments the professor affirms that he discovered a perfect profile of the murdered lawyer at the back of the retina of Casale's right eye, so clear was it that he was able to discern the exact position of Bianchi, the precise expression of his physiognomy at the moment of assassination.

Perceiving no impression in the left eye, Professor Martini infers that the assassin approached Bianchi, not face to face, but sideways, gashing his neck with a razor, from other indications, which will be brought into evidence at the trial.

Professor Martini is convinced that the struggle was exceedingly rapid and intense. Several endeavors to photograph the image on Casale's retina were fruitless.

Professor Martini maintains that the phenomenon is not a psychical, but undoubtedly a physical one. He says Casale confided to him that the murdered man's image tormented him with physical persistence ever since the perpetration of the brutal deed.

The professor's allegations concerning the human eye as a revealing of crimes has opened up columns of learned discussion in the Italian press. Professor Deane, of the University of Ghent, is quoted as testifying to the case of a woman who retained on the iris of both eyes images of certain numbers; also a Dr. Bourlon de Darnay as having photographed in a murdered baby's eye, the figure of a dog and the shadow of a hand raised to strike.

Professor Martini himself disclaims all novelty for his discovery, saying that recent experiments in the United States established the fact that fresh killed oxen sometimes preserve upon the retina snapshots of the human slayers.

MORE REQUESTS TO TARIFF COMMISSION

Corset and Brush Manufacturers and Others Heard Yesterday.

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—The tariff commission today heard the corset manufacturers. They asked ten per cent. duty on finished articles. Charles F. Love and James Gilchrist of Toronto, however, said that conditions had changed since the tariff was framed. Goods sold now were of much higher grade and most of the materials used in them were made in the United States. English mercerized goods did not suit, and in their opinion a duty of 25 and 35 per cent. was too high. They asked that a duty on all raw materials for corsets be reduced to 20 per cent.

E. C. Bock, speaking for the brush manufacturers of Canada, asked for a specific duty of 25 per cent. per dozen on brushes in addition to a duty of ad valorem now in force. Local manufacturers, he said, had to compete with prices from the States which shipped in although they were forbidden. Hon. Mr. Fielding promised that if the case of the officers of the country should be notified to see that this was stopped. It was, he said, against the dumping clause and restrictive clause on prison made goods. Arthur P. Johnson and Alphonso L. Jaynes, manufacturers of time recorders, asked for an increase in duty.

AMHERST ELECTION FOR TOWN COUNCILLOR

AMHERST, N. S., Nov. 15.—At the election today of a town councillor to serve fifteen months in the place of Coun. W. A. Ackley, who resigned on account of the pressure of private business, four candidates contested, namely, E. P. Coates, foreman of No. 2 shop of Rhodes, Curry & Co.; James C. Carter, contracting plumber; Henry Davis, contractor; W. S. Tait, sales agent of the Imperial Oil Co. The vote stands, Rhodes, 231; Carter, 248; Davis, 73; Tait, 45. As shown by the small vote polled out of the 1,450 votes on the list, general interest was not aroused by the contest. Three other citizens who were nominated without their consent, and publicly declined the honor, received a few votes each. They were C. C. Hewson, B. B. Black, and J. Shipley. Mr. Coates was the nominee of a committee from the workingmen's associations of the town. Mr. Davis appealed to the electors mainly as an opponent of the proposed scheme for providing for the maintenance of the poor on a farm lately purchased for the purpose. Half the members of the council will now represent organized labor, and all three are employees of Rhodes, Curry & Co.

CITY MAY ESTABLISH CARLETON LIGHTING PLANT.

Extension of North End Plant Also Under Consideration—City Officials Will Examine Boston Paving.

At the meeting of the sub-committee on lighting yesterday morning it was shown that the present contract with the Street Railway Co. expires next year. The present municipal plant in the North End is run at a much lower rate than charged by the company, and with a larger plant the cost will be proportionately decreased. It was decided that it was a good time to go in to the street lighting business. The meeting will be resumed this afternoon.

Besides the sub-committee of the safety board which dealt with the North End building, Director Cushing submitted an estimate of the cost of opening up a new street 115 feet long, from the head of Spring to Burpee avenue. The cost was estimated at $1,516, this however includes a sidewalk on both sides, fences, etc. The object is to have a short cut. The committee will report at next meeting of board of works.

Some days ago an invitation was received by Ald. Christie, chairman of the board of works, and Director Cushing from the Bittulthie Paving Co. of Boston, asking them to visit the factory there. Ald. Christie is unable to accept, but Ald. Frink and the director will go. They leave here on Friday evening and will with representatives from many other provincial towns, go through the company's factory and see the process of making this pavement. They will also be taken to several of the smaller towns around Boston where the pavement has been in use for the past few years, to observe how it stands the weather. This is not the same bittulthie pavement that was offered to the city some time ago.

Ald. Frink and the director will also spend some time in looking into ferry affairs while they are away and picking up any information which may be of value here.

SHOT HIMSELF THROUGH GAS PIPE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—It was a unique method that G. H. Gerken, a twenty-five year-old youth, employed to render the sound of the revolver, which he shot and killed himself with in the Park Avenue Hotel sometime yesterday.

Lying on the bed he had taken a piece of gas pipe, fifteen inches in length, and after pulling one end of it over the muzzle of the pistol, had placed the other end in his mouth. He then fired and the bullet carried away part of his head.

Gerken, who was a mining man, and but recently here from the West, registered at the hotel on October 20. Nothing was heard from him today, and when a maid tried to enter the room she was unable to do so. Reporting the matter to the office, the clerk sent a porter to investigate. The porter managed to get into the room through the transom and found Mr. Gerken lying on the bed partly undressed, with the gas tube sticking in his mouth.

According to the hotel people, Gerken appeared to be suffering from lack of funds. His mother and three brothers lived at No. 1,624 Jackson avenue, the Bronx.

Yesterday afternoon the Knights of Columbus exemplified the first and second degree to over seventy applicants for membership.

In the evening the third degree was worked to sixty old applicants and at 11:30 o'clock refreshments were served. W. J. Mahoney, grand knight, stated last evening that he had just received from the national council the territorial liberty of the maritime provinces. This appointment carries with it complete control of all matters and all councils, thus making St. John practically the headquarters of the Knights of Columbus in the maritime provinces. Mr. Mahoney stated also that he was highly satisfied with the manner in

"And I'd do that, if I didn't land a dollar," said Porter. "And, it hurt me more to see the nifty banged about in the rack than it did giving up the money."

The trainer smiled. With him this was unusual. There was a popular superstition that he never smiled except when one of his horses won. But his heart expanded at Porter's words, for he, too, was fond of the little mare. Then Porter spoke again, abruptly, and fast, as though he feared he might change his mind. "They downed me last trip, Dixon—I guess I'm getting a bit slow in my paces; and you do just as you like—arrange with Boston Bill if you think it's good business. He makes a specialty of winning races, not pulling horses, and we need a win, too, I guess."

"Thank you, sir. Well, land that means, an' praise the sharp divison'll take a tumble. I'll bet a dollar they'll go for The Dutchman—he ran a great race the other day, an' he's in the Eclipse—if they start him. Lucetta's right on edge, she's lookin' for the key hole, an' may go back if we don't give her a race. We'd better get the money for the oat bill while it's in sight. She oughter be a long price in bettin', too," continued Dixon, meditatively. "The public soon sour on a beaten horse. You'll have a chance to get even."

"I don't like that part of it," muttered Porter. "I'm in the black books now. People have no reason at all—no sense, they've got it into their heads that dirty job was of my making, and if the nifty starts at ten to one, and I win a bit, they'll howl."

"You can't make a success of race, sir, an' run your stable for the public—they don't pay the feed bill." "Perhaps you're right, Dixon," answered Porter.

For immediate financial relief Porter knew that he must look to Lucetta—no other horse in his stable was ready to win, but more immediately he must arrange certain money matters with his banker, who was Philip Crane. To Porter, Crane had been a tolerant financier, taking them as his honest liability as a security, not as what Ringwood had been of late as a tight-fisted miser.

So that day, following his conversation with Dixon, the master of Ringwood had an interview with his banker, Mr. Philip Crane. It was natural that he should speak of his prospects—his hopes of winning the Eclipse with Lucetta, and, corroboratively, mention her good trial.

"I think that's a good mare of yours, Mr. Porter," said Crane, sympathetically. "I only race, myself in a small way, just for the outside with a few givers, you know, so I'm not much of a judge. The other horse you bought—the winner of the race, I think, Lausanne—will also help you all right, I should say."

Porter hesitated, uneasily. He disliked to talk about the matter behind his back, but he knew that Langdon trained for Crane, and to give the banker a friendly word of warning, he knew nothing of the latter's manipulation of the trainer.

With a touch of rustic quaintness he said, with seeming irrelevance to the subject, "Have you ever picked wild strawberries in the fields, Mr. Crane?" "I have," answered the other man, showing no surprise at the break, for life in Brookfield had accustomed him to disjointed deals.

"Did you ever notice that going down wind you could see the berries better?" "The trainer hides things," quipped Crane. "I have," answered the other man, showing no surprise at the break, for life in Brookfield had accustomed him to disjointed deals.

"Just so," commented Porter; "and when a man's got a trainer he's nearly always working up wind with him." "The trainer hides things," quipped Crane. "I have," answered the other man, showing no surprise at the break, for life in Brookfield had accustomed him to disjointed deals.

"Some do. But the outsiders walking down wind see the berries best." "And the banker pondered for a minute, then he said, 'Those garden are the berries in Mr. Porter, yours or mine?'"

"Well, you've always been a good friend of mine, Mr. Crane," Porter answered, gravely. "I see," said the other, meditatively; "I understand. I'm much obliged. If I thought for an instant that any trainer wasn't dealing perfectly straight with me, I'd have nothing more to do with him—nothing whatever."

Crane sat looking through the open window at John Porter as the latter went down the street. About his thin-lipped, square-faced mouth hovered an expression that might have been a smile, or an intense look of interest, or a touch of avaricious ferocity. The gray eyes peeped over the wall of his lower lids, and in them, too, was the unfathomable something.

"Yes," he repeated, as though Porter still stood beside him, "if Langdon tried to deceive me, I'd crush him. Poor old Porter with his story of the strawberry! If he were as clever as he is honest, he wouldn't have been stuck with a horse like Lausanne. I told Langdon to get rid of that quitter, but I almost wish he'd found another buyer for him. The horse isn't pretty strong in that Porter blood. How the girl said that line."

"And a hush came over the clamorous mob; Like a babe on his neck it was sobbing."

a man who tempered his passion for racing with common sense. And it would pass from Porter's hands right enough—Crane knew that. "But might call it ill luck, but he, Crane the banker, knew it was the lack of something, the inability to make money. "Made music to me on Crusader." "Yes, that was it. With the Porters it was single of spurs, and pride of the horse. All very fine in theory, but racing, as he looked at it, was a question of proper odds, and many other things connected with the betting ring.

Why did the girl, Althea, with her shining eyes creep into his mind. Perhaps it was because she was so different from the woman who was always steeped in superstition. Of the one there was only the memory of an unmodulated voice and oppressive perfume; in truth, of the other there was not much more—just a pair of big, blue-gray, honest eyes, that somehow stared at him fearfully, and withal, with a great sweetness.

Crane suddenly chuckled in dry disapprobation of himself. Grossly enough, all at once he remembered that he was forty—that very day forty. He ran his hand over his waistcoat, dipped two fingers into his pocket and drew out a cigar. Ordinarily the face of an alabaster Buddha was mobile and full of expression compared with Crane's. His mind worked behind a mask, but it worked with the cleanest precision of clockwork. When his thoughts had crystallized into a form of expression, Crane was very apt to be exactly right in his deductions.

He was drifting off, musingly enough, all at once he remembered that he was forty—that very day forty. He ran his hand over his waistcoat, dipped two fingers into his pocket and drew out a cigar. From desiring the farm, incessantly save for the curdling smoke that streamed lastly upward from his cigar, one might have thought the banker fast asleep in his chair, so still he sat, while his mind labored with the question of a spinning top. He had won the race had helped Ringwood's victory, and brought Ringwood nearer his coveted goal. If Porter failed to win the Eclipse, his finances would be in a pitiable state; he might even have to give up his good life. Why should he risk his good life for a horse? Porter's race had helped Ringwood's victory, and brought Ringwood nearer his coveted goal. If Porter failed to win the Eclipse, his finances would be in a pitiable state; he might even have to give up his good life. Why should he risk his good life for a horse?

like to have anything—well, I don't want my name associated with anything shady, you understand, Langdon? You are to buy The Dutchman as cheap as you can, and run him as your own horse in the Eclipse. I think Porter's mare will win it, so we needn't lose anything over The Dutchman."

Langdon started. With all his racing sense he was a babe. The smooth, complacent-faced man in front of him made him realize this.

"But," he gasped, "there was a row over Lausanne's race. If The Dutchman runs in my name, an' a lot o' folks play him it's dollars to doughnuts he'll be a kick. I can't take the chances of being had up by the Stewards."

"Wait a bit," replied Crane, calmly, "supposing Porter's mare worked five and a half furlongs in a row, how would she go in the Eclipse?"

"She'd win in a walk, unless The Dutchman was at his best when he might give her an argument."

"I'll be doing Porter a good turn to-day, if I thought The Dutchman could be made to win. I'd make him win, if he never carried the saddle again," declared Crane, almost fiercely. "I don't care a difference to me all on a sudden now! Trouble is you have to put it in to get it out. Costs more to come to, there's folks I know has silver spoons made of it more'n 200 years ago. But, bless you, then spoons cost more'n gold. There's gold, too. Didn't ye know it? That Californian fellow panned some gravel out, I heard say, an' got what he called a color. But the better it'll be for you, an' an' y'arbs I do know I'll keep for the other color. As long as the bloodroot comes, an' the marshmallow, an' the long leaf of the dock that makes a most health'ly salve, an' burdock for blisters, an' cranberries to draw out cancers, other folks may have their silver. But you an' Grace want silver, just keep to work. An' the sooner ye get this silver maggot out'n yer brain the better it'll be for you. You got a growin' business, you're poplar, an' it ain't more'n a mile's walk mornin' to the bank, an' you can't get no use yer well. My kin! Here's spring for sure! Here's a mournin' bride! And, all excitement, the old naturalist took his stick, button and halting and slipping and stumbling, but making sure of the beautiful butterfly. Captain Harding looked on and wondered how a reasonable being could be contented with such a life—no better, he thought, than a mole's."

Harding, through some unknown freak of descent, had developed a great deal more worldly ambition than any other of his family. He had wanted to go to school when his sister Louisa preferred staying at home and darning with her mother, and he had read novels and taken a fashion paper, and on her marriage she had gone to housekeeping in an old weather-beaten house, and she had been content to something altogether finer. It was a pretty place, under a green hill, with great sycamores and a brook whose banks were lined with blue forget-me-nots. It had been built a little while ago, and it stood at night looking down over the valley, and in the light of day it was a picture of beauty. MR. BORDEN'S POSITION.

The attack upon Mr. Borden for accepting a salary for the services he renders the country as leader of the opposition is unfair and unreasonable.
There is just foundation for protest against the pensions to retired ministers and the increased senatorial death claims; there is room for argument against the increased indemnity to members of parliament; but for fair criticism of the law making leadership of the opposition a paid position we fail to see good foundation.

The salary hampers his freedom, says the disapproving resolution passed by the Westmorland Conservatives a couple of days ago. In reality, no leader of a parliamentary opposition in this country has occupied a more independent position than Mr. Borden does today.

A man must live, even though he be a political leader. Yet to do his work as it should be done he must devote his whole time to it. He cannot, under present conditions, be an efficient leader and devote enough time to private enterprises to furnish himself with the income necessary to meet the heavy expenses the position brings. Let his party pay him, say some. Is that conducive to independence? A leader who is dependent upon the voluntary contributions of his political friends places himself under the thumb of the contributors.

Laurier accepted money thus while in opposition, and so incurred debts of obligation which the country has had to pay in various ways and many times ever since he has held the reins of power. And who can measure the effect these creditors have had, through Laurier, upon the management of this country?

In contrast to this, Mr. Borden is dependent upon nobody for his subsistence. He is not paid by the government nor his own party nor any party but by the country whom he serves, just as the premier is. And his services are just as valuable. An efficient opposition is as necessary to the proper and economical management of the country as is a good government, and upon the energy and ability of its leader depends the opposition's effectiveness. It is just and fair that the country which profits by his services should pay for them. Unless it does, the man who holds such a responsible position must be independently wealthy or must be a beneficiary of the wealthy men of his own party, who do not contribute to his support without expecting some return.

In the present leader's case the position was accepted unwillingly, and at great personal sacrifice. Mr. Borden is at one of the ablest lawyers in Canada, and was in receipt of an income from his profession which ensured him wealth. After his defeat in the last federal election he strongly desired to return to private life, and consented to resume the onerous task only when forced to the belief that the welfare of the party and of the country demanded the sacrifice. The reward which was forced upon him by a united party, and the position was. Refusal and a determination to depend upon his private resources would not only have hampered his usefulness by distracting his energy from his political work, but would have created divisions among his followers in parliament which would have ruined the party's efficiency during the rest of the parliamentary term.
Under the circumstances attack from his alleged supporters comes unfairly and with bad grace, even if there were some reason for it.

MUNICIPAL LIGHTING.

It is characteristic of the city council to let go the opportunity to purchase an electric lighting plant with valuable attachments at a reasonable figure and then to begin the consideration of a proposition to start another plant, at greatly increased expense, in opposition to the one they refused to buy.

Undoubtedly the city's refusal to consider the Carleton company's offer some time ago was a blunder and undoubtedly the establishment of an efficient electric lighting plant on the west side now will cost considerably more than it would have if the opportunity referred to had been seized. But it will not cost so much as to have the lighting done by the company which is now in control and is certainly the best policy now open.

It is also encouraging to note that the energetic aldermen who compose the committee on lighting are considering at the same time an extension of the civic plant in the North End, which will enable it to furnish street lighting throughout the whole east side. The plan is certainly practicable and would undoubtedly prove profitable. Even with the present small plant the lights the city provides cost ten dollars a year each less than the railway company demands and with an enlarged and improved equipment this difference can be increased and, under proper management, a great saving effected.

R. B. Bennett, the defeated leader of the routed Conservative party in Alberta has announced his retirement.
Mr. Bennett has not hitherto acted as a "quitter" and it is to be hoped he will reconsider his hasty and not unnatural decision. He is a man of ability and energy and his retirement would be a loss to Canadian public life.

His defeat as an inexperienced leader fighting against expert tacticians thoroughly entrenched and with unlimited ammunition was no disgrace and should, to the right kind of a man, prove a stimulus to great effort next time.

Witte is showing the effects of the strain his new position certainly entails, says St. Petersburg dispatches.
A great deal hinges upon that man's health today. He is the chief barrier against a revolution in Russia, and if he falls disruption and anarchy are inevitable.

Apparently the popular sentiment against prize-fighting is not so great in Newfoundland as here. At a recent scrub in St. John between Jack Munro and a local pugilist, says a local paper: "There were no ladies in the audience but several who wished to watch the proceedings yet were afraid to enter, climbed on the window sills and saw the fight, without cost."

VAPOR AND BLUE.

(William Wilfred Campbell.)
Dressed with the azure of heaven,
Floored with a pavement of pearl,
Clothed all about with a brightness,
Soft as the eyes of a girl.

Girt with a magical girdle,
Rimmed with a vapor of rest,
These are the inland waters,
These are the lakes of the west.
Voices of slumberous music,
Spirits of mist and of flame;
Moonlight memories, left here
By gods who long ago came.

And, long fitting, left but an echo
In silence of moon-dim caves,
Where haze-wraps the August night
And the wild heart of October raves.

Here, where the jewels of Nature
Are set in the light of God's smile,
Far from the world's wild throbbing
And beat,

I will stay me and rest me a while;
And store in my heart old music,
Melodies gathered and sung
By the genius of love and of beauty,
When the heart of the world was young.

SEATS SELLING WELL.

Judging by the way seats were selling for the Monday night performance of Because She Loved Him So, to be given by the Harkins company at the Opera House, there will be a houseful of amusement lovers present when the curtain rises on the opening act of that sparkling comedy. Because She Loved Him So was written and staged with intention of providing good healthy and spontaneous laughter, and it has succeeded in doing this wherever it has been presented. At the same time the story of the play is not of the impossible sort, but is written on facts that are taking place every day the world over and these furnish amusement to the friends of the playwright and to the general public as well. In the play there is scarcely a dull moment, from the rise to the fall of the curtain and after the performance the audience will depart wearing the smile that won't come off. So confident is manager Harkins that Because She Loved Him So will make an immense hit that he is willing to audiences that he is willing to make his professional reputation on it and what that means the public knows, as no man knows the requirements of a St. John audience better than he does.
Don't put off until the last minute and then expect to secure your favorite seats. Secure them now.

PEARY SENDS RARE ANIMAL FOR CANADIAN CAMPERS' FEAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.-Lieutenant Commander Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., who is now in Arctic waters upon an exploring expedition, has sent to this city a strange Arctic animal, for which he has supplied a scientific as well as a proper name, and the semi-annual banquet of the Canadian Camp, which is to be held at the Hotel Astor, the mysterious beast will be served, roasted, for seven hundred diners.

"It may be found to have horns," is the only description or attempt at one, which the officers of the Camp will vouchsafe. According to the explorer the animal has never before been sighted by civilized people, and the particular specimen which is to delight metropolitan palates tomorrow was discovered and obtained by him in the remote wilds of Northern Canada.

It is the hope of the Canadian Camp,
the membership of which is restricted to persons of both sexes who have at some time camped within the Dominion, and who have distinguished themselves by notable results in the hunting of Prince Henry of Prussia, who had shot the animal in the Berlin Royal Zoo.

HARVARD MAY ABOLISH FOOTBALL.

BOSTON, Nov. 15.-That football will be abolished at Harvard this year was the statement made by Coach John Mahan of the Institute of Technology track team at a dinner given Tuesday night, at the Technology union by the alumni advisory council on athletics of the Institute, says the Herald. Mr.
Mahan said that he possessed "inside information" which enabled him to make the statement but he did not tell the origin.

"Tech men go into athletics for sport's sake only," said Mr. Mahan.
"The trouble in Harvard, today, is that athletics play too prominent a part, are a business and not a sport. Men in their senior and junior years, who have had enough athletics and wish to study are made to believe their duty to their college is to spend their time playing football."

DIAMOND ADVICE.

PUT YOUR MONEY INTO DIAMONDS.
Diamonds in your possession represent money-more money than you pay for them after you have worn them a while, for the advance in price is very marked and there is positively no danger of diamonds depreciating in value in our time. Of course it is always necessary to choose wisely and pay the right price when you make your selection; therefore it is essential that you should choose the gems at a responsible house and I have a record and a reputation I think enviable, and my very large stock of set and unset gems allows for the best selection in this city or province.

Respectfully yours

GRASS NEGLECT SOMEWHERE.

If the city or the I. C. R. people do not soon place a large electric light at the Grand Union Hotel corner something fatal in the form of an accident will surely happen. The only lights in the vicinity are the arc in front of the depot entrance, and a drop-arc half way across the railway tracks. In the other direction the North street corner is like a star after dark. Last evening a double team belonging to one of the express companies sped over the crossing as a rush of foot traffic was on, and several persons came within an ace of being hurled to the ground and run over. Coaches too, dash through the crowds, and also delivery teams. At night the risk is very great, all because of insufficient lighting. It seems as if the authorities are depending upon the rather uncertain light that comes from the hotel offices to make the way clear over this dangerous crossing; when so their economy may be turned into gross extravagance some day, when a jury in a damage suit decides that a lamp was needed at this spot.

When you use Ozone use "Celery King" with it. Whatever kind of Ozone you buy you will need to use "Celery King," which is a companion remedy to Ozone.

The purest form of Ozone is "Solution of Ozone (the coupon kind)." Each bottle contains about twice as much for your money as other brands, besides which each bottle contains a coupon entitling you to a package of "Celery King" free. This is a great advantage as you save money on the Ozone and also get the "Celery King" free which you would otherwise have to buy.

No other brand of Ozone contains these coupons. "Solution of Ozone (the coupon kind)" is fifty cents and the coupon for your drug store, including the coupon for the package of "Celery King." Take no other and if your drugstore does not carry it, write to the Public Drug Co., Bridgeburg, Ont.

"IT'S ONLY A COLD, A TRIFLING COUGH"

Thousands have said this when they caught cold. Thousands have neglected to cure the cold. Thousands have filled a Consumptive grave through neglect. Never neglect a cough or cold. It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

Is the medicine you need. It strikes at the very foundation of all throat or lung complaints, relieving or curing Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Sore Throat, and preventing Pneumonia and Consumption.

It has stood the test for many years, and is now more generally used than ever. It contains all the long healing virtues of the pine tree combined with Wild Cherry Bark and other potent remedies. It stimulates the weakened bronchial organs, allays irritation and subsides inflammation, soothes and heals the irritated parts, loosens the phlegm and mucus, and aids nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulations. Don't be lured into accepting an imitation of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cts.

Mr. Julius J. LaBrosse, Belle Cole, N.S., writes: "I was troubled with a bad cold and severe cough, which assumed such an attitude as to keep me confined to my house. I tried several remedies advertised but they were of no avail. At last I resorted to Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and one bottle cured me completely."

DID A KING'S SON DIE IN ST. ANDREWS?

"THE GRAVE REFUSED TO YIELD UP ITS SECRET."

In the issue of the Beacon of July 24, 1902, the following article bearing upon the opening of the Briscoe grave was published. The names of those who were present at the exhuming of the body were the deceased's grandson, Mr. John Kerr, of St. John, and the late Rev. Canon Kephum and the late Dr. S. T. Gove:

1892

Here awaiting the final resurrection rest the mortal remains of

CHARLES JOSEPH BRISCOE and ELIZABETH ANN

To whose memory this tablet has been erected by their children.

This corruption must put an incrimination and this mortal put on immortality.

In a sheltered corner of the ancient burial ground of Saint Andrews, protected by narrow wooden palings, stands a plain white marble tablet, which tells the above simple tale. Weather-beaten and moss-grown the stone is, but it still stands erect in marked contrast to many others about it. The inscription is plainly discernible.

To the wayfarer, who knows nothing and cares less of the early history of St. Andrews and of the occupants of the humble tomb, the story by the marble page has little meaning, beneath the grave there lies hidden from mortal eyes a romance of real life such as the novelist's pen has seldom written—a romance in which no less a personage than a king of England is alleged to have played a leading part.

The story has been closely guarded for many years, but with the death of the immediate members of the family the necessity for further concealment has been to a great extent removed.

Charles Joseph Briscoe was an Englishman by birth and was reputed son of King George IV., has mother being said to be one of the ladies of the court with whom he had fallen in love.

In order probably that he should be out of the reach of gossip of the court as there are now—he was appointed to a position in the Imperial Customs at St. Andrews, Capt. Grant being at the same time chief officer there.

There are few people now living who can remember Mr. Briscoe and who can recall him riding around the streets of St. Andrews in his scarlet hunting coat. He was a tall man, of an autocratic, imperious disposition; would brook no interference and kept himself aloof from the common people. His wife was a lady of much culture and refinement and had been at court in England before coming to this country. Upon her husband's demise she was under the necessity of supporting herself by teaching school. Some of the old people of the town were among her pupils. They can easily recall the stately dignified figure of the old lady as she appeared in her schoolroom, with a white ruffled Elizabethan collar about her neck and gold-headed cane in her hand.

It was generally expected that upon Mr. Briscoe's death the mystery surrounding his life would be revealed, but the secret was hidden in the grave, where so many secrets are hidden. His will, he left instructions that upon the death of the last of his children his grave should be opened, when papers would be found upon his body which would reveal the history of his life and make clear all that was doubtful concerning his birth.

It was nearly sixty years afterward that the last of the name passed from earth.

Then, in the presence of two St. Andrews gentlemen, (who have died within a few years) and a grandson of the deceased—who holds a responsible position in St. John—the grave was opened. But the prospect of enclosing the papers within a metallic or other suitable casket had not been taken, so that when the lid touched them they crumbled into dust, and the secret that had been so jealously guarded still remained the property of the tomb.

A medical portrait of the deceased's wife was found in the coffin and among the priceless treasures which the deceased's grandson has in his possession. It is somewhat faded, but long imprisonment in the grave, but the features are still discernible and can easily be recognized by those who knew the old lady.

SALVATION CAPTAIN ACCUSED BY GIRL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—After playing Salvation Army hymns on a cornet to the prisoners in the pen of the Manhattan Avenue Court this morning and exhorting them to be better men, Captain John Bloethe, of the gospel spreading army, pleaded guilty to the charge of deceiving pretty Mamie Gibbons, one of his lieutenants, by promising to marry her. Magistrate O'Reilly refused to accept the plea and held Bloethe in $1,000 bail for a hearing on Friday. As the Salvation Army captain could not produce the bail he was sent to jail.

According to his accuser's story, Captain Bloethe met Miss Gibbons last spring while conducting a campaign against Satan in Long Island City. The young woman fell in love with the evangelist and he made her one of his hussies. Their work brought them in daily contact with each other and Bloethe professed to return her love. It was agreed that they should be married some time in October. The man went back on his promise, however, and refused to marry her. Miss Gibbons promptly "took her troubles to court. She told her story to Magistrate O'Reilly last Saturday, and he issued a warrant for Bloethe's arrest. This warrant was served upon the Salvation Army captain last night by Policeman Carroll, of the Hamburg avenue precinct, at the conclusion of an open Bismarck meeting which Bloethe was conducting on the corner of Woodbine street and Broadway."

Bloethe submitted quietly to his arrest, but asked that he be allowed to keep the cornet which he was in the habit of playing during his meetings. The request was granted, and resulted in the Salvation Army meeting in court this morning. POWERS SEND ULTIMATUM TO SULTAN OF TURKEY.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—It was ascertained at the foreign office this afternoon that ambassadors of the powers at Constantinople today presented a joint ultimatum to the sultan. The ultimatum as presented in addition to the financial control of Macedonia demands a two years extension of the term of office of the Austrian and Russian civil agents and of the officers of the European Gendarmerie.

The sultan has been given twenty-four hours in which to reply. A refusal is expected and consequently all the powers, except Germany, which will not participate, are preparing to dispatch two vessels each to rendezvous at Piraeus in the course of the coming week. An Austrian admiral will command the international fleet.

The death took place yesterday morning at an early hour of Michael, eldest son of Robert and Nora King, aged 11 years and 6 months. Funeral Friday afternoon from his late residence, 148 Rockland Road.

Information has been laid with Justice Masson with regard to a disturbance created at Duck Cove on Saturday afternoon. D. R. Jack had been spending the day at the Cove on business in connection with his cottages there, and about half-past three in the afternoon was alarmed by the actions of a group of seven or eight boys, who were discharging a gun in a most reckless manner in his vicinity. Not realising the peril of danger involved, Mr. Jack remonstrated with them, and on their repetition of their act took away the firearm. The boys were not satisfied, however, and returned later with another rifle to give a repetition of their previous performance. Although they fired over his head, some of the shot came dangerously near to Mr. Jack's person, and having obtained their names, he laid a charge against them with the Fairville J. P. The case will be probably heard on Saturday. The boys are of all sizes, and all hail from Carleton.

The work at the Carleton salmon pond has all been wound up, and more than 7,000,000 eggs have been distributed among the different hatcheries. Mr. McCoskey, of the Grand Falls hatchery, left yesterday morning with the last of the eggs. This is a second batch and makes about 1,500,000 sent to Grand Falls. The results secured this year were remarkable, considering the losses met with by the disease which attacked many of the fish during the summer.

A large number of the members of the order accompanied the district officers on this visit and a pleasant evening was spent.

Canada's New Provinces Which Seek To Attract The Farmer

A New Settler's Farm House.

CANADA'S two new far-western provinces, Alberta and Saskatchewan, each larger in area than France, are attracting thousands of American settlers to their fertile plains.

Being immediately north of Montana and North Dakota, the territory, to which provincial government has just been given by the Dominion, comprises vast areas of rich wheat and grazing lands as can be found.

Railroads are being extended in different directions through this section, towns are springing up, and the great prairie, which a few years ago rarely witnessed the passing of man, are beginning to teem with life and industry.

An American army of invasion crosses the border at the rate of $5,000 a year. Other thousands come from the United States, and the Old World.

Every northbound train passing out of Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana carries farmers, investors, speculators, land agents and adventurers, all bound for this new and great Northwest.

Not only is this land-grasping rush welcomed by the Canadians, but they are urging an increase of American immigration.

Recently a magazine writer said: "One day the Valley of the Saskatchewan will mean as much to Canada as the Valley of the Mississippi means to the United States."

It requires no extraordinary gift of prophecy to foresee a wonderful future for this section of the great North-west, which, with the grain-growing States of the Union, is destined to be for many generations, and perhaps for all time, the wheat granary of the world.

So little known eight years ago that only forty-six Americans had sought homesteads there, the country is now being flooded by a remarkable tide of settlers. In 1901 the population of all that section was 158,345; now it is estimated to be over 500,000.

Until the Provincial Governments were established recently, that part of Canada lying between Manitoba, in the Great Lake region, and British Columbia, on the Pacific slope, was called the Northwest Territories.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT PROVIDED FOR.

It was divided into four territories: Alberta and Assiniboia bordered upon Montana and North Dakota; Saskatchewan lay north of Assiniboia, while Athabasca stretched its huge length across the top of both Alberta and Saskatchewan, reaching far upward into the western Hudson Bay region, where few but hunters and fur traders penetrate.

None of these four big territories ever had a government of its own. They were lumped together as the Northwest Territories, ruled, under the Dominion Parliament, by a Lieutenant Governor and an Executive Council.

The common capital was Regina, in Assiniboia.

Now these four original geographical and political divisions have disappeared from the map.

Their combined area has been divided into two provinces, or States, each of which will have its capital, its legislative assembly, its Lieutenant Governor and its representation in the Dominion Parliament.

Capital of the Eastern Province, or Saskatchewan, will be Regina. For a time at least Edmonton, which was in Athabasca, will be the seat of the government of Alberta, the Western Province.

Within ten years, it is estimated by Canadian officials, these new provinces, with Manitoba, will produce annually 250,000,000 bushels of wheat, 20,000,000 bushels of corn and 50,000,000 of barley, and that, too, without cropping more than a third of the tillable area.

After careful investigation, the government estimates the amount of desirable farm lands still unappropriated in what were the territories as follows: Assiniboia, 15,000,000 acres; Saskatchewan, 17,000,000 acres; and Alberta, 16,000,000 acres.

Only a part of the sparsely settled and little-known Athabasca district is suitable for agricultural purposes, much of it being covered with forests.

As now constituted, Saskatchewan has an area of 251,000 square miles, and Alberta 253,500 square miles. The population of each is estimated at 250,000.

RICH "WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD."

There are some 120,000,000 acres, or more, of rich wheat land in the new provinces.

over 800,000 square miles, of land available for free grazing in these provinces.

On this enormous extent of the country it is estimated that there are now about 200,000 head of sheep, 200,000 head of cattle and 175,000 horses pasturing.

Vast possibilities are thus open to the stock raiser and ranchman, while the rich black soil attracts the attention of the ambitious wheat grower.

"Agricultural chemists, who speak with authority," declared a recent writer, "assert that even the dark earth of central Russia, hitherto considered the richest soil in the world, must yield the palm to the rich, deep black soil of the Northwest Territories."

"The qualities and chemical ingredients needed for the production of the finest wheat are possessed in their finest state by these soils."

"Dry and healthy is the air. Fuel is cheap. In certain parts of the country the farmers have but to drive to the open coal banks along the Saskatchewan river and fill their wagons."

With such high praise there is little wonder that, a stable local government having been established, Alberta and Saskatchewan are rapidly filling up with home seekers from all parts of the world.

And the principal ingredient in this rising agency for the American farmer and cattlemen of the northern and middle West.

Many of them are moving north for the purpose of investment. Their condition in Canada will be far better than when they started on the prairies of the United States, and they will make money faster.

Thousands of American tillers of the soil who have been laboring for two or more decades have been making money only during the last ten years.

Beginning in Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois or Iowa with little or no capital, they passed through a long series of lean years, of financial depression, grasshopper invasions, drought devastations and other drawbacks.

Prosperity has lifted its smiling face upon them only within the last decade; but its smiles have been generous, and their bank accounts have grown.

Besides the investor, the American tenant farmer and the hired man are turning their eyes toward Canada as an agricultural Happy Land of Canada, full of promise.

In the better part of the American West the free lands are practically gone. Only the cattle country and the vast sections that must wait upon and depend upon irrigation remain.

Development and recent agricultural prosperity have forced upward the price of farm land in the great Western grain States. Good farms range from $40 to $100, and even more, an acre.

These prices place an almost insurmountable barrier in the way of the tenant farmer and the hired man who wish to set up for themselves. They also limit the investments in more lands of the farmers who have made money.

The new Canadian provinces land, that in its virgin state will produce immense crops may be had for the mere trouble of taking up, or, at any rate, for from five to fifteen dollars an acre. Here, then, is room for the investor as well as for the bona-fide settler.

From Washington county, Iowa, alone last summer went 250 farmers into this latest agricultural Utopia.

From other States a steady stream has been pouring northward. This will be interrupted by the winter, but in the spring it is expected to start again in even a larger way.

Thousands of the settling are men who have made small fortunes out of gifts of Uncle Sam's land, and are now anxious to repeat the process and fortune in Canada.

Five years ago a farmer took up, without cost, a homestead in North Dakota. Recently he sold this for $10,000, and straightway bled himself across the boundary to duplicate his performance. There are many like him.

Thousands of others, having sold their farms in the States at good prices, have invested the proceeds in larger tracts in the new provinces, where they can not only establish homes for themselves but for their children around them.

PEOPLED BY FORMER AMERICANS.

It is stated that there are places in Alberta and Saskatchewan where one may drive fifty miles without seeing any one except a former American citizen.

What effect will this invasion have upon the political future of Canada? In three years an immigrant acquires a vote there. It will not be long before a great army of men, formerly American citizens, will be voting in the ballot-boxes at Canadian elections.

The "Cape to Cairo" Railroad, which draws its length through boundless African wildernesses, over giant gorillas, past the habitations of the most primitive peoples and the fiercest beasts in the world, and is altogether a marvelous undertaking, has added to its remarkable features a unique type of locomotive.

The very nature of the Rhodesia railway, with its heavy grades and sharp curves, called for something unusual in motive power, and an English firm has supplied the need.

The new engine is a giant, weighing when ready for a trip, 125 tons, and being capable of drawing regularly twice the trainloads formerly hauled by the road's most powerful locomotives.

This engine is handled in practically the same way as is any other big machine. The driver sits in a room at the front of the engine, and by means of the regulator handle, and in the same manner is enabled to reverse both engines, put the brake on and reverse the running gear by one movement of each of the handles concerned. There is no difference in the method of lookout or of handling the engine, from the practice of ordinary locomotives.

From a technical standpoint it is a remarkable engine, too. An expert writer on the subject describes it thus: "This engine is divided into three main portions—the superstructure and two steam-driven trucks. The superstructure consists of boiler, coal bunker, water tanks and cab, which rest on two long girders, through which the two coupled wheels, by this means the whole weight of the engine is upon the coupled wheels, and is, on that account, available for adhesion. It can be accurately adjusted by means of a special spring connection, introduced at a selected position away from the centre of the bogie; and, as the wheel base of each engine is not more than eight feet six inches, the engine, which weighs eighty-one American tons, can pass round curves of three chains radius without causing the slightest injury to the road bed."

In addition to the advantage of traversing these severe curves, the line of pull from the engine itself is kept in a position which reduces the side resistance at the pulling end. Each bogie is in itself an engine, with a pair of cylinders, valve motion, brake, gear and running gear complete, and bears the weight of half of the superstructure on a recessed steel casting. There are bolts passing through slot holes in these castings which form a connection between the bogie and the superstructure, and a further security against an excess of movement is provided by the addition of check chains. The mechanical details have been carefully designed. The steam is carried from the front end of the boiler by means of ball-and-socket joints to each pair of cylinders. The exhaust of the front bogie is carried through the smokebox, and is sufficient to keep up a draught through the firebox, and so maintain the engine. The exhaust steam of the front bogie is passed into the atmosphere, but could be utilized either for the purpose of increasing the draught or for an exhaust steam injector, if required.

Each bogie has six wheels, coupled, each of four feet diameter; and two outside cylinders, of sixteen inches diameter by twenty-four inches stroke.

Other dimensions are: Heating surface, 1750 square feet; grate area, thirty-four square feet; internal diameter of boiler, five feet; length of boiler, thirteen feet four inches; thickness of boiler, nine inches; boiler pressure, 180 pounds per square inch; length of firebox, eight feet three inches; height from rail level to top of funnel twelve feet ten inches; height from rail level to centre of boiler, seven feet two inches; right wheel base, eight feet six inches; total wheel base, thirty-four feet. The engine tank has a fuel capacity of three tons of coal; the tender has a capacity of seven tons of coal and 1,555 gallons of water.

It is the pioneer days of railroading it was sometimes necessary for the conductor to run forward over the roofs of the cars to shout orders to the engineer. Traveling at night was generally avoided, though one road adopted the expedient of running ahead of the locomotive of a fire car loaded with sand, on which a bonfire was kept burning as a headlight.

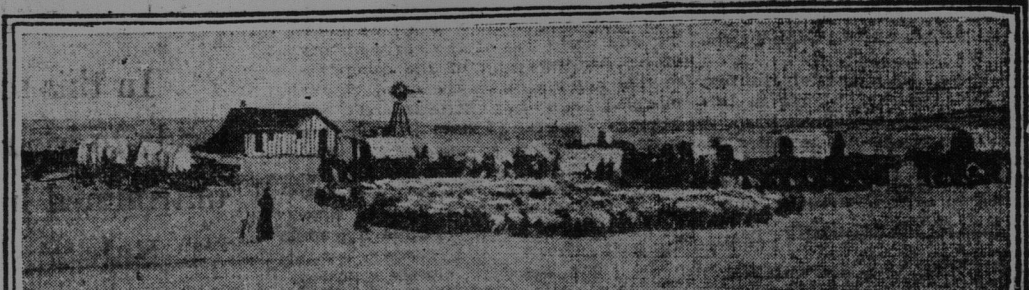

ANCIENT BOSTON TOLLHOUSE.

For the paltry sum of $5 the tollhouse, one of the many relics of bygone days in the city of Cambridge, which, during its existence has held probably many thousands of dollars, has been sold. The house stood for more than a century at the Cambridge end of the West Boston Bridge, but during the last few years had been so badly in need of repairs that it was more of an eyesore than a thing to be admired as having been handed down by our forefathers.

The house had been in disuse since 1828 and from the appearance of it at the time of its demolition one might readily believe that no repairs had been made upon it since that time. It is probable that, so great was the rejoicing when the West Boston Bridge was made a free bridge, there was no place in the hearts of Cambridge citizens for sentiment, and none arose in the hearts of their descendants to prompt them to preserve the old landmark. The tollhouse was first used when the West Boston Bridge, known as the "Great Bridge," was completed in 1793. No person was allowed to pass over without first visiting the tollhouse to pay the toll, which was demanded of him. In 1803 Messrs. May and collect the toll, and continued in that capacity until 1838, when the bridge was replaced by a new bridge—Boston Transcript.

NEWS OF SPORT.

FOOTBALL.

SCIENCE AND NOT BRUTE FORCE.
William T. Reid, Jr., head coach of the Harvard football team, has written to John D. Morrill, secretary of the Harvard Graduate Athletic Association the following letter which will be published in the Harvard Crimson:

"After several years of experience with inter-collegiate football, after careful consideration of the criticisms which have been made of the game and after many honest but fruitless efforts to change it so that criticism could be avoided, I have become convinced that the game as it is played today has fundamental faults which cannot be removed by any mere technical revision of the rules.

Although I am willing to admit that the necessary roughness of the game may be objectionable to some people, that appears to me to be a lesser evil than the fact that there is a distinct advantage to be gained by brutality and evasions of the rules, offences, which, in many instances, the officials cannot detect because they are committed when the players and the ball are hidden from the eyes of the umpire. For these reasons I have come to believe that the game ought to be radically changed.

"I therefore respectfully request your association to appoint a committee whose duty it shall be to make a careful investigation of the subject and to report such thorough alterations in the game as will remove the unfair advantages now obtained from violation of the rules, will put a higher premium on skill, make more merit and strength of less value, and will produce a more equitable and interesting sport."

MICHIGAN IS LIKELY TO SWEEP WESTERN GRIDIRON.
Michigan has shown in the games played so far this season that there is every possibility of her football team again being the western gridiron leader. Ann Arbor students expect a repetition of last year's record.

"It is no exaggeration to say that Michigan has developed one of the greatest defensive teams ever seen at Ann Arbor," said Coach Booth, of the Nebraska eleven, after his charges' recent defeat. "The line is like a stone wall, and with the secondary line of defense in case of necessity it is most difficult for any team to make its distance. Nebraska made her five yards once in the entire seventy minutes of play. No team has ever stopped Nebraska so effectively since I have been in charge of the team."

MACADAM BOY SHOT SISTER.

On Saturday last a very sad accident took place at Macadam Junction. A little fellow named Boy's, nine years of age, while trying to shoot a duck near his home, fatally wounded a younger sister, aged seven, who died shortly afterwards.

It appears that the young lad was playing out doors, when he saw a wild duck in the lake near the shore. He rushed into the kitchen, seized the rifle, and ran into the yard. While he was aiming at the bird, the little girl ran past, and received the contents of the rifle in the breast. Medical aid was summoned but all was unavailing—the girl was dead in less than three hours. The parents and the brother are overcome with grief at their loss, as she was the only girl and very bright for her age.—Prestonian Herald.

J. N. HARVEY,

Young Ladies Play a Very Exciting Game of Basketball Michigan Has a Wonderfully Strong Football Team.

"You're men are still lacking in attack, but practice will correct that. In another week or two the teams will be on edge for the keenest kind of a game."

Heston is missed in the backfield. Michigan has made no spectacular runs this season, excepting a few quarter-back dashes. It has been smash, smash! At times the monotony was relieved by halfback turns, around the ends, but the greatest gains were made on mass plays.

In the past the opinion prevails that Michigan runs up its high scores by end runs, yet the contrary is true. Even though Chicago beat Wisconsin 49, it is difficult to see how Stagg, the Windy City coach, hopes to turn the tables on Michigan. The Maroons revolve around Eckersall. Wisconsin knew this and played for the little quarter, yet he managed to kick a field goal, though Chicago was outplayed by the Badgers on straight football.

Judging by the showing of the Maroons and Badgers, Wisconsin is expected to give Michigan a harder tussle than Chicago. Coach King had overlooked no detail at Madison in perfecting his team's defense and attack, and the Badger display against Chicago was a revelation.

That Wisconsin stands very little show of beating Michigan is the consensus of opinion. Eckersall may send over a goal or two for Chicago when the Wolverines play them, but Tom Hammond, the great back, also is a good kicker, and will give Eckersall a hard fight for honors.

BASKET BALL.

YOUNG LADIES MATCH.

A very interesting game of basketball was played last night in the St. Paul's (Valley) church school room between the young ladies' team of the church, and that from St. Jude's church, West End. The result was a victory for the former, 33 to 13. The game, in spite of the large score, was a fast one, both teams doing some very skillful work. The West End team have not been playing long, and therefore were at some disadvantage. The sides were: St. Paul's, Defence. St. Jude's, Basie Foster, Miss Long Kitty Woods, Miss Fletcher Centres.

Marjorie Lee, Miss Sewell George Wood, Miss Sewell Forward.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Harry A. Leonard, broker's clerk, who started Wall street on September 18 by obtaining $50,000 in securities from the National City Bank by means of a forged check drawn on the Hanover National Bank, pleaded guilty in general sessions court yesterday to forgery, second degree, and was sentenced to Elmira Reformatory by Judge McMahon. "If your conduct is what it should be," said Judge McMahon, "you will be released in thirteen or fourteen months. There is still an indictment for grand larceny hanging over you, and it will depend upon your future conduct whether you ever hear of it again or not."

MAKE OR BREAK.

"You wouldn't know her," said Louisa. "I wouldn't wonder but you'd think it was the queen or the president's wife or something."

"I guess I should know my own child," said her mother, "if she was ever so fine. I'm glad she ain't ever sent for Tommy the way she said she was going to. I wouldn't want to stand in his life, but somehow I feel's though grandfather was better for him than Captain Harding. I wish she'd tell what she's doin' and where she goes."

"I'd look pretty."

Whether she was sorry or glad, the days went by with Grace, and in the course she began to understand through the little she saw of her husband that they were critical days. "It's make or break," he said to her once. And as she saw his preoccupation and his anxiety day after day and the breathless hurry with which he lived she felt breathless herself. She scanned the market reports and specials; she listened as she could to the talk of stocks and points and margins, yet she could make out but little, and it was all very harassing. She thought she had understood at last the everything depended on an arrangement called a deal, which, if it could be brought about, meant wealth beyond dreams for all concerned, and if it couldn't, meant ruin. But it was going to be brought about; it couldn't fail; women couldn't understand business of this sort; she must possess her soul in patience. And she tried to do as she was told. But she knew now that her husband had everything staked on one throw. She leaned over him in his matches of sleep, muttering and toasting in his dreams, and as she smoothed the back lying from his forehead she felt she would take the anxiety from him if she could give him either success or peace of mind.

He had grown white and gaunt of late, eating nothing, waking before light, sitting lost in thought, starting at slight sound, and if it couldn't be brought about, it would be ruin for him. fresh goods for the store. And—and—what do you say?"

"That we can't start an hour too soon!" she cried.

"Then we'll go back and just open up the store and dust it out as if nothing had happened, as if we'd been out and was satisfied and was back again to the old stand with some new notions," he said gayly. "Sowed our wild oats, so to say."

"And I'll give you raised biscuits and doughnuts for your breakfast. And I'll feed my chickens and have my plants. I'll have a jack rose. Why, Charlie, we'll be real happy yet!"

"You better believe! And with this load off my shoulders! I'll be nuts to your grandfather, though."

"I'll like to hear you talk. He'll be at the store early and late. And some days," said Grace, one glad smile breaking after another across her face. "I'll bring my sewing down to the store and visit with you myself. And every day I'll see father and the rest of them at the old place. And I'll have so much to tell mother and Louisa that they'll think I'm making it up. And Louisa's baby—oh, Charlie, it will be just too sweet for anything! I shall feel as if I'd been born over again!"

"And if we find a silver mine in the back yard we'll board it up," said he.

Unlisted Securities.

"I don't see why Mr. Stubbs wasn't willing to lend Willie Porter the $200 he needed to get that business opportunity in Newbury," said Mr. Compton, "and Mr. Stubbs made his money by hard work and saving. He'd hate to lose a mite of it."

"He wouldn't lose a mite of it," said Mrs. Compton indignantly. "Willie's been unfortunate, but so have several others now and again. Do you recollect your fancy squash investment? Well, anyway, this time Willie had excellent security to offer, and he was willing to pay back 2 per cent at the end too."

"What security?" asked Mr. Compton, not deigning to refer to the rate of interest offered.

"He offered Mr. Stubbs two dozen silver teaspoons and a ladle," said Mrs. Compton impressively. "besides a feather box and a seal plush coat and a sewing machine that runs the easiest of any in this town. I don't know what he could have wanted more than that, I'm sure."

African Hospitality.

Hospitality may be considered as one of the characteristics of not only the Vels, but of the whole African race. It is considered the duty of every citizen to entertain strangers without the smallest compensation. Places of rest stand always open, and when these are found occupied by strangers a man enters and tells his wife, who will send her servants with water for the strangers to wash their feet, for as they wear no shoes, they naturally tread on such an accommodation. Afterward rooms and cloth wrappers are given them, food is brought from all quarters or they are invited to eat with the people. They continue to be so provided for even if they stay months. Their garments are also washed and returned to them. On leaving they generally make a small gift to the wife of the host, though not more than two or three coins or two or three English pennies.—Century.

A RIGHT WAY and A WRONG WAY

Many people have many ways to bring about the same result. Most of them are mistaken ways, but this is not known until the test of time points plainly to the error. Practically there are but two ways to accomplish anything: a right way and a wrong way. Take, for instance, a man with a bad back, who is a lot of them, and of various kinds, some with stitches and twitches, others with bricks and stones; then there's the dull, heavy continuous kind that lasts all day and doesn't sleep at night. They all had enough, they're all hard enough to get rid of. Some people rub the back with liniment, others cover it with plaster, or both means often bring relief, but the pain comes back—it's the wrong way to cure the trouble.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

have a way to cure backache, a way that's all their own—the right way. They're made for the kidneys only. When the kidneys fail in their work of filtering the blood the back aches because they are situated in the small of the back; backache is the kidney's warning of trouble, and every day you let the warning go it brings you nearer to urinary disorders, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, etc.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure every form of kidney ills and that's why they bring such quick relief from backache. Mr. Fred Gray, Good Corner, N.B., writes: "I was greatly troubled with pain across my back. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, and received so much benefit from them that I consider them the best remedy for kidney trouble there is. I would not be without them in my house."

Price 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25, all dealers or The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

A day or so ago John W. Vanwart, the Charlotte street grocer, purchased at Indiantown the carcass of a lordly moose. Looking at it, he was reminded of an animal which he had shot three years ago, but he was not fatal and the animal got away. Later, when dividing up the animal, he found a bullet in the very place where he had entered, and an examination of the bullet proved that it was the very one he had fired.

Do you want a cheque for one dollar just for the trouble of clipping it out of this paper? Look at Revery's Steeves' ad. on page 7.

The annual meeting of the Free Kindergarten will be held in the assembly hall of the high school this evening. Dr. Hughes, of Toronto, will address the meeting.

There will be a united meeting of the Salvation Army corps of St. John in No. 1 barracks, this evening, when Col. Sharp, who is leaving Saturday for Bermuda, will preside.

The Neptune ball will be held this evening in the assembly room. About 250 acceptances have been received. Jones' orchestra will be in attendance. The rooms will be beautifully decorated.

The N. B. Accountants' Association held a meeting last night and adopted a constitution and by-laws. They are now ready to start the work which they intend to do and are open now for applications from all parts of the province.

Policeman Perry reports that he found Peter Moriarty's horse in a yard in the rear of George Murphy's carriage factory at 10:30 o'clock last night, and had the animal placed in J. McCarty's stable. The policeman is informed that the animal had been in the yard since two o'clock in the afternoon, unfed and without shelter.

A. C. Northrop, proprietor of the Aberdeen Hotel, wishes to say that the report that he held Michael Kelly's clothes for a loan bill is not correct. The clothes were held on a lien and not for board at all as reported. Mr. Northrop sued Michael Kelly for his board bill and recovered the amount due him and still holds Mr. Kelly's personal effects on the lien.

St. Peter's high tea was well patronized again last night, an unusually large crowd being in attendance. The ladies' prize at the bean shoot last night was again won by Miss Susan Murphy, of Carleton. Tonight is the last night of the tea. The orchestra will again be in attendance. Prizes will again be offered for the bean shoot. Some of the smaller lotteries will probably be awarded.

ASSESSMENT MATTERS DISCUSSED.
Yesterday afternoon the assessment commission met in the mayor's office in city hall and talked over the present assessment law with the assessors. The commission is composed of J. H. McRobbie, Manager Stavar, of the Bank of New Brunswick and Thos. H. Eastbrook, with J. B. M. Baxter, as secretary. The assessors are A. W. Sharp, Uriah Drake and Richard Farmer. Assessment matters were thoroughly discussed but no action was taken.

The visiting Knights of Columbus will be entertained this evening at a smoker in the Knights' rooms. A splendid programme has been prepared and a good time is assured.

This morning W. J. Mahoney territorial deputy of the Knights entertained the degree team with a drive about the city. They called first on His Lordship Bishop Casey and later on the vicar general, Very Rev. Fr. Chapman. The other visiting members of the order spent the day in sight seeing.

FIRE LAST NIGHT.

Last night about 11:30 o'clock a still alarm was sent in to the fire department in consequence of a slight fire in the residence of O. B. Akertley, 31 Waterloo street. The fire started from defective grates and for a time the men of No. three hose, No. 1 Salvage Corps and the chemical engine had their hands full. The chemical did the work, extinguishing the fire after a hard fight. Chief Kerr was present and directed the fire fighting.

WEEKS EXONERATED FOR HORSE'S DEATH.

county court before Judge Forbes this morning, H. A. McKewen, counsel for E. R. Chapman, who was acting for the plaintiff, addressed the jury, who returned a verdict for the defendant. The case was not finished yesterday afternoon owing to the disagreeable odor which arose in the court room caused by a leakage in the gas pipes. In the afternoon Mr. Goldie's evidence was resumed at some length. Daniel Mullin, K. C., acting for the defendant, then made his address to the jury, pointing out that there had been no evidence of any ill treatment to the animal, and that the young men in the carriage when the horse had taken sick had done everything that could have been expected of them. The case of the Bank of Yarmouth vs. W. B. Dickson was opened this morning. H. H. Pickett is acting for the plaintiff, and Mr. Jonah, of Jonah and Parfitt, Sussex, for the defendant.

GIGANTIC COAT SALE

For Women and Children Commences at Manchester Robertson Allison's Tomorrow.

The distinguishing feature of the present time in shopping circles will be the complete clearance of Winter Coats and Jackets for women and children at Manchester's, commencing in the morning (Friday) at 8:30 o'clock. It will not be a sale of a few odd or out-of-date garments, but rather a most unusual and complete assortment of Short-length and Long-length coats in the prevailing styles, colors, etc. Handsomely tailored and smart as can be had anywhere. In order to assure the complete sale of these garments prices have been reduced to a minimum, which, of course, will suit even most moderate buyers. Such prices for coats and jackets cannot be promised at any future time. Stock-taking is now at its height, and the holiday rush will soon commence, which have had an influence in bringing down the prices. Tomorrow morning at 8:30 the sale starts on the second floor in M. R. A.'s. Some exceptionally fine coats for first comers. Particulars on page 2.

ABANDONED HIS TRIP.

Walter Roberts, formerly of Hammond River, but now of North End, who started to drive to the headwaters of the St. John and return about a month ago, was forced to abandon his trip yesterday at Fredericton and return to the city by steamer, owing to the cold wave, which threatened a snow-up and several other direful things. Nevertheless Mr. Roberts had a good time, and his sport among the game, large and small, was of the richest. He says that on the way down from Fredericton the steamer Pokanoket cut through miles of ice three quarters of an inch thick, without diminishing her speed. This boat has a stout steel hull.

Coram, who resigned her position in the office of Manchester, Robertson & Allison for the purpose of preparing for a better paying position, at the Currie Business University, such position has been offered her in the department of this school, to fill the position of bookkeeper for R. TODAY'S GALE BOTHERS SHIPPING.

A heavy southwest and southeast rain wind storm caused a number of vessels to seek the harbor for shelter and caused others to not venture from their moorings. The velocity of the wind from midnight until ten o'clock this morning was from 36 to 40 miles an hour. Rain fell all morning but not in any extraordinarily large quantity. At noon the temperature had risen to 48 above and the conditions were still very unsettled, but from the indications the storm was likely to continue. The Eastern line steamer Calvin Austin did not leave port until about 11 o'clock owing to the bad weather.

PERSONALS.

Rev. Mr. Long, Rev. Dr. Gates and Rev. Mr. Stackhouse left for Havelock this morning to attend the district meeting of the Baptist church. Percy Campbell left this morning for Amherst to attend the meeting of Division X, 63 of Railroad Telegraphers. Major F. B. Black, of Sackville, left for home this morning. Robertson, of Philadelphia, arrived in the city this morning and is visiting her mother, Mrs. Masters, Leinster street. Mrs. H. S. Huyck, of Elliott Row.

RAIN AND THAW REOPENS RIVER.

Today's mild weather and rain has again fairly well cleared the river from ice. There will probably be quite a rise now in the river as the water has now for the last month been unusually low. The Crystal Stream, which arrived last night, reported plowing through considerable ice up river. The Pokanoket, which arrived last night, reported the river covered from Fredericton to Gagetown. She and the other steel Star liner, the Majestic, however, got through without difficulty and broke the ice in the centre of the river to quite an extent. The Pokanoket left on her regular trip this morning, and it is hoped that she can make another trip of two yet. The Elaine arrived at her regular time this morning from Long Island. She reports that no ice was to be seen this morning on this part of the river. (Special to the Star.)
FREDERICTON, N. B., Nov. 15.—A snow storm set in here after midnight last night, but turned to rain and since nine o'clock this morning it has been pouring heavy. The ice still remains in the river but is rapidly disappearing and probably before night the water will be clear. The river is showing a gradual rise.

DONALDSON STEAMER ARRIVES.

The Donaldson line steamer Kastalla, Capt. R. Webb, R. N. R., arrived at the Island early this morning from Glasgow with a general cargo. This is the first of the summer fleet that has been plying between Glasgow and Newport News, with St. John as port of call. Capt. Webb has a very large number of friends in the city who will be glad to welcome him. The steamer Alden, of the Donaldson line and the first of this winter's schedule is now on her way here.

TOOTH HINTS!

"When ought we to go to the dentist?" Many think it unnecessary to devote particular attention to the teeth until the appearance of the mouth is affected by damaged, decayed or broken teeth. Others give their teeth no attention till pain compels them. The stupidity and short-sightedness of either policy is evident. Every one who thinks a moment on the subject knows that we cannot masticate our food satisfactorily if one or more of the teeth are tender, inflamed, decayed or otherwise out of working order; and that if this be the case the mouth requires immediate attention. Painless extracting, 15c.; filling, 50c. up. Best 600 teeth in the world. BOSTON DENTAL PARLORS, 577 Main Street, North End. DR. J. D. MAHER, Proprietor.
