PRICE TWO CENTS

THE BEST AT THE LAST.

MAGNIFICENT FIREWORKS FOR FRIDAY EVENING.

The Famous Firm Which Has Given the Grand Spectacular Productions at Manhattan Beach is on Hand—Some of the Splendid Pieces to be Shown.

Everybody has been pleased with the fireworks shown during the evenings of the exhibition. The display has been artistic, and if there were not so many pieces as are expected it was not the fault of the pyrotechnists, James Pain & Sons, of London, New York, Chicago and Australia. Pain & Sons are the men who supplied the fireworks at the Fisheries Exposition in London and made most elaborate displays at Alexandra Palace and Sydenham, at which "all the world wondered." They are also the men who have delighted hundreds of thousands at Manhattan Beach, N. Y., by the brilliant spectacular productions of the Last Days of Pompeii, the siege of Pekin, and other most realistic scenes in the history of nations.

The directors of the Canadian International Exhibition have not felt warranted, financially in giving the firm anything like a full scope, but they asked it to "do the best it could for the money." It will be generally conceded that it has done so. Richard White, a thoroughly experienced man, was sent in charge of the combustibles and under his direction they have been shown to the best possible effect.

It is not true in these days that good wine is always saved for the last at a feast. It is generally put forward first, and the bad stuff is palmed off later, when no one is in a position to be very critical in the matter of taste. In respect to the fireworks, however, the old adage holds good. The best of them are yet to come.

The display on Friday night will be far and away ahead of anything yet attempted. One has only to look at the programme to be satisfied of the fact. Here are some of the attractions:

First of all, in the important pieces, is a rose star, brilliant enough in itself, but rendered still more attractive by the word "Stanley" in letters of fire across its face. The next in importance will be a mechanical piece, a see-saw in motion, with the motto, "Success to the C. I. E." and "Good Night."

A set piece, the Indian star, with revolving centres, and a palm tree, with revolving centres will be worthy of special attention. Some of the other attractions are:

Mechanical piece, the pigeon.

Flights of asteroid rockets, with floating stars.

Flights of silver torvillions, golden fountains, forming a line of fire 30 feet long, with revolving centres.

Flights of saussions and fairy snakes.

Illumination of the grounds with prismatic lights.

Flights of jubilee batteries and colored lights.

The display will conclude with a grand flight of rockets, forming a peacock's plume.

If this programme will not satisfy the admirer of the beautiful in pyrotechnics, he will be pretty hard to suit. The fireworks are likely to be a bigger drawing card than even Sir John and the other speakers at the rink.

Indurated Fireware.

The Eddy Manufacturing Co., of Hull, P. Q., exhibit a full line of indurated fireware, an article that has speedily won a firm place in the affections of every house-keeper that has ever used any of the ware. The exhibit consists of wash tubs, wash basins, bread pans, fire pails, milk pails, milk pails and star buckets and half pails. The remarkable feature about this ware is its judicial indestructibility. Every article is molded in one piece, without joint or seam, without hoops, and it is impervious to the influence of benzine, kerosene, acids or hot water; neither will it shrink or swell under the influence of heat or cold, and for durability it will outlast any other ware made for the same uses. A tank for water closets is the latest article turned out and this promises from its lightness, neatness and absolute freedom from any possibility of leaking to be in large demand here as it is in the United States. The demand for this ware has grown systematically from the day it was first offered and at the present prices it is less expensive than wooden goods, as an indurated pail or tub will outlast half a dozen wooden ones.

RED JIM'S TREACHERY.

MICHAEL DAVITT MAKES SOME INTERESTING REVELATIONS.

McDermott's Movements Traced from the Time He Left New York—The Betrayal of Comrades who Are Now in Penal Servitude for Life.

[Special to Progress by Direct C. P. R. Wire.]

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The second instalment of Michael Davitt's revelations concerning the dynamite plots will be published tomorrow. It deals largely with the exploits of McDermott. (Red Jim) tracing his movements from the time he left New York.

He reached Dublin in February, 1883, and visited the various newspaper offices as a correspondent of the Brooklyn Argus, producing letters to that effect. His blatant talk aroused suspicion and he was closely watched. At this time Healy and Davitt were in prison and McDermott visited them, but Davitt knowing his record refused to listen to him, and called the warden to terminate the interview.

McDermott was traced that night to the office of the chief of criminal investigation in Dublin Castle, and a few days later he was arrested for being drunk and disorderly.

Among the papers found upon him was a letter of introduction from D. McCarthy, of 12 Chambers street, New York, to P. Murphy, of Cork, stating that McDermott's "purse and pen were ever at our disposal." Another was from O'Donovan Rossa, agreeing to pay for letters from Ireland, and adding threats of vengeance for the exile he was suffering.

McDermott next went to Cork where he was interviewed by Capt. Plunkett, who was there in charge of that city, which was under martial law. The story then describes "Red Jim's" betrayal of Flannigan and Featherstone, and the arrest of Wilson, Gallagher, Dalton and Whitehead, all of whom were sentenced to penal servitude for life through McDermott's treachery.

Today's Programme.

City Cornet Band in building, afternoon and evening.

Organ recital, Mr. Morley, 3.30 to 4 p. m., 7.15 to 7.45 p. m., 8.15 to 8.45 p. m.

She was Perfectly at Home.

There was a large crowd of curious people on the pier at noon Wednesday to see Mrs. Street, the Nova Scotia lady, who had courage enough to give a swimming exhibition in the slip, while many of those on the wharf wore overcoats and fur capes. After the crowd had waited some time, an oldish looking woman with white hair made her appearance and began taking up a collection. She realized quite a sum. Then there was an adjournment to an office on the wharf, and on her next appearance, she wore a blue bathing suit, with red trimmings, the skirt reaching to the knees. She jumped off of the wharf without a moment's hesitation, and stayed in the water for over 20 minutes, swimming, floating, waltzing, swimming while seated on a chair, carrying an open umbrella and fanning herself, giving a performance worth losing one's dinner to see. Officer Baxter did the gallant in assisting her on the wharf Mrs. Street will give daily performances at the pier at high water.

It Stands at the Head.

The Caligraph typewriter "It stands at the Head" is the legend that appears over the illustration of this wonderful machine and the crowds of interested spectators that continually surround the stall where these machines are shown and watch the skilful operator as she obligingly addresses envelopes or writes short notes for those who wish evidence of the great interest taken in such articles. Over 50,000 persons daily use the "Caligraph" and it is to be found in almost every well appointed office throughout Upper Canada and the United States and recently the Company have found it necessary to erect works at Coventry, England, to supply the demand on the other side of the Atlantic. The Headquarters of the Company are at Hartford, Conn., and they are represented in the maritime provinces by Arthur P. Tippet & Co., who report a steady and increasing demand for these very useful articles.

Appreciate the Go Ahead Style.

The St. John Bicycle Club, in uniform, visited Progress office last evening, and gave the establishment three rousing cheers and a tiger. They are a go-ahead crowd themselves and can appreciate a paper that gets along in the same style.

SOME PEOPLE OF NOTE.

VISITORS WHO ARE KNOWN IN THE SHOW AND OUT OF IT.

They Represent All Parts of Canada and Other Countries—The Exhibition is One of the Sights Which They Cannot Afford to Miss.

Mr. A. W. Morrison, of the baggage tracing department, General Passenger Agent's office, I. C. R., was at the exhibition on Wednesday, accompanied by Mrs. Morrison. Mr. Morrison registered at Progress office and expressed himself delighted with all he saw.

Adam W. Smith, of St. Andrews, called at the sanctum this morning, looking even younger than when the editor last saw him, years ago. Mr. Smith is the Nestor of the New Brunswick press. He started the St. Andrews Standard in 1833 and ran it for nearly 48 years. He is taking his ease these days, but looks good for plenty of active service yet.

David Dickson, of Moncton, agent for the Dominion of the Sparkham Roofing Company, visited the exhibition on Wednesday morning and called at Progress sanctum. Mr. Dickson was on the wrecked C. P. R. train on Monday night, and remarked that he might just as well have been killed as not, only he was not.

A. J. Babang, of Moncton, was in the building on Tuesday evening.

Dr. Bailey, of the University was in the exhibition building on Tuesday, and expressed himself as being much pleased with the school exhibit.

Senator Boyd spent some time in the educational department on Tuesday afternoon, and seemed deeply interested in all he saw.

Their lordships, Bishop Sweeney, of St. John, and Bishop Rogers, of Chatham, accompanied by Mgr. Thos. Connelly, V. G., visited Progress office this afternoon, and inscribed their names on the register. Bishop Sweeney watched the printers getting the paper ready for the press, and remarked that the office seemed to be the busiest part of the building.

Among the many familiar faces in the crowd last evening, Progress was glad to recognise the burly form and bearded face of Stipendiary Wortman of Moncton, who was viewing all points of interest in Saint John's great show with judicial impartiality.

Mayor Sumner, of Moncton, laid aside the cares of office for a brief space and came down to view the exhibition. When Progress saw him he was acting as a squire of dames and escorting two of Moncton belles through the building.

E. H. Balkam, secretary of the Milltown school board, visited the school exhibit yesterday afternoon, and showed great interest in the various branches of that most attractive department.

Preserved Fruits.

Wilhelm Laaff, of Mayence, Germany, evidently understands how to put up preserved fruits, for without exception the preserves shown by him are the most attractively packed and finest looking goods that have ever been seen in St. John.

The well known houses of Puddington & Merritt and George Robertson & Co., were quick to perceive the superior excellence of these preserves and last year imported small quantities while this year they ordered their shipments as early as June to ensure arrival in good season.

The few imported last year prompted Mr. Laaff to forward the present exhibit especially for this exhibition and the agents (A. P. Tippet & Co.) tell us the orders already in hand for this season are very satisfactory. This exhibit is at the end of the north side of the south wing, and no one should miss seeing it.

They are Respectable Thieves.

Three canes have disappeared from the Trinidad exhibit, and other exhibitors complain of petty losses. It is believed the thieves are not rough or boys, but alleged respectable people, who think it no harm to carry away a souvenir, even if they have to steal it.

It Was Appreciated.

The Artillery band was a very attractive feature of yesterday's programme, their rendering of Irish melodies being especially good. The part of "Come back to Erin," where the entire band sang the words in soft pianissimo was a novel feature in band music, and was greatly appreciated.

Dress Goods!

A Novelty in SILK and WOOL TARTANS, the Clan Plaids, the several Stuarts, Argyle, Gordon, McDuff, 42nd Highlanders, or Black Watch and others. Like Silas Wegg, you drop into poetry as you look at them. "The Silken Plaid" of Ellen Douglass, the Lady of the Lake, flutters before you; or fancy the piping of "The Campbell's are Coming" at the relief of Lucknow. Strange beauty in the Tartans, and they never fail to suggest the romance and reality which have made the proud owners of the plaids great factors in literature, in history, in progress. CLAN PLAIDS, 25c. to 96c.

French Serges.

LORD STANLEY ARRIVES.

His Name is Inscrubed on the Register of Visitors to "Progress."

His Excellency, Lord Stanley, governor-general of Canada, accompanied by Lady Stanley and his suite, reached St. John by special train shortly after noon today.

WILL SEE US AS WE ARE.

The visit of LORD STANLEY to the maritime provinces cannot fail to be productive of good. It is only on rare occasions that our people have an opportunity to see the men who are sent from England to govern Canada, and some of them have very erroneous impressions as to the divinity that doth hedge a governor general.

His Excellency's visit will do much to disabuse some of these impressions. LORD STANLEY is believed to be, as some others in his position have been, a man who takes more than a superficial interest in the duties of his office. He is likely to leave a favorable impression on all classes of the people.

He has come to a beautiful country, which he cannot fail to appreciate. From the Restigouche to the harbor of Sydney, Cape Breton, he will find an ever varying panorama of some of the finest scenery in America. When he goes over the Cape Breton railway he will find the panorama growing brighter and more beautiful, and he may wonder why thousands instead of hundreds of pilgrims do not make the Bras d'Or their Mecca in the summer holidays. But he will see more than a fine country with ever charming scenery.

He will find a live, industrious people, who have built towns and cities which are growing and will grow with a rapidity unknown across the ocean. He will find in the city of St. John an example of what faith and industry have succeeded in accomplishing in the face of heavy trials. He will learn that our people ask no more than a fair field to hold their own, commercially or otherwise, with the people of any rival city. He will see in the exhibition, to a partial extent, what our industrial classes can produce; and if he desires he can learn how one of the finest sea-ports in America has been maligned and ignored through mere envy, malice and ignorance.

His Excellency is believed to be a good observer and he cannot fail to have new and favorable impressions of this city, its resources and its people. It is well for us and for him that he has come. He has a hearty welcome.

A Fortunate Firm.

Mr. James Clark, who represents John Bertram & Sons, of Dundas, Ontario, has good reason to be satisfied with hits and the firms good fortune at this fair, for every machine in their extensive collection of iron working machinery, on view in machinery hall has been sold. Mr. Clark is more fortunate than his fellows. Two of the most valuable machines in his exhibit go to a new iron working firm in Woodstock and some others have been purchased by Messrs. Robb & Son, of Amherst. It will be remembered that Robb & Sons were burned out recently. At that time Bertram's machines were their favorites and it is not strange that when refitting they should return and get duplicates of them. Such well known shops as Harris' and Fleming's have there-liable Bertram machines.

The exhibit it has been a most attractive one. Gentlemen interested in machinery have not failed to pause and inquire into the workings of the massive machine that played with iron as easily as a wood working machine does with wood. This reminds the writer that the firm also manufacture wood working machinery. Mr. James Clark represents this firm and is always ready to give information, even to newspaper men, though he was hardly used by one of them, who placed his capable attendant in charge of the exhibit instead of himself. The customers were mystified at first, but they have found the right man in the end.

More Lost Articles.

A lady's jacket and a shoulder cape, found in the building, await owners at the secretary's office.

WEDNESDAY'S 8 O'CLOCK EDITION.

OUTSIDE OF THE SHOW.

SOME OF THE SIGHTS THAT THE CURIOUS MAY SEE.

Mackay's Miniature Circus. The Man Who Stirs up the Wild Bees with a Lath Edging—Other Things to be Seen, and all for Five Cents.

Across the street from the building is a lively spot every afternoon and evening. The sideshows and fakirs are all in full blast. Mackay's tent is the big outside attraction, and when the band begins to play it is for all the world like a circus. One can almost imagine he sees the horses running themselves dizzy in a small ring.

"Right this way gentlemen is the great log cabin moose and bear show," where you can walk inside for the small sum of five cents. The log cabin is made of spruce boards, with a hole in the roof covered with cotton to let daylight in. In the evening the show is lighted by a solitary torch, and resembles the stable of the ordinary corner grocery man, when the horse is being put up for the night. Besides the torch, the cabin contains a moose making a meal off a leafless tree; a black bear that stands on its hind legs and growls when poked in the face with a stick; a fierce tiger cat on a high shelf, and an old gentleman with long hair, who stirs up the animals with a long piece of Strait Shore coal. The long haired gentlemen is the greatest curiosity of the lot. He is constantly employed in stirring up the animals so that the visitors will not be led to believe that they have been borrowed from the British Columbia stuffed exhibit for the occasion. All for the small sum of five cents.

Then comes the young man with a large reefer and a box of cigars, who wants everybody to knock over any one of the red-headed McGinty family, or old McGinty himself—only five cents for three shots, and every time you knock 'em down you get a "good cigar—a good three hours puffing. The wind got a lap on all competitors, yesterday afternoons and blew the whole family down, rack and all. The wind should have been given a cigar, and after three hours puffing at it, there would have been no danger of another blow down. The cigar would have knocked all the force out of a much stronger wind than was blowing yesterday.

An old gentleman with one leg, a plug hat and a display of medals across his breast, that bears a striking resemblance to the tin plate department of a hardware store, occupies the next stand. From the number of medals he wears, one would judge that he is the champion fakir of America, and has lost a leg in the service. He has a small pawn shop displayed to the view of his audience, with numbers on all the articles, which probably correspond to those held by the unfortunates who hung them up. It is evidently a branch of a first-class institution, for the stock comprises watches, lockets, revolvers, and other articles "too numerous to mention."

All anybody who wants any of these articles has to do is to lean over a covered pole—in which he has the assistance of a curious crowd—and cover one of a number of circulars, by pitching round pieces of tin upon them. There is a charge for this privilege. This show is an elaborate affair, with the picture of the Battle of the Alma in the background, in which the soldiers are all going at a 2-40 gait, and keeping wonderful step, while the front is decorated with quotations from her majesty, Queen Victoria.

There was a "nigger with his head in a hole in the canvas" show in operation the other day, but it wasn't much of a success. At first the hole in the canvas was large enough, and when the public was accommodated in this respect, it was found that the nigger was a little nervous and drew his head away too quick, and business was dull. This morning the great American dodger was on hand again, with a base ball mask on, but people seemed to think that there was no satisfaction in throwing at a "coon" when there was no chance of killing him, and the crowd was slow to take advantage of the great inducements offered by the short "shouter" with a handful of tickets for the side show.

Then there are a dozen minor attractions such as throwing rings on a board full of pins, foreign boothbacks of a chocolate telling birds, all running to the tune of "Johnny, get your gun," by the blind man on the street piano.

Visitors are Plenty.

The list of visitors who have recorded their names on the register at PROGRESS office has grown to unexpected proportions. Hundreds of them still await the printers, and it will be impossible to publish anything like all of them. A special edition might be published, containing nothing but names, and if the signers are anxious to see their names they might chip in and defray the expense of publication. Don't all speak at once.

Souvenir of Machinery Hall.

Isaac Erb, the photographer, has had the enterprise to take an 8x10 inch photo of machinery hall, from the east end, and anybody who has 50 cents can obtain one at the studio, Charlotte street.

BY THE INCANDESCENT.

THE PRINTERS OF "PROGRESS" ARE HAPPY NOW.

An Outline of the Work Required to Get Out Two Editions a Day—Nobody Has Any Idle Time—How Willing Workers Have Helped Matters Along.

Thousands of those who stop at PROGRESS office, in machinery hall, wonder whether it is much work to get out two editions a day, or whether it is a good deal easier than it looks. They see the printers steadily at work amid what is at times almost a deafening uproar. They watch copy going in and proofs coming out, the making of the forms, and finally the issue of the paper itself. They naturally think it is a busy place, but only a few realize, just how busy it is.

The work begins at 7 o'clock in the morning, when the printers arrive, and is continued until the building is ready for closing at night. Nobody has much leisure in the meantime. The mechanical staff is put to its best efforts in order to come to time, afternoon and evening, while in the editorial room the preparation of copy goes on, even after the last form for the day has gone to press. There must be something for the compositors to start on in the morning.

Then, too, PROGRESS has a "style" of make-up which demands a certain number of display heads. These must be provided and, so far as possible the subject of the story must be of sufficient importance to warrant them. In the meantime exhibitors who have been promised notices are clamoring for them, telegrams are coming in and the table is littered with enough manuscript to fill every issue for a week. Out of all this a choice must be made, and some things have to be sacrificed. Hundreds of words of special telegrams are thrown away every day. For this issue at least 500 words are lying on the table and cannot be used. They are not important, and PROGRESS does not have the idea that because a despatch comes by wire it must be used, whether it is of any value or not.

The compositors will be glad when the show is over. They have worked faithfully day and night, and at times under conditions that were enough to make them more than physically tired.

The great difficulty in doing the night work on PROGRESS last week was the want of a good light. The arc lamp provided was not always steady and was quite insufficient for fast work by the printers. This week the Calkin company has fitted out the establishment, including the editorial room, with the clear, soft and beautiful incandescent light. All who have had any experience with it need not be told that it is as near perfection as any artificial illumination can be. The man who would not be satisfied with it would be very hard to suit—in fact, he could not be suited this side of the sun itself.

Electrician Dennis, and all the men connected with the Calkin company have been very busy since the show opened. They had some difficulties to overcome at the outset and they succeeded in their efforts. While the arc light may not be just the thing for a printing office, nothing better could be desired for the big halls of the building. It has been amply suited for all purposes of the exhibition, and it has been run without a serious "hitch" from the opening day to the present time.

But the incandescent is the indoor light of the future. Good Short Stories. When several persons combine in an effort to obtain desired privileges they are usually successful. There lies great virtue in numbers. Elsie, a little New England girl, was delighted with the prospect of a trip to California, and it never occurred to her that all her twelve dolls were not to go also.

"Tell me where they're to be packed, mamma," she said, "and I'll put them in. They mustn't be rumpled and tumbled." "Elsie, dear," said mamma, regretfully, "I really can't allow you to take all that set of dolls. You may have two, any two you like, but there I draw the line. Twelve dolls are quite unnecessary." "Elsie made no reply, but went quietly on, altering a skirt for Lady Ethelinda, the prettiest one of the waxen and china-faced family.

Later in the day, when her mother entered the room devoted to packing, she saw a curious sight. Supported against a trunk sat a row of dolls, in travelling costume, as far as they could manage such an! above their heads was pinned a large placard, bearing the words, "We are waiting to be packed."

What mother could resist the united appeal of a dozen dolls? Not this one, and to California the twelve went.—Ez.

When one recalls the fact that millions upon millions of dollars in gold annually seek Europe to provide for the necessities of the import trade, the question of how gold is shipped to Europe becomes an interesting one. The Bank of America is the largest single shipper of gold from New York, and indeed from the United States. Shipments are made in stout kegs, very much like the ordinary beer keg. Every one contains $50,000 in coin or bar gold. The latter is the favorite for the shipment, since the government has permitted the sub treasury to exchange coin for bar gold, as coin in a single million dollar shipment is liable to loss by abrasion of from eight to twenty ounces or from $128 to $320; while the bars only lose about three-fourths of that value. From them is sent double "excelsior." Four are put in stout canvas bags, each one containing 125 ounce eagles, $5,000; and ten bags fill each keg. About the only precaution taken against tampering with a keg, is a treatment of keg ends technically known as "excelsioring." Four holes are bored at equal intervals in the projecting rim of the staves about the head. Red tape is run through these crossing on the keg's head, the ends meeting at the center, where they are sealed to the head by the hardest of wax, and stamped with the consignee's name. The average insurance is about $1,500 per $1,000,000. Then there is an expense of about $2 per keg for packing and cartage aboard ship, or $200 for the same sum and the inevitable loss by abrasion, whatever it may prove to be. There are great Wall street firms shipping from $25,000,000 to $40,000,000 annually.—Ez.

There are various ways of coming to grief, when one attempts telling another person's stories. "Annie, tell that anecdote Cousin Olive told the other night, please," said a young lady to her sister, while they were making a call. When Annie had complied, her sister announced, sympathetically, to the company, "You can imagine how funny it was, because Olive tells a story so well!"

Another unfortunate relater of a borrowed tale was a gentleman who ventured to ask an intimate friend, "Why don't you wear a wig?" "I'd rather dye," was the answer, and though the pun was an old one it happened to be new to the hearer, and greatly amused him—not so much that he did not speedily forget the point.

That night, on returning home, he said to his wife, "Richardson said an awfully good thing this afternoon. I asked him why he didn't wear a wig, and he said he'd rather commit suicide than do such a thing. Why don't you laugh? But then, women haven't any sense of humor to speak of!" —Youth's Companion.

Two pedestrians suddenly halted and looked up at a fourth story window. The lower sash was raised, and the head and shoulders of a child about two years old could be seen. In three minutes there was a group of dozen men and women, and the child had got its breast on the lower sill and was reaching out to get hold of a string hanging from the cornice—a remainder of some disaster to a kite.

"Heavens! he'll fall!" gasped one. "Certain to smash down on to the pavement!" added a second. "Stop! stop! Go back!" shouted a third. Everybody had something to say, and while they were saying it the child wriggled further and further over the sill. At length a woman with a basket on her arm cried out: "What fools you men are! Why don't you run and ring the bell and notify the mother?"

Three or four started, but they had not crossed the street when the child lost its balance and pitched out head first. There was a murmur of horror, but it was checked as the fall of the child was stopped two feet below the sill, and there he hung, squalling, with a leather strap buckled about the right ankle. His bowie brought a woman to the window, and she pulled him up, deposited him inside, and then said to the gaping crowd below:

"Thought I didn't know my business, eh? Well, I just do and you can move on!" —N. Y. Sun.

What are termed hollow cast iron bricks form the subject of a recent German patent described in the technical journals, the article being the invention of an Erfurt mechanic. As the name indicates, they are made of regular brick form and size, the walls being 0.12 inches thick, but no mortar or other binding material is intended to enter into their use, the method of fastening adopted being as follows: The upper and lower sides of the bricks are provided with grooves and projecting ribs, which fit into one another easily and perfectly, so as to make a uniform and complete union or combination.

There are in addition two large circular openings in the upper side of each brick, arranged to receive suitably formed projections on the lower side of the brick above, one of these projections being also hooked shape, thus securing a more secure hold; and in order that the joints be made and remain air and water tight, a fluid is applied to the surface of the bricks with a brush. The non-conducting air spaces in the bricks, and the ease with which they may be put together and taken apart without injuring them, are cited as special advantages in their favor as a substitute for ordinary bricks and brick construction. —Chicago Jour. of Commerce.

Purified wool cellulose is gradually introduced into a very cold mixture of one part of fuming nitric acid and two parts of concentrated sulphuric acid until a thick pulp is formed. After six hours contact, the pulp is washed, first with cold and then with warm and slightly ammoniacal water. The washed product is boiled in a concentrated solution of nitrate of baryta, gently compressed, and dried at 40° C. In order to granulate it (an operation that is not indispensable), machines devised for the purpose are necessary.

It is probable that this smokeless powder is the same that was offered two years ago, by an English house, to the Austrian and German governments, and refused after an examination. —French paper.

"I saw Mrs. Hopkins today, William, for the first time since she became a widow. She looked perfectly grand in her mourning suit, and seemed so happy there was no standing her." "I guess she was glad to be rid of Bookins." "Perhaps. But what do you think she said? That if you had any taste you'd give me a chance to come out in mourning, too. That made me angry and I gave her a cutting; answer she won't soon forget."

"What did you say?" "I said I hoped that when it did happen I'd be happy a widow as she was." "Oh, you did." —Philadelphia Times.

Housewife (teetily)—"Go 'way from this door, you old tramp! What do you want, anyway?" "Steady-looking man (starting off)—"I wanted to make you a call; I'm the new minister." —Drake's Magazine.

DON'T FAIL TO SEE THE EXHIBIT

The Unartistic Nude.

The leaders of the great movement against undraped statuary would have received a terrible shock to their sensitive feelings could they have rambled about the exhibition building on Wednesday afternoon and viewed the la crosse players in their war paint, or rather lack of it. It was bad enough as long as they remained out of doors, but when one or two of those bold, bad men came into the sacred precincts of the building itself, and openly displayed their undressed calves, there was a general feeling amongst the ladies of a certain age, that however much to be admired undressed kids were, undressed call was not to be tolerated for a moment. One lady was heard to exclaim rapturously, "Oh! how neat they look, and such pretty stockings, pale pink, how lovely. Good gracious the horrid man is in his bare legs."

WHAT THE ROCK YIELDS.

THE INTERESTING EXHIBIT OF THE IMPERIAL OIL CO.

A Great Variety of Products - Some of Them are Very Beautiful, and All are Useful - The Extent and Variety of the Operations of the Company.

Very many persons who pause to examine the wonderful exhibit made by the Imperial Oil Company, of Petrolia, Ont., in its large space in the upper gallery, have pronounced it the most interesting stall in the building.

Anyone who takes time to look at the variety of products, from the unlovely crude petroleum, oleophene or most refined paraffine, which sparkles like spring water, cannot fail to be impressed with the wonderful power of modern science.

A shaft of wax, white as alabaster, decorates the centre of the space, and at the corners are immense candles of white wax, while jars and bottles containing samples of the different oils are scattered about, and piles of white wax in its soft state, like cotton batting, form miniature snow drifts, and add an element of the picturesque to the otherwise prosaic contents of the stall.

Moulds, blocks and slabs of petroleum wax, in delicate tints of pale blue, pink, and white, brighten up the stall and lead children to stop and ask for a piece of candy, so appetizing do they look. In the front of the stall is a rockery composed of what many suppose to be crude petroleum, but which is in reality, a coke-like substance found in the pans after evaporation, and when all the good has been extracted from the crude oil - the dregs in fact.

This company produces its crude oil from its own territory and makes over 100 varieties of product from the crude material, it employs a skilful chemist who is constantly laboring to improve the various methods of refining the different goods produced, and it has also superintendents for both refineries of petroleum and lubricating works at London, who have had 20 years experience in the business. All goods are guaranteed to be what they are represented, and are thoroughly tested before being placed on the market.

The company's works at Detroit alone cover 50 acres of ground, while the works at London, Ont., cover 20 acres. The plants used in the works are the most complete in the world, and the company is continually adding to them, and increasing the variety of its manufactures.

It has branches at every port of importance, except St. John and Vancouver, B. C., and it supplies all leading railways, steamship lines, and manufacturers in the dominion.

Amongst the products of this industry are: cylinder, engine, machine, black neutral, dynamo, sewing machine, carriage and axle oils, paraffine wax, paraffine candles, linden sperm candles, car axle shafting and patent grease, not to mention many other products.

The business was established in 1859, and has developed steadily until it has reached its present proportions.

Without a visit to this stall it would be impossible to realize the variety of products that petroleum is capable of yielding. There are delicately tinted moulds and blocks that look like blue and pink candy, gigantic white candles and bottles of every variety of oil from black spindle to the white paraffine. No one should leave the building without a visit to the oil exhibit.

Discovered a Short Cut.
[Special to Progress by direct C. P. R. wire].
VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 2. - E. J. Glove, of Frank Leslie's party, returned from the north by the cutter Patterson, this morning. He reports the discovery of a shorter route to the Yukon, which has its source in an immense glacier; also the existence of fertile valleys, inhabited by a semi-civilized race of Indians, between the Yukon and the Alek. Glove returns to Alaska next year.

NO BRUSH PAINTS THEM.

YET THEY ARE PICTURES WHICH SHOW TRUE ART.

The Wonderful Work Done by Skillful Hands on the Singer Sewing Machines - An Exhibit Which Every Lover of the Beautiful Should Examine Carefully.

One of the latest exhibits to arrive, but also one of the finest in the building, is that of the needlework displayed by the Singer Manufacturing Co., of New York, represented in New Brunswick by Mr. J. C. Rogers whose head quarters are at 90 Germain St., next door to the well known office of PROGRESS. If the Singer sewing machines were not so well and favorably known already in New Brunswick, this exhibit alone would be sufficient to advertise them, and it is greatly to be regretted that Mr. Rogers was compelled to be so late in getting his exhibit arranged, on account of the difficulty of obtaining the requisite space. As it is they are crowded into a corner of the upper gallery, with only a slight railing to protect their beautiful work from injury. For the more durable work they have a small booth in the fancy work department.

The beauty and variety of the fancy work displayed almost baffles description, and when visitors reflect that it is all done by machinery they are more impressed than ever. Not only are there the most dainty and intricate designs in fancy work, the most delicate coloring and shading, much of it done on silk bolting cloth, but there are a number of pictures as perfect in conception and execution, as it would be possible for oil painting to be.

The largest picture in the collection represents a Japanese lady and is a wonderfully fine piece of work. Over the tastefully draped mantel bracket are three more pictures, the first a panel, one of daisies and the other of azaleas, all worked with the delicacy of water color drawing.

Two square pictures on the mantel, one of a dog's, the other of a cat's head, are worked with such fineness that the eyes possess the faculty of seeming to follow the spectator about, a feature which is usually seen only in the best paintings.

A long panel of storks, standing in a pool covered with water lilies, is another wonderful specimen of machine work, but perhaps the most surprising thing in the exhibit, is a study of game, - hare, duck, and snipe, - worked in silk on a panel of solid oak, the feathers shining literally to stand out, so delicate is the work, and so perfect are the colors. All these pictures are artistically framed, and only a close inspection will satisfy the spectator that they are the work of the needle and not of the brush.

Apart from all this, there is displayed every variety of puffing, tucking and shirring in finest infants robes, and every kind of fine lawn and cambric.

The stall beyond is devoted to work in heavy chenille and finest Kensington stitch. Here are displayed to the best advantage piano covers in satin and silk, worked in art tapestry and Holbein stitch, banners and table scarfs in plush and satin, all worked in richest silk embroidery.

Many of these goods were at the Paris exhibition of last year, and the Singer sewing machines carried off two gold medals at the same exhibition. These machines are adapted to every variety of sewing, both family and manufacturing work, as well as the beautiful fancy work on exhibition. In fact they are warranted to do over thirty different varieties of sewing. There are now in use over 8,000,000, and they are selling at the rate of 1,000,000 a year. No one need be without one, as the company disposes of them on exceptionally easy terms, and on the instalment plan. Everyone should see this exhibit.
