Lieut. Frank McCallum Greeted by The Queen.

Post Master McCallum has lately received an interesting letter from his only son, Lieut. Frank McCallum of the Royal Navy. He with other officers was given twelve days leave at Christmas and was right well entertained in London. He attended an affair at Albert Hall at which were present the Queen, the Royal Princesses, the Duke of Connaught and other noblemen, was his good fortune to be addressed by the Queen informally, as were a few other officers. She presented him and the others with a personal greeting card, a silver pencil and a medal. Lieut. McCallum describes her as a "plain, simple, charming woman."

USES RIFLE TO PROTECT PROPERTY

Hartland Was Before the Court
—Summary of County Court Cases—

County Court is in session at Woodstock this week. Judge Carleton addressing the grand jury referred fittingly to the cessation of hostilities, and thanked all concerned in their help to him in his work of re-creating, and commended the people for their wholehearted contributions to the various patriotic outbursts and the victory loans.

In all the criminal cases the grand jury found true bills. At the time of going to press but one case had been disposed of, that of the King vs. Maudsley Davis. This case, it will be remembered, caused much excitement when it first came up in the court of Parish Court. Commissioner Noble at Bristol, Larise, a returned soldier, was employed as Dominion police and was engaged to see that the provisions of the M.S.A. were properly carried out. It was charged that he arrested certain persons whom he encountered not having with them their proper identification cards. These he released, so the information stated, on payment of various sums. He was convicted on the second count, a charge of obtaining in any under false pretences, and he remained for sentence until court closes.

The King vs. Maudsley Davis on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences is being tried today. It is claimed that he received an advance on some hay from Matthias Mesinger and refused to deliver the hay.

The King vs. Charles Wright for assault on H. M. Martell is also occupying the attention of the court today. Still another case is the King vs. Wilmot Shannon for assault on Robert Shannon, another chapter in the litigation from Greenfield that goes on from session to session.

A case attracting much local interest will come up tomorrow. This is the King vs. Roy Rigby, charged with shooting at Fred Clarke with intent to do grievous bodily harm. The incident upon which this is founded occurred only on Tuesday of this week, and the scene of the alleged misdemeanor is a mile above the town of Hartland. The simplest terms the story can be told in is that Rigby forbade Clarke breaking out a winter road across his farm, and told him he would shoot if he crossed the line. Clarke did not cross, but Rigby fired several shots, within the line. It is quite likely that if he aimed at Clarke he would have hit him, as he is a noted crack shot. Mr. Rigby informed The Observer that he purposely fired within the line, and that his reason for firing was to make trespassing on his land an undesirable proceeding.

The origin of this matter is the claims of the residents of the upper Rockland road to have a new road made to avoid an almost impassible hill. The road was laid out by the proper officials and settlement was made with all the property owners affected but Rigby. He refused to accept the proffered payment, and the money has been deposited with the county secretary pending such time as Rigby might see fit to accept it. The denouement of the whole affair will probably be announced tomorrow.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE PROGRESSING

Amounts Apportioned to Different Districts

The Committee appointed to apportion to each school district the same each will be asked to contribute to the Salvation Army Million Dollar Drive have been very busy at work during the past week. Last evening Chairman Morgan and Secretary Cameron of the committee called at The Observer office and presented for publication the following facts:

Each district has been asked to give really a small sum and it is expected that each will go well over the top. There has been apportioned to Newburgh district $10; Lower Brighton $20; Hartland $150; Upper Brighton $15; East Brighton $10; Highgate $10; Ashland $15; Coldstream $25; East Coldstream $15; Bannock $10; Lower Windsor $15; Windsor $50; Armond $15; Knowlsville $10; Mainstream $10; Carleton $15; Howard Brook $10; Cloverdale $15; East Cloverdale $10. One or two collectors will be appointed in each place who will go among their neighbors and solicit funds for the purpose. The money is to carry on the good work of the Salvation Army in caring for wounded soldiers, returned soldiers, and their dependents. The Army has spent more than $2,000,000 in its good work and has never before asked for a single dollar of help.

Every section of country and every creed will gladly give a little to help on this work. Soliciting will commence and conclude next week. Carleton county is expected to give $3000, and will readily do so.

Mrs. Robert Blackie of Upper Brighton was a pleasant caller at The Observer office today.

TOWN FATHERS IN THEIR FIRST SESSION

Appoint Committees and Officers and Get Ready for Real Work

Thursday, Jan. 6, marked an epoch in Hartland. On that day the first town council had its first session for business. Mayor Keith was in the chair and the full board of aldermen were in their places. It was deemed fitting that the blessing of God be called on the auspicious event and accordingly Rev. T. Spencer Crisp, pastor of the Methodist church, read a chapter of the Book of Daniel, offered a prayer, and made a short and very fitting address.

Mayor Keith addressed the aldermen, briefly expressing his appreciation of the honor conferred on him and promising to carry on the duties of office to the best of his ability. He felt that there was much need of careful, painstaking work and urged each alderman to forget self-interest, sectional or party interests, and devote himself to the new town.

Then followed the appointment of committees as follows:

Finance Committee:

E. C. Morgan
J. T. G. Carr
A. F. Campbell

Street Committee:

R. W. Cameron
Dr. MacIntosh
Geo. O. Britton

Police Committee:

Frank Hagerman
A. A. Nevers
A. F. Campbell

Bye-Law Committee:

Dr. MacIntosh
R. W. Cameron

The town is entitled to send a representative to the county or 1, and Frank Hagerman was given the honor. He will prove a valuable member at the council board.

Owen Clark was appointed road commissioner.

M. L. Hayward was designated as town clerk and since he will be present at each session his service as legal adviser will be always available.

Frank R. Kelly, Esq., is the town treasurer and it will be his duty to collect the taxes.

A. L. Baird was appointed auditor.

The work of preparing the Bye-Laws is completed and the council is ready for its first real meeting which will be held some evening next week. Thereafter regular meetings will be held monthly.

The water works corporation and the school district are still separate from the town. The latter is likely to remain separate but it is likely that at the forthcoming session of the legislature an act will be passed merging the water works with the town corporation.

The doings of the next session of the council will, as was the last, be of historic interest and will be swathed with much interest.

Bring the session a resolution as follows was moved by Alderman Morgan and seconded by Alderman Cameron:

"Resolved, that the council of town of Hartland place on record our expression of deep gratitude and thanksgiving to Almighty God for the glorious victory he has given to our armies and our allies, which has brought about the cessation of hostilities, and the prospect of an early and everlasting peace, and further resolved That we place on record an expression of our grateful appreciation and admiration for those brave heroes who have so

On the Mountain

By Susan E. Claggett

From the railroad a faint path stretched upward to a cabin high on the mountain above Horseshoe Bend. The same path continued downward to a cluster of houses, broadened into a narrow road, and came to a full stop before a rough porch, upon which several men were seated in varying degrees of comfort.

They were listening to one of their number. He was reading, with a trace of impatience—as if compelling himself to be neighborly when his desire was to hasten away—the market reports, the sporting page and the stock market. But what interested him, the war news, apparently did not hold their attention. They turned deaf ears to news from the front, but were absorbed in the Army and Navy ball game that had taken place the day before in Philadelphia.

With a sigh of relief, Willy Warren at last folded his paper, wished them good-day and, walking rapidly away, was soon lost to view upon the higher path. As he disappeared from sight the chair of Uncle Johnny Peyton thud, and the old man said, addressing no one in particular:

"Pears like Billy's mighty low in his mind. He's in a heap of trouble I'm thinking."

"What sort of trouble, Uncle John?" a girl asked casually, as she came through the door of the post office and general store.

"Now, Miss Ma'y, y'know he's 'listed an' don't know what'll becom o' his leedle gal. He's feared he'll have to go 'fore he kin place her."

"I had not heard; but things right themselves in time, and this will be straightened out."

"Maybe, Miss Ma'y, maybe. But y'know Billy's got no one, leavewise down hyar. There's an old aunt in Joway, an' I guess he's wot to her, but hain't seen fit to answer, so I reckon she's dead. Course the fever tuk her, but he's riz her diffrent. She's a pretty leedle gal."

"Billy don't b'long hyar, y'know. He jest come. Something the matter with him. Never hear tell of his wife. Jest come with that gal an' she was a baby. Hired that cabin up yonder an' didn't make front till the fever tuk we-alls, then he come down an' tuk kyar of Jim," nodding toward a mountaineer sitting on the steps, "then he tuk hold o' me. Reckin we'd both be in the boneyard if he hadn't."

"So he made friends, after all," said the girl. "I think the child will be taken care of, Uncle Johnny."

"Sure. But that's not the p'int, Miss Ma'y. She's riz diffrent." His voice took on a wheedling tone. "I jest wonder if you couldn't think up some way to help Billy? He sartainly needs it."

"That would be unwarrantable interference, Uncle Johnny. I scarcely know Mr. Warren."

"Don't take no stock in sich talk," said Uncle Johnny, reaching for his twist of tobacco and cutting off a piece of goodly size. "When it comes to doin' things, an' thinkin' up things, Miss Ma'y, you're right smart. You didn't know we-uns when you come do the mountains, but you now has us trained to eat from your hand—almost."

She threw back her head and laughed heartily. "Almost is well put, Uncle Johnny; but I do not see how I can help you in this."

"Won't hurt to think erbout it, anyhow, an' p'haps you'll see light," was his concluding comment, as, with a glance toward the faintly outlined path she turned from the group and walked away.

She had been in the mountain three years—at first for her health, then because it claimed her. She had heard all about Billy Warren, had occasionally met him, but save for the most courteous no word had passed between them. For some reason he had not impressed her pleasantly. This was probably due to the fact that he had made no effort to know better one who had made friends with all the mountain people.

But the talk of old John Peyton, or some subconscious sense of trouble in the man himself as he stood shently beside her that morning, waiting for his mail, influenced her in the direction of her walk that afternoon. Yet she was not aware that she had been so influenced until she found herself watching a child dabbled bare feet in the rushing water of a tiny stream while she hushed a cornucopia doll to sleep.

There was no fear in the child's eyes as she raised them to the woman beside her. Instead there was a whispered "hush; you'll wake her. She's been real sick and is just going to sleep."

Mary Hilton dropped upon the ground, and in an equally low voice asked what was wrong.

"Daddy says it's a case of mumps or measles, he's not sure which; but she's been so awfully cross and has tired me so, he says there is no living with either of us."

"Betty, to whom are you talking?" The voice came from the shadow of the cabin.

"A pretty lady, honey?"

"Don't talk me fairy tales, child; pretty ladies don't climb the mountain."

"She looks real daddy. Shad I pinch her and find out?"

"I wouldn't. I'll come and find out for myself. There was a rustle of leaves, and Mary Hilton raised her eyes to Billy Warren's face.

She did not move, and the child, with steadily advancing fingers, again asked: "Shall I pinch her, daddy?"

He did not reply. Instead he drew his hand across his eyes as if uncertain as to the reality. When he did speak his voice was sadly unsteady.

"Thank God! Hereafter I shall always believe in prayer."

Mary looked at him thoughtfully. "You have been praying, and I am an answer to your prayer? In what way, especially?"

"You have come."

"You wanted me?"

"Yes."

"Then why did you not come to me?"

"I want help. I could not ask for it unless as a last resort. Offered, it is different."

"And you think I will offer it?"

"Judging from your goodness to the mountain people. You give comfort to them."

"That is different. They are poor. In my humble way, I give help where it is needed. Years ago I took a course of training in an eastern hospital. It has stood me in good stead in my life here. But my work does not approach yours. You are a physician?"

"An army surgeon, retired on account of ill health, which I have regained on the mountain. You know what that means at this time. I am ordered to Fort Oglethorpe by the 15th. That leaves me but two days, and I feared I would have to ask for that which I hope will be offered."

"And that is?"

His gesture toward the child was eloquent. "I am all she has."

"If I do this thing, do you surrender her entirely, or will you claim her upon your return?"

His eyes held hers with an expression quickly veiled. "I will not return."

"I do not quite understand," she replied slowly. "We are strangers. You must have friends who would gladly do this for you."

"Yes, but I would choose you from all the world."

There was a certain controlled emotion in his voice that affected her strangely, and she rose to her feet.

"Again I say that I do not understand."

"That is natural." He walked the length of the level in front of the cabin and back. "Upon the eve of a great upheaval a man can allow himself a certain latitude of expression, especially when he knows it can do no harm," he said gravely. "I do not expect to return. Because I am convinced of this, I can say to you what under other circumstances would be little short of impudence, for, as you can see, I am a stranger. But I beg you to care for my son when you first come to the mountain. I want you to know this, and to believe it. I could not let you know before. My wife—I do not wish to speak of her. She is dead, and I offer you not affront when I tell you that I love you. It is because of this I wish to leave Betty in your care."

With troubled eyes Mary looked toward the child. "I did not imagine this."

"How could you? My effort has been to keep you from knowing. Will you do this for me, now that you do know? It will be my comfort when my time comes, 'over there.'" He turned from her, looking out into the limitless space. "It will be my comfort," he repeated.

"Why are you so sure you will not return?"

"There would be no incentive, with Betty cared for."

Then it was that Mary surprised herself by saying deliberately. "Mr. Warren, if I told you that my interest—"

"Interest! I would want something more than interest," he interrupted.

"Would that not do for the present?"

"No. It must be something more direct."

For long she hesitated, then said steadily. "I think it is more than interest. I am not sure. But if an overwhelming anxiety for your safe return is an evidence of a deeper feeling, it is yours."

He took her hand, raising it to his lips. "In that case, Mary Hilton, God willing, I will return to you and Betty."

The Black Sheep

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

Reluctantly Jason Hall reproached Pierce Duntley when he gave up his position as a store clerk and joined a show. Duntley did not become an actor of performer, but to the grave, strict, deacon the circus was an abolition and the theater a deep pit. He bluntly informed Duntley that he was on the downward path and intimated that he should see to it that he did not also drag his wife and child to destruction.

"But not interfere," advised Duntley in his offhand way. "I see a chance to make money, and I'm going to take it."

Edith, the wife and daughter, was grieved, but she accepted the situation unannouncedly. She knew the restive spirit of this impulsive husband of hers, and hoped a brief experience would cure him of the roving taint. Each month Duntley came home for a couple of days. He dressed better and had great dreams of sometime owning a show of his own.

The dismal deacon continued to protest. He called the behavior of his son-in-law simply disgraceful. The censorious and narrow-minded father worked on poor Edith until, when Duntley came back from a long trip, he found the household effects in storage and Edith and the baby under the parental roof.

"Give up your nefarious calling, get back to honest work, and your wife will come back to you," said Jason Hall. "Otherwise, I shall see to it that there is a legal separation."

A coolness grew up between man and wife. Duntley flung away, angry, defiant, stubborn. A year went by and he did not reappear. Stories were retold to the effect that Duntley had been seen at a picnic in the midst of a rollicking, wine-bibbing set of men and women. Another story was that Duntley had been manager for Mlle. Estrella, "the brilliant, meteoric trapeze artist." In a quiet way a divorce was secured. The deacon died, and Edith, taking her child, little Paul, with her, removed to a quiet country town.

One day Edith left little Paul in charge of the nurse for the day. Her plan was to visit a friend in a neighboring village.

"I'll take the baby down to my sister's, and spend the day there, if you don't object," said Mary.

Mrs. Duntley reached the next town, to find her friend away. She returned home, and went to the home of the sister of the nurse, to find them both chatting on the porch. Mary turned pale as she viewed her mistress.

"I found my friend absent," explained Mrs. Duntley, "and I thought I would come and see Paul home."

The nurse displayed embarrassment and was trembling all over. Abruptly she burst into tears.

"Oh, ma'am," she sobbed, "the baby is not here."

"Not here?" cried Edith in quick alarm. "Has anything happened to Paul?"

"No, ma'am," dissented Mary wearily; "but, oh! you'll never forgive me, but a gentleman has taken a great fancy to Paul, and he asked me to let him have Paul with him for today."

"Where? Where?" gasped the agitated mother.

"At the hotel."

"And you left my darling with a stranger?" cried Edith. "Wretched woman! Take me at once to my child. Who is this man?"

"He is—oh, ma'am, forgive me! forgive me! He is your husband—that was."

They made due haste to the hotel. Mary knew the room Duntley occupied, his door was open. Pleased, prattling tones mingled with tender masculine ones. On the floor was Paul, and near to him his father. The place was littered with toys.

Into the room Edith rushed and clasped the boy in her arms, as though from the jaws of peril. Pierce Duntley regarded her gravely. His face and bearing suggested a sedateness that had not formerly existed.

"You—you have changed," spoke Edith, rather abashed at the reproachful look her husband bestowed upon her.

"Somewhat," nodded Duntley. "Not that I was ever as bad as Father Hall fancied me. That wild rage in the woods was simply a morose scene in which I figured. Mlle. Estrella, the dancing trapeze artist whom I managed, was grandmother to eight children. But Father Hall was right—it was a trifling life and now I am part of a great humanitarian society, spreading education in the dark places of the earth. On that mission I leave for Hawaii next week, and I had had to see the dear little fellow here before I went away."

"Paul want good man come home with him," here cried out the little fellow, and ran back to his father and put his arms about his neck.

"No, little man; but I'm going to send all those toys home with you."

"I'm a lonesome man," said Pierce sadly. "Couldn't you forget—there isn't much to forgive, except my old, roving ways—because of the love I have always cherished for you?"

She could not resist the momentary appeal. They were remembered, and Edith became a co-partner with Pierce in his great life work.

A Chance Acquaintance

By Florence Lilian Henderson

Nellie Morse had seen the young man only twice, but she was pleasantly surprised when he lifted his hat, and she smilingly replied to his courtesy. The first time was when, crossing the street, the handle of the little basket she was carrying passed and some supplies from the delicatessen store were scattered far and wide.

The young man had gathered up the various articles, both had laughed merrily over the mishap, betraying Nellie's fondness for Swiss cheese, rye bread and pickles. Now they met again, and both were glad to pass the situation of something more than strangers.

"I see you have struck up an acquaintance with our neighbor, Mr. Philip Dexter, the art engraver," spoke a pleasant voice—that of Mrs. Rhoades, landlady of the house where Nellie and numerous other young women earning their living as stenographers and clerks had their abode.

"Oh, is that his name?" said Nellie, a trifle flushed.

"Yes, he rooms across the court, directly opposite your apartment. Mr. Nellie got her own supper on her little gas stove that evening. Then she went into her bedroom adjoining the little closet that did for a kitchen, and did not turn on the light. She sat down by the window, half-dressed over, and looked across the court, and how strange, how near and almost romantic!" soliloquized Nellie, smiling at the folly of a passing fancy.

"That must be Mr. Dexter's room, but the frost on the window obscures all view. Yes, that must be the brave rescuer of my delicatessen deliveries," added Nellie, as a shadow fell across the windowpane. "Why, he is drawing."

She held her breath with a strange sensation as, across the broad, frosty upper pane a quick, left hand, manly, slighting tool of pencil, began sketching the profile of a human face.

"Why!" exclaimed Nellie. "It's me!"

Yes, Nellie had a saucy, unbecomingly stray lock that always came out of place across her forehead. She had a reticent smile, as well. There could be no doubt that the artistic hand at work was dimming faithfully from memory her own features.

And then the room across the court evidently warmed up, and slowly, but effectively, the fair face drawn vanishingly into the distance, and, with a slight sigh, Nellie sentimentally wondered if the fleeting interest of the young man had likewise faded into thin air.

Life had been stern and hard to Nellie. Left an orphan, she had been compelled to work for a living. More utterly, too, she had contributed to the partial support of a married and deserted sister. That sister was now seeking a legal separation from a more than unworthy husband, who had persecuted her sorely, who was even now being sought for by the police for his crimes, and who was a haunting menace to the two loyal sisters, and Winifred Allen was practically in hiding until the law gave her husband no further claim upon her.

Nellie came home one evening about a week later. The room was cold and damp, the heat having been shut off since morning, and the windows were coated with steam. She had just taken off her wraps when the door of the room opened quickly, closed and was locked with a click, and Richard Allen stood planted at her.

"Didn't expect me?" sneered Allen. "Well, I've located you. Now, for the other one. Where is my wife hiding?"

"How dare you intrude?" began Nellie; but the other faced her with a murderous gleam in his evil eyes.

"No dramatics!" he said, sharply. "I'm hunted and I'm desperate. I want to see Winifred and I'm going to. I'll give you just five minutes to decide to take me to her, or I'll slit that pretty white throat of yours, and here afterwards, if I find her. Do come, please, and do it quick, for I'm in dead earnest."

Nellie shuddered and thrilled. She knew the reckless, cruel nature of the man. She shrank to the window and leaned her forehead against the sash, trying to think of some way to baffle this ruffian from justice. Nellie gazed as she lifted her eyes. The upper sash was partially clear. She saw, seated near the window in his room across the way, Philip Dexter. She moved her hand to attract his attention. Then, softly, rapidly, on the lower, steam-clouded sash she traced with her finger the words:

"Come—come quick!"

"What are you up to there?" asked out Allen harshly, springing forward, bustling with suspicion.

Nellie darted for the little kitchen closet. She slammed the door shut against the furious visitor, and clung to it as he endeavored to pull it open. He went flat on the floor as Nellie let go of the inside knob. At that moment Philip Dexter burst into the room.

There was a fierce struggle between the two men, but Nellie ran out and shrieked for help. Richard Allen went into the hands of the police, where he belonged, and out of harm's way.

Comedy—the chance meeting on the street. Near tragedy—Nellie's rescue, and after that—sweet romance, and love, and two earnest young souls wedged into one.

A Pronouncement

The purpose of The Victoria Observer is to serve in every way the very best interests of the county irrespective of party or of creed. Without putting itself out to be so and without sacrificing any other interests The Observer is a Liberal newspaper. It believes in the general principle of Liberalism. Still it advocates Union Government before it was known if our own member would also advocate it. So far as the politics of the province is concerned The Observer is entirely a free lance. The Observer was a strong advocate for a change of government and the expulsion from power of the timber grafters, the potato profiteers, and the railroad exploiters. But it is not fully assured that the people in charge are above following after the devices of their antecedents when the chance becomes really good.

Premier Foster has frankly told the editor that he didn't know who he was and never heard tell of him. Mr. Tweeddale has not paid his subscription to The Observer in 30 years. Naturally we've an editor's part to play, a country editor's weaknesses and foibles, and we don't care a hang for these "big fellows." In fact, we cannot consider them very "big"—as yet. The people of Victoria never heard tell of Premier Foster until he came to them begging a chance to "sit."

This outlines the position and attitude of The Victoria Observer but its sympathy is with the local government. It has the chance to make good, which may come perhaps, only once in a life-time. We want it to make good; and to this end we want to be more of a help than a hindrance to it. But it must go straight and do things. We hope that while Premier Foster is learning who and what The Observer is the people of Victoria will through The Observer learn who and what he is and where he came from.

In every possible way The Observer can serve Victoria; and it desires to do so. It will cost us many hundreds of dollars to maintain this special industry and we will appreciate honest patronage. If we lack it no one will ever find as on our knees imploring for it.

RICH, RED BLOOD RESISTS INFLUENZA

Its Victims Are Largely Among Weak, Anaemic People.

In the epidemic of la grippe, or influenza, that has swept over Canada, in common with the rest of the world, it has been noticed able that its earliest victims were the thin blooded anaemic people whose power of resistance is greatly weakened because of the watery condition of their blood. When a person is strong, hearty, able to enjoy a brisk cold day, chills and infections are set at defiance. But when the system is run down, when the nerves are shaky and the blood watery, the germs of influenza are quick to seize their opportunity. It is therefore good policy to keep the blood always rich, red and strong, and the nerves well nourished by the use of such a reliable tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. People who take these pills from time to time are usually able to resist colds, influenza and other ailments, and enjoy good health, while many about them are weak, ailing and miserable.

To those who have been attacked by influenza, the after effects are more dangerous than the attack itself. They are left at the mercy of relapses and complications. There is a persistent weakness of the limbs, shortness of breath at the least exertions, poor digestion and a tendency to take cold easily. This condition will persist and will grow worse unless the blood is built up, and the shattered nerves strengthened. For this purpose there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. From first to last these pills make new, rich, red blood, which reaches every organ and every nerve in the body. Thus the lingering germs are driven out, the appetite is improved, and weak, despondent victims of influenza are transformed into cheerful, healthy, happy men and women. If you have passed through an attack of influenza you will find Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the one thing needed to restore you to full health and strength. If the trouble has passed you, you can further strengthen yourself against its insidious advance by the use of this same tonic medicine.

Medicine dealers everywhere sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or you can procure them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

YOU NEXT?

A factory worker was heard to remark, "We often have accidents, but I've escaped so far." He thought he would be next. Yet he was! His injury was only a slight one and he neglected it. It began to fester. Then blood-poisoning set in and developed so quickly that he had to have his arm amputated.

How about you? You may be next! You can safeguard yourself against the result of accidents, as many other people have done, by keeping Zam-Buk always handy.

Miss S. A. Wernicke of Hilton, B.C., accidentally ran a needle so far into her finger that it pierced the bone. She writes: "My hand became so stiff and swollen that I could not use it. I naturally tried every remedy I knew of, but it only got worse. Blood-poisoning developed and extended right up my arm. The pain was intense, and I certainly thought I would lose my arm, which was in a terribly inflamed and swollen state, and literally covered with lumps. A friend advised me to use Zam-Buk, which I did, and it was not long before the pain grew less. With perseverance the inflammation was all drawn out, the swelling and lumps disappeared, and my arm was soon quite well again."

Zam-Buk is also best for eczema and all skin troubles, ulcers, running sores and piles. All stores, 50c.

FAIL TO GERMANIZE HOLLAND

Dutch Character Has Successfully Resisted All Efforts Made by its Powerful Neighbor.

That Germany covets Holland is no diplomatic or other secret. Everybody knows it. Considering the Dutch character and pride in national independence which they have manifested ever since the Dutch language assumed final shape as evidence of distinct nationality, it has seemed best to the Hohenzollerns to proceed by peaceful means, among which none is more patent than intermarriage among influential families. And especially there is desired marriages of German princes and princesses into the House of Orange, which for some centuries, either as stadtholders or kings, has been the governing head of the Dutch state.

There has been great success in securing German marriages. The mother of Queen Wilhelmina was a German princess and her husband is a German prince.

But, while there has been success in securing German husbands or wives for the House of Orange, the assimilation has been from German into Dutch and not from Dutch into German. We recall no German prince or princess who has married into the House of Orange who has not turned out to be as loyal a Dutchman or Dutchwoman as the most ardent Hollander could desire, observes the San Francisco Chronicle.

The fact is that the sturdy Dutch character persists from generation to generation and forms one of the most distinctive types of the human species. This is not because the German rulers have not constantly tried to mold it over, but because they have failed to do so.

And... the modern Germans are impatient that they have dallied so long with peaceful means and are for taking by force what they cannot get otherwise.

"TEDDY" FAILED TO MAKE HIT

Roosevelt Tells of Amusing Experience of His Youthful Days in the Cattle Country.

In the oldtime cattle country and in the backwoods nobody was supposed to think of any necessary work as degrading. Alluding to oldstyle American conditions in a recent issue of the American, Theodore Roosevelt narrates his experiences as a shoe black. He says, reminiscently:

"I remember that once, when there was a lull in outdoor work, I endeavored to be useful in and around the house. I fed the pigs; and on an idle morning I blacked all the boots. Ordinarily our boots did not need blacking—most of them were not that kind. On this occasion I started, with an enthusiasm that outran my judgment, to black the dress boots of every one of both sexes. I coated them with a thick, dull paste; only a few knobs became shiny; and the paste came off freely on what it touched. As a result

I temporarily lost not merely the respect but even the affection of all the other inmates of the house.

"However, I did not lose caste because I had blacked the boots. I lost caste because I had blacked them badly. But I was allowed to continue feeding the pigs. The pigs were not so particular as the humans."

Watch Heart in Lobar Pneumonia. Deaths of pneumonia patients are due either to heart failure or to septicaemia, seldom, it even to insufficient aeration of the blood in the lungs, says Dr. E. P. Hershey of Denver in his prize-answer to the New York Medical Journal's question, "How do you treat lobar pneumonia?"

Dr. Hershey says the heart must be watched and stimulated with digitalis. If it can be obtained the appropriate vaccine is to be used. In spite of prejudice, he recommends the ice bag. If the patient be alcoholic he must have whiskey or brandy; if not, all liquor must be cut out. A generous diet, but without meat, is necessary. Open-air treatment is conquering ancient prejudice. Sudden rise of temperature on the third, fifth or seventh day is no cause for alarm, and depressing medicines at this time may mean death.

Army Horses Good-Tempered. It's a weary, wicked world if you are an army horse. You may or may not approve of shoes, but you've got to have them just the same. The French authorities have an ingenious contrivance which so pions a horse that he has absolutely nothing to say in the matter. It holds his head, and holds his feet and holds his body, and forcibly prevents him from expressing an opinion, or choosing his shoes, or making a protest in any way. If they would only let a fellow get in just one real horse-size kick, one could—but what's the use. In the meantime the farrier gets in his fine work, and then it is too late. Yes, it's a hard, cold, cruel world, so it is. Still, shoes are not so bad and they give a dandy left to one's hind hoofs in arguments later on in the camps.

Shortest Railroad. You have heard of shortest railroads before. Always there's the most abbreviated ever. But off-hand one would grant the prize to Missoula, Mont. It has a railroad only 100 feet long. It connects the Northern Pacific with the C. M. & St. P., and is used as a transfer. It has no equipment, no employees, and no stations, yet the company that owns it gets 50 cents for every car that passes over its rails. Sixteen thousand have done so thus far. Think of it!—Popular Science Monthly.

STORED MUCH FROZEN MEAT

German Authorities, in First Days of War, Mobilized All Resources of Refrigerating Plants.

Berlin has 2,200 tons of frozen meat in its municipal cold storage depots. The supply is replenished from time to time so that it remains at that figure. On their present meat ration of one-half pound, the Vossische Zeitung says, the Berliners are assured of meat enough to last all Greater Berlin two or three weeks, even if there should be a temporary stoppage of replenishments.

How the cold storage of pork has helped Germany to "stick it" is explained in an article in the Chemiker Zeitung. Early in the war, realizing the serious effect of the British blockade on the meat supply, the government directed the refrigerating industry to mobilize its resources on the largest possible scale. It was ordered to make preparations for dealing with millions instead of thousands of pigs. Cold storage plants were enlarged, new ones built, and the system so extended that today there is hardly a local community without its own refrigerating facilities.

Every fortress has a freezing plant of its own. In case of siege it will assist materially in the preservation of perishable foods, especially meat, eggs, fish and butter.

"The German authorities," says the article, "have taken advantage of cold storage to the fullest extent, thereby greatly easing the economic conduct of the war."

TELL OF LONDON'S HISTORY

Collection of Wonderfully Interesting Relics in the Whitechapel Art Galleries.

In a small space in the Whitechapel art galleries there is a fascinating collection which reconstitutes the history of London from the days when the Britons watched the galleys of the Romans sweeping up the Thames river. There are bits of Roman pottery found in the Thames mud. Photographs and prints show how bits of the old Roman wall may still be touched by living hands. And so throughout the long story of the great old city there are remembrances of its varying phases, of its ceaseless change: a beautiful piece of carving by Grindling Gibbons, or one of his school, in a Paul's grotesquely carved brackets of wood that once supported the beams of Tudor houses; iron brackets beautifully wrought by ancient craftsmen; leather jackets, out of which some Falstaff gauded his sack; clay pipes, smoked in Queen Elizabeth's day by men who called the Spanish main; the old Whitechapel parish register, telling of citizens who died of plague, or born and married in the 17th century; the great fire, and when bells of old St. Paul's rang for joy and sorrow.

These, and many other relics bring back the spirit of oldtime London to men and women who go to the museum and restrain pace from the rush of modern life in Whitechapel.

Some Old-Day Battles.

The great odds in numbers which the British army has had to face on the western front is no rare experience in its annals. Wellington has borne witness to that fact in his remarks that Talavera was the only battle in which he had a numerical superiority, owing to the presence of the Spaniards, who, while showing much personal gallantry, were badly led. At all his other battles he had fewer men than the enemy. "At Salamanca I had 40,000 men, and the French perhaps 45,000. At Vittoria I had 60,000 men against 70,000. At Waterloo the proportion was still more against me. I had 64,000 to 68,000; Napoleon had 80,000. The whole army in the south of France under my command was considerably larger than the force of Soult; the battle of Toulouse, but in numbers actually employed in that battle I had less than he." All of which goes to show that strength and success do not necessarily lie with mere weight of numbers. There are other factors vastly more essential.—Christian Science Monitor.

Braking Airplane While Flying.

A braking mechanism for airplanes has recently been introduced, according to the Popular Science Monthly. This consists of two rectangular planes of small area, mounted on a shaft that runs along the rear edge of the main plane, and passes through the fuselage. The control is by means of a hand-wheel and connections, which act in conjunction with a handbrake.

When an airplane is flying at a rate of a hundred miles an hour the air pressure is not less than 30 pounds to the square foot. It will thus be seen that the added resistance of a few extra square feet of canvas has a very great retarding action on the speed of the plane.

Scouts' War Gardens.

The food production and garden campaign of the Boy Scouts of America is well under way, says Boy's Life. Every scout and, indeed, every troop and every local council, according to reports, is definitely interested in some way.

This year every scout is asked to be responsible for securing one adult to agree to work with him on the scout's individual garden or on the troop garden or on the local council garden. The adult might be a scout's father, his brother or his sister's best fellow, his uncle or indeed any man who will faithfully stick to the job until the crops are harvested.

Electrons and Atoms.

Atoms are minute particles of matter, each about one-three-hundredth part of an inch in diameter. They are so small that if the earth were made up of baseballs it would be a fair model of a drop of water made up of atoms. The electron is smaller still; it has a diameter of about one-hundred-thousandth that of an atom, so that if an atom were represented by a sphere 100 yards in diameter the electron would be about the size of a pin's head. It has been said that the electrons which form an atom can be compared to a swarm of gnats in a cathedral or other large building. As atoms are made up of electrons, so molecules are made up of atoms.

We MUST provide for the need of the Soldier and his family!

It is absolutely necessary to ensure certain safeguards and comforts to our boys over there and over here, so that they may be re-established in Canada, strong in body and soul, contented that we at home have stood by them to the finish. What sacrifice can we make for the boys who were prepared to sacrifice everything for us?

What the Salvation Army Has Done

It has provided comforts for fighting men since the twelfth day of the War. Hundreds of thousands of parcels of food and clothing for the boys. Tens of thousands of beds in Hostels in daily use in France, England and Canada. 197 Huts for Soldiers. 1,200 uniformed workers. 45 ambulances. Thousands of War widows cared for. Looked after soldiers' families. Labored for the Master. Helped to preserve the home ties. Given the MOTHER touch to lonely men.

What Remains to be Done

Keep the Hostels open and open more, so that every returning soldier can get a clean bed and wholesome meals at a price he can afford to pay. Provide comforts and safeguards for our boys, advancing into Germany, as well as those coming home and needing a place to eat and sleep, in Halifax, St. John, Quebec, Montreal, Kingston, Toronto, London, Chatham, Winnipeg or Vancouver. Guide and assist soldiers' families, especially the widows and orphans.

Work on the river bridge is to start forthwith. A crew of men is expected at once and they will commence dismantling the condemned pier, salvaging the iron work, the most of which is good and serviceable as new.

It will appear strange to people of Carleton county to read that the river closed at Perth on Jan. 10, two days earlier than last year. The river has been closed at Hartland since the second week in December, and in 1917 it closed Nov. 28.

An observant farmer says that he knows the coming winter is to be an open one, from the fact that hornets' nests are found in the ground, and on the bushes, indicating, as he thinks, that the hornets know that there would not be snow enough to protect their nests if they were placed on the bushes.—Review.

How much is three per cent of one cent? A man at one of our Fort Fairfield stores the other day passed out five cents for a paper. He received two cents back in change, one of them being a Canadian cent. He rather indignantly refused to take it, stating as his reason that there is three per cent discount on Canadian money. How is that for setting the thing down fine?—Fort Fairfield Review.

Horace Sayles, son of Mrs. M. Sayles of Beaufort, was reported killed in action three days after the armistice was signed. This was a particularly sad case, as the widowed mother had joined with the rest of us in joy and gratitude at the cessation of hostilities, only to be cruelly disappointed.

Victor Sayles, son of Mrs. M. Sayles of Beaufort, is dead of pneumonia. He leaves a young wife and one child, besides his widowed mother. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. M. H. Manuel, the funeral taking place during the illness of his rector, Rev. N. Franchette.

A special meeting of the United Farmers will be held at the Armory, Hartland, on Saturday, Jan. 18, at 2 p.m. to further consider the matter of starting a co-operative store. Salvation Army Has Independent Audit of Books.

The thirty-sixth Annual Financial Statement of the Salvation Army for Canada East, Newfoundland, and Bermuda, for the past year, has just been issued from the office of Commissioner Richards. Some of the chief institutions supported by the Army's funds are: Thirteen Rescue and Children's Homes and Hospitals from London to Halifax; Men's Hostels at London, Hamilton, Quebec, St. John, N. B., St. John's, Nfld., Toronto, Montreal, and Halifax; Training Colleges, Young People's Work, Prison-gate Work, Salvages, and many other branches of the Army's activities which call for considerable outlays of money.

The books of the Salvation Army are audited by independent auditors and are on file and open for the inspection of the public. The business of the Army is conducted on modern principles just as any large commercial or financial institution is conducted. Every account is kept separate, and the financial management is in the hands of Lieut.-Colonel A. E. Smeeton, who is a chartered accountant of ripe experience.

AUTO-INTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Absolutely Prevents This Dangerous Condition.

The chief cause of poor health is our neglect of the bowels. Waste matter, instead of passing from the lower intestine regularly every day, is allowed to remain there, generating poisons which are absorbed by the blood.

In other words, a person who is habitually constipated, is poisoning himself. We know now that Auto-intoxication, due to non-action of the bowels, is directly responsible for serious Kidney and Bladder Troubles; that it upsets the Stomach, causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Sleeplessness; that chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Pain In The Back, are relieved as soon as the bowels become regular; and that Pimples, Rashes, Eczema and other Skin Affections disappear when "Fruit-a-tives" are taken to correct Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will protect you against Auto-intoxication because this wonderful fruit medicine acts directly on all the eliminating organs. 60c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Former Waterville Woman Dies At Fort Fairfield.

Caroline Amelia Kimball, wife of William T. Andrews, died at 130 Clark Thursday afternoon, January 2 after serious illness of the past few years and after poor health extending over more than ten years. The principal troubles were affection of the heart also Bright's disease.

The funeral took place at the Reformed Baptist church at 1:30 Sunday afternoon, the pastor, Rev. C. S. Hilyard, officiating, and speaking words of comfort and hope to mourning friends. The floral offerings were beautiful indeed and very plentiful. Mrs. Andrews was the daughter of the late J. J. Kimball and Elizabeth Kimball of Waterville, where she was born April 2, 1861. She moved to Fort Fairfield about 25 years ago, for a time keeping house for her brother, the late Everett G. Kimball. She was married to William T. Andrews at Bath, May 25, 1897. No children were born of this union, but an adopted daughter, Hazel Kimball Andrews, has lived in Mr. and Mrs. Andrews the most affectionate of parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews lived for years on a farm on the north side of the river, moving from it last

How to Remove Pains Caused by Kidney Trouble

It may be news to you, but it is history to thousands of persons, who have suffered from Backache, Painful Urination, Swollen Joints, Constant Headaches, etc., that Gin Pills remedy Kidney and Bladder troubles by first removing the cause.

The cause of all Kidney diseases such as Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, etc., is congested Kidneys. Kidneys that fail to perform their function of filtering the poisons and impurities from the blood. These poisons remaining in the system are the direct cause of a chain of dreaded diseases.

If you've never heard of Gin Pills before ask any of your friends about them. Gin Pills have been on the market for years; they are the old reliable remedy for Backache, etc. If you suffer from any Kidney or Bladder afflictions try Gin Pills.

Should you not care to buy them as an experiment, a sample box will be sent to you on request.

Gin Pills contain the beneficial ingredient of Gin without the slightest trace of alcohol. For many years bottled Gin was considered the ready remedy for Kidney or Bladder troubles. Scientific research proved, however, that the reason for this was due purely to the extract of Juniper it contained and nothing else. From hundreds of letters received by us we are convinced that all any sufferer of Kidney or Bladder trouble needs to do is try Gin Pills—and they will find relief at once.

March, however, and selling the farm to James Malloy. They have since resided on the George W. Peavey place, Forest avenue. Besides her husband, Mrs. Andrews leaves two brothers—Frank T. and Birden H. Kimball.

Mrs. Andrews was a woman of fine and impressive appearance and magnificent physique, and of a quiet and thoughtful turn of mind, always being considerate and kind towards others.

In spite of her poor health she was for years almost the picture of health. Like all the other members of her family she was a fine singer. She was a charter member of the Reformed Baptist church of Fort Fairfield, and always a devoted and exemplary member. A host of friends will mourn over the passing of a woman good in every one of life's relations.—Review.

Aroostook Potatoes.

Potatoes have been bringing from $2.75 to $2.90, the trend of the past week being upward but at a very slow gait indeed. Only a moderate number have arrived in the market everybody holding and hoping for better prices. Stories that have been going through some of the papers to the effect that some of the Aroostook stock shows rot hardly seem backed up by the facts, as the very small amount of dry rot shown compares favorably indeed with the potato conditions of the most favorable years. In fact the stock in general is excellent.—Fort Fairfield Review.

Guard The Baby Against Colds.

To guard the baby against colds nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are a mild laxative that will keep the little one's stomach and bowels working regularly. It is a recognized fact that where the stomach and bowels are in good order that colds will not exist; that the health of the little one will be good and that he will thrive and be happy and good natured. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mrs. James Scott

The death occurred of Mrs. Margaret Scott on January 8 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Potts, after a short illness of pneumonia. The late Mrs. Scott was born in Bass River, Kent Co. 73 years ago, a daughter of the late David H. Keswick. For some years she resided in Hillsboro, Albert Co. After Mr. Scott retired from business they came to Hartland, taking up their residence with Mr. and Mrs. Potts, where Mr. Scott predeceased her six and one half years ago. She made many warm friends. She leaves to mourn her loss, a daughter, Mrs. Ida Spike, Andover, two sisters, Mrs. Mary Pyne of Fitchburg, Mass., and R. J. Potts, one brother, Wm. Keswick of Bass River. The late John Keswick of Minneapolis, D. H. Keswick, Hartland, and Ezra Keswick of Harcourt were brothers. Mrs. Scott leaves also a great many nephews and nieces among whom are Mrs. T. T. Hammond and Harris Keswick, Hartland.

The funeral service was held on Friday afternoon, conducted by Rev. M. H. Manuel of Florenceville, assisted by Rev. P. J. Trafton, and Rev. T. S. Crip. Fernando Meyer Killed in Battle

"Little Fernando Meyer," as he is remembered by the people of Hartland, where he lived with his father, "Jack the German," has been killed in battle. The family went from here soon after the fire of 1907. Fernando learned the printing trade in Fort Fairfield and enlisted in Florida where he had been working.

The Fort Fairfield Review says: Fernando P. Meyer, son of Julius P. Meyer, the painter, who lived in Fort Fairfield some years ago, was killed in battle in France October 21. His age was about 22 years. Fernando was one of the first boys to go over, and had seen a lot of hard fighting. He was a volunteer, doing his bit for the cause of liberty, and not being deterred from doing so by the fact that he was of German descent, his father, being a German. Fernando some years ago worked in the Review office, so that we know and appreciated him well. He has a sister, Mrs. Fern Barrows, who lives in Oakfield. Yes, it is indeed a sad thing to see a young man butchered, yet there is a sad but real satisfaction in knowing that, under the awful circumstances, he could not die a nobler death or in a better cause.

A Necessity In The House.

Most of the common ills of life arise from a torpid, sluggish condition of the Liver, Kidneys or Bowels, and because they act on each of these organs in a direct and specific way, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills overcome serious and painful diseases over which ordinary medicines have no control.

Kindled Fire With Kerosene Two Lives Lost as Frightful Consequence.

A sad accident occurred at Caribou on Friday, Jan. 3, in which Mrs. Walter Levesque lost her life. Unfortunately it was the usual carelessness of putting oil in the coal stove to start a fire, and causing it to explode. Mrs. Levesque was burned so badly that she passed away after six hours of intense suffering. Mr. Levesque was also severely injured in trying to save his wife that he was unable to attend the funeral. Mrs. Levesque is the daughter of Amos Barclay of South Tilley. The remains were brought to South Tilley on Saturday to the home of her parents, and the funeral was held on Sunday from the Lerwick Primitive Baptist church.

Rev. G. A. Giberson of Bath preached a very impressive sermon to one of the largest gatherings of relatives and friends of the departed one ever seen in South Tilley. The choir of Perth rendered some choice selections, Favorite hymns of the family.

Mrs. Levesque was 23 years of age and leaves besides her husband three small children, the youngest being but five weeks old, and besides these her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Barclay, and brothers and sisters at home.

The community was shocked, and great sympathy goes out to the bereaved husband and little ones. Particular mention must be made of the grief stricken parents who loved Agnes so much, but Mr. and Mrs. Barclay are Christians and very much respected by all who know them, and they are bearing up under the strain with that fortitude which only those who are putting their trust in God can do.

The interment took place in the Lerwick cemetery, the spot of her own selection and which she loved.

An explosion, caused by Mrs. Warren Corey, wife of a railroad section foreman at Howe Brook, near Presque Isle pouring kerosene into a lighted stove, set fire to the house and destroyed it. A sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Corey was burned to death, and the parents were seriously injured. They were taken to the Portland hospital.

THINGS THAT GROW DOUBLE

Franks of Nature That the Wiscot of Men Find Some Difficulty in Explaining.

Nature does some strange things in the formation of vegetables, nuts and different kinds of fruits, an exchange takes place. It is quite common to find two or more growing together, and naturalists frequently run across some very curious freaks.

Double ears of corn are quite common. They grow side by side, and are sometimes of equal size; but usually one has a little better chance to grow and gets the advantage over the other.

A double ear, on exhibition in one of the Western states was certainly a curiosity. One side was one variety of corn, while the other side was so different that it was hard to believe the two had grown so close together.

Double heads of wheat are quite common, but double grains are rarer. Grains of rye, however, are often double, and the same is true of rice.

Onions, radishes, beets, carrots, turnips, cabbages and other vegetables are often found in double form.

The prettiest specimens of double peaches are those with two seeds, as they are most distinctly double, being joined at a point about half-way from the stem of the blossom ends.

IF you had a sore place, and had to choose between two remedies, one of which went to the sore spot direct, and the other by a round-about way, which would you prefer? Undoubtedly, the one that gets there direct!

That is just the reason for people's preference for Peps for ailments of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. Peps get there direct, because they are breathable, while remedies which are swallowed only go to the stomach.

Dissolve Peps in the mouth, and the vapor which is liberated is carried by the breath direct to the breathing passages and immediate relief of the lungs, destroying all germs, and soothing, heating, and strengthening the delicate membranes.

Once you try Peps you will never use any other remedy for coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchitis, tightness across the chest, night cough, laryngitis or asthma. All dealers sell box.

Caroline Thinks It Out

By Mona Cowles

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"To get up in the morning and make your own coffee and boil your own eggs and make toast for yourself is all very well, and good for a girl when she is single, but to have to do that sort of thing is quite different when one is married," Caroline had said with a very definite air five years ago on the memorable afternoon when Horace Blair had proposed to her. "I don't in the least mind living here in this two-room apartment now and I suppose you are quite comfortable in the boarding house, but to have to live in three or four rooms or to have to go to boarding after we are married would be really quite impossible."

Horace fondled the hand he held and looked dejectedly at the girl who had just permitted him to measure for the engagement ring.

"You are a very sensible girl, Caroline," he said, "and I suppose you are right."

"Of course, I'm right," she agreed. "At twenty I might have been foolish and romantic. Then I might have supposed that I could be happy and make myself happy on my thousand-dollar-a-year income and your salary of three thousand."

"Twenty-eight hundred," Horace corrected with a sigh.

"With an occasional picture I could sell that would come to no more than forty-five hundred." She sighed and shook her head.

"I'm sorry, Horace, but it can't be done. I've seen other girls try to do it and—well, perhaps they are happy—but we couldn't live the way we do. You wouldn't want to try. It would mean living in a suburb somewhere with an incompetent maid and wearing ready-made clothes—yes, I know I have to now, but I won't always be young. At thirty I would look a mess in a ready-made suit—and we would have to keep eternally counting the money, and if we went to the theater we'd have to sit in the gallery."

"We've had rather good fun that way, haven't we?" Horace murmured.

"Yes, Horace dear, but doing it now is one thing and doing it then is quite another matter. You'll thank me some time for the stand I am taking."

"Then—you mean you won't marry me?"

"Not in the least. I simply mean that I can't marry you till our income is doubled at least!"

Horace took out an envelope and pencil from his pocket and began to figure.

"Nine thousand—that means that I must have about seventy-five hundred."

"I'll relent a little," smiled Caroline.

"I'll marry you when you are making six thousand. You can work up to that."

"It may take five years," sighed the unhappy suitor.

"What if it does? We love each other, and we can go on quite nicely this way. You know marriage isn't something to be entered into emotionally."

"You are a very sensible girl," said Horace accepting his sentence grimly. "I think I see your point of view."

And so it was settled and Horace and Caroline began their long engagement. There were never any quarrels and never once did she weaken from her wise decision that to make toast for yourself was one thing, but to have to do it for two was another. Even in his most impatient moods Horace had to admire the lofty ideal that Caroline maintained toward marriage. It was something that had to be undertaken on a dignified, rather grand scale or not at all.

And a day or so ago Caroline was still making her own toast and drawing an occasional picture that sold quite content on her small income and spruce was working on patiently with the concern with which he had begun ten years ago, grimly waiting for another chance ahead that would bring him the coveted six-thousand dollar income. It did not seem then that there would be long to wait, for already he had reached the fifty-five hundred mark and he had saved enough to make possible the prospects of starting in life with a rather more pretentious abode than the suburban cottage that Caroline had held in such contempt.

Caroline worked at her drawing board as patiently and eagerly as ever and her ability as an illustrator had not become impaired but owing to war conditions, as the editors told her, there was less demand for her particular kind of talent than in years gone by. When she did get an order it meant a smaller check than formerly. She did not mind at the economies this necessitated. Single poverty was one thing, she insisted, and married poverty another.

Then a day or so ago Horace came to spend his usual Sunday afternoon with her but instead of hurrying up the two flights of stairs to her apartment when he reached the house where she lived in spinster seclusion, he hesitated and then walked dejectedly around the block. Again he started to enter and with a heavy sigh retraced his steps around the block. It took considerable courage finally for him to ascend the steps he had had to make twice and to give his accustomed knock at her door.

HAVE TO KNOW MULE NATURE

Drivers of Patient Animals Realize They Have Peculiarities and Must Be Humored.

An old flea-bitten, hammer-headed, ewe-necked bell mare, slowly picking her way across the corral at the remount station at Camp Zachary Taylor, followed by a long string of mules walking in single file, heads down and wagging, served as illustration for an officer attached to the big cantonment who had just finished remarking that "horse nature and mule nature and human nature were mighty contrary things any way you take them."

"Now, take those mules," he said. "The education of a pack mule is a thing that must begin early. He has just two purposes in life."

"One is to carry 225 pounds day after day patiently and uncomplainingly, and the other is to follow the bell mare of the train, regardless of where that animal may go. Well, there is in that corral an illustration of the effectiveness of our training. The old mare has started after a drink of water and there goes every dabbled one of those fool mules after a drink of water."

Investigation revealed that the pack mule is not the only member of his family that has peculiarities that can be played upon or must be humored. It was learned that the larger mules, once teamed up or paired, must thereafter be worked together if each is not to suffer a loss in efficiency. Two strange mules will not work together anything like so well in the beginning as they will a few weeks later, after they have become well acquainted, and then, if they are parted the whole process must be gone over with again.

GOOD COOK TO BE ENVIED

Always Sure of Popularity Is the Person Who Can Concoct Dishes That Are Appetizing.

To prove that there is nothing intrinsically humble or shameful in cooking it is only necessary to mention a hunting or fishing party. The man who can turn out a palatable dish is envied and lauded. The college girl who can concoct midnight suppers over a can of frozen alcohol or a gas jet is sure of popularity. Many of the great of the earth have practiced cooking as an accomplishment. Louis XV, one of the extreme connoisseurs in the art of living, prided himself on his coffee. One of the most famous of table sauces was invented by a gentleman of Worcester-shire. Many great ladies of the olden times used to exchange recipes. Sir Kenelm Digby, an adventurous and scholarly soul, left a fat volume full of them, ranging from simple apple sauce to the most refined elaboration of game.

It is not even necessary that cookery should aspire to the phase called "fancy" to be artistic. Above all, the sauce, that idol of the professional chef, should be de-throned from its bad eminence. The sauce is the mother of nightmares. The dish itself and not its accompaniments, is the thing. Cooking is real, cooking is earnest, and the gravy is not its goal.—Exchange.

Spruce Used in Airplanes.

Because the government needs all the spruce for airplanes, the piano manufacturers of the country are having a hard time to get sounding boards for their instruments. Spruce is the best wood the piano manufacturers can get for this purpose and they have used it in immense quantities for many years.

But sounding boards and airplane beams call for the same quality of stock—clear, straight-grained, tough, fibred and free from blemishes. In their desire to assist the government in airplane construction the piano manufacturers have agreed to curtail their output 80 per cent during the war. They can get along with the spruce stock now on hand for some time, they say. Meanwhile they will try to find a substitute for spruce. Several of the big spruce producing mills in the Grays Harbor district of Washington and along the Columbia river in Oregon that always have made a specialty of piano stock now are giving their attention to airplane material.

Darkness Above the Sky.

The projectile of the gun with which the Germans have been shelling Paris from a distance of seventy-five miles must rise in its trajectory to a height of twenty-four miles above the earth. The Scientific American says it is probable that at that height there is so little air that the sky loses its blue appearance, because there is hardly enough of it to produce the refraction of light which gives it its luminosity.

"If we could accompany this shell on its course," continues the Scientific American, "we should probably find the sky growing darker and darker, until it becomes nearly black. In the black sky the sun would show as a ball of fire while the stars which were not obliterated by the sun's light would also be visible. Below us we should have the reflection of sunlight from the earth and from the denser strata of the atmosphere."

Can Sleep Anywhere.

A soldier who collected and was sent to Houston was sent out to the trenches for training, and while on duty he was granted two hours' rest. He was allowed to sleep on the firing step of the trench, which, he said, in time inches wide. He said when he comes back he will be able to sleep out on the window sill.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL ITEMS

The members of the local Red Cross held a winter picnic in their rooms on Thursday afternoon.

Harry Thomas spent Thursday in Woodstock on business.

Miss Mary Gallagher returned to Fredericton on Saturday.

Master Gerald Lee entertained all his youthful contemporaries at a pleasant birthday party on Monday. The kiddies as per usual had a great time. Gerald says he is four o'clock.

Edward West spent part of last week at Fort Fairfield the guest of his son Charles F. West.

Rev. S. Johnson held special services each night in the U. B. church during the week of prayer.

Roy Watson of M.R.A., St. John, spent Wednesday and Thursday here on business.

The road commissioner, Murray MacAuley, has inaugurated a rather unique method of providing for winter road work in this district. Each ratepayer who is not the owner of a team may if he wishes, contribute two dollars towards a fund for the maintenance of winter roads, on payment of which he is totally exempt for the present winter from any call to service in the clearing of the roads after each storm. As an alternative he may remain subject to a call from the roadmaster as often as his turn for this branch of service may come around. The money collected is to remain a fund for any special expenditure necessary in clearing of the roads.

Miss Frances West returned to Boston on Friday after a pleasant fortnight here with relatives.

Miss Amy Tompkins returned on Tuesday after a short vacation at her home in East Florenceville.

Mrs. S. W. Burtt and Mrs. E. A. Hoyt spent Wednesday at Boundary the guests of Mrs. M. A. Burtt.

Norval Reid and the Misses Marguerite Campbell and Alice Page, Normal School students, returned to their studies in Fredericton on Saturday.

The United Farmers of the District held a representative meeting in the Opera House on Saturday evening 11 when questions bearing on the interest of their union came up for discussion.

The ball which was to have been given by the younger set in the Opera House on Friday evening suffered a necessary postponement, owing to the dread flu in the outlying communities. The committee in charge exercised discretion in calling off the affair for the present.

A party consisting of Beecher Clark, George Estabrooks, Chas. Estabrooks and Harry Estabrooks, and the Misses Vera Sloar, Leah Crote, Hazel London and Hazel Margison were entertained at tea and during a very pleasant evening on Saturday, by Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Gallagher at their home in East Centreville.

The Valley Railway is still proving itself a great friend in need. The farmers of the vicinity should greatly appreciate the one greatest boon of this generation to them. The manner in which it has tended to lessen and simplify the farmer's labor is proving a real blessing. Many of the neighboring farmers who formerly spent half the winter months in toilsome journeys over the Alpine crests to East Florenceville in order to market their hay product are now enabled to get each bale of hay to the station right hot off the press, thus making the number of days labor equivalent to the number the press remain on the premises. Other farm produce is marketed with equal facility. Nor is the congestion of traffic at the station and warehouses as marked as one would anticipate. Cars are always coming in goodly numbers, and the train service has been well up to schedule all winter. The management deserves a great deal of credit for the excellent service it has rendered its patrons.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Oh! Try It! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful!—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that gleams with beauty and is radiant with life, has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine. Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets tonight.

Turred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a still barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

A Cure for Pimples

"You don't need mercury, potassium or any other strong mineral to cure pimples caused by poor blood. Take Eucet of Root-Druggist call it 'Mother Selge's Curative Syrup'—and your skin will clear up as fresh as a baby's. It will sweeten your stomach and regulate your bowels." Get the genuine, 50c. and $1.00 bottles. At drug stores.

A little advertising now and then will start things going for you. But stop advertising and you notice something else stops. It was when applied to advertising that the phrase became a truism, faithfully followed by those who have become wealthy.

"Keeping Everlastingly at it Brings Success"
