KIDNEY DISEASE.
Diseases of the Kidneys are numerous, from the fact that these organs act as filters to the blood, and form one of the great channels for the removal of impurities from the system, which, if allowed to remain, give rise to the various kidney affections, such as Dropsy, Diabetes, and Bright's Disease.
The following are some of the symptoms of kidney disease:—Backache, sideache, swelling of the feet and ankles, frequent thirst, puffiness under the eyes, floating specks before the eyes, and all disorders of the urinary system, such as frequent, thick, cloudy, scanty, or highly colored urine.
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS are exactly what the name suggests. They are not a cure-all, but are a specific for kidney troubles only. Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25. All dealers, or

INCUBATOR QUESTION
A Timely Talk on a Timely Subject
BEST CHEAPEST
Directions of Manufacturers Should Be Followed

At this season of the year the incubator question is an important one to the poultryman, says Mr. F. C. Fford, Acting Chief of the Poultry Division, Ottawa. An inexperienced person or beginner in the poultry business should exercise the same care and judgment in buying an incubator that a farmer would use in selecting an expensive farm implement. In other words, he should take care to buy the best. It is simply wasting money to buy a poor machine as it can never be depended upon. With a first class machine, all that the beginner has to do is to learn to run his machine according to the manufacturer's directions. Five or ten minutes, morning and night, will be all the time required to care for the machine, and it can be depended upon to maintain the proper degree of heat and bring the eggs to a successful termination of the hatch if the operator simply follows the instructions and does not interfere with the machine or attempt experiments on his own behalf. He is not likely to know more about the machine than the manufacturer.

To be considered first class an incubator must not only hatch a large percentage of chicks, but those hatched must be large, strong and lively. The test of incubation is not alone in the number hatched but all in the health, vigor and hardiness of the chicks and their ability to live and thrive. Faulty incubators are responsible for the death of many small chicks. Being poorly hatched, that is, hatched with ten or twenty or thirty per cent less vitality than they should have, they struggle against heavy odds and die off in large numbers in the brooders. If, by buying a low priced and poorly constructed incubator, a man gets a twenty per cent lower hatch or gets twenty per cent lower vigor in the chicks that do hatch, he has bought the probability of failure in buying that machine.

A large hatch of strong chicks cannot be expected unless the eggs used are from a pen of thrifty vigorous fowls. If the breeding stock is lacking in vitality the chicks are sure to be weak. The fresher the eggs are, the greater is the vitality of the germ and the more chicks they will hatch. It is not advisable to use for hatching eggs that are more than ten days old, and these should be tested twice during the incubation period. The use of a simple egg tester will enable a man to know what percentage of the eggs are fertile, and thus prevent him blaming the machine when it is not at fault.
The advantages of a really good incubator are not all summed up you must get your liver, stomach and bowels right. Beecham's Pills act like a charm in setting you right. The appetite of youth comes with all its old relish after using Beecham's Pills. Natural sleep is the result of a short course of this famous remedy.

To Work and Play
use Beecham's Pills. You will find a vigor and life which adds zest to both work and play after using Beecham's Pills. You will feel like a new person with a clear eye, sweet breath and a keen brain. To enjoy life take in the larger hatches and the greater strength and vigor of the chicks. Such a machine renders us independent of the vagaries of the broody hen, and enables us to get chicks when we want them. How much this means a study of market prices reveals. Everyone knows that the price of eggs is very high in the fall and winter, owing to the fact that the hens have not recovered from moulting and the pullets have not yet begun to lay. Obviously then, if we want eggs to sell when prices are high, we should hatch our chickens of the American varieties in April or May and of the Mediterranean varieties in May; then feed the pullets for growth so they will be mature and laying by November.

The same thing holds good with chickens for market. The greatest profits are made by putting our eggs, our broilers and our fatted chickens for the home or export trade upon the market when supplies are scarce and prices high. If an incubator is to be purchased, it should be ordered early as there are apt to be vexatious delays in shipment and delivery and it is always advisable that the operator have an opportunity to run the machine for a few days before the eggs are placed in it, or until the regulation is understood and the temperature of the egg chamber can be maintained at 102½ degrees F. The incubator should be placed in a well-ventilated room, preferably one unheated. The chicks developing in the shells require an abundance of fresh air. A bright airy cellar or a well ventilated room having an even temperature is the best place. The ventilation should be so arranged that there will be outside air entering the room at all times, but without a direct draught blowing on the machine.

Finally, let me repeat the advice to follow implicitly the directions that accompany the machine. Study carefully the instructions regarding the care of the lamp and the control of temperature, the turning, cooling and testing of the eggs, and all other details. Then, when hatching commences let the machine alone. It is too late to rectify mistakes in management and interference can only injure the hatch. The chicks would be left in the machine until they are thoroughly dry and should not be fed the first day. When feeding commences be careful to feed sparingly. More small chicks are killed by over feeding than by under feeding.

RAILWAY FROM CAMPBELLTON
Work on the Line to St. Leonard to be Resumed the First of May Montreal Jan. 30.—Mr. Thomas Malcolm, who is building the railway from Campbellton, N. B., to St. Leonard's, on the St. John River, was in the city yesterday. He stated that although work is now closed down, he will open up operations on May 1, when as many men as can be secured will be placed on the line. He said the track had been laid twenty miles from Campbellton, and grading is completed a good deal further on. The Upsalquitch Bridge, a two-span steel and stone structure, twenty miles out from Campbellton will be completed in ten days. Further he said that efforts would be made to have the road completed to St. Leonard's by the end of the year, as they wanted to be in operation so as to connect with the Grand Trunk Pacific, which will cross the Intercolonial somewhere near St. Leonard's.

He remarked that the proposed interprovincial bridge, over the Restigouche had not been lost sight of, and that Dominion Legislation would be asked for in connection with this work during the present session. This bridge will connect Campbellton with the Quebec side of the Bay des Chaleurs, and bring the Gaspé Peninsula in close connection with the railway system of the continent.

LEPROSY
Dr. Smith Reports Fifteen Cases at Tracadie
ON THE DECREASE
One Case, and Three Suspicious Ones at Large.

Ottawa, Feb. 3.—Dr. Smith, medical superintendent of the leper hospital at Tracadie (N. B.), in his annual report says: "The register of the institution shows the names of fifty inmates, ten males and five females. One of these, a man aged forty-one, has been for some time out on leave of absence. His case appears to be one of those rare ones in which leprosy undergoes spontaneous cure—the malady having run its course, the effects alone remain."
"There are several stages of the disease, which are, however, often ill-defined. Classifying the lepers in the lazaretto, the number in the first stage is six; in the second, seven, and in the third, one. The youngest patient is ten, and the oldest sixty-two years of age. There were four deaths during the past twelve months; and three new cases were admitted—one from without the province. Of those, on the register, nine are of French three of Icelandic, and three of English origin. Four of the lepers have lost their sight, one from repeated attacks of iritis, the others from ulcerations and leprosy infiltration. Whenever practicable, the patients are given light employment in and around the buildings. Some of the men go boat sailing in the harbor."
"During the year, chaulmugra oil, in combination, has been freely used by the inmate and with very beneficial effects. Even in some advanced cases, the effects of the oil are very marked, the patients becoming vigorous and expressing themselves as feeling better and much stronger. At each periodical examination the doctor finds tubercles and the blotches so characteristic of leprosy are disappearing. Erysipelas, and leprosy fever, both accompaniments of the disease, and a source of much distress to the inmates of the past, are almost unknown since the introduction of the oil two years ago."
"During a recent tour of investigation through adjoining parishes the doctor found one undoubted case of leprosy. This person has not yet been admitted. He also found three persons showing suspicious premonitory symptoms. Notwithstanding this, he has again to report that leprosy is rapidly decreasing. The absolute number has become much reduced within the past few years and the reduction in ratio to the population is still much greater."

PORT DANIEL WEST

What has happened our Port Daniel correspondent? Too much fun going on to have time to write, or too much cold and stormy weather, we have had lots of both since the winter began.

Mr. Jerry Dea left last week for Duluth after spending a few weeks visiting friends in Port Daniel.

Messrs. Jas. and Charles Dea left on Wednesday for a trip on the Gaspe coast. The former in the interest of the Singer Sewing Machine Co., the latter to visit friends before leaving for his home out west.

Charley Tapp of Barabois spent a few days here last week, he drove to New Carlisle on Sunday to meet his brother Roland who came home from New York with a sore hand.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at Mr. James Dea's on Jan. 11. Dancing was kept up till the wee sma hours, and every one expressed themselves well satisfied.

On Thursday the 29th a number of our Port Daniel friends drove up to Mr. J. S. Allen's in Shigawake, where the evening was spent in dancing, music and singing. Refreshments were served at 12 after which all departed having spent a pleasant evening.

One of the most pleasant evenings of the season was a surprise party given
Mr. Herbert Journeau on Tuesday last.
Though the roads were very bad some 20 young people drove to his home where games dancing and a lively time was enjoyed by all. Many thanks to Mr. Journeau and his sister.

Miss E. Enright was the guest of Mrs. Jas. Dea for a few days last week.

Miss Mae McKenna spent the week end in Shigawake.

GASPE PENINSULA

We are glad to learn through this paper that there is no truer statement concerning the death of Harold Harding at Lennoxville and very sorry that a report in regard to such a serious matter was circulated around the country.

Miss Ruby Lindsay daughter of Mr. Robert Lindsay of Gaspe Basin died on Wednesday Jan 18th of consumption of the bowels, after intense suffering in the 18th year of her age.

We also have to report the death at Haldimand, of Mr. George Ray an old resident of the place which occured on Monday Jan 23.

Mr. Thos. Miller arrived home nor Wednesday 25th from a trip up the coast to New Carlisle and reports a pretty rough time, having met with a heavy snow storm in the journey and weather excessively cold.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the concert which was announced to take place at Peninsula on Jan 26th had to be postponed until a more favorable date.

M. A. Dolbel agent for Wm. Fru-
Sunday for Montreal.

Quite a number of people are engaged in getting lumber for a new wharf which is to be built at Gaspe Basin by S. Veit Esq., in the coming spring.

POKEMOUCHE

The weather has been very cold for the past week.

Mr. John Whitty returned to his home in South River a few weeks ago, being absent for some years he was warmly welcomed by his many friends.

Mrs. Alexander Glidden was called to Chatham by the illness of her sister Mrs. Climo.

I notice by the last Inkerman notes how some of the files were very much confused about a false report of a person meeting with an accident and as far as I know it is true about that person meeting with an accident. I don't see where there is any fun in publishing about people meeting with injuries or not, and for my part I have the deepest sympathy for them all.
Hoping the Inkerman writer will drop his nonsense and begin anew.

MISDIRECTED ABUSE

The Intercolonial is giving the public a great train service this winter. A train on time is coming to be rather too much of a novelty—Moncton Times.

This is meant as an insinuation that the officials of the I. C. R. are to blame for the irregular running of trains during the past month or two, but in reality it is a direct insinuation that the common laborers in the employ of the I. C. R. have been derelict in their duties. When there is a fall of snow it is the laboring man who clears the track and the resumption of the scheduled train service depends upon the despatch and efficiency with which he works. The officials must wait upon him. Considering everything we are inclined to believe that the Intercolonial has done remarkably well this winter. There has been an unusual fall of snow especially in Nova Scotia.

PROVINCIAL CABINET CHANGES

Premier Tweedie is to be credited with another good deed. The elevation of the Hon. Frank Sweeney to the portfolio of Surveyor-General was, we believe, the outcome of careful consideration and it will doubtless meet with the approval of a majority of the people. The office of Surveyor-General is a rank higher than that of Solicitor General. Mr. Sweeney as a member of the government without office and later as Solicitor General in the government was the only man entitled to the higher office. Indeed we do not see how Mr. Tweedie could have passed him over and appointed someone outside of the cabinet. Mr. Jones of Carleton was generally regarded as the member most entitled to the office of Solicitor General and he received the appointment on the elevation of Mr. Sweeney. The premier could scarcely have done otherwise. We would not be surprised to see Mr. Robert on of St. John or Mr. Barnes of Kent selected as a member of the government without office.

DID THE FLAT-CAR HAVE A LIGHT?

Serious Ante-Mortem Statement Credited to Amos Lirrette.

I. C. R. Divisional Superintendent Evan Price, held an investigation into the cause of the death of the late Amos Lirrette on Saturday afternoon.

Messrs. Charles Bulmer, Nelson MacDougall, Camille, Sonier, James, Dickey and others gave evidence, and it is said that they all testified that there was no light on the train that struck the unfortunate man.

Mr. Nelson MacDougall, who picked Lirrette up on the track and assisted to carry him to his home, said that Lirrette told him that he was watching the headlight of the locomotive and allowing himself time to step off the track, when he was suddenly hit by the flat car which was being pushed ahead of the locomotive and without a light. The deceased said he was injured in the side and chest as well as the foot and leg being crushed.—Transcript

THREE CABINET MEMBERS RESIGNED

Premier Parent of Quebec Received their Resignation on Saturday

Quebec, Feb. 6.—Premier Parent received the resignations of Messrs. Gouin, Weir, and Turgeon on Saturday five minutes before the time fixed for the cabinet meeting. Parent after the cabinet had been in session a few minutes drove to the lieutenant governor's residence, and after a meeting said the resignations had been accepted. He stated that owing to the difficulty which had arisen the meeting of the legislature, which had been fixed for Thursday, will be postponed until March 22.

Montreal, Feb. 9.—Gouin and Weir reached here Saturday night, and were given an enthusiastic reception by supporters. Addressing a meeting they stated they were unable to make public the reasons for resigning until given permission to do so. Friends say that any one chosen to fill their places will find re-election almost an impossibility. There is not much speculation here as to whether or not the resigning ministers are strong enough to defeat the government.

MONKEY AND PARROT.

What Did the Man Do With the Switch From the Tree?

"If you will slip into the pantry and get me some cake I will give you this fine gold watch to wear," said the parrot to the monkey, holding up a beautiful watch for the monkey to admire. So the monkey ran into the house and into the pantry and got cake covered with sugar and gave it to the parrot.

GAVE THE CAKE TO THE PARROT.

not, for he felt that it would be a very grand thing indeed to have a watch to wear.

He placed the chain about his neck and walked up and down the garden, feeling very proud of his new possession. He liked to hear it tick, he liked to see the little hand go bobbing around, and he liked to wind the stem of the watch when it ran down.

While he was thus enjoying himself who should come along but his master. "Oh, ho!" sang out the man. "So you are the young rascal who stole my fine watch that my wife gave me for a Christmas present!"

He grabbed poor monkey by the back of the neck and took the watch from him. Then the man broke a little switch from a tree, and what do you suppose he did with it? All the bad little boys and girls know, and I shall not tell the tale—Exchange.

A BEAR HUNT.

Do You Think the Man With the Knife Got the Big Caribou?

When papa puts his pipe away and takes me on his knee I know he's got a story that he wants to tell to me. I put my arms around his neck and hug him tight and he says that's his pay. He wants it first. That's always understood. It's always 'bout a little boy just 'zactly big as me who's got a pony, got a dog, a gun and things, you see; who kills some Indians on the plains and goes an' traps an' hunts, who shoots big bears an' buffaloes an' never misses once. He goes out in the woods alone an' travels through the day an' builds a fire up every night to keep the wolves away, then in the morning he takes his gun an' finds a grizzly's den an' chases bears for miles an' miles, a-shootin' now an' then. At last he gets one up a tree an' walks around an' 'round an' shoots his powder all away, an' then the bear comes down. So next the fellow takes his knife without a bit of fear—an' then I get so sleepy that's 'bout all I ever hear. Then in the morning when I wake an' find myself in bed I get to wonderin' if the bear is 'live or if he's dead. I look around 'fer daddy, but can't see him anywhere. An' so I holler mighty loud, "Pop, did he get the bear?"—Exchange.

Walled Up Alive. A very interesting bird is one which follows the trade of a plasterer—the hornbill.

It makes its home in far-off Africa, and this home is in the trunk of a hollow tree. You see, monkeys run wild in this country, and there is nothing they like better than hornbill eggs for breakfast, so in order to save the lives of her young the mother hornbill constructs a wall of mud in the trunk of the tree so that the monkey cannot get in.

She and her mate select a suitable tree and work together, plastering up with mud any opening there may be in the trunk. Having made it small enough to only just admit the passage of her body, the mother hornbill goes in, and her mate continues plastering until there is only a little round hole left, enough for him to put in the tip of his beak. Through this he passes in food to the mother while she is hatching her eggs and rearing her babies; nor do the latter get out into the light and air until they have donned their first suit of feathers. Then the door of the nursery is broken down, and the family begins to enjoy free life again.

two important main roads, two railways, and two large rivers.

A very unique feature is exclusively claimed by Trimley, a small village in Suffolk. In the one churchyard of the parish two churches are to be seen. Service is conducted three times a week in each of these churches at the same hour.

The deepest well in England is found at Hamilton, in Hampshire. It stretches 350 feet below the surface of the earth. About half-way down this well-shaft is a subway, three miles in length.

On the top of the parish church tower, in Dicker, Somersetshire, is a yew tree, now 6 feet high, and still growing in a hardy fashion. It is generally believed that the tree owes its origin to a seed dropped by a bird.

Perhaps the most splendidly decorated church in the Kingdom is that of Whitley Court, Worcestershire. It is entirely constructed of white marble, the pews are chastely carved, and the pulpit is of genuine Carrara marble, richly panelled with costly stones.

On the village green at Meriden, in Warwickshire, there is a large stone cross, which is supposed to mark the central point of England.

English Village Oddities.

Undoubtedly the most extraordinary township in England is that of Skiddaw, in Cumberland. It contains but one house, the occupier of which is unable to exercise the Briton's privilege of voting because there is no overseer to prepare a voters' list and no church or other place of worship or assembly on which to publish one.

The most remote village in England is that of Farley-cum-Pitton. This truly rural spot is thirty miles and a half from the nearest railway station. As a contrast to this may be mentioned the hamlet of Ystrad, about ten miles from Cardiff. This tiny settlement possesses

One Cent Claims Against Uncle Sam.
There have been several one cent claims against the United States government. One was by the Southern Pacific, which submitted a bill of $5.20 for hauling government freight. It was a bond aided road, only part of its bills against the government being paid in cash, the rest going to the railroad's credit on the bonds. In this case its credit was $5.23 and its cash a cent. Another government obligation of a single cent was in favor of a chemical company which for some unexplained reason agreed in a public competition to supply 16,892 pounds of ethyl ether for a cent. The offer was accepted. There were nine signatures, one that of a rear admiral, on the paper relating to the establishment of this claim, and the warrant for payment had to be signed by several persons.

A Gormandizer.
Some years ago the late Marquis of Queensberry made a bet of 1,000 guineas that he would produce a man who would eat more at a meal than any Sir John Lade could find. The bet being accepted, the time was appointed, but his lordship not being able to attend the exhibition he wrote to his agent to know the result and presently received the following note:
"My Lord—I have not time to state particulars, but merely to acquaint your grace that your man beat his antagonist by a pie and an apple pie."

Too Unanimous.
"Talk about men being lords of creation! Why, I can twist that husband of mine around my little finger."
"Yes, I suppose so. He's rather small, isn't he, and quite slender?"
"Small and slender? He isn't any such thing. There's enough of him, let me tell you, to make a million such husbands as yours."

First Case of Sea Serpent.
Adam hastily made an inscription in his diary.
"I want it to go on record," he explained, "that we had the first case of sea serpent seen in the world."
Feeling he had the bulge on the rest of humanity, he strutted about with a satisfied air.

The World of the solid.
We live amid matter in three characteristic states—solid, liquid and gaseous. But since hydrogen has been both liquefied and solidified, the investigator, says Professor James Dewar, is introduced into a world of solid bodies. With the aid of the cold furnished by liquid hydrogen, every gaseous substance at present definitely known to the chemist, with the single exception of helium, can be solidified. Even helium, Professor Dewar hopes, may yield to the processes now being employed at the Royal Institute in London. Liquid hydrogen is so light that the only solid substance that will float upon it is pith. Solid hydrogen has a temperature 436 deg. Fahrenheit below zero. When exposed to the cold vapor arising from liquid hydrogen air is instantly turned solid, falls like a miniature snowstorm into the vessel containing the hydrogen, and sinks to the bottom.

"Well," he answered, "I will take you down to the island some time and introduce you to her. She will be glad to meet my sister, you may be certain."

Then the brief history of this girl, as her brother had told it, came to her. "So that was the wreck she floated ashore from, was it, Bert? And can she paint like that? Why, I am astonished! And who is the girl leaning on the rock? What an exquisitely molded figure and what a pretty pose! Who is she?"

"That is your possible sister-in-law," answered Albert, with a touch of pride, "and the pictures were done by her from sketches I first made myself. They are true to life so far as all details go, only I failed to catch her expressive face in the one that shows a front view of her."

"So that was the way you wooed your island goddess, was it?" observed Alice, with a roguish look. "Made her pose for a sketch while you said sweet things to her. Have you a picture of her?"

"No, I am sorry to say I have not. Remember, she has been hidden on an island all her life, and I doubt if she ever had a picture taken."

"And when will you take me to see her? I am so anxious to meet this fairy of the shore who has stolen my brother's heart. Can't we go down there before I return home?"

"We can," he added, "but I think we'd better wait until spring."

The next day he informed her he had secured a box at a theatre for that evening and had invited the Nasons to join them. "I thought it would relieve your mind a little, Alice," he added, "to meet your boy on neutral ground."

Mrs. Nason was a long way from being the haughty specter Alice had conjured up. That a country schoolma'am was proud enough to discourage her boy's attention to the daughter of a difference in their positions awakened her curiosity. "I should like to meet Miss Page," she said to Blanch when the latter had asked if she might invite her to visit them. "A girl that shows the spirit she does is certainly worth cultivating."

When Alice's cool but polite note reached Mrs. Nason she was piqued to even a greater degree of curiosity, and when Albert's courteous letter inviting "Mrs. Nason and family to share a box at the theatre for the purpose of meeting my sister" was received she returned a cordial acceptance by bearer.

To Alice the proposed meeting was a source of dread, and when the carriage called for Albert and herself she was in an excited state of mind. They had barely taken their seats in the box when the usher knocked, and Blanch, followed by the rest of the family, entered. That young lady greeted Alice with an effusive kiss, and the next instant she found herself shaking hands with a rosy and gray haired lady of dignified bearing, but of kind and courteous manner. An introduction to Edith followed, and then Frank acknowledged her polite "How do you do, Mr. Nason?" with his very best bow.

Mrs. Nason began chatting with Alice in the pleasantest way and with seemingly cordial interest in all she said, while Blanch kept quiet and Edith devoted herself to Albert. It was after the second curtain when Mrs. Nason said: "I must insist that you divide your visit with us, Miss Page, and allow me to return a little of your hospitality. Of course I understand that your brother comes first, and rightly, too, but we must claim a part of your time."

"I had promised myself one or two evenings at my home," Alice answered quietly, "but I do not feel that I ought to desert Bertie more than that."

Then, for the first time, Blanch put in her little word: "Now, do not offer your brother as an excuse. I have been anticipating your promised visit for a long time, and no brother is going to rob me of it. I shall come around tomorrow forenoon, and if you are not ready to go back with me, bag and baggage, I will just take your baggage, and then you will have to come."

"I do not see why you cannot see your brother and visit with him just as well at our house," put in Mrs. Nason. "He is always welcome there."

Alice turned to her brother, remarking, "It is nice of you to insist, and I am more than grateful, but it must be as he says." Then she added prettily, "He is my papa and mamma now, and the cook and captain hold and mate of the Nancy brig as well."

"I will stir up a mutiny on the Nancy brig if he does not consent," laughed Blanch, "so you had better get ready, and you must be ready at 10 tomorrow."

CHAPTER XXXIX.

BLANCH had kept her threat and literally taken possession of her new friend and inmate. She stalled her in the guest room of the Nasons, and, to be taken in hand, as it were, by a cultured and wealthy young lady, and to have a lively and obsequious coachman on duty to convey them anywhere and everywhere was a new experience. It was not long ere Alice began to feel her little quarters at home in the Nason family and to notice that Mrs. Nason treated her in a motherly way.

"I see that you are fond of your little carriage," she said, after Alice had described her school and some of the peculiarities of her pupils who wore outgrown roundabouts or calico pin-flores, "and I suppose they grow fond of you as well."

"I try to make them," replied Alice, "and I find that is the easiest way to govern them. I seldom have to punish any one. In a way, children are like grown people, and a little tact and a few words said in the right way are more potent than fear of punishment."

"And do you not find life in so small a place rather monotonous?" asked Mrs. Nason.

"Oh, yes," replied Alice, "it is not much like city life. It is delightful to have theaters and the excitement of social duties, as I imagine you have all the time, and yet I am not sure I should sigh for a shady spot in the woods in summer where I could read a book or hear the birds sing. It is only in winter that I should like to live in the city."

Alice's stay in Boston passed rapidly until only two days were left, when Blanch said to her, "I have invited a few of my friends here to meet you to-night, and I want you to sing for me."

"Oh, please do not ask that," replied Alice hastily. "I do not sing well enough."

"But you sing in church, and that is much harder."

"That is nothing," answered Alice, smiling. "Not one in ten of those country people know one note from another. Here all your friends hear the finest operatic singers, and I would cut a sorry figure in contrast."

"But you will sing just once to please me, won't you?" pleaded Blanch.

"I will not promise. I will see how many are here and how my courage holds out."

When that evening came Blanch waited until Alice had become somewhat acquainted with the little gathering and the reserve had worn away, when she went to her and, putting one arm around her waist, whispered, "Come, now, dear, just one little song; only one to please me." At first Alice thought to refuse, but her pride came to the rescue, and, feeling that she would shame her friend that she was not a timid country girl gave her the needed courage, and she arose and stepped across the room to the grand piano that stood in one corner. Her cheeks were flushed, and a defiant curl was on her lips, and then without a moment's hesitation she seated herself and sang "The Last Rose of Summer."

She had sung it many, many times before, and every trill and exquisite quiver of its patios was as familiar to her

HAD TO GIVE UP ALTOGETHER AND GO TO BED.

DOCTORS DID HER NO GOOD.

By the time Miss L. L. Hanson, Waterside, N. B., had taken Three Boxes of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS She Was Completely Cured.

She writes us as follows:—"Gentlemen, I feel it my duty to express to you the benefit I have derived from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. A year ago last spring I began to have stop working, and lie down for a while. I then got so bad that I had to give up altogether and go to bed. I had several doctors to attend me, but they did me no good. I got so tired that I could not get up. I sent for a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I sent to the store for a box, and by the time I had taken three-quarters of a box I began to get relief, and by the time I had taken three boxes I was completely cured. I feel very grateful to your medicine for what it has done for me. Miss L. L. HANSON, Waterside, N. B."

as the music of the brook where she had played in childhood. She sang as she never had before, and to an audience that listened entranced. When the last sweet note had passed her red lips, she arose quickly and returned to her seat. Two little tears stole out of Mrs. Nason's eyes, to be quickly brushed away with a priceless bit of lace. Sweet Alice, the motherless little country girl, had from that moment entered the heart of Mrs. Nason. When the applause had subsided, it was Frank that next pleaded:

"Won't you sing one for me now, Miss Page?" he asked. "I bought the song I wanted today." And, going to the piano, he unrolled and spread upon the music rack—"Ben Bolt!"

"But I only consented to sing once for Blanch," Alice replied, "and there are others here who I am sure can do much better."

"Come, please," he said coaxingly. "Just this one for me." And once more Alice touched the keys.

Back to a simply furnished parlor in Sandgate, with its lamp on the piano and open fire burning brightly as it had one year ago, went two of that company in thought, and maybe others there, whose youth had been among country scenes, were carried back to them by the singer's voice and saw a byway schoolhouse "and a shaded nook by a running brook" in fancy, or perhaps a little white stone in some grass grown corner, where, "obscure and alone," lay a boyhood's sweetheart! All the pathos of our lost youth thrilled in the voice of Alice Page as she sang that old, old song. Not one in that little audience but was enthralled by the winsome witchery of her voice and for the moment was young again in thought and feeling. When the guests had departed Mrs. Nason turned to Alice and, taking her face in her hands, exclaimed, "I want to kiss the lips that have brought tears to my eyes tonight."

The last evening of her visit she decided to spend with her brother, and when she came to bid adieu to her hostess that much dreaded haughty mother had resolved herself into a charmer.

"It is odd, Bertie," she said to her brother that evening when they were alone together, "how different people seem when one comes to know them. From one or two things which you have said and an admission that Frank made a year ago I felt I should be sure to hate his mother, and now I think she is perfectly lovely."

"So she is to those she likes," answered Albert. "You carried her heart by storm last evening as well as the rest of the company. I never heard you sing so well."

"I am glad I didn't break down, anyway," she replied, "for when I touched the piano my heart seemed in my mouth."

For an hour they discussed the Nasons, while Albert noticed his sister avoid any mention of Frank, and then he said: "Well, sis, which of the places we have looked at do you think I best engage, and when will you be ready to leave?"

Alice pursed her lips and looked at the shipwreck scene near her as if it contained a revelation.

"I am not so sure," she answered finally, "that I should make the change at present. If I were certain your beautiful wife of the sea would

"You will not object to my company home, will you?" he asked. "I thought you might be lonesome, and as I have not had a chance to talk to you since you came to Boston I decided to go up with you. I can come back on the night train, or if you prefer to ride alone I can get off at the next station."

"Oh, no, I am very glad of your company," she replied, "and it was good of you to think of it. It is a long ride, and I have had such a nice time I should have been disconsolate. You did not know," she added archly, "that one reason I came to Boston was to look at flats. Bert wants us to come here and keep house for him—Aunt Susan and me."

"And are you going to do it? I hope so, for that would give me a chance to take you to the theaters."

"No, the plan is off for the present," she answered. "Not but that I would like to, but we think it is not best for Aunt Susan."

For an hour they trundled along through the snow clad country, chatting commonplace, and then Alice said, "Did you meet the island girl last summer that you told me Bert had fallen in love with?"

"Only once. Bert invited her and the old lady on board the Gypsy and introduced them. They remained only long enough to look the yacht over. I left that day."

"What did you think of this girl?" asked Alice hastily. "Tell me what she looks like."

"She has a beautiful figure and eyes like yours, which you know are what I admire, only they are not so full of mischief. They have a faraway look that makes you think her thoughts are a thousand miles away."

"How was she dressed?"

"Oh, I haven't the least idea," was the answer. "She might have worn calico for all I could tell. The only thing I can remember is that her dress was tight fitting and very plain."

Alice smiled.

"Those faraway eyes must have entranced you," your description is so lucid," she replied sarcastically. "How long did Bert stay there after you came away?"

"Only a few days. I never asked him. I told him to keep and use the Gypsy as long as he wanted, and then I cut stick for Blanch and Sandgate."

He seemed to dwell upon the little outing, and Alice, noticing this, fought shy of the subject.

"Well, how do you like my haughty mother now?" he asked, "if that is a fair question?"

"I think she is the most gracefully charming hostess I ever met, and you ought to be proud of her. You conveyed a wrong impression of her to me the first time I met you."

"I am sorry if I did," replied Frank. "I did not mean to. Mother fell in love with you the night you sang, and I knew she would. That is why I almost begged you to sing."

When the hills of Sandgate were visible he said, "I have an hour before the returning train and just time enough to see you safely home."

Alice looked at him with surprise.

"And that is your idea of my hospitality," she exclaimed, "to let you go away like that? The morning train is the earliest one you can escape on, and if I am not good enough company for you this evening, you can go and call on Abby Miles."

What a surprised and glad old lady Aunt Susan was when the two stepped off the train.

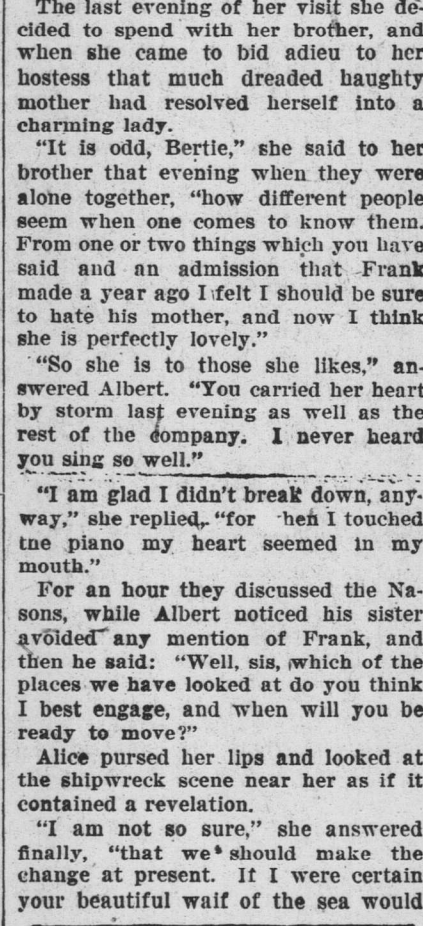

"Don't mind me, Aunt Susan," Frank said with easy familiarity. "I am not a visitor, I am a big brother escorting a lone sister home."

The machine pays for itself many times over before that time. There couldn't be a fairer offer than this. We ship a Chatham Incubator to you at once, freight prepaid by us, and your first payment is not due until October, 1905. Write us today for full particulars. The Chatham Incubators and Brooders have every new improvement worth while in an incubator or brooder. The incubators are made with two walls, one within case of dry matter, and the other within case of dry matter. They are built solid as a rock and will stand any amount of usage for years. A MADE TO ORDER ITEM

By MARY F. K. HUTCHINSON

Copyright, 1905, by T. C. McChure

Penelope, having instructed the maid to say she was not at home, stood behind the lace curtains to watch the departure of Jack Hale.
"Now, Penelope," began her brother Clarence, who caught her in the act, "I want to know what this means."
"What means?" asked Penelope, flushing and striving to gain time.
"What means?" grunted he in scorn. "Pen, will you never learn it's useless to hedge with a newspaper man? I want to know why you are treating Hale in this fashion. He's been in the dumps since he took you to the Commercial Club musicale. He's doing poor work, and the managing editor called him down today before the whole gang. If he's discharged he'll spoil his chances for a position on that New York paper. You've had an attack of the indigestion yourself and refuse to see him when he calls. Naturally I want to know what's the matter, for I don't mind telling you I'd rather have Jack Hale for a brother than any man I know."
"Why don't you adopt him, then?" asked Penelope unconcernedly.
"Well, we'll try cross examination," remarked he. "Pen, do you hate Jack Hale?"
"No," decidedly.
"Do you really dislike him?"
"No," more slowly.
"Didn't you really and truly care a great deal for him up to the date of that musicale?"
"I won't answer any more of your questions," snapped Penelope as she started to leave the room.
"Highly tight! Not so fast," said he. "Remember, Pen, I'm not only your brother, but your guardian, and while I take the place of parents and brother, too, I expect my own way of stringing for your happiness. I can't let my dearest chum and my little housekeeper both get their hearts out without trying to remedy the matter. Now, little girl, let's have the whole story."
"And you won't tell a word?" she asked.
"Never a word."
"Well, then, if you must know the whole story, nothing happened at that musicale. But the next day Aunt Maria came to spend the day."
"And a day in her company is as a thousand," supplemented Bradford.
"And she said she felt it her duty to her dead brother's child to tell me how people were talking about me behind my back. She said I had become a Jack long enough and that if he hadn't proposed by this time he never would. He would pay me attention till he got that position in New York, and then he'd find another girl to love and forget me. I told her he was nothing but one of your friends; that I never intended to marry, but should always keep house for you."
"Then you proceeded to shut Jack out because he hadn't lived down to Aunt Maria's level of marrying in haste. Jack Hale is the soul of honor. If he hadn't asked you to marry on it's because he wants to wait till he has a better salary than he gets on the Times. I'll see if I can show him the error of his ways."
"Clarence," cried Penelope, pushing him from her, "you promised you'd never mention a word!"
"So I did," groaned he. "Well, Pen, I'll keep my word, but I want you to forget Aunt Maria and her views. I'm going to ask Jack to dinner tomorrow night, and I want you to wear your prettiest gown, smile your sweetest and take him back into favor again. That won't be a hard thing to do for my sake, will it, dear?" in his most wheedling tone.
"You old torment!" cried Penelope as she gave him a parting look. Reaching the door, she called back, "I might possibly do it for his sake," after which she was darning she hurried out to see why dinner wasn't announced.
"I surprised as much," Bradford told himself, "and, though I'd scorn to break a promise, Jack Hale will get a pretty broad hint of what I consider his duty."
Hale pleaded an evening assignment the next afternoon, but Bradford wouldn't take "No" for an answer. "I know well enough what that assignment is," he responded, "and you can get the story just as well in the morning. You're looking fagged out, Hale, and need a rest. Break away from your work early this afternoon and go up and take Penelope for a drive. The horse has been stable for more than a week because Pen has had a bad cold. I'll be home in time for dinner, but shall put the whole evening in at the board of aldermen's meeting, so I'm glad you can amuse the child. She's in need of amusement after being cooped up for a whole week."
"Why didn't you tell me?" began Hale. But Bradford was gone. Though he could be beautifully, he could not stand cross examination.
As Jack and Penelope returned from their drive, both in the best of spirits, after their spin through the frosty air, Bradford preceded them up the steps. While all three removed their wraps in the hall he pulled a notebook from his pocket and tossed it across to Hale, remarking, "Say, old man, I found your notebook after you left the office."
"Much obliged," answered Hale as he attempted to catch the book, which missed his hand and fell at Penelope's feet. Picking it up quickly, she exclaimed: "Now, I wonder what the very latest sensation is? I do so like to keep up with the times." And she proceeded to flutter through the book past the canceled items toward the last written pages.

"Penelope, that's a pun, and if I wasn't in a hurry to dress I'd see that you were properly punished for it," called her brother, disappearing upstairs with suspicious haste.
Jack looked over Penelope's shoulder as he answered, "Don't believe there's a thing that hasn't been printed, I!"
"Oh, yes, there is," said Penelope. "Here's your very last item." And she paused to read, while Hale exclaimed: "That isn't my writing! Oh, Lord! in a tragic groan."
For this is the item both read:
"Engagement announced this week—Miss Penelope Bradford, dau. of late Hon. Harrison B.—late pres. Nat. Bank, this city. Mr. John Winthrop Hale—rising young jurist—pop. member Commercial Club—grad. of Harv.—ctr. rush on football team—congrat. of hosts of friends."

Nine Nations

Now Use Liquezone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquezone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know someone whom Liquezone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquezone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquezone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquezone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquezone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquezone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, but with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquezone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetable matter.

There lies the great value of Liquezone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquezone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

Among the guests present were Mr. James Robinson, Philip Landry, Peter Ganong, James J. Walsh and daughters, William Sewell and sisters, Frank Sutherland, Robert Rivers Jr. and Richard Walsh. Dancing and some slight hand tricks by the hostess, were the chief amusements.

Snelt fishermen are still sticking to their work and were rewarded with a small catch last week which although small netted some of them $15, the price holding up good as ever. Edward Nolan was on hand as usual and secured the greater part of the fish for Rivers and Hayden.

Mr. Edward Losier was at Tracadie the greater part of last week. Rumor says we are to have a new sheriff in the near future, in the person of Mr. Raymond Young of Tracadie.

The Caracquet Railroad people have had some hard battles this winter with the snow drifts, and at the time of this writing, all that portion of the line between Caracquet, Shipigan and Tracadie is in the possession of the drifts. However we look for a change when finer weather comes.

A SEA GIRL TOMB.

Francis Rees was buried on a Rock in the Atlantic.

Francis Rees, vicomte de Chateaubriand, some twenty years before his death, writing to the mayor of St. Malo, his native town, made the request that the town would grant him on the west point of the rock of Grand bay a space sufficient for his burial. To this island rock, accessible at low tide, the body of the great French litterateur was brought at his death.

A granite cross marks the spot. At high tide the rock becomes an island, and the waves of the Atlantic beat against this lonely grave. The fiftieth anniversary of the funeral was celebrated by a pilgrimage to the Grand bay, each person being requested to take some floral tribute.

After solemn mass in the cathedral a procession, headed by the mayor and two members of the French academy, crossed the sands and mounted the rocky slopes, and with the sound of music and the firing of salutes the floral homage was made. Poems composed for the occasion were recited, an oration was pronounced by M. le Vis comte de Vogue, and at night the Grand bay displayed green funeral lights.

Solid Scholarship.

At a political meeting an excited Irishman had risen to yell his satisfaction. "Sit down!" called the man behind him, twitching his coat tails. "Don't you know your own people?" "And that I'm not!" cried the other. "I'm O'Brien."

A London paper tells a story of Professor Huxley, which suggests that he may have heard of the Irishman. The professor had made a demonstration and asked a student: "Did you follow me?" "Yes, sir," he replied, "except at one point, when you were between me and the blackboard."

"Well," said the professor, "I always try to be clear, but I can't make myself transparent."

"What is the difference between a nurse and a trained nurse?" "All of $10 a week."

MANAGING CHILDREN.

The Mother Should Make Her Own Rules and Enforce Them.

It is very seldom indeed that a number of children play together for five minutes without some member of the group complaining: "Now, you stop that!" "I'll tell mamma on you!" Of course, the threat to tell is repeated a dozen times in half an hour.

Have you ever noticed that "I'll tell mother on you" is nearly always whined forth, not shouted? Of course, that's instinctive inclination toward the fitness of things. The telltale habit is a whining habit and comes from a whining frame of mind, and is altogether as contemptible a frailty as ever beset human nature.

Not that the children are to blame; they pattern themselves very often after adult telltales. It is scarcely conceivable, but there are actually mothers who tell tales on the little ones to their father.

"You just wait till your father comes home," she says. "I'm ghan to tell him what you did. Then he'll see."

And the children go around handgloved fashion, dreading instead of welcoming the hour of their father's arrival.

It is a curious, bears the tale of horror, and, blindly imagining—poor, ignorant man—that he ought to enforce his wife's authority, "corrects" the children. What a mistaken way of bringing them up! How infinitely unworthy of respect is the mother who settles her own scores with them! That act of telling is nothing more nor less than a confession of weakness.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Mr. Veniot responded to the address thanking his friends for their kindness and thoughtfulness.

After a few hours of enjoyment in music and singing, refreshments were served and the guests bade good-night to the host and hostess also wishing them every future happiness in their wedded life, and expressing themselves with delight over the success of the quietly organized surprise party.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Melanson who left for the west on Monday last will be glad to learn of their safe arrival in Crookston which news reached here on Saturday.

We are glad indeed to notice a deep interest a number of citizens of our town and village are taking in the curling and skating amusements, and the question much talked of now to provide for a rink even tho' those on the river prove satisfactory, providing the storms keep away. This question has been spoken of in past years but there seems to be great difficulty in getting a suitable piece of land; however we hope to meet with every success this time and we will be greatly disappointed if we have no rink next winter.

Catching a Tartar.
The trite phrase "Catching a Tartar" is thus traced to its origin in an old cyclopedia:

"In some battle between the Russians and the Tartars, who are a wild sort of people in the north of Asia, a private soldier called out: 'Captain, halloo, there! I've caught a Tartar!' 'Fetch him along, then,' said the captain. 'Aye, but he won't let me!' replied the man. The fact was that the Tartar had caught him."

Grose gives practically the same story in his "Classical Dictionary of the Vulgar Tongue," 1785, but credits the misadventure to an Irish soldier of the Imperial Austrian service in a battle against the Turks. The closing scene he varies thus:

"Bring him along," said his comrade. "He won't come," said Paddy. "Then come along yourself," replied the other. "Arrah," said he, "but he won't let me!"

Struggle and Strength.
Strength comes only through struggle—through struggle and earnest work—never through a frantic beating against the bars nor through self-pity. Ill health is a prison of your own building, a prison wherein you are locked by your own thoughtlessness and lack of self-control. Circumstances have something to do with it, and you may have inherited a tendency toward disease. In that case circumstances must be altered and inherited weakness outgrown. Both can be done. Earnest thinking and thoughtful work will move mountains.—Maxwell's Talmisan.

A Sleep Destroyer.
"Are you ever troubled with insomnia—sleeplessness?"
"I should say I am. Some nights I don't sleep three hours."
"That's all I've got it awfully bad. I've been afflicted now about two years. The doctor calls it neuritis insomnia paralitica."
"I've had it about eighteen months, and we call it Ethel."—Schoolmaster.

Diplomatic Dick.
Bob—Are you fond of reading, Dick?
Dick—No, I hate it; that's the reason I pretend to like it. If my mother thought I didn't like to read she'd keep me at it all the time.

Matrimonial.
There is no doubt that the woman who loves you forgives you too much, while the woman whom you love forgives you too little.

"A man in earnest finds means or, if he cannot find, creates them.—Channing.

Waves Faster Than Wind.
Waves travel faster than the wind which causes them, and in the bay of Biscay frequently during the autumn and winter in calm weather a heavy sea gets up and rolls in on the coast twenty-four hours before the gale which causes it arrives and of which it is the herald.
