-Spring has dawned upon us 'mid April showers, and balmy May, and earth springing into life, with "tender shoof promise," while tractive by a new and beautiful display of fashionable millinery, and her many customers avail themselves of an opportunity to patronize and purchase her seasonable and stylish goods. Mr. R. B. Anderson, as usual, keeps to the front with the very necessary supplies of his business, his ever increasing trade demanding constant supplies of feck, varying from watches and jewelry to stoves, hardware and tinware, not forgetting lobster supplies into which he is going largely. Mr. Henry Copp shows perhaps the neatest grown and montreal for instance, and noticeable rock; but in the Buriats and Montreal frams-Baikal the Buriats and Montreal gols are accustomed to pile a heap of stones beside the road, erect thereon half a dezen rods or poles, and and faithful performance of all these things, the parties have hereunto set their hands, this twenty-third day of April, Anno Domini, 1787.

—Since has vertifing some changes have change have change have change have considered the proposed of the new furniture factory is away procuring the necessary machinery. Work has commenced on the building and a few week, will see it in full operation. On the hill. But it in full operation. On the hill state here is a second but constant of the cory, building lots have been laid off, and they are been laid off, and they are been laid off, and they are being purchased, so that quite about may be expected in building operations, they are being purchased, so that quite about may be expected in building operations, and the bright of the proposed building will report be true the proposed building Clarke's home like, comfortable residence is being renewed for the occupancy of Mr. Highet and family. Copp's mill is at work once more, and the bridge will soon be fitted up as part of the route to the furniture factory and hill-side locality. Among other changes, death too, has been at work, gathering the harvest at all seasons, taking both old and young, rich and poor, into the eternal garner. Not long ago, an old and faithful servant at Reid's factory was carried to the silent grave. While he could, he did his duty manfully, and worked faithfully, until sickness claimed him. and death scaled the contract. Poor and humble, yet in many things his heart was rich; intelligent beyond his education and opportunities, there was often pleasure in his company even when "yarns more of wit than of wisdom" hovered round; and his cottage home lacked not the spirit of true hospitality.

—Rumor has it that the Methodist Church will be completed this year—that a Church will be completed this year—that a new Baptist Church will be among the features of the future—that the Presbyterian Church is here all the time—that the Salva tion Army will "hold the lort among us, this summer, sometime—that the gospel ac-cording to the Plymouth Brethern in hover-ing in the neighborhood, and that we must be mighty good to stand the whole of it. Also, that Captain Smith is furnishing his tugboat with a new boiler—that some of our tugboat with a new bouler—that some view merchants intend to paint up, and general renew their premises,—that the catch herring is favorable, whether for table use, bait—that gaspereaux had no business to to Sackville before coming here—that the various lobster factories all around us a subject to the called the up and that claim to the called the up and that claim.

—Dyspepsia causes depraved blood, which in time, affects every organ and function of the body. As a remedy for these troubles, nothing can approach Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It vitelizas the blood, strengthens the stomach, and corrects all disorders of the liver and bloods.

—Mr. T. L. Wood, of Port Elgin, well and favorably known, especially to all horsemen, has, in addition to his well-known stallion "Friendless" now standing for the season at George Wood's stable, Sackville, purchased the celebrated "Strabismus," which he will travel through parts of Cumberland and Westmorland, going to Halifax once every three weeks. Strabismus to be admired, need only to be seen.

—The angel of death has again visited this place and made very sad indeed the home of Mr. Thomas Amos, one of our most respected neighbours, by calling away after a short illness of quick consumption, on Friday the 3rd inst., his dutiful son John, who it is sufficient to say has left behind him a character worthy of imitation. His remains on the following Sunday, after service and a short sermon in the house, by the Rev. D. Chapman, were borne to their last resting place, followed by a large number of carriages.

He was attracted thither by the tales of two young trappers whom he had met at the old French town of Prairie du Chien, the winter before. They told him of the black, rich land of the valley of the Little Pinnicon, with scarce a stick of timber in the way, though the bluffs on either side were lined and covered with oak; butternut, hickory and poplar. Their stories of bear, deer, beaver and mink stirred his hunter's heart. These young men—Simpson Briggs and John Ellery—had marked out each a squatter's claim, and, not intending to spend.

the more than three acres had been thoroughly 'stirred' and planted to corn, squashes and pumpkins.

A fine crop was raised that year, bringing in autumn such abundant wariety to their table that this little band of pioneers felt themselves to be living in the very dap of luxury. Of game—the house when the men ware at home was an arsenal of guns—they had such abundance as three good hunters, with ample opportunities, could secure. Even Mrs. Cleason was provided with a gun, a short, finit lock fowling piece.

These isolated settlers lived in constant danger, for the country all about them was the common hunting ground of bands of Winnebagoes, Passawatomies and Musquakies, and occasionally Sioux. These last were far more to be dreaded than the others, and Black Hawk's war had given the lesser and nearer tribes a wholesome fear of the soldiers, stationed at various points throughout the meslves undiscovered.
