CHARGES DROPPED

Complainant Failed to Face No. 1 Committee.

Wrote That He Did Not Hope to Obtain Justice From. That Body.

Evidence Produced by Mr. Baker Was Heard and He Was Exonerated on All Charges.

No. 1 committee of the board of education assembled last night for the purpose of threshing out the charges laid by Mr. George Prodger against Principal Samuel Baker, of St. George's school. Mr. Baker was there with a large array of witnesses in the persons of the teachers and scholars who had seen the punishment administered to young Prodger, and had heard what passed on the visits to the school, first, of Mrs. Prodger, and second, of that lady and her husband, the complainant. Mr. Prodger, however, did not appear before the committee. He instead sent a letter, in which he intimated that he had scant expectation of obtaining a fair and impartial hearing from the committee, as he believed it to be prejudiced against him. The committee, therefore did the only thing left to it under the circumstances. It went ahead and heard the statements of Mr. Baker and his witnesses, and on the evidence before it, it brought in a report which exonerated Mr. Baker from the charges laid against him. It further reported that there was sufficient evidence in sight to warrant a charge being laid under the statute against Mrs. Prodger for disturbing and interfering with the carrying on of a public school. A motion of one of the trustees embodied in the report, suggested that parents first seek redress for grievances from the board of education instead of rushing into police court with them.

There was a full attendance of the members of the committee, they being Dr. Ziegler (in the chair), Trustees English, Teasdall, Strong, Bayly, Evans and Boyle.

CHARGES RECAPITULATED. The charges made by Mr. Prodger against Mr. Baker, as set forth in the letter sent by the former to the board of education were as follows:

1. That Mr. Baker administered corporal punishment to the said Samuel George Prodger unnecessarily and 2. That he was guilty of an infraction of rules 20 and 21, relating to teachers, in his method of administering the said punishment 3. That he assaulted the said Samuel George Prodger with a stick, and caused him to be bruised and blackened on the arm and leg.

4. That when the said Eva Prodger complained to him of want of any cause for such punishment and of the severity and illegality thereof, he usedinsulting and abusive language to-

5. That the said S. Baker has been guilty on other occasions with other

Severe Cases Indigestion

Cannot Be Cured By Ordinary Stomach Medicine - The Kidneys, Liver and Bowels Become Deranged - Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

By far the most important part of digestion takes place in the intestines, as has been repeatedly shown in cases The November China Sale where the stomach has been removed and the patient has lived and digested food without the aid of the stomach. It frequently happens that people who continually dose the stomach for indigestion and use pepsin and various kinds of digestive tablets and powders can obtain no relief from such treatment, because the real trouble is in the intestines, the liver and

There is fullness and pains after meals, coated tongue, headache, loss of appetite, pains in the limbs and in back and shoulders, flatulency and constipation, frequently alternating with diarrhoea.

In cases of intestinal indigestion the liver and kidneys usually become clogged and sluggish in action, and poisonous impurities are left in the blood, which should be removed by these filtering organs.

There has yet to be a remedy discovered that is so prompt and thorough in curing intestinal indigestion Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. And as this is the most common and severe form of indigestion it can well be claimed that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most successful treatment extant for indigestion and dyspepsia.

I was cured.'

It is not unusual for persons who have long been suffering from chronic indigestion, biliousness and constipa-tion to be thoroughly cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which have by far the largest sale of any similar remedy. You may be skeptical, as others have been before you, but a single trial of Dr. Chase's Kid-ney-Liver Pills will convince you of their unusual medicinal value. Mr. Joseph Blackwell, Holmes-ville, Ont., says: "I derived more benefit from the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills than from any other medicine I ever took, and can highly recommend them for stomach troubles. I was in a terrible state and could hardly work at my trade. I tried most every kind of medicine and doctors until I was tired of doctoring, and before I used one box of Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I could see that they were helping me, and after taking a box and a half found that

Mr. Prodger's letter to the committee, in which he declined to appear before it, in support of his charges, London, Ont., Nov. 7, 1901.

R. M. McElheran, secretary Board of Education, city: Dear Sir,-I have come to the conclusion that it will be impossible for me to obtain from a majority of No. 1 committee a fair and impartial investigation of the harged preferred by me against Principal charged preferred by me against Principal Baker, for the following reasons:

1. The board has shown partiality in appointing its solicitor wrongfully and illegally, and without hearing my side of the story at all, to defend Principal Baker on a charge preferred against him at the police court, upon which the evidence to be submitted will be exactly the same as that to be submitted to the committee that to be submitted to the committee appointed at the same board meeting to the principal.

3. Knowing that a charge had been preferred at the police court the meeting of the investigating committee was called hastily, with the evident intention of ascertaining what evidence would be submitted on my behalf before the magistrate, and with the further evident intention on the part of a majority of the committee of exonerating the principal, and thus attempting to affect the magistrate's decision.

4. A majority of the investigating com-

4. A majority of the investigating committee refused to allow a solicitor or counsel to appear on my behalf, and at the same time Mr. Ivey, the partner of the solicitor for the board, was present, as was stated at the meeting, to advise the committee, although the said Mr. Ivey had been instructed by the board to defend the principal at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police court; in other words, the solicitor who will appear to defend Mr. Baker at the police to the board to the board to the board for the regulation strap authorized by them, but had never received one.

In answer to a question from Dr. Teasdall, Mr. Baker said the chastised the board for the words at the board for the total mr. Hade at the words had a say across the hand. One of the slaps across cence, while I am deprived of the assistance of a counsel or solicitor.

5. Although it was pointed out that I had received only three hours' notice, and had been unable to obtain the attendance of my witnesses, a majority of the committee decided that the investigation should proceed last night, and it was only after one of the trustees had pointed out that the investigation would be one-sided and it was seen that the proceedings of the committee were developing into a farce, that the committee decided to adjourn till tonight.

From the actions of a majority of the board and of No. I committee, it will be quite apparent to any independent and impartial person that I cannot expect to receive, and will not receive, a fair and impartial trial, and in making that assertion I do not desire to reflect on the minority of the committe, who have endeavored to do what is just and right.

I shall not, therefore, appear before the committee tonight. All my witnesses have been summoned to attend at the police court tomorrow morning, when those portions of the charges dealing with the principal's assault upon my son will be impartially investigated under oath.

I reiterate the charges which I made to the board against the principal, and before a fair tribunal can prove them, and I again say that this is not the first or the second time that Principal Baker has been guilty of such on offense. Yours truly,

GEORGE PRODGER.

LAST CHARGE UNENTERTAINED. Before proceeding with the investigation. Trustee Evans asked why the reporters were allowed to be present, when they had been excluded from an nvestigation into a teacher's conduct

On motion of Trustee Bayly, it was decided not to take up the fifth clause of Mr. Prodger's charge, that of similar infractions of the board's rules with

MR. BAKER'S VERSION. Mr. Samuel Baker, the principal, of whom Mr. Prodger complained, was first called upon to tell his story of the whole affair. His recital threw an Giddens, complained that he had annoyed her and the class on Thursday, and after being told to stay in after 4 o'clock to explain his conduct, he had gone out when the teacher's back was turned. Miss Giddens asked Mr. investigate the charges.

2. A majority of the members of the investigating committee voted for the appointment of the solicitor to defend day morning, when the children were day morning, when the children were the could be coul could do nothing with him. On Friday morning, when the children lining up to enter school, Mr. Baker saw the Prodger boy in the line, and called him out before the rest of the school, meaning to give him three slaps on the hand. The boy refused to take the punishment, putting his hands in his pockets. Mr. Baker hit him across the right hand as it was in the pocket. The lad drew out his hand and Mr. Baker tried to make him hold it out, but the boy held it flat against > because he had received complaints of mischief and misconduct on the part of a number of the boys, and he wished to make an example of one of them. Baker said he had punished the boy several times at his mother's request for "minching," and for leaving school during school hours, and had warned him that punishment would follow simflar offenses. INSULTED, NOT INSULTER.

"As to the fourth charge," said Mr. Baker, "I consider I am the one to make complaint about being in-sulted. Mrs. Prodger came to the school, and for half an hour I submitted to her abuse-abuse heaped on me in a voice that could be heard in every room in the building, and which interfered with the work of all the classes. The teachers could not go on with their work. When Mrs. Prodger came to me first, she made no complaint about the punishment of the boy. She wanted to see Miss Giddens, and when I told her she could not she made an attempt to go into the room. I would not let her go in. as Miss Giddens had not been well. She called Miss Giddens a hussy, and she told me I allowed children with whooping cough to come to school because their parents had money. She said also that Miss Giddens spent a good part of the day in arranging her hair, and then kept the children in after hours, their presence, but on the former occasion Trustee Bayly had moved that they be excluded. Trustee Evans wonwhich she had no right to do. Miss

She charged me with having a horrible temper, and sending women away from the school crying. She also charged Miss Giddens with making charged miss Giddens with making face two or three times, and said I false statements, and I rebuked her by saying that she should not talk in such a manner, as she told more lies in twenty minutes than any woman I ever heard. After leaving the school, entirely different light upon the case.

According to Mr. Baker, the boy was chastised because his teacher, Miss and repeated that she would not allow any hussy to whip her boy. She called me a hog-driver, and I asked her it that was because I had control of her boy. I did not lose my temper at all when she was there.' Mr. Baker told of Mr. and Mrs. Prodger coming to the school in the afternoon, when the former struck the principal twice in the face and broke his glasses. Mrs. Prodger put her face uncomfortably close to his face and told him if she had been a man she would have smashed his face worse than her husband did. the trouble with Prodger, Mr. Baker had a great deal of impudence from the lawless element. The friends of the Prodger boy hooted him on the street—something that never occurred before. No temper had been exhibited on his (Mr. Baker's) part. After be-[Continued on page 7.]

WORKING ON MEN'S MINDS

Curious Cures of Both Ancient and Modern Times.

Corn Plasters on Wooden Legs-Spiders' Eggs Infallible Cure for Jaundice.

It is not necessary to turn to the records of the olden times for instances of quaint superstitions in the matter of cures, says the London Globe, albeit a brief research will reveal some curia brief research will reveal some curiosities of belief that are as humorous as one could wish. The story of the man with the wooden legs who maintained that his corns gave him incessant trouble until he applied corn plasters to the end of his "timber-toes" may, after all, not be so far-fetched as at first sight appears for insection. as at first sight appears, for imagina-tion goes a long way in many a case of physical ill as well as in the cure. But what can be said of a man who, receiving a hurt from a weapon, poultices the weapon and leaves the wound to cure itself? Stupidity can scarcely go further, and yet in the seventeenth century the "sympathetic powder" was in great demand as a sure cure for injury received from a weapon. The method of treatment was very simple. The wound had to be closed up and left to itself, while the weapon which inflicted the hurt was copiously poulticed with the powder until the wounded person recovered. For many years the cures held the field against all comers, until some careless apothecary bound up the wound of an injured man but forget the realities the jured man, but forgot to poultice the weapon, with the result, astounding at the time, that the man recovered just as rapidly as he would have done had the sword blade been properly swathed in bandages and doctored with the powder. The romance of the cure was hopelessly shattered by such an unexpected termination of the foolish apothecary's treatment, and the fame of the "sympathetic powder" faded into oblivion. But as in modern days, there seems to be a recrudescence of faith in the curing nostrums of bygone days, a mention of the prescription of this powder may not be out of place. To prepare it, one is told: "Take Roman vitriol six or eight ounces, beat it very small in a mortar, sift it through a fine sieve when the sun enters Leo; keep it in the heat of the sun by day and dry by night, and marvelous cures may be done by it."

WONDERFUL REMEDIES. A more modern method of extraneous application of prescriptions is that afforded by many a seeker after outdoor relief. "Here is a prescription; rub it on his chest," said a dispensary doc-tor to a woman whose child was suffering from a chest affection, and a week later the woman returned with a complaint that the treatment had done no good, though she had "well-nigh rubbed the skin off and wore the bit of paper to rags." Another patient came back cured and smiling, and told the doctor she would wear the medicine in future of the control of the cine in future as a preventive, so well had it acted as a cure—and she showed him the prescription for a throat lotion he had given her tied around her neck in a handkerchief. This is a parallel to the old-fashioned notion that the fourth book of the "Iliad" was a certain cure for ague if applied to the head of the sick man, the underlying idea of the cure apparently being that language of such warmth and grandeur as Homer wrote was enough to cure a chill even when, as lifeless print, it was placed near the brain of man. Surely a graceful tribute to genius, though poor as physic for a sick man; as poor, indeed, as the potatoes and horse chestnuts which are carried by many sufferers from rheumatism, not only in outlying country districts, but in the very heart of busy latter-day towns and cities. But it is in the matter of curing whooping cough that superstition still holds its own. Many are the unfortunate spiders that annually are pinned up in paper sugar bags over the mantelpiece of nursery and sitting-rooms. As the spider dies so will the cough pass away, the recognized version of thes uperstition asserts, and many will add the pleasing informa-New York's Female Workers as a Class such manner at the outbreak of the disease, the little patient will certainly suffer until May, whether the first whoop is sounded in April or June. A bluebottle with a pin through it is sometimes substituted for the spider, and many also do duty as a sacrifice for the removal of warts-but in curing warts there are enough superstitious practices to fill a book.

SPIDERS' EGGS FOR JAUNDICE. Confidence, extreme, explicit confidence, is the first essential on the part of the patient who surrenders himself to the tender mercies of the faith healer, whether the healing is performed by means of a spider, by anointing, or merely by the paying over money for so intangible a method treatment as the mental exercise the modern Christian Scientists. This may, perhaps, account for the significant fact that investigators of the special cures alleged to have been affected by curemongers usually find 70 per cent of the persons cured have died almost as soon as the cures were completed. All curemongers are not so explicit as the inventors of anodyne necklace, which was claimed to be an infallible remedy for the troubles of teething in infants, and was a harmless string of beads made from the roots of henbane.

Neither do the majority of them compare with the advertiser who boldly announced that as jaundice was caused by little yellow flies flying the system he cured his patients by giving them spiders' eggs to swallow, trusting to the heat of the body to hatch the eggs, with the result that the spiders spun their webs, caught the flies and cured the jaundice, leaving only the cobwebs

The Baby

Then probably it's a cold. Babies catch cold so easily and recover so slowly. Not slowly, however, when you use Vapo-Cresolene. Then a single night is all that is necessary for a cure. You just put some Cresolene in the vaporizer, light the lamp beneath, and place near the crib. While baby sleeps he breathesin the healing vapor. Cold loosens, inflamed membranes heal, and all trouble ceases. It's a perfect specific for whooping-cough and croup. 8 Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including the Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a life-time, and a bottle of Cresolene, complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. could be cured by a visit to the sea-side, when the breezes would blow them away. There may have been them away. There may have been more jest than serious intent in the announcement, but still, at this modern period, slck children are carried fasting on Sunday mornings into three parishes in some country districts, spiders' eggs are proclaimed by village wiseacres to be an infallible cure for jaundice, the hind legs of a toad worn round the neck in a silk bag are regarded as a panacea for all evils, and the best disinfectant and anti-contagion that the world can and anti-contagion that the world can produce is, in the minds of many an old village wise woman, a metal-headed cane (gold-headed for preference) that has been carried on his pro-fessional rounds by a doctor.

The Coming Great Problem on This Continent.

The control of South America is one great questions of the immediate furies making up the southern half of this continent becomes an increasingly interesting topic the more the attitude of the United States is considered. It very rich one-that it is well capable of giving sustenance to a couple of nundred millions of people, and yet here are but 40,000,000 persons living within the several political divisions into which it has been separated. It if we except Paraguay, is without rich | Germany is bound, with or without the nineral resources, and magnificent re- leave of the United States, to estabwards await the explorer. But the vegetable products are even more valuable than the mineral ores. Indeed, every kind of plant, indigenous to the tropical and temperate zones is grown in rich abundance in one or other of the republics that, with the small possession of British Guiana, make up the southern half of this hemisphere. There are immense forests, splendid waterways, almost unscenery that rivals our famous Rocky Mountain resorts. Why then, when every prospect pleases, has the advance of the country been so slow? A writer in the National Review undertakes to tell us, and also makes a suggestion as to how best South America may be brought into the front rank of productive civilization, to the advantage, not only of Canada and the United States, but also to the great profit of all trading nations.

One reason why South America has been kept back is because of race. The population is of mixed blood, and in the greater number of the states, the pure, or nearly pure descendants of the European conquerors are not as one in four to half-casts and Indians. Bolivia, indeed, is practically an Indian state, counting not 80,000 whites in a total population of 2,000,000. In Brazil, there is a further complication, due Portuguese settlers intermarried freely with the Indians, but from the date also mixed their blood with that of the negro. The result has been a lowering of the one without a corresponding raising of the other element. to the extremest forms of indolence and distaste for all that we mean by prevailing type of South American |-"the wondrous powers of Scottish also tends to make him extremely turbulent and disorderly. Hence we have numbers of the South American States in a continued state of civil war, or wardness is the ignorance of the He was also a strong friend. It will people. The greater part of South still be in the memory of many how America, indeed, still lives in the 18th

The remedy for this most undesirable state of affairs, and to promote the boundless prosperity of those republics, is firm and just administration. How can that best be supplied? Not by agreeing to the United States' contention that these states must remain in their present condition lest the Munroe doctrine should be infringed on. It may be that the United States people believe that they and they alone should be permitted to open up and develop the states of South America, but the writer in the National Review does not agree with that view. had the faculty of making fast friends, He claims that the United States has enough to do to promote the welfare and develop the resources of the great territory that it now controls. And he holds that one or other of the "four expansive nations of Europe" is best adapted to give new life and vigor to South America, and to develop its resources for the benefit of humanity. Great Britain, he claims, has already obtained as much territory as she desires. Russia is seeking her expansion in Asia. Germany and Italy, with fast increasing populations, possess no land under their own flag, where a greater Germany and a greater Italy can come into existence. The German colonies in Africa, Oceanica and in China, though well governed, are not adapted by climate to white settlement. In Eritrea and Somaliland Italy has some thousands of miles of desert, but nothing more. Yet there is a very strong tide of immigration from Italy and Germany at the present time. Both these countries may fairly be said to want more room. South America, the writer quoted, says, supplies that room. Germany has already many commercial interests in South America, and the writer reaches the conclusion that she will not be debarred from taking her place as a colonizing power on this continent by the Monroe doctrine or any other ob-matter Italy, already the ally of Germany on the European continent, America. It is argued that such an acquisition of colonial power on this continent by Germany would not be objectionable to Great Britain, because it would give to Germany an outlet for her colonizing powers and organizing energies that would keep her busy without in any way infringing on British interests. And as for the United States, there ought to be no cause for jealousy or distrust, if Germany were to obtain, say, a protectorate and occupation of Northern Brazil or Venezuela, as a German col-fortune and an aid to the promotion and stability of trade. John Campbell died yesterday. He had taken an active part in the life of London for half a century. He may be called almost the last of the older stock of Scotchmen. They have all passed away, Col. John Campbell was a strong man, every way. Physically in his early years he was a giant, and it is said needed two "strikers" to keep up with him, as his resounding blows struck the anvil. In earlier years, on holidays, he was to be seen in the game of shinty, on what is now Victoria Park; and a most vigorous combatant he was Large and strong of stature, his mind was quite in keeping with it. When he first began to take a part in public affairs and to attract notice by his speeches, it was predicted by some that they would not keep up their excellence, but that opinion soon died out, and John Campbell, whenever he spoke, found willing listeners. Even in the last few years of his life, when he felt that the "shadows were lengthento miscegnation. Not only have the ing" around him, his heart and energy were apparent. Perhaps his last public speech of importance was that in of the importation of slaves they have which he nominated Mr. C. S. Hyman, M. Thedford, Nov. 7 .- Fire this morning destroyed the house and shop of Mr. R. McIntosh, merchant tailor, of this town. The fire started in the upper story of the house and had gained so much headway before it was noticed that there was very little hope of saving the building. However, willing workers were on the scene, who saved what little they could before the fire engine arrived, which soon poured water into and over the burning building. Seeing that there efforts were in vain, the firemen turned their attentions to the other residences near by which were in imminent danger. The high wind fanned the flames in devouring their prey, so that in less than an hour nothing was to be seen but smoking debris, where one a dwelling house stood. It was a total loss, there being no insurance on the

Criminals Born or Made?

Are criminals born or made? The congress of criminal anthropology sitting at Amsterdam discussed the question recently. Differences opinion threatened at one stage to become acute until Signor Ferri, of Rome, restored harmony by a com-Some men are born criminals. But a man with a criminal stigma does not always become a criminal: his surroundings and his general mode of life have to co-operate. This statement is as cautious as it is correct, and expresses, we imagine, the last word of philosophic criminology. We may illustrate it by reference to another and a more reputable class of persons, though indeed their calling also has on high philosophic authority been pronounced "a kind of madness;" we mean the class of poets. Now, as tons."- All poets are born, but not all born poets come to maturity of song. Surroundings and general mode of life mist co-operate. Matthew Arnold, if we remember aright, laid it down in one of his letters-somewhat disputably, we think-that leisure and a banker's balance were among these co-operating inducements to song. But however that may be, there can be no doubt that criminal instincts, like poetic and all other instincts, may be either stimulated or discouraged other influences. And this is the side of the matter which it is most useful for states to remember. There is, indeed, an heroic school of anthropologists which preaches the doctrine of "the sterilization of the degenerate;" but for immediately prarticable purposes, "the reformation of the criminal" and "the prevention of crime" are better formulas. They should not be forgotten even in the case of criminal anarchism .- London Chronicle.

After getting up she found it difficult to walk, but with a strenuous effort she struggled to the door. She was in a stupor. On returning to where she had been sleeping, she found her four little children vomiting and seemingly very sick. About this time she preceived the odor of gas, and became alarmed.

The children were unconscious, and their mother had only strength and presence of mind to move about a little. presence of mind to move about a little. GREAT SCANDAL IN SUPREME TENT, K.O.T.M.

Supreme Finance Keeper Charles D. Thompson a Self-Confessed Defaulter of the Order's Funds to the Extent of $57,000.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 7 .- Charles D. Thompson, one of the most prominent business men in the city, and known all over the great chain of lakes as a progressive business man, and supreme finance keeper of the supreme tent. Knights of Maccabees, is a self-cofessed defaulter to the extent of $57,000.

The news of his defalcation came like a crash to the supreme tent officials, and in fact to the entire city-Thompson tells his story in the following letter to the supreme tent officials:

D. P. Markey, Supreme Commander Dear Sir,-It is with a feeling of distress and shame that I tender here-my resignation as supreme finance keeper of the order of which you are the head. And this step is taken with a bitter realization that I am no longer worthy the companionship and association of my fellow I have held the position since the order was founded, having during most of that time been officially associated with the present supreme officers, and never until now did I in any way betray my trust. I was engaged in a legimate business venture in which I had made a large investment and found myself in a position when further money was necessary to save myself from bankruptcy and

"There was apparently no chance for loss. I then betrayed my trust, and used the funds of the order, at the time believing there was no question of my ability to replace them within a short time. The amount I used was $57,000. I have no hope of being able to repay this amount. "I know the order is protected from loss by the surety bond of nearly twice the amount in a perfectly re-sponsible company, but this does not lessen my mental suffering, nor re-lieve me from the disgrace of having betrayed the confidence reposed in me. Nothing that may occur can increase the tortures which I have suffered and am still suffering.

"I can only await such action as may be taken and abide by the consequences. No punishment can be greater and no suffering so intense as that resulting from the less of the respect and esteem of the membership of the order and the suffering necessarily caused to my family. (Signed) CHAS. D. THOMPSON."

THE CAUSE.

This explained the situation, and the only thing for the officials to do was to prepare for the after-effect, which would follow and await the action of bond company. Thompson went before the officials and stated the history of the entire transaction. Thompson, together with C. L. Boynton, purchased the steamer Harlem as she lay wrecked on the rocks at Isle Royale, and brought her to this city, and then rebuilt her at Toledo.

The boat was his ruin, for they were never able to get out of it the money they expended in wrecking her, and she was sold at a mortgage sale. It was in the boat that Mr. Thompson sank the $57,000, and although he tried to get from under the business crash, went down with it. It was impossible to repay the money. C. L. Boynton also lost a big sum in the boat, but Thompson's was the heaviest loser.

HE HANDLED MILLIONS. Thompson is in the city, and his friends are rallying around him in this trouble, but, as he states, he will have to take his chances with the bond company. Thompson has been finance keeper of the supreme tent ever since its organization, and in that time mil-lions of money have passed through Supreme Commander Markey this afternoon said: "Charles D. Thompson has been supreme finance keeper of the supreme tent since it was organized in September, 1883, and has handled and sbursed more than $15,000,000 during that time, and until this defalcation. no thought has ever been entertained against his integrity."

THEATRICAL MEN HAVE A DISPUTE.

Mr. A. J. Small, Lessee of the Grand Here, May Sue Mr. Shea.

The Toronto News of yesterday says:

"A theatrical dispute, which may develop into an interesting law suit is now in progress between the managers of two well-known Toronto theaters, Messrs. Small and Shea. Mr. Small claims that shortly after the opening of the theatrical season in Toronto he entered into an agreement with Mr. M. Shea, of Buffalo, representing Shea's Yonge Street Theater Company, whereby the vaudeville shows given in Toronto should play Ottawa, Hamilton and London, where Mr. Small has theaters. This arrangement being made early in the season, dates were settled upon in the cities mentioned, covering the entire theatrical year, making it impossible for Mr. Small to book other attractions on the days set aside for the Shea shows. He claims that for a very short period the contract was filled, when with a short otice of a few hours the lessee of Ottawa, Hamilton and London was notified that the Shea shows would no longer fill the time agreed upon. The introduction of vaudeville in these cities was said to have resulted in failure. It appears that there is a small balance at the Ottawa theater which Mr. Shea claims, and which Mr. Small is holding to offset the expenses incurred by the cance ation of the Corbett show at the capital. It is claimed by Mr. Small that the can-celation of the contract has deranged the booking in the three cities for the entire year at an expense to Mr. Small which will amount to a large sum. The Yonge Street Theater Company have now placed their account in the hands of their solicitors for collection, and have notified Mr. Small regarding service. The latter, it is said, has made efforts to settle the matter amicably, to the money in Ottawa. Messrs. Barwick, Aylesworth and Wright, representing Mr. Small, have been instructed by their client to take proceedings against the company for heavy damages for violation of agreement in cancelation of contract.

Within that empire there is today no people more devoted to it than the inhabitants of the great new nations in the outlying parts-Am-Only fifteen patterns, but very erica, Australia and Africa. And, in this time of a slight crisis in the history of the empire, it is well that such an occasion arose, that these people, free and self-governing, democratic in their constitutional government in the broadest and widest sense of the word, should have an opportunity of showing that with that and through that they are proud to be an integral part of the combination of nations which today forms the British Empire.

CANADIANS ABROAD. When thinking of Canadians living abroad, there is but one feeling of rehome with us to build up our own country. We must not, however, grumole over the fact, but rather take comfort that where we find them, we find them not as hewers of wood, and drawers of water, but leading the race for commercial, financial and intellectual activity. Perhaps one reason why so many Canadians are found in the United States has been that in the past there seemed to be comparatively litthe opening in their own country; and the ambitious and aspiring of them were decided by the avenues open to them in your great centers. This condition of affairs is changing. Canada has Mr. Thompson's shortage is $57,000, but no loss will be incurred by the supreme tent, as every financial officer of the association is bonded in surety companies, and the bond held by the order as security for Mr. Thompson's integrity is very much greater than the defalcation.

PRODGER CASE IN POLICE COURT.

cipal Baker Heard.

Side and Case Lasted Into the Afternoon.

The Prodger-Baker affair, which took up the attention of a committee of the board of education for the past two evenings, was further ventilated today at the police court, when the charge of assault laid against Samuel Baker by George Prodger on behalf of the latter's son, George Prodger, was gone ing were Secretary McElheran, of the the Prodgers-father, son and mother. The case was adjourned till 1:30 p.m. Mr. Judd, who is conducting the case for the prosecution, had six or eight witnesses to call after that. Mr. Baker also had a large array of witnesses present, among them some of those who appeared before the board of education last night.

acknowledges having used on the boy Secretary McElheran of the board of education was the first witness called. He testified to certain rules of the board governing punishment of pupils. Punishment must be by a strap provided by the board, and must be such as an affectionate and judicious parent would administer. Punishment by shaking, boxing the ears, slapping with the hand, striking unexpectedly, are strictly forbidden. Dr. Macarthur was the next witness. He had examined the boy Prodgers and found two black and blue bruises on his thigh. There were no other bruises that he could discern. To Mr. Ivey, Dr. Macarthur said that the bruises could be produced without undue severity being used. A strap might produce them as easily as the stick shown.

George Prodger, the alleged victim of the assault, gave his evidence in a straightforward manner. He is in his eleventh year. He said that he had to go at 4:30 every Thursday afternoon to study music, and his mother two weeks ago sent his teacher a note asking that he be not kept in on Thursday afternoon, as he had to go for his lesson. On Thursday of last week his teacher told him to stay in because of errors in his spelling. After four he spoke to his teacher about going, but she did not reply. He then went out without her observing. The next morning he brought a note to Miss Giddens from his mother, asking that he be excused. When the boys were standing in line before going in Mr. Baker called him to stand out and be punished. He held out his hand and was struck with the heavy end of the pointer. He then held out his other hand and was struck on it. He was struck two blows on each hand, and then he put his hands down because they were so sore. One of the blows and body—five or six on the legs and twice on the back. Mr. Baker appeared to be very angry. To Mr. Ivey, the boy said he had been duite mischievous on the Thursday and had caused his teacher considerable trouble. His mother had told him to come home every Thursday to get his music lesson.

George Prodger, the father of the boy in question, next took the stand. He saw the boy at noon on Friday of the alleged assault, and examined his There was a red mark on his body. wrist and red marks, six inches long, phans' Home return sincere thanks to on his back, as well as bruises on his leg. Large Array of Witnesses on Each City Engineer and Fair Board Officials Consider That They Are Too Well Off as It Is.

Mr. James McCartney, the Thamesford horseman, who stables his horses at the fair grounds prior to their shipment to Africa, is extremely wrathy because of an order that he had received from City Engineer Graydon. Mr. McCartney has been or-dered by the engineer to vacate the stalls in the cow barn that he is using now and put his horses in the horse stables. His objection to this is: that the horse stables are more exposed to the weather and that he should not be forced to leave his present quarters now that cold weather is The broken pointer which Mr. Baker coming on. Mr. McCartney does not understand why such a change should be ordered, unless it be, he says, that the engineer has been influenced by jealous individuals in the city. The Advertiser he said today that he did not like the way he was being treated, nor did Col. Dent, the British buyer, and he hinted at the possibility of moving elsewhere.

Engineer Graydon says that he or dered the change on his own initiative and for the reason that the McCartney horses are doing a great amount of damage where they are.

"It's all nonsense," he said for Mr. McCartney to say that the horse barns are colder than the others. The trouble with him is that they cost more. Where he is now, it costs him about $20 for all his horses. In the other place it would cost him 50c a head."

The same opinion was expressed by a prominent member of the fair board. to whom the subject was mentioned. He said that in the horse barns, which Mr. McCartney was asked to move his horses, they would be more comfortable than where they are. He took no stock in the threat of leaving London, as this was the best place, and even at 50c a head, the cheapes that Mr. McCartney could find.

added: "Mr. McCartney is reported as having said that he will clear $20,000 on horses this season. Then why should he object to paying 50c a head for stabling his horses. If he had to stable them down town, he couldn't do it for that. I would say let him have them free, if all the horses were for the remount service-there's enough sentiment in me for that-but he buys 400 or 500 horses and Col. Dent takes about 150 of them. David Leslie, of West Nissouri, appeared before Judge Edward Elliott this morning on the charge of threatening to shoot his landlord, James Bradshaw, on Tuesday last. Leslie was remanded to jail till Tuesday next, when he will come up for trial. It appears that Leslie was having a fine temper, and the gun was the occupant of a house on Bradshaw's farm, and the latter came to store some corn stalks in an outbuilding. Leslie objected to Bradshaw doing so, carrying his objection to the point of producing a revolver and threatening to make Bradshaw look like a tra colonder if he did shaw look like a tin colander if he did not desist. Bradshaw concluded that he didn't want to put the corn in the old building, anyway. Later he swore out an information, and an intrepid constable got Leslie's little gun away from him and arrested him. Squires Garner and Patterson sat in judgment upon the case and concluded it was a matter for the county judge to settle. Constable Bedggood judge to settle. Retail Merchants Say Council Did Right.

Celebration on Saturday Would Mean Big Loss-As It Is Only Manufacturers Are Hurt.

Many of the retail merchants of the city have expressed to The Advertiser their satisfaction in having the mayor proclaim Monday as a holiday. They are convinced that he made no mistake and claim that a common-sense view of the matter, looked at from the standpoint of all interests save the rich manufacturers, would show that a Monday celebration is better for the majority than one on Satur-

Confusion is only averted by those who are always opposed to everything after it is done; and we think at least that the Free Press should help the movement along rather than advocate confusion and uncertainty after the proclamation has been made in the best interests of the merchants who spend thousands of dollars in the paper to bring people to the city."

Ordnance and Armor.

There has been a constant rivalry between the ship builders and armorer on the one hand and the gun, powder and projectile manufacturers on the other hand. Every improvement in armor plate has been met by a further advance, either in the gun, the projectile or the propelling charge of gunpowder. An armor maker would announce the production of a steel plate which no existing cannon could penetrate. Then the projectiles were made, conical, and with a sharp point, rifled to give the projectile rotation and true flight, and the guns were made to load at the breech instead of the muzzle, adding greatly to the rapidity and facility of fire. inventor then came forward with a method for hardening the surface of the plate by a process bearing his name. A Harveyized plate is so hard that it cannot be scratched with a file or cut with a cold chisel. Nickel was put in the plate, adding still more to its hardness and toughness. smokeless powder was produced, developing much greater energy than its old black predecessor, and made to burn with accelerating combustion and with it projectiles could be hurled with such velocity that the energy of their impact could not be resisted by either the projectile or the plate, and the gun had to be lengthened and strengthened forward to meet the new demands upon it. The limit in weight of armor plate was soon reached. Twelve inches in thickness came to be about the maximum for the belt of the strongest warship, for she could not carry thicker and float. The projectile was still more improved, being made of the finest forged steel and tempered with great skill. Then came Kruppized plate, and the projectile was again turned aside or smashed upon its surface. Lastly, a soft nose made of mild steel was placed on the point of the armor-piercing projectile and the gunner could again laugh at the thickest Kruppized plate that could be carried by the battleship

The winners of the championship cup presented by F. T. McCutcheon, have not yet been discovered. Both played to win from the very start, but both failed to score the goal which would have decided the tie. The game was a splendid exhibition. Both sides played in general a clean, fast game, and the quick and accurate decisions of the referee kept the ball going without a single interruption from start to finish. The forward line on neither team was sufficiently strong to overcome the splendid defense of the other. The strong, sure returns of Blewett on the Normal back defense line, and the strong, hard check play of Gunn, on the 'Varsity half-back line, were perhaps the most prominent features of a splendid game. The children sitting near him were generally worse behaved than those further removed. The boy was mischievous and

The first, Arnott Orton, said that when young Prodger was whipped he held his hand against his side. He pulled his hand back after receiving three blows and the last one struck his leg. Mrs. Prodger came to the school after and talked so loud that the pupils did not go on with their lessons. After dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Prodger came to the school and there was "a terrible racket." The girls cried when they knew there was trouble at the door, but the boys lined up and went out to help Mr. Baker. They met him coming in with his glasses broken and his hair disheveled The next boy called, Harold Garner, saw young Prodger put his hand in his pocket and then pull it out and hold it against his leg. Mr. Baker hit him once while his hand was in the pocket and three times afterward. "Do you think he was badly hurt?"

asked a trustee. "No, I don't think so." 'Get as much yourself sometimes?' 'Yes, I have.'

"And been able to hold your pen and pencil afterwards? Roy Fitzgerald, Sidney McLeod, Stewart Fisher and Geo Marshall all gave their versions of the day's occurrences, which agreed in the main with those already told. The former thought Prodger put his hand in his pocket after being hit three times. When Mrs. Prodger came she "hollered" so she was heard all over the school. Witness saw Mr. Prodger strike Mr. Baker and heard loud talk, and also saw Mrs. Prodger stick her fist in Mr. Baker's face.

Sidney McLeod saw Prodger punished. The lad held his hand against his leg, and pulled his hand away, one blow striking the leg. When Mrs. Prodger came she talked very loud. George Marshall, the last boy called, heard Mrs. Prodger talking loud in forning. When Mr. Prodger came in the afternoon, witness heard Mr. Baker bumped up against the door. and then he came in with his bleeding and his glasses broken. girls were frightened, but the boys got up to go out and help Mr. Baker. TEACHERS TESTIFY.

The evidence of the boys was followed by that of several of the lady teachers. Miss Jeffery heard Mrs. "going for" Mr. Baker in a Prodger voice which could be heard all over the building. Mrs. Prodger was evidently calling somebody names. Mr. Baker was speaking in an ordinary low tone of voice. The pupils could not proceed with their lessons while Mrs. Prodger was at the school.

Miss Evans said it was perfectly impossible to teach during the halfhour or so that Mrs. Prodger was at the school in the morning. She talked, almost shouted, incessantly. Baker spoke to her in an ordinary conversational tone. In the afternoon Miss Evans heard loud talk from both Mr. and Mrs. Prodger.

Miss Wrighton, a teacher in an upstairs room, said she heard talking, and it was so loud that she thought it was upstairs. It distracted the attention of the children for about half an Inspector Carson said that he saw two oblique blue marks on the front of the boy's thigh. The father spoke of the boy being "clubbed," but the boy said he was hit with a pointer. Mrs. Prodger was doing most of the talking, and was so noisy that she could be distinctly heard in Secretary McElheran's room. This ended the submission of evidence. THE COMMITTEE'S VERDICT.

The charges made by Mr. Prodger were then considered clause by clause In reference to the first clause, it was held that the child had been guilty of disobedience in running away from school, and the principal had inflicted punishment as prescribed by the board's regulations. The committee held, in relation to the second clause, that while Mr. Baker had not used the strap prescribed by the regulations, his use of a small stick was justifiable under the circumstances. Clauses 3 and 4 were dismissed, as not sustained.

A SENSIBLE SUGGESTION. Trustee Strong submitted the following motion, which was adopted: That the committee respectfully suggest that all parents be urged to seek redress from the board of education for any infringments of the rules teachers, instead of rushing into the police court to have the same ventilated, as the latter course cannot but have a bad effect upon the discipline of the schools

MAY LAY INFORMATION. On motion of Trustee English the committee will report to the board that sufficient evidence had been laid before the committee to warrant the laying of information against Mrs.

"So that I am the pig," said Pauline laughing again. "Well, I am a little obstinate, and a little selfish, and a little greedy, I daresay. I did not like to marry poverty, and I refused to fulfill my engagement with Monsieur Lafonte. He had no business to kill himself. However, I am quite surprised you never heard of it. It is quite a fortnight since it happened."

"A fortnight!" echoed Rosa. "And you are here tonight—so soon! At a ball! And this man loved you!" this man loved you!"
"Miss Stanly," said Pauline, "I am poor, "Miss Stanly," said Pauline, "I am poor, and I must make the most of my opportunities. I am fortunate enough to have found a dear friend in Lady Rosewood, who was quite insulted by that old countess, who has gone mad, I think, since—" It seemed as if Pauline could not finish the sonteres." mensely, but she could not tell why.

"I am going to sit out the next three dances, I am so tired." Rosa also refused to dance; she was mystified and interested by this Miss Bracegirdle; she felt that she had something to tell her, and wondered what it was. If such a fashionable dame as Lady Progressed went to Pauline's little sunfound something wrong in Lady Rose-wood, and she was as rude to her as she was to me; so Lady Rosewood and I be-came great friends. I live half the week came great friends. I live half the week with my father, and half the week with Lady Rosewood. I am visiting her now, and I could not refuse to attend her ball merely because Mr. Lafonte went mad." "I suppose not," said Rosa. "Oh, no doubt, you are right and I am wrong, Miss Bracegirdle, and now the first man that asks me to dance with him I shall accept. I feel very dull, considering that this is a gay ball. I suppose it is because of what the newspaper boys were crying Rosewood went to Pauline's little sup-pers. Rosa did not see why she should not go just to see what they were like. Eldred Barker had been to all sorts of places in his time, and Rosa had a sort of dream that it might be pleasant to go with him into this camp of the Philisof what the newspaper boys were crying out at the newspaper boys were crying out at the door."
"And what was that?" asked Pauline.
"It was about the supposed murderer of Lord Hammond," said Rosa. "They Pauline had heard nothing of the kind. but she wished to rouse Rosa out of the strange apathy in which she seemed plunged. She had very cogent reasons for desiring that Miss Stanly should trust her. Miss Stanly looked at her in cold surprise. t surprise. "If you mean Miss Carew, she is quite

"Tam sorry to hear that—sorry, I mean, that you trust that young person; she is a viper, who stings the hand that feeds it. Even poor Lady Chase found that out, and cut that girl's acquaintance. I know for a fact that she mocked at you behind your back."

Poor Rosa's swarthy cheeks felt hot. She could thoroughly believe this now after the discovery she had just made. Pauline, indeed, came like an evil spirit just in the nick of time to poison Rosa against Elsie. Pauline hated Elsie perhaps more than any one under the sun; but even she had been indifferent to her she would have desired for her own purposes to set Miss Stanly against her.

"It only lowers them when they speak against a harmless, humdrum girl, who has been, or who has tried to be, kind to them."
Rosa tapped her plump foot in its yellow satin shoe impatiently upon the floor. Pauline smiled a smile more glittering, wicked than the last.

Pauline paused. Rosa had turned topression in her own honest face.

"He killed himself," said Pauline, speaking with an effort. "Blew his brains out in the shrubbery at Charterls because I told him I had altered my mind and would never marry him. Then before he killed himself he wrote a letter to Lady Chase. I don't know what he said in it, but it was against me, and she believed him. When his body was found the old woman wrote me a note telling me to leave her house within twenty-four hours. I could not help it. I found it impossible to love Monsieur Lafonte. I was better to tell him so than to marry him and revret it afterwards."

Besa Stanly had never won the love of man. She knew this in her heart of hearts, and the heart knoweth its own bitterness. When she looked on the fair face of this woman, whose blue eyes were set like clowing sapphires in her head, whose black, delicate, arched evebrows. long, thick lashes, rosy lips and waxen fairness made up a sum total of splendid attractions, she sighed.

"Men love faces like hers," she said to herself, "and when he finds the face gives the body robust health. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and from opium, co-caine, and all other narcotics.

"My daughter was troubled with dizziness and constipation and was very nervous for five years," writes Mrs. M. Carter, of 1545 4th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. "I tried several doctors but they gave her no relief. At times she would eat nothing, had green and purple circles under her eyes, and was melancholy. A woman friend of mine told me to try your 'Favorite Prescriptiou' and 'Pleasant Pellets' which I dad. After taking one bottle of each she began to improve and is still improving. People said she looked as though she were going into a decline. She is twelve years old. Webster's International Dictionary.

Messrs. J. & C. Merriam, Springfield, Mass., publishers of Webster's Inter-national Dictionary, have recently issued several pamphlets regarding the new edition of this well-known work. This dictionary is now practically used by all the foremost schools, colleges and newspaper offices. It is abreast of the times, having been recently fully revised, and is up to date in every particular. It is almost impossible to go back to the year in which the International was first published. Time has changed all things, and the growth of this dictionary has been marvelous. The alteration in languages and the uses of words continue, but still the dictionary that is the most popular and most frequently used is Webster's International. A supplement has been added to the new edition, containing thousands of new words that have come into literary use. Old words that have changed their meaning and words that have been revived are contained in the supplement. To complete this immense alteration the most eminent specialists, professors and editors were employed, and no effort or expense is spared to maintain the high standard always enjoyed by this wonderful book. In fact, Webster's International grows better with each revision, and it is undoubtedly the best English dictionary extant.

At the Glencoe Presbyterian Church on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons the eighteenth annual meeting of the W. F. M. S. of the Presbytery of London was held. The society was well represented from every district, and the meetings were of a very instructive and helpful nature. In the course of the meetings a happy event transpired in the shape of a presentation of a life membership to Mrs. A. Thompson, of South London, who has been a member for eighteen years. Niles, O., had an experience with Grape-Nuts Food that is worth know-Geo. Preston says there was a ing. time when his appetite for breakfast failed him and it came from stomach trouble caused by his way of eating. He would get hungry from his work about 9 or 10 o'clock but was not allowed to eat during working hours, and when dinner time came he would overeat and would be in misery the rest of the day, and not able to eat any supper. He says, "I was troubled with headaches and so dizzy from stooping over that I would stagger when straightening up. Grape-Nuts being called to my atspeak highly of the composition and tention I took a package to my boarding place and had some for breakfast, and I did not get hungry until near the noon hour. I now knew what was the matter with me. I began to eat a good, healthy food, and it agreed with me, so I have kept on using Grape-Nuts for breakfast, with a little cream.

I have never taken one drop of medicine, only once for sore throat, but I am now as well and hearty as any man that walks, and I know how to keep my strength now by the use of good food, and I think I would lose a part of it if I left off Grape-Nuts. This food has been better to me and my family than any medicine.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

The Boy Soprano, Appearing in the Church Scene in "The Volunteer Organist."

Plays that are along the same lines as the teachings of the church are few and far between. "The Volunteer Organist" is just such a drama, and, as the Rev. Howard Sturgis has said, the tie between church and stage is made the more secure by this beautiful play. It tells a story that few dramatists have hitherto handled, in a manner that is both pleasing to its hearers and unobjectionable to the clergy. The entire cast was most carefully chosen, so that the presentation at the New Grand tonight promises to be a dramatic treat.

"MISTRESS NELL" TOMORROW. The holiday attraction secured for matinee and night performances at the New Grand tomorrow (King's Birth-day) is "Mistress Nell" the merry play that was the talk of the country season. Theater-goers in London have heard much of "Mistress Nell" during the past year. Magazines and newspapers have been full of Henrietta Crosman and "Mistress Nell," and few plays have had so much written about them as this merry comedy. "Mistress Nell" is by George C. Hazelton, jun., who is rapidly coming to the front as one of the leading American playmakers. The presenting company includes Agnes Ardeck, Mace Greenleaf and an adequate support.

THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT. George H. Broadhurst's latest music al comedy, "The House That Jack Built," with a strong cast, comes to the New Grand, Thursday, Nov. 14, for one performance only. Bright new specialties will form a pleasing feature of the entertainment. The Boston papers were unanimous in praise, the Daily Globe contributing the following: "The House That Jack Built" makes disgruntled family men forget the price of coal, and smoothes out the care wrinkles of those who are on the wrong side of the stock market.

The Danger of Delay.

The maxim "Never put off until tomorrow what you can do today" can-not be too strictly adhered to; in fact, it should never be disregarded. Too often we hear of losses sustained through a slight delay which is entirely inexcusable. More particularly is this the case in life insurance. Many men say they do not need the insurance just now, although they will require it in a couple of years; others say they will consider the matter next year; and others ask the agent to call again next week, when they will apply for a policy. How do they know they will be alive then? and if they are alive have they any guarantee that they will be able to get insurance? From the very nature of its mission of protection life insurance should not be delayed for any reason whatever, but should be attended to immediately.

But what is perhaps as inexcusable as delay is to secure unreliable insurance. If you are not sure your policy will be paid, you are in as bad a position as if you had no insurance what-To properly fulfill its purpose your life insurance should be as solid as a rock. The Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada, Toronto, has always endeavored to make policy. holders' security unquestionable, and a short examination of its financial standing will be convincing evidence of its strength in this respect. The fact that your policy is an "Imperial" policy is an unimpeachable guarantee of its value. Further particulars regarding the company and its plans may be tained by calling on or writing to Geo. S. Hamilton, Manager Western On-
