Municipal Council.

The Municipal Council of King's Co. met on Tuesday 14th inst., at 10 o'clock. All Councillors present except Dickie and N. J. Lyons, the latter of whom soon appeared.

At the instance of Councillor Roscoe the entire minutes of April meeting of Council and special meeting in June were read.

Resolved that petition be referred back to petitioners to enable them to comply with requirements of Chap. 49 Sec. 1, Rev. Stat. regarding the closing of roads.

Petition of C. F. Beckwith and others for the laying out of road on line between lands of T. E. Smith and Jos. N. Wood, to enable Fred Chisholm to get access to lands owned by him, read and referred to committee on roads and bridges.

Petition of Rufus Forsyth and others that Jacob Caldwell be allowed to perform one half his statute labor on his own private road, read and referred to committee on roads and bridges.

Report of Charles J. Wolfe, Inspector under Nova Scotia License Act, read, showing cases brought under the act as follows: "March 8th—Sarah Ann Bent, convicted before H. E. Jefferson. Imprisoned 60 days in County Jail. April 6th—Information laid against A. B. Baxter and M. McFadden, of Canning; cases not tried. August 10th—M. N. Graves, of Aylesford, convicted of violation of Act before W. H. Magee; fined $50. Case taken to Supreme Court on plea that the said act is not in force in this County. In April last County Judge Blanchard gave a decision declaring the act not in force in the county, and a decision from a higher court could not be had for some months. I, therefore (after taking advice on the subject) did not deem it prudent to incur the expenses of many prosecutions. The Graves case, I understand, will be argued before the full bench at Halifax in February or March and also that the test case promised by the government will be brought before the courts in the near future, when no doubt the validity of the act will be established and the law against the illicit sale of liquor successfully carried out.

I append my bill for services, trusting that my course will meet your approval.

I am yours respectfully,
CHAS. J. WOLFE,
Inspector.

Waterville, Dec. 31st, 1889.
To CHAS. J. WOLFE, Dr.
Jan. 1890. To salary for services as Inspector for enforcing Canada Temperance Act. $25.

Resolved that C. J. Wolfe be continued as Inspector under the Nova Scotia License Act. Moved by Councillor Bars, seconded by Councillor N. J. Lyons.

Moved in amendment that pending the decision of the Courts as to whether the Scott Act is in force in King's County (in the matter referred to in report of C. J. Wolfe) this Council do not appoint an Inspector to enforce the Scott Act as it would involve an expenditure with no adequate return. Moved by Councillor Roscoe, seconded by Councillor J. N. Fitch.

The amendment being put was declared lost.

The motion was then put and declared carried. Names being called for, members voted as follows: For: Warden, Steele, J. P. Lyons, Morse, Bishop, Anderson, Bars, Ewing, N. J. Lyons, 9. Against: Roscoe, Fitch, Patterson, Mack, Foster, Cook, 6.

Report of Board of Health for Wards 10, 11, and 12 laid before council and read:

The Sanitary Inspector by order of the Board inspected premises of Mr. Donaldson, of Dalhousie, where typhoid fever existed and took steps to prevent the spread of the disease. ### Nova Scotia's Bright Future.

The Yankee who drops down into this country for the first time in his life and comes face to face with the wide extent of territory that goes to make up the province of Nova Scotia, who sees with his own eyes the abundance of its resources, and who comes in contact with the people and their methods of business and social life finds for himself a great surprise.

And it is a surprise, because all of these things are so widely different from what his early training and his later prejudice have taught him to look for. He finds, when he gets beyond the circle of his own environment, whether that circle be Boston or some other place in New England, that there is a deal more within the domains of that province than he had ever dreamed of. And he finds, too, that all his imaginative pictures of this province are far from being true to nature. Broad in extent, rich in soil, productive of minerals, beautiful in flowers and literally abounding in fruits and filled with a most hospitable and enlightened people, he feels almost indeed that the "rockbound" shores of Pilgrimage are, in comparison, as waste places and barren land. Never before in the history of the country, it may truly be said, has the favorable attention of business men been so generally directed to Nova Scotia as at the present time. Investigations have shown that the same energy and tact that are used in business ventures in the New England states, if applied here, will in many cases yield double and even quadruple return. The interest in this country is not a passing one; neither is it one that is poorly based. It has plenty of railroad connections already established, and more to come. It has one of the richest fruit and vegetable growing sections within the Canadian boundaries; it has excellent schools and churches of all denominations; well-built streets, electric lights, a splendid water supply, abundance of excellent building materials, numerous industries, a hospitable, cultivated and progressive people, and best of all, a climate that is as healthful as southern California; and that, in itself, is bound to be a helpful factor in building up the whole country.

And more than all this, there are inexhaustible beds of the highest grade of coal in the eastern and northern parts of the country, that only need the touch of capital to be materialized into gold; while south of the Cobequid Mountains in Colchester county is the finest iron ore yet discovered in this country.—Boston Transcript.

All About Shorthand.

This is the title of a 36-page pamphlet of information, containing answers to all the questions an inquirer would be likely to ask about systems, books, instruction, salaries of stenographers, how to secure positions, etc., etc. It will show what young men have done at home, on farms, and in workshops; how from the humblest beginnings the highest success has been reached by learning this art at piecemeal study, and while pursuing other occupations. The success of stenographers as compared with the success of young men in any other vocation in life, will be seen to be marvellous and encouraging. The author of this system was himself a farmer's boy and learned the art while following the plow. The information he gives in this pamphlet will be of interest and value to every young man (or young woman either) who must earn his own living. The pamphlet is mailed free to anyone writing for it and mentioning the paper in which this article appears. 144a. Address D. L. SCOTT-BROWNE, 251 West 14th St., New York, N. Y.

RIGHT OF WAY.—$10,000 damages have been awarded the town of Kentville for the right of way of the Cornwallis Valley Railway, says the Berwick News:—"Mr. Ray and his associates have certainly earned the gratitude (?) of the ratepayers of West Cornwallis, Aylesford and Horton who have to pay the shot in equal proportion with the Kentville people themselves."—Weymouth Free Press.

Who has fine Hair, and desires to preserve its color, abundance, and lustre, should use Ayer's Hair Vigor as a dressing. It keeps the scalp clean and cool, and is by far the most exquisite toilet preparation in the market.

B. M. Johnson, M. D., Thomas Hill, Mo., says: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor in my family for a number of years, and regard it as the best hair preparation I know of. It keeps the scalp clean, the hair soft and lively, and preserves the original color. My wife has used it for a long time with most satisfactory results."

Mrs. S. A. Rock, of Anderson, Texas, writes: "At the age of 34, in Monroe, La., I had a severe attack of swamp, or malarial fever. After I got well my hair commenced coming out, and so continued until it had well nigh all gone. I used several kinds of hair restorers, but they did no good. A friend gave me a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. Before finishing the first bottle my hair began to grow, and by the time I used three bottles, I had a fine head of hair."

He said he was accustomed to lift heavy weights in his teeth and that he could throw a barrel of flour over his head or lift a chair with 50 pounds on it to a horizontal position. A Valuable Secret.

About twenty years ago a Seapoy, a native of Madras, India, came to Margarettville, Nova Scotia, in the course of his wanderings. Being greatly pleased with our country he decided to remain and make his home here.

His effects seemed magical! Neighbors heard of his wonderful curative properties and came to beg and to buy. The demand soon became so great that Mr Seavey found himself unable to prepare the medicine in sufficient quantities and he disposed of the secret, to parties who were in a position to engage in the manufacture and sale of his remedy, which is called after his name, Seavey's East India Linctum.

Wherever used it has proved an unvaluable remedy and become a household necessity.

"And that the same tolls be sued for and collected by any one of the Commissioners of the Gasperau and Black River, in his own name, before any Justice of the Peace for Kings County as a civil suit."

Whereas, the cost of maintaining the paupers in the poor house for the respective townships of the County in no case exceeds $150 per week for each pauper inclusive of all expenses for salaries and labor, and in some of the townships is far less; and

Whereas, the cost of keeping persons confined in the county jail amounts to the sum of $250 per week, besides other remunerations; and

Whereas, the care of the said jail requires but a small portion of the time of the keeper, who has the free use of the premises, which are of considerable annual value, and perquisites and fees connected with office of keeper; and

Whereas, a suitable keeper for the said jail can be procured and the necessary labor for the same provided, with no remuneration but the use of the jail buildings and premises, in which case the county would only be required to pay the actual cost of providing food and fuel necessary for persons confined therein; therefore

Resolved, that the pay of the keeper of the said jail do not exceed the actual cost of the food and fuel necessary for the persons confined in the said jail, in addition to the use of the jail buildings and premises, with the perquisites belonging to the office of the keeper as now exceeding $175 per week for prisoners. Moved by W. E. Roscoe, seconded by T. H. Morse.

On motion, the Council adjourned to meet again on Thursday, 25th inst.

CATARH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS. HAY FEVER.

A NEW HOME TREATMENT

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and in the lining of the throat. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to three simple applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks. N. B.—For catarrhal discharges peculiar to females (whites) this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent on receipt of ten cents by A. H. Dixon & Son, 303 West King St. Toronto, Canada.—Scientific American.

Sufferers from catarrhal troubles should carefully read the above.

OSTRICH FARMING.

How the Bird of the Beautiful Pinnace is Raised.

A California Industry That Returns Good Profits, Though the Risks Are Great—Some of the Ways and Characteristics of the Ostrich.

Among the many points of interest about this city is the Pasadena Ostrich Farm, writes a Pasadena Equivocal correspondent from Pasadena, Cal. It is only a short ride from town.

On one of the innumerable sunny, cloudless days that come to Southern California we visited the ostrich farm. Over the entrance gate are the words: "Admission twenty-five cents." We had been invited to look at the rare birds, so our purses were none the lighter for the visit.

Before us was a platted enclosure, over one side of which was a tacked, that the curious passer-by may not have a view of the ostriches without paying the admission fee.

Leaving the carriage we walked along to the far side of the enclosure. As we stood before the fence the keeper gave peculiar call and the ostriches hurried toward us. We had expected such great birds to move awkwardly. Instead, they move with an easy, gliding gait not unlike the camel.

Perhaps both acquired it in the same way— from walking over the deep sands in their native land.

There must have been twelve or fifteen ostriches in the corral. They are strange looking creatures, with long, bare legs, brown, flat bodies, and long, serpentine necks, well suited to their small heads and bright eyes. The body of the ostrich is from four to five feet high, and the head rises high above the neck, eight or ten feet from the ground.

As we gazed at the strange birds one of our party remarked, laughingly, that the saying, "A bird in the hand, etc.," seemed to have lost its meaning.

Standing before eight or ten of the queer birds, with their small heads darting here and there, by the quick twists and curves of the snake-like necks, is enough to make one uncomfortable. The legs are so still like iron, for a time, only waver, bare legs and wrinkling necks impressed us.

We offered a few oranges in our outstretched hands. The necks wriggled over the high fence and quickly the oranges were snatched into our open hands and swallowed whole.

We know that this is true, for we saw them passing down through the long, slender necks. The most fortunate of the ostriches showed two or three distinctations of the neck.

The bird's feet have two toes—indeed, it may be said to have one great toe with another seemingly undeveloped.

But it is for its plumage that the ostrich is noted. We turned our attention to the plumage.

The great bodies are thickly covered with overlapping feathers, looking somewhat like thoroughly worn-out felt. The necks are black; the femora a brownish black; the wings and tail are black.

We were greatly surprised to see the number of plumes on the wings—not less than thirty or forty overlapping on the tip of each wing.

The keeper threw several handfuls of corn to the ostriches, also some alfalfa (a kind of hay), cut up and wet with water. They seemed greedy, but we were told it did not require a great deal to keep them.

While the birds were eating about for the food on the ground the keeper lifted one of the wings and ran his hand through the mass of feathers, calling forth an exclamation of surprise and delight from each of us.

MEN WHO NEVER SLEEP.

Thrilling Incidents in the Life of an American Detective.

How French, English and American Thieves Hunt Their Game—Shadowing Dishonest Clerks—A Few Cases Illustrating the Methods.

One of the best-known detectives in the United States, after repeated solicitations by a reporter for the Denver (Col.) Times, consented to talk about his business.

"There is all the difference in the world," he said, "between the methods used by the secret service agents of different countries. People who read French novels have an idea that the disguises worn in them are as thick as the pages of the book, and that the detective who wears them is as cunning as the fox.

"A French detective who can not so disguise himself that his superior can not detect him is a failure, not a failure in any detective bureau. The disguises are wonderful, too, and even the strong light of day shows no imperfection in them.

"There are two sorts of detectives in France—State detectives and the municipal or city force. Among the former no one knows who follows the detective, and as they never work in pairs, the necessity for knowing each other is not so great. The workings of the French bureau is very thorough and more like the American method than the English.

"The latter never think of disguising themselves, and go to work openly. If a bank is robbed in France a new assistant teller or clerk appears in the bank a day or so afterward. He is a detective, of course, and where in England the detective would be called in to investigate the robbery, here he is called in to investigate the robbery.

"The English have a great system of stool-pigeons. Among the victims of all classes, male and female, are selected those to be found who, for the sake of being protected in a certain way, carry all the news of the crooked work done among the great business, as high class thieves are called to Scotland Yard, where is situated the Criminal Investigation Bureau. If Harry, the brewer, is flashing a great deal of money about the fact is at once reported to the police, and if any large forgery or robbery has recently occurred, Harry, the brewer, is liable to prove an ally inside the great police of Scotland Yard.

Allen's Lung Balm was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectation and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balm will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLER'S LUNG BALM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Price Cough Cure. If you have not tried the Balm, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.
