Commemoration of the 25th Anniversary of Christ Church

(From the Athens Reporter, November 17th, 1909)

The services in Christ's Church in connection with the commemoration of the 25th anniversary of the church were very interesting and largely attended. The weather was all that could be desired. At 10.30, morning prayer and Holy Communion was administered to a large number. Rev. G. S. Anderson, of Morrisburg, preached on Deut. 16:16 with great acceptability. In the announcement the Rector recounted the events of 25 years ago in the dedication of the building, on Thursday November 13. 1884. The Rector in those days was Rev. R. N. Jones, later succeeded by Rev. William Wright, who was succeeded five years ago by the present incumbent. The growth of the congregation has been steady and permanent.

The Sunday School was addressed by Mr. Anderson in the afternoon. The singing of the new hymns was very bright by the children. The congregation at 7.00 o'clock was even larger, filling nearly every available seat. The preacher spoke from II Tim. 4:5.

The choir had a large part in making the services of the day a success, especially may be mentioned the hymn No. 605, sung during the offertory for the first time in the church. On Monday at noon a great dinner was spread in the town hall, where friends of the church from far and near assembled for the midday meal. It was a great feast, a faithful reflecnear assembled for the midday meal. It was a great feast, a faithful reflection of the bountiful harvest. Chicken pie, poultry, cold meats of various kinds, steaming hot dishes, delicious pastry to no end—and such an abundance of everything! Attentive waiters served the various tables and everything ran as smoothly with the busy ladies as with them it was an everyday occurrence.

Rev. F. D. Woodcock, of Brockville, spoke on the development of our great Northwest and the duty that the Church in older Canada owes to the strange people that are seeking a home on those broad and fertile acres.

A vocal solo by Rev. E. H. Croly was artistically rendered and warmly applauded.

Rev. T. Austin Smith, of Lyn, gave a brief historical address, closing with a reference to the increasingly active work of the laymen and the various helpful societies of the ladies.

Rev. S. B. G. Wright, of Maitland, was accorded a warm reception and was heard with pleasure in a brief address touching his connection with Christ Church, of which his reverend father, the late Rev. Rural Deam Wright, was for so many years its Wright, was for so many years its faithful rector.

THE STORY OF A BLOOD FEUD

BY ANNIE S. SWAN.

CHAPTER I.—(Cont'd.)

During the past two years many ind eyes had been turned towards kind eyes had been turned towards the house of Stair, and the lone wo-man-creature who had fought her brave battle there, and people had not been slow to say that, had Judith been the heir, things might have improved with the Rankines.

"But you got on quite well in India, an? Peter never made any com-

"And that was monstrous kind of "And that was monstrous kind of old Peter," retorted Alan, with a sort of whimsical dryness which had humor but no bitterness in it. "I know quite well what Peter's opinion of me is, my dear. He has never hidden it." "He has been very kind to me all this while, Alan—coming as often as he could, and sending all sorts of delicacies which father couldn't eat. And he could, and sending all sorts of delicacies which father couldn't eat. And it was he who sent the cable to you at his own_expense. We musn't forest that!"

"Alan, you can't have got the letter before you left, telling about Peter's engagement?"

"Fraggement to what?"

at his own expense. We musn't forget that?"

"Did he really? It's the first time we've ever got something for nothing from Peter," said Alan, with another touch of his genial cynicism. "We're getting on in years, Judy—both Peter and I. Have you remembered that we'll be thirty-two next week?"

"Father remembered, Alan. He said you were born before he was that age, and he wondered where the next heir was to come from."

Alan Rankine looked the picture of surprise. "Peter Garvock engaged? Judy, you're getting at me!"

Judy laughed.
"I am not. It is perfectly true. But I don't wonder you are surprised. Everybody was, and it all happened like a whirlwind—don't you know?—

and he wondered where the next heir was to come from."

Alan Rankine shrugged his shoulders and smiled a slightly rueful smile.

"Faith, and that would be a hard question to answer! Do you notice the grey in my hair, Judy?"

"Yes, I've noticed it, but I like it well. It makes you look ever so much nicer." Judy made haste to say. "As for Peter—he is like me—he grows plainer every day."

"Don't miscall yourself, Judy, nor put yourself in the same boat with Peter! In spite of his extravagance about the cable, there isn't room in that private, particular boat for anybody but yourself."

There was affection, pride, appreciation in the tone which warmed Judy's heart, and caused delicious tears to spring to her eyes. In spite of all her capability, Judy was a very woman, who found it sweet to lean where there was sufficient prop.

I don't wonder you are surprised. Everybody was, and it all happened like a whirlwind—don't you know?—belore we had time to realize that they even knew each other."

"They live in Ayr—in the old Clock "They live in Ayr—in the old Clock House. Don't you remember my writing and tell you about two years ago that an old Cambridge Professor had at an old Cambridge Professor had at an old Cambridge Professor had they was a keen the Clock House?"

"I must have heard it, I suppess."

And it is his daughter—what ho!"

The words ended in a long, low whistle of amazement.

"What sort is she? A blue-stocking, a sweet Newnham creature, with straight hair and a pair of blue goggles, who will correct Peter's class'rs—though he rather fancies himself in them!"

Judy laughed again.

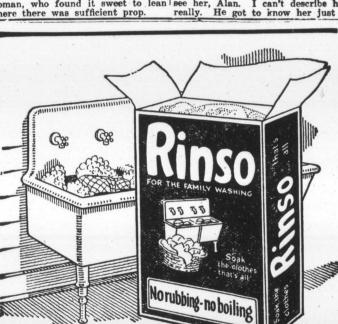

"I think I'll ask you to wait till you see her, Alan. I can't describe her, really. He got to know her just at

"I'm afraid we shall have to get to Judy was about to speak again. At the same time he rose and pushed back his chair. "Is there anything in the stable that will carry me to Ayr?"

"Not on its back, I'm afraid. There is only the cob. But it is a good cob in the cart, Alan, and Bob Figgis is a good lad."

a good lad."
"Right. Then I'll get a change of raiment and go down. And, I think I'd better go as far as Glasgow while I'm at it, and hear what the lawyers are saying about things. I suppose old Richardson is still to be found in Bath Street?"

Judy nodded and, before he left the detained him a moment.

"Peter and the stage! Queer alliance! What do you think of her, Judy?" ance! What do you Judy?"

"I like her But I don't want to say anything much till you have seen her, Alan. It is better that you should be unprejudiced."

"What does Aunt Isatel say to has behaved very

"Not much. She has behaved very "Not much. She has behaved very the course, the well, I consider, for, or course, the Carlyons are hardly received—don't you know?—and Aunt Isabel is fairly proud. But Peter is happy, Alan there is no doubt about that, and it is going to the course of the cour going to do him good in every direc-tion. It's bringing out the human side of him."

"Well, well, news indeed!" murmur-"Well, well, news indeed!" murmured Rankine, as he went off to get ready for the busy day in front. He had got plenty to occupy his thoughts. In spite of the sad circumstances he found himself extraordinarily glad to be in the house of his fathers. When he descended to the hall to find Judith waiting for him, and the cart at the door, she put rather a wistful question to him.

"I hope you'll have a good interview with Mr. Richardson, Alan, if you should go to Glasgow. But are you going back to India?"

He shook his head decisively.

"I am not, my dear. I'm stopping at Stair, to sink or swim with it. If we pull together—you and I, Judy—I think we'll swim. But we'll have a good pow-wow over it when I get back."

She stood a moment on the terrace to watch him drive away, a gallant —for those who had less kinship with the open, and who prized money and the things which money could buy.

As this thought—a very unusual one for a person so modest and humble—passed through Judith Rankine's mind, her eyes seemed to turn naturally towards the lowest spur of Barassie Hill, where the tops of the chimneys of The Lees could just be seen.

The Garvocks and the Rankines had some slight ties of blood between them,

The Garvocks and the Rankings are some slight ties of blood between them, sufficient to make the young people themselves as cousins. They adopt themselves as cousins. They had all been brought up together, in a sense, and Isabel Garvock had helped to mother the motherless brood at Stair until Judy was able, at a very youthful age, to take command.

The lands marched, and the marched the marched and the marched.

Stair was the finer property naturally, but its resources had not been husbanded, consequently it was not in the state of high cultivation and perfection which prevailed at The Learning and the state of the prevailed at The Learning and the state of the prevailed at The Learning and the state of the prevailed at The Learning and the learning and the prevailed at the learning and the learning and the state of high cultivation and perfection which prevailed at The Lees, and which was Peter Garvock's pride, as it had been that of his father before him. Bit by bit, the borders of The Lees had been widened vertebit of land to estand as soon as money could buy it, and, once merely an off-shoot of Stair—as gift, indeed, offered by the lordly Rankine of a bygone day to a humble relative who had done him a service—it had become one of the most important and desirable places in the county. Money had been spent freely on it and, while it lacked the whole dignity of Stair, it had that sheltered, cared-for look, that outward air of prosperity look, that outward air of prosperity. hook, that outward air of prosperity which we associate with money wisely spent. It was an ideal home for one of Glasgow's merchant princes, which Peter Garvock undoubtedly was.

Alan Rankine's dustiness in Ayr was quickly done, and he caught the twelve o'clock train for Glasgow. It was not much patronized, and he was rather glad in the circumstances to escape at once the welcome and the condolences of old acquaintances and friends. It once the welcome and the condolences of old acquaintances and friends. It was raining when he got out at St. Enoch's, and he buttoned up his shabby waterproof and set out to walk, with long, swinging strides, to the offices of Messrs. Garvock, Garvock, & Hume, in Jamaica Street. He would just miss the lawyer at that hour, he knew, and might as well lunch with Peter, if he could catch him. He did, at the beatom of the ware-house stair, on his way out to lunch. He did, at the begtom of the warehouse stair, on his way out to lunch. The meeting between the two men was characteristic. They stared at one another for a full minute, then both laughed a trifle nervously.

"Well, old chap, so you're here," said Garvock at last.

"Yes, I'm here," Alan answered.
They shook hands and stepped out into the rain. Just outside the door, however, Peter Garvock pāusēd.

"You were in time, I hope? Judy told me he was very low yesterday."

"No. He died this morning, at halfpast two," answered Alan.

They walked on a few steps in silence, which Garvock broke.

"I had to lunch with a man at St. Enoch's. We'll just go there. I can put him off. My business isn't important. I'm sorry, Alan. I'd have cabled sooner, but they wouldn't let me."

me."

Peter Garvock's voice, usually of a raucous quality, was softened into a kindliness and sympathy which surprised nobody more than his cousin, for, though they had been fairly good friends the most of their lives, chiefly because Alan himself was not of a quarrelsome disposition, he had often compared Peter Garvock to the Scottish national emblem, and had once fought with him because of having suggested to him "Wha daur meddle wi' me" as a suitable family motto for The Lees!

A Condition Known as General

Is habitually disobedient or refractory to discipline may become quite the opposite as a result of better nutrition. These facts with reference to nutrition illustrate one of the means of controlling what has been placed in our hands in developing personality in ourselves and in our children. Many a man is irritable and objectionable because he does not know how to eat or what to eat. Too much meat may lead to forms of intestinal intoxication; too much coffee may make one nervous and easily irritated; too many cigars may break down one's health slowly and insiduously and may completely transform a man who health slowly and insiduously and may completely transform a man who otherwise is of a sweet and gentle disposition into one who has—as we say—a disagreeable personality.

An exact definition of personality is difficult to give. What most of us have in mind when we use this term probably refers to the impression which one makes on his fellowmen by his appearance, manner of speech, character of his smile, etc. When we examine these traits or characteristics we find that they have a foundation in physiology. There is the hereditary factor which refers to the likeness of offspring to parent. #### Three Men-One Coat.

The disadvantages under which rural preachers labor on account of a small income is revealed by the following actual fact. In a certain district in north-eastern Ontario there are three men, two of them clergyme and the third a teacher, who all use the same fur coat. In making long trips in the cold season they have to arrange it in such a way that the man going on the longest drive gets the use of the coat while the others stay at home till he returns. Their business, and especially the rural work they are doing, makes the possession of a fur coat a necessity more than a luxury, and yet, as one of them remarked they never had enough cash at one time to purchase such an expensive article

The invisible ear drum invented by A. O. Leonard, which is a miniature megaphone, fitting inside the ear entirely out of sight, is restoring the hearing of hundreds of people in New York city. Mr. Econard invented this drum to relieve himself of deafness and head noises, and it does this so successfully that no one could tell he is a deaf man. It is effective when deafness is caused by catarrh or by perforated or wholly destroyed natural drums. A request for information to A. O. Leonard, Suite 487, 70 Fifth avenue, New York city, will be given a prompt reply.

Will Change Slowly

Doubtless the nude stocking will have a long drawn-out demise as women will hate to suddenly give up light hosiery and return to more sub-dued tones. But there was a time when a sheer, black stocking considered mighty attractive, that day is coming back again.

While there seems to be no doubt in the minds of stocking manufacturthat brown and black stockings still hold their own again, it may be some months again before we see them really appearing in numbers for styles so thoroughly established are slow to change. But we will see light shades of brown and greys in the immediate future and as winter approaches darker shades will begin to appear such as the new wood tones which match the fall shoes. Any number of names are attached these new brownish stockings, such as camel, hazel, wood brown, nutmeg, bronze brown, etc. Before we eventually turn to black we will probably wear gunmetal shades which have the effect of being sheer black. black.

For Evening Wear

For evening wear there are light pearl greys, silver marshmallows and other silvery tones and pale pinks which are somewhat off the nude tone. Since silver slippers are still prominent for evening wear we find silvery white stockings more popular than eyer. With gold slippers rew yellowish hosiery is being sponsored.

For street wear, Fashion dictates that the stocking must mach the shoe or match exactly the color of the light hosiery with black s'ippers will choose light tans and greys and russet browns in preference to pinkish nude tones

COMMUNITY SINGING WALNUT INVESTMENT

Get Together and "Let All the People Sing."

Folks Generally Enjoy Public Sing--Music Always Popular in the Country—Community Singing Includes All Present-Vary the Program From Grave to Gay.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Human beings are gregarious. The dietum that it is not good for man to be stone is not confined to things Folks will flock. Nothing draws like a crowd. Let it be known that "They're all soing to be there," and they all will try to be there to see them all, and if it be a public singsong, to hear them.

The Grange, the Farmers' Institutes, and the U.F.O organizations have already done away with much of the old-time isolation of country life, and the energy shown by those younger in years who have participated in the activities of School Fairs and Boys' and Girls' Clubs has also shown that a new day has arrived for more clubable conditions in rural neighborhoods. Community singing is a social solidifier.

Everybody Enjoys Singing. As the result of years of experience with Y.M.C.A.'s, men and boys' clubs, and military camps, I have come to the conclusion that people enjoy more than any other music that in which they take part publicly. A community sing-song, no matter where indulged in, always acts as a social tonic. It is a solvent of creed, caste and ultra dignity. It catches all present if they will only catch the tune. It takes the croak out of the throat, the furrows from the worried brow, the hard lines from mouths that have been growing grim, and the crowsfeet from the corner of the eyes. It melts the icy manner. It knocks the starch out of even the so-called superior

I have seen hard-headed business and professional men who have been looked upon with awe or fear by their employees, turn up at banquets or club gatherings in the city and drop all their dignity and "front" as they joyously bellowed some popular ditty, or solemnly joined in a sentimen-tal camp song, and doing it as if fate of nations depended upon their being heard. And, with a little coaxing, a farmer can outchant any city chap, because of better chest and lung development.

people. To sing together is to get to-

Music Always Popular in the Country. Music has always had a leading place in rural entertainment. The The old-fashioned singing school, gave a generation or two of agriculturists an ear for melody, and reflect ed itself in the volume of congress—tional singing that obtained forty years afo. To-day in church assemblies that heartiness and volume is very much wanting.

Community singing will do much to revive the robustious and not less pleasing vocalism of the good old days. The people who can sing with vim "Keep the Home Fires Burning" or "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag," are likely to be just as hearty in exhorting you to "Count Your Blessings," or to "Brighten the Corner Where You Are."

Community Singing Includes All

Real community singing implies a general participation. Everybody should have at least a whack at the choruses. A capable leader with both taste and gumption can bring hearty and genuine melody out of any rural gathering. Simple methods and gathering. Simple methods and a knowledge of human nature are all that are needed. He will first try out the juniors, and children will never refuse to sing. Then the girls will be heard by themselves, followed by the boys. Now we are getting along. The next thing we know the leader has the women carolling along all by themselves; and then, wonder of wonders, he calls upon "men only" or wonders, he calls upon men only to sing, and they get at it like the good sports that they are, so as to show the women folks and the kiddies that music is something that is in the soul of all, and that driving a capital side to a capital side to team in the field is a capital aid toward a rich and megaphonic baritone Vary the Program From Grave to Gay.

Then let us have community singing, and plenty of it; but let it be something more than mere sing-song. Anything decent will do to begin with, and the simpler the better, as a sort of limbering up exercise. But let something more ambitious be attempted now and then, such as glees, anthems, cantatas, or perhaps orator-ios, with big soloists from the cities as stars but with all hands drilled for the choruses. Some time an easy and clean comic opera might be put on, but with no intention of crowding out the more solid music; for it is well to remember the force and justness of that very practical observa-tion of the elder Pliny (lib. iv, cap. xi 24), "The lemon, as well as the sugar, is needed to make the punch."

sugar, is needed to make the punch. Community singing should be chooraged. It is a social, physical, mental, and moral tonic. Less public benefactions have been bonused by the state.—Thos. McGillicuddy, Statistics and Publication Branch. tistics and Publication Branch.

It Pays to Plant Walnuts and Wait Fifty Years.

No Better Legacy for the Farm Lac The Government Forestry Branch Will Assist—Tree-Growing Requires Little Labor-Black Walnut Trees As Memorials—How to Treat Poison Ivy.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

"Say, Mr. Forester, if a boy of my age were to plant an acre of black walnut this spring would I live to see the trees large enough to be used for the building of a house to shelter me in my old age?"

"Yes, my lad, you could plant the trees to-day, and in fifty years time the trees would be large enough to cut into interior finishing lumber for your house."

There is some satisfaction in planting a tree and watching it grow to merchantable size.

A Walnut Tree Grows for Many

A walnut tree will keep growing long after it has passed the half century mark, and keeps on making timber until it is one hundred and fifty years old. However, a very nice tree can be grown in fifty years on good soil; yes, large enough to make all the finishing lumber for the interior of a house. Ten acres of land planted under same forestry methods with walnut will make, in time, a fine tract of valuable timber, which when ready to harvest, would at present prices be worth $1,000 per acre. No Better Legacy Could Be Left.

A man could leave no better legacy for his heirs than a block of good The long time between seedtime and harvest in forestry frightens the average mortal, and deters him from planting forest trees. But peo-ple should not take the long time view seriously. Generations of hu-mans are yet to be born to live in this country, and since the present generation has largely destroyed the original timber, it is only just and fair that we should provide for the wood and lumber requirements of the future. On nearly every farm there is some waste land or the remnant of a wood lot. It may be odd, rough spots or sandy hills, areas that have not produced profitable grain grass crops and which could well be dividual containers. Cereals are in emall packets, one of which is used by an individual at a time. Jams

The Forestry Branch of the Lands and Forestry Branch of the Lands and Forestry Department is co-oper-atins with four hundred Ontario farmers in which the Forestry offi-cials try to point the way to success in wood lot management. As a recials try to point the way to success in wood lot management. As a result of such co-operation, many walnut, green ash, and red oak seedlings have been given a start toward useful production. A small seed will grow into a big tree. Nature does nearly all the work; man simply plants the seed or the little seedling tree and waits. The young forest is established by planting a tree every six feet, crowding the trees together to force them to grow tall, straight stems. As the crowding becomes too great for the crowding becomes too great for thrift, alternate trees are taken out. These thinnings can be used as fend These thinnings can be used as really poles, rails, gate material, small lumber, such as chair and table legs, and table legs, and table legs, the second se lamp stands, curtain poles, etc. So there is a source of revenue after the trees have been planted twenty years that will take care of the overhead expenses incidental to maintenance.

Very Little Labor Required in Tree-

With the farm labor situation ever satisfactory, and many farmers trying to crop twice as much land a hey can handle properly, forest clanting should show the way out. If the people of Ontario are to use wood in the house-building of the future, if we are to have fuel for the hearth, a lot of land owners must do some forest planting very soon.—L. Stevenson, Sec. Dept. of Agriculture.

Black Walnut Trees As Memorials. Planting of black walnut trees as emorials to soldiers is recommend-i by the United States Department of Agriculture. It is pointed out that the black walnut played a valiant part in the World War. The wood was used for gunstocks and airplane propellers, and the nutshells contri-buted carbon for gas masks, while the kernels were used in many delicacies for the boys in the trenches. Demand for the wood for war purposes depleted the number of fine old trees, and this method is suggested for filling their places.

Important In Chicken Yard. The health of our family depends largely upon the kind of feed that is given them and the way it is served. It is just as important to feed right in the chicken yard. Have the right kind of feed and see that it is not tainted in any way.

Hedda Hoyt, writing for the United Press from New York, says: While the majority of French designers and couture houses favor slender lines with widening hem features, long sleeves and short skirts, there are details of variations sponsored by these various style leaders which offer many suggestions, as may be seen in the following fall style summary

Callot favors straight, sheath lines with wide decorated bands extending about the hips. These low hip bands may be embroidered, or beaded and in some cases the decorative note extends in front only. Apron front effects are another Callot idea and these are used in conjunction the wide hip band on many of the afternoon frocks. Callott's sleeves are frequently long with fullness above elbow and a tight-fitting lower Fringes are also sponsored by Callott and these are added to give the flounce idea to the otherwise straight-lined frock. Callot's favorite colors this season are brown and maroon for day time wear and yellow, Madonna blue, saimon pink and coral for evening wear.

RECIPES

Italian Veal Chops

Six loin veal chops cut thick, two tablespoons of flour, one half Athens teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one cup tomato pulp, one small onton, one bayleaf, two whole cloves, one chopped green pepper, two tablespoons shortening.

Blend flour, salt and pepper and pound into chops. Melt shortening or veal fat and brown chops craefully in it. Lay chops in baking dish, add tomato, onions, clove, pepper, and simmer about an hour and a half with lid on. Serve with baked potatoes or plain boiled macaroni.

MOTH BALLS AND CONSIDERA-

Though the last few weeks have been sunny and delightful, all are aware that winter is just around the corner and winter wraps are beginn ing to make their appearance every-where. Furs that have been lying safely in moth-balls all summ being taken out again and it is of this we wish to write. So very often one never thinks of these warm wraps until the need for their use arises and then it is to find that the both-balls have done their work very thoroughly and several hours of hanging in the fresh air is needed to take from that particular piece of wearing apparel all trace of their recent presence. Sometimes the need for warmth is so urgent that it is worn anyway, moth-ball odor and all. This is an act of rather marked in consideration on the part of the one who does it for in a warm room later perhaps in a public meeting, at church, or among a gathering of friends, the strong moth-balls come exceedingly offensive. With some people they have the effect of causing an almost unendurable sen sation of choking and suffocation and to these an hour spent in such an at mosphere, perhaps in a place where it is difficult to make their way to fresh air, it is a time of very real discomfort, all for want of alittle thought on the part of the wearer of

Hospital for Sick Children 67 COLLEGE ST., TORONTO

-Lillian Gard

Dear Mr. Editor:-

Your readers have probably had their appetite for statistics satiated during the past few months. Still they will, no doubt, want to know something of the work accomplished by the hospital to which they have so generously contributed in the past. They are shareholders in a Mission of Mercy. Their dividends are not paid in coin of the realm. May I trespass upon your space to outline what those dividends are?

Firstly, the daily average of children occupying cots in the Hospital for Sick Children was 255. The total cared for as in-patients was 6.297. That is equivalent to the population of a good-sized Ontario

And secondly, the out-patient department. This is a wing of offices given over to consultation and minor operations. On an average there were 190 young callers a day.

That is where the dividends are earned—in the difference made in the lives of thousands of children through the voluntary contributions which render it possible to maintain an institution where pallid cheeks become rosy and twisted limbs are made straight.

If that were not dividend end one might try to estimate the enermous salvage of child-life in Ontario which has taken place since "Sick Kids" doctors and "Sick Kids" nurses have been going out through this province equipped with a knowledge of children's diseases, which they could not get except in some such highly specialized and pre-eminently efficient institution as the Hospital for Sick Children.

On this year's service the Hospital expended $345,126 and finds itself in the hole to the extent of $124,284. What comes in around Christmas-time keeps the Hospital going. So long as the word "Christ mas" retains its original significance could any charity possibly enlist more of the sympathy of your readers or entitle itself to more of their support?

Faithfully yours,

I. E. ROBERTSON, Chairman Appeal Committee

When ordering apples for domestic use it is well to carefully select the varieties according to the season of the year. THE NEATEST METHOD OF MULCHING.
If a neat mulch is desired for the borders or beds that will be seen through the winter, it is a good idea to run a piece of 12-inch chicken wire about the bed or border, holding it up with wooden stakes set in the ground.

Some think that Jesus is the prophet Elijah, whose return to earth in the last days was expected by the Jewish beople on the strength of the prophecy in Malachi (see ch. 3:1-3 and 4:5, 6). Others think that one of the major prophets has reappeared, Jeremiah in particular being named. Notice, however, that none of the people consider that Jesus is the Messiah.

Manure makes the best mulch for the hardy border, as it can be worked into the ground at the time of the spring cultivation.

Before covering the perennials with this mulch, cut down their tops to within three or four inches of the within three or four inches of the roots and burn this dead material, which may quite possibly contain disease spores or cocoons or insects eggs. The best mulch for the bulb border will be leaves or straw, as manure might come in contact with the bulbs and rot them.

While, therefore, Jesus lived and acted as the Messiah, he could not reveal himself in that character. Now, however, the time had come when Jesus must take his own specially chosen and trained disciples into his confidence on this solemn and exalted theme. What were his disciples' inmost thoughts regarding him? In response to this question, Peter confesses Jesus as the Messiah, and Jesus hails the confession as a revelation to Peter from God himself, and says that in Peter the foundationstone of his church is laid.
