Let Something Good be Said.

When over the fair frame of a friend or foe
The shadow of disgrace shall fall
Of words of blame or proof of thee and me
Let something good be said.

Forget not that no fellow-being yet
May fall so low but lose may lift his head
The check of shame with tears is wet
If something good be said.

No generous heart may vainly turn aside
In ways of sympathy; no soul so dead
But may awake strong and glorified,
If something good be said.

And so I charge ye, by the liberty given,
And by the cross on which the saviour died,
And by your own souls' hope of fair release,
Let something good be said.

A Prophet in Babylon.

BY W. J. DAVISON.
A RETIRED PROPRIETOR.

The old man listened attentively.
When Gaunt had done, there was a long silence. Then Gordon said in a gentle voice, "My dear young friend, it can't be done."

"Why, this you can't reform the church from within. Think a moment, and you will see that I am right. Jesus wished to do it. He was a child of the church. He loved it. He taught in its synagogues. He repeatedly said that he came not to destroy the law of Moses, but to fulfil it. But even He found the task impossible, and the answer of the Jewish church to His sweet reasoning: he found it impossible, and the wise of new truth had to be put into new bottles. Wesley tried it. He did not wish to break with the Anglican church, and he died in the delusion that he had not done so. The result proved the magnitude of his mistake.
He had created a power which he could not control, and Methodist took its own way, and became a church in its own right. The story is always the same. The reason is that every new truth must grow by its own roots. You can't gather grapes of thistles."

"Then what you are doing, Cherish your illusion as long as you can, for it is a generous illusion. Neither I, nor any other man, can do it."
"You have made your own illusion of its impossibility. It is only by the event that can teach you this. I myself once had the same programme. I saw the church rallying to me, declaring for freedom, reconstituting itself, evolving forms from within into a new form. Later on I discovered the invisible conservatism of human nature. It is only the bitter hours over that discovery. Then, at last, I saw that the old day must die before the new day could be born. Its poor work adapting old machinery to new needs; the cheapest way is to tear it off to the scrap heap at once, and be done with it, and give the new a fair chance."

"In your despair of the church's ultimate triumph, no. For my part, I would gladly vote for the total abolition of the church in all its existing forms, and begin right over again from the foundation. Anyway, it will have to be done before long, the church is to survive. For the church in its present form is on its death-bed, with lights and incense, and moving music and all the trimmings of things, but the odour of rupture and decomposition is in the air. The world knows perfectly well what is going on. I know nothing more pathetic than the angry wonder so often expressed by all kinds of ecclesiastical people over the fact that the masses of the people won't go to church. Surely the inference should be plain, it is to every one save the ecclesiastical. It is that life has been out of the churches. If the church were alive, people would not be asking to stay away from it."
The short winter afternoon was waning fast. The old man had risen from his chair as he talked; he stood against the window, and the red light of the setting sun shone full upon his face. It was as though the face itself radiated flame, and the red sunset light clothed him, in a prophetic robe.

"I don't think I am a pessimist," he added. "There is no man more hopeful than I. And my hope for the future rises high indeed when I see younger men, like yourself, willing to face poverty, for principle. Though that, of course—poverty, I mean—is the least part of the matter. Any man who lives a real inner life is bound to be careless of externals. It is not that he doesn't care, but that he doesn't care about them."

"But what about the children? The inner life is real—have externals ceased to count for much with him?"
"Involuntarily the eyes of both Gaunt and his wife took in the aspect of the little room. There was not a single unnecessary article of furniture in it. All was bare and simple as a monk's cell, and yet a certain dignity was there, the dignity that is the expression of austerity.
And against the sunset light rose the imposing figure of this old man, who knew nothing of the world but the freedom of his own soul, and had resolved all those gifts of the world which would interfere with that sublime liberty. And in the same instant they both recollected by a common sympathy of thought the house with which they were familiar in the great city that lay so near—the ostentation of rooms lumbered with useless articles more than the power to spend, lives lived within them, exhausting themselves in the daily pursuit of trivialities—and each felt the truth of Gordon's saying that the least part of the struggle they were entering on was the threat of poverty, for the poverty of the thinker and the worker could not be attained.

Gordon accompanied them bareheaded to the road.
"Come again, and come soon," he said. "Believe me when I say that I am at your disposal always, and I want to help you in any way I can."
"You have already helped us more than you know," said Margaret.

As they went down the hill they felt as though a silent benediction followed them. And they indeed felt the sound of trumpets, blown by lips diviner even than the lips of joyous wind over a day of sunshine.

"The UNDER-WORLD."
THIS last morning brought Gaunt a long letter from Paul Gordon. In this letter Gordon said that he had never expected to be drawn into any kind of public activity; he had regarded himself as having earned the right to rest. But the conversation with Gaunt had changed his mind. He felt now that a new occasion had arisen which might lead to his. It was not clear to him as yet what form of service might be possible to him, but he would like to come to New York and talk matters over with Gaunt.

Gaunt at once invited him to be his guest, and a day later Gordon arrived. Gaunt arranged that Palmer should meet him; in the same evening dinner. Gordon at once recognized the sympathetic qualities of Palmer's mind. The three men talked into the night. It was one of those delightful talks which range easily over many fields of thought, touching various themes with lightness and ease, the only kind of talk which deserves the name of conversation, because it concerns itself with ideas over which tall and flexible minds can join in happy contention.

It was not, however, till the next morning that Gordon mentioned the subject of his letter.
"If you are free to-day," he said to Gaunt, "I want you to take a little privilege with me. I'm not sure I can have my eyes examined today, but I want you to explain them by a study of mine."

"I am in your hands," said Gaunt.
"Very good," said Gordon. "But we start I warn you that our privilege will not be a pleasant one.
Can you ask you a question; do you know New York with any kind of extensiveness and completeness?"

"I'm afraid not," said Gaunt. "To tell the truth I've only lately realized that for seven years I've gone up and down in a little section of the city, and that is all."

"It's not surprising," said Gordon.
"It is a common characteristic of city-dwellers. A city so large as New York or London is after all only a series of villages joined together by the loosest kind of municipal bond.
Men dwell in their own villages, the rich in one, the poor in another, knowing next to nothing of each other. We complain, and justly, that when brilliant men of letters visit us, and go home to write books about us, they invariably convey false impressions and arrive at absurd conclusions. Of course the reason is plain.
They see just one of the many villages of which New York consists, and their kind friends who entertain them take particular care that they shall not stray beyond the bounds. Here, for example, is an excerpt from a recent article by an English visitor, which I thought worth preserving.

Read it."

He drew from his pocket-book a carefully folded press cutting, and handed it to Gaunt. The writer of the article was evidently in love with America. He praised indiscriminately all that he had seen. According to his account there was no vice in New York, no visible drunkenness, no dire poverty could be seen. It was the most beautiful and most orderly city he had ever seen. He had seen the great State of Liberty which grants docked every year to the harbour of New York, recognizing in the gigantic Statue of Liberty which guards the magnificent water-way a hand that beckoned them to plenty and wealth. America alone among the nations of the earth provided a table in the wilderness of the Old World for starving millions of the Old World and a welcome and an inheritance.
And so forth, through a thousand words or more of panegyric, and indiscriminate adulation.

"Well," said Gordon, "as Gaunt handed the paper back to him.
"O, of course it's flattery and nonsense," said Gaunt.

"Exactly," said Gordon. "But are we any wiser, any more ample in our vision? You remember that when a clerical conference lamented the scanty attendance at the churches, Phillips Brooks naively remarked that he attached little importance to their complaints, for he himself never saw an empty church. Of course not, but he forgot that everyone in the Phillips Brooks. Men see what they go on to see, and nothing is easier than to deny the existence of what they don't want to see."

"Yes, that's true," said Gaunt, "and I take the reproach to myself."
"I don't mean to reproach you," said Gordon, "although for that matter the reproach touches me as much as you. My point is that the very constitutions of these great modern cities make for specialized forms of life. In a certain sense, it cannot be avoided. Men naturally fall into a groove, live in the company of their social equals, and after a time forget that a universe of strange things lies round about them, just outside their groove. But with you and me it should be different. We are aiming at things that should affect the general life, and we must needs seek a social equality of our world."
"You don't expect the soldier and the rank-frog to study the strength and capacity of lotresses, the roads and byways and river-fords of strange countries, and all the thousand details of a great campaign. But the great captain must know these things; or his campaign will be a failure. It may be that you and I are only captives in a very small way, but not the less we must know our facts, if we are to do anything."

Gordon put on his long black cloak and the two men went out. They travelled eastward, ever eastward, till they left the cars at a point a little below Fourteenth Street.

"Now," said Gordon, "I want you to observe carefully what you see. It's many years since I first discovered this district, and since then it has altered for the worse. Yonder lies the New York we know, with its churches, colleges, and clubs; its hosts of pleasant and refined people; its green parks and mansions, its thoughtless pleasure-loving throngs, its orgies of social display, its almost incredible extravagance. Now look at this New York.
On every side, low, towering tenements, the Bastilles of poverty, containing hundreds of rooms into which sunlight and fresh air never penetrated. The streets were narrow, crowded, unsavory, and it was noticeable that there were few children in them. Upon the faces of the people as they passed I saw lines which have been left a long time in the dark. The people themselves were not ill-dressed; they were none of those figures, clothed in dreary rags, which might have been seen in a London Slum, nor were there the bestial faces, sodden with alcohol, and disfigured by ferocious passions, which Paris can display when she visits us a commensurate from her foul abysses. But there was something even more pitiable—a certain dull hopelessness which characterizes creatures long subject to ill-usuage—the look one sees in the eyes of a beaten dog or a starved horse. Both men and women walked with eyes turned downward. They had a furtive stealthy air, as though they feared something which they could not see.
Here and there windows in these vast populous towers were open, and from every open window came the endless whirr and click of sewing machines. One could fancy the whole district bedridden by some gigantic and relentless slave-master, some monstrous figure, whose cruel eyes watched every room, whose vast hands, thrust through the walls success of walls and doors, held men and women to an interminable task, or dragged them forth to feed the maw of some horrible machine whose appetite was never satiated.

"This is the New York I want you to see," said Gordon. "Tell me what strikes you about it."
"I see no children," said Gaunt.
"Where are they?"
"They are all at work," said Gordon.
"These children never play. There are sixty thousand children in New York shut up in tenement houses like these, or even worse places, not one of whom knows what a game is. Most of them will never go to school, in spite of all the efforts of trust officers. Even the baby fingers can earn a cent an hour in sweated labor, and these little ones begin a life of slavery in the very moment when they leave their cribs."

Drink Customs.

All the agitation of temperance cranks or the spasmodic efforts of church people could not avail to check the wave of popular condemnation over this country. The business has killed itself by its products and methods. In business the man who drinks to-day is discounted, and socially he who carries with the wine cup is marked. Where once liquor was an almost every table in the fashionable hotel or club, it is regarded as an exception whenever it appears. Even men who are in the habit of taking a glass occasionally decry the drinking customs and more particularly the treating system in vogue on this side of the Atlantic.
There are thousands who could not be called total abstainers who recognize in the liquor trade a menace to our social integrity and a handicap to social progress. They, and they alone, have looked over the ground, have sized up the situation, have seen its light on this fair country of ours, have counted the awful toll, and decided. To them belongs the credit of thinking class who are not to be found at any demonstration who have decided that the bar must go. And they have spoken.—Exchange.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., FEB. 26, 1909.

College Women.

Is it true that college bred women rarely marry? The records of two English universities—those of London and Manchester—seem conclusive as to the fact. Out of 560 women who have taken degrees from Manchester university, only 64 have married, and though the exact figures are not given, a similar story is told regarding London university. In other words, of women receiving a liberal education only 1 in 8 7/8 are led to the altar. The other seven remain bachelors of art in every sense of the term.

The fact being established, how can it be explained? As Artemus Ward would say, 'Why is this thus, and what is the reason of this thushness?'

We must hasten to brush aside the assumption that all the graduates of colleges want to marry. Indeed, it is to be feared that the tendency of a college course is to lessen the inclination toward the natural destiny of woman. Mental culture opens up so many avenues of enjoyment that its possessor can be happy in the pursuit of any one of half a dozen lines of research, and never feel the need of a consort of the other sex. A person may be so married to a science as to be impervious to Cupid's every arrow. And to many people the delights of scholarship seem so superior to those of domestic or social life, that the latter are held in low esteem, if not in absolute scorn. To be the mistress of a home seems little better than gilded slavery. A career in some professional sphere is the ambition of the average woman of letters. If she fails to achieve it she not unwillingly embraces the life of a recluse.

But while a disinclination to marry may largely explain the phenomenon, it remains true that many a college-bred woman would like to marry, and cannot. Human nature is strong in most people, and marriage is the normal condition of adult humanity. Even the attractions of the library and laboratory cannot easily extinguish these instincts, which the Creator has implanted in the heart of every true woman. It all the college-bred women who would really have gives up the glamor of scholarship for the glories of wifehood and motherhood, had been successful in finding congenial partners, we may be sure the proportion between the married and the unmarried would have been something like one in three or four, rather than one in eight. We are driven to the conclusion that a college course in some way lessens the wisdomness of the young woman who expects and desires to marry.

But in what way? That's the rub. The secretary of London university says that 'men are afraid of women with a degree, and consequently shy of them.' But that can only hold true of men who are themselves comparatively educated. If even Socrates was in terror of Xantippe with a tongue—what might not happen to a modern business man by no means a Socrates when confronted with a woman able to berate him in five languages? What sort of comfort could he get at the dinner table when the conversation turned on logarithms and the measureless why, rather than on pie crust and waffle? Things would be evened up a little if college graduates would wed none but college graduates. We cannot imagine men of equal mental equipment shrinking from alliance with a college-bred woman because they are afraid of them. There must be some other reason. And that they do shrink from them is shown by the fact that of 560 women graduates of Manchester university, only twelve became wives of fellow-students.

The kernel of the whole problem is this: The essence of marriage is a union of opposites. The oak weel comes not another oak, but the clinging ivy. A man admires and is prepared to love a womanly woman. A woman admires and is prepared to love a manly man. When young women go to women's seminaries and pursue courses designated to fit them for the natural sphere of woman, they are greatly in demand and soon have opportunities to put in practice what they have learned. When women go to colleges in which the curricula are designed for men, and appear anxious to become masculine in thought and occupation, they must be possessed of something the masculine craves. Therefore would not wed an Amazon. The virile Canadian of to-day thinks of a Desdemona—not of a blend of Mrs. Candie and Mrs. Pankhurst.

Baby's Own Tablets Will Cure Your Baby.

If your little ones are subject to colic, indigestion, constipation, worms, simple fevers, or the other common ailments of childhood, give them Baby's Own Tablets and see how quickly the trouble will disappear. But better still, an occasional dose of Tablets given to well children will keep these troubles away. Mrs. Allan A. MacDonald, Island River, N. B., says: 'My baby suffered greatly from constipation and stomach trouble and Baby's Own Tablets cured him. I always keep the tablets in the house now.' The election in Carleton, Ont., to fill the seat in the Commons vacated through the decision of Mr. E. L. Borden to sit for Halifax, took place on Monday, Mr. King, who resigned in 1906 by giving a vacancy for Mr. Borden, secured a majority of 100 votes.

Board of Health.

At the call of Mayor Harvey the Board of Health met on Tuesday afternoon to devise protective measures in view of the outbreak of small-pox in Halifax, Windsor, Yarmouth and elsewhere in the province. The whole of the town of Wolfville until further notice, on account of small-pox and other infectious diseases in the surrounding country.

Resolved that the secretaries of the hockey and curling clubs be notified that if their teams should visit and play matches with other teams in infected districts that they will be quarantined on their return.

Resolved that the Wolfville Board of Health recommend that as a precaution against the spread of small-pox all mail matter be disinfected; also all money handled by the banks, stores and other public places be disinfected; also that all persons who have not been vaccinated within seven years be asked to have it attended to.

A Mother's Talk to Mothers.

WHAT ZAM BUK DID IN A WESTERN HOME.

Here is just one illustration of the wisdom of keeping a box of Zam-Buk always handy. It is a true record of the varied uses to which this great balm was put—with highly satisfactory results in every case—in just one family, and during a few months only. Mrs. C. J. Irlam, of 90; William avenue, Winnipeg, makes the report as follows:—

'I have found Zam-Buk so very useful as a household balm that I want to make its merits still more widely known. Some eight weeks ago my brother, Mr. C. Procter, happened a serious accident. While at work, a rusty nail penetrated the palm of his right hand. The rust of the nail poisoned the flesh and inflammation set in quickly. He went to the General Hospital and consulted a doctor, who advised poulticing to draw out the poison. This was applied, but when there was no improvement after a few days, I began applying Zam-Buk balm, leaving off poultices.

'The effect was almost magic! Zam-Buk soothed the pain, drew out the poison, and allayed all inflammation. Healing then commenced, and in a few days he was able to resume work.

'Six weeks ago my husband, Mr. C. J. Irlam, while returning from work quite late in the evening, was bitten by a dog, the dog's teeth penetrating the flesh on this thigh just above the knee. Directly he came home Zam-Buk was applied to the wound, and in a few days the soreness was gone and the wound thoroughly healed.

'A third instance of the healing power of Zam-Buk was provided when my little boy had a nasty fall. He is five years old, and was playing one day when he fell. His head struck on a sharp stone, which cut a nasty gash. As soon as I had washed the cut I applied Zam-Buk in the usual way, and it was really wonderful how quickly it relieved the little fellow's pain. Within a week the cut—a deep one—was quite healed.

'Every mother who once proves the all-round value of Zam-Buk will never again be without it.'

Zam-Buk is a pure herbal balm, and cures cuts, burns, bruises, abscesses, ulcers, eczema, scalp sores, ringworm, chapped hands cold-sores, frost-bite, bad leg, inflamed patches, etc. It also cures piles. Used as an embrocation it will be found to remove rheumatism, sciatica and neuralgia. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

The Sir Frederick W. Borden Scholarship.

I am in a position to intimate that the Sir Frederick W. Borden Scholarship for the year ending 1909-1910 was awarded to a student who spent the last year before matriculation at the Canning public school.

It will be awarded to the student as above described, matriculating at any Nova Scotia College or at Mt. Allison, whose marks are highest at the Provincial Examinations.

The trustee of the Scholarship shall be the School Inspector of the division in which Canning is situated, and the payment of $75.00, the amount of the Scholarship, shall be conditional on actual attendance at one of the colleges named, for a full year.

For further information see the next April Journal of Education, and the local papers of the county.

Candidates intending to compete for this Scholarship should notify the School Inspector as soon as possible.

Captain Pratt Discusses the Outlook for Freights.

Keeping in close touch with the freight markets since the beginning of 1909 I find no improvement, what ever, and think the time has now arrived when it is impossible to disguise the fact that at least 1,000,000 tons of old and obsolete tonnage must be broken up. It is good for no other purpose; and the sooner those interests face the inevitable and readjust their book values, the sooner freights will improve, for it is improbable that such tonnage can be worked again at a profit. The recent depression in freights has been beyond contemplation; steamers of not many years old have been sold at about half their original cost, while new boats have been realized on at considerable loss to their owners. The market for second-hand tonnage is over-stocked, and there are but few buyers. New steamers of about 6,000 tons dead weight that were sold a few years ago at £40,000 to £50,000 can today be built for £33,000, and other sizes in proportion. Builders and engineers are very short of work, and in some instances are offering to build new tonnage at below actual cost in order to keep their works going. Prices for new steamers were never lower, and men with the courage of their convictions building at day's figures must necessarily realize handsome profits in the near future, for such tonnage must perforce be replaced and useless vessels, and it has been clearly demonstrated this winter by a number of Nova Scotia and American schooners poorly equipped for the business trying to bring cargoes north when they had to put back to Barbadoes, St. Thomas and Bermuda in distress, which will no doubt be a heavy service to their owners before their voyages are completed.

Death of Mr. J. C. Byrne.

Like a shock of corn fully ripe at four score and four years, still in the midst of life's activities, Mr. Byrne has gone to his reward. Stricken down while transacting his usual business at the office of the Union Bank on Tuesday afternoon, a physician was called and he was tenderly taken to his residence on Blicher Street, where he expired soon after his arrival.

Mr. Byrne was a citizen of whom any community might be proud. He was the son of the gardener at Prescotts, Town Plot, as Starr's Point was known at that time.

A self made man, artist of his own fortunes, hard work and thrifty habits enabled him to make the modest savings by which he purchased the farm on which his life had been spent.

For years a mortgage was struggled with before it was removed, but at the same time improvements in the orchard and in other ways went on steadily, the trees being grown from seedlings, for he was nurseryman, farmer and market gardener combined. Any three words required meaning economy, hard work and good planning could be put on his crest for a motto.

The material result of his life's work is many acres of thrifty orchards surrounding a home of goodly proportions with all the necessary buildings of an estate of such proportions as well as a substantial balance in the bank.

He was a man of sterling integrity, upright in all his dealings, the neighbor, the councillor and the friend of all who sought his advice or assistance. One of, if not the foremost, orchardist in Kings county, an authority on orcharding born of years and experience.

He is survived by a wife, one son and three daughters, who mourn the loss of a devoted husband and a kind father.—Western Chronicle.

HYSLOP BICYCLES

Bicycles are rapidly coming back into popular favor, the demand this year being five times what it was five years ago. We have planned for it in two ways—by getting the very best English wheel we can for popular selling, and by filling orders direct by mail instead of through agents. In this way we can offer and give better satisfaction all round. The quality of the wheels is all right—only the best materials used and only skilled mechanics employed in construction. The equipment is right up-to-date and the machines throughout are such as we can thoroughly recommend. We sell automobiles as well as bicycles and our plan is to make wheels serve as a good advertisement to the entire business. Send for illustrated folder.

$50 Wheels for $25

Read about J. D. Chambers' February Sale this week. The many friends of Mrs. Lizzie Rod, of this town, will be glad to learn that after eight months' treatment at the Victoria General Hospital, at Halifax, she is now out again much improved in health and with good prospects for recovery. She speaks very highly of her treatment while at the hospital.

In the absence of the pastor, who preached on that day at Stellarton, the pulpit of St. Andrew's church was occupied last Sunday, morning and evening, by Rev. H. T. DeWolfe, who preached two able and very helpful sermons. Principal DeWolfe is a most pleasing speaker and Wolfville people are always much pleased to have an opportunity of listening to him.

The executive of the Western Nova Scotia Hockey League have decided that two games must be played between the D. B. C. A. and Wolfville teams to decide the winner for the Cragg Bros. trophy. The first game will be played in Dartmouth on Tuesday evening, the 2nd of March, and the second or final game will be played in Evangeline rink, Wolfville, Thursday evening, Mar. 4th. Game to commence at 8 o'clock. These teams are evenly matched and both are confident of winning. The public will witness a fast, clean game. Mr. Harry Young, of Dartmouth, will act as referee.

Two or three persons can be accommodated with comfortable board. Large, warm rooms, pleasantly situated. Bath room, with hot and cold water and very moderate terms. Mrs. MACDONALD, Main Street.

Mr. T. R. Wallace, of this place, has made it a practice for several years to put on the pulp-heads in his apple barrels, in addition to his name and address, a request to the person getting his apples to write and inform him of the condition in which they are received. He has received many replies, some of which are very interesting. This week he showed to us two cards that he had just received from Ireland, where his apples had been re-shipped from Liverpool. Both these referred to the apples as having been received in excellent condition and described them as "prime in packing and quality." This is the kind of advertising that is profitable to our province as a whole as well as to the shipper, who carefully, honestly and scientifically packs his fruit.

Canting Items.

Rev. Dr. Heariz, of Amherst, President of the Methodist Conference of Nova Scotia, gave an able discourse in the Upper United Baptist church at the Sunday morning Methodist service.

The Canting hockey team was defeated in a game with Kentville at Evangeline rink, Wolfville, on Friday evening, the score being 8-3.

Mr. O'Brien, of Noel, Hants county, was in town last Wednesday.

The Freshman class of Acadia College enjoyed a drive to this town on Thursday evening of last week, and took supper at the Waverley House.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Spicer and son, Cecil, have returned from Massachusetts, where they have resided for several years.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church here was reorganized last week with the view of raising funds towards building a new church.

Mr. N. W. Eaton was in Halifax on Tuesday, attending the Nova Scotia Alliance meeting.

Colonel and Mrs. E. M. Beckwith and Miss Laurie Brown attended the clam supper at Kingsport on Tuesday, given by the ladies of the Episcopal church.

A great improvement is noticed in our streets since the placing of two powerful acetylene globe lights, one above the door of Eaton & Co's. store, the other at the Waverley House. It is to be hoped that other citizens will follow in this good work.

Mr. George T. Knight, of the Bank of Nova Scotia, is spending a short vacation at his home in Moncton.

Rev. R. W. Weddall, of Lower Horton, has accepted an invitation to return at the end of his present pastorate next summer, to the charge of the Methodist church, at Shediac, N. B. The acceptance of this invitation means a transfer to the conference where Mr. Weddall has spent most of his life. During his membership in the Nova Scotia Conference he has so fully identified himself with all its work that his departure will be a loss to it. The people of Lower Horton have found his labors among them very helpful and pleasant.

Mr. B. W. Cleveland has again resumed the milk business in Wolfville, and is pleased to again call on old customers. His adv. appears elsewhere in this paper.

The Pianoforte Recital.

Friday evening a good audience gathered in College Hall to enjoy the annual musical recital of the piano forte department of the Acadia Seminary. The performance was an excellent exhibition of the thoroughness of the course of high-class training received. The selections were from the best composers, and from the first selection, "Concerto G Minor (Mendelssohn)," by Miss Charlotte Layton, accompanied by Prof. King, to the last number, "Finales of Ruydas Symphonies" (Schumann), by Miss Charlotte Laurence, of Hantsport, rare excellence was expressed in style and execution.

Miss Helen Knowles, always a favorite, in "Mazurk," op. 33, No. 4 (Goring Thomas), was at her best. Miss Helena Hamilton, in "A Love Lullaby," captured her audience, Miss Helen Mercer, in Sonata Quasi una Fantasia, op. 27, No. 2 (Bethoven), Miss Eva Smith, in Valse, op. 42 (Chopin), and Polonaise, op. 40, No. 1, by Miss Boid Higgins, Wolfville, were well rendered and enthusiastically enjoyed. A reading by Miss Daisy Sleep, of Wolfville, and a duet, "Voices of the Past," by Miss Helen Knowles and Miss Annie Frost, added greatly to the successful entertainment.

Mr. Sawyer was 36 years of age and highly respected here. For several years he was employed by the R. & M. R. E., as station agent at Edgewater. Four years ago he resigned to accept a position as electrical engineer with the Stone Wireless Company of Cambridge. He was with them two years.

Then he went with the Radio Wireless Telephone Company of New York. Two months ago this company wished to introduce its system in Europe and Mr. Sawyer was sent in charge of the work.

He sailed for India then. Just before leaving he was on the American fleet that sailed around the world, having charge of the wireless telephoning. After he reached Bombay, word was received that he had become seriously ill. Nothing more was heard until the news of his death to-day.

He was a native of Nova Scotia and had lived here 15 years. He erected the wireless station on the Isles of Shoals. He was well-known in Masonic circles here, being a member of Mt Vernon Lodge, Royal Arch Chapter and the Council. Three brothers and two sisters survive him. It is not known whether the body will be brought here, but Miss Edna E. Fitter, a niece, is in communication with Supt. Smith of the Wireless Telephone Company, of New York, and an effort will be made to bring the body here.

The above is taken from a Boston paper of recent date. The deceased was a native of Cambridge, this county, and was most highly esteemed by all who knew him. Mr. Edward Mahoney, of the firm of Wood & Mahoney, this town, was a nephew and close friend.—Ed.]

At the conclusion of the game Thursday evening between D. B. C. A. and Wolfville, W. H. Hewitt, President of the W. N. S. Hockey League, will present the Cragg Bros. Trophy to the winning team, also a medal to each of the players comprising the winning team. This presentation will take place on the center of the ice.

The name of Mr. B. W. Cleveland should be added to the directory of the Wolfville telephone exchange. His number is 4-3.

Rink Notes.

The Wolfville and Windsor (Swastikas) hockey teams met again in Evangeline rink last Friday evening. The game resulted in a victory for the home team, the score being 9-1. Wolfville soon showed that they had the better team and the first half ended 4-1. In the second half Windsor tried hard to score but were unable to do so. Wolfville scored five more goals in this half and the game ended 9-1 in their favor. The Windsor team was somewhat weakened by the absence of 'Long-shot' Curry. Owing to his recent accident Harold Pines of the Wolfville team was unable to play, and his place was filled by C. J. Delaney. Wolfville's forward line played fine combination and Fraser's rushes were a marvel to the onlookers. Mr. Harry Young, of Dartmouth, referee very satisfactorily and was only required to impose a few penalties.

After the league game Kentville and Canning met and gave a good exhibition of rough hockey, resulting in a victory for the former team by a score of 8-3. Harry Fraser was prevailed upon to referee this game, and kept the penalty-box filled most of the time.

The hand was in attendance and furnished music before the game and during the intermissions. Special trains from Windsor and Canning brought a large number of spectators to witness the game, and many drove in from the surrounding country—making the total number present about 800.

The masquerade and fancy dress carnival held last Monday evening was a very successful affair. The rink was prettily decorated with flags and the ice was in good condition during the first of the evening, although it became soft at the last. The Kentville band furnished the music. There were quite a number of skaters in costume and a large attendance of spectators. About 200 came from Kentville on the special train. The following were the prize-winners:—

Best lady's costume—Miss Hattie Selridge, as Hunsar. Best gentlemen's costume—Harlan Davison, as Spanish Torador. The prize for the most original lady's costume was awarded to seven young ladies representing the poem, "We are seven."

Misses Ida Reid and Grace Crandall—Fishermen from Conway. Misses Nellie Heckman and Henrietta Crandall—Sailor girls. Misses Lucy Crandall and Nellie DeWitt—Angels. Miss Helen Marjorie Barnaby—as maid tending the story.

Two games of hockey were played at the rink on Tuesday evening. In the first game the H. C. A. team defeated Kentville by a score of 9-3. In the second game the 2nd H. C. A. team defeated the 2nd Shamrocks by the score 7-4.

Died in Bombay. Maiden, Feb. 13th.—A cablegram was received here this morning announcing the death of William C. B. Sawyer, of 11 Ellis St., this city, in Bombay, India. The cause of his death is unknown, but it is supposed to have been the result of an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. Sawyer was 36 years of age and highly respected here. For several years he was employed by the R. & M. R. E., as station agent at Edgewater. Four years ago he resigned to accept a position as electrical engineer with the Stone Wireless Company of Cambridge. He was with them two years.

He sailed for India then. Just before leaving he was on the American fleet that sailed around the world, having charge of the wireless telephoning. After he reached Bombay, word was received that he had become seriously ill. Nothing more was heard until the news of his death to-day.

He was a native of Nova Scotia and had lived here 15 years. He erected the wireless station on the Isles of Shoals. He was well-known in Masonic circles here, being a member of Mt Vernon Lodge, Royal Arch Chapter and the Council. Three brothers and two sisters survive him. It is not known whether the body will be brought here, but Miss Edna E. Fitter, a niece, is in communication with Supt. Smith of the Wireless Telephone Company, of New York, and an effort will be made to bring the body here.

The above is taken from a Boston paper of recent date. The deceased was a native of Cambridge, this county, and was most highly esteemed by all who knew him. Mr. Edward Mahoney, of the firm of Wood & Mahoney, this town, was a nephew and close friend.—Ed.]

Nervous Headache A WARNING.

Not a disease but a symptom or sign which tells of this blood and exhausted nerves. A warning that nerve force is becoming exhausted and that you are in danger of nervous collapse—epilepsy, paralysis, or even worse.

What is to be done? Headache poisons are dangerous, and only leave the nervous system more exhausted than before they are used. New blood must be formed, new nerve force created, and this is exactly what is accomplished by the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is a scientific and carefully prepared food which builds up the great motor force that weakens, pain and discomfort give way to health, strength and vigor. The neural and digestive organs are on every box, 50 cts., at all dealers of E. S. CRAWLEY, Toronto. Miss Annie Kane, 30 Boulevard Street, Ottawa, Ont., states: "I was afflicted with severe neuralgic headache, was also dizzy and nervous. The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food entirely cured these headaches and did me a world of good, steadying my nerves and toning up the system generally."

The Open Door for Consumption
And How "Father Morriscy's No. 7" (Lung Tonic) Closes It.

A low run-down condition, with perhaps a neglected cold and a little cough, is a cardinal invitation to the White Plague, Consumption, to come in and make itself at home. And it seldom overcomes the invitation.

In such a case there is no time to be lost. The door must be promptly closed. This can be done by taking a complete rest, with plenty of fresh air, and "Father Morriscy's No. 7" (Lung Tonic). This medicine cleans out the passages, relieves the cough and heals the delicate membrane of lungs and air passages. But perhaps most important of all, it builds up the whole system, giving nature the needed assistance in fighting off the dread disease.

Though other remedies may have failed, don't give up. Try "Father Morriscy's No. 7" (Lung Tonic) combined with fresh air and exercise, and even though you are in the first stages of consumption, there is hope of a permanent cure. Sample bottle free. Register size 50c. At your dealer's, or from Father Morriscy's Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N. S.

The Knife Craze.

There ought to be more protection for the ignorant, confiding victim of the surgeon's knife than he is given at present. There can be no doubt whatever that tremendous charges are daily taken to provide operators with opportunities for exploiting their skill, and that even the medical advisers of the victims aid and abet the thing in only too true. A prominent citizen was rushed to an hospital some time ago and operated upon for appendicitis. It was afterwards discovered that he had some organic trouble that made the operation fatal. This condition was known to his medical adviser and yet the operation went on. The time to hold the ring in the case of a critical operation is before, not after, the death of the victim. No surgeon should be permitted to proceed with any serious effort of this kind without the consent of some properly constituted authority.—The Home Journal.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also surely fail. It may be a stomach nerve, or it may have to do with the heart or the lungs or the kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Remedy was not made to do the stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the heart or the kidneys. It is a permanent cure for all these ailments. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days' rest will surely tell. Try it once, and see!

Economy in Dress.

Any hat, suit, neckwear, shoes, or other item of dress which will not serve many purposes is an extravagance for which the sensitive woman is likely to pay dearly. She should, before committing herself to the purchase of these articles, examine their possibilities. What styles of suit, for example, will, most appropriately serve the greatest number of purposes? What color shall it be? What material? What gloves shall she wear? What hat? What shoes? What neckwear?

Of course, the first question will find its answer in the tailored suit.

If you would have a safe yet certain Cough Remedy in the home, try Dr. Shoop's at least once. It is thoroughly unlike any other Cough preparation. Its taste will be entirely new to you unless you already use your favorite Cough Remedy. No opium, chloroform, or any other stupefying ingredients are used. The tender leaves of a harmless, lung-healing mountainous shrub, give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its wonderful properties. It is truly a most certain and trustworthy prescription. Sold by A. V. Rand.

Sponge Cake, Lemon Pie.

"Quite an improvement on the ordinary lemon pie with the fatty meringue, which is always so difficult to get just right is the sponge cake lemon pie," says Woman's Home Companion for February. The ingredients are: Juice and grated rind of one large lemon; one cup of sugar; two eggs; two tablespoonsfuls (round the top) of flour; one cup of milk. Put the sugar into the yolks, and beat. Add the flour, and beat again. Add the milk. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites, being careful not to beat the mixture after the whites are added. The whites rise to the top while baking and form a sort of meringue, so the pie is really as good to look at as to eat."

Threatening feverishness with children is quickly and safely calmed by Preventol. These little Candy Cold Cure Tablets should always be at hand for prompt relief in all important. Preventol contains no opium, nothing harsh or sickening. They are indeed, "the stitch in time." Carried in pocket, or purse, Preventol acts as a genuine safeguard against Colds. Sold by A. V. Rand.

BRONCHITIS

Catarrhozone cures Bronchitis of three years' standing after four doctors failed.

A Remarkable Case

"I feel it my duty," writes Mrs. Boyd, of Leonardville, N. B., to let you know that I have been cured of Bronchitis of three months' standing by Catarrhozone.

"With the least change in temperature, or exposure to inclement weather, I was attacked by the chill, discomfort, sneezing, partial loss of voice, and stiffness in the head. I consulted four doctors and was treated by them all without any benefit.

"Catarrhozone was strongly recommended to me by several persons, and I had been induced to give it a good trial.

"It quickly relieved my difficult breathing, so I got the complete outfit, hard rubber inhaler, etc., and I began systematically the Catarrhozone treatment.

"In a few days the huskiness and hoarseness disappeared, and my voice became stronger. The running of the nose, and stiffness of the head, feverishness, difficult breathing, were all done away with before I had been using Catarrhozone very long.

"About six weeks' treatment was sufficient to do more for me than four doctors failed to do in three years' time. It cured me and I don't believe there is another such remedy on earth. Its action is speedy, pleasant and permanent."

Catarrhozone is a new, scientific treatment, and is guaranteed to cure Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Cold, etc., or money refunded. It contains nothing injurious, and can be used by the infant as well as by the adult.

It is both a local and a constitutional remedy. The Inhaler supplies abundance of medicated air, which spreads through all the air passages, killing germ life, and healing sore spots as it goes.

The impurities in the blood are driven off by Ferruginous Tablets, which strengthen and build up the system to such a healthy condition that disease simply can't exist.

Catarrhozone is recommended by doctors and druggists for all respiratory diseases. It relieves quickly and cures permanently. Complete outfit costs $1.00; trial size 50c. AT DRUGGISTS, or N. C. POLSON & CO., Kingston, Ont. Buy Catarrhozone to-day.

EXPERIENCE IS BETTER THAN ARGUMENT

The world-wide fame of Mother Seigel's Syrup is based on the evidence of men and women whom it has cured of indigestion, biliousness, constipation, headache, sleeplessness, flatulence, nervous debility, and other ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Compound of roots, and herbs, Mother Seigel's Syrup contains delicate ferments and gentle tonics for the stomach, liver and kidneys. These qualities render it invaluable to all who, through unhealthy surroundings, sedentary occupation, worry, overwork, or climatic changes, lack the vitality which only good food, well digested, can supply. When you are tortured with indigestion, so that you can't eat, can't work, can't think, can't sleep, you should at once give Mother Seigel's Syrup a trial. Tens of thousands of postpaid testimonials prove that Mother Seigel's Syrup because it has cured them. Profit by their experience!

Here is some proof:—Mr. Christy Battersworth, Babou, Inverness Co., N. B., writing on August 13th, 1904, says: "About eighteen months ago I took a severe cold, while at work near Meath. I neglected it, and it developed into frequent headaches, a racking cough and a sore side. What was worse, I was unable to get any rest. I was induced to take Mother Seigel's Syrup. In a short time my cough vanished and I gained from obtaining a cure, I increased my weight by thirteen pounds."

Mrs. W. Barrett, 602 Moran St. Montreal, writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "For years I was a great sufferer from female weakness and despite every remedy given me by doctors, I grew more and more debilitated. I was fast falling in health, and I was completely discouraged. One day a friend advised me to try Lydia F. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and am thankful to say that it cured the female weakness, making me strong and well."

"Every woman who suffers from female troubles should try this Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.
For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulcers, fibroids, tumors, irregularities, chronic pain, headache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Cured His Rheumatism in Three Weeks.
James L. B. Johnston, a prominent member of the Citizen's Band, of Chatham, writes:
"I suffered rheumatism by exposure, five years ago, and was unable to get any rest. I was induced to take Father Morriscy's No. 7 Tablets. In a short time my rheumatism vanished and I gained from obtaining a cure, I increased my weight by thirteen pounds."

Father Morriscy's "No. 7" Tablets have cured thousands of this terrible painful disease.
Rheumatism is generally brought on by exposure, but is really caused by Uric Acid in the blood. This Uric Acid is an irritating poison, formed from the waste matter of the body. The kidneys should remove it, but when they fail it poisons the blood, and settling in the joints, causes Rheumatism.
"No. 7" Tablets clear out the clogged-up kidneys and stimulate them to perform their task of filtering the Uric Acid out of the blood. When this is done the Rheumatism simply and naturally vanishes.
"No. 7" Tablets cost 50c. At your dealer's. 88

Mr. Stewart added—"The majority of nervous diseases, the same authority held, arose from the taking of such non-alcoholic stimulants."
A correspondent who sent on the words to Dr. Chouston has got his reply, in which he says—"I certainly never talked or wrote such unscientific rubbish and pernicious nonsense as Mr. Stewart says I did." Continuing he says—"You is scientifically

What We Have to Do.

(The Rev. John P. Hill, D. D., in the "Presbyterian Banner.")

The following extract from a sermon delivered before the students of Yale University by Dr. Lyman Abbott is heartily commended to the candid consideration of the readers of this column.

"What we have to do is to crush out vice completely. Simply to put it out of sight, to put a criminal in jail and then forget all about him is not the way to get rid of vice. We must not take the vice of a city, put it off in a ward by itself, and command it to remain there. It will not do so. You cannot put sin in one corner of the world and call that hell. You cannot have typhoid in these hills and not have it in the city.

"There is no reform except as that reform makes it easy to abolish and destroy vice. At first every body sold liquor and would make a man drunk for a penny and dead drunk for a sixpence. Then people thought that there should be some restraint put upon the sale and they began to seek out good and virtuous men to sell liquor. They followed this with the high license. But such a system only gets rid of a part of the evil. The only way to rid the land of the evil is to wipe it out.

"The young man to day starts out with enthusiasm and is laughed at. He is told that drunkenness, licentiousness and lawlessness have come to stay. I say they lie. It is courage and virtue that have come to stay. No compromise must be made with evil. What are we here for? First to get control of the world. That is civilization. Second, to overcome moral evil. That is Christianity. But the fight is a long one. My father used to say that if all the lukewarm Christians could be taken out of the churches and each one of them turned into a militant infidel, the church could appoint a day of rejoicing. I agree with him.

"We have as good government in our cities as we deserve. If gambling is carried on there, if vice walks the streets and flourishes under police protection, it is so because the honest, reputable citizens do not care enough about honesty and rectitude in municipal affairs to get out and establish the evil."

Tea v. Alcohol.

At a Glasgow Parish Council meeting recently, a Mr. Stewart, one of the members of the Council, was reported to have said, during the course of a discussion on the supplying of alcoholic drink to patients in the parish hospital—"They had it on the authority of one of the greatest medical specialists in the kingdom, Dr. Chouston, of Edinburgh, that moderate drinking was much more dangerous and insidious than alcohol excess."
Mr. Stewart added—"The majority of nervous diseases, the same authority held, arose from the taking of such non-alcoholic stimulants."
A correspondent who sent on the words to Dr. Chouston has got his reply, in which he says—"I certainly never talked or wrote such unscientific rubbish and pernicious nonsense as Mr. Stewart says I did." Continuing he says—"You is scientifically

Twitching of the Nerves

Became almost unbearable until Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food brought about a cure.

Tapping of the fingers, restlessness, sleeplessness, inability to control the nerves.

"What a story of exhausted nerves is told by these symptoms. Nervous prostration or paralysis are not far away unless restorative treatment is made."

The writer of this letter was fortunate enough to learn about Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food and built his expectations for the benefit of other sufferers from disease of the nerves.

Mr. Wm. Branton, Strathroy, Ont., writes—"My nervous system was all unstrung. I could not sleep had no appetite, my digestion was poor and my nerves were in a terrible state. I had tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food completely restored my health."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food

proved to be the safest of all the nerve stimulants. Taken in reasonably moderate quantities, there is no proof whatever that it does any real harm in an ordinary constitution. Taken in moderate quantity it certainly does harm, but its ill-effects cannot be compared with those of alcohol.

"A moment. The whole medical profession will back me out in these opinions, and experience leaves no doubt whatever."—Selected.

Physician Tells How He Treats Rheumatic Patients

A Distinguished Specialist Gives Valuable Advice.

In the first place I always impress upon my patients the importance of careful living and regular habits. Moderation in eating, keeping the feet dry, and wearing plenty of warm clothing are some of the precautions.

No amount of medicine will cure, or even help, unless attention is paid to these few simple rules.

I have had perfect results where patients followed these instructions, assisted by the following blood tonic and rheumatic specific:—
