REPLY TO MR. BEALS

To the Editor of THE ACADIAN

Sir,—In a recent issue of your paper you printed a communication signed "F. H. Beals, Wolfville, N. S." in which he stated that he had supported A. De Witt Foster in his campaign in 1911. He further stated that since Mr. Foster had betrayed his trust and had been repudiated by his leader, Sir Robert Borden, that "we shall not get far in the development of National Righteousness until we have the courage and grace to put principal above party".

It is difficult to understand just what Mr. Beals means, but the inference drawn by many voters is to the effect that he intends to oppose Mr. Foster in this campaign and wishes others to do likewise.

I am, moreover, at a loss to comprehend what Mr. Beals means when he says that Mr. Foster betrayed his trust. If an honest and conscientious endeavor to serve his country and at the same time to be of service to his constituents is a betrayal of trust then I do not understand the meaning of words.

Just what he means by the use of the words "Repudiated by his leader" is as mystifying as his first statement since it is well known that in 1917 Sir Robert Borden accepted a nomination moved by Mr. Foster at a convention in which the latter's supporters far outnumbered those supporting Sir Robert. Mr. Foster took that course in 1917 rather than be a candidate himself because Canada was at war and Sir Robert's colleague, the Hon. A. K. McLean, as a new minister of the Union Government, was standing for election in Halifax, thus making it necessary for Sir Robert to go elsewhere for a constituency. Mr. Foster's conduct on that occasion was regarded by many people in Canada, outside as well as in the County of Kings, as a patriotic and self-sacrificing and magnanimous action in striking contrast to the wholly unjustifiable statement made by Sir Robert Borden in the House of Commons regarding Mr. Foster before the facts that ultimately proved his innocence were properly investigated.

Every one knows that Sir Charles Davidson after an exhaustive investigation, in which Mr. Foster co-operated to the fullest extent, completely acquitted him from any wrong motive or improper conduct whatsoever, merely criticizing the business methods employed and stating that as a Member of Parliament he ought not to have undertaken the task at all.

That investigation showed that Mr. Foster had paid his own expenses and that he had not received one cent of money for his services. Mr. Foster frankly admits that he erred in attempting to perform the service at all, but that his Beals never been guilty of an error of judgment or made a mistake in his life? Mr. Beals' reference to English politics is hardly born out by the facts. The Minister of the Crown in Great Britain during the late war sacrificed thousands of lives and millions of dollars in the Gallipoli disaster because of an error of judgment, but instead of being promptly discarded he is now one of the foremost ministers in the Cabinet of Great Britain.

Mr. Beals' attitude as revealed in his letter is the more remarkable in the light of a statement recently made by Mr. Foster at both Berwick and Centerville. Mr. Foster states that on the 8th of August, 1924, the day following the political picnic at Starr's Point, he sailed upon the steamer "The Scotia" for transport, where he was confined by illness, and that on that occasion he discussed his political difficulties with Mr. Beals, who, quite unsuspected, expressed his sympathy and the hope that he would live long enough to see Mr. Foster re-enter public life and to personally help him vindicate himself and his right to a great injustice that had been committed against him. Verily his resolutions made upon a sick bed were soon forgotten or changed even by one of those whose duty it is to help erring brother and forgive even as we hope to be forgiven.

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN UNIVERSITY AND BUSINESS

Was Subject of Address Delivered by Dr. Patterson Before Halifax Commercial Club

The vital and necessary relationship between the business man, in the most house, and the Universities of Canada, was emphasized by Dr. F. W. Patterson, President of Acadia University, speaking at the annual meeting of the Halifax Commercial Club on Thursday evening last.

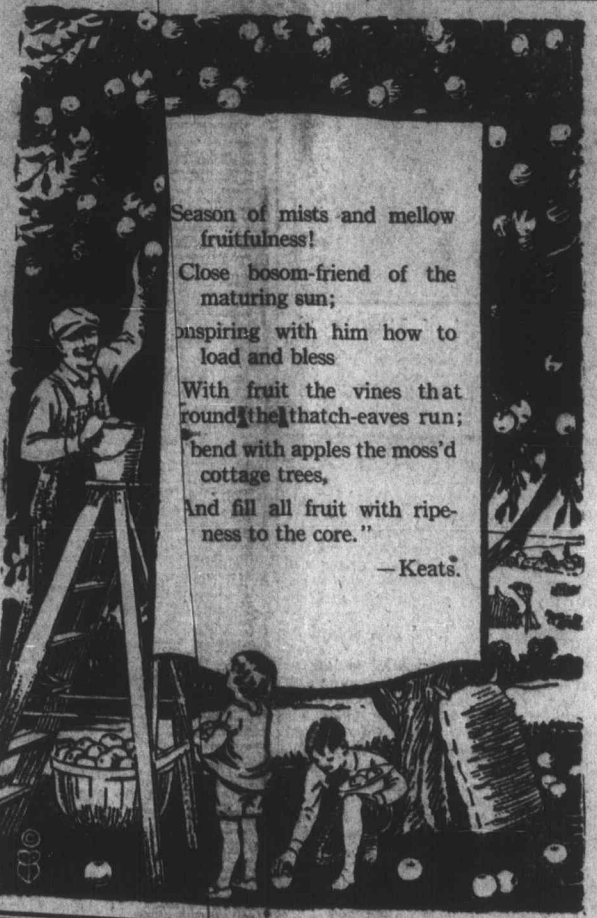

President Patterson discussed the inestimable value of the research work being carried on at universities or as a direct result of university training to the commercial life of the world. For instance, he pointed out the discoveries of Lister and Pasteur alone had meant the lengthening of human life and the most doubling of the period of life at which man is most efficient. It does not require great imagination to see the result of this work in increasing the wealth of the world. Dr. Patterson said, adding that without higher education and the special facilities provided by the universities this would have been impossible. These men may have made great discoveries, but unless the result of their work was recorded and their researches continued, those discoveries would have been practically useless.

Dr. Patterson also alluded to the field of biology which has been opened up by research work carried on by universities, pointing out, among other notable achievements in this field, the result that 1,600,000 acres of land that were formerly regarded as useless in the Canadian West were now producing good wheat crops.

The reclaiming of millions of dollars worth of material annually that was formerly considered nothing but waste research carried on by men who had been given the advantage of higher education in chemistry, mathematics and other university subjects.

"There is not a line of business that does not owe a debt to the researches carried on by universities," President Patterson said, "and there is not a single service that a university can render to its immediate community that is not reflected in general business life."

Higher education makes for a higher standard, and it creates a demand for much more, which otherwise there would be no demand, said Dr. Patterson, adding that there was a more real connection between business life and the university than appeared on the surface.

Season of mists and mellow fruitfulness!
Close bosom-friend of the maturing sun;
Inspiring with his how and load and bless
With fruit the vines that round the thatch-eaves run;
To bend with apples the moss'd cottage trees,
And fill all fruit with ripeness to the core."

TOURIST TRAFFIC WAS VERY HEAVY

Two Million American Citizens Visited Canada During September

OTTAWA, Oct. 5.—(By Canadian Press)—The following statement was handed out today by the Department of Immigration:

"Canadians continue to return to Canada from the United States in large numbers. Although September returns are not yet complete, it is estimated that in that month alone 5,000 Canadians who had been resident in the United States for more than six months returned to Canada declaring their intention of remaining permanently in this country. The same period about 1800 persons entered Canada from the United States, as immigrants, largely of the agricultural class, and bringing with them cash and effects to enable them to begin farm operations in Canada."

"Some idea of the increase in tourist and non-immigrant classes is gained from the fact that it is estimated that in September two million persons of these classes entered Canada from the United States."

"While the movement to Canada is increasing, the movement of Canadians to the United States is falling off very sharply."

"At one of the principal boundary points the Canadians, both native born and naturalized, admitted to the United States during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1924, numbered 28,390. For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925, the number of Canadians admitted to the United States at the same port numbered 14,708—a falling off of practically fifty per cent."

MEDICAL SOCIETY OF VALLEY MEETS

Interesting Papers and Lectures at Semi-Annual Session at Digby

DIGBY, Oct. 2.—The semi-annual session of the Valley Medical Society was held this afternoon at the Court House. There was a very large attendance of Medical men from this part of the province and lectures and papers were very instructive.

Among the most important papers was that of Dr. Hemmison of Wolfville, whose paper dealt with infection of the eye, ear, nose and throat, and was of great interest to the practitioners.

"The Surgery of Pulmonary Tuberculosis" was illustrated by the X-ray films. Papers of interest to the medical profession were also read by Dr. V. L. Miller, of Halifax, and a paper was read on "A Resume of Cardiology" by Dr. W. R. Dickie, of Barton.

Discussion of the subjects followed, which were participated in by several of the medical men.

A banquet was held at the Travelers' Inn, after which most of the visitors left for their homes by automobile.

The session was voted a huge success in every way, both for its instructive character and the pleasant visit which was enjoyed by all. Much credit is due the secretary, Dr. E. C. DeWitt, of Wolfville, who worked very hard to make the affair a success, and also Dr. Duvernet, of Digby, President of the Society.

The next session of the Society will be the annual meeting to be held at Wolfville in May 1926.

ACADIA WON FROM KINGS

In First Rugby Match of Season—Score 11 to 0

Acadia University opened up the rugby season here yesterday with a 11-0 victory over Kings University team. Most of the game was played in a drizzling rain but the incident weather did not dampen the ardor of the large crowd of rooters who witnessed an exciting game. As the score would indicate, Acadia had the better of the play all through, indeed the only time that the Acadia goal line was in danger was for the first few minutes of the second half. Jimmy Wilson, a new man on the Acadia line-up, showed himself an excellent three quarter back, spectacular runs featuring in the game. Acadia opened the game strongly and forced the visitors to a defensive game which they played well. The work of King's scrum was responsible for many gains for their side. The only score of the period was made by A. Noble in about the middle of the period. Davison failed to convert.

Kings put up a better game in the second and held the garnet and blue down until the last few minutes when B. Elderkin broke away for the second tally. Wilson added a third touch soon afterwards which Davison converted, ending the game 11-0.

The line-up:
Kings—Full back, Moore; Three Quarters, White, Murray, Dysart, McCordick; Halves, Turner, Andrews, Wadlington; Forwards, Ernst, Knickle, Keble, Nelson, Mosher, Deathe, White, Duvernet.

Acadia—Full back, O. Noble; Three Quarters, B. Elderkin, Barteaux, Wilson, Woodworth; Halves, J. Elderkin, Davison, McEachy; Forwards, A. Noble, White, Creelman, Estey, Shaffner, Kierstead, Munro.

SERIOUSLY INJURED IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

Lloyd King, Hortonville, met with a very serious automobile accident Monday evening when en route from Truro to his home. The accident occurred at Mount Uniacke. He was driving a Ford roadster, when the radius rod broke, thus destroying his control of the car which went over a steep embankment and was badly smashed. Mr. King was seriously injured, having his collar bone broken and his shoulder dislocated. He was taken to the Mount Uniacke hotel, and Dr. Reid summoned, who attended his injuries. His brother, Percy King, was summoned from Hortonville and motor-ed to Mount Uniacke to remain with him until he was able to be removed to his home. Mr. King was employed with the Nova Scotia Highway Board in Colchester county. His many friends will hope for his speedy recovery.

Last Saturday's bicycle race from Windsor to Halifax was won by Leo Minello, of New Waterford, who covered the 45 miles in 2 hours, 41 minutes, 51.2-5 seconds. Charles B. Hughes, of Avonport, finished in seventh place, his time being 3:17.30.

DEATH OF JUDGE MARGESON

Sudden Passing of Brilliant and Much Mourned Judge

Sincere sorrow was expressed by many friends in this county when the news was received last Friday morning of the death of Judge J. Willis Margeson, of Bridgewater. On the day previous Judge Margeson had gone to Halifax, the former in apparently his usual state of health. During the evening he chatted brightly with friends at the hotel, sitting late before the open fire and making not the slightest reference to his health. Before retiring he complained to Mrs. Margeson of severe and unusual pain in his head accompanied by nausea, which compresses which made him more comfortable were applied and he fell asleep, his condition not being such as to cause his wife any uneasiness. Later she also retired and when she awoke in the morning and enquired how he felt he was well high stumped to find that he had passed away during the night. A medical examination made it clear that death was due to causes related to tuberculosis, which he had contracted during the war and of which he had suffered for years past.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis A. Margeson, both of whom survive him, the deceased was born at Berwick forty-five years ago, and received his early education in the public school of that place. Subsequently he taught school for two years in his native town. He had special gifts in debate and both at Acadia and at Dalhousie where he took his law course, he was a most effective member of the debating team.

In 1906 he received from Dalhousie Law School his L.L.B. degree and soon after entered into partnership with the late James A. MacLean, K.C., of Bridgewater in the practice of his profession. Even as a mere youth, the arena of politics had a great attraction for him, and the gifts of eloquence in speech and personal magnetism fitted him well for the task.

He was elected to the provincial legislature in 1911, and again in 1916. In 1914, he enlisted in the 25th Battalion with the rank of lieutenant, rendering gallant service overseas, and on his return in 1917 he was appointed president of the Pay and Allowance Board, Ottawa, which adjusted all claims in connection with Separation Allowances. In that same year, and in 1918 he was appointed a K.C., and the following year was appointed a member of the Board of Pension Commissioners, retaining this position until his appointment to pre-empt over the County Court of Lunenburg, Queens and Shelburne.

As has been intimated, he developed tubercular trouble shortly after his return from overseas, and spent some time at the Provincial Sanatorium and elsewhere in the hope of regaining health. A man of ardent temperament, he threw into all that he undertook the utmost energy, and there is little doubt but that the inner flame told on the weakened body and was largely responsible for his early death, just as his powers were at their full. Sterling, genial, gifted, true to every trust, warm and generous of heart, his death cannot but be regarded as a very real loss to the province which could ill spare him.

Besides his parents and one brother at Berwick, the late Judge Margeson is

ELECTION FORECASTING

PARTIZAN newspapers in this province which are profuse as well as decided in their declarations as to just what the result in the coming elections will be should recall that in the late provincial contest some of their number made very bad guesses. We shall see what we shall see.

ARE FISHERMEN'S RACES OVER?

(From the Boston Post) The Post representative who went to Gloucester the other day to look into the status of the fishermen's international races—an experienced writer and observer of these events—found that there would be no contest for the Halifax Herald cup this year, and expressed serious doubt that there ever would be again.

This would be a sorrowful ending of what started out to be a picturesque and thrilling battle of fishing schooners for the blue ribbon of speed plus endurance and power. For the public they seemed to have the tang of the salt water, the Yankee-Canadian point of view as to what was what in fishing and that sporting rivalry that should exist between contenders of two different nations. And for a brief time those were the qualities that were in evidence. Only brief, however.

For very soon fishermen were designed and built solely for speed. Great artists in yacht-planning were called in, especially on this side, and the thing became flavored with something that never should have been given it. Thousands of dollars were spent upon new boats and their maintenance, to say nothing of grooming them for the races. When it is authoritatively stated that $100,000 would be needed to finance a race this year, our readers may get some idea of the way money has come to figure in the events.

It is this species of professionalism, of "yachtsmen's rule" and of financial expansion beyond all sensible limits that have "put a crimp" in the races; have given them a blow which they may not survive. It is all the worse from the fact that such a result might easily have been avoided.

But the same Post writer finds some in Gloucester and Halifax as to the spring of the contests demands these three things: First, the rules have got to be changed. Instead of a couple of boats groomed like somebody's private yacht the international fishermen's race ought to be two fishing boats as they go to the banks.

Second, some provision for financing the races so that the owners and their crews will not lose money has got to be made. Third, the fishermen themselves will have to have more voice in the making of the rules and the regulations. They resent being dictated to by those they term "yachtsmen" and "land sailors". Of course there will always have to be outsiders on the rules and the race committees, if the sport is resumed, but the fishermen will demand, and must have, more voice.

Those conditions need not be impossible. In fact, they are just the things that should be easily possible. The sponsors of the contests on both sides should hail them joyfully and say: "Now let's return to first principles and have races for working fishermen and not for yachts slightly scented with fish." Lovers of real sport will hope that this idea will prevail.

KINGS COY BAPTISTS HOLD ANL MEETING

WATERVILLE, Sept. 30.—The annual meeting of the Kings County Baptist District held at Grafton section of the Grafton Baptist church on Monday and Tuesday. The first session was held 3:30, when Rev. H. H. Phinney, of Greenfield-River church, conducted a song service on the subject, "No Chris Pastor Blesedell, of Avonport, noted an after meeting.

A feat of the morning program was the devotional period led by Rev. G. W. Schurman, when he gave a splendid exposition of the doctrine of "Regeneration". Rev. Mr. Schurman is a past master exposition and is always enjoyed.

The story of the county presented their own plans for evangelism and the "Policy growing out of those Plans" was printed by Rev. H. E. Allaby, of Berwick. His analysis was that the best plan would be earnest and consistent evangelistic preaching coupled with definite personal work conducted by individuals. At an afternoon session Rev. W. D. Wilson, of the Maritime Home for Women almost completed in Moncton. He stated that about $5,000 was needed for the churches and appealed for some particular rooms in the building. "Opportunities for Evangelism in the Sunday Schools". The devotional period of the afternoon was conducted by Rev. I. T. Wright, of Halifax, who spoke of the Christian's responsibility. At 3:30 the Women's Aid Societies held their session. The chair was occupied by Mrs. Irene Rand, County Secretary, and on the platform with her were Mrs. G. W. Schurman, Mrs. G. R. T. Ayling and Mrs. A. J. Prosser. After the reports of the various societies were heard, Mrs. A. J. Prosser gave an address on the value of Acadia to the Missionary Aid Societies and the missionary work.

GREETINGS FROM FORMER HANTSPORT LADY

To the Editor of THE ACADIAN: Dear Sir—The world does not seem so large as it used to, since the coming of the automobile. On Saturday last P. McKay, son Tom and his friend Jack Stubbs, who were in Wolfville a few weeks ago, motored from Sarnia to Tuscola, bringing with them Mrs. W. Bligh who is staying for a visit, the others returning home the same evening. They were just two hours on the road from Port Huron to Tuscola. There are no better roads in the U. S. than we have in Michigan.

As we sit talking over old times, the years between—since we left our dear home—seem to drop away and we are back to where we left off. How many changes have taken place since then though makes us realize too that it was a long time ago. We much enjoyed reading the letter from Geo. Frost. I remember him very well, as he used to be in the same classes at school that I was in.

The farmers here are very busy now getting their bean crop threshed; the silos also are being filled and we realize our summer has gone. Preparations for winter are in order and we all find plenty to keep us busy.

With best wishes to you all and thanking you, Mr. Editor, for giving us the opportunity of exchanging greetings, I remain

Sincerely,
(MRS.) NETTIE MCKAY.
Tuscola, Mich., Sept. 29, 1925.

CAPT. FRED BURNS

Mrs. F. R. Burns received the sad intelligence on Friday, Oct. 2nd, advising of the death of her husband, Capt. Fred Burns, of heart failure, on board the S. S. Gunungteco, of the Transmarine Steamship Co. The steamer was on its way from San Pedro, California, to Newark, New Jersey, the burial taking place at sea on Sept. 13th.

Capt. Burns, who was born in St. John, N. B., was the son of the late Robert and Mrs. Burns, of Hantsport, and is survived by his widow, who was formerly Miss Alice Fowler, of Auckland, New Zealand, and two sons, Robert, of Montreal, and George, of the United Fruit Co. Steamer Mayri; also two brothers living in the United States. Capt. Burns had planned to visit his home here next month. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved.

COST OF GOVERNMENT AMAZING

(From The Financial Post)

An analysis of the annual tax bill of the Dominion discloses the amazing fact that the average man, woman and child in Canada works one day in five to pay taxes. In other words, the tax bill, including federal, provincial and municipal requirements, amounts to something over $800,000,000, while the total net revenue of all branches of production in Canada, including farming, is in the neighborhood of $3,000,000,000.

One naturally asks where it is all going to end. The Financial Post made a survey of the per capita tax burden before the war and found that the bill was then one-tenth of the total net revenue, or that we had to work one day in ten to pay our taxes at that time. The actual burden has just doubled in the interval. About half of the requirements are for Dominion purposes and the balance divided between provincial and municipal. This does not include the total governmental revenue of the country, since there are numerous fees, fines and licenses which are not included in the total.

No government leaders appear to know the answer to this puzzle of increasing taxes. Each successive government blames the last for exorbitant spending, and promises to do better. But the same thing goes on unchecked. If the unexpected would happen, and we would some day find ourselves with a government courageous enough to cut its spending to a minimum and reduce taxes accordingly, the long heralded period of prosperity and expansion would be upon us.

A business man would find the solution. He would stop spending.

THE STORAGE AND TRANSPORTATION OF SEED POTATOES

Improper storage of potatoes results in the loss of thousands of bushels annually. The careless handling of potatoes in transportation means financial loss and tends to have a serious effect upon the market.

Several factors influence the successful storage of potatoes. These are temperature, ventilation, humidity, depth of pile, and sound stock free from dirt.

Potatoes should be stored in as cool a temperature as possible without freezing. A good average temperature ranges around 36 degrees F. Good ventilation is essential to assist in carrying off excess moisture, particularly where potatoes are stored in large heaps. Control of temperature, moisture, and ventilation can be obtained by using false floors, wall-racks and air-shafts. Too dry an atmosphere causes shrinkage, therefore a certain amount of humidity is necessary. In a blight year careful grading should be practised. Potatoes showing rot should not be placed in storage. Avoid the development of certain spots in bruised and cut skins by white-washing the interior of storage houses. Potatoes should not be rewed from the field in a wet or dirty condition. These elements increase the possibility of rot in storage. In harvesting care should be taken to avoid cutting or otherwise damaging potatoes, since it is often through these cut surfaces that storage rots gain entrance.

A grower's responsibility does not end when his potatoes have been bagged. The use of clean bags is a factor which is essential to the success of the crop. Bags or sacks should be either washed or sterilized. Second-hand flour bags are good providing they are not intended for storing any length of time. Salt or fertilizer bags should not be used for any purpose.

Directly or indirectly the grower is responsible for the arrival of his stock in a sound condition. Frost is by far the greatest obstacle to overcome. Care must be taken that the stock is not chilled during the trip from the farm to the shipping point.

Essentially, in the railway cars straw and paper will reduce the possibility of freezing. Careful handling at sidings where no loading platforms are provided will prevent bruising. It is not unusual for several potatoes in a bag to be badly damaged by rough treatment. Careful piling in the car lessens the possibility of bruising during transit. It is always advisable to so arrange the tiers that they will slant back and thus eliminate the danger of falling between the car doors where bulkheads are not used.

THE WAR AGAINST INSECTS

It is estimated that from 10 to 25 per cent. of all crops grown in Canada is lost by the ravages of insects and that the annual loss in value each year reaches the enormous total of over one hundred million dollars. The crusade against this devastation, which is carried on by officers of the Dominion Entomological Branch at Ottawa and in the various provinces, is thus of a herculean character. As circumstances warrant, it whole districts are brought under quarantine to prevent the pests in particular localities being shipped out on products upon which they prey.

Trenches miles in length have been dug to trap the horribly destructive army worm; aeroplanes have been used to survey areas infected with the spruce budworm; poison gas has been experimented with to kill grasshoppers; parasites of different species are bred and used as auxiliaries in this gigantic warfare, and drugged baits are distributed at strategic points, that is where it is thought their use will be most effective. In no division of the work has greater activity and vigor been shown than in

"We have in Great Britain approximately over 4,000 cinema theatres and halls where pictures are shown and it is estimated that 20,000 attended the pictures each week, while the yearly receipts amounted to about thirty millions sterling. Yet it is a humiliating fact that of the pictures exhibited not more than five per cent. are of British production, all others having their origin abroad, mainly in the United States, although quite recently Germany has gone forward as a serious competitor with the U. S. in the production of what are known as super films."

Mrs. James Currie, of Los Angeles, Cal., who has been spending the summer at the home of her brother, Mr. F. B. Harris, Lower Wolfville, returned home on Monday morning. On the way she intends to visit friends at Vancouver and Portland, Oregon.

Our former townspeople, Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Tingley, who have spent the summer in Lincoln, Mass., and Washington, D. C., are leaving the latter city Oct. 9th for St. Petersburg, Florida, where for several seasons past they have made their winter home.

A host of Wolfville friends are glad to welcome home Dr. Paul Tingley, who has been pursuing a medical course at Edinburgh University for the past five years. Dr. Tingley arrived at Halifax by the Andania on Saturday and will visit for a time at the home of his family here. A graduate of Acadia in the class of 1920, he was here later in Edinburgh much interested in athletics, starring especially in football. The Acadia Athletic Association is extremely fortunate this year in securing him to assist "Ken" Eaton in coaching the football squad.

Nova Scotia's new Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. J. C. Torey, was inducted to that exalted position on Thursday afternoon of last week. The ceremony took place at three o'clock in the Legislative Council Chamber, the scene of so many rich historic incidents in the history of the province. The choice of Hon. Mr. Torey for the position has been marked by very general approval. The new Lieutenant-Governor is a relative of Mrs. D. Graham Whidden, of this town.

DR. SPIDLE PREACHES TO LARGE CONGREGATIONS

Very large congregations assembled at St. Andrew's church last Sunday at both services. If those who came were attracted to hear Rev. Dr. DeWolfe, who was announced to be the speaker, and who is always heard with pleasure, they were equally fortunate in finding the pulpit occupied by Rev. Dr. Spidle, who owing to the illness of Dr. DeWolfe took his place. At the morning service the preacher took his text from the first chapter of Genesis, the story of the creation. He did not attempt, however, to settle the differences which have attended in all times, this unique event in history, but in an exceedingly interesting and informing address showed that as God created the world so to a very large degree each of us creates our own world in which we live and move and have our being. In the evening the church was again filled to capacity by a congregation which listened attentively to an able and inspiring message.

GRAND PRE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The October meeting of the Grand Pre Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Patriquin, with the president in the chair. The annual County Institute will be held in the Town Hall, Kentville, on Monday, October 26, at 2.30 o'clock. A good attendance is desired. During the winter months from November until March, the Institute will be held at 2.30 instead of 3 o'clock. As next month is our annual meeting a nominating committee was appointed, namely, Miss Magee, Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Patriquin. An exceptionally fine program was prepared by the Home and School Committee. The roll call was responded to with school jokes. The opening poem read by Mrs. Harris was followed by "O Canada", chorus by school girls. Miss Stuart, who for some years has been on the School Board, gave a short address on "Benefit of Having Women on the Board". Miss Stuart claims it was a benefit to her as it made her more sympathetic and less critical. She paid a tribute to the late lamented Dr. Chipman, who served long and faithfully on the Grand Pre School Board. Mr. Evershed, Heron delighted us with violin and vocal solos. Mr. Heron was very generous in his responses to the hearty encores. Miss Lang accompanied him in her usual delightful manner. Mrs. Percy Reid gave a very pleasing and vivid address on her experiences as a teacher in Alberta schools compared with Nova Scotia schools. Mrs. Reid made us realize that if the Institute does nothing but arouse more interest in our schools it will not have been organized in vain.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to those on the program, also to Mrs. Patriquin, convener of the Home and School Committee. Refreshments were served by the committee.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Misses Stuart and Magee at 2.30 o'clock.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

The October meeting of the School Board was held on Monday evening with Chairman Roach, Coun. Macpherson and Commissioner Parson present.

On motion the following bills were ordered paid: W. O. Pulsifer, $4.88; A. V. Rand, $3.85; H. E. Calkin, $2.93; A. W. Bleakney, $1.93; Davidson Bros., $4.35; W. Sawler, $1.00.

A discussion of considerable duration ensued regarding conditions in the school occasioned by the presence of a number of backward pupils, the opinion being expressed that the problem might best be dealt with by the introduction of an auxiliary department with a teacher competent to afford suitable instruction.

It was finally decided that Principal Silver be appointed to secure all possible information regarding the matter and if possible report at an adjourned meeting of the Board on Saturday evening.

Regarding a proposition made at a previous meeting to remodel the old school building for the purpose of providing a gymnasium and assembly room, Principal Silver submitted an estimate of cost of the work, but no action was taken pending another meeting.

The Board has requested the Council to take the necessary action to prevent the use of cigarettes among the children attending school, and also to enforce the law with respect to children attending the picture house.

RALLY DAY SERVICE AT BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rally Day service in United Baptist Sabbath School was one of the finest in our history. The superintendent, Warren Eaton, presided, and seated on the platform was L. M. Ward, who assisted. The attendance of young and old was large, and the program carried out by the pupils was delightful. The organist was Miss Marion Eaton. The speaker was Mr. McDorman, Principal of Canning Schools, who chose for thought 1 Thes. 5:16, 17, 18. "Rejoice Evermore, Pray Without Ceasing. In Everything Give Thanks". The speaker outlined the object of Rally Day—that of renewed effort to greater service. Prayer, said Mr. McDorman, is the marching orders of the Christian church. God provides an atmosphere of prayer and we are expected to draw on Him for the strength to resist the evil one. Prayer brings peace. The emblem of every nation should be the cross of Jesus Christ. Purity comes to our hearts through communion with God. Prayer brings power. Our refuge is in God. When the storms of life weigh heavily upon us the same God, yesterday, today and forever, is with us, a refuge in the time of storm. The church, if its old-time power is to be restored, must have a revival of prayer. The consciousness of God's presence in our hearts brings that power. As prayer is the source of the individual's peace, so it is the source of the nation's peace—My peace I leave with you. May we all have that security which alone comes from God.

Mr. McDorman, who is a forceful and earnest speaker, gave a fine interpretation of the text. The meeting closed with prayer by the pastor, followed by the benediction.

WHY? Why, when you hear some old-world tune

Not heard since childhood days, Does your whole being thrill and change In wondrous ways?

And when you see some winning face, Of maid or God-like child, Does temper harsh change into one Gracious and mild?

And when you see the dying day, Fade in the mystic west, Why starts the tear drop in the eye In sweet unrest?

Is it that God would have this truth, That within our minds to shine, That even here earth gives a glimpse Of life divine?

THEN IT'S NEWS Ambition: "I'd like to do something big and worthwhile. Something that would get my name in all the newspapers, etc., etc."

Experience: "Boy—the quickest way to the front page of Ye Modern Newspaper today—is through the windshield."

Motorist: "Don't race past a stopped car. Some day the jury will call it manslaughter."

Quality

The most urgent requirement in Canada's Agricultural Products

CANADA produces every year large quantities of wheat, oats, barley, butter, cheese, bacon, beef, eggs, apples, potatoes, grass seed and clover seed that she cannot consume. Her natural outlet for these products is, of course, Great Britain—the one great consuming country of the world with an open market.

Unfortunately, nearly every other country with any surplus of food products seems to want to send its surplus to this same market. The energy and resourcefulness of our competitors began to impress themselves upon the Department of Agriculture some time ago, but it is only within very recent years that the real and only way to grapple with this problem has been discovered, or at least put into effect. This Department now believes, as do also most of the farmers of this country, that the "grading" of our agricultural products is the policy and practice that is seeing us through the struggle and will assure us of our rightful place on the British market.

"Grading" means the classifying of products, whether they be hogs, butter, cheese, eggs or anything else, into what might be called in a general way "BEST", "GOOD", "FAIR" and "POOR" classes.

These exact words are not used in describing the grades, but that is what is meant. The purpose served in grading is threefold—

(1) Educational. When the producer sees the relative quality of his product he is spurred on to maintain that quality if it is the "best" or to improve the quality where necessary.

(2) Fair Play. When products are not graded the inferior article for various reasons often brings as much as the superior article, and the credit and advantage of putting the superior product on the market is lost to the one who really deserves it.

(3) Facilitating Trade. The dealer learns to have confidence in the article he is buying and buys more freely, because it is guaranteed by grading, and gradually everybody gets to know what the "best" article really looks like or tastes like. In short, grading brings about standardization and ensures to the producer the best price.

Canada now grades her cereals, grass seeds, hay, potatoes, apples, eggs, butter, cheese, wool and bacon hogs. The results have been in every case beneficial and in some cases quite markedly so, even though the grading system has been in effect in some cases for only two or three years, thus—

Cheese—Grading began April 1st, 1923. Canadian cheese the year before had fallen into such disfavour on the British market that New Zealand cheese was quite commonly preferred. Today Canadian cheese commands cents per pound higher than New Zealand.

Butter—Grading began same time as for cheese. The reputation of our butter was then indeed at low ebb. Canadian butter today, while not the best on the market, is rapidly improving in quality and gaining in reputation.

Hogs—Over two years ago the Department of Agriculture began to grade live hogs at the packing houses and stock yards. The 10% premium paid by the packers for "select" bacon hogs as against "thick smooths" as classed by departmental graders has done wonders to improve the quality of our hogs and develop the bacon industry.

Best Canadian bacon, which ordinarily was quoted two years ago from 10 to 18 shillings a long hundredweight below Danish, has gradually grown in the estimation of the British wholesale buyer until it is now quoted at only from 1 or less to at most 5 or 6 shillings per long hundredweight below the best Danish.

This improvement in price is, of course, due to quality and has come about very gradually, the spread narrowing down by a shilling or two a month until now it is just as all a rare occurrence to see best Canadian selling on a par with the Danish article.

Eggs—Canada was the first country to grade and standardize eggs. These grades and standards apply not only to export, interprovincial and import shipments, but also to domestic trading.

The basis is interior quality, cleanliness and weight.

Standardizing Canadian eggs has established confidence between producer and consumer and between exporter and British importer, and has resulted in a greatly-increased demand for the Canadian egg both at home and abroad.

Other products might be mentioned where grading has worked to the great advantage of the producer and to the advancement of Canadian agriculture.

Already Great Britain recognizes our store cattle, wheat, cheese, eggs, apples and oats as the best she can buy.

It is for us to so improve our other products, particularly, our butter and bacon, as to bring them also into this list of "the best on the British market" and consequently the highest priced.

Grading enabled us to do this for cheese, wheat, eggs and apples. Grading is helping us to do it for butter and bacon.

Quality Counts Quality is thus the first objective for the Canadian export trade, and, then steady, regular supply. It is along these lines the Department of Agriculture is working by educational methods, and the result of this policy is seen in the growing volume of Canada's agricultural exports. Look at these figures—

"Then the great elm shouted down, 'Oak, I will have your sap for me. When the northwest wind blows will fall upon you, and crush you into earth, and everyone who passes shall laugh and say, 'Look what Elm has done to Oak!'." "Look what Elm has done to Oak!"

"Then the beautiful spruce, when she saw these loud and angry words, smiled silently, and tears came to her many eyes and fell like down on the warm grass, for she loved both the oak and the elm, and could not have told you which she loved the better, and as the spruce trembled and wept she made a great resolve.

"And when the night was deep upon her she arose from the rich black earth which had been her home since she was a little Christmas-tree and stole gently away to a sandy ridge, where another tree could grow, because she could not bear to hear her friends quarrel about her. And in the morning she saw the oak and the elm awake their beautiful love away on the ridge, where neither of them could grow any more. And there she has lived for ever since.

"And did the elm fight the oak, Daddy X?" the lad inquired, raising his hand from the fire to the face of his friend.

"Oh, no! The elm was so sorry for his high words that he, too, departed, but he went to the valley, not far from the river. And so the oak and elm live apart, but under their gruff surfaces they are very, very sad."

"But very beautiful," said the boy, "Reed poked the fire with a stick and watched a slender tongue of flame whipping the smoke upwards. The bedtime story was always to him a season of delight, a ten-minute ramble into fairy-land. And this strange friend of his, whom he knew only as Daddy X, always had a new story every night, and never needed to read it out of a book. What a wonderful Daddy X he was!

"Now you must say your verse and go to bed," said Cal, after they had watched the fire smoulder for a while. The lad clasped his hands, and, raising his face to the bright stars, repeated solemnly the words, "A bruised reed shall he not break, and the smoking flax shall he not quench."

"That was what my mother said. Didn't she, Daddy X?" said the boy.

"Yes, Reed."

"And that is why you called me Reed, because my mother was a bruised reed, isn't it, Daddy X?"

"Yes, lad. But you cannot understand. Some day, perhaps, you will understand." But under his breath he renewed the promise given to the boy's dead mother: "He never shall, he never shall!"

CHAPTER TWO

Reed slipped silently from the knickerbockers and shirt which were his principal attire; his shoes and stockings had been discarded early in the evening, when he went to throw stones in the water. For a moment the glint of his trim young body shone ruddy in the light of the fire; then, with a contortion, it disappeared within the folds of his nightgown.

"Porter, am dah beris made up?" he demanded.

"Massa, dah beris am made up," Cal answered, with great gravity.

In preparation for their expedition, Cal had, with a plumber's kit and some help from a friendly blacksmith, had performed a surgical operation of some delicacy upon the ancient Ford, which had just then come into his possession. The back of the front seat was amputated at the flanks and so arranged that it folded down, bridging, as it were, the space between the front and back cushions. In this position, with all the cushions in place, and furnished with a camp mattress, blankets and pillows, a very passable bed was provided. Reed slept on the driver's side to save Cal the danger of barking his long shins on the steering post, and, with this precaution, they were as comfortable as in any Pullman.

Cal had arranged the back and the cushions, spread the mattress, turned back the blankets, placed the pillows. Reed clung for a moment about his neck, then vaulted over the ratty side-door, flicking an affectionate band toward his companion as he went.

"Good-night, Daddy X," he called.

"Good-night, Reede-boy."

Reed turned to a study of the stars which peered down very thick and friendly, from the Milky Way overhead, and Cal retraced his steps to the fire, musing as he went over the amazing wonderlands of childhood. He stirred the fire to new life with some fresh branches and settled down, his back against a friendly tree, for his bedtime smoke. During the day his time and thought were given to Reed and Antelope, but at night, after the boy was in bed, he would sit by the camp-fire and marshal past, present, and future in review.

"What a kid he is!" he exclaimed to himself. "Eight—nine in September. Twenty-six, eh, Cal? With a family, but without a wife. How time flies—and how it drags! Both. The days seem endless, but how the weeks slip by! "Eight years—nine in September. Twenty-six. I used to think a man was old at twenty-six. And so he is. I am old at twenty-six."

He leaned back, his square shoulders resting against the tree, while his mind, from contemplating the childhood of Reed, skipped down the years to his own first recollections. There stretched the leafy street in the little university city of Kingston; there basked the big garden in which he and Celesta romped as children. There were the apple trees and the swing, and the flower beds that must not be touched, except by permission. There was the solid limestone house, with vines clambering over the porch and shutters.

Inside, his father sat in the big chair in the front room upstairs, with the fireplace and walls lined with books. It seemed to Cal that front room had always been filled with books and shadows, with his father, master shadow of them all, in the big chair before the fire. As Cal remembered him, his father was very tall, with a stoop, and a face which receded wherever the bones would let it, and a way of being busy just now, Cal had always thought of his father as old. There were times, rare times, when his father wasn't busy just now; times when the lad clambered up the long, thin legs and explored the strange cavities in their owner's face. Those were moments not to be forgotten, but they came only at great intervals. Professor Beuch's devotion to his university had to be bought with a price, so it seemed. And it was Cal who paid.

Cal and Celesta. Celesta, two years older than Cal, was able to recall, partly by memory, more—by imagination, the brave days before Mama went away. Those were the days when Daddy walks and picnics and great times before the study fire. Those were the days, so Celesta said, although Cal never quite credited this, before the strange hollows had come in Daddy's face. Then the angels came for Mama—that was how Celesta told it—and sent men to carry her away in a black box. And Aunt Bertha had come to live in her place.

Cal had learned why the hollows had dug their deep trenches in his father's face. The day he was fourteen he was summoned into the study. "Sit down, Calvin, my boy," said a voice out of the shadows. "I think you are fourteen today. Quite a man now, Cal, eh?"

"Yes, Daddy," said the boy, wondering for what offence he had been summoned.

"I am just three times your age, Calvin; just forty-two. Not very old, eh, Calvin?"

Cal thought forty-two was very old, but he did not say so. He had learned that the professional mind is not to be disputed.

His father repeated, "but I suppose it must be old enough. One can grow very weary in even forty-two years. But fourteen is very young to be left alone."

"Why, Daddy, are you going away?" said Cal, catching only half his father's meaning.

"Yes, Calvin."

"When? May I go? And Celesta?"

"Not now. Later. I am going to your mother, Calvin. Some time this year."

It seemed to Cal that his father had purposely chosen to sit in the shadow, where his face could not be seen clearly. The boy felt as though a great band were tightening about his ribs.

"You had to know, Calvin," his father continued after a silence, "and it is as well that you should know now. I have seen this coming, ever since your mother went, and before. That is why I took the extra classes at the university, so that there might be something saved for you and Celesta. I am a bricklayer, or a machinist—but a university professor! Doctor of languages; seven languages as my mother tongue—but there, I must not be bitter. When the bills are paid it will keep you and Celesta perhaps two years. Then you will have to make your way, my boy."

Cal had meant to answer bravely, but on the last words came a catch in his father's voice, and the next he knew he was up and in folded in the long, thin arms. Tears were mingled, and Cal went out with a blessing and a memory.

The day came, sooner than he had expected, when Dr. Beach could not leave his room. A strange woman arrived at the house to look after Daddy, and strange men, heavy, as Cal thought,

Fashion Tancies

By Marie Belmont

The French are artists at combining colors that are not ordinarily combined. The little light blue dance frock with tulle above furnishes an excellent example. Its petal points are bound in deeper color. Instead of choosing a deeper blue, which would be pretty but conservative, the French have chosen cerise, which is dashing. The little tot may wear such a frock as this to dancing school through the Fall months.

with professional wisdom, came often to visit their sick associate. They looked upon Cal and Celesta with grave eyes, and one of them had laid his hand on Cal's shoulder.

After the death of his father Cal learned that the house which he had always known as home was in some way connected with the university, and they must vacate it. Aunt Bertha saw them settled in rooms in a cheaper part of the town and left them with her blessing and the explanation that their little capital would support two longer than three. Celesta was quite old enough to keep house.

"Celesta, my dear," Aunt Bertha had said on that last morning, while they waited for the expressman after her trunks were packed, "Celesta, my dear, you have been well brought up; you will be sister and mother to that tremendous boy. To Aunt Bertha Cal had always for some reason been "that tremendous boy." Aunt Bertha had been raised among girls, and had never married. "Your money will last a couple of years; that will see him to work. Antelope then, he must go, ultimatum, so Cal thought, with unnecessary relish of the inevitable.

A lawyer who had been named their guardian paid the rent of their little flat and gave them a weekly living allowance. Celesta proved a good manager, and when they had recovered from the first shock of their father's death, life for the brother and sister moved very pleasantly indeed. Cal finished his high school course at sixteen and his aunt's decree about going to work, but Celesta would have none of it. "When Celesta would have gone through university, Cal," she said, "then I will let you work for me. Until then I am going to work for you."

Cal protested, but Celesta's mind was made up, and Cal, being the younger, had come to know how inexorable was his sister's mind when it was made up. "The housework is nothing," she had said; "I can do it morning and evening, like winking. I can get work in an office, and it will be fun to save my big brother in college. You will work through the summer. I am sure we can manage."

So Cal was persuaded; Celesta went to an office, and he to college. He had not troubled to decide for what particular purpose he would go to college; that could come later. All went well for a year or two, but the time came when Celesta's devotion to her her housekeeping seemed suddenly to be interrupted. There were many nights when she had "a date"; there were evenings when she did not come to dinner. Cal, philosophical ally, accepted the situation, mildly wondering.

Finally came the day when Celesta announced that she was going to Montreal; she had been offered a much better position; she could make more money; it would be to Cal's advantage more than hers. He could stay at a boarding house; it would be more companionable than their lonely rooms. The idea appealed to Cal but little, but he accepted it without much argument. It was apparent that Celesta had made up her mind again; besides, he did not forget that it was to her efforts he owed the possibility of attending college.

After Celesta had gone she sent him money two or three times, generously, but at irregular intervals; then the remittances ceased altogether. Fortunately Cal had found summer work in a printing office, so he was not penniless, but an uneasiness concerning Celesta grew upon him. He had just turned eighteen, and these eighteen years had flowed, in the main, along the sheltered paths of life. He was neither suspicious nor sophisticated. He had an undefined but abounding confidence in the goodness of humanity. He was an optimist.

Another pupil of our school, Lovitt Bishop, won second prize, $1.00, on his map of the same subject, these making very interesting maps also.

Total amount of prize money won by our school, we were told, was $22.50, none of our High School pupils taking any part this year. We hope for still more interest next year and good luck.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY HOS MEETING AT BERWICK

A meeting of the "Children's Aid Society of Kings County" was held Tuesday evening at the Baptist church, Berwick. The object of the meeting was to make better known the work that is being done by the organization and to create a greater interest in its work on the part of the people of the county. Organized thirteen years ago this is the first time that the Children's Aid Society, which has its headquarters in Wolfville, has held a meeting elsewhere.

Those who attended from here were President Davidson, Secretary-Treasurer Patriquin, H. Stairs, agent, Dr. Hancock, of Acadia University, and Mr. Harry, V.O.N. The evening was an especially pleasant one yet the attendance was fairly large considering the busy season. Those present from Berwick included Rev. Mr. Allaby, pastor of the church, and Mrs. Allaby, Rev. Mr. Hockin, of the United Church, Mayor Parker and a goodly number of interested men and women.

The object and aim of the organization were briefly explained, following which the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting took place.

Dr. Hemmeon will occupy the pulpit, he having been absent on vacation. REV. ANDERSON ROGERS

The death of Rev. Anderson Rogers, D.D., which occurred at his home at Hopewell, Pictou county, on Friday afternoon of last week, removes one who for many years has been one of the best beloved ministers of the Presbyterian church in this province. Rev. Dr. Rogers was in his seventy-fifth year and was a native of Rogers Hill, Pictou county. His education was received at Pictou Academy, Dalhousie University and Pine Hill College, graduating in Arts and Divinity.

In his student days he for a time ministered to the Presbyterian congregations in Wolfville and Grand Pique, and on subsequent visits to the community was always given a most cordial welcome. His long, successful and varied pastorate was equalled by that of few men in this province. He was minister respectively at Yarmouth, Windsor, New Glasgow, Amherst, Halifax and finally at Antigonish. Five years ago he resigned, but has since, when health permitted, been in constant service supplying pulpits where needed. He was elected moderator of the Maritime Synod of the Presbyterian church and was given the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity by Pine Hill College in 1914.

His position of the evangelist type he was vigorous, original and eloquent in the pulpit and excelled as a pastor where his unfailing kindness made him a much beloved shepherd of his flock. While all the years of his active ministry were spent in the Presbyterian church, he was a staunch supporter of Church Union although he wisely had no part in the embittered controversy which unfortunately attended the movement, and fully retained the respect and good will of all.

A GYPSY VISITATION

Wolfville had a visit from a band of gypsies on Sunday, although not as in the days of old with many horses and high caravans. The old order changed, and this time they came in high-powered motor cars, seven in number, loaded with gayly attired but hard-looking occupants and equipped with all the late appliances for comfortable travelling.

They camped at Port Williams station and only spent a short time in Wolfville on Sunday and Monday, coming here for supplies.

While the male members of the party enjoyed a brief breathing-spell the females darted here and there telling fortunes for all who would give them the opportunity. The glint of bangles and the waving of red scarfs lent a colorful air to the proceedings. They evidenced a great interest in the monetary belongings of their patrons, and it is hinted that in one case at least a gentleman whose hand was grasped by a siren who predicted for him a long and happy career was short five dollars in his cash account at the end of the interview.

In a neighboring town which was visited by the party it is said that a commercial traveller who "tried his luck" was assured among other things that he was a "good loser" and found later on examining his "roll" which had been entrusted to the gypsy for luck that it had slightly diminished.

The party proceeded eastward, and it is said that a sucker is born every minute, are probably now carrying on their ministrations in other fields.

TOM MIX PICTURES DICK TURPIN'S RIDE

One of the feats accredited to Dick Turpin, the stage robber of England 175 years ago, was a ride of over 150 miles in a night and a half day, the bonny mare, Black Bess, carrying the robber from a point near London to London between evening and noon.

Dick had committed a bold robbery, knowing that his victim had recognized him he put spurs to the mare and galloped through the night. Arriving at York shortly after noon he stroled to the bowling green where the Lord Mayor and friends were at play. Casually meeting the players, Dick mentioned to hour and impressed it upon all minds.

When arrested he summoned the Lord Mayor. He was cleared because it was noted that no horse in the world could have traversed that distance in so short a time.

Inspired by the tale of Turpin's wonderful career, Tom Mix, the William Fox star, has a magnificent film story of his life and the ride to York is one of the striking features of the story. This picture, "Dick Turpin" will show Tuesday at the Orpheum Theatre—for one night only.
