Every one a Meal!

No measuring—no mixing—no seasoning—it's all in the Cube—simply add hot water. Quick—handy—delicious—and nutritious.

On a cold day a steaming hot cup of Oxo—made in one minute with an Oxo Cube—is a luxury you will appreciate. Its fine rich flavour—its concentrated goodness—the warmth, energy and well-being it creates, are a surprise and pleasure to all who use this delightful new food-invention.

A Cube to a Cup. Oxo Cubes are the latest achievement of food-science, and have caused the cumbersome and old-fashioned meat-extract and fluid-beef to be relegated to the background. All that these products can do Oxo Cubes can do—better—quicker—and with less trouble and cost. Order a tin to-day.

A Millionaire; Countess Westleigh

CHAPTER XXXVII.

He went down the stairs and joined the group, and was introduced to the bride-maids and the other guests, and laughed and talked with them; but he seemed strangely "jerky" and preoccupied, and they eyed him curiously now and again. But they made the allowance which is due to the unfortunate mortal who is cast for the part of a bridegroom, and ascribed his manner to his sense of the nearness of his doom.

"A man going to be married always looks like that," said a young girl, as Vane, having been told that the dog-cart was waiting, nodded to them and strode down the hall. "He feels as if he were going to be hanged, you know."

Vane went out with the echo of their laughter in his ears.

It was an awful ride through the darkness. Florence had decided! He had lost Nora forever. Her face danced before him all the way, her voice rang in his ears. Yes, Florence had decided!

He reached the inn and told the groom to wait. But when he got to his room he knew that he could not go back that night. He went down stairs and sent the groom back with a message.

"Tell her ladyship that I will be over in good time to-morrow," he said.

On the way back to his room the landlord intercepted him.

"The gentleman hasn't come yet."

HOW MRS. BROWN SUFFERED

During Change of Life—How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Well Woman.

Iola, Kansas—"During the Change of Life I was sick for two years. Before I took your medicine I could not bear the weight of my clothes and was bloated very badly. I doctored with three doctors but they did me no good. They said nature must have its way. My sister advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I purchased a bottle. Before it was gone the bloating left me and I was not so sore. I continued taking it until I had taken twelve bottles. Now I am stronger than I have been for years and can do all my work, even the washing. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold. I cannot praise it enough. If more women would take your medicine there would be more healthy women. You may use this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. D. H. Brown, 209 N. Walnut St., Iola, Kan.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

your honor," he said.

"What gentleman?" asked Vane, absently.

"Mr. Harold Tempest, the—the best man, sir."

"Oh, yes. No matter. He will be here, presently," said Vane, mechanically; and he went upstairs. He paced up and down the room half stupefied. After a time the landlord knocked and asked if his honor wouldn't have some dinner.

Vane said no; he would have some whisky and water. The landlord brought up a bottle, and Vane filled a glass and drank it. He drank two or three such draughts, but they had no effect upon him. Intense mental anguish, like intense physical pain, declines to be deadened by alcohol. He paced the room, or sat with his head upon his arm, through the livelong night. Toward morning he fell asleep. The sound of bells awoke him. He started and looked round him with a bewildered air; then his face lighted up with joy. Of course. It was his wedding morning; he was going to be married to Nora—to Nora. Then the truth broke in upon the delusion and he let his head fall, again and groaned.

"Not to Nora. He should never wed her. It was to Florence Heathcote!

He dragged himself to his feet and began to wash and dress. Some one knocked at the door, and with the towel in his hand he went and opened it.

"What is it?"

"The gentleman has come; he wants to see you," said the voice of the landlord.

"Very well," said Vane; "I shall be down directly."

He finished dressing and went down stairs into the parlor coffee-room. A young fellow in an ulster turned from drumming on the window pane to greet him. At sight of Vane's face, white, haggard and drawn, as if he had only just recovered from a serious illness, the young fellow uttered an exclamation.

"You—you have heard the news already?" he said, solemnly.

"News—what news?" said Vane, with callous indifference. "You are"

Harold Tempest—the"—his voice unconsciously grew bitter—"the best man?"

"Yes, yes," said the young fellow, nervously; "but I say, you know, are you sure you haven't heard? You look so devilish seedy and cut up."

"Heard what?" said Vane. "You are late, aren't you? We expected you earlier—yesterday." He spoke in cold, mechanical tones. The young fellow eyed him curiously.

"If you haven't heard, Tempest, prepare yourself for—for—bad news!" Vane smiled a ghostly smile.

"Bad news? Fire away, man," he said, with stony indifference. "What is it?"

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

"Fire away," said Vane, coldly, recklessly.

What bad news, what news or a worse calamity could this young fellow bring him than had already befallen him? He had found Nora—but to lose her again; this time indeed forever, and most hopelessly, for he was not going to marry Florence Heathcote?

The young fellow looked at him with increased surprise mingled with his solemnity. No doubt he thought Vane looked a miserable kind of bridegroom enough.

"I—I thought you might have heard," he said, slowly. "News travels so jolly fast, nowadays; the telegraph and all that, don't you know?"

"I've heard nothing. Have only just got out of bed," said Vane, impatiently. "How the devil you have managed to get here at this unearthly hour in the morning I can't conceive. Won't your news keep till you've had some breakfast? You look seedy enough."

He went toward the bell as he spoke.

Mr. Harold Tempest caught his arm.

"Wait a moment, Vane; don't call the servant in just yet till I've—I've told you. I came on by the day mail; as far as it would bring me, and coached the rest. I've been travelling all night—"

"You look it."

"Yes; they wanted to telegraph me but I said that it would be awful; rough telegraphing to you, dropping on you so suddenly just before your wedding, and that I'd tell you when I reached you. I stayed with them as long as I could."

Vane stared at him. Had the fellow gone mad?

"What on earth are you talking about?" he demanded, almost angrily. "I can't make head or tail of it, I understand what it is you mean. Why didn't you come last night, and what was it you were going to telegraph to me—only you didn't?"

"Am I not telling you—breaking it to you? Westleigh's dead."

Vane started and looked at him.

"Westleigh—dead?" he breathed.

Harold Tempest nodded gravely.

"Yes. I—I was trying to break it to you."

"When—how—did he—?" stammered Vane.

"Yesterday morning," replied Harold Tempest. "At least, about mid-day. It was an accident. The coach—you know he had taken to tooling the coach from Newton Petrook to Westleigh? Well, something was wrong with the wheel, and the blessed thing turned over on its side. Westleigh was pitched down among the horses—one of 'em was a young mare, and restless—and and she kicked him. He must have been killed in an instant; it was right on the temple." He put his finger on the spot on his own head.

Vane shuddered.

"The coach was dragged for a devil of a distance," went on Harold Tempest, "and young Vernon appears to have been underneath it—"

Vane shuddered.

"The coach was dragged for a devil of a distance," went on Harold Tempest, "and young Vernon appears to have been underneath it—"

Girl's Nerves Fully Restored

Was Never Able to Obtain Lasting Benefit Until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Was Used.

Too many girls grow up with weak, anemic bodies and exhausted nervous systems. Indoor life and too much application in school are sometimes the cause.

The blood needs enriching and the nerves need strengthening by such food as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This food cure is doing wonders for thousands of girls whose parents had almost despaired of their ever developing into strong, healthy women.

Mrs. J. Bagnall, 295 Woodville avenue, Toronto, writes: "My daughter suffered from nervousness since childhood and any medicines she tried did not do any lasting good. We read in the papers about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and my daughter used it with the best results. This treatment strengthened her nerves that she feels like another girl."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmond, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

"Young Vernon—Westleigh's son?"

"Yes; didn't I tell you? He was with his father on the coach that morning, as luck would have it. They got him out after a time and carried him home, but he died soon after midday."

"Good God!" Vane exclaimed, with horror and grief. "Both—you say both?"

"Yes, both—both on the same day. Awful, isn't it? I wish I'd broken it to you better, Vane; but, after all, I'm better than one of those beastly sharp telegrams that come upon you like a hundred of bricks."

"Yes. Thank you," said Vane, hoarsely, with his hand to his head.

"I'm glad I got down here in time to put the wedding off," said Harold Tempest. "It's an awful nuisance, a dreadful blow for you; but—but I suppose it wouldn't do to let it take place as if nothing had happened, though really, when you come to think of it, and how hard it is on you and Lady Florence—"

Vane started. Put off the wedding? The thought—alas! the hope—shot like a gleam of light athwart the gloom of this awful news.

"I—I don't know," he faltered.

"We must go on to the Grange at once. You'll—you'll have some breakfast," and he rang. But when the breakfast was brought in neither of them was equal to more than a cup of coffee, and it was drunk almost in silence. Vane stood and stared into the fire, apparently so lost that young Tempest took upon himself to order the carriage. They got into it and were driven toward the Grange.

"I'm afraid you'll have to go straight to Westleigh," said Harold.

Vane looked up.

"What?"

"They'll want you at once; they are waiting you now, in fact, and the lawyer chap—what's his name?—told me to tell you that they could do nothing till you came. Tell the earl, he said, that I'll send the carriage to meet each train."

"The earl—what earl?" asked Vane, confusedly.

Harold Tempest stared at him.

"Good Lord!" he exclaimed, "you can't have forgotten that young Vernon was the late earl's only son, and that, as he is dead, you have got the title, and are now Earl of Westleigh?"

Vane looked out of the window.

"I had forgotten that—yes, I had forgotten it," he said, humbly.

"Would to Heaven I were not! Yes," he added, after a pause, "I will go to Westleigh at once if the wedding does not take place."

"Pon my word, I don't see how I can!" remarked Harold Tempest.

"We shall see," said Vane. "I rests with Lady Florence."

As they drove up to the Grange they could plainly observe the signs of the prevailing excitement. Footmen and grooms, with white favors, stood about waiting for the guests; a group of villagers, in their Sunday best, and with favors also, and huge bunches of primroses and violets, hung about the gates and clustered

In groups on the roads leading to the church.

Bride Not Asked to 'Obey.'

First "Spiritual Militant" Wedding—City Church Ceremony.

The first "spiritual militant" marriage ceremony took place at St. Ethelburga's Church, Bishopgate, yesterday afternoon, when the Rev. Dr. Cobb, the rector, who officiated, did not call upon the bride to repeat the words "obey him and serve him."

The bride was Miss Elizabeth Wetzel, daughter of Dr. Stanton Coit and Mrs. Coit, of Hyde Park Gate, who were closely associated with the foundation of the Spiritual Militancy League for the Women's Charter of Rights and Liberties, which recently issued a manifesto on the "moral impediments" contained in the Anglican marriage service, and the bridegroom was Mr. Thorley Gibson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gibson, of Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The omission of the "obey" clause was not the only departure from the usual order of service, for while the bride—who wore a beautiful wedding robe of white charmeuse draped with lace, the train of white chiffon brocade being bordered with ermine—was accompanied up the aisle by her parents, there was no giving away ceremony, the clergyman omitting by special request to put the usual question, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?"

Picturesque Group.
Eight little children in picturesque Kate Greenway costumes, followed the bride to the altar. They were her three sisters, the Misses Adeline, Gwendoline, and Virginia Coit; Miss Elizabeth von Gatz (cousin of the bride); Miss Morgan Gibson (cousin of the bridegroom); Master Eddie Garbutt and Masters Derek and Thurston Martin-Holland.

The bridesmaids wore dainty gowns of flowery gauze over pale blue satin, and quaint mob caps of fine white muslin tied with blue ribbons. Instead of carrying bouquets they had muffs made of natural flowers, while the three small pages wore pale blue suits.

The promise "to obey" and the "giving away" ceremony are the two first "indignities" enumerated in the manifesto of the spiritual militants. It is interesting to recall that in the case of the marriage of Mr. Victor Duval and Miss Dugdale, which took place at the Savoy Chapel in January of last year, the bride and bridegroom, who are well-known in connection with the Suffragist movement, expressed a wish that the "obey" clause should be omitted from the service. On the morning of the marriage, the Rev. Hugh Chapman, who performed the ceremony, decided in consideration of the fact that the ceremony was to take place in one of the Chapels Royal, that he could not carry out the plan. The compromise then arrived at, was that the minister should say the words, but that they should not be repeated by the bride.

The wedding at St. Ethelburga's yesterday, therefore, was the first at which these words were omitted.—Graphic, Oct. 24.

Back Was Lame For Two Years

Stomach Troubles and Weakness of Kidneys Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

There is an enormous amount of suffering from liver and kidney derangements and stomach troubles that could easily be avoided by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If you could only realize the scores of everyday ills that arise from a sluggish condition of the kidneys, liver and bowels you would not be long in giving this medicine a trial.

Mrs. Edward Stewart, New Richmond West, Que., writes: "I want to tell you how thankful I am for using your Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for stomach troubles and backache caused by weak kidneys. I was unable to wash any clothes for over two years on account of my back being lame. I read the Almanac and began using these pills. Two boxes made a complete cure. I can do my own washing and other work now, and want to say to lady friends that they do not know how much I appreciate Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

The Frailty of Man.

We are all liable to error and will be so to the end of time—the most careful will make mistakes, sometimes, for are we not merely human? With the fact of our own frailty staring us in the face, would it be reasonable on our part to neglect the means placed within our reach for the elimination of error? Errors in the counting house are costly but they can be avoided by the use of present-day inventions constructed, as well as human ingenuity can suggest, specially for the help of busy men. It is to busy men that we speak—the others have no time to waste. To busy office-men the "Globe-Wernicke" devices come as a boon in being guarding as they do the essential records, which are the main vitality of business. These appliances are on view at Mr. Percie Johnson's office, and need only be seen to be appreciated.

THE IDEAL Bed Spring!

Is known everywhere as the most luxurious article to sleep on ever produced. It has stood the test for more than 20 years and is more popular to-day than ever. The Ideal No. 10 is constructed of 120 double Coil Spiral Springs, made of the best quality of wire. The Springs are knotted at both ends and interlocked lengthwise, forming an unbroken surface for the mattress and occupant.

Each Spring is firmly attached to a flexible steel frame in the centre, which provides lateral support and eliminates all tendency to lateral motion, and at the same time compels perpendicular action of the Spring. There are eight angle iron bars crossing underneath the Spring, which are attached on each side to hangers that rest on the side rails of an iron bedstead. The outside row of Spiral Springs are directly over the side rail of the bedstead, forming a spring edge to the extreme outside edge of the bed. With this method of construction 9 inch Springs can be used, thereby increasing the flexibility and comfort of the bed and adding greatly to its durability and making it the Greatest Spring made.

A large shipment just in to select from. Prices from $6.50 up. Allow us to demonstrate its wonderful qualities.

HOW EYE STRAIN CAUSES EYE DISEASES.
Eye strain is the first cause of most eye diseases. It produces irritation and congestion and a consequent general weakness of all the nerves and muscles of the eye. In this way any eye disease, such as Cataract, Optic Nerve Paralysis, Ulcers, Glaucoma, Granulated Lids, etc., may be produced. Any of these diseases, if neglected, may result in blindness. The best time to treat the eye diseases is in the "eye strain stage." If you are having any trouble whatever with your eyes, no matter how slight, consult us.

Our Minority Government.

As we have already repeatedly stated, the present government of Newfoundland is a minority government. There is no getting away from the fact that the electorate by a large majority of votes signified their desire that Morris should not finish his work. More than 10,000 votes were registered against the Morris Government than were given for it. The will of the people was expressed clearly and plainly by votes in the proper and usual way. The position of the Government is therefore most unusual. It has the unique experience of being supported by 21 members in the House of Assembly and opposed by 15 members, and at the same time of being opposed by over 61,000 votes at the General Election with only some 51,000 votes in its favor. The like has probably never been heard of before in the history of Newfoundland. The people have shown in a clear and unmistakable form so far as a large majority of votes are concerned, that they don't want the Morris Government, that they do want a change, and that they want Sir Robert Bond at the head of the Government. But owing to the way the votes are distributed at present, these 61,000 votes have put only fifteen members in the house of Assembly, while the minority consisting of 51,000 votes have elected twenty-one members. This shows there is something rotten in the state of electoral representation. It is high time there was a Redistribution Bill, and such anomalies as two members for Ferryland corrected. There are a number of other anomalies too which need attention. But the feature about them is that they are the main cause of putting in the House of Assembly twenty-one members to support a Government which has lost the confidence of the majority of the electorate. There is also another question which is attracting the attention of the people, and that is the retention in office of two ministers who have lost the confidence of their constituents. More than a fortnight has passed since polling, and about twelve days have passed since the result of the polling in the district of Bonavista was announced, yet nothing has been made public in regard to the intentions of the Government as to these ministerial offices. No doubt, we shall be told to "wait and see" what Sir Edward Morris intends to do. But the majority of voters are also watching and waiting to see what will be done, and the Government may rest assured that the Opposition will not be idle in their criticism of a Minority Government.

Honest Goods at Honest Prices.

FAIRBANKS MORSE ENGINES being Honest engines are sold at honest prices. To-day engines can be bought at all kinds of prices, some being even sold for a song, and one doesn't need to be a Caruso to become the owner of a motor engine. If an engine is only required for a year or so it is alright buying a cheap one, but if it is expected to do years of hard work, get something in the Fairbanks line. Remember a cheap engine is dear at all prices, as one break down in the fishing season may cost hundreds of dollars. Certain it is it will cost you more than the difference between a cheap motor and a Fairbanks Morse. With the Fairbanks there will be no break downs, as it is the engine of quality. GEO. M. CATALINA, Nov. 4, 1913. Messrs. Franklin & Company, St. John's, Nfld. Dear Sirs,—Having used a 6 H. P. FRASER engine with kerosene adapter the past season, I feel compelled to write and let you know something of my feelings towards this engine, it has given me perfect satisfaction, never having one minute's trouble from the time I installed it in my boat. I have only used two gallons of gasoline for the season and could have done without any as the engine will start as well on kerosene as on gasoline. I heartily recommend the FRASER engine to all fishermen who are thinking of investing in a motor as the best engine on the market. It is simple to manipulate and strong enough to tow a boat load of fish and keep up with other engines without anything in tow, as I have proved this the past season. I secured 300 quintals of fish this summer, my cost for running was under $20 for kerosene, without the engine 70 to 100 quintals would probably have been my voyage. You have my permission to use this letter should you care to do so. Yours truly, THOMAS KING. nov15,17,18

The Bigness of Little Things.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Did you ever realize how big an influence little things often have in our feelings toward other people? Once upon a time I heard a woman whom I had a long and greatly admired lose her temper. She was a woman of charm, presence and great ability. She had a very cordial manner and a most winning way, and never before or after that particular occasion have I known her to be anything but gracious and charming. And yet I have never been able to feel the same toward her since. I do not consciously blame her for the fit of temper—most of us give way to them occasionally. I know it was only a little thing, and yet it has completely changed my subconscious feeling toward her.

Again, I was once in a position to be of considerable service to a neighbour of mine. Of course I was delighted with the privilege and did my best to live up to it. On her part, she frequently expressed her great gratitude and I thoroughly believed she felt it. She is a woman to whose sweetness and loveliness I used to like to pay tribute. "There," I would say, "is a woman who is good right to the core. She is kind and sweet to everybody, both inside and outside of her family circle." Then one day there came to her an opportunity to prove her gratitude to me, and she did not take it. As I look back I am sure there must have been some very good reason, and I try so hard to feel just as I used to toward that woman. But I cannot. Please believe me when I say that it was not because I cared for what she could have given me. That was not it at all. It was simply that I could not bear to have her fail in gratitude. It was a very little thing but it has somehow changed and chilled the tender feeling I had for her. I admire her still, but she is not the same.

Sometimes a single tactless remark, a single sneer, one little unkind act, will change your point of view on some friend. Perhaps in time the view-point may change back but it is apt to be a very long time.

On the other hand, some little thoughtful act or tactful speech may color your whole opinion of a person. Once when I lay lonely and sick in a boarding-house I don't know what it is, a corridor acquaintance brought me up a dainty breakfast tray. That, too, was a little thing, but it made that whole woman's character seem rose-colored to me.

The little things, the little things, how very big they are to us illogical, emotional, unreasonable human creatures! I suppose it is, quite wrong that it should be so but since it is, it certainly behooves us all to watch out for the little things of life as well as the big.

The World's Greatest Love Stories.

The Dream of Dante Gabriel Rossetti, and the Resurrection of His Buried Poems.

The love story of Dante Gabriel Rossetti the famous painter of "The Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood," and a poet whose sonnets and ballads had the simplicity and the mystical beauty of the medieval spirit, is as true and as any tale of love in the world's romance.

The face of the woman who heard the call of Death even when the bells were ringing for her marriage looks out for ever from the pictures which made Rossetti famous. Years after he had called out passionate words of grief above the white beauty of her lifeless body, it was her face which haunted his vision when he stood before his easel with his brush poised over his palette. And in many of his poems the spirit of that dream lady who was his wife seemed to guide his hand in a ghostly way, and to lead his imagination into unearthly realms.

The Girl in the Bonnet Shop.

Rossetti was twenty-two years of age when he met Elizabeth Siddall. Already this son of Italian refugees had gained renown as a poet and painter of brilliant promise, the pioneer of a new school of artistic philosophy at war with the stale old conventions in England, and the friend and leader of that little coterie of artists—including Holman Hunt, Millais, and Madox Brown—who had formed themselves into the Society of the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood. Their watchwords were "Simplicity" and "Nature," but Dante Gabriel Rossetti had inherited a genius from his Italian forefathers, and had a spiritual emotion of his own which distinguished his work from that of his comrades in art.

A young man of passionate moods, changing quickly from boyish gaiety to morbid depression, ready for any midnight adventure, but brooding over queer, mystical thoughts in loneliness, touched at times by the spiritual ecstasy of Dante in his immortal love for Beatrice, as a symbol of most divine loveliness in womanhood, Rossetti's heart had not yet been captured by any lady.

But it was set on fire when a fellow-painter, named Deverell, introduced him to a new model—Elizabeth Siddall. Passing one day by a bonnet shop in Leicester Square, William Deverell had been struck by the extraordinary beauty of a tall young girl sitting behind the window working with her needle. She had a long, oval face with a brilliant complexion, pale blue eyes, and a mass of gold-red hair. Her long eyelashes touched her cheeks when she drooped her eyes, and she had a bow-like mouth with ripe and encrimmed lips. Yet the girl's face, so perfect, in so gracious a beauty, was illumined by a spiritual light of purity. "She had the look of one," said a friend of Rossetti's, "who read her Bible and said her prayers every night, which she probably did." She was described also as having "an unworshipful simplicity and purity."

Dante's Beatrice Born Again.

Young Deverell sent his mother to persuade the girl, who was then hardly seventeen, to sit as model for his pictures. Timid and shy as she was, she consented, and sat for the picture called "The Duke with Viola Listening to the Court Minstrels," from Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night."

Listening to the Court Minstrels, Viola, and Rossetti sat for the head of the Jester—a strange association of two people whose lives were to be joined in tragedy.

It was during these sittings that Rossetti fell deeply in love with Elizabeth Siddall. She seemed to him an incarnation of all his early visions. She was his dream lady whose face he had seen when he first began to write his poems of love. It was as though Dante's Beatrice had been born again to be the mystical lady of Dante Rossetti. He sketched her again and again, in every position. Her bow-like mouth, her gold-red hair, her wistful eyes, filled his canvases and his sketch books. He could paint no other kind of beauty. The girl had but little education, but Rossetti became her master, teaching her by love. She had never handled a pencil or a paintbrush, but, inspired by his enthusiasm, she learnt to draw under his tuition, and her lover was startled to see that she had a wonderful sense of colour and that her water-colour paintings were extraordinarily like his own conceptions of beauty. It seemed as though his spirit spoke in her. She began to write poetry, and again it was as though she revealed him to a new model—Elizabeth Siddall. A picture of "Breathless Horror." Not yet could they become husband and wife. Rossetti was desperately poor in spite of his reputation. He had to satisfy his ardent love by constant writings, by long excursions into the country, by a boy and girl companionship. All his letters at this time were full of enthusiastic words about her charms and loveliness. "Lizzie is looking lovelier than ever," he wrote to Madox Brown, and later, "Every one adores and reveres Lizzie. I made sketches of her with iris stuck in her dear hair the other day." He was delighted when Ruskin called her "a noble, glorious creature." Whenever they parted, even for a little while, he wrote poems to her, or light-hearted exuberant jingles.

But gradually a cold fear crept into his heart. The girl's health was the cause of a growing anxiety. In the midst of the sunshine of their love Death's icy breath spoke with a dreadful warning. She drooped. The bloom on her cheeks brightened to a hectic flush. There was an unearthly light in her large blue eyes. A doctor who was called in pronounced a terrifying verdict: Elizabeth Siddall had curvature of the spine. Rossetti was grief-stricken, and shed passionate tears. "It seems hard to me when I look at her sometimes," he wrote, "working, or too ill to work, and think how many without one tith of her genius or greatness of spirit have granted them abundant health and opportunity to labour through the little they can or will do."

In 1860 they were married, and this union was a source of profound joy to both of them. Yet even on their honeymoon in France some foreboding of tragedy spilt their laughter, their comradeship, their thanksgivings. It was so strong upon Rossetti and he was so powerless to resist it that he drew a strange picture, called "How They Met Themselves," in which a lover and his lady, the latter drawn from Miss Siddall, are confronted in a dark wood by the ghosts of themselves as a presage of death. The picture has been described as one of "breathless horror," and there is no doubt that Rossetti was inspired by morbid emotions when he produced it at such a time.

They returned from the honeymoon to their house in Chatham Place, but from the first the beautiful girl languished and lost her strength. She was unable to enter into the gaiety and Bohemian ways of a man who, in spite of his devotion to Art, was of wayward moods, eager for the joys of life, for comradeship, for the intoxicating wine of youth. After the first year of their marriage he left his wife too often alone, and went upon adventures of which he afterwards repented with deep remorse. Faithful to her in spirit, he was sometimes tempted to infidelity, and fell into the temptation of the artistic temperament which hated restraint. Sometimes Elizabeth Siddall, waiting at home for him, knew the jealous hunger of the heart which is the agony of love.

Into the Dark Woodland.

Then one night, Rossetti came home late from a drawing-class and found his wife lying unconscious on her bed with a bottle of laudanum by her side. She had been taking the drug under medical orders, but had miscalculated the dose. Rossetti was terror-stricken. He sent for four doctors, and they worked for hours trying to resuscitate the unconscious woman. Rossetti was in the torture of despair. Distractedly he ran out of the house, and, white as death, staggered into the room of his friend,

Ford Madox Brown, at five o'clock in the morning. Two hours afterwards the doctors knew that their labours were in vain. Rossetti's dream lady had gone into the dark woodland.

The poet painter behaved during the inquest and the days before the funeral with a noble dignity and courage. But he had the air of a man whose heart had died. Unavailing regrets, remorse for some unfaithful hours, had stuck sharp swords into his soul. Before the coffin was closed upon the pale loveliness of the dead lady, Rossetti left the friends who surrounded him and, taking a manuscript book of unpublished poems, bent over the body of his wife and called to her by name and spoke strange and tender words, as though she could hear him, and placed the book between her white cheek and her gold-red hair.

An Offering of Love.

It was an act of great renunciation, a tribute of love, a confession of remorse. In that manuscript book was Rossetti's claim to immortality among the poets—the sonnets which he had written at midnight hours when his own soul had spoken to him, when the fire of genius had burned in him. But, as he told his friends, they had been written when his beautiful wife had been suffering in loneliness, and when he might have been attending to her. The solitary text of them should go with her to the grave, and his ambitious dreams should be buried with his wife. So it was that the finest poems of Dante Gabriel Rossetti lay beneath the earth in Highgate Cemetery, and the world knew them not.

Seven years passed. From the house to which he had brought his bride he moved to Cheyne Row, Chelsea. During those seven years his fame as a painter increased so that he was acknowledged as a great master of art. The face of his dream lady became familiar to the world. It was known as "the Rossetti type." Elizabeth Siddall's beauty was perpetuated by the man who was haunted with it. But he was not happy with his fame. His outbursts of gaiety, his wild spirits, his gifts of comradeship, his sweetness and nobility of character, were clouded by moods of morbid despair and intense gloom. He became a victim of the drug habit; once he nearly killed himself by taking three doses of nuxvomica, as he was to lurch with a friend, and would so be prevented from taking the doses separately. His limbs became rigid, his eyes seemed to burst out of their sockets, and he was terror-stricken. It was only with a mighty effort that he rushed out of the house and walked and walked until the effects of the drug wore off. After that he abandoned nuxvomica, but took to chloral to cure the terrible insomnia which afflicted him after his wife's death. That drug was not so violent in its effects, but more insidious. It jangled his nerves and gave dark visions to his brain.

You're Constipated Bilious!—Cascarets

Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Gas, Bad Breath, mean Liver and Bowels need Cleansing

Get a 10-cent box now.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable and uncomfortable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get the desired results with Cascarets.

Don't let your stomach, liver and bowels make you miserable. Take Cascarets to-night; put an end to the headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, backache and all other distress; cleanse your inside organs of all the bile, gases and constipated matter which is producing the misery.

A 10-cent box means health, happiness and a clear head for months.

No more days of gloom and distress if you will take a Cascaret now and then. All druggists sell Cascarets. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

Thick, Glossy Hair, all Dandruff Gone

Girls! Try it! Hair Gets so soft, fluffy and luxuriant at once—No more falling hair.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scrub robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots flinch, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will see this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire lots of it—no dandruff—no hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

Life and Fortune to Honor Gen. Nogi.

Tokio, Nov. 10.—A picturesque instance of Japanese hero worship is reported from Kobe, where Sanjin Murano, millionaire business magnate, has announced his intention of consecrating his life and fortune to the spirit of the late Gen. Nogi, the hero of Port Arthur, who, together with his wife, committed suicide by hara-kiri on the night of the funeral of Emperor Mutsuhito last year.

The announcement was made on the anniversary of the death of the soldier.

Mr. Murano will build a temple at Fushimi, in the vicinity of the mausoleum of Emperor Mutsuhito, as a memorial to Gen. Nogi, and in that sanctuary Mr. and Mrs. Murano intend to spend their remaining days. He will also build an industrial school for children of the poor in order to cultivate the spirit of industry and the love of work, which the late Gen. Nogi always insisted upon for the rising generation of Japan. For this purpose Mr. Murano has given 1,000,000 yen.

Soper & Moore.

The idea caught hold of him. It became an obsession. To get the poems back again was a craving with him. The resurrection of his sonnets seemed to him a sacred duty to literature. After battling with these desires he yielded to them, and approached the Home Secretary for permission to have the grave opened. After prolonged difficulties consent was obtained, and one night, seven and a half years after the funeral of Elizabeth Siddall, Rossetti sat in his house with his head in his hands, a prey to horrible doubts and agonies, while at Highgate Cemetery, a fire was lighted by the side of the grave and the dreadful deed was done. The manuscript book was taken from its place between a white cheek and a mass of gold-red hair, the beautiful body of Elizabeth Rossetti still being perfect as when she lay upon her bed of death.

Rossetti obtained his poems, and when they were published they lifted him to great heights of fame. But they did not bring him happiness, and until his own death he was tortured by the memory of that opened grave.

Terrible Tragedy on the Great Lakes.

Special to Evening Telegram.
PORT HURON, To-day.
For the first time since Sunday a day has passed without revealing more lives lost in the storm which overwhelmed the Great Lakes early in the past week. Only one additional boat disaster developed yesterday, that was the wrecking of the steamer Major off Whitefish Point, Lake Superior. She was abandoned by the crew. The crew was picked up by a passing steamer at night. The life loss among sailors is estimated at 256, the property loss is figured at more than five million dollars.

Want Parleys Renewed.

Special to The Evening Telegram.
WASHINGTON, To-day.
Instructions were sent to Charge O'Shaughnessy to-night indicating to him the extent to which the States Government will go in reopening negotiations with those in the counsel of Huerta who earlier in the day sought to renew parleys. The position of the American Government is that unless something definite is promised by Huerta officials, the resumption of negotiations would be fruitless. This was the state of the Mexican situation last night.

Suffragette Attacks Redmond

NATIONALISTS READY TO CONSIDER ULSTER'S CLAIMS.
Special to Evening Telegram.
NEWCASTLE, Eng., To-day.
John Redmond, Irish leader, and wife, was attacked by a suffragette while he boarded a train at Durham. The suffragettes entered the compartment where Mr. and Mrs. Redmond were seated, declaring the Irish leader had not done enough for the women of Ireland, she struck him on the head and handed over to the police. The Redmond's speech was delivered in the Town Hall last evening said there was no demand however extravagant or unreasonable that might be put forth on behalf of Ulster Unionists while Nationalists would not be ready to consider, so long as it was consistent with the principle of National self-government for Ireland. If the opponents of Home Rule remained obstinate and would agree to no reasonable settlement, Redmond besought the country not to slam the door in the face of Ireland because of the fear of fanaticism or the bludgeon of the Unionists.

Cable News.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
Secretary of State Bryan exchanged messages yesterday with Charge O'Shaughnessy about the reported concessions which Huerta's officials intimated would be made to the States. Efforts to recall John Lind from Vera Cruz, Mexico to discuss the American memorandum demanding a new Mexican Congress, should not convene, were taken here to indicate the group surrounding Huerta would suggest a compromise of the arrangement whereby the new Mexican Congress would meet, but would not pass upon the concessions and other measures calculated to continue Huerta's power. Officials are silent about the inner negotiations, but were optimistic.

LONDON, To-day.

Discussing the Mexican situation, the Spectator says that, even if President Wilson succeeded in inducing Huerta and the Government to retire, it is impossible to believe that the reformed Administration such as Americans earnestly desire can be established. One result of Mexico's humiliation, the paper adds, would be the establishment of some sort of National party with the purpose of shaking off American domination and war would only be postponed until Mexico was better prepared to fight.

LONDON, To-day.

Viscount Haldane, speaking at Edinburgh and Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary of Ireland, addressing an audience at Bristol, were subjected to suffragette disturbance last night. A dead cat was thrown at Birrell, and when offenders were ejected a general light ensued. In a speech Birrell said he hoped the settlement of the strike in Dublin would be speedily arranged, the Government were placing all legitimate pressure upon employers with that object in view.

Gatlin 3 Day Liquor Treatment IS GUARANTEED.

No matter what your opinion or prejudice may be, the fact remains that the Gatlin 3 Day Drink Treatment does the work. It thoroughly eliminates every vestige of the stored up alcoholic poison from the system in just 3 days, and leaves the patient in the condition he was in before taking his first drink.

THE RESULT IS GUARANTEED AT THE END OF THREE DAYS OR NO CHARGE.

Instead of taking a four or five weeks' course of hypodermic injections, the worst cases are entirely restored to normal condition by the Gatlin Treatment in exactly 3 days. If, at the end of that time, the results are not entirely satisfactory to the patient, the treatment will not cost a cent. This Guarantee of satisfaction is backed by a responsible concern with large Capital.

The Gatlin Home Treatment is for those who cannot find it convenient to come to the Institute. Certified Nurse can be sent within a reasonable distance, without extra charge.

Light for Bell Isle.

Shipping men sailing to and from Wabana complain of the lack of land marks and lights when entering the harbours there and the great danger to steamers and vessels in making a landing. Capt. Berggreen who has been sailing in the Wabana 'ore trade for a number of years, has already made representations to the Newfoundland government and received a reply from the deputy minister of Marine thanking him for calling their attention to the matter. There should at least be a fog horn at Bell Isle for the guidance of ships. After passing Cape St. Francis there is no light, bell or signal of any kind to lead a ship into the harbour, and the steamers have to make their landing at their own risk. Indeed it is seldom that there is even a light on the pier to indicate the proximity of the land. In any European port there are several tug boats to meet a steamer to assist her in docking, but here there is rarely a light on the pier to indicate its position.—Sydney Record, Nov. 10.

Killed in Auto Accident.

Yarmouth, N.S., Nov. 8.—This community was horrified this morning by the death, by accident, of Earl Weddleton, machinist and chauffeur for the Eastern Motor Co. Early this morning some laborers on the way to their work, passing along Argyle Street, at Salem, found an overturned car, and upon righting it, found in the seat the lifeless body of the unfortunate young man. He was known to have been at the Yacht Club smoker at a late hour, and to have taken the caretaker of the Club to Arcadia, and it is supposed he was returning when the accident happened. The spot where the car was found is at the top of Clark's Hill, in front of the farm of George Little.

The ditches at this part of the road are deep, and there is a high bank in front of Mr. Little's house, and a row of spruce hedge surmounts the bank. The car must have been coming up when the accident happened.

Straight Talk for the Fishermen.

There are to-day in Newfoundland over 125 FAIRBANKS Morse engines, all of which were in constant use this past season.

Every one of them gave perfect satisfaction and not even one cost their owners $1 for repairs since installation.

They have been operated in all kinds of weather, and have proved our claims that they run as well with water pouring over them as other makes would under ideal conditions. Quite a few have been operated on a mixture of kerosene and gasoline, whilst a considerable number gave perfect satisfaction on pure kerosene.

At the Battery, famous last year for buying engines of a certain kind, Fairbanks Morse gave perfect results this summer, and are regarded as "good engines."

We make no extravagant claims or make statements that the Fairbanks Morse will outlast, and when we say that Fairbanks Morse will be the popular engine even at Pouch Cove, we know we are stating facts. Don't take seriously "hot air" selling talk, or pay any attention to abuse, as this latter mode of selling, lately cultivated by some, is the finest compliment that can be paid our engine by competitors. The Fairbanks Morse "Make & Break" engine is the sturdiest, most reliable, most accessible and simplest engine for a fisherman, and as to its durability, it will be running when other engines, even of the dreadnought type, are in the scrap heap.

If Fairbanks Morse engines are no good, how comes it that there are over 124,000 in successful use to-day? If it is obsolete how is it that nearly 10,000 were sold last year, more than the total output of one largely advertised engine?

If you are doubtless thinking about buying an engine, so remember we ask you to buy without first inspecting an engine, so remember we don't accept dreadnoughts, and then come and look at the Fairbanks Morse running with water pouring over it. You will then realize which type is the fisherman's engine.—Nov 14.

New Title.

On Thursday the firm of Harvey & Co. became registered as a limited liability company, and will now be known as Harvey & Co., Ltd. The change in the title will not affect the general staff or directorate of the firm, and business will be conducted on the same lines as heretofore.

A Great Treat.

A great treat is in store for the George Street congregation to-morrow (Sunday) evening. Rev. Mr. Bartlett will deliver one of his very interesting discourses after which there will be a "Service of Songs," when Miss Story, in her usual fascinating manner, will render a solo. A large congregation is expected to be present on this occasion. The popular organist, Mr. Christian, will preside at the organ.—Com.

HOMER
By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old Sivash."
Homer was a citizen of Greece who lived so long ago that some difficulty is found in celebrating the correct centenary of his birth. He was a blind man, and grew up without many advantages; also without a job. Homer had a good voice, however, and he could sing the Grecian language with deftness and in a flowing, eloquent manner. Therefore he did not worry about work, but procuring a second hand harp and a pair of newly half-soled sandals he set out through Greece, singing songs of his own composition.

For many years Homer kept up this occupation. It was a healthy life, and he grew old untroubled with dyspepsia or liver complaint, but he endured many hardships. Time after time the police of Acolis, Ionia and other flourishing communities yanked him up for bogging on the streets without a license and gave him the alternative of getting out of town or going to the works. He was ragged and unkempt, his beard looked like a perambulating haystack and whenever he broke the E string of his faithful old harp he had to put up his sandals for security before he could buy a new one.

Homer kept on composing more poetry and putting it to music until he could sing seven or eight hours at one sitting on the same poem. Each year he drew large audiences, and some of the magazines were considering taking up his stuff, when he finally died of old age and inflammatory rheumatism, caused by sleeping on the rocky hillsides of Thrace in the late fall, with a too well ventilated mantle for a quilt.

After Homer died, the people missed him and they began to dig out copies of his poems which he sometimes sold for a night's lodging. The poems read so well that literary critics began to praise Homer, and within a few years he was the greatest poet of his times. His fame kept growing until Grecian towns were compelled by law to read his works at certain festivals, and Acolis went to war with Ionia because the latter claimed him as an old home boy.

To Save Salmon by the Million

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—Remedial works carried on jointly by the Dominion and Provincial Governments are obviating the threatened destruction of millions of sock-eyes salmon on the Fraser River, in British Columbia. The usual run was blocked by blasting, incidental to the Canadian Northern Railway construction, and promised to seriously affect the industry by preventing access to the spawning grounds.

During the summer new channels and runways have been constructed, and through these the sock-eyes pass up to the head waters of the Fraser. It is believed the situation will be saved.

NORWICH, Nov. 14.
The question of woman suffrage was discussed at the annual Unionist Conference, opened here to-day, when Lord Robert Cecil tried to secure a pledge to extend the franchise to women. The matter was shelved by the adoption of an amendment making such charges dependent on the express sanction of the elector-ate. A resolution was carried with three dissentists pledging the Union to a partial discontinuance of payment of members when the Unionists again came into power.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.
Secretary Bryan exchanged messages to-day with Mr. O'Shaughnessy, charge d'affaires at Mexico City, about reported concessions, which members of Huerta's officials intimated he would make to the States. The efforts to recall John Lind from Vera Cruz to Mexico City to discuss the American memorandum—demanding that the new Mexican Congress should not convene are taken here to indicate that a group surrounding Huerta would suggest a compromise arrangement whereby new Mexican concessions may be made and other measures be taken calculated to continue Huerta in power. The officials are silent about the inner negotiations, but were optimistic, that while the U. S. might refrain from making any suggestions of its own, it would endeavor to act as medium of communication through William Bayard Hale, General Carranza, and O'Shaughnessy, so that there might be an exchange of views upon various matters. There was a report to-day that Foreign Minister Mokena might be the man selected, though the views of the Constitutionalist as to Mokena's acceptability are not known.

"Oh, said the vet, "I never ask a gentleman for money."

"Why, after a certain time I conclude he's not a gentleman, and then I ask him."

Steamer Sighted a Sunken Vessel.

Storstad on Trip from Wabana Passed Unknown Schooner on Sunday.
The steamer Storstad, Capt. Anderson, which arrived in port Sunday evening from Wabana reports sighting a sunken vessel some miles beyond Cape Race, and about off Fair Line light. Capt. Anderson told a Record representative that he passed quite near the wreck and that it appeared to be that of quite a large schooner.

The spars of the foundered vessel was above the surface probably fifteen or eighteen feet, and to these brown sails were still attached. He said it would appear as if the vessel had but recently struck there and sank. There was no sign of a boat or floating wreckage near the scene, or anything to indicate a sea tragedy further than the presence of the sunken vessel.

Previous to this, however, when passing near Cape St. Francis he sighted a dory drifting at the will of the wind and tide. There was nothing on board not even an oar and whether there is any connection between the two it will hardly ever be known. So far as can be learned there are no vessels overdue at present though enquiries may be made at any time.—Sydney Record, Nov. 11th.

A Modern Miracle

He Had Eczema 25 Years and Doctors Said "No Cure."

Yet Zam-Buk Has Worked Complete Cure.

This is the experience of a man of high reputation, widely known in Montreal, and whose case can readily be investigated. Mr. T. M. Marsh, the gentleman referred to, lives at 101 Delormier Avenue, Montreal, and has lived there for years. For twenty-five years he has had eczema on his hands and wrists. The disease first started in red blotches, which itched, and when scratched became painful. Bad sores followed, which discharged, and the discharge spread the disease until his hands were one raw, painful mass of sores. This state of affairs continued for twenty-five years!

In that time four eminent medical men tried to cure him, and each gave up the case as hopeless. Naturally, Mr. Marsh tried remedies of all kinds, but he, also, at last gave it up. For two years he had to wear gloves day and night so terrible was the pain and itching when the air got to the sores.

Then came Zam-Buk! He tried it, just as he had tried hundreds of remedies before. But he soon found out that Zam-Buk was different. Within a few weeks there were distinct signs of benefit, and a little perseverance with this great herbal balm resulted in what he had given up all hope of—a complete cure! And the cure was no temporary cure. It was permanent. He was cured nearly four years ago. Interviewed the other day, Mr. Marsh said: "The cure which Zam-Buk worked has been absolutely permanent. From the day that I was cured to the present moment I have had no trace of eczema, and I feel sure it will never return."

If you suffer from any skin trouble, cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it with one cent stamp to pay return postage to Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfld. We will forward you by return a free trial box of Zam-Buk. All druggists and stores sell this famous remedy, 50c. box, or three for $1.25. Refuse harmful substitutes.

Street Row.

Last evening, four fellows, half seas over, were discussing the political situation on Duckworth Street and as the views of all did not agree, the matter was thrashed out with fists. A lively encounter was witnessed for several minutes. There were no policemen about, though citizens managed to separate the quartette after a while.

At yesterday's session of the City Council, Mayor Ellis presided. The Secretary of the Board of Works, wrote re boundary lights and connection of water pipes with George's pond main, and stated that the matter was still under consideration. Councilor Mully thought the delay in getting an answer was unwarranted neglect and suggested that the Council give a formal reply as to the action they would take in the matter.
J. Carew, of Bailey Street, asked permission to erect a porch. Referred to Engineer.
The Solicitor reported that he had taken action against one H. Winsor, who had made repairs to his house, without acquainting the Council. G. T. Phillips can make water and sewerage connections in Rocky Lane provided he complies with Council regulations.
Rev. E. R. Matthews wrote re insufficient supply of water for Cemetery School. Referred to Engineer.
Plans of houses submitted by R. Pellet, Toussaint Road, and J. Doe, were approved of.
Ordered that City Engineer hold consultation with Government Engineer re foundation work of Brownline's Bridge.
The Sanitary Supervisor's request for suits of clothes for his inspectors, was deferred.
The meeting then adjourned.

Notes From Badger.

Mr. T. Hanrahan, Supt. of R. C. Schools, arrived here by yesterday morning's express, and leaves tonight by express for Grand Falls. During his short visit he was the guest of Mr. J. D. Coleman.
A fire took place on Monday last at the home of Mr. A. Britt, the blaze was quickly extinguished owing to the efforts of the town people; but were it not for their timely assistance, it may have proved disastrous, as there was a strong gale blowing at the time.

Some new houses have been built here lately, and several others are at present being erected, notable among the latter being the new store of Mr. D. Bôjus, who intends starting business here.

Mr. D. Butt, who had been spending a month's vacation with his parents at Exploits, returned by Sunday's express. Mr. Butt is the popular clerk of the Badger stores.

We hear that foxes are plentiful in the country around Badger. Several valuable ones have been caught during the last two months.

The stork visited the home of Mr. N. Wall on Monday last, leaving a bouncing baby boy.

Mr. Ed. Coleman, who has been ill during the last four months, is greatly improved, and we are all glad to see him around again, also, that Mr. H. S. Crows who has been suffering from a bad arm, is on the mending hand.

A Rough Trip.

The S. S. Portia returned from the western route at eight o'clock last night, after one of the longest and roughest experienced for some time. Since leaving here on October 30th, rough weather was continuous. Pacific seas and heavy seas raged, and at several places on the coast the ship had to harbour in consequence. Last Sunday week the N. E. storm that caused some damage on the S. W. Coast was severely felt at sea. The Portia brought a full freight, and these passengers in saloon: — Mrs. Ring, J. P. Scott, Charles Way, P. O'Rourke, P. J. Butler and 44 in steerage. The ship is being discharged as quickly as possible and it is hoped to get her away again tonight.

Healthy and Unhealthy Lighting.

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not vilitate, nor does it purify. Hear what those eminent men have said on this subject:
"Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this, amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jameson B. Hurry.
"He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Dudley, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.
"I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days, was lighted by gas and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity, the latter being employed, with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state of little short of apoplexy.—Vivian E. Lewis, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—nov8,13

Daily Investment News
Universal Success of the Plan
On this side of the water the adoption of a system for making partial payments for securities is quite recent, although for years it has been well known in France and England.
It has met with instant success in the United States from the moment of its introduction, and has there swept broadcast over the country, solving the investment problem for thousands who otherwise never could have purchased securities.
Even in these conservative Maritime Provinces, where we have had the partial payment plan in operation during the past three months, the public has generally expressed its hearty approval—which approval, to a gratifying degree, has taken the concrete form of orders.
There's a little gray booklet, fully explaining the plan, which you may care to have. It's free.

Bishopric Wall Board.

BEATS LATHS AND PLASTER.

MADE TO LAST.

Bishopric Wall Board is made by imbedding kiln-dried dressed lath in hot Asphalt-Mastic, under a pressure of 500 lbs. to the square inch. The other side of the Asphalt-Mastic is surfaced with smooth, heavy sized cardboard.

COSTS LESS.

Bishopric Wall Board saves 75 per cent. of the labor cost and about a month's time in finishing walls and ceilings. With it there is none of that expense for repairs and re-decorating that you incur so often when plaster cracks or falls.

DRYER AND WARMER.

The layer of Asphalt-Mastic in which the laths are embedded is absolutely air-tight and damp-proof. It blocks all drafts, and keeps the inside of the house dry, warm and cosy.

RAT AND VERMIN PROOF.

These pests find it impossible to gnaw or bore through the tough, gummy Asphalt-Mastic.

EASILY DECORATED.

Bishopric Wall Board is surfaced with heavy sized cardboard, which forms the ideal surface for Wall Paper or Burlap. Artistic panneling adds to its attractiveness. THE ONLY WALL BOARD MADE WITH LATH. Laths are positively necessary to back up wall board and Bishopric is the only Wall Board that has them. They make it rigid and substantial and prevent it from working, cracking or pulling away at the joints.

INVESTIGATE.

Whether you intend to build or remodel, don't overlook this opportunity to get a better house—at lower cost—in less time—by using Bishopric Wall Board. Ask your dealer for information. Write or phone for sample and descriptive circulars to

GOOD ADVICE.

It is necessary to always have a bottle of good Brandy at hand.
What Brandy will you buy?
The medicinal Brandy "Sanator" is not a properly so-called medicine, but it has been selected from amongst the best known growths for their effective principles, and it is distilled so as to develop its tonic and digestive qualities. It is really the FAMILY BRANDY, which name the public has, for a long time, bestowed on it.
The celebrated French physician, DR. PHARZELLE, Inspector-in-chief of the Great Medical Services, says: "The medicinal Brandy "Sanator" is eminently an easy digestive drink, remarkable for its tonifying and reinvigorating properties."
Ask for Medicinal Brandy Sanator from your liquor dealer; he has it.

DIRECTIONS.

Against weakness and bad digestion: a liquor glass at each meal.
Against Cold, Influenza: take as a hot drink, viz: one ounce and a half of Brandy, one ounce of hot water, with a little sugar.
Against summer complaints: use with chopped ice, or cold water.

AS THE CAMEL
is indispensable to the traveller crossing the African deserts, so also is SUNLIGHT SOAP indispensable to a careful housewife. A Camel can go for several days without drinking, but a good housewife cannot afford to let a single day pass without putting SUNLIGHT SOAP to some use. The first duty of every housewife is to economise; the duty of SUNLIGHT SOAP is to help the housewife to economise. The daily use of SUNLIGHT SOAP is practical economy. It does the most washing in the shortest time, with least labour, and with no discomfort. Use a piece in your next wash, and you will be convinced as to its value.

Poetical Gems.
(FOR THE SCRAP BOOK.)

MOVEMENT AND ACTION THE LIFE OF NATURE.
By ceaseless action all that is subsists. Constant rotation of the unwearyed wheel. That Nature rides upon, maintains her health. Her beauty, her fertility. She dreads An instant's pause, and lives but while she moves. Its own revolvency upholds the World. Winds from all quarters agitate the air. And fit the limpid element for use. Else noxious; oceans, rivers, lakes, and streams, and the freshening impulse, and are cleansed. By restless undulation, even the oak Thrives by the rude concussion of the storm: He seems indeed indignant, and to feel The impression of the blast with proud disdain. Frowning, as if in his unconscious arm He held the thunder; but the monarch owes His firm stability to what he scoras More fixed below, the more disturb'd above. The low, by which all creatures else are bound. Blinds men, the lord of all. Himself derives No mean advantage from a kindred cause. From strenuous toil his hours of sweetest ease. The sedentary stretch their lazy length. When custom bids, but no refreshment find. For none they need; the languid eye. The cheek Deserted of its bloom, the flaccid, shrunk. And wither'd muscle, and the rapid soul. Reproach their owner with that love of rest. To which he forfeits even the rest he loves. Not such the alert and active. Measure life By its true worth, the comforts it affords. And their alone seems worthy of the name. Good health, and its associate in the most. Good temper; spirits prompt to undertake. And not soon spent, though in an arduous task. The power of fancy and strong thought are theirs: Even age itself seems privileged in them. With clear exemption from its own defects.

A sparkling eye beneath a wrinkled front The vetran shows, and, gracing a gray beard. With youthful smiles, descends towards the grave Sprightly, and old almost without decay. —Cowper.

THE PLAY PLACE OF EARLY DAYS.
Be it a weakness, it deserves some praise. We love the play-place of our early days. The scene is touching, and the heart is stone. That feels not at that sight, and feels at none. The wall on which we tried our graving skill. The very name we carv'd subsisting still. The bench on which we sat while deep employ'd. Though mangled, hack'd, and hew'd, not yet destroy'd; The little ones, unbutton'd, glowing hot. Playing our games, and on the very spot. As happy as we once to kneel and draw. The chalky ring, and knuckle down at law. To pitch the ball into the grounded hat. Or drive it devious with a dextrous pat. The pleasing spectacle at once excites. Such recollection of our own delights. That, viewing it, we seem almost to be again. Our innocent sweet simple years again. —Cowper.

THE PASSING OF ARTHUR.
And slowly answered Arthur from the barge: "The old order changeth, yielding place to new, And God fulfils himself in many ways, Lest one good custom should corrupt the world; Comfort thyself: what comfort is in me? I have lived my life, and that which I have done May lie within himself make pure! but thou If thou shouldst never see my face again. Pray for my soul. More things are wrought by prayer Than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice Rise like a fountain for me night and day.

For what are men better than sheep or goats That nourish a blind life within the brain, If, knowing God, they left not hands of prayer Both for themselves and those who call them friend? For so the whole round earth is every way Bound by gold chains about the feet of God." —Tennyson.

WHEN DUTY CALLS.
In an age of fops and toys, Wanting wisdom, void of right, Who shall nerve heroic boys To hazard all in Freedom's flight,— Break sharply off their jolly games, Forsake their comrades gay, And quit proud homes and youthful dames For famine, toil, and fray? Yet on the nimble air benign Speed nimbler messages. That wait the breath of grace divine To hearts in gloth and ease. So high is grandeur our dust, So near is God to man. When Duty whispers low, Thou must, The youth replies, I can. R. W. Emerson.

THE CHORISTER.
O sweet and dim the lights and shade Across the minster stealing. I heard the grand old organ played. The anthem upward pealing. One boy's sweet voice above the rest. I heard so clearly ringing. The angels must his dreams have blest. To teach him such sweet singing. His earnest eyes to Heaven were bent. With yearning pure and lowly; To follow where his singing went, And join the angels holy. No gentle mother's love had he, But God had comfort given. For he might sing on earth, and she Might hear her child from Heaven. —F. E. Weatherly.

A Blow.

"This life is full of shocks," said Paul. "A friend proves false you thought was true; And every day or two there are A lot of things that trouble you. The stock you buy proves worthless stuff. And disappointments line your brow. A promise fair turns out a bluff. And mother wants a slit skirt now."

"The sure thing that you bet upon— Runs next to last, and so it goes; You find your trusted clerk has gone With all your coin, where no one knows. From cloudless skies come thunder bolts. And out of peace springs up a row; This life is surely full of jolts. Your mother wants a slit skirt now."

"In life there's no security. There is no joy that we can hold; The calmest, gentlest Summer sea May suddenly be tempest-rolled. A merry song the robin sings. Then suddenly departs the bough; Strange changes every minute brings. Your mother wants a slit skirt now."

"We've lived together twenty years. And hand in hand we've trod life's lane; We've shared each other's smile and tears. And shared our pleasures and our pain. And here there comes the deepest cut. To which I've ever had to bow; I would have bet she wouldn't, but Your mother wants a slit-skirt now!"

Seeks Golden Loot in Island of Cocos.

Montreal, Nov. 8.—An expedition to the island of Cocos in the Pacific Ocean to search there for hidden treasure, a rumor which every line of romance is gathered, is being planned by Captain John Hern, of the Cascapedia, a gulf and river freighter which is now in Montreal. "There is enough gold" there to startle the world," is the description of the treasure as told by a Portuguese named Keating, who told the secret to Capt. Hern's uncle after being saved from drifting to sea. "My uncle, Capt. Nicholas Fitzgerald, of Harbor Grace, Nfld., found the man in the last stages of exhaustion in 1865. Between then and '68, the last time my uncle saw him, Keating told the secret and gave detailed directions for discovering the hiding place. When my uncle was dying seven years ago, he called me to his bedside and imparted the secret to me. I alone know the exact position and am only waiting to fit out a schooner and make for the island, which is 600 miles from Cape Horn.

Treasure in Gold Bullion.
The captain says the plunder, consisting of gold bullion, silver coins and other treasure, was obtained by the crew of a Peruvian man-of-war, who mutinied about 1840. They put into the island, and after taking their share of the plunder buried the rest. Later, ten of whom Keating was one, returned took a further share and then removed the remainder to a cave which was formed so as to be a wonderfully clever hiding place. When Keating told the secret he asked that no steps be taken to find the treasure until after his death and explained that the gold was dyed with the blood of many people who had been murdered for its possession. Several expeditions, one conducted by Keating's wife, have sought for the treasure, but none have had sufficiently explicit directions. The late Admiral Pallister of the British navy, conducted an expedition about ten years ago, but it was ill conducted and the men only searched for two days. With the exact number of places confided to him, Capt. Hern looks to find the cave and achieve richness without trouble.

NICKEL THEATRE. Special Week-End Programme!

LADY CLARE—A remarkable production by the Edison Co., enacting the late Lord Alfred Tennyson's beautiful poem. Lord Tennyson, it will be remembered, held the Laureateship of Great Britain longer than any other poet ever did, and the above poem is one of his best known and appreciated works. Mark McDermott and Miriam Nesbitt are featured.

BRAVE OLD BILLY—A seaside comedy, intensely amusing.

A CHILD'S PRAYER—A Lubin western subject, beautifully pathetic.

A BUSTY DAY IN THE JUNGLE—A splendid "Hunting" (?) comedy, portraying in a most entertaining manner the adventures of two "would-be" hunters.

A TIMELY RESCUE—A thrilling drama, featuring Arthur V. Johnson, showing many pitfalls in city life successfully evaded by a young country girl and the loyalty of a country boy.

Arthur Priestman Cameron, "Peculiar" Songs. Professor McCarthy at the Piano. Al. D. Fleming, Ballads. EXTRA BY POPULAR REQUEST.—On Saturday next at the Children's Matinee, the big feature, entitled "THE LADY OF THE LAKE," in 3 reels will be repeated.

S. H. PARSONS & SONS,
Photograph Studios, corner of Water and Prescott Streets, are open every night till nine o'clock, later by appointment. Photographs taken by our new Electric Lamp are equal in every respect to those taken in daylight. Orders for Miniatures, Water Colours and Enlargements for CHRISTMAS Presents should be placed as soon as possible. A good line of Mouldings in stock. We make a special feature of Framing Pictures.

Fashionable Furs for all occasions.

THERE is never a time during the approaching season when furs are not both becoming and necessary, and this season's furs far surpass those of any previous one, never before have we carried such a variety of beautiful furs in so many novel and fashionable styles. We have a brilliant display of Collars, Stoles, Throw-overs and Mulls either in sets or Separate, in Mink, Marten, Sable, Squirrel and other furs. These make a fine selection from which to choose gifts for the coming Christmas Season. The furs we are displaying this year are doubtless the finest selection ever shown in the City and we recommend you to call and see them before making any definite Choice elsewhere.

Sorry She Spoke.

A few days ago two young ladies hailed a bus, entered, and found only standing room. One of them whispered to her companion: "I am going to get a seat from one of those men; just watch!" She selected a sedate gentleman, who bore the general appearance of a married man. She sailed up to him and thus opened fire: "My dear Mr. Smith, how delighted I am to see you; you are almost a stranger. Will I accept your seat? Well, I do feel tired, I admit. Thank you, so much!" The sedate gentleman, a total stranger, of course, looked, listened, then quietly arose and gave her his seat, saying: "Sit down, Mary, my girl; don't often see you on a washing day; you must feel tired, I'm sure; how's your mattress?" The young lady got her seat and lost her vivacity.
