CHAPTER XXXVIII.
RETRIBUTION.

Doris screened her face with her hands.

"Why does not he—"
She stopped.

"Why doesn't he come forward and beg for forgiveness and ask you to become his little Doris again and Mrs. Marquise?" cried Lady Despard, drily. "Because he is as proud as you are, my dear. What! Ask a girl as rich as a female Cressus to be his wife when he has only a few paltry thousands a year; ask the girl who would scarcely speak a word to him when he came to wish her good-bye, perhaps for the last time. Why, isn't he a Stoyle, too, and haven't all of you got, and haven't all of you always had, the pride and stiff-neckedness of the dev—ahem!—the evil one? My dear, I am the lastest soul in London, and I've registered a vow that I'll never get excited and warm over anything; but really, when I think of you spending your days and nights in hungering for him—"

"Oh!" murmured Doris, and she glided to her and hid her face on her shoulder.

"So you do. Do you think I can't hear you sighing long after you ought to be asleep, you obstinate and abandoned girl?" retorted Lady Despard. "Doris, my dear, if I were only old enough, or you were young enough, it would be my pleasing duty to shut you up in your room on bread and water till you came to your senses and consented to hide your silly little head against his shirt-front, spilling his clothes instead of mine. My dear, would you mind covering my dress with your pocket-handkerchief if you are crying."

"I'm not crying," said Doris, indignantly, and giving her a little push, but still hiding her face. "When—when did you hear from him last?" she asked, in a whisper.

"Just two months ago," replied Lady Despard, her voice growing suddenly serious. "You were too proud to ask for the news, or I would have told you. He was well then, but was going up the country after those miserable De-coys—Dacotts, or whatever they're called, and from what I've read in the papers I'm afraid—"

Doris's hand tightened on her shoulder spasmodically.

"Don't pinch me, my dear. I didn't send him there. Catch me! I only wish he'd ask me to be his wife. I'd have married either of the two men you sent to Jericho; but there's the way with the gods; they always show-er their gifts on the unworthy and un-grateful, and deserving people can go starving."

"I wish he had," murmured Doris; "you would both have been happy then."

"No, you don't wish anything of the kind," retorted Lady Despard, in-dolently. "You would be ready to tear my eyes out if there had ever been the slightest chance of such a thing. Oh, you can't delude me into thinking you the gentle dove most people imagine you, you little scorpion."

"And that is all you know about—about him?" said Doris, timidly.

"Nearly all. I wish I knew more. I did mention the matter to his grace at the reception the other night, and he looked rather grim and solemn, as if the whole expedition was sentenced—No, no, Doris, I don't mean that!" she added, hastily, as Doris's hand relaxed its hold, and she drew herself up, white and shuddering. "No, it isn't so bad as that; but—but—Well—Ah! my dear, you ought not to have let him go."

Doris threw herself down again. "It was not my fault; if—if he had said—if he had asked—"

"Give me no ifs!" retorted Lady Despard. "My dear child, no man could have asked you anything while you treated him as you treated Lord Cecil after the marquis's death. You were not a live, breathing woman, but a marble effigy, a block of ice, and you froze him—you froze him—and sent him to Burmah to thaw himself. Now, I'm not going to talk any more about him. Get on your habit, and let us go for a ride. Thank Heaven, I love no man, and no man loves me. Heighho!"

The footman brought in the evening papers as she spoke, and she took one and glanced at it languidly; then sud-denly she sat up and uttered a low cry.

Doris, who had gone to the door, but who had not left the room, went back to her swiftly.

"What is the matter?" she asked.

Lady Despard closed the papers. "I—thought you had gone," she said.

"Nothing. The pins and needles in my feet—"

"There is something in that paper," said Doris, in her low voice, her eyes fixed on it. "Tell me what it is!"

Lady Despard hesitated a moment, then she shrugged her shoulders.

"Well, you'd buy one and see for yourself, so I may as well show it to you; but—but don't imagine the worst at once."

She handed her the paper, and pointed to a letter from the seat of war.

In a few—but, alas! how pregnant!—words the correspondent told the story of the disaster which had befallen a detachment sent into the interior. Surrounded and outnumbered by the enemy, savages in nothing more than in their mode of conducting warfare, the handful of English soldiers had fallen, as so many thousands of their fellows in the glorious years of the past have done, fighting to the last. There were only the few details which can be crammed into a column of newspaper type; but one line stabbed Doris to the heart.

"I am sorry to say that an aide-de-camp—the Marquis of Stoyle, better known as Lord Cecil—accompanied the detachment. Throughout the cam-paign Lord Cecil has distinguished himself by his bravery and devotion to duty, and by his genial and modest disposition had won the hearts of both officers and men. If, as there is too much reason to fear, his lordship has fallen with his ill-fated comrades, his loss will be sorely felt, and he can-

For Her Sake;

The Murder in Furness Wood.

CHAPTER IV.

A dinner party at Fresham Park was always a great success. Sir Grantley and Lady Fresham had but one thought—the comfort of their guests. There was no formality in the draw-ingroom when dinner was over. There were music and cards for those who preferred such amusements, and the long French windows were opened wide for those who chose to step out and enjoy the peaceful beauty of the moonlit garden.

Lady Scarsdale, who was in one of her most amiable moods, looked very handsome and stately as she stood against the long, open window, the light flashing on her diamonds and on her rich, gleaming dress.

When the gentlemen entered the room, with a practiced turn of the head she looked for Peter Cameron. An almost imperceptible smile brought him to her side.

"You have been talking politics," she said, in her blindest manner. "Whenever gentlemen leave the din-ner-table looking very much in earnest and very determined, I know they have been talking politics. May I ask whether you are Liberal or Conserva-tive?"

"I am an ardent Liberal," he replied.

"And I am a Conservative," she re-joined, laughingly. "We must agree to differ. How beautiful the moon is to-night! Mr. Cameron, I should very much like to speak to you for a few minutes, if you are disengaged."

"You do me great honor," said Mr. Cameron, with the politest bow he could make.

"We will walk round the lawn," said Lady Scarsdale, with a smile.

Mr. Cameron, while just a little sur-prised, was delighted, for great ladies, as a rule, had not taken much notice of him. How beautiful this woman looked, he thought, her gems flashing in the moonlight, her eyes bright as her diamonds! What a delicate frag-rance came from the flowers she carried! As he looked at her he thought of the gentle fair-haired woman so long dead. How many years was it since she had clung to his arm in the white moonlight! But what a different world, what novel surroundings were here! His gentle wife would have been quite out of place amid so much splendor and wealth.

Lady Scarsdale wondered a little at the dreamy expression of her compan-ion's honest face.

"I hope," she said, gently, "that you will not think me intrusive, but I was struck not so much by what you said as by the tone of your voice when you were alluding to the Duchess of Stone. If you will forgive me, I should like to speak to you about the matter. I take the greatest interest in you and—need I add—your beautiful daughter."

"You are very kind, Lady Scarsdale," he replied, somewhat astonished at the announcement of this fashionable lady.

"I am quite sure," she said, "that there has been some mistake—that the Duchess would never have passed over your daughter in her invitations if she had seen her."

"I have been told," he answered, somewhat stiffly, "that the Duke and Duchess, in dispensing their hospital-ity, draw the line rather rigidly. I am not ashamed of my origin, Lady Scars-dale, I assure you."

Lady Scarsdale laughed.

"There are grades and grades," she said. "I repeat that I am quite sure there has been a mistake, for, if the Duchess had ever seen Miss Cameron, she would—she must admire her. You must allow me to remedy the mistake by introducing your daughter and yourself to the Duchess of Stone when she comes to Stonedale."

"You are very kind to think of such a thing," he replied, half hesitating; "but—"

"I understand," she interrupted—"you have scruples. But you need have none. The Duchess is a very noble woman, and always ready to admit when she has made a mistake. Your daughter would grace any position. You see, Mr. Cameron, I understand perfectly the science of social politics. I know and realize the fact that, beautiful and wealthy as your daugh-ter is, unless she is known to the Duke and Duchess, she is excluded from the inner circle. The entree to Stonedale is, in fact, the entree to the upper cir-cles in this country at least, and cer-tainly in town also. The Duchess of Stone is very popular in town; she is also a great favorite with royalty. Of course it is of the utmost importance to your daughter—I see that plainly."

"You are very good to take so deep an interest in us," replied Mr. Cam-eron. "As regards myself, I feel nothing but a sense of annoyance; for my daughter, exclusion from Stonedale means much more. I do not like to see the pained expression on her face when she hears, as she does contin-ually, of the gayeties there, to which all her friends are invited; but she is so brave and true that she comes to me always with a smiling face, and says, 'Never mind, father, you are worth all the dukes and duchesses in the world.' I must say it would be a great satis-faction to me to see her in what I must call her right place. You are so kind and so sensible, my dear Lady Scars-dale, that it is a pleasure to me to talk with you. I consider it a great ad-vantage to be able to hear your opin-ion on the matter; and I am sure you will realize the awkward position in which this exclusion places me. For instance," he continued, "only a few weeks since I was at a great political meeting at Edenwood, and, for a time, I saw and felt that I was the leading man present. The people all looked up to me; my words carried weight I suppose you will laugh at me, Lady Scarsdale, but I must own that I felt a sensation of pride when I heard peo-ple say, 'That is Mr. Cameron, of Fer-ness, one of the richest men in Eng-land, a man of mark.'"

ELECTIONS NEXT MONTH.
TORONTO, Sept. 23.
An official announcement that the Provincial General elections will be held on Monday, October 20th, at same date as the vote on the refer-endum, was made this afternoon by Sir William Hearst, Premier of the Province of Ontario. Nominations will be held the previous Monday, October 13th. The date of the elec-tions was generally anticipated, but it was not till after a meeting of the cabinet this afternoon that the an-nouncement was made.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.
The Republicans took actual con-trol of the Senate to-day. By a three vote margin, the first after the referen-dum, was made this afternoon by the League of Nations Covenant, came of a motion by Chairman Lodge, of the Foreign Relations Committee, to postpone for one week consideration of some forty odd amendments, which would relieve the United States from service on commissions created under the Treaty. The formal motion was a fixed date, was put before the Sen-ate, after the Vice President had sanc-tioned a point of order by Senator Hitchcock, leader of the Adminis-tration forces for ratification against a motion for indefinite consideration and it was reported on and was ac-cepted.

THE STRIKE SITUATION.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 24. Interest in the National Steel strike which has been in progress since last Monday, centres to-day in meeting the call of a National Committee for organizing the iron and steel workers. Those in close touch with the strike are of the opinion that the session called by William E. Foster, Secy. Treasurer of the committee, will bring out important facts relating to the walkout of thousands of workers, who heeded the call of their Unions. Foster declares that the committee will not consider peace plans, but will discuss the advisability of extending the strike to include the seamen on the Great Lakes, carrier vessels and union trainmen. According to the Secy. the union is prepared for a long struggle, and has declared that workers will fight to the bitter end. The strike situation in Pittsburg district remains practically unchanged, with employers and union leaders issuing conflicting statements, as to the number of men involved in the walkout.

A. Squires than the repetition in his writings and speeches of the comparison between himself in the present emergency and those who went from Newfoundland to do or die.

What may I ask, of the champion of our fighting forces or to compare his indignant efforts to secure place and pay for himself with the magnificent services of those who went overseas in the present emergency and those who went from Newfoundland to do or die.

Surely, Sir, it is not too much to say that if the rest of the young men of the country did no more for it in the trying days of the great war than Mr. Squires did, Newfoundland would be far from enjoying the glorious reputation she possesses throughout the length and breadth of the Empire to-day.

Yours truly,

A Beautiful Life.

Mr. and Mrs. Antoni Michael of this town have much reason to be happy and feel proud of the beautiful career of their daughter Philomena (in religion Sister Mary Lillian) of Clinton, Iowa. Sister Mary Lillian received her early education at St. Patrick's and the Mercy Convent, and after a brilliant scholastic career of more than fifteen years in those institutions she decided to devote her young life to God and consecrated by entering the religious order at Mount St. Clair Academy at Clinton, Iowa, and on one of the happiest days of her life, Aug. 15th, 1919, she received the Black Veil. Always a most amiable, God fearing, religious child, she commanded the respect of all who knew her, and her parents to-day are indeed grateful to Him, who rules all our destinies, that he should have inspired and helped this good child to labour earnestly in his vineyard.

It is one of earth's greatest consolations to parents—the love of dutiful children—and in Sister Mary Lillian is exemplified all that is good in womanhood to a very great extent. Her mother and her father were both of the good sisters' schools is very strong. We congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Antoni Michael of the distinguished career of their beautiful daughter. Com. sept 17

Wednesday, September 24, 1919.

PROSPEROUS NEWFOUNDLAND.

Were we in that period of the year familiarly known as the dog-days, we might be in a position to understand exactly what has gone wrong with our brethren of the Opposition Press, but when the days, and more particularly, the nights have cooled off, we confess that we are puzzled in our efforts to comprehend their vicious and snarling attacks at the heels of their political opponents. We are sorry that our contemporaries, like many others who talk and write at random, never remembering exactly what they said on previous occasions, or seeming to have any realization of the patent fact that opprobrious utterances, directed against others are apt to recoil upon themselves.

It may be that since the Coaker-Squires-Campbell agreement has been entered into, the Opposition Press must attack somebody, and of course the Government is fair game for all opponents who desire to go spinning. Mr. Coaker has exhausted his vocabulary of abuse and slander against Dr. Mossdell of the Star and Mr. Squires, the leader of the Opposition by assumption, and these gentlemen, not to be outdone, have in turn written the biography of Mr. Coaker in language more truthful than poetic. According to the pen pictures of each one of them, which have been appearing in the Star and Advocate for some time past, no person will be credible enough to believe that any thinking man would trust these gentry with the management of public affairs.

If Mr. Coaker is all that Dr. Mossdell and Mr. Squires said about him only a short time ago, and likewise if all that Mr. Squires and the Doctor said of Mr. Coaker is true, and we have their own words for it that it is, then Heaven help the people of Newfoundland if they hand over the interests of the dominion to the control of the two factions of the Opposition, who will remain united only so long as they can get a grip on the Public Treasury, and legislate upon all matters to their own satisfaction and benefit. So long as they can divide the spoil, they will agree, but ere they are together for three months, the unquiet spirit and domineering instinct of Mr. Coaker will break out, and Mr. Squires, Doctor Campbell, et al: will be forcibly compelled to take back seats. Following that the flood-gates of slander and vituperation will be flung wide and the people will be handed out a second edition of the lives and works of the political saints of the Liberal Reform Party.

It is a bright bit of comedy to witness the billing and cooing of the erstwhile bitter adversaries, Messrs. Squires and Coaker. How carefully they endeavour to hide all appearance of their working in double harness in their futile attempt to defeat the Government, and how much more carefully they guard the secret as to the source from whence comes the sinews of war to finance their campaign. (But at present, that's another story). The bitter and violent attacks upon the business, social, financial and personal standing of individual members of the Government, are all made with but one object in view—to cover up the tracks of the attackers, as in their mind they imagine that the ejection of such scurrility and venom, will divert the minds of the people from asking the question, Where does the L.R.P. Campaign Fund come from?

Never before in the history of Newfoundland has there been a graver necessity for our very best men to be returned to the House of Assembly. The dominion requires men of intellect, business tact, financial ability and experience to conduct its public affairs, and more so now that a new era in our history is about to be opened. There are many matters of vital importance to come before the next session of the Legislature, matters which may well mean the making or breaking of the Colony. Is it possible then, in view of such weighty questions that any sane person will be satisfied to entrust the future destinies of Newfoundland into the hands of the amateurs and vaudeville politicians, who are at present rehearsing the role they will be obliged to play under the directing mind and iron fist of their manager and proprietor, Mr. William F. Coaker.

Never before in our history has Newfoundland been so prosperous. Our mechanics, laborers, fishermen and all the working classes generally, are thoroughly independent, and the Government by its tact, ability and knowledge of financial conditions has conquered all difficulties and overcome all obstacles in the way of advancement, and turned that which at one time was thought to be the impossible, into complete and lasting success. Abuse of individuals will not induce wealth to our shores, nor will it elevate the mind of the rising generation. If the Opposition desire to show genuine patriotism, let them submit their policy to the people. Not a policy of political emergency that will only serve the purpose of being used as a catch-cry, but a sound, broad and capable policy that will benefit all sorts and conditions of men. But Mr. Squires dare not adopt or promulgate such a policy, because he knows full well that it would not meet with the approval of Mr. Coaker, whose sole ambition it is to grasp the Government and maintain absolute power, and whose one desire is to rule the country with all the autocracy and tyranny of a Kaiser or a Carranza. Both Mr. Squires and Dr. Campbell are but pawns in the hands of the Dictator, to be moved about the political chessboard at his will and pleasure, and when finished with to be cast aside utterly.

Newfoundlanders will refuse any longer to be gulled by the partisan cries of the newest combination—the unholy alliance. They know where they are best off, and that is with the present Government. Year after year the dominion revenues have increased, and a substantial balance stands to its credit, for the carrying out of inaugurating of enterprises giving remunerative employment to the people. Well may it be said that there never was a country with so many natural resources flung broadcast before so limited a population. Forests of boundless extent—a virgin soil to be measured by thousands of miles—the richest and most abundant fisheries in the world—mines, the value of which no man can estimate, and vast water power running to waste, ready and waiting to be harnessed to machinery, furnishing thus the driving power for numerous industries.

Will Newfoundland exchange the present unexampled state of prosperity for the promised possibilities of the Squires-Coaker amalgamation, whose election to power would spell blue ruin and a return to stagnancy in every avenue of trade, commerce and industry? We think not.

Last Night's Meeting.

The gigantic committee meeting of the Liberal Progressive Party held last night, proved strong testimony that St. John's West has not gone back on either its ideals or its friends. The launching of the Government campaign was performed under the most favorable auspices, and among those who were present enthusiasm ran high and the spontaneous applause which greeted the various speakers was the outpouring of hearts strong in Liberal-Progressive sympathy. The name selected by the meeting—Liberal Progressive—is one which will appeal to all old-time Liberals. Liberal and Progressive have been keynotes of the Government led by Sir Michael Cashin, and progress has been demonstrated by the many acts of the administration. With a popular mandate that progress will be continued and accelerated and the slogan adopted last night "CASHIN WILL COME BACK" rings true and is no mere catch-cry but a rallying signal for all true Newfoundlanders who desire the advancement of their native land, as well as for those who have made it their home by adoption. The policy of the Government is Liberal and Progressive. The ideals of all previous political parties have been preserved in the Liberal-Progressive Party, and success will crown their appeal to the electors, so surely as the sun rises in the east.

Pointers.

- The Liberal-Progressive Party.
- The name that wins.
- Cashin will come back.
- Clean hands?
- And Five Thousand Dollars?
- Coaker-Squires-Campbell. Come and Share the Cash.
- Last night's meeting was a hummer.
- And the old-time and young Liberals were there in force.
- St. John's West may well be proud of the men it has endorsed for the Liberal Progressive ticket.
- Bennett's address was a splendid effort, and the thunderous applause showed that the voters of St. John's West will back up their enthusiasm with solid and unqualified support.
- One of Squires' new supporters, speaking of him a while ago said, "Squires is not generally known, and where he is known—well—the least said is the soonest mended."

CASHIN WILL COME BACK.

Hon. D. A. Ryan has gone to Trinity by the Prospero on business. Dr. Jno. Murphy, surgeon, has assumed Dr. Keegan's duties at the Hospital, while the latter is on his vacation. Among the passengers who arrived by S.S. Susu was Mr. J. Willis, who has been home to Fogo to see his people before going to Canada. He has been studying Navigation at Professor F. J. By Sir Edward

There perhaps never was a time in the political history of St. John's West, when more enthusiasm prevailed at a meeting than was shown in the T. A. Armoury last night, when a packed hall greeted the arrival of Hon. J. R. Bennett, Messrs. J. J. Mulhally and J. T. Martin, the Government candidates for the district. Sir Michael Cashin, the Prime Minister, was greeted with such a roar of welcome that it made the building vibrate. The sentiment of the meeting was solid and if any opponents of the Government were present, they were certainly convinced that opposition to the popular candidate is idle and futile. The meeting was entirely representative in every respect, comprising business men, tradesmen, clerks, laborers and all other classes who work with their hands. These came to the meeting pledged to defeat the Squires-Coaker combination, and to prevent it from even gaining a hand-hold of the affairs of the country. The old Liberals were present in strength. Men who had supported the late Sir Wm. Whiteway and Sir Robert Bond, were present in force, and the members of former committees of Hon. J. R. Bennett were there for a similar purpose, all unanimous in their loyalty to the Liberal Progressive Party, and all animated by the one determination, viz., the election of Hon. J. R. Bennett and his colleagues Messrs. Mulhally and Martin, as the representatives of the present Administration. At no time during the proceedings was there one word of abuse or personalities uttered regarding the Squires-Coaker candidates, and if their names were mentioned at all, it was in the most respectful way, but we do not remember hearing either one of them being referred to, excepting as "the Opposition candidates" only. The general trend of the meeting was toward clean politics and fair criticism, and no man present desired anything but clear treatment of men and subjects. Nor was any disappointed.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the meeting was called to order by Hon. J. R. Bennett, who asked that a chairman and secretary be appointed. Mr. Mark Pike, of Steer Bros., in a brief speech, moved that Mr. Joseph Fitzgibbon of Fitzgibbon & Co. be appointed, which was seconded by Mr. Henry H. Wonderful Demonstration at Meeting Last Night in T. A. There perhaps never was a time in the political history of St. John's West, when more enthusiasm prevailed at a meeting than was shown in the T. A. Armory last night, when a packed hall greeted the arrival of Hon. J. R. Bennett, Messrs. J. J. Mullally and J. T. Martin, the Government candidates for the district. Sir Michael Cashin, the Prime Minister, was greeted with such a roar of welcome that it made the building vibrate. The sentiment of the meeting was solid and if any opponents of the Government were present, they were certainly convinced that opposition to the popular candidates is idle and futile. The meeting was entirely representative in every respect, comprising business men, tradesmen, clerks, laborers and all other classes who work with their hands. These came to the meeting pledged to defeat the Squires-Coaker combination, and to prevent it from even gaining a hand-hold of the affairs of the country. The old Liberals were present in strength. Men who had supported the late Sir Wm. Whiteway and Sir Robert Bond, were present in force, and the members of former committees of Hon. J. R. Bennett were there for a similar purpose, all unanimous in their loyalty to the Liberal Progressive Party, and all animated by the one determination, viz., the election of Hon. J. R. Bennett and his colleagues Messrs. Mullally and Martin, as the representatives of the present Administration. At no time during the proceedings was there one word of abuse or personalities uttered regarding the Squires-Coaker candidates, and if their names were mentioned at all, it was in the most respectful way, but we do not remember hearing either one of them being referred to as "candidates" only. The general trend of the meeting was toward clean politics and fair criticism, and no man present desired anything but clear treatment of men and subjects. Nor was any disappointed. Shortly after 8 o'clock the meeting was called to order by Hon. J. R. Bennett, who asked that a chairman and secretary be appointed. Mr. Mark Pike, of Steer Bros., in a brief speech, moved that Mr. Joseph Fitzgibbon of Fitzgibbon & Co. be appointed, which was seconded by Mr. Henry H. Vaughan, one of the oldest and most respected voters in St. John's West, and who sent five sons to the war, two of whom made the supreme sacrifice and one was a prisoner present time. In 1917, when not a ton of salt was at the disposal of the fishermen, and when it was almost impossible to get a ton of coal delivered in the Island, or a barrel of flour, or anything else for that matter, a Coalition Govt. was formed, into which the Coaker element was taken. All our local shipping had been disposed of to the Russians for use in the White Sea, and our case was practically hopeless. After negotiations with the British Government, who would not touch individual enterprise, steamers were obtained, and what threatened to be a serious matter was overcome. Few knew at the time what stood in our way, and the only solution was to form a united front, and consequently came the coalition. Dealing with the matter of our soldiers and sailors, Hon. Mr. Bennett gave a complete answer to his vilifiers. "The blossom and pride of our country went forth," he said, "to battle for right against might as we are doing to-day. Many of them sleep in Gallipoli, France and Flanders, and beneath the waters of the North Sea, but all that I could do for the soldiers and sailors and their dependents I have done. I fear no man in this respect. For the returned soldiers and sailors I have attempted to do the best possible, and we hope to go a little further. There is the aged father or mother who have lost their son, who have not looked for any assistance, but were waiting for their boy to be a help to them in their old age. These must be attended to, and I have the authority of the Prime Minister and the Government to say that they will be attended to. Many cases of returned men are not yet adjusted, but every case will be considered, and we hope to satisfy every soldier and sailor and parent in due course." Continuing, Hon. Mr. Bennett referred to Premier Cashin and his work since he became Prime Minister, and for the last eleven years as Minister of Finance. He was the son of a fisherman, and from the fishing boat to Premier-ship; and if any man in Newfoundland had the interests of the fishermen and workmen at heart it was Sir Michael Cashin. A political clique made up of factions "too numerous to mention" were masquerading under the title of the "Liberal-Reform Party," who had as much right to assume the name "Liberal" as the Bolshevik. They had neither platform nor programme, but only a policy of abuse and vilification. At this juncture a motion was made to name the Government "The Liberal-Progressive Party," which was carried amidst great enthusiasm. "And," said Mr. Bennett, "if the dead of St. John's West could see the spectacle of the Squires-Coaker or combine calling themselves "Liberals," their rest would be broken and they would turn over in their graves." Touching on the High Cost of Living Commission, Hon. Mr. Bennett stated that he had written the Labor Candidates on behalf of the Government to nominate a man to act for them on this important Commission. It was the intention of the Government to have a man who knew how to get at the root of this evil to act on the Commission. The housing problem was another matter dealt with by Mr. Bennett in full sympathy with the work done by Hon. Mr. Anderson, but thought of housing of the people should become a national affair as in England and the Dominions. It was useless to be building hospitals and sanatoriums if the cause that led to the need of such was not eradicated. This was a matter that should be dealt with, and he was prepared to put forward all his efforts to bring reform about, whether it came from the leader of the Opposition or the Government. Another matter under consideration by the Government was the establishment of a Labor Bureau. For more than a year he had been giving the matter consideration, and he felt that the time was opportune that a Bureau be appointed to deal with any labor troubles that might arise, forthwith, instead of having strikes, at a loss to the workers and the community. Other matters dealing with local affairs were touched on, but the meeting being only called to form a Committee, Mr. Bennett announced that he would deal fully with the whole political situation at a public meeting to be held during next week in the Casino Theatre. Mr. J. J. Mullally, whose candidature was so heartily endorsed, followed Mr. Bennett. Mr. Mullally made an earnest appeal to the Committee to support the cause of honest government as against the attempt of a mixed crew who were trying, through piratical means to get aboard the ship of state. Some objections had been raised against him by the Opposition press that he was not a West Ender and had no right to be nominated on the West End ticket. For thirty odd years he had worked in the West End and conducted business there and had paid out more money in labor than his opponents ever could or ever would. It was not his desire or intention to start a campaign of vulgar innuendo as had characterized the opening meeting of the Squires-Coaker candidates, but in the meantime he wished to serve timely notice on his opponents that he was ready and prepared to pay them back in their own coin, with interest if they persisted. He was into the fight from now until polling day, and he looked for a gentlemanly contest. Low, cheap personalities always had their rebound, and the intelligent voters of St. John's West wanted only straight, honest facts and not "little stuff" that some of his opponents were trying to fool the people with. He was prepared to stand or fall on the policy of the Government, and he asked the Committee to vote solidly for the candidates of the Liberal-Progressive Party. The meeting being only called for the purpose of selecting a Committee, he would not address it at length, but at the public meeting to be held at an early date he would deal more fully with matters calling for attention. Mr. J. T. Martin, taking the floor, was given a great ovation. As with Mr. Mullally he did not wish to take up the time of the Committee at any length, but asked to be put on record as supporting the Liberal-Progressive Party against the Squires-Coaker combine. Mr. Martin, whose name was referred to the housing problem and to the great need for improving present conditions. He was prepared to support the workmen's interests and would devote all his time in their behalf after the ballots were counted, which he was ready to say would give a great big majority for Bennett, Mullally and Martin. He had been among the people and had learned their sentiments. The Squires-Coaker outfit was not wanted in St. John's West, any more than it was in any other part of the country. They had no policy, they were only a scratch team taken from here, there and anywhere, and a good many of them were only going to districts to spend their vacations. Mr. Martin in conclusion said, Bennett, Mullally and Martin were in the fight to win, and their majority would be so great over the Squires-Coaker trio that the latter would not know where they got off. Hon. Sir M. P. Cashin was unanimously called by the Committee to make an address, and spoke for more than half an hour. He reviewed the financial conditions of the Colony declared up to the present time, and interestingly pointed out the progress we had made since the dark days of 1914. It was a story that did credit to the man who told it, and the great resources of our Island Home. After our entrance into the world war in response to the call from the Mother Land, borrowing abroad had to be resorted to. Our first help came from England, and then loans were floated in the U. S. When these were spent it was thought our finances for continuing the war were at an end, but such was not so. Other loans were obtained, our indebtedness of the earlier borrowings wiped out, and we were still able to carry on. Last year when all obligations were met, there was a surplus of over $2,100,000. Sir Michael said he would likely be accused of piling on taxes to get this surplus, but he would like to tell the meeting that even more than $1,000,000 of this amount were paid by those along Water Street and other places in the profits tax collections. A great deal had been said as to the policy of the Government, and himself personally. He wished it to be distinctly understood that he was Prime Minister through force of circumstances. It was not of his own personal desire; he never sought the position. But when the ship of state was drifting to destruction he would not show the white feather, and took upon himself a request the task of saying Newfoundland from ultimate ruin. For 27 years he had sat in the House of Assembly and during that time some 75 of its members had passed away. He had been elected by the voters of Ferryland in 1892 as a Liberal, and he had never changed. Over matters which affecting his district he had separated from Sir Robert Bond, but he had never changed his policy. When the Coalition Government was formed he joined it to help along war work and keep the country from suffering in food shortages and depression that

What the Advocate and Star Once Thought of Each Other.

"Orlick" in The Advocate, (Extract from the Star, May April 1, 1918.) 24, 1919.)

The Star is well aware that the F.P.U. is inimical to its owner, Mr. Squires, and knows that if its owner is to obtain control of the Government, the confidence of the fishermen must be secured. And as the large majority of fishermen are members of the F.P.U., the best way of obtaining their support is to destroy their Union, which possesses their confidence. For its master's personal aggrandizement, the Star has deliberately set about to deprive the fishermen of their independence and to be the cause of a big financial loss to the fishermen, by destroying the companies in which they have invested their money. That is the paper that asserts that publicity will be given to all public affairs, so far as it is possible for the Star to do so. We may be sure that the Star will carry out this policy--so long as it will result in political capital being made for its owner, Mr. Squires. And this is the same Star which is independent and will serve the people. What do you think of it, fishermen? Squires' control of the Government will mean the destruction of the F. P. U.

The opposition papers, and particularly The STAR have been called "destructionists" by The Advocate. Readers of the Coaker organ have been told that this paper and those associated with it are enemies of the people; that we labor to kill Mr. Coaker politically and to bring destruction upon the union. As far as the anti-Coaker charge is concerned, The STAR admits the correctness of the indictment. We have no sympathy with nor are we prepared to display the least consideration for the Wordy President and the methods he employs to maintain a grip on political power in this country. The STAR regards Coakerism as being as unlovely, as undesirable and as destructive of the interests of the common people as it does Bolshevism. There can be little room for doubt as to the unbalanced, socialistic tendencies of Mr. Coaker. He has filled to the brim the political cauldron with abuse, with misrepresentation, with libel and with injustice; to this witches' brew he has added impossible promises and pledges; he has flavored the whole with suspicion of and with prejudice against all that makes for law and for order in the country, and the result cannot be otherwise than such a regime of disorder, of injustice and of sectionalism, as characterises the administration of the Russia of to-day.

UNION MEN!

Note particularly and closely the concluding words of Orlick in the above extract: SQUIRES' CONTROL OF THE GOVERNMENT WILL MEAN THE DESTRUCTION OF THE F. P. U. After this Can You Conscientiously Vote for Squires or your Apostate leader---Coaker?

have shook the whole Empire. This was the coalition so far as he was concerned. Eighteen months ago while he was abroad, the Coaker element made an effort to throw me out of their jobs who had been faithful servants of the public for many years, but he told Premier Lloyd if such action was taken he, also, was going out. In his opinion every man in the public service had a right to vote as he liked and their places should not be taken by any section or institution because they had assumed political control. When the armistice was signed Premier Lloyd of the Coalition Government was sent to England and preparations were made for a fall or spring election. He was prepared to stand by the Coalition Government, but he soon learned that certain cliques were making suggestions to Premier Lloyd. He also suggested that the Coaker clique had decided that as soon as he (Cashin) had put through Supply Premier Lloyd and Coaker would offer a policy to the Coalition members and if the People's Party representatives did not accept it they would be told to walk to the other side of the House. The Assembly would then be closed and an election held at the whim or wish of Mr. Coaker. He (Sir Michael Cashin) then told Lloyd he would not put Supply through because of this contemplated treachery, and moved a vote of want of confidence in the Government, which was seconded by Premier Lloyd himself. The hour was growing too late for Sir Michael to continue further, but he informed the Committee that at the first public meeting to be held next week, he would fully discuss these matters and also offer the manifesto of his Government for consideration. Mr. Bennett before the meeting closed, intimated that Mr. Levi Chafe, Chairman of the 1918 Committee, who was unavoidably absent, had pledged him his support, which resulted in Mr. Chafe being elected Chairman. The meeting closed with the National Anthem and cheering loud and long for the Liberal-Progressive Party, Sir Michael Cashin and Bennett, Mullally and Martin. A dash of bright embroidery is often the only ornament on the soberhued hats for winter.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

IN THE MIDDLE OF THE NIGHT.

I don't suppose there is an adult living in the civilized part of the globe (I don't know whether uncivilized people worry or not), who hasn't lain awake in the night trying to decide how to face some situation or to solve some problem.

And I don't suppose there is a person in the same portion of the earth's surface who doesn't know perfectly well what a doubly foolish thing that is to do.

The Sure Road To Wakefulness.
I say doubly because, in the first place, letting one's mind dwell on problems is the surest road to prolonged wakefulness at a time when one should be sleeping.

And secondly, because all problems and difficult situations take an entirely different face in the middle of the night.

It is really amusing, if one can detach oneself and see it in that light, to contemplate the way troubles and difficulties seem to swell up in the darkness.

You Feel Hemmed In On All Sides
Let's say you have an unusual amount of work to get through in the coming week, before you go on your vacation. You wake up in the night and unwisely permit your mind to consider on just what days you are going to attack the various jobs that await you. Immediately your mind is off in a maze of planning, in which difficulties loom mountain high. Presently you have convinced yourself that you can't possibly get that work done. And yet you can't put off your vacation. You are going with the G's, and your ticket is bought. What can you do then? You feel hemmed in on all sides. You begin to feel sick all over and to toss about on the bed and pound your pillow.

When, in the course of human events, it comes time to do that work you will doubtless do it, and when it comes time to take your vacation you will find means to put it off. But your night-time self sees only a wall of impossibilities which it is desperately, and with a ridiculous waste of energy, trying to climb.

Twice As Bad To Worry At Night.
It is very hard to stop one's mind once it gets started on such a course. The wise person takes the wiser way, and after he has had one or two such experiences and realized in the morning the futility of them, he makes a resolve never to let his mind take one step in the direction of plans or problems in the middle of the night.

For he knows it is bad enough to worry in the daytime, but doubly bad to worry at night.

Household Notes.

When making meringue add a tablespoonful of ice water to each white of egg.

The food power in 1 pound of raisins is said to be twice that in 1 pound of eggs.

Comb honey sliced thinly and served with hot biscuits like a sandwich is delicious.

The refrigerator and supply closet are close together in a well-regulated kitchen.

When hemming napkins use the tiniest foot hemmer on the machine to turn the hem.

Light tones and simple wall paper will make a room look larger and more cheerful.

Stew raisins and prunes together—it is a great improvement over the latter cooked alone.

HE'S GOT THE RIGHT IDEA.—A British church leader inveighing against extremes of feminine raiment alleges that "one aim of many girls seems to be to attract men." Has not that been the heinous offense of the sex ever since the days of Eve?—New York World.

THE PUBLIC AND STRIKES.—In his altogether admirable letter in reply to Samuel Gompers' request that he "take a broad view of the situation" that has been forced upon the attention of the whole country by the defection of the Boston police last week, Governor Coolidge wrote these highly significant words: "There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anywhere, any time."—Boston Post.

IN BRITAIN AND IN CANADA.—Profiteering in the Mother Country is becoming a very unprofitable business. Every English paper contains reports of prosecutions by the score, and the magistrates are imposing heavy fines with threats of worse. In Canada the first profiteer to be prosecuted will probably become so famous that he will be given a high salary job with the moving picture producers.—Moncton Transcript.

The Story of Robin Adair.

Is the famous old song, "Robin Adair," which we have sung from childhood, Scottish or Irish? Scottish, undoubtedly, will be the general reply. Yet authentic history seems to point otherwise.

Hanging in the great hallway of the present mansion of Sir Robert Hodson, at Hollybrook, Kilbride, Co. Wicklow, where Robin lived, played, and sang verses, is his harp, while attached to a small building near by, is a brass plate, bearing the inscription:

Here Robin sat, and sang, and quaffed the bowl.
Degenerate days! how fallen the ancient line!
How science bids ascending waters roll,
And fountains gush, where once flowed genial wine.

Robin, according to the latest researches, was a successful wine merchant in Dublin, with, however, Scottish ancestral connections. Hence the confusion. He it was who built Hollybrook, where he entertained lavishly, the original song of "Robin Adair," which goes back to the year 1730, being written to commemorate a visit he paid to some sporting friends at Puckstown, near Artane, Co. Dublin, commencing:

"You're welcome to Puckstown, Robin Adair."
Robin, in spite of his convivial habits, lived to a green old age, and ultimately died in Dublin in 1737. In addition to his harp, two of his wine-glasses, which held a quart of wine each, are still preserved.

THE GOOD LITTLE BOY.

Once there was a boy who never tore his clothes, or hardly ever. Never made his sister mad. Never whipped her bein' bad. Never scolded by his Ma. Never frowned at by his Pa. Always fit for folks to see. Always good as good could be.

This good little boy from Heaven, So I'm told was only seven. Yet he never shed real tears When his mother scrubbed his ears. An' at times when he was dressed For a party, in his best He was careful of his shirt Not to get it smeared with dirt.

Used to study late at night Learnin' how to read an' write; When he played a baseball game, Right when he'd tired of play, When his mother called him in. An' he never made a din. But was quiet as a mouse When they'd com' in the house.

Liked to wash his hands an' face, Never to work around the place; Put 'em where he'd tired of play, Left his bat and ball around— Or his hat and ball around— Put 'em where they could be found; An' that good boy married Ma, An' to-day he is my Pa.

Hoover Says Prices Tumble Is Due Soon.

New York, Sept. 18.—Urging the ratification of peace as the first step above all things in the readjustment of conditions, and firm in the belief that prices will tumble, Herbert Hoover returned from Europe last week.

"We have entirely passed the crest of high prices," he said. "There are economic reasons why prices will fall of their own weight. There has been speculation by merchants all over the world, and stocks have increased everywhere. This condition exists throughout the entire food world. It prevails in Argentina, and in India. The assumption has been there would be an enormous outlet in Europe. That is an illusion. Credits have not been established for any such move. New production will come on top of this accumulation all over the world, and it will mean the tumbling of prices."

Fall Styles—The First Showing.

A limited quantity of very smart frocks for Fall and Winter were opened by us on Friday last, and are to-day on view in our Showrooms.

These are exclusive French and American models, no two alike. Among the selection may be seen:—

1. Black Satin Sonple, heavily piped on sleeves and overdress.
2. Black Plair Silk Jersey, round neck, self buttons, side fastening, loose girdle. (An ideal model, giving long slender lines.)
3. Navy Ribbed Silk Jersey, round neck, and Russian Blouse effect.
4. Navy Serge, trimmed Military braid, Sand Jersey Vest and Cuffs.

This showing includes some beautiful models in Serge and Satin, Serge and Fur and Serge and Military Braid.

1. Thou shalt heed the call of Plain quiet wall papers and white woodwork wherever such is possible.
2. Thou shalt lighten dark rooms by the use of light-hued, yellow-tinted wall paper, that suggests the blessed sunshine.
3. Thou shalt see that thy walls and thine own personality are not to forward, but modestly retiring.
4. Thou shalt use no large-patterned wall papers against which to hang thy pictures. The one will kill the other.
5. Thou shalt have no centerpiece or cornerpieces upon thy ceiling, but only a very nearly plain expanse of light color.
6. Thou shalt have thy fill of bright tints, and delicate designs for bedrooms and boudoirs, but for drawing-rooms, dining-rooms, libraries and halls, thou shalt be compelled to use less frivolous papers.
7. Thou shalt, when the ceiling is not too high, run the paper of the side wall up to the ceiling, putting the border just below the angle.
8. Thou shalt not panel the walls of a small room, except it be above a mantelpiece, a sideboard or a bookcase, where a bit of tapestry, a mirror or a picture may be held in place by strips of moulding.
9. Thou shalt use attention-compelling cut out borders, or conventionally designed strips for divisions between walls and ceiling.
10. Thou shalt remember at all times that thy wall paper is but a background against which to show thy pictures, thy furniture, and thy friends.

What's Wrong Now?

In yesterday's Star appeared a communication signed "Another West Ender," and he tells us he has had 25 years experience and should therefore be a good judge of public sentiment. Here are his exact words.

"Now I have been talking politics for quite a while in this district and a residence of 25 years in the West End qualifies me to get in touch with the opinions of my neighbors, and I can assure you and the whole community that Mr. Mullaly's name is hardly, if ever mentioned except with derision, whereas Dr. Campbell's name is foremost, and next to our leader, Hon. R. A. Squires."

Readers of the Telegram peruse the above remarks from an active politician, and tell us what you think of them! Here you have this veteran who has been gauging public opinion for 25 years, and the inference may be drawn that he has never erred, (in his own estimation), and it is evident that he is now sure of his position (in his mind) as vouched for in his remarks. Mark it carefully, readers of the Telegram. According to the Stars correspondent of 25 years active political hearing or experience, Dr. Campbell's name comes next to his leader, Hon. R. A. Squires. So you see the cat is out of the bag, and we ask "Another West End Voter," where does Mr. Brownrigg fit in, as his name has not been mentioned in the letter of the thought-reader from the West End. Can it be, oh, can it be, that the cloven hoof has already been shown, and is it a fact, as many believe, that they are about to knife Mr. Brownrigg politically in the West End. "Dr. Campbell's name next to our leader, Hon. R. A. Squires amongst the voters," asserts "Another West End Voter," of 25 years experience, and not the slightest reference to Mr. Brownrigg. Harry will be knifed, as sure as Campbell and Squires will be defeated. Another proof that Squires can't be trusted.—Com.

MINDARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

New Water Meter Installed.

Municipal Council Installs New Venturi Meter Near Windsor Lake for Purpose of Measuring Water for City.

Yesterday at noon a party composed of the members of the Municipal Council, representatives of the Board of Trade and of the Nfld. Board of Fire Underwriters, accompanied by the Governor, Colonial Secretary, and Press Representatives as guests, motored out to the water reservoir near the head of Bell's Hill, in the vicinity of Windsor Lake. On the day previous a new Venturi meter had been installed and the purpose of the visit was to inspect the chart of the meter and see the volume of water that had flown through the pipe that brought the water to town.

The meter is situated about 100 feet below the reservoir, and over it is a small shell of reinforced concrete, which serves to keep it dry and intact, and would withstand the ravages of a conflagration should the woods nearby take fire at any time. Two pipes of twenty four inches diameter run from the reservoir, and coalesce into one big one, 36 inches in diameter, just above the meter.

In this way, as will be seen at once, all the water that comes to town must pass through the single pipe. The big pipe runs so for a short distance and then branches off into two again shortly after passing the meter. The meter is attached to the big thirty six inch pipe at a place where it decreases its diameter to ten inches, the place where this occurs being known as the throat. The meter, thus, registers the volume of water that passes through the pipe and at the same time registers the force or velocity with which it runs. The speed of the water, as it tears through the single pipe, cannot be any less than ten feet a second, which is some little speed.

The head, or the height from sea water level to the reservoir, is 434 feet, which means that the water consumed by St. John's, to reach the city from the reservoir, a short distance this side of the Lake, drops a distance of 434 feet. Naturally, this greatly helps the flow, as the force of gravitation draws the water on.

Yesterday when the Venturi Meter, which, in appearance, is rather like the Dayton Scales, was examined, it was found that some six million gallons of water had passed through the pipe. That would mean an average consumption per day for each of the thirty thousand people in the city, of two hundred gallons. However, everybody knows that that amount is never used legitimately, and the number of gallons wasted daily in St. John's is estimated at three million gallons, or half the total number consumed.

On first sight this would appear to be a serious matter, but when it is remembered that not one eighth of the available supply of water is used, this fact will not seem so serious.

The advantage of the Venturi Meter will be seen instantly when it is known that it will always tell when there is any water being wasted through unusual means, such as a break in the pipe or some other such cause. As it is generally known that there have been breaks in the main pipe in the city for years without being discovered, allowing the water to escape continuously, the value of a system that will tell that the water is being wasted, and where, will be perceived by all. The members of the party were much interested in the meter yesterday, and listened to the mayor's explanation of its working with interest.

Victory Cup Football.

The football match between the C.E. I. and Cadets last evening proved very exciting. The play was fast, and the spectators who had the privilege of seeing the game, had every opportunity of expanding their lungs. To within three minutes of time no scoring had been done and it looked like a draw. In the excitement of the game one of the C.E.I. players made hands about 30 feet from the goal, this gave the cadets the opening to score the one and winning goal. The C. E. I. and Cadets deserve every credit for the clean, sporty, games they have played. The Cadets will play the Collegians on Thursday evening for the Championship. The players were:—

C.E.I.—Goal, Nesworthy; backs, M. Churchill, Thistle; forwards, E. Churchill, Fox, Drover; forwards, Adams, Earle, J. Hunt, Hennebury, Ralph Stick.

CADETS.—Goal, Clare; backs, Power, Brown; halves, Christopher, Galgay, Thompson; forwards, Ellis, Spurrell, Carl, Duggan, Brien.

Boy Run Over.

The boy is doing well to-day at his home Duckworth Street.

 BY THE CUB-EDITOR

MAN OR MANIKIN.
 No matter whence you come, from a palace of a ditch.
 You're a man, man, man, if you square yourself to life;
 And no matter what you say, hermit-poor or Midas-rich,
 You are nothing but a husk if you sidestep strife.

For it's do, do, do, with a purpose all your own,
 That makes a man a man, whether horn a set or king;
 And it's loaf, loaf, lolling on a beach or throne,
 That makes a being thwed to act a limp and useless thing!

No matter what you do, miracles or fruitless deeds,
 You're a man, man, man, if you do them with a will;
 And no matter how you loaf, cursing wealth or rumbering creeds,
 You are nothing but a noise, and its weight is nil.

For it's be, be, be, champion of your heart and soul,
 That makes a man a man, whether reared in silk or rags;
 And it's talk, talk, talk, from a tattered shirk or stole,
 That makes the image of a god a manikin that brags!

NAVY VEGETABLES.
 Admiral Simms said at a dinner in New York.
 "It's no wonder that the Turkish navy failed to do much in the war. The Turks were never a maritime people. "The story goes, in fact, that when they came to set up a navy in Turkey, they were very much embarrassed by the shortage of naval words in their language. They had no word for mairsail, no word for fore-top-gallant, and so on.
 "To get over the difficulty, the Turks tied different vegetables and the like to the different sails and ropes, and the men learned their duties to such commands as:
 "Hoist the potato!"
 "Now, then, my hearties, let go the tomato with a will!"
 "All hands aloft to reef the beef-steak!"

Mr. Woods Replies to the Industrial Worker

Editor Evening Telegram,
 Dear Sir:—In the last issue of the "Industrial Worker" there appeared an article making a personal attack on me because the Firemen's Union has withdrawn from the N.I.W.A. and re-formed their own Union. The handy-man they have for Editor of that paper now will, it appears, publish anything that his "boss" wants him to publish, hence the attack upon me because the Firemen of this city had sense enough to decide on padding their own canoe safely along the stream of progress in preference to being overwhelmed in the rapids whence the incompetency and lack of foresight of the N. I. W. A. was surely heading them.

The firemen knew what they were doing when they withdrew. They knew how badly their affairs had been handled by the well paid N. I. W. A. officials, by men who did not know the very first thing about the duties of the requirements of the firemen, yet they were willing to take the firemen's money and neglect their interests. Every machine shop apprentice, helper, or other person who wished to be entered on the N. I. W. A. books as a fireman was so entered and in consequence many bona fide firemen who endured the heat, toil, and risks incidental to war work all the year round could not get the chance to make a few extra dollars at the Seal Fishery because these men had all the berths cornered.

In 1908, when first we formed up, the pay was only $22.80 a month, now it is $65.00, and had the N. I. W. A. been pushing enough in our behalf it would be $75.00 the same as is paid in Liverpool and New York. The "Industrial Worker" says that their Business Manager secured most valuable concessions for the firemen, and that I have the gall to claim the credit therefor. Let him, if he can, point out any cases where the concessions were not obtained mainly through my efforts. I can justly claim most of the credit for what has been done for the firemen since they entered the N.I.W.A. The former editor of the "Industrial Worker" can, I know, prove this for me, as he is a straightforward man, who will give due credit to the right person. I may here remark that the "bosses" of the N. I. W. A. arranged to get him off the paper a few months ago when they found they could not make him conform to their narrow ideas and toady to their petty intellects.

As regards the arrears to which the editorial genius of the "Industrial Worker" refers, I may say that I refused to pay for a mortality benefit for which I was over age. Had I made a false statement of my age I could have been a beneficiary of the fund. I was always willing to pay up any amount due provided I was not being taxed for a fund from which I was to receive no benefit. They could have had the fees at any time, and can have them now, by taking off the mortality tax that benefits only those who are under 65 when admitted.

In regard to the replacement of the Hospital firemen last Summer, those men left their work without the authority of their Union, and at a time when it was absolutely necessary in the interests of human life to keep heat up as three operations were to be performed that day. I worked no "dodge" for the Minister of Public Health in getting men to keep the Hospital fires burning. I did it in the interests of humanity, but here let me ask what sly, sleek, slippery Government official did the present nippy editor of the Union Paper "work the dodge for" when he "scabbed" on the previous editor in taking the job when the other man ceased work for a living wage, and what, at the best, would only be third class office conditions?

Let the half-splitters and sea-lawyers that run the N. I. W. A. do without the firemen in future. If they want to pay useless and incompetent Union officials big salaries the firemen are not going to contribute towards it. All we want from the N. I. W. A. now is a return of our loan of $200.00 which so far they have not done, although they have been asked for it often enough. Let that organization put up or shut up. The firemen are not in debt to them, anyway.

Thanking you in anticipation for space,
 Yours truly,
 F. J. WOODS,
 President and Delegate, Firemen's Protective Union.

Nova Scotia Man Gains 25 Pounds Taking Tanlac

"I Simply Feel Like A Brand New Man," Says McAloney.

"I have often seen the time I would have gladly given everything I possess for the relief a few bottles of this Tanlac has given me," said Robert McAloney, a well known contractor, living at 33 York Street, Halifax, in a statement while at Kinley's recently. Mr. McAloney is also well known in Maissonneuve, Montreal, where he resided for many years before coming to Halifax.

"Four bottles of Tanlac has not only relieved me entirely of a case of stomach trouble that had made life miserable for me for more than five years," he continued, "but I have actually gained twenty-five pounds in weight, besides. I am not exaggerating a bit when I say I am feeling better now than I have in twenty years. Why, I was telling one of my friends the other day that I am feeling like a sixteen-year-old boy again. The way I have been built up and strengthened has really astonished me."

"I had been suffering, as I said, from stomach trouble and a run-down condition for more than five years and until Tanlac came along of bed and walked the floor never getting a wink of sleep. I have had to lay off from work for weeks at a time just suffering agony with my stomach and had lost all of thirty pounds in weight. I would wake up in the morning feeling so tired and no account that I was an effort for me to get out of bed. I was habitually constipated and had a dull, nagging headache nearly all the time. I had suffered so much and so long that I had about reached the point where I didn't much care whether I lived or not."

"But I feel altogether different since Tanlac has straightened me out and built me up so wonderfully. Before I had finished my first bottle, there was a decided improvement in my condition. I am eating three good, square meals a day and my stomach never gives me the least trouble. I don't believe I have ever enjoyed my meals more and I can eat just anything I desire without feeling as if I have left me, too. I can sleep like a log every night and get up in the mornings ready for a hearty breakfast and a good day's work. I tell you I simply feel like a new man and I am glad to give this statement to be used in letting others know what it is that restores health."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac Representative.

Political Notes.

(Trinity Enterprise).
 Although the days are passing rapidly, and the General Election not more than five weeks away, it is not yet known what two men will come to this Bay on the government ticket with Hon. John Stone.

It is rumored that Messrs. Guppy, Targett and Halfyard will contest this Bay in the interest of the F.P.U. Mr. Targett—we had almost forgotten the name—is the man we believe that was elected in 1913, as one of the representatives of Trinity district. But Mr. Targett, as far as we know has not paid a visit to Trinity since he got elected six or seven years ago, and surely he won't have gall enough to ask the people of Loyal Old Trinity for their votes this fall. The people of Trinity Bay won't support Targett this fall, because as a union man of Heart's Delight put it: "Targett can't represent us in the House as we should be represented."

Mr. Halfyard, we do not know personally, but if we can believe what the voters of Trinity Bay tell us, then, we want to tell Mr. H. Straight, that is no use to come to Trinity to look for votes. Trinity is going to vote solid for John Stone and his two men. Therefore, it would be wise for Mr. Halfyard to get back to Fogo district.

That Hon. John Stone will be elected for Trinity Bay again this fall is certain. During the past two weeks we met men from all parts of the bay and they are determined to send Mr. Stone back to the House of Assembly with a bigger majority than he had in 1913.

The Origin of John Company.
 On September 24, 1599, in old Founders' Hall, on the ground floor of what is now Founders' Court, Lothbury, though the old building was destroyed in the Great Fire, a gathering of leading merchants and of men of note at Court, with the Lord Mayor, Sir Stephen Soame, in the chair, assembled to give public sanction to a scheme for establishing trade relations with the East for the undertaking ran high, since the subscription list that resulted from the meeting reached a total of £30,000, a larger sum for those days, when money was so much less abundant and its purchasing power so much greater than is the case to-day. Eventually the amount was levelled to £20,000, and the project was regarded as fairly launched. The next step was to approach Queen Elizabeth with an application for a Charter and to submit a petition signed by 215 substantial merchants, noblemen and persons of distinction, with George, Earl of Cumberland, at their head. This was received graciously by the Queen, and on January 24 of the following year, letters patent were issued by the "Governor and Company of the Merchants of London trading to the East Indies," authorizing them to carry on their operations, and approving of James Lancaster to act as their Governor and General in the enterprise upon which they were to embark, with results far beyond the horizon of their most sanguine hopes and dreams. For, from that meeting in Founders' Hall, is to be dated the origin of the acquire dominion over India, to establish our Eastern Empire, and to endure until, after the Mutiny, in 1859, the reign of the John Company ended and the great charge was assumed formally by the British Crown.

Man Was Infatuated.

A funny story is going the rounds. A day or so ago an elderly man went to a certain cafe on Water Street and ordered a lunch. The waitress was rather pretty, as most of them are, and it seems that the old fellow became infatuated at first sight, and, deciding to lose no time, proposed to her there and then. The girl thought he was only joking, and mentioned the fact that he had not shown a ring. Not to be balked, the enamored one immediately left the establishment and returned in a short while with a valuable engagement ring, which he asked the girl to wear. However, seeing that he was in earnest and really meant what he said, the waitress would not accept the ring, and thus was nipped in the bud what might have been another romance. The old fellow has not been near the cafe since.

AGAN,

DON'T BUY SO MANY BOOTS

SINCE "Hi-Press" has come on the market fishermen are putting many a good dollar back into their pockets that used to go for footwear.

This wonderful boot actually gives two and three times the wear of the ordinary kind. And it's mighty good-looking and comfortable in the bargain.

Here's the idea—"Hi-Press" Rubber Boots are made in a new and vastly better way. They are molded—like an auto tire—INTO ONE SOLID PIECE! They CAN'T leak or peel and there seems no wear-out to them. Millions of fishermen, miners and farmers won't wear anything else. Try them yourself.

Epidemic of Flu Inevitable

HOW TO GUARD AGAINST IT. The coming of cold and rainy weather has brought widespread belief in a fresh outbreak of influenza; and already the disease is reported as appearing in several localities. In the United States, Congress is urged to appropriate five million dollars to investigate the cause of Flu and determine the most effective means of combatting the trouble. While the germ has not been isolated, certain facts have been proven. The most effective precautions of avoiding an attack of influenza is to keep the body clean inside and out, and to build up the general health. Besides bathing frequently and washing the hands several times a day, it is imperative that the digestion be sound and all the eliminating organs of the body be regular. Constipation, biliousness, indigestion, headaches, kidney trouble or bladder irritation should be corrected with a reliable saline like Abbey's Effervescent Salt. In fact, it would safeguard the health and aid materially in preventing an attack of Flu if everyone would take regularly every morning a glass of Abbey's Effervescent Salt.

THE OTHER SIDE.

All day long I sit around and weep because the prices are so steep. Whatever thing I have to buy, a pup, a pencil or a pie, a quilt, a quagga or a quince, the price is touch-od for makes me wince. And so, by rising prices pinched, I cry, "Let profiteers be lynched." And all the neighbors on the block endorse this drastic sort of talk. They say, "That is the proper dope; you bring a tree, we'll fetch a rope." But this thing has another side, which cannot fairly be denied. I am forgetting, when I yell the price of things I have to sell. I have an old sea-bitten hen that lays each morning in her den; and when I go, on buoyant legs, to sell her luscious, germ-proof eggs, all neatly packed in crate or tierce, the price I get is something fierce. I have an ancient tinhorn cow, with antlers growing on her brow; she springs, each day, a peck of milk; that's why my wife is wearing silk. I sell the milk by pint and quart, and takes in coins of every sort. In those grand times that I lament, the old cow didn't make a cent. Sometimes I fear when prices fall I'll still rear up and wildly bawl; if things I sell are going cheap, I don't believe I'll cease to weep.
