The Shadow of the Future.

CHAPTER XXXI

Mr. Rupert took it coolly, but at the first glimpse his expression changed. With an ejaculation he opened his chair, then wheeled his chair closer to Mr. Drayton. "I really have not been attending," he said, "but is this a friend of yours?"

"Friend? No! Enemy, rather."

"So much the better for you."

"Why? You know nothing of him, do you?"

"Once upon a time I did. A little. And I knew him for a rascal. You say you intend to find him up for something or other?"

"Yes! To settle scores with him."

"Ah, lucky to be able! Wish I'd the same chance, Mr. Drayton. But if you meet your gentleman you may find it useful to be able to tell him—looking askance to see that his father was out of hearing—that one of the parties he played with at little St. James' (he'll know where you mean) on the first day of May two years ago understands about his king of hearts well enough now. In plain English, you may tell him he is a card-sharp and a black-leg, and that men in a livery he doesn't love will receive him with open arms if ever he sets foot in London again!"

"And may I mention who says this?"

"He'll be none the wiser. I cannot even tell you what he was called, though I should know his face among a thousand. We met in a company known only to each other, sooner or later, by two names, fools and rogues. He belonged to the last. I had the slight superiority of belonging to the first class. You 'perceive'—the liveliness imparted by the notion of a blow at his old associate giving place to his former drawing in London again!"

"Mr. Drayton; now none avouches about cela, and I'm never going to be taught no more!" "Sh!" Mr. Rupert applied himself to another cigarette, and nursing one knee, as the major returned to his place, and taking up the thread of his interrupted dialogue, remarked, regretfully:

"What a pity, Mr. Drayton, your prosperity did not come a year ago, when Miss Dacie's friend, poor Sydney, could have shared its pleasure."

"That the one drawback we both deplore," said the other man, heartily. "But we don't mean to let it last a day longer than we can help. Mary—Miss Dacie—has written to her through the mother, as usual. If she won't give us leave to go and see her we mean to attack Mrs. Alwyn for permission. We think we know why she is banished. Now we mean to know where it's to."

"Then he repeated the countess's conjectures, and asked point-blank if they were correct."

"Why, to be sure they are!" answered the major, uncommonly relieved that the murder was out, "and as this has got wind just as I said it would, I shall urge my sister-in-law to take off her preposterous veto on the poor child corresponding frankly with us all. If I knew where she was stowed away I should be tempted to let it out now. But I don't; for—with a vexed frown, which Richard Drayton fancied he could interpret, said Mr. Rupert—

"she will have nothing to do with me now! But if you should chance on Mrs. Alwyn over yonder, ask her about Sydney yourself!"

"Small likelihood of that," returned Richard Drayton; "my business will not carry me into ladies' company. But such as it is I must be off after it. The only time to get my portmanteau from the Langham and catch the seven-twenty train from 'Piccadilly,' and with a genial farewell from the major and a bow from Mr. Villiers, who was talking now with some ladies at a little distance, he was soon out of the Park, and en route for his first stage toward searching out his old slanderer among the slums of Paris.

There, at least, assuming that like seeks like, he was prepared to find Mr. "Thompson," as the gentleman appeared to have been known at Grand Cayle, or "Thomas Travers," as he styled himself at San Nicolas; but Tuesday having been spent fruitlessly among such haunts as he had been secretly directed to, he was fain next day to take the advice proffered by the courteous manager at Maurice's, and invoke the aid of the French police. A morning visit to the office of one of the chefs in the Boulevard du Palais had the effect of clearing the lines. Mr. Travers was perfectly well-known in Paris, under yet another alias. He was the moving spirit of a gang for whom the law was on the alert. His movements were watched with much solicitude.

"You will probably find him, monsieur," said the polite functionary to his inquirer, speaking English so fluently that the conversation, to Richard Drayton's unaffected relief, was carried on in that tongue, "on the Sunday evening at a certain gambling-table in the Rue Beaubourg, or—you desire him sooner?—then any morning at his recently engaged apartment on the Boulevard de Malesherbes, or in the earlier evening at Nombre dix-huit Avenue Bois de Boulogne, where he now spends much time. He is clever, very, this your compatriot. He evades us yet. But if you will his detention under these—touching documents just shown him—you shall be immediately accompanied to that purpose."

Richard Drayton deliberated. Once his own name was cleared he hardly desired to push the man to this extremity. He would give him another chance. Try other means first. Thinking the civil official, then, and arranging for further communication, if needed, he bent his course toward the well-known Boulevard de Malesherbes, and requested of the concierge at one of its best-appointed dwellings an interview with Mr. Thompson under his latest Parisian pseudonym.

But "Monsieur" was not within. He had arisen but to set forth and make visits. The hour of his return was totally uncertain.

On, therefore, to the Avenue Bois de Boulogne went Mr. Drayton, trusting, though with some misgiving, to come in that well-inhabited locality, upon this gentleman with his intimates for the time being.

But at number eighteen he was also too late. An active-minded attendant was "bien-chargé, but le Monsieur Anglais was but just departed to drive with his friends to Longchamps. He would be returned only at the hour to dine in the evening."

Allowing seven as the "hour to dine," Richard Drayton put away the time impatiently till eight, then presented himself once more at the balconied, flower-garlanded little mansion, requested to be announced merely as a gentleman from England, and speculating much on what species of company he was entering, found himself, after traversing a spacious gilded corridor, in a brilliant, decorated salon, and in the presence of Mrs. Alwyn, Miss Villiers, and Mrs. Morecombe-Wood!

The ladies were in charming, costly evening toilet. Mrs. Alwyn's satin draperies enveloped her "velvet tassel; Leonora, in pearly silk and mantle, with a semi-cuirass of mosaic, was looking up with rapt attention at her masculine companion. He, in immaculate dinner costume, seemed whispering soft speeches for her ear alone. All three showed visible amazement—no fraction greater than what he felt!

The Boy That is Wanted.

Wanted—a boy that is manly, a boy that is kind and polite. A boy you can always depend on. To do what he knows is right. "You bring no ill news, I trust?"

"Oh, certainly not. At least—that is, of course not!" returned Mr. Drayton, shaking hands with himself and her daughter, then coming to a most awkward full-stop before their guest, during which, thought Mrs. Alwyn, rapidly, "This man has found Sydney out. He wants to marry her. That is why she refused to come here to me. If he hopes for one son of doer he will find himself disappointed!" Aloud she said:

"You do not know our companion. Allow me to introduce—

"Excuse me," the caller interrupted. "I do know Mr. Wood—Morecombe-Wood. Among the aliases he grew confused."

"Mr. Morecombe-Wood," corrected Mrs. Alwyn, her eyebrows contracting at this gaucherie.

"Perfectly well. To be candid, it is for him my visit is intended. I must plead guilty to never having suspected it would bring me into your society."

Mrs. Alwyn drew her mouth into surprised lines, sunk back with dignity, and made a gesture implying, "Then proceed with your business, pray!" Mrs. Villiers, with a scarcely concealed pout, gave a glance of pettish offense at the intruder. But Mr. Morecombe-Wood took a seat doggedly by the fair Leonora, and from that shelter met Mr. Drayton's eyes with a stare of steady defiance.

"Before ladies you will excuse me from entering on any discussion that may have brought you here," he said. "It is not exactly the form that obtains in Paris!"

"As you will," answered Richard Drayton. "But having come thus far to meet you, and being in haste to get back to England, perhaps Mrs. Alwyn will permit me to wait here till you can spare me five minutes"; and he took a chair close to the door, sitting there through a minute of embarrassment to all, broken by his hostess asking if he was particularly occupied in England, that he must return thither so quickly from this enchanting city.

"I fear Mrs. Alwyn. I don't find Paris half so enchanting as the village you left," was the blunt reply to this. "At any rate, it is to St. Clair's I have come to look for a wife."

"And found one?" cried the lady, suspicion aflame again.

"And found her."

"Actually in that remote corner of the earth," said Leonora, pityingly—the French capital was her Paradise. St. Clair's, in reminiscence—well, exactly the reverse. "You must be easily contented, Mr. Drayton!"

"Indeed I am not. I could find no match to Miss Dacie elsewhere. I assure you. For I have followed Dr. Primrose's advice, and chosen my wife as she would choose her gown—to wear well!"

"Miss Dacie!" repeated Leonora, with an infection of amused patronage; "actually to be married! And you say Dr. Primrose advised it? Is he a medical man you both know, then?"

Mrs. Alwyn tapped the floor impatiently. Sometimes her dearest Leonora was provokingly stupid. She was so now. What would that well-read Mr. Morecombe-Wood think! She need not have disturbed herself. The well-read gentleman had enough else to think of in those seconds to let his fair lady's pretty ignorance pass unheeded.

"Drayton," he said, getting up armed with a resolution to take the bull by the horns, "Mrs. Alwyn will permit me the use of her salle a manger, I am sure. We had best dispose of what brings you here at once." Richard Drayton was on his feet instantly, still in front of the door. Unearthly his quarry where he had, put him in a daze, but one idea he kept well in sight. Having found the fellow, he must not let him go till what he wanted was secured.

"We can dispose of it without so much as leaving the room," he answered, "Mrs. Alwyn giving us leave to talk ten minutes by yonder writing-table."

"My room is at your service, Mr. Morecombe-Wood," said the lady—"Leonora, love," as the two men moved off the length of the apartment, "read me Galignani's London letter, will you?" And to that distant accompaniment Leonora's lover wound up acquaintances with him whom he had nearly made his scapegoat years before.

His cavalier air changed to one of lynx-like anxiety; he watched white, without a single word, letters from one Senor Jose de Sousa, of San Nicolas, detailing certain sums unlawfully abstracted from his possession by a Francis Travers, a telegraphed order for the arrest of this Travers, if necessary, and a second telegram giving the power to deal with the matter to Richard Drayton, were laid before him.

His quick wit caught at the saving clause, "if necessary." He put his finger on the syllable, "What 'buys me off' he asked, in the lowest audible voice.

"This," replied Richard Drayton, unfolding a sheet of letter-paper, on which was set forth clearly a recantation of the tissue of lies told by Francis Travers to stain his colleague's character at their Brazilian post.

"At this distance of time and place, for some insignificant to him, Senor de Sousa has no special desire to prosecute you—"

The Board of Governors of the St. John's General Hospital beg to announce for the information of the General Public that final arrangements have been made for the collection of fees to be paid by all persons who occupy beds or undergo treatment at the General Hospital.

The scale of fees was advertised in December last as coming into effect on January 1st, 1921, but unforeseen circumstances prevented this from being carried out.

The following regulations, in accord with "An Act respecting the General Hospital," will be strictly enforced.

Under an Act respecting the General Hospital (6 George V. Cap. XIX.), and with the approval of the Governor in Council, the Board of Governors of the St. John's General Hospital give notice that they have fixed and prescribed the following scale of fees to be levied from and paid by all persons who occupy beds or undergo treatment at the Hospital. The scale is to come into operation on the 1st of October, 1921.

Under the provisions of the General Hospital Act, 1916, all patients who are unable to pay fees shall be required to bring with them a certificate of their inability to pay, which shall be signed by a resident Receiving Officer, or, where there is no such Officer, by a Justice of the Peace, a Clergyman or other responsible person. The fees of such patients thereupon payable by the Commissioner of Public Charity, by virtue of the said Act.

Prime Minister and Sec. Hoover Confer.

Claims Fordney Tariff a Mistake-- Britain Sends Strong Note to Russia--London Press on Irish Situation--Ulster Has Nothing to Give Away.

SOVIET RUSSIA WARNED.

LONDON, Sept. 20. The British Government to-day dispatched a strongly worded note to Moscow, calling the attention of the Soviet Government to alleged serious breaches of faith involved in pursuance of the Russians, throughout Central Asia and Afghanistan, of a campaign of intrigues hostile towards Great Britain. An explanation is demanded. The note details fully alleged hostile acts complained of. Most of them were in Afghanistan.

PREMIER AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. Sir Richard Anderson Squitras, Premier of Newfoundland, had a conference with Secretary of Commerce Hoover, over the prohibitive rates affecting trade between Newfoundland and the United States in the Fordney Tariff Bill. He pointed out that with only two millions of dollars of Newfoundland fish and other products coming here annually for use in the United States, against twenty millions of dollars worth of manufactured articles going into Newfoundland from the United States, it was a mistake for this country to impose prohibitive rates on the fish and fish oil of Newfoundland. Sir Richard will probably take up the same question with the President, and has already seen Secretary of State Hughes and appeared before the Senate Finance Committee. It was definitely learned there is strong sympathy with Sir Richard's view in high administration circles.

PRESS OPINION VARIES.

LONDON, Sept. 20. A decided diversity in view is prevalent here to-day regarding the effect of the latest telegram of Ramon De Valera to Premier Lloyd George, as to whether it means rupture or a step forward towards a conference looking to an Irish settlement. This wide division of opinion is notably apparent in newspaper comment, although the majority of the journals are still optimistic. The Pall Mall Gazette for example uses the headline "Rupture feared." The Evening Standard says, "The door is not closed, but pessimism prevails." The Evening News on the other hand speaks of "Progress in Irish peace, De Valera clears the air." The Westminster Gazette headlines its article "Poston not seriously worsened."

ULSTER'S ATTITUDE.

BELFAST, Sept. 21. Sir James Craig, Ulster Premier, explaining to the Northern Parliament to-day Ulster's position with regard to the proposed conference looking towards peace in Ireland, maintained that while it would be impolitic to refuse to enter the conference in order to protect the interests of Ulster, nevertheless Ulster had nothing to give away in such a conference.

ANOTHER HUGE STRIKE THREATENED.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 20. No wage reduction of coal miners must be permitted, and all the resources of the Miners' Union must be made available to back up this policy in opposition to wage cuts, John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, declared here to-day, in his report, made at the opening of the Biennial Convention of International Mine Workers. He also recommended postponement until next February of the Miners' adoption of definite wage demands and declared that with all wage agreements expiring on March 31st, 1922, "the full influence and economic power of our great membership may thus be utilized to the advantage of our people for the achievement of our ideals."

BATTLESHIP BUILDING.

LONDON, Sept. 20. The Admiralty, it is stated, proposes to speed up the work on the four new battleships, which it is expected, will provide work directly for three thousand men. The battleships, it is expected, will be built at four different shipyards, and will indirectly furnish employment at Steel Works in different parts of the country.

VILNA ONCE MORE.

GENEVA, Sept. 20. The Council of the League of Nations established an important precedent this morning when it decided to refer to the Assembly of the League the dispute between Poland and Lithuania concerning Vilna, which was considered a fortnight ago to have been settled, but was re-opened because of the attitude of the contending parties.

THEIR PLACE AT HOME.

LONDON, Sept. 20. It has been definitely decided that neither Lloyd George nor Lord Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, will attend the Washington Conference on Disarmament and Pacific Problems, in view of impending developments in domestic politics, it was learned this afternoon.

POPE BENEDICT ON SOCIAL DISORDER.

ROME, Sept. 20. Society to-day is deeply affected with civil disorder, due to excessive egotism and a refusal to acknowledge inevitable difference between social classes, said Pope Benedict yesterday, during an address to men members of the Order of St. Francis, gathered in international congress. "As a result," he added, "treaties of peace were signed by nations, but they continue to engage in bloody conflicts." The Pope emphasized St. Francis' love of peace and concord, and said that only this spirit could heal present conditions. Nearly five thousand delegates to the congress were received by the Pope, who addressed the assembly at the Court of Damasus in the Vatican.

A SPANISH SUCCESS.

MADRID, Sept. 20. An engagement between a small Spanish force and a party of Moors at Tirisia, in the Spanish Moroccan zone, in which the Spanish scored a pronounced success, is announced in an official telegram received this morning from Tetuan.

SEABORNE SAFE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. The safe arrival at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, of the United States submarine RDX-27, which, while on route from Coco Solo, Panama Canal Zone, to Guantanamo, sent out a distress call Sunday night, was reported to-day at the Navy Department.

THE BENNETT AIR RACE.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 20. Two of the five balloons, which up to this morning had not been heard from, after starting in the James Gordon Bennett International Race, were reported safely landed by the Aero Club to-day. The French balloon Marie landed at Dolgely, North Wales, and the French balloon Ploardy landed at Pandyk, northeast of Dolgely. The United States' balloon Belgica II has been reported as having landed in Wales.

G.T.R. APPEALS.

LONDON, Sept. 20. It now seems certain that Grand Trunk stock holders will enter a double appeal against the findings of the Board of Arbitration respecting Common and Preferred Stock. The text of the decision has arrived here and is being submitted to counsel on this side. The Daily Telegraph says that it is certain that notice of appeal will be given in Canada and also leave to appeal applied for here, probably early in November.

THE MEIGHEN CABINET.

OTTAWA, Sept. 20. There will be an announcement in regard to Premier Meighen's reorganized cabinet to-day, and possibly not until Thursday. The Premier stated that the new members will not be sworn in until the Governor-General returns from Kingston.

ANOTHER ASPIRANT FOR DEFENDER.

GLoucester, Sept. 20. The schooner Elsie was entered to-day in the elimination races to determine the United States defender in the International Fishermen's race at Halifax next month. The Elsie, under command of Alden Geels, is now on the fishing grounds.

WAGE REDUCTION.

MONTREAL, Sept. 20. The head office of Canadian Exportives Limited, in this city, to-day announced a reduction in wages in some of their plants of from 10 to 12 1/2 per cent., to go into effect immediately.

COAL WAGE REDUCTIONS.

LONDON, Sept. 20. Large reductions in wages paid to workmen in the coal trades are due under the existing agreement at the end of this month. This will of course prove naturally unpopular, but further trouble is not anticipated, as the agreement can only be determined by three months notice given after next September.

The Greatest Evil of the Age.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—It amusing or I should say disgusting to read in the Advocate such nonsense as regards the good Cooker and his advisory board did by enforcing fish regulations last year. The general public well know no such regulation was ever passed so disastrous to the Colony as it was, and it was too dangerous an experiment. I can admire a man who experiments with his own money, but to take millions of dollars of other people's money and experiment on it is altogether wrong, and it should never have been permitted, except the Government guaranteed to make it good.

In the event of such measures failing to do what was expected by Cooker and his Board, how many last year, clear of Cooker and his advisers, felt that only disaster could come out of it? I only know two men, fish merchants, who had a word to say in favor of it, clear of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who I understand did well out of it. Why should three or four cargoes be accepted on arrival at Operto by a certain firm and vessels tied up at anchorage for three months. Our cargo of 4,300 qts. in "Edith M. Cavell." I can absolutely say no better cargo ever was shipped when it was put on board at Rames in early July of last year. She was hung up at Rames six weeks before being permitted to sail. Notwithstanding we had a minimum guarantee of $54,000 for her cargo, when Bills of Lading were signed, and to make out 60 days draft for it a further draft would be sent us when all cargo was disposed of. We asked the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to reconsider our case, and let us consign or, he (Minister of Marine) take the cargo at above figure, if not we hold Government responsible for the amount. The Minister replied to us "no it must go forward to Newfoundland agents at Operto under Advisory Board Control," and if we did otherwise the fine would be the value of the whole cargo. Result of it all was the vessel was seven months on the voyage, wages seventy to one hundred and twenty dollars per man per month, and up to writing we never received one cent for the cargo and charter of vessel. How much profit tax did the merchants pay into the revenue last year through those big prices brought about by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and his Advisory Board? How many families are on the eve of starvation to-day from Placentia to Bonne Bay, and then to have to read such abominable stuff as appears in the Advocate every second day—the good it did and what it would have done if they had been permitted to continue the Regulations. For ourselves I may say the end is not just yet, just slumbering.

Yours truly,
GEO. PENNY,
of J. Penny & Sons,
Rames, Sept. 1921.

CONVENTION SLAVES.

The rage I wear are always duller than is the autumn meadow's hue, yet I would run to gorgeous color, if I had courage so to do. I'd wear silk shirts with stripes of crimson, and gaudy garments brave and smart; I'd be a sight to cast your glances on, if I had not a rabbit's heart. But I am doomed to sombre raiment, like all the other old boys here; for dreary drudges we make our payment, and like morticians we appear. If I should drape my ancient body in brighter tints, the folks would say, "That pelican is much too gaudy for one whose head is bald and gray; instead of wearing silks and ermines, he should in humble garments stand, and spend his evenings reading sermons, preparing for another land." I'm old in years but young in spirit, and I would dress like sweet sixteen; but men's rebuke! alas, I fear it, and cut out pink and red and green. My maiden aunt in years is stricken, but she has raiment on the mind, and you would take her for a chicken if you should see her from behind. But if I wear a dash of yellow, she lifts her hands in wild dismay, and cries, "You foolish, silly fellow! Such colors when your head is gray!" Thus men are doomed to colors dismal, though dames may wear what hues they please, and age becomes a grief abysmal, a sordid thing of soap and cheese.

Lawlessness Made to Order.

Those who have read the histories of lawlessness in the American papers recently cannot fail to have been struck with the idea that the orgie of lawlessness against white folk have been rather the result of concerted rather than sporadic action. Lynching parties have been held in many States of the Union and a regime of terrorism ushered in. The headhunted Southerners have a habit, and a most reprehensible one at that, of taking the law into their own hands on certain occasions, thus setting aside, and rendering nugatory the power of the State and the majority of justice. Mob law cannot be tolerated anywhere. It is an offence against the sovereign rights of the people, controlled by the people's authority through the medium of recognised Courts of Justice, and the State is in duty bound to protect, by force if need be, its inalienable prerogative of administering the law of the land. Recapitulation of the actions of the mob in certain States of the American Union need not be made here. Particulars of them are fresh in the memories of all who read their violent and repulsive details. Ever since the Emancipation of the black slaves by decree of President Lincoln in the early sixties of the last century, there has been drawn a very sharp color line between the whites and negroes, particularly in those States which formed the Confederation, and which finally were compelled by force of arms to free their colored plantation workers. The War of Secession 1861-65 closed in the latter year, and the freed slaves of the Southern planters immediately began to exercise the political rights which they imagined had been conferred upon them by the Emancipation Act. Street brawls were common, and to add to the unrest then prevailing, irresponsible politicians from the North preached doctrines of the equality of the races for their own personal benefit. Naturally these were swallowed by the blacks, who eventually began, not only to insist on political equality, but to demand social equality as well. To the proud descendants of the Cavaliers, it can be realised how such demands were intolerable, but fostered by the "carpetbaggers" the negroes grew daily more aggressive and insistent, until at last the whites were obliged to resort to peculiar methods in order to meet and cope with a dangerous and menacing situation.

can Union, and had for its initial purpose the preventing of the exercise of political rights by the newly emancipated negroes. Some authorities, however, aver that it was originally founded for purposes of "amusement" only, but which soon developed into an association of "regulators" becoming quickly notorious for lawless deeds of violence performed in its name. All agree, however, that the proceedings of the Klan in the Southern States were only one feature of the determined struggle to prevent the freed slaves from voting. Those who have seen the screen picture "Birth of a Nation" will not be deceived from that production, that the Ku-Klux-Klan was anything but an organization for the protection of the whites against the blacks, the methods adopted being those to which the latter were most susceptible, namely awe and mystery. A well known American author, from whose book "The Clansman," the "Birth of a Nation" was cinematized, says in a foreword to his readers that "the chaos of blind passion that followed Lincoln's assassination is inconceivable to-day. The revolution it produced in our (U.S.) government, and the bold attempt of Thaddeus Stevens to Africanise ten great States of the American Union, read now like tales from the 'Arabian Nights.' In the darkest hour of the life of the South, when her wounded and helpless people lay amid rags and ashes under the beak and talon of the Vulture, suddenly from the mist of the mountains appeared a cloud the size of a man's hand. It grew until its mantle of mystery enfolded the stricken earth and sky. An 'Invisible Empire' had risen from the field of death and challenged the 'Visible' to mortal combat." Thus the Ku-Klux-Klan as described by an admirer of its principles and purposes, and while these might have remained glorious, impeccable and unswayed yet baser ambitions wrought a change, and the Klan became the object of suspicion, many outrages and murders being attributed to the organization. So much so that Congress intervened and in 1870 passed an Enforcement Act against conspiracies to deprive the negroes of their rights. Thus passed the "White Riders of the Night" their disbandment being further accelerated by the passing of a Ku-Klux-Klan Act in 1871. Visionary as may have been the ideas of the original founders, their ideals were at least pure, but unscrupulous men wielding almost unlimited power used it to further personal aggrandisement. In the revival of the K.K.K. to-day evidences of lawlessness abound, and if the United States wishes to keep her house clean, the reign of the tar bucket must end, and lawlessness made to order be put down with a strong hand.

Closing Evidence.

PLACENTIA ENQUIRY NEARLY CONCLUDED. It is expected that the girl O'Reilly, who stands charged with the murder of her 5 months old, illegitimate child, will shortly be committed for trial at the Fall Criminal Sessions of the Supreme Court which open on October 1st. The preliminary enquiry which is now proceeding at Placentia is practically concluded, the evidence of Dr. Tait who conducted the post mortem, having been taken at his home yesterday where he is confined through illness. Judge Morris, Deputy Minister of Justice Summers representing the Crown and Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., counsel for the accused, were present.

Team in Training.

A special programme of training for each day of the week has been arranged for the team which is to represent us at the Halifax sports on Saturday next. The team was given a try out on the cinder track of the Wanderers' ground where the sports will be held, on Monday. As soon as the local athletes become accustomed to the cinder track they should materially reduce their time.

To Celebrate Armistice.

Preparations are now being made for the big Victory Ball with which the G.W.V.A. Executive intends, this year, to celebrate the Armistice. Last year this was celebrated with a dinner for returned men, but this year the wives and friends of the boys will be able to take their share in the celebrations. No efforts will be spared to make the affair a brilliant success.

Postal Association Meet.

A considerable amount of routine business was transacted at the regular monthly meeting of the Postal Association held last night on the second floor of the G.P.O. under the chairmanship of Vice-President J. Clarke. Several applications for membership were received and a welcome was extended to Mr. Dato of the North Sydney office, who is here on a vacation.

Stowaways Landed.

Five young lads belonging to the West End who had stowed away on S.S. Fern when she left here on Friday last, were landed at Burin Sunday evening and were given into custody. They will be sent to town at the earliest opportunity. The Fern left Burin again during the night and arrived at Sydney yesterday.

Home's Report.

The S.S. Home arrived at Humbermouth at 4.30 a.m. yesterday from the Straits. The captain reports making all ports of call on the route, except New Ferrol, Trout River and Lark Harbor. The weather being very stormy and having a large number of passengers on board the captain was obliged to pass these places.

Personal.

Miss Mabel Long left by yesterday's express to enter the Western Hospital, Montreal, to take up the Nursing profession. Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Reid, Misses Helen and Florence Reid, and Mr. C. O'Neil, are on the route for New York. They are using the private car Quidi Vid.

With Our Boys at Halifax.

Halifax, Sept. 20.—Had good tryout to-day. The boys found cinder track little awkward at first but soon mastered it. We have had a very happy interview with Capt. Murray. This week's "Atlantic Leader" has our photographs as well as one of Bell and Thomas, Halifax papers giving glowing accounts of our progress and we are literally besieged with newspapermen. Are being treated very hospitably by Halifax folk, and the "Bosonians" of floors and crew have been exceptionally kind to us. Boys are feeling very fit and are confident of bringing home a liberal share of the spoils. Am writing Stan Cullen privately, as arranged, regarding times we are making. E. J. GOODLAND.

BELL TO RUN OCTOBER 15th.

A message to the National Sports Committee states the Road Race in which Bell is to compete will be run on October 15th which is the date set apart for Thanksgiving Day. Bell is in great fettle and great things are expected of him.

Deaf and Dumb Pupil.

The Telegram this morning had the pleasure of a brief visit from a pupil of the Deaf and Dumb Institution, Halifax, Nova Scotia, in the person of John Henry Collins, of Flat Islands, Placentia Bay, who has been but two short years in that institution, yet has passed the Scout Test and learned signaling. John is a very bright youth and quick at acquiring knowledge of all sorts, and no person to look at him would at once realize that he is a mute. The cause of the loss of the two principal senses, hearing and speech, was meningitis from which he suffered as an infant of two years, both these faculties having been taken away by the malady. Master Collins is being looked after by Rev. E. W. Forbes, B.A., while in town, and will leave by s.s. Rosalind, Sunday return, to be with his studies at Halifax. Should he continue as reported, Collins must eventually turn out to be one of the smartest pupils of the Deaf and Dumb School.

Scouts' Fall Rally.

The opening meeting of the Gower St. Troop was held last evening in the Methodist College Gymnasium. There were 79 present, which was one more than the average attendance for last fall and winter at the regular meetings of the Troop. After being welcomed by the Scoutmasters the new organization of the Troop was announced and rooms were assigned to the four companies for separate meeting-places. The following appointments were made: Troop Leaders, A. Co., Jim Mayo; B. Co., Bert Rooney; Patrol Leaders, A. Co., Beaver's, Will Lewis; Tiger, Jim Dove; D. Co., Hawks, Hector Butler; Otters, Hubert Cooke; signalling instructors and Assistants, A. Co., J. Mayo and Gerald Butt; B. Co., George Roberts and Gordon Howell; D. Co., Arthur Howard and Dick Harrington.

Baychimo in Port.

S. S. Baychimo, Capt. Faulke, 4 days from Burrell, Hudson Bay, arrived in port this forenoon. The Baychimo is a recent purchase and for the past two months has been operating for the Hudson's Bay Co. in conjunction with S. S. Nascopie. The ship was formerly the German steamer Angermansfjord, and was built in Sweden in 1914 for German owners especially for the Baltic trade, and is, we understand, built to contend with ice, being a very suitable boat for her present work. She has a gross tonnage of 1200 tons and is admirably fitted out as regards the latest improvements in vessels of her type. Besides Capt. Faulke, who was formerly in Job Bros. employ, chief officer Jones is well known here, having visited this port in the Nascopie, Falcan and Discover; whilst Mr. Wm. Black is chief engineer, and is remembered in the city for his long association with the Hudson's Bay Company. Mr. Ralph Parsons, the Company's manager in Newfoundland, is a passenger by the Baychimo, after making his annual tour of inspection among the different posts and branches.

Hulk Destroyed.

The hulk Capella, used by Baine, Johnstone & Co. this number of years past for storing salt, was towed to Freshwater Bay this morning by the tug John Green and allowed to drift on the land where she would break up, as the vessel's usefulness was over. The Capella was a Norwegian brig, built in 1855, and came to this port some 17 years ago with a load of lumber. Being condemned, Mr. Saunders, shipwright, bought the cargo and hull, and the latter he sold Baine, Johnstone & Co. The wreck will make a good haul for some of the fishermen as the lumber would be useful in building stages and wharves, and besides there is quite a quantity of copper bolts that could be recovered.

Express Passengers.

The following passengers are on the incoming express from Port aux Basques, due here to-morrow afternoon: H. and Mrs. Andrews and 3 children, Mrs. J. Shears and daughter, Mrs. A. Andrews, G. Prebble, Miss T. Harbot, R. W. Hynes, Dr. J. O'Neil, R. and Mrs. Hynes, Mrs. M. Strickland, W. Robins, W. Wood, Miss A. S. Rowell, M. Chown, T. and Mrs. Chate, Dr. Cowperthwaite, Mrs. A. Levallois and daughter.

Crime Wave in St. John City.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 14.—One more murderous assault has been added to the steadily growing list of crimes which have marked the recent history of this city. This evening, James Howell, a colored seaman on the West India steamer Chignecto, was lured to a lonely spot in East St. John by two strange negroes, supposed to be residents of St. John, and there beaten and robbed of $100 pay which he had received by the steamer earlier in the day. When he recovered consciousness sufficiently he staggered to the main front and there was picked up by a motor car which carried him to the east St. John post office. The city police were notified and an automobile brought him to the city, where later an examination at the police station he was taken to hospital for treatment. He was able to give a good description of his assailants.

Would any man or woman in this city refuse to give some small help to a little orphan child who has neither father or mother to provide for him? Not One!

On SUNDAY NEXT the unselfish Sisters of Belvidere Orphanage are asking the Catholic people of St. John's to help a little in the upkeep of

160 FATHERLESS INNOCENTS, who must have food to eat and clothes to wear--the bare necessities of life. But a few close friends of the Institution who know of the reticence of those good ladies and their dislike of publicity, have jointly arranged to extend this appeal to

All Charitably Disposed Citizens

no matter what class or creed, who would deem it a pleasure to do something for those helpless little orphans! Could any father or mother, remembering the sheltering care given to their own dear ones, refuse to give an extra dollar to the upkeep of these little ones?

If he who "gives to the poor, lends to the Lord," won't you fathers and mothers who love your own dear little tots, please remember kindly the BELVIDERE ORPHANS on Sunday next.

Please Give Them All That You Can Spare!

THE PRAYER OF LISPING LITTLE LIPS WILL BE YOUR REWARD.

Nelly Gray.

(Author unknown.)
 There's a low green valley on the old
 Kentucky shore,
 There I've whiled many happy hours
 away,
 A-sitting and a-singing by the little cottage door,
 Where lived my darling Nelly Gray.

O, my poor Nelly Gray, they have taken you away,
 And I'll never see my darling any more,
 I'm sitting by the river, and I'm weeping all the day,
 For you've gone from the old Kentucky shore.

When the moon had climbed the mountains and the stars were shining, too,
 Then I'd take my darling Nelly
 Gray,
 And we'd float down the river in the little red canoe,
 While my hanjo sweetly I would play.

One night I went to see her, but "She's gone," the neighbors say,
 The white man bound her with his chain;
 They have taken her to Georgia, for to wear her life away,
 As she falls in the cotton and the cane."

My canoe is under water and my han-jo is unstrung,
 I'm tired of living any more;
 My eyes shall look downward and my song shall be unsung,
 While I stay on the old Kentucky shore.

My eyes are getting blinded, and I cannot see my way;
 Hark! there's somebody knocking at the door;
 O, I hear the angels calling, and I see
 my Nelly Gray;
 Farewell to the old Kentucky shore.

O, my darling Nelly Gray, up in Heaven, there, they say,
 That they'll never take you from me
 any more,
 I'm a-coming, coming, coming as the angels clear the way;
 Farewell to the old Kentucky shore!

Complaint From Burin District.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir.—Allow me space in your paper to make a few remarks regarding the disregard shown by the Government for the people of this place.

We understand that the post office and the telegraph station are to be connected, but before this is done it is absolutely necessary that a landing for the ferry boat should be made. The proper place for this would be at the Government Wharf. A fence is also needed along the road to the post office, as during rainy nights all kinds of animals shelter here, and in the morning the road is in a very bad condition for any lady or gentleman who has occasion to go that way for mail matter. It would not need much coaxing now to get men to work as cash is scarce and money can not be had for fish or oil.

Hoping the matter complained of will be attended to by the powers that be, I am,

Yours truly, LOOKER-ON.
 Port au Bras, Sept. 10.

Motorists and Truck Drivers.

TAKE NOTICE.
 Owing to numerous mud holes in the Water Street pavement, pedestrians are being treated to shower baths of filthy water thrown by passing motorists. Shop windows and the fronts of buildings on certain parts of the thoroughfare are literally plastered with mud. Motor trucks with their solid tires are responsible for most of this mud splashing, and though they do not go at an excessive speed, nevertheless the dirty fluid is thrown from under the wheels in all directions. Drivers should be cautioned to drive very slowly, else they may find themselves in for damages. A prominent gentleman some time ago received damages done to his clothing under similar circumstances. Yesterday evening two well known ladies while going up Water Street were badly splattered by a passing double tyred motor truck. One of the ladies had on a new costume, which was utterly ruined. We would suggest, pending repairs to the pavement, that all motor trucks be fitted with proper mud guards.

No Unemployed in British Columbia.

Montreal, Sept. 18.—"If anyone says there is unemployment in British Columbia, do not believe them, because there is no such thing, except with people who do not want to be employed or who refuse to work except at their own particular line," said James B. Thomson, managing director of J. B. Thomson & Sons, Limited, Vancouver, and chairman of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, who is passing through this city on his way to New York.

He added that there was plenty of work offering for men who were willing to work at a reasonable price.

Superintendent of Poor Asylum

MAKES OFFICIAL REPORT.
 Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir.—In view of the prominence given in the Police Court, the Press and elsewhere to the case of Patrick Savage, an inmate of the Poor Asylum, I have asked the Superintendent, Mr. Miller, to give me a report on the case from the date of his admission to the Asylum when he was up before the Court. Here are a few facts in connection with his admission to the Asylum, which I have considered prudent to withhold for the present, but which I will make public if necessary in defence of the Superintendent.

Will you kindly publish the above explanation with the report enclosed as of right.

Yours truly,
 (Sgd.) W. B. JENNINGS,
 Minister Public Works.

Poor Asylum.
 Sept. 19, 1921.
 Mr. R. Jennings, Esq.,
 Minister Public Works.
 Dear Sir.—In reference to Judge Orr's remarks on the Bench, which were published in Saturday's Telegram commenting on the Poor Asylum case, Patrick Savage was admitted to this Asylum Oct. 3, 1920 brought here by his daughter, Mrs. Burnes, Banerman Street. He claims that she brought him against his will. The understood he was going for a drive in the country where she had taken rooms for him. Whether right or wrong he states that she gave his daughter $500 while in hospital, for her to look after him during his lifetime. Owing to this he has never been contented and has made unpleasant both for the keeper and inmates on the ward.

A short time after he entered, his daughter, Mrs. Burnes, visited him and I called her into the office and told her that her father was not contented. I did not want to have anything to do with their family affairs, but advised her to consult with her sister and brother as regards caring for him, as he wished so much to go, as he did not want to die here. There was always a quarrel between her and Mrs. Burnes whenever she came to visit him. On one occasion she was about her father not being contented, and that the bond was very tight and threatened me that she would report to the Governor. She then went up her niece talking her up on the ward without asking permission.

He worried so much about going out to see his son that I sent the keeper with him in my own carriage, but as neither the son nor daughter would take him in, the keeper brought him back again. Later, in July, he went without leave and was brought back in the evening by Mrs. Savage. On the 10th inst. he went again without leave and when he did not turn up at night we thought that he was with one of his children. It is not correct that he was turned from this Institution, but left under the circumstances stated above. According to the rules that govern this Institution such patients shall not be re-admitted. Now that I have him here again, I have taken his boots, and if he goes out again he will have to do so in his slippers.

I think if Judge Morris had been acquainted with the facts of the case, neither he nor Inspector-General Hutchings would have made the remarks that they did in a Police Court. The remarks were not very encouraging, for it is necessary to have some discipline even in the Poor Asylum. I have nothing to be ashamed of in the way I have treated any inmate of this Institution since taking charge.

I should be only too pleased to have an inquiry, and I extend an invitation to His Honor Judge Morris and Inspector-General Hutchings to pay this Institution a visit when they will have an opportunity of seeing for themselves what changes have been made. I am quite aware that this, like all other institutions, is kept up by the tax-payers.

Yours truly,
 (Sgd.) A. W. MILLER,
 Superintendent.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
 23 THE PHARMACY

The Origin of Black and White.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir.—For fear that if his letter was not replied to, Mr. Whitty, or the public, might think that we were treating him with silent contempt, I am going to answer my old friend Neddy with whom I became acquainted when he, as Chairman, and I, as Solicitor of the Unemployed Workers together followed the flag to the House of Assembly and where at the Bar of the House he so eloquently voiced the demands of his followers who, while willing, were unable to procure work to provide the wherewithal for themselves and their starving families. His demands were acceded to and such a leader should not be treated with indifference by the very highest in the land and he certainly shall not be so treated by the National Sports Committee nor the A.A.A. of both of which I am certain he is a strong supporter. As he is aware it is a difficult matter to please everyone. Even while fighting the battle of the downtrodden he himself experienced that. He was misunderstood, maligned, even lied about by those who should have known and acted better. He thinks our athletes at Halifax should run under the pink, white and green colours which he claims are the colours of Newfoundland. The first question is, are they? About that there is a difference of opinion. He knows and I know, we all know, that there are some in this country who would not sail under a green flag, even if it were modified to have any friction. What objection can there be to black and white. In 1897 the Terra Nova Football Team was formed and their colours were black and white and white they had had men, they wiped out everything before them. The Terra Nova Hockey Team won the Championship of Newfoundland and the Sir Cavendish Hockey Cup. Their colours were also black and white. Terra Nova is the Latin for Newfoundland. Our men represent Newfoundland. No one can very well object to black and white. It is neither orange nor Irish. It is typical of the country and its people. We are neither argue in disputes nor are we as black as we are painted. We are a little good and half bad. We must eliminate orange and green. We cannot use all white nor all black so we have combined the two.

It was not necessary for Mr. Whitty to say that he has no animosity towards the officers of the A.A.A. for everyone knows that "he is all right" and that he has only the welfare of the country at heart and in voicing his opinion is only doing what everyone should be allowed to do on every subject religious or secular.

Yours sincerely,
 GEO. W. B. AYRE,

Wireless as Life-Saver.

London, Sept. 14.—Presiding at the annual meeting of one of the Marconi Companies in London, Mr. Godfrey Isaacs said the range of a ship's installation had been increased under normal conditions to between 2,000 and 3,000 miles, and thus a ship crossing the Atlantic was now able to keep in direct communication with one or other of the coasts during the whole voyage.

Wireless telephony was destined to play an important part on ships at sea, and the great value of the wireless direction-finder was demonstrated recently very emphatically when the steamer Fanad Head was instrumental in saving the personnel of the Norwegian steamer Ontanga. The latter vessel was off Newfoundland, and, giving her position by dead reckoning, was nine miles out in her calculations. The only ship which was able to discover her correct position was the Fanad Head by means of the Marconi direction-finder, and those on board the Antanaga owed their lives to this fact.

Drop in Shipping Values.

The following figures, in regard to the sale of a 25-year-old steamer will give some idea as to the drop in shipping values: The steamer in question is the Kinross, of Cardiff, 4,115 tons deadweight, purchased by a Cardiff firm in 1919 for £23,500 and sold by them the following year for £20,000 to the British-Hispano Line, Ltd. It has now been sold by the last-named to Italian buyers for £9,000—a depreciation from £20 to £9 a ton in value in a couple of years.

The 31-year-old steamer Temaire, 550 tons deadweight, which changed hands eighteen months ago at £45,000 and six months later at £33,500, has been sold to the West Shipping Co., Ltd., Cardiff, for less than £10,000 or £18 a ton, as against £22 per ton eighteen months ago.

Greatest Wireless Station in World.

Montreal, Sept. 16.—A. H. Morse, managing director of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of Canada, Limited, stated to-day that his Company had decided to erect at La Prairie, a new wireless station, which when completed, will be the greatest in the world.

A start is to be made at once by a research staff in preparation for the erection of two 300 feet steel towers, which will be set up this fall near the King Edward Highway at La Prairie. The new station will be of national importance and will be the latest of several forward moves made by the Marconi Company.

La Prairie is on the St. Lawrence River about ten miles southwest of Montreal.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHY SAY IT?

"I have reached the point in the last few years where I try never to say anything about anyone which I would mind having carried back to him. That is, unless I have reason to know that a man is a crook and that other people ought to know it so that they can look out for him. Then I speak up. But the sort of things I mean that I try not to say, are the sharp little criticisms, or sarcastic comments that don't do anyone any particular good and may do someone a lot of harm."

Just Decency.

The man who made the above statement is a man of about 35, a good citizen but very far from being a goody-goody, and I think it represents not so much a high moral principle with him as his idea of common-sense, business sense, and decency. And when you come to think of it, that resolution is all of that, isn't it? What possible good do we ever get of the sharp things that most of us say now and then about other people, except perhaps the joy of relieving our minds and, if we say it well enough, the tribute of a laugh or a smile?

Kindly Wit and the Opposite.

But behind that laugh or smile always lurks the listener's feeling that he may be the next victim to the wit of your wit. Someone quoted to me recently Sterne's distinction between "the festivity and the malignity of wit." We are all conscious of such a distinction and, though we laugh at the wrong sort of wit, it does not endear its perpetrator to us.

And in the scale against the tribute of our audience's smile and its interest, there is always the chance that what you have said may be carried back to the person of whom you spoke by those strange "vultures" who are ever ready to do such work. The result may be a broken friendship (for inconceivable as it may seem, we say such things about those we call friends), a lost business opportunity, or an enduring and perhaps dangerous enemy. There is no better habit in the world one can get than the habit of keeping under better control that little member that can kindle so great a fire.

The Three Things I Would Strike Out.

If a Fairy Godmother were to come to me and, after the manner of fairy godmothers who always think in threes, permit me to strike out three things from my past, all three would be sins of the tongue. One was a cruel taunt that I regretted the minute it left my lips, one was a friend's secret that I told in one of those moments of confidence-intoxication, and one was a silly thing that I said without realizing how silly it was going to sound.

I believe I have quoted before that magnificent proverb: "Of the unspoken word thou art master, but the spoken word is master of thee." Surely, it is worth quoting many times! Quote it to yourself when you start to say something you ought not to say and remain the happy master of your destiny instead of the slave of your folly.

The Cavendishes Discussed.

They are frank about vice-royalty over in England. For instance, the London Mail says: Lady Rachel Cavendish, chaperoned by her sister, Lady Maud Mackintosh, and with other good friends, lunched with the Prince of Wales at York House the other day. She is a charming girl, fond of sport, and is very good natured. Her mother, the Duchess of Devonshire, looked rather anxious once, when she was still in the schoolroom. "I'm afraid," she said, "that Rachel will grow up to be a beauty." She needn't have been so afraid. Lady Rachel is nice-looking, but her features, like those of all the Cavendishes, are rather too pronounced for actual beauty.

Remember the Orphans.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—May I ask for a portion of your space to bring to the attention of our Catholic fellow citizens the desirability of giving to the little orphans at Belvidere a record collection on Sunday next. Although for over a quarter of a century very little has been publicly said about the untiring activities of the Belvidere Sisters, still, recently their friends and well-wishers have compelled them to discard the cloak of modesty which so long enveloped them, and have shown to our charitable people the great needs arising from the work at that Institution. Intended primarily to accommodate about one hundred children it is now taxed far beyond its capacity, and under conditions that are not pleasing to either Sisters or children, one hundred and sixty little ones are being cared for at Belvidere. This situation has become so acute indeed that steps have recently been taken to enlarge the building, providing sleeping and recreation apartments, but the collection to be taken up on Sunday is not intended for this purpose.

Fortunately, a number of Catholic gentlemen have taken the matter in hand and have promised their support, and this is the only means by which an addition could be erected, but the regular collection is to provide food, fuel and clothing for the very large family of little ones that are being cared for. As a Reverend preacher at the Cathedral so pointedly mentioned on Sunday, we have only to recall the hard struggle it is to maintain a family of three, five or seven in order to bring home to us very conclusively the great difficulty that the Sisters meet with in trying to properly feed, clothe and keep warm such an abnormally large family.

A visit to that building would melt a heart of stone when one sees the little tots from one year up to ten or twelve years heretofore of father and mother and housed at Belvidere Orphanage, a heritage for those of us who through a kind Providence have more of the needs and necessities of life. There is hardly any need to use your valued space in stressing the point. Every householder knows full well both the desirability of the annual collection and the need to have it a record one. As a point of information it might be interesting to know that, big as was the collection of last and previous years, it only sufficed to pay the coal bills, not to speak of all the food that is consumed and the many articles of clothing that are needed.

The Sisters of course would never be able to perform this herculean task were it not for the fact that the Institution is practically god-fathered by the kind-hearted Catholic people of the City, and many of our generous Protestant friends as well, and by their united efforts the Institution has been kept going for the past and will continue to do its self-appointed work in the future.

The writer has an intimate knowledge of the pressing needs and of the many many bills that are waiting to be met by the proceeds of this collection, and in brief, the purpose of this letter is to ask a kindly consideration of same by every reader of this paper. Whether you have twenty cents or ten dollars to spare, despite all the many knows that they are legion—give it calls that are upon you—and the writer with a kindly heart to the innocent little orphans at Belvidere on Sunday next. There used to be a saying in war time "Give till it hurts," and this saying was never more applicable than in the present instance. Many call there are of course, both from Church and State, private and public, but never one that so arouses the latent charity and love of humanity as the call voiced in the pulpits on Sunday and recorded in the press for the entire week.

If these few words of mine, poorly penned as they are, could only form a faint outline of the great need for help, I would be well repaid. Those self-sacrificing Sisters who have given their entire life to the cause of the orphaned poor, ask nothing for themselves—they only ask if for these little ones, and in their name I make the request that every reader will help on Sunday next to give them sustenance for the coming year.

Sincerely yours,
J. J. L.

Household Notes.

A red-hot stove is a waste of fuel. Eggs are delicious scalloped with cheese. Mushrooms give a savory taste to oysters. Bury a yeast cake in salt to keep it fresh. A four-pound fish should serve six or seven people. A long-haired dustpan is a household treasure. If the fern drops its fronds, it is probably rootbound. Chopped raisins or nuts are good in chocolate taffies. Keep all recipe books in a drawer in the kitchen table. Stale cake is the foundation of many a dainty dessert. Allow soap time to harden and it will last twice as long. Silver should never stand overnight without washing. A little lemon juice improves the flavor of roasted carrots.

The Careless Smoker.

A fool there was and his pipe he lit.
(Even as you and I)
On a forest trail where the leaves were
To become ablaze from the smallest bit
Of sparks—and the fool he furnished it.
The day was windy and dry.

The forest was burned to its very roots,
Even beneath the ground,
With the flowers, the birds and the poor dumb brutes.
Old heavy oak, and the tender shoots
Which might have made logs but for such galeots.
Allowed to wander round.

The lumber-jack has now passed on
His pay day comes no more
And the screech-owls haunt the camp at dawn.
Where the cook's tin pan woke the men of brown
But the mill is silent, the trees are gone,
The soil and the forest floor.

A deadly sight are those hills of rocks
Which spite upon the
No hope for the human, no food for the locks
The floods must be held by expensive
locks
And the harbor is silted to the docks
The ships no more are seen.

But the fool smokes on in the forest still
Leaves campfires burning, too;
While the patient public pays the bill
And the nation's wealth is destroyed for all
If the law doesn't get him, Old Satan will
When his smoking days are through.

False Teeth and Fitness.

Hints by a Famous Dental Surgeon.

Most accidents arising from false teeth can be avoided by the exercise of proper care. This view, expressed by the T-B man by Sir Frank Colyer, the distinguished dental surgeon, should reassure the thousands of people whose fears have been stimulated by the recent case in which a cyclist swallowed his false teeth with fatal result. The accident would not have occurred had the victim paid due regard to the fitting of his teeth.

Lack of precaution in this respect has led to many accidents. To wear a loose-fitting set of teeth, particularly if the plate is a small one, is to court trouble. The wise person will see that his or her teeth are fixed firmly in the mouth, from which they should be removed only when absolutely necessary.

Keep the Plates Clean. Many people, it was pointed out in the Interviewer, get into the habit of taking out their false teeth for no particular reason, or of agitating them with the tongue. Both are manifestations of a form of nervousness, and should be checked.

One question that often exercises the minds of false teeth users is whether their teeth should be worn at night. They should be taken out and kept in a glass of water, to which a pinch of permanganate of potash has been added. No more than enough to discolor the water should be used, as otherwise the teeth may be stained. The fear expressed by many people that their mouths or gums will lose their shape during the night if the teeth are not fixed is groundless.

Dentists say that the majority of wearers of false teeth are not sufficiently careful in the matter of cleanliness. It was reported at an inquest held on a soldier not long ago that his dental plate could not have been cleaned for three months, as a result of which negligence he died of blood-poisoning.

Such cases are rare, but there is no doubt that ill-health is encouraged by lack of care in this respect. False teeth plates should be cleaned at least four times a day—on rising, and after each meal.

Special attention should be paid to the condition of the plate when replacing it in the morning. The tiniest fragment of food left on a plate may attract germs, and germs may mean pyorrhea.

Practical Advice. One of the best methods of cleaning a dental plate is to use a small stiff nail-brush and a solution of ordinary soap and water. Soap extracts are equally useful. Every indentation in the plate should be scoured out thoroughly, the whole being rinsed afterwards in clean water.

The unpleasant taste in the mouth of which many users of false teeth complain is often traceable to an unclean plate, while the breath may be tainted in the same way.

Those who indulge in sports and games should be careful if they possess artificial teeth. It is unwise to play football or any rough-and-tumble game with false teeth in one's mouth. Swimmers and divers, too, should be careful. It requires courage to face a crowd of admirers with toothless gums, but a combination of false teeth and false pride may spell disaster. More than one athlete has had his career cut short by disregarding this advice.

False teeth are not a modern innovation. They were known to the Egyptians in 4000-3000 B.C. Specimens of bridge work of this period are preserved in the Corcoran Museum in Italy. The Romans also knew and practised the art of dental restoration, but the greatest advance was made during the nineteenth and present centuries. Edward's dentures used by Physicians Carpentier and Chaplin.

ARE STARS AT LONDON SCRAP.

London.—George Carpentier saw Joe Beckett knock out Boy McCormick here the other night and did also Charlie Chaplin. Chaplin conceded his identity to the big society crowd. He hid in the back of a box. It was announced before the boat that if Chaplin was present the management would give five hundred dollars to any person identifying him. There was a tumult of howls for Charlie, but he was not found. An evening-gown society lady sitting at his moment was embarrassed when the crowd halted her, thinking she was Charlie's elaborately disguised.

Then an unnamed millionaire offered three thousand dollars to any individual offered from the stage to contribute fifty thousand dollars to any charity if Chaplin would stay for a three round bout with Georges Carpentier. More howls for Chaplin. Charlie was reticent. Georges, with his customary grace, agreed, and was willing to take his chance in such a combat. Charlie, however, was silent. The crowd was good naturedly disappointed that he didn't box, as Georges was willing. Chaplin slipped out of the Opera House at the conclusion of the bout, a crowd of five thousand awaiting him in the streets.

BAIRD & CO. WHOLESALE AGENTS ST. JOHN'S

Johnson Confident He is Better Than Jack Dempsey.

Boston.—Jack Johnson, former world's holder of the heavy weight title, has high hopes of regaining his former honor. As he says so himself, it must be at least the high hopes part of it. Jack has taken the Old Howard folks into his confidence as to the Dempsey part of it. He says he has had a good afternoon and evening with a sparring stunt, with the customary breaking of the rope; also three six-minute rounds with his partner, Jack Ward, a Philadelphia light-heavy-weight.

Johnson made his bow for the week at the theatre yesterday afternoon, and got a good hand from the unusually large gathering of fans who had assembled. The same was the case last evening.

"I wish to say that I am open to fight Dempsey," said Jack in his stage speech. "You have read and heard many criticisms of Jack Johnson, but I am big and strong and can carry the load. I am not discouraged, and feel very confident as to the future."

Two Charges Against "Fatty" Arbuckle.

San Francisco, Sept. 15.—Decision to try Roscoe Arbuckle, the film comedian, on a charge of murder or manslaughter in connection with the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, film actress, is expected to be made by District Attorney Brady to-day.

Arbuckle has two separate charges pending against him. In one, a complaint sworn in police court by Mrs. E. M. Belmont, friend of Miss Rappe, Arbuckle is charged with murder.

Following this charge on last Tuesday night, the grand jury indicted him for manslaughter, and the true bill is to be returned before superior judge E. P. Shortall sometime to-day.

District Attorney Brady announced that he would confer with his assistants to determine on which of the two charges he would bring Arbuckle to trial. It was pointed out by Brady that should he decide to try the film star on a charge of manslaughter and the murder charge be dismissed, Arbuckle would be admitted to bail under the California laws, a person charged with murder cannot obtain bail.

The coroner's inquest into the death of Miss Rappe was the most important feature of the Arbuckle case yesterday. The coroner's jury returned a charge of manslaughter.

Article Ten.

Article ten of the League of Nations commits the countries having membership in that body to maintain the territorial integrity of the nations as they are to-day. The United States objects to that clause, because it would involve participation in European affairs. But as the American Republic has not joined the League, its promise do not deserve much consideration. That country has no intention of joining the League. Canadian representatives also object to article ten, and Hon. J. C. Doherty is now at Geneva fighting the adoption of the clause.

Without that article the League of Nations would be as influential as a debating club. If any country began a war of aggression all the League could do would be to give advice. A few kind words to a country like Germany setting out to despoil its neighbors of their territories would not be more effective than pouring oil on a duck's back to drown it. Unless there is force behind the League of Nations, it will become merely a League of Nations. And nobody will have either fear or respect for its pronouncements. But if the League could reinforce its decisions with armies the most aggressive race in the world would be held in check. Article ten is therefore the germ of the whole movement to put an end to war.—The Sentinel.

English Widely Known.

There was once a real convenience in having French as a fixed, official language for the conduct of all diplomacy. For one thing, it was much the most widely spoken of all European languages, at a time when even fewer public men than now knew any living foreign language except their own. Until the latter growth of the British Empire, only Latin and Spanish had enjoyed any comparable ascendancy. Another point, that worked in its favor was that the universal use of a language foreign to all non-French diplomats was agreeable to the class from which diplomats have usually been drawn. Its use supplied a rudimentary test for the exclusion of possible diplomats who had not the education conventional in that class. Throughout the nineteenth century the monopoly was gradually breaking down, and a long step was taken in 1918 when the Treaty of Versailles was made out officially in both French and English, and not in French alone.—London, England.

Physical Development

And its Bearing on Health and Strength.

By GEE.

METHOD ADVISED.
Having selected the advice of an authority on the subject, what you consider are perfectly safe exercises for your condition, first of all learn to go through them without having occasion to refer to the descriptive matter. At the outset you may as well bring into play the methods already advised, i.e. Tell yourself you will have no difficulty in understanding the proper execution of the different movements, see yourself in your mind's eye having mastered them, and concentrate yourself on them without allowing the mind to wander for a moment from the subject in hand. This brings us down to what is one of the strongest features of making results certain—suggestions.

Each morning and each evening, having made your selection, before proceeding them you must say to yourself, not aloud, but mentally: "These exercises are certain to bring about the desired result! (Here form a mental picture of the result or results, whatever you desire, in the mind's eye, as if they were already attained). It is only a question of the regular application, and I am conscious of being the happy possessor of a tremendous force which is irresistible. After all it is not much of a task to attempt to improve my physique to a certain standard, to get rid of a troublesome complaint, when it is only natural that I should enjoy perfect health and strength. Given the right conditions there is nothing can prevent the working of natural laws, and I will allow them, and aid them, to work their will on myself."

The above is a thought to fix the will, to help concentrate, and there is no need to say the words over and over again aloud. This is where many people in using suggestion go wrong. Avoid mechanical repetitions. Simply pass an idea through the mind similar to the above, and after that feel that you are on the right road, and that nothing can stay your progress. The fact that you are only endeavoring to aid the working of natural laws will establish a consciousness of right and might, with a faith in success which will itself go far to secure it. Tell yourself that you are the possessor of tremendous power, that the seeds of perfect health, strength and character have been carefully sown by nature, and only need time and care to develop. This will exert a direct influence, just as people are apt to imagine how wicked they are and eventually become so.

Salvage Notes.
We understand that the quantity of fish bought at the Union Store, during the season has reached the price of $5 a qt. From reliable sources we gather that a good quality of Shore fish is at present $7 per qt. in St. John's, with good chances for a higher figure. We are getting serious about the boasted fish prices of Mr. Coaker in such a position, and the opinions of those shippers when they realize their loss of $2 net on each quintal of fish shipped.

Marvels of Artificial Respiration

The case reported recently of a man whose heart went on beating for hours after his breathing had stopped has puzzled many people, but not those familiar with curious matters. We are told that the man's breathing stopped because of a tumor which obstructed the blood from circulating in that part of the brain which controlled his breathing, and that the doctors carried on artificial respiration, and so kept the heart working. When all the muscles are relaxed, and the body gets cold, very little oxygen is used up; it is this case about that there was enough oxygen in the man's blood to keep his heart going for some time, even when the doctors gave him up as hopeless and ceased artificial respiration.

Kept Beating by Days.
If a man, executed by hanging, were cut down at once and given artificial respiration, his heart and other organs, but not consciousness, might be kept alive for many hours. Thus students of medicine are able to study the functions of living organs, such as those of the heart in animals after their decapitation, the blood vessels in the neck being tied up to prevent loss of blood, and a tube put in the windpipe and connected with a bellows for the pumping in of air.

It is a remarkable fact that the heart cut out from a recently dead child was brought to life and made to beat for some days by circulating through its blood vessels a warm oxygenated solution of those salts which are present in the blood.

The salts solution must contain potassium, the single radio-active element which enters into the composition of the body. The place of this element can be taken by another radio-active element of proper strength, and the curious conclusion is reached that the wonderful rays given off by radium and similar elements are necessary for keeping the heart beating.

Just where the big veins open into it, there is some curious tissue, a half muscle and half nerve. This acts as the "pacer-maker" of the heart, controlling its rhythm. A touch of cold to this part slows the heart immediately. A bundle of the same kind of curious tissue branches through the heart and directs the beat to take place in the right sequence, so that the blood is received and pumped out and sent circulating through the vessels.

Disease either of this "pacer-maker" or bundle can cause curious disturbances of the heart's action, which are nowadays recorded electrically. Each beat of the heart is accompanied by an electrical current set up in the heart, and by putting the hands, or hands and feet, in vessels of salt water, and leading off from these to a suitable electrical current-recorder, photographs are obtained which indicate the normal or abnormal character of the heart-beat.

"De Swanee Ribber."

An interesting story is told regarding one of the most popular songs in the world, "The Old Folks at Home." Its author was Stephen Collins Foster, who has been called "America's premier balladist." He wrote one hundred and seventy songs, including "Old Kentucky Home," "Old Black Joe," and "Old Uncle Ned."

When he had written "The Old Folks at Home," he was displeased with the name of the river given in the first verse; in the original the verse runs:—
Way down upon de Fodder ribber,
Far, far away,
Dere's wha my heart is turning ebbin,
Dere's wha my brudder play.

He asked his brother Morrison for a better name for the river.

"What Southern stream do you suggest instead of 'Fodder'?" Morrison offered Yassoo, which Stephen thought wouldn't do. "Well, let's consult an atlas," said Morrison. On a map of Florida they found a little river called Swanee. "That's it exactly," cried Stephen.

Although millions of copies of Foster's songs were sold, his life was a tragic one. He gave his first two songs to a friend, who made ten thousand dollars out of them. Marrying in 1850, his life was very unhappy. Eventually he went to New York, where he became a vagabond.

It was at this period of his life that he strayed one day into a shop and, sitting at a piano, won from the keys the wistful, pleading tune, "Come where my love lies dreaming." A man who was present offered him five dollars for the songs, and he accepted gratefully.

Foster died in a public ward at the Bellevue Hospital, New York, and is entered on the records as a labourer.

Why Lighthouses Must be Visited Frequently

Some lighthouses are independent of any aid for months on end, but it is not until they cannot be left for long without some unforeseen event occurring to interfere with the working of the light.

A lighthouse erected on a desert island in the tropics, and standing forty feet high, had been working perfectly for many years, but one day a vessel was seen from the lighthouse. A vessel was sent out which cruised about the island in day-time. The lighthouse was considerably surprised to see no trace of the lighthouse could be seen. An investigation party party was sent and it was found entirely covered by rank creepers and vegetation which had grown up around it.

Birds are a frequent cause of trouble in lighthouses, as to prevent them beating their wings against the glass, wire screens are erected round all modern lights. In the case of a new lighthouse these screens have done more harm than good, for the birds make of them a regular nesting-place and settle there by the hundred, with the result that within a few weeks the screen is covered with deposit, and the beam of light is so obstructed as to render it of little value until the wire is cleaned.

Illuminated buoys are fitted with metal spikes to prevent birds settling upon them and obscuring the light. An observed light at sea has often led to disastrous consequences when ships depended on it for guidance.

Mail Car in Collision.

Early this morning the Royal Mail Van figured in a bad smash up, when going East. It collided with another motor car bound West. The accident happened on Theatre Hill, near the Maritime Theatre. The Mail coach had the front left wheel broken off, the radiator smashed and the dasher badly twisted. The other car received only minor damages. The road where the accident occurred is very narrow, and the cars collided when the East bound car turned the corner from Duckworth Street.

PA'S INSTRUCTIONS.

It's a dinner or a dance, a wedding or a small affair. Ma tells Pa what to say and do and he goes to get there. She wouldn't think of starting out to mingle with the social swim unless she's taken Pa aside and properly instructed him.

"Remember please," she says to him, "the hostess has some claim on you."

Do not stay in the smoking room the way you very often do.

Oh, I hope for goodness' sake to-night you will not start to talk. Those very old and silly jokes you somehow seem to like so well.

"If Mrs. Ponsbury is there, I hope to her you will be nice."

Pay her some slight attention please, although it is a sacrifice.

Don't forget you're getting old and almost ready for the shelf. Don't moon around the pretty girls and make a fool out of yourself.

There will be many strangers there, be careful of your speech and take good care to-night you don't commit your customary foolish blunders.

Just one word more—if there should be some woman there you think too fat.

To dance with her you're duty-bound. I want you to remember that!

Pa says he hopes that Ma ain't be all dis together, so that when they start for heaven she'll be willing to properly instruct him then.

He says if he must go alone to mingle with the angel throng.

In spite of all he's learned on earth, whatever he does it will be wrong.

Mrs. Gallant Says Friends Notice a Big Change in Her

New Brunswick Woman Is Like A Different Person Since Troubles Ended.

"My friends and neighbors are simply astonished at the improvement in me, for I'm like a different woman since taking Tanaic," said Mrs. Frank T. Gallant, 287 Dominion St., Moncton, N.B.

"For three years I had an awful time with stomach trouble and never ate a meal but what I suffered misery for hours afterwards. I lost my appetite and didn't eat enough to keep up my strength and I grew thinner and weaker every day. I was so miserable and worried that life was just a burden to me."

Tanaic has made me feel just like I had been wanting to feel for so many years. It is splendid now, my digestion is perfect and I have gotten back all the weight I lost. I'm able to enjoy life again and feel bright and happy all the time. There is nothing too good for me to say about Tanaic, and I never expect to be without it."

Tanaic is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

The Romantic Origin of Chess.

Several hundred years ago there lived a young and dissolute Indian prince named Behub. So deeply were his subjects afflicted by his excesses that a native named Nastr determined to bring his tyrant to reason.

With this end in view, he invented a game, in which the king, impotent by himself, is protected by his subjects. The fame of this extraordinary game spread quickly, and at last it attracted the attention of Behub. Nastr was summoned to teach him the game.

The young Behub availed himself of the opportunity to instill into the mind of this tyrant the principle of good government.

Struck by the truth which Nastr presented, the prince expressed his willingness to confer a liberal remuneration upon the young native. He asked him to state his own terms.

An Impossible Request.

Nastr demanded as many grains of wheat as would arise from allowing one for the first square, two for the second, four for the third, and so on, doubling the number for each of the sixty-four squares on the chess-board.

The king, piqued at the apparently trivial nature of the demand, desired him, somewhat angrily, to ask for a gift which would be more worthy of acceptance. But when Nastr answered to his request, the monarch ordered the required quantity of corn to be delivered to him.

Upon calculating the amount, however, the superintendents of the public granaries found the demand to be so enormous that not only Behub's kingdom, but all Hindustan would have been inadequate to discharge it.

Behub admired the young Brahmin for his remarkable ingenuity, and Nastr was installed as the king's prime minister.

The game seems to have been known in Hindustan by the name of Chaturanga. It was changed by the Persians into Chetrang, but the Arabs, who took possession of that country, had neither the initial nor the final letters of that word in their alphabet. Consequently they altered the name to Shatranj. Though at one time the Chinese claimed to have played chess in 174 B.C., the Hindus played it long before that time.

Secrets of Your Heart.

IT PUMPS 1000 TONS OF BLOOD EVERY YEAR.

A wonderful announcement that we are on the eve of far-reaching discoveries which may reveal the secrets of heart disease was made in the House of Commons by Captain Elliott when speaking against the Dogs' Vivisection Bill, which threatened to stop further experiments.

It has been proved that the heart-beat in man and the heart-beat in a dog are almost identical, and investigations of the secret of the rhythm of the heart and the disturbances in that rhythm prove the cause of heart disease.

These remarkable discoveries, which may bring about a complete revolution in medicine, are the fruits of the genius of Dr. Thomas Lewis, of University College Hospital, London. Although not yet forty years of age, Dr. Lewis is one of the greatest living authorities of the heart.

Like most great men, he does not court publicity, and had it not been necessary for the nature of his discoveries to be disclosed in order to defeat the Dogs' Vivisection Bill, which threatened to stop his work, the world would not have heard of them.

We have Dr. Lewis's assurance that the animals experience no suffering of any kind, the operations being performed under surgical anesthesia.

Few people realize that the human heart is a marvellous pumping engine. Its work, from a man's cradle to his grave, is incessant and stupendous. On an average, each human heart beats about 4,800 times an hour!

Every single minute, after its seventy-five heart-beats, this wonderful engine has pumped 750 cubic inches of blood. This means that the heart pumps over 325,000 cubic feet of blood every year.

Think of the heart as a water pump. By the same reckoning it would pump, approximately, no less than 7,000 tons of water in the course of a year.

If it were possible to collect in a cubical reservoir all the blood pumped by a human heart in one year, that reservoir would be about 61ft. square—large enough to contain about 1,700,000 gallons of water.

If It Were Possible!
There are about 1,700,000,000 people in the world. If all the blood pumped in one year by these seventeen hundred million hearts could be collected into one reservoir, that reservoir would have to be 72,840ft. square.

Some idea of its size will be gathered when it is remembered that Mount Everest, the highest peak in the world, would, with its 29,000ft. of height, be dwarfed beside a reservoir of 72,840ft. high!—T.H. Bitts.

"Dry" Training.

Some American masters of the ring claim that the reason for the relative failure of British heavyweights is that in training they persist in keeping up the old country tradition of taking their "Beash" or their "Ale" and this practice undermines both stamina and lessens activity. In a current American contemporary there appears what claims to be a conversation between Jeffrey and Dempsey, the past and present champions. In the course of the conversation the older boxer, referring to present day and recent British heavyweights, made this comment: "They are all mixed-ale boxers. They all drink ale and beer, and ale makes a man slow and logey. They don't take a drink just now and then, but they have their pint with every meal. Drinking ale all the time makes a fellow mushy. They'll never have good fighters in England until they get out the mixed-ale diet. They've had the wrong system there for two hundred years and they don't like to change." To this statement Dempsey remarked that he was glad to hear of it being made, for he himself never drinks. The writer of the article declares that at the present day on this side of the Atlantic the system of "dry" training for athletes has become practically universal, and it is unnecessary to say that the athletes on this side of the American seem to have been carrying off the prizes everywhere they make their appearance.

Men who really have the right to speak with authority in such matters also declare that the training and competing athlete is prevented from reaching his best by the use of tobacco in any form.

Amid all this discussion, however, it is but fair to retain in mind the fact that in the past England produced some tremendous fighters such as Broughton, the "Tipton Slasher," Sayers and many others. In those days, however, every ringster drank freely and lived at top speed, and so all met on even terms, as far as that was concerned, but undoubtedly the best scientific and professional opinion today is distinctly in favor of the "dry" athlete.—Acadian Recorder.

Is Palmistry a Science?
It is contended by some experts that the hand is a map of life; that the lines on the palm and fingers indicate the milestones in our lives, and that palmistry is a science, which, however, has been brought into disrepute by charlatans, quacks, and fanatics.

Others declare that anyone with the power of observation, aided by a lens, ought to be able to reconstruct the leading characteristics of the person whose hand is under examination. Every man's hand bears some evidence of his daily occupation. The right hand of the navvy; the depression in the palm of the carpenter and sculptor from chisel, mallet, and hammer; the "twine-finger" of the shop assistant; the corns on the fingers of the violinist—almost every occupation lends peculiarity to the worker's hand.

An Easy Road to Fortune!
Furthermore, consumption, heart disease, rheumatism, gosh, nerve disease, paralysis, as well as diseases resulting from excesses in alcohol, tobacco, and drugs, are betrayed by the hand or nails.

The trading palmist knows this, and has no difficulty in playing on the credulity of those whose money is in excess of their sense.

An eminent scientist has said: "The modern professional palmist forms a judgment and guess as to his or her client's character and probable past and future, by indications and information obtained from the client's face, manner, conversation, and costume. If a vague prophecy made by the fortune-teller should by hazard turn out to be near the truth, it is remembered and quoted by the client as a proof of the genuineness of palmistry."

It is obvious that persons who possessed the power to foretell the future would not waste time extracting fees from the public. They would speedily make a fortune on the Stock Exchange or Turf!

Resists the Canadian Climate!

A Canadian Battery should be more than merely made in Canada. It should be so constructed as to render satisfactory service under the severe driving conditions encountered in this country. The extreme temperature, the long months of idleness and, sometimes, lack of proper attention all tend to destroy the insulation.

When the insulation is weakened, the plates are likely to be ruined. Between the plates of the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery is used the strongest known insulating material—RUBBER. Each Willard Threaded Rubber Insulator is pierced by 196,000 threads or "wicks," making the rubber uniformly porous for the free circulation of the battery solution. As a result, owners of the Canadian Willard Threaded Rubber Batteries secure unusually long mileage and low cost per mile.

Enjoying your friend's sound sleep won't get you the sleep you need. Watch what he drinks and ask him the reason why

You can't help noticing the man who comes down to the office in the morning with ruddy cheeks and clear sparkling eyes—full of energy, and eager for the tasks of the day.

He is physically "fit"—and can do twice the amount of work the average person can do, without becoming fatigued.

If you go out to lunch with this man you'll notice that probably he avoids tea and coffee, though he may drink Postum—the well-known and delicious beverage, satisfying in flavor.

This is the secret of his superb health. He isn't putting the drugs from tea or coffee into his system, three times every day. As a consequence he sleeps like a healthy baby all night. His sleep refreshes and rests him. He has perfect control of his nerves.

Do not delay another day in starting back on the road to robust health. The rich, delightful flavor of Postum will surprise and please you.

Order Postum from your Grocer today. Drink this hot, refreshing beverage in place of tea or coffee for ten days and see what a wonderful difference it will make in the way you feel.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 30 minutes.
