Have you noticed how general, among people who desire to build in these days, is the ambition to have a snug "little" home; whereas, a few years ago, bigness counted? What has wrought this change? Partly, no doubt, the scarcity and high cost of domestic help; partly the increased cost of heating. One does not like to admit that the general tendency towards small families is also a factor but unfortunately that feature of the situation cannot altogether be ignored.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The sun never sets on the British Empire. America is the country upon which the moonshine never sets.

The announcement of aluminum at less than one-third its present price by a new process of manufacture from clay, direct, will be welcomed by many others as well as housekeepers. It will be in wide demand at the lower price.

The equipment of two automobiles as traveling dental parlors to look after the dental requirements of children in outlying settlements was decided upon at a recent meeting of the Provincial executive of the Red Cross Society at Regina.

It is predicted that building costs are likely soon to take a drop. When these costs reach a reasonable level, as they are bound to do eventually, there is every probability that a building boom such as Canada has never before experienced will follow. The scarcity of dwelling houses in cities, towns and villages is becoming more and more marked.

Sir Sam Hughes, the doughty warrior, has passed into the Great Beyond. In his lifetime Sir Sam had fought many a battle through the Press, on the hustlings and in Parliament, and like all strong men made friends and not a few enemies. It is safe to say that at no time in his life had he as many friends as during the last few months when he waged a courageous battle with ill-health. It was "the one fight more, the best and the last." A great Warrior has gone Home.

The genial editor of the Christian Advocate (Nashville) likes a good story, as most wholesome people do, and so passes the following along in his editorial notes: "Several months ago, when Dr. Hyer resigned as president of the Southern Methodist University, Bishop Mouzon went to Louisville to see if Dr. Boaz could be secured to take Dr. Hyer's place. In a day or two the Bishop wired to Dallas. This is the form in which the operator at Dallas wrote and delivered the telegram: "Booze is available. Call a meeting of the committee, Mouzon."

According to a Paris cable, garlic munching may become a habit of elderly people who are threatened with hardening of the arteries, if there is any virtue in a discovery just made by three famous physicians. A report by the doctors to the Biological Society declares that garlic supplies a valuable remedy for arterial tension. The root can be either chewed, eaten with salads or steeped in spirits. If used with the spirits it is allowed to steep for three weeks and then injected intravenously at the rate of thirty drops daily. Many experiments have shown that a week's treatment reduces the blood pressure to practically normal.

Henry Ford has found a profitable use for the world's hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of war explosives, hitherto considered practically worthless. The Ford Company, by his direction, is purchasing 857 carloads or 55,000,000 pounds, of cordite gunpowder made by the British Government during the war which has been deteriorating in the great arsenals because no one wanted it. It is worth $5,250,000 at war-time prices. The cordite, considered the most powerful and expensive explosive known, is to be made into artificial leather by a new process developed at the Ford Company's Engineering laboratories. This process halves the cost of leather, according to engineers.

Celluloid is being used to a great extent than formerly for the manufacture of toilet articles, including combs and backs of hair brushes, and for children's toys. The very inflammable nature of this material represents a serious fire hazard and one which has received much attention from insurance and fire protection associations. Stringent regulations are laid down for safety of employes and property during the manufacture while very little attention is paid to the dangerous nature of celluloid in the hands of the public. It was suggested that legislation should be passed prohibiting the use of celluloid for children's toys, owing to its inflammability. The national Fire Protection Association in its quarterly bulletin refers to the ignition of a celluloid comb through friction while combing hair.

PLANTING TREES ON HIGHWAYS

The Ontario Government supplemented its good roads policy with a plan to beautify the Provincial Highways by planting trees along the sides. These planting operations started last October on the Kingston road between Toronto and Port Hope, when thirteen miles of trees were set out and a small park area near Port Hope, known as Welcome Corner, was beautified with trees and shrubs. Planting this year resumed on this highway, with the ultimate object of beautifying it entirely between Toronto and the Quebec border, a distance of approximately 280 miles. Cobourg is to be beautified during the year. Planting has been undertaken along the Queenston and Hamilton Highway and will be continued through the various years until the distance of approximately 50 miles is completed. Along the Niagara Falls-Windsor Provincial Highway system planting will be undertaken as the sections are completed. This policy of beautiful roads should receive the support not only of the residents along them but also of all who make use of them. Aside from the aesthetic effects, they are material advantage in increasing farm and suburban property values. Motor traffic, already large, is bound to increase, and tourists will contribute to the prosperity of the towns on the most beautiful routes. In the choice of trees, permanency will be the deciding factor, and the Department will give the preference to those of long life and great durability. The laws have been amended to prevent pruning or cutting which will injure the trees, and in this matter, as in others municipal bodies may be of great service in co-operating to make their highways places of beauty.

PICNICS

(Minneapolis Journal)
Picnics are a good thing. They are to the summer time what Thanksgiving Day is to the fall. They bring us into the open spaces of nature and free us from the cares, worries, and polite conventionalities of an artificial world. Picnics bespeak a primitive stirring of the blood, which sends us forth, as it did our ancestors when the land was young, along the road that gypsies follow.

Of course, picnics have developed until there are nearly as many varieties as there are makes of automobiles. There is the excursion that includes the special picnic dinner, set with silver and perforated paper doilies, thermos bottles and folding frying pans. It is the aristocrat of picnics. There are special metal containers for each kind of food.

The bourgeois affair, on the other hand, shows more of the home-making idea. Ordinary paper containers hold food articles. The butter goes in a jelly jar alongside the salt-cellar that has been in the family ever since the wedding. By the time the picnic grounds are reached, the butter has crawled in alongside the bananas, while it is not unusual to detect the flavor of the salt-cellar in the pickles, the chocolate cake and what not.

Then there is the true vagabond picnic. You thrust some matches into the old coat or knapsack along with some bread and bacon, a few green onions and a knife, and in fifteen minutes you are on the trail. True nature lovers prefer this sort of a summer day outing.

Picnics have become such an institution in life that even business organizations find time to lock their doors once a year and enter to such spaces. It is a good thing. They are grand affairs. Picnics mean fun. They bring laughs. They drive away sadness. They mark a day's parole from the prison house of artificial manners and respectability.

DOCTOR'S FEES

Naturally doctors are agreed that the trustees of John Hopkins Hospital made a mistake in suggesting a limit to the fees of surgeons, and those whom we have noticed in the correspondence columns of the American papers are able to give many illustrations of the great amount of charity work that is done by the average physician. But it is not necessary for the doctors to testify on their own behalf. Their patients can speak for them, and it is not seldom that news that interests the world bears testimony to the conduct of the medical profession in cases of emergency. The other day the Manchester Guardian related the following incident:

"When the Cunard liner Albania was 300 miles from the Irish coast on her recent homeward voyage a wireless message was received from the steamship Tamaqua stating that one of the ship's firemen had had his arm torn off in a ventilating fan engine, that temporary bandages had been applied, but that he was losing blood rapidly. The message asked for advice, and this was given, but could not be carried out. The Tamaqua was about 100 miles away, but the Albania went to her, and the ship's surgeon, Dr. C. E. H. Harris, brought the injured man away. An operation was immediately carried out on the Albania, and three women passengers who are qualified nurses watched unremittingly by the injured man's bedside. On the arrival of the Albania at Liverpool the fireman, William Ward of Hull, was removed to Brownlow Hill Hospital. All the passengers gathered on the deck as he was carried off the ship. There was quite an affecting scene as they bade him good luck, many of the women passengers being in tears."

On the same day another physician, Dr. Stephens of the Cunarder Mauretania, rendered a somewhat similar service. He was summoned by wireless to attend a sailor on the Norwegian bark Earls court. The Mauretania altered her course and ran alongside the sailing vessel. The doctor was put aboard and found the patient in a delirium of pneumonia. He gave what relief he could and then went back to his own craft. In both cases it is not improbable that a life was saved. In neither case did the doctor receive any fee. He rose to the emergency like a policeman on duty, unaware that he was doing anything out of the ordinary. Commenting on these incidents, the New York Herald also remarks upon the never-ending power of the wireless to render help, and mentions the case of the Canadian Trapper. There had been a death on the vessel but no one on board had a prayer book from which the burial service could be read. The Trapper thereupon called up the Cunarder Carmania, then two hundred miles away, and the Carmania wirelessly the service to the Trapper and the burial took place according to the ancient ritual in the Church of England prayer book.

HOW THE KING MAKES TEA

A short time ago there was a royal "shoot" at Sandringham, England, and during a halt a member of the party pulled out a flask and took a drink. The king noticed the action and asked the drinker what liquor gave him so much satisfaction. "Cold tea, sir," was the reply. The king smiled, saying: "But it is not made the right way I am sure." "Oh, yes, sir, I think it is," was the reply. "poured off the leaves and allowed to get cold." "That's not the way, said George V. "My way is the only really good way of making tea—it must be made with cold water. Of course there was a respectful outburst of disension, but the king stuck to his point and there and then told them how to make "royal tea", and here the prescription is passed on to you. Take the ordinary quantity of tea—a teaspoonful for each person—put it in a jug and pour in as much cold water as you require. Then allow this mixture to stand for twelve hours, pour it off the tea leaves and add milk and sugar according to taste—and the result is cold tea fit for a king. It is this tea that King George always carried with him on shooting or fishing expeditions.

THE DAYS OF 'THE DOCTOR'

Toronto Globe: The old-fashioned country doctor passes to his reward. Brief despatches from little out-of-the-way places chronicled his demise. Four such have appeared in the newspapers during the past few days. Two told of services extending over fifty years. Yet he lives—in memory in story, in tradition. He leaves little—and much; little of the world's goods, much of the world's greatness. He is the hero of Luke Field's immortal picture—the serious, silent figure sitting in the lamp light by the bedside of the fever stricken child. Thousands of Canadians know him. He was often a character—hale, hearty and impetuously outspoken, but very human and sympathetic. He came close to those to whom he ministered. He understood. He shared with the preacher the intimate confidence of fathers and mothers, of sons and daughters. At all hours of day and night, in all conditions of weather, over roads that were rough or miry, or deep in drifts—when miles were miles not translated into rods by the modern motor—he drove to the scattered homes of his patients and often through the long dreary hours of darkness wrestled in earnest fervor with the Angel of Death. Times are changed. The modern doctor is different. He diagnoses and prescribes, and delegates the midnight vigil to a capable nurse. With an efficiency that destroys romance, in order to save life the modern doctor conserves and concentrates his energies where they will do most good. Instead of waging the battle single-handed he rallies all the legions of science to his support. Nevertheless, as The Chatham News recently stated in paying its tribute to one of them, the "good old doctor" of other years did wonderfully heroic work. They united a profound devotion to the highest ideals of their profession with a singularly deep and comprehensive sympathy. They will not soon be forgotten. And from their ranks, with the advance of science, have been recruited some of the greatest physicians of the modern school.

THE SAHARA'S NOT DRY

It is one of the widest beliefs that the Sahara is perfectly dry. As a matter of fact it rains there, animals and plants live there, and it is inhabited by close on half a million people.

It is certainly a very dry region but throughout the Sahara Desert there are wells and oases which supply plenty of water.

Nor is the desert without plants and trees. Palm trees, mimosa, shrubs of all kinds are found scattered all over the desert, and this fact has turned the attention of French experts towards the region, who argued that if anything grows there naturally, much more will grow if the land is cultivated.

Schemes are on foot, in fact, to cut a road right across the desert, enlarge these wells and oases, and generally cultivate a region which has really got its bad name because it has been allowed to run wild for centuries. Round the wells grow fig trees, apricot, peaches, grapes and date palms which, with very little care, would bring a wonderful profit.

One of the greatest troubles, however, the French, who have a protectorate over the Sahara, have to face, is the people who live there. Like the country, they are wild and absolutely unscrupulous, not hesitating to rob and murder any traveller who attempts to cross the desert.

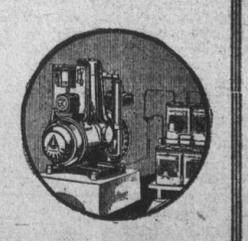

Many have been relieved of corns by Holloway's Corn Remover. It has a power of its own that will be found effective.

24,000 MILES OF TREE-LINED ROADS

Many of us trudged up and down the tree-lined roads of France during the war. All the national roads, to the extent of 24,000 miles, are lined with trees planted and cared for by the Government.

Four centuries ago Francis I. started the good work with a batch of Lombard poplars and it has since been carried on, despite all political upheavals.

The Ministry of Public Works has now more than 8,000,000 trees under its control. When the road is between ten and sixteen metres in width one row of trees is set out on each side. When the width is over sixteen metres two rows are planted, with a foot path between them.

Tree-planting is given out in small contracts to local men, who receive a lump sum as soon as the trees are planted and the balance at the end of two years.

During that period the contractor is responsible for the care of the trees, and for replacing any that die or prove defective.—London Chronicle.

There is nothing repulsive in Miller's Worm Powders, and they are as pleasant to take as sugar, so that few children will refuse them. In some cases they cause vomiting through their action in an upstomach, but this is only a manifestation of their cleansing power, no indication that they are hurtful. They can be thoroughly depended upon to clear worms from the system.

NEXT WINTER'S WIND OF ARTIC FLAVOR

New York, Aug. 26.—That next winter will be a cold one is the indication of weather data compiled by Dr. C. F. Brooks, formerly Meteorologist of the Federal Weather Bureau, and now Associate Professor of Meteorology and Climatology at Clark University.

An analysis of the weather records of more than a century indicates that we are experiencing a series of alternations of severe and warm winters. Last fall, on the basis of his investigation, Dr. Brooks, said that last winter would be warm. It was, and now he says that it is not unreasonable to expect that next winter will be a cold one and that the winter of 1922-23 will be a warm one.

The weather seems to be repeating itself. The present series of sharply alternating winters began in 1917-18 with the cold weather of that year. The winter of forty-five years before, 1872-73, inaugurated a series of winters that were severe, warm, severe, warm, etc., until 1882-83. And 113 years ago, indications from incompletely kept records are that the winter of 1804-5 began a similar series of alternations.

MAYOR OF SARNIA AVERTED BAD SMASH

Sarnia, Aug. 28.—But for the prompt action today of Engineer Mayor Geo. Crawford at the throttle of the express arriving in Sarnia at 1.20 p.m. the Wanstead wreck of some years ago might have been repeated at the east entrance of the local yards.

A short distance from the entrance to the yards, Engineer Crawford slowed down his train on a curve and as he did so the engine ran into an open switch. The brakes were jammed on and the engineer and fireman prepared to jump as the train crashed into an engine. The damage was slight, but a number of passengers were badly bruised and shaken up, while one or two suffered severely from shock.

Officials are probing the cause of the crash.

GOOD HEALTH CAN BE YOURS

If Your Blood Supply is Kept Rich and Red.

It is a waste of time and money to fight merely the signs of disease; in the long run you are probably worse off than when you started. What is far more important is that you should intelligently examine the various symptoms and trace the cause. When you remove the cause health will be yours. For example, anaemic people often endure months of suffering while treating its symptoms, such as indigestion, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and exhaustion after any small effort.

The apparent stomach and heart troubles are generally nothing more than the result of an insufficient supply of pure blood. This anaemic state may have followed some previous illness, or an attack of influenza; or it may have arisen from overwork; worry or too little fresh air.

To obtain good health the simple and proper course is to build up the blood, to do this you must select a reliable remedy with a reputation such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills enrich the blood which carries nourishment to all the organs of the body and enables them to do the work nature expects of them. Thousands of men and women have proved this for themselves. One of these is Mrs. T. Flynn, R.R. No. 1, Erinsville, Ont., who says:—"Last spring I got into badly run down condition. I had no energy; work left me exhausted, and the least exertion would make my heart palpitate violently. I had often read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and decided to give them a trial and got a half dozen boxes. I had not been taking the pills long when I felt a decided improvement in my condition and by the time I had used the six boxes I could do my housework with ease. I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all weak people."

You can obtain these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail postpaid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DAVID HAWKEN PASSES

David Hawken, a resident of Petrolia for forty years, passed away at the residence of his son in Niagara Falls, Ont., on Sunday at the ripe age of 78 years. Mr. Hawken was born in England. After arriving in Canada he first located near Strathroy where he contracted blood-poisoning in his leg. As it seemed likely that an operation would be necessary he returned to England in the hope that he would receive better treatment and where later on the leg was amputated. Upon coming to Canada for the second time he located in Watford, where he met and married Mrs. Lazenby, who predeceased him several years ago. A family of two, Joseph Hawken of Niagara Falls and Mrs. J. H. Callander of Wilkinburg, Pa., both of whom attended the funeral which took place in Petrolia yesterday afternoon, survive. Mr. Hawken was a quiet, unassuming man, who had the respect of the whole community. He served on the council Board several years ago and was a deacon in the Baptist church. The Rev. Wm. Rathby conducted the funeral services.—Advertiser-Topic.

SUMMER HEAT HARD ON BABY

No season of the year is so dangerous to the life of little ones as is the summer. The excessive heat throws the little stomach out of order so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand the baby may be beyond all human help before the mother realizes he is ill. Summer is the season when diarrhoea, cholera infantum, dysentery and colic are most prevalent. Any of these troubles may prove deadly if not properly treated. During the summer the mother's best friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and keep baby healthy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SIR SAM HUGHES' FUNERAL

Every Rank of Life from Premier to Pauper Represented

Lindsay, Ont., Aug. 26.—Upwards of ten thousand people, representing all classes of the community, from the Governor-General, the Dominion Government, high officers of Church and State, the Military and Naval forces, war-scarred veterans, civic representatives of the principal cities and towns, down to plain, ordinary citizens and women and children of Lindsay and the surrounding country, took part in the obsequies of the late Lieutenant-General Sir Sam Hughes here today. It was the most impressive tribute ever paid a public man in the Dominion. Although all business was suspended in the town, flags were at half mast on all the public buildings, portraits of the deceased draped in black and purple were displayed in numerous store windows, and other forms of mourning were noticeable every where. No one seemed to realize they were taking part in a funeral, but rather the bidding goodbye to a close personal friend, about to depart on a long journey.

While Rev. Canon Cody of Toronto, read the Church of England service at the graveside the solemn stillness of the multitude was broken by the distant booming of the minute guns fired from a small hill above the town. As the last words of the service were spoken and the last gun fired, the troops fixed bayonets and brought their rifles from the reverse to the general salute, while Bugle Sergeant Rhodes blew the "Last Post" amid the rolling of muffled drums. The military officers present stepped to the head of the grave and saluted.

Following the military service H. C. Hocken, M. P., grand master of the Orange Lodge of British North America, conducted the burial service as provided by the Orange order, of which Sir Sam was a prominent member. This ceremony was marked by the throwing of orange blossoms on the casket and by the salute tendered by each Orangeman. This salute was given by placing the right hand over the heart as each man marched past the grave.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

THREE SMART DOMESTICS
Two Nearly and One Over 100 Years Old and Still Working.

Montreal, Que., Aug. 26.—A woman of 104, one of 93, and another who, though not sure of her age, knows that she is over 94 and believes that she is 98, are three of the domestic employees at present working in the Hotel Manoir at Berthier, Quebec.

Contrary to expectation, tradition and picture-book stories, none of the three old ladies were sitting on the verandah knitting, with a stick at hand ready to help them hobble into the house, when the reporter arrived to pay them a visit.

The youngest of the three, Agnes Melboeut, who is 93 years of age, was stooping over a tub in the courtyard cleaning a fowl which she had just finished plucking.

Octavienne Belhumeur who, thinks her age is 96, was peeling potatoes with all the dexterity of a girl of 21.

A search through the hotel did not reveal Placid Derosieres who is 104 years old. She had last been seen going out for a little exercise and was found at the house of a friend about a quarter of a mile away.

She walked back to the hotel, scorning any help or support on the way and covering the ground at by no means a slow pace. So well does she carry her 104 years that anyone might be excused for doubting her age. Two years ago she said she was 100, and several people in the locality disbelieved the statement. The priest at St. Cuthberts, where she was born, was appealed to. He searched the records and found that she was not 100, but 102. That was two years ago. She is still in good health, has good sight, and perfect hearing. Work seems to be her chief interest in life, and it is a regular matter with her to carry a pail of water upstairs and scrub the floors. Madame Derosieres spent all her life in the locality she lives in now. She had 11 children, five of whom are still living. Three of them are grandfathers to-day.

Not only Placid Derosieres, whose first name is really Marie, but the other two aged women as well carry on their daily work unaided. They are in full possession of their mental faculties, and walk, talk, hear, see sleep and eat in a manner nearly normal and wonderfully well considering that their combined age is only seven years short of 300. Madame Derosieres, older than either of the other two by eight years looks the younger of the three.

NOVEL TRANSPORTATION PLAN

Some of the railroads in the United States are now adopting what is known as the container system for freight and express carriage. It is contended for this plan, whereby goods are transported in closed and locked containers directly from consignor to consignee, that a great saving will be made in claims against railroads for breakage and theft and also in the time consumed in loading and unloading. It will, it is argued, go far toward solving the now serious problem of car shortage by increasing the "fluidity" of the supply of cars through the already mentioned faster loading and unloading. The freight-type of container car is the regular fifty-foot type of container car provided with containers of two sizes, seven and fourteen feet in length, respectively. Three containers may be used to a car, or two large and two small. They are constructed of wood reinforced with steel. The express type of car is interchangeable with standard passenger equipment, with blind vestibule buffers to take the shock, and passenger trucks and air brake equipment. The low sides of the car are provided with guides to keep the containers firmly in position.

Describing a recent experiment with the container-car, a writer in Export American Industries says: "On the first trial trip of an express container-car from New York to Chicago all the nine containers were taken off the car in 22 minutes. A truck delivered the first container to a department store a mile from the railway terminal in 38 minutes. Another container was delivered at its ultimate destination, five miles away, in one hour and fifteen minutes. All nine were unlocked by the various consignees, unpacked and returned to the car, ready to start back to New York, within two hours after they had been delivered."

Though the employment of this method of freight and express carriage would obviously involve the scrapping of a vast amount of rolling stock already in use, it would at least be worth a trial by railroads which are handicapped by car shortage. The advantages which would accrue to shippers, too, though speedy and whole delivery are not to be lightly dismissed.

AILS CRAIG VETERAN DEAD

Daniel Stewart Cameron, who died at Ailsa Craig on Thursday, aged 79, was a witness to the murder of Thos. Scott by Louis Reil and his rebel half-breeds during the Red River Rebellion. Mr. Cameron had gone West to seek his fortune and fell into the hands of Reil, who imprisoned him and several others in Fort Garry. Scott was riddled with bullets in full view of the window of the room in which Mr. Cameron and his companions were confined. Mr. Cameron pleaded with Reil for permission to give Scott a decent burial, but was refused.

In March, 1870, he was released and made his way 200 miles afoot on snowshoes to a settlement. Later he returned to Ontario and settled in Ailsa Craig, where he married the daughter of John Fraser, a pioneer of Middlesex county. His wife died several years ago. Three sons survive.

FINGERPRINTS CAN BE FORGED

One of these days at some sensational trial when the police have introduced photographs of fingerprints to prove that the prisoner was the murderer of the bank robber, the lawyer for the accused is going to ask the police witnesses how they know the fingerprints are genuine; the witnesses are going to laugh at the idea that their genuineness can be called in question, and then the defense is going to put a man on the stand to show how easy it is to forge a fingerprint.

The man who has discovered how is Milton Carlson, of Los Angeles, perhaps the best known handwriting expert on the Pacific Coast, the man, who in the McNamara case, turned the tables on one of the eminent lawyers by forging a page of writing which resembled so closely that of the lawyer, himself, that the latter based a whole cross-examination on it without even suspecting that it was not the genuine document.

How he forges a fingerprint Mr. Carlson refuses to tell, for, he says, it would put dishonest persons in possession of a method of throwing suspicion on the innocent. But he will show you forged fingerprints and let you compare them through a magnifying glass with the original ones. The first time he did this was a few years ago, when he took from the Literary Digest, a photograph of a fingerprint, reproduced it in blood upon a dagger and mailed it to the editor of a Los Angeles newspaper.

A fingerprint is a print in some material upon a relatively smooth surface. It may be in blood, it may be sweat, it may be in dirt, but it must be in something. If you wash your fingers well with soap and water, then with alcohol, let them dry perfectly and then press them upon an equally clean and dry surface, they will leave no print. But if you rub them over your face they will leave a print in the grease of the skin. Or if you take hold of a dirty or bloody knife they will leave their print in dirt or blood. These can, of course, be wiped off.

Suppose the cashier of a bank went home and left his assistant to lock up the safe; suppose he returned secretly, opened the safe, robbed it, carefully wiped from it all traces of his own fingerprints and then, by Mr. Carlson's process, impressed upon it the fingerprints of the assistant cashier—might not the latter be at least accused of the crime, that is, if no one knew how easy it is to make such a forgery?

Mr. Carlson says it is very easy. He showed the writer fingerprints he had placed upon poker chips (these in tobacco juice), upon polished steel (these in grease, blood and sweat), upon glass, wood and other substances, and assured him that no human hand had ever touched any of them. He says they can be told from the genuine only by an expert, and then not always with certainty.

CHANGES IN MUNICIPAL ACT

The following are some of the changes made in the Ontario Municipal Act at the last session of the Ontario Legislature:

By a change made in the law, a bylaw making a grant to a hospital will only require a majority of those voting on it.

Members of councils in counties and townships may be paid at a rate not exceeding $8 a day for attendance at meetings of the council instead of $5 as formerly.

In actions for damages against a county or township for injury sustained by any person by reason of neglect to maintain the highway in repair, notice of the claim must be given to the clerk within ten days instead of within thirty days as formerly.

IRISH SITUATION IN FEW WORDS

Here is a digest of the Irish situation:

Britain is willing that Ireland should have the full rights of a Dominion.

Ireland should control her own finance and taxation;

Ireland should have the right to maintain a force of territorials and police.

Ireland should control her own industrial affairs, and her postal and educational systems.

Britain insists that: The British navy must control the surrounding seas;

Britain control air and communication facilities;

Ireland shall impose no restrictions on commerce between the islands;

Ireland shall assume a share of the British debt;

Ireland shall keep her territorial forces within reasonable limits;

Ulster's powers and privileges shall not be interfered with except by her own consent.

Ireland demands:

Complete but amicable separation—a political detachment free from imperial entanglements;

Arbitration of the British debt.

BANKING HELP TO CATTLEMEN

At a conference of Government officials and leading bankers, an arrangement has been made to provide special banking accommodation to livestock raisers. The need for this has grown out of the critical state of the industry, particularly in the West, arising from steadily falling prices. The banks are adopting the policy of giving longer time on loans, of renewing notes, and generally of caring for the man who wants to carry his cattle for better market conditions instead of almost giving them away.

This is wise policy. One of the merits of our branch banking system is that when extra accommodation is ordered from headquarters for any group of borrowers, the amount made available is large enough to be of real help. If the banks were local, as in the United States, falling prices of cattle would impair the security of advances, and compel the small banker to call in loans. With the central system, funds can be transferred to the scene of the crisis, and provided that a cattle-raiser's general credit standing is good he can be carried through even though temporarily he may seem swamped. It is the basic worth of the business that is the foundation of generous help.

This is one of the measures taken by the Dominion Government to help the livestock industry. It is taken without fuss or advertisement. Recently a conference of railway managers was held in Ottawa to arrange for lower freight rates on cattle. A substantial cut, amounting to approximately $10 a head, was agreed upon. The efforts of Dominion Government officials to build up British markets for our live cattle have been very successful. Recent exportations, nearly all from Ontario have yielded good results. The Government Merchant Marine should have cattle boats for this growing business. If the banking and transportation interests co-operate so well, the hardships of the Canadian cattle-raiser will be less than those of his United States competitor who is dumping cattle on the Chicago market at give-away prices, because of lack of financial accommodation. Mail and Empire.

OLD COUNTRY LASSIES SEEK HUSBANDS HERE

London, August 30.—The growing excess of women over men, as revealed in the recent census in England and Scotland, has acutated a special correspondent in The Times to revive and discuss the ancient and hoary remedy of the emigration of women to relieve the disparity.

The writer in The Times has discovered, however, that the excess of marriageable men in the overseas dominions does not lend encouragement to the idea. In Canada, he points out, there are only 200,000 excess male eligibles in the marriage mart; in Australia, 50,000; New Zealand, 12,000, and South Africa, 30,000—or roughly speaking, about 300,000 husbands for the some millions of English and Scotch lassies who are likely to remain husbandless in the old country.

The Times does not accept this or advocate it as an argument against the emigration of women, however. It maintains that in any case the marriageable opportunities are probably a little greater in the dominions. Political economy also makes female emigration desirable, for if women continue to crowd the home labor market the wages for females must decrease.

Incidentally the figures of the Scottish census, as recently announced show the smallest increase yet recorded.

MOULDING THE FACE

It is a matter of common observation that husbands and wives in the course of years very frequently come to resemble each other physically, and that the growing harmony in their views and habits of thought expresses itself in their physical features. Another fact which no one will dispute is that the form and expression of a countenance reflect the character and the life history of its possessor. This is something that cannot be explained, except by assuming either that our mental habits are the product of our faces or that upon our faces. A third fact of this kind is the common observation that people engaged in certain religious sects and social castes, often resemble each other physically to a striking degree. Similar pursuits, calling into play similar thoughts, are recognizable in the features of those upon the plastic matter from which human faces are created may express itself in two ways. It may change the features of individuals to conform with the mentality of their environment; and it may influence the unborn child by giving it the features already stamped by their thoughts upon the parents.

WATFORD'S BUSY STORE

BEST MEDIUM OF ALL

(Hamilton Spectator)

A young man started a small men's clothing store in a middle western city. He had a capital of $12,000 and had $9,000 more. He also had ideas and nerve. Before he opened his door he had invested $5,000 in newspaper advertising.

Today, 32 years later, he is reputed to do the largest retail men's clothing business of the world, and his store has a nation-wide reputation as a leader. In those 32 years he has spent $5,000,000 in newspaper advertising.

Speaking of the part newspaper advertising played in his success, the other day this man said:

"It may seem strange, but the people believe what they read in the newspapers. That's what makes advertising in the newspapers so valuable. I have always made it a point to state the truth exactly never to exaggerate. I would rather have the customer a little surprised when he looked at the goods than a little disappointed.

"I've tried advertising on billboards, in street cars, in magazines, pamphlets, in novelties. I once sent up a flock of balloons with letters tied to them, and prizes—$500, $100 and other rewards—to the finders.
"I stuck up sign posts all over the city. Well, some of them went to kindling wood; some were torn down by the city. I tried many other ways of advertising—but the newspapers proved by all means the best, and I kept everlastingly at it. Advertising is to the building up of a business what steam is to commerce."

ARKONA

Mr. Archie McQuiggan spent last week at his home in Aylmer.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Showler and little son of Alvinston called on friends here last week.

The small fruits of this district are about all picked, only the late peaches and they will be ready for picking next week. The growers have had a fair crop and realized good prices.

The lawn social in the interests of the Soldiers' Memorial Fund put on by the Women's Institute Tuesday evening, Aug. 23rd, was a success in every particular. The weather was most favorable and the program every number of which was remarkably well rendered did great credit to the talent of the community and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large number of people present. Receipts from the gate and booth were $130, and subscriptions for about an equal amount were handed in at the close of the program. Mr. J. E. Armstrong M.P., performed the duties of chairman in his usual efficient manner and in addition headed the subscription list with a substantial money gift. The members of the Institute are now arranging for a thorough and systematic canvass of Arkona and vicinity for subscription to the Memorial Fund and it is hoped they will meet with a hearty and generous response. We should all deem it a privilege to share in doing honor to the memory of those who freely gave their all, even life itself, for the preservation of our liberties, and go in to help the Institute in erecting a suitable memorial. One has only to think back to the deplorable condition of the Arkona cemetery before the Women's Institute undertook its management and compare that with its present well-kept state (one of the beauty spots of the whole neighborhood) to be assured that the present undertaking is in good hands, and that any monies entrusted to the Institute for the Soldiers' Memorial will be wisely and carefully administered.

Policeman—Lost yer mammy, ave yer? Why didn't yer keep hold of her skirt?
 Little Alfred—I, enu, you couldn't reach it.

Pat had got hurt, get much more than a scratch it is true, but his employer had visions of having to pay him compensation, so adopted the wise course of sending him on once to the hospital. After the head surgeon had examined him carefully, he said to the nurse:
 "As a simultaneous abrasion is not observable, I do not think there is any reason to apprehend tegumental cicatrization of the wound." Then turning to the patient, he asked, quizzically:
 "What do you think, Pat?"
 "Sure," said Pat, "you're a wonderful thought reader, doctor; ya took the very words out of me mouth. That's just what I was going to say."

A convict, after serving a long sentence, came out of prison in the year 1918. An old friend met him at the prison gates.
 "Well, George," said the convict, "What's the news? What's goin' on?"
 "The whole darned world's at war, George answered, "and prohibition has been established."
 "Well, well!" said the convict. "To think of prohibition havin' such an effect as that! Well, George, it's what they might have expected."

GOING TO THE DUCKS
 A new story is going around about an old southern negro who was asked by the proprietor of a store how he happened to need credit when he'd such a good crop of cotton.
 "De ducks got 'bout dat cotton," was the mournful reply.
 "What do you mean—the ducks got it?"
 "Well, you see," explained the old man, "I sent dat cotton to Memphis an' dey deducts the storage charges, an' dey deducts the commission, and dey deducts the taxes—yes, sah, de ducks got 'bout all dat cotton an' dat's why I'm here."

GOOD ADVICE
 "Where do you live?" asked the young policeman who had broken up a fight between two sailors.
 "Calcutta," answered the Lascar.
 "And where do you live?" the policeman asked the other.
 "In Shanghai," replied the Chinaman.
 "Um-um," returned the policeman "well, the best thing you two can do is to pop off home to bed."

 Mrs. M. W. BAKER, 8874 10th Ave. West, Vancouver, B.C.

 Mrs. Wm. B. KIEVER, Upper New Horton, Albert Co., N.B.
 The reason women write such letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. and tell their friends how they are helped is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives. Freed from their illness they want to pass the good news along to other suffering women that they also may be relieved.
 If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

 Smiles, at your worst joke;
 Smiles, when her old clothes wear-

 Smiles, when her friends wear new,
 Smiles, when you feel like swearing,
 Smiles, when the world looks blue,
 Smiles, when she's mad as a hatter;
 Smiles, when the clouds are gray,
 Cries—when there's nothing the mat-

 This—is lovely woman's way.

OH, WHY AND HOW? PLEASE TELL US

Where can a man buy a cap for his knees?
 Or a key for a lock of his hair
 Can his eyes be called an academy
 Because there are pupils there?
 In the crown of the head what jewels are set?
 Who travels the bridge of his nose?
 Can he use, when shingling the roof of his mouth,
 The nails on the end of his toes?
 What does he raise from a slip of his tongue?
 Who plays on the drums of his ears?
 And who can tell the cut and style of the coat his stomach wears?
 Can the crook in his elbow be sent to goal?
 And if so, what did he do?
 How does he sharpen his shoulder blades?
 I'll be hanged if I know! Do you?

THE SALES BRIGADE

(Summer Sales are now booming.—Daily Newspaper.)
 Half a yard, half a yard,
 Half a yard onward,
 Into the dry goods store
 Pushed the Six Hundred.
 Forward, but not afraid,
 Bent on a bargain raid,
 All from their homes had strayed,
 Into the Summer Sales,
 Shoved the Six Hundred.
 Forward the Sales Brigade,
 Was there a dame dismayed?
 Not though from friend were they Ruthlessly sundared;
 Theirs not to reason why,
 Hatspins got in the eye,
 Theirs but to seize and buy;
 Into the Bargain Sale
 Squashed the Six Hundred.
 Cammies to right of them,
 Shimmies to left of them,
 Nighties in front of them,
 Asked to be plundered;
 Stormed at, and cussed as well,
 And, I regret to tell
 One or two ladies fell;
 Yet with triumphant yell,
 Boldly they fought, and well—
 All 'neath the Bargain Spell Charged the Six Hundred.

It will Prevent Ulcerated Throat.
 —At the first symptoms of sore throat, which presages ulceration and inflammation, take a spoonful of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Add a little sugar to it to make it palatable. It will allay the irritation and prevent the ulceration and swelling that are so painful. Those who were periodically subject to quinsy have thus made themselves immune to attack.

LAW OF SWARMING BEES

A lawsuit was decided recently under a decree of Justinian about 1400 years old. Justinian, Emperor of Constantinople and Rome, in the sixth century, drew up the famous code that is the basis of the Roman law which prevails almost everywhere except in the English-speaking countries. He decreed that a swarm of bees belonged to a man only as long as he could see them with ease, and no longer; after that they became the property of the first person who saw them. Fourteen centuries later, in the Roman city of Bath, a man seeking to recover the value of a swarm of bees from a neighbor was judged appropriately enough by the ancient Roman law of Justinian, and, consequently, lost his case and his bees together.

YOUR LAUNDRY CHECK

From the "Chink" Based on Names of Gods.
 It appears that Chinese laundrymen have a system of ticketing a bundle of soiled clothes based on the many gods and goddesses of China. Though it is complicated, the washer man seldom delivers a bundle of washed clothes to the wrong person. Moreover, if the ticket is lost the chances are that one will not get his linen unless he is a particular friend of the proprietor. Instances are on record where an American has gone to court to force the Chinese to yield up the linen, but the judge was not convinced that the case of the white man was a good one.
 The Chinese laundryman at the beginning of each week makes out a batch of checks in duplicate to be used as wash tickets. He selects the name of some god or goddess or of some object as the sun, the moon or the stars. To his name he prefixes a number as "Moon No. 1," "Moon No. 2" and so on. In the space between the two legends—for the signs are repeated twice—he has his own name, as for instance, Kong Lo.
 When a customer takes a bundle of washing to the laundry the Chinese first tearing a ticket in two in a ragged fashion, put one-half on the package for reference, the other half he gives as a receipt.

A Friend of the Family

Over fifty years ago a young physician practiced widely in Pennsylvania and became famous for his uniform success in the curing of disease. This was Dr. R. V. Pierce, who afterwards established himself in Buffalo, N. Y., and placed one of his prescriptions, which he called "Golden Medical Discovery," in the drug stores in the United States and Canada, so that the public could easily obtain this remarkable tonic, corrective, and blood-maker. Dr. Pierce manufactured this "Discovery" from roots and barks without alcohol—a corrective remedy, the ingredients of which nature had put in the fields and forests, for keeping us healthy. Introduce pure red blood into the system, and health is assured. When you feel run-down, out of sorts, blue and despondent try the energizing influence of this reliable tonic. You can obtain Golden Medical Discovery in tablet or liquid form at all drug stores, or send 10c for a trial package to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Buffalo, N. Y.

THE ANNUAL CLEAN-UP

(Experimental Farms Note)
As soon as the breeding season is over the fowl that are not intended to be retained for future breeders should be disposed of. The birds should be either put into a yard or confined to part of the yard, the rest being limed, ploughed or spaded, and seeded to green crop such as rape or rye.

All litter should be removed from the house and the ceiling, walls, and floors thoroughly swept. Movable fixtures should be taken out and the whole interior given a thorough washing. The best way to do this is to use the hose if you have one, after the hose give the building a good flooding and scrub it down with a stiff brush. If there is no hose, be even more careful about the scrubbing. After the house has been thoroughly cleaned give it a soaking with a good strong disinfectant. One of the best tar preparations will be found satisfactory for this purpose, this should be applied with a spray pump so that it will be forced into all the cracks and crevices of the building. If there is no spray pump, use a brush, but be sure to get it into these cracks and crevices.

The house should be left standing for a couple of days to dry out, leaving it wide open to allow the sun and air to enter freely. It should then be given a good application of whitewash. The fixtures, nest boxes, roosts and dropping boards which have been removed should be treated in a similar manner.

At the time of this annual house cleaning, it is a good plan to note what repairs to the houses, fixtures and fences are needed and have them made as soon as possible. Also clean up and burn any accumulation of rubbish leaving nothing under which vermin may hide. A clean house free from lice and mites is easy to keep clean. Then see that the pullets are healthy and free from lice, when they are put in, and the problem of winter eggs is more than half solved.

Poultry Husbandman.

PUNCTUALITY

The importance of punctuality can hardly be over-rated, especially with all the hurry and scheduled exactness of modern life. In the broad and forgetful tranquillity of a medival village, where time flowed unregarded, and it really made no difference whether you did a thing this week or next, a precise observance of the clock probably did not exist. But when your neighbors all eat and breathe by the time-table, you too, must do it or suffer. Yet it is astonishing how punctuality is neglected. The world is divided into punctual and unpunctual people, and the latter live on the former. The habit of perpetual looking at clocks and watches is instinctive in some minds. Others never see a dial, even when it is staring them in the face. It is probable that punctuality can be taught, although after desperate and repeated efforts some of us are tempted to believe the task impossible. You must catch the delinquent young and impress him, or her, by constant and repeated admonition and injunction, and even then the result is not always satisfactory. The worst thing about unpunctuality is its utter selfishness. Procrastination is the thief of time, but the procrastinator generally steals other peoples time and saves his own. Washington had occasion to reprimand an officer for being late at a council of war. "But, general, I lost only five minutes," urged the culprit. "There are twelve of us here," answered Washington. "We have each lost five minutes. You have wasted an hour." Perhaps the most trying offenders are those who can be and are nicely prompt in large matters that concern themselves and their own interests but who are transparently indifferent when all that is at stake is the small occasions of others. There are many such people. Are you one of them? In large and small matters the most useful and the greatest men practice an essentially precise exactitude.

Sores Flee Before It.—There are many who have been afflicted with sores and have driven them away with Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. All similarly troubled should lose no time in applying this splendid remedy, as there is nothing like it to be had. It is cheap, but its power is in no way expressed by its low price.

What's a Guarantee?

Our idea of a guarantee is that the manufacturer who gives one—which hasn't any tags and loopholes—believes in his product.

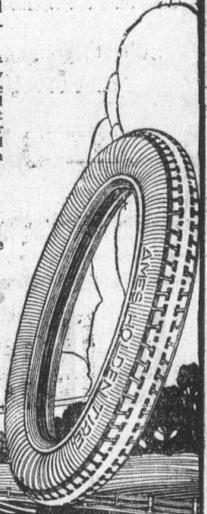

So much so that he stands ready to make good any loss suffered by the purchaser through defective material or workmanship.

It's mainly because of the guarantee that goes with them that we are selling and recommending Ames Holden "Auto-Shoes."

Of course, we know they give the cheapest mileage too—that they are dependable tires for any make of car, anywhere. But it's the guarantee that we talk about most. It's the straight and clean-cut, without time or mileage limits. It shifts our responsibility on to the manufacturer and he lives up to every letter of it. Come in and let us tell you about the guarantee that goes with

News reached here last week of the death of a member of the Still family, who resided on the 4th line, Adelaide, many years ago. The departure came from Neepawa, Manitoba, who was accused of killing a heifer,
an early settler in the Springhill district, met a painful death Friday morning, Aug. 12. He was driving the binder and apparently was removing a stone when the horses ran away. The man working in another part of the field found the body when he was going into dinner. One leg was severed and the other badly mutilated. Life was extinct, Still having bled to death. The horses were found at the barn, attached to the binder.

lot 3, con. 4. Deceased was 87 years old and had lived in the township for sixty years. He served as section foreman for the G.T.R. at Kerwood for about thirty years. His wife predeceased him about a year ago. He leaves a family of eight children:
James, of Kerwood; Michael, of Blenheim; Mrs. Jos. Waltham, Sarnia; Mrs. Jos. Brady, Metcalfe; Mrs.
Sidney Routley, of Watford; Mrs.
Terrance Callahan, of Adelaide, and Dan and Nellie at home. The funeral was held on Monday morning to All Saints Church, Strathroy where mass was celebrated prior to interment of remains in the Catholic cemetery.
Following are the particulars of the sad fatality which occurred at the home of Robert Armstrong near Shetland last week when his six year old son was kicked to death by a horse. It appears that the father had taken his horses in from the field and tied them in the stable, leaving the harness on. He then took out his car and went to Oil Springs. While away his two little sons, six and eight years old, took the horses out and started racing them up and down the field, they on their backs.
The harness on the one horse shifted the little fellow sliding off and getting tangled in the harness. The horse then ran away and dragging him with it, kicking him to death.
His head and body were badly bruised and he only lived two hours after being hurt. Interment took place in Aughrim cemetery on Sunday.
