The Silver Seals.

There has recently been a very bad case in this province over the American silver certificates, and our banks have either refused to take them at all, or only at a discount of twenty per cent. by Mr. Carleton, Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, which was interpreted to mean that hereafter those silver certificates would not be redeemed in silver only, but in gold as well.

Celebrating their 74th Anniversary.

The 74th anniversary of the Order of Oddfellows has been duly celebrated during the past week over the whole continent. From small beginnings the order has now grown until it takes its place as the first institution of this character in North America.

Under these circumstances it took but little to create a panic, hence the serious effect which the statement of the Secretary of the Treasury caused upon our banking institutions. Just as the question began to look serious, however, President Cleveland made an emphatic declaration to the press that the government would continue to redeem these silver certificates in gold as before. This should settle all doubts and remove all grounds for fear. It would be an act of suspension folly on the part of the Cleveland administration to allow any action or want of action to lead to the permanent depreciation of these silver bills and the consequent loss which would accrue to the holders of these notes. Such an act on the part of the democratic government would place a weapon in the hands of their republican opponents with which to drive them from power at the first opportunity. The purchase of silver bullion and the issue of silver certificates will probably be stopped, and then some means will be taken to provide gold to redeem the silver bills now in circulation. Just where it is to come from is not yet clear, but the president has declared it shall be done and that, we think, should remove all doubts as to the value of these bills. And there would, therefore, appear to be no reason for further discounting them. Both political parties in the United States have been trying to keep up the price of silver in order to catch the vote of the silver producing states, and the task appears to be too difficult and the load too heavy to carry permanently.

—In his address at the opening of the recent session of the Council, we observed that Warden Ross, after quoting by law 17, section 2, says: "This is as far as we can go." The law referred to requires "pollars, hawkers of goods, and traders who are not ratapayers of the province" to pay a license fee of five dollars, "to last for one year." As the County Incorporation Act is altered at each session of the House, that what was law last year may not be the law this year, we are not in a position to question the Warden's statement. It may be that he is right, and that this is as far as we can go. It may be that five dollars is as large a license fee as the council can impose, and then only upon pollars and hawkers "who are not ratapayers of the province." If the Warden is right, however, then there is need of additional legislation on the subject. We were under the impression that our municipal councils had the same powers to make by-laws as the councils of incorporated towns, and to the same extent. They certainly should have. A fee of five dollars, and that imposed only in the case of persons "not ratapayers of the province" is simply absurd in the extreme. It is not pollars and hawkers from outside the province, but outside the municipality, from whom a pretty stiff license fee should be exacted. Agents of Halifax furniture stores, and other large houses in the province, have of late been peddling the county, going from door to door, with their samples and taking orders. The fact that the same kind of goods can be bought cheaper from the home trade does not seem to prevent them from finding purchasers. The law should be made to meet such cases as these. Our business men pay taxes. These are levied in the fall, at the time of year when they have the least stock on hand. Why should the city house which sends its agents to compete with them for retail custom go entirely free? Then, too, how does it happen that even the five dollar license fee is never exacted? Who is to enforce it any how? It is merely a dead letter. It would, we fancy, be a considerable time before a few pedlar took the trouble to hunt up some official to pay his five dollars to.

—In consequence of the change in the school law the meetings of the Boards of School Commissioners will be held this year at an earlier date than usual. The meeting of the Board for the district of Annapolis West will be held in the Court House at Annapolis, on Thursday, May 11th, at half-past one o'clock. As business of more than usual importance is expected to come before this meeting, a full attendance of commissioners is requested. The meeting of the Board for the district of Annapolis East will be held at the Elm House, Lawrencetown, kept by Mr. A. Oswald, on Friday, May 12th, at ten o'clock, a.m. All persons having business before these meetings are required to take notice thereof, and govern themselves accordingly. —When the enterprise is completed, says the Annapolis Warden in reference to the proposed line from Kentville to Louisburg, Cape Breton will be transformed as if touched by a magic wand, and what was once a howling wilderness will become a hive of industry; our young men, the bone and sinew of our country, will be recalled from the vessels of the neighboring republic; and our maidens, who have been seeking employment in a foreign land, will return to the light and joy of their own homes. —A Convention of the Liberal party is to take place at Ottawa on the 20th of June next. It promises to be one of the most interesting events of the year, so far as Canada is concerned. It is stated that one of the objects of the convention will be to formulate a policy which the Liberal party in the country may agree upon and through which they may fight their way to power.

—Do you realize the importance of a healthy stomach, now that cholera threatens? R. D. C. has a cholera preventive by preparing his stomach to healthy action.

—The practical outcome of love to God the Father is love to His creatures. This love to God's creatures manifests itself in an effort to do good. The work of Oddfellowship is most essentially that of doing good to God's creatures. Oddfellowship is not antagonistic to the Church of Christ, but the reverse. Oddfellowship brings the weary soul from the wilderness of despair to the ocean, clothed and fed. It claims to do no more than the church, under God, takes him up and bears him safely across the ocean to the haven of rest. The peculiar work of Oddfellowship is that of self-comforting of the Church—and saving. The speaker here dwelt upon the two-fold reward of a life spent in doing good to others, and sought to inspire the brethren to noble deeds in the future. "Among all the farthings that are and let us scatter a few with glad hearts. Let us say good-bye to selfishness, good-bye to unkindness, good-bye to ingratitude, good-bye to bitter words, good-bye to evil thoughts, and let us welcome with never a faltering lip the dawn and day of friendship, love, and truth."

—The instructive discourse closed with an earnest appeal to all to link their lives with that of Christ if they would make a success of life. A Successful Drive. Mr. John Haley, manager of the Paradise Lumber Company, whose operations for the past winter have been on property adjoining the Paradise stream, arrived home on Friday night after an absence of ten days, during which time he had successfully brought to mill the entire winter's cut, reaching nearly two million feet. Some eighty feet of lumber were cut, and with the exception of one mislay, everything went along smoothly. This was caused by "Dick" later falling into the stream where the logs were being cut. Fortunately, for later, a comrade named Seely rendered him assistance, and brought him almost home safely to land, where a fire was made and other necessary attention given for his comfort. Land was badly bruised and knocked about, and declares that it had not been for his presence of mind in diving to the bottom and clinging on to the rocks for five minutes at least, he would certainly have lost his life. The mill belonging to the Company, at Paradise, has now been running some four weeks, and thus far since the new year, the shipments from the lumber yard at the station have reached one quarter of a million.

Wedding Bell. BARRINGTON-BRITAIN. On Wednesday evening last a few friends assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Darling, Paradise, to attend the marriage of their youngest daughter, Miss M. S. Eggleston, of Bridgetown. Promptly at 7 o'clock, as Rev. J. B. Giles stood at the altar, the pair entered the room, and the ceremony was now brought about. The groom looked the happiest man on earth, and the bride dressed in cream velvet trimmed with lace and ribbon, and a crown of white and orange blossoms, was charming. After the ceremony came the tea and a salute from the boys; then they were called in to partake of a most excellent and well-arranged social evening. There were present a number of our countrymen, and flowers, among which was noticed a magnificent cluster of Easter lilies from Mrs. B. Starratt. BARRINGTON-BRITAIN. The misfortune sustained by Mr. Charles Balcom, of Clarence, during the hurricane of last week, when his barn was blown down, is of small importance when compared with the sad loss he suffered on Monday morning, when his fine team of eight and ten oxen, which his fine steers milk, combining grit, strength and single machine, together with one hundred bushels of grain, wagon sleigh, and other valuable effects, were totally destroyed by fire. Just how the fire originated remains a mystery, as Mr. Balcom was absent getting a load of fuel. The loss, aggregating $3,000.00, is a most severe one to the enterprising owner and the community at large. There was no insurance.

How Horses are Tamed.

In the first place taming must not be con-

found with "breaking in" says an English writer. "When all you require is to get under a horse or to harness him, you may use any of the various methods

of taming, but if you wish to get a horse to do anything, you must use the method of taming which is called "taming

by the head."

"How is it done you ask," said he.

"Well, it is done by using a headstall

which is made of iron and is fastened

to the horse's head by means of a strap

which passes over the ears and is fastened

Agricultural.

Hints for the Rural Home.

Wherever you live, improve the surroundings. If you live in a village, do something to improve the village. If you live in a country, do something to improve the country. If you live in a city, do something to improve the city. If you live in a town, do something to improve the town. If you live in a hamlet, do some-
