A HORRIBLE MURDER.

Pretty little Annie Kempton of Bear River the Victim.

Story of One of the Most Brutal Crimes Ever Recorded in Nova Scotia.

Peter Wheeler, the Man Who Found the Body, Placed Under Arrest.

Digby, Jan. 28.—The peaceful little village of Bear River, seven miles from here is excited over what is supposed to be a cold-blooded murder, in which Annie Kempton, the seventeen year old daughter of Isaac Kempton, a respectable resident of Bear River, was the victim.

The victim was seen on the street last evening enjoying a walk. Bear River, N. S., Jan. 28.—The murder of the seventeen year old girl, Annie Kempton, is still the only subject of conversation.

THREE MILLI N ACRES Belonging to Canada Which the United States Have no Right to Claim.

Montreal, Jan. 28.—The Star cable says: Lord Salisbury and the Right Hon. Mr. Chamberlain have been considering the result of the enquiries into the subject of the three million acres of land in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Two Italians who were here last night were arrested today near Annapolis and are being held in the police station.

Two case knives, a spoon and a stick of wood were scattered about the house. The floor is covered with blood.

THE EXTENSIVE BUILDINGS OF R. C. PINGREE & CO., LUMBER DEALERS, DESTROYED.

Lewiston, Me., Jan. 29.—An alarm of fire rung in at 8.40 tonight called out the departments of Lewiston and Auburn to what proved to be the biggest fire which has ever occurred in this city since the City building was burned six years ago.

term your correspondent had a long talk with the accused murderer of Annie Kempton.

Wheeler will be given a preliminary examination here some day next week. In the meantime he will be placed in Digby jail.

Your correspondent saw the accused this afternoon at the residence of the coroner, Hennessey, in whose custody he is.

The coroner, Hennessey, in whose custody he is, Wheeler is short, thick set, and of a mulatto color.

As regards the track and the people seeing him, he says that is right, for the first of the things he set out to do was to get the track and the people.

Wheeler, who was with him Monday evening, Annie's sweetheart, but he never knew Benson to go in and see her when she was alone.

The feeling of the townfolk is strongly against the accused, and he should be tried for the crime here in the present temper of the people.

CAPT. HAWKSWORTH'S DEATH

THE BRITISH MARKET. C. B. Lockhart, M. P., Returns From the Other Side.

His Views Regarding Trade in Hay, Cheese, Butter, Eggs, Potatoes, Poultry and Meats.

C. B. Lockhart, M. P., a member of the west side firm of A. C. Smith & Co., returns from England on the S. Lake Ontario. He had gone across on the Lake Superior on her first trip, to look into the markets and the prospects for trade in provincial products.

Mr. Lockhart said he had enjoyed his trip very much. He was in Liverpool, London, Glasgow and other cities, and was much impressed with the enormous volume of traffic at these great centres.

The substance of the opinion formed regarding trade may be briefly set forth in the statement that in the present condition of the market there we cannot do much business; but with more active markets we could do a great deal; and when we can produce what suits the market in a form suited to the upper provinces, we can carry on a continuous trade.

The Sun recently referred to the potato trade, and from figures at hand led to the conclusion that we could not profitably ship potatoes to England at present. Mr. Lockhart confirms this view. He saw potatoes selling at 2s. per 112 lbs., or any 40c. per bushel. Irish potatoes are the favorites and Scotch next. Our potatoes, Mr. Lockhart thinks, are as good as those he saw, and would no doubt be liked if once introduced, but would not bring over 2s. 6d. per 112 lbs., or say 35c. per bushel, at the present time, for which amount they could not possibly be placed on the market.

Regarding hay, Mr. Lockhart made careful inquiries in the different cities. In London he found no chance for business. The hay used there was a poorer class than ours. He saw corn and the South American hay selling at 60 to 65s. per ton of 2,240 lbs; best English hay by the load at 80s. per long ton. He saw none that he thought compared with ours in quality, although the people there did not agree with him. The expenses are very heavy at London and would amount to 16 to 17s. per ton. They use a good deal of clean clover there, such do not use at all. We would have no chance in London except at a time when the price was very high there, and then ship an article that could be bought cheap here.

Mr. Lockhart was very much impressed with the fact that the price was much better. He saw Westmorland county, N. B., hay sold there at 80s. to 85s. 6d. and the expenses are only 6s. to 7s. or 10s. less than in England. Mr. Lockhart stated that Captain Hawksworth had died at 8 a. m. Mrs. Hawksworth's grief was pitiful, and it seemed for a time that she would not be able to bear up under it. The rest of the family was to be home for the holidays, and the wife of 29 years had been counting the days till his return. It will be a sad homecoming to her. Mrs. Hawksworth and he had only one child, a daughter, who was the wife of a doctor in the city. Captain Hawksworth was a warm-hearted, energetic man, of the sturdy English stock, and was highly esteemed by those who knew him well. He followed the general line of business, and in this most pathetic bereavement the family have the sympathy of all.

WEDDING BELLS

An interesting event occurred at the residence of William McCoolgan of Summersville on the morning of the 29th inst., when his daughter Ida May was united in marriage to Shubael S. Cunningham. Rev. F. A. Wrightman of Carleton Place performed the ceremony, while the bride's sister, Miss Sadie McCoolgan, and James Gamble, did the honors as bridesmaid and groomsmen. Immediately after the wedding a large number of friends and relatives sat down to a sumptuous repast in the spacious dining room. The wedding presents were both numerous and costly, which, together with the serenade of the time honored charivari, gave ample evidence of the popularity of the young couple. One interesting feature of the occasion was that the family was represented by four generations, all hale and hearty.

J. J. HENNESSEY IN AFRICA

A letter under date, Madeira, Jan. 1st, 1896, has been received by John Hennessey, Lower Truro, from his son, J. J. Hennessey, who left her on Dec. 14th for South Africa. Mr. Hennessey arrived in England on Dec. 25th, after a very rough passage. He immediately took passage on the S. S. Boston Castle for Cape Town. The Boston Castle carried a crew of 128 men, and had on board 90 passengers, 20 of whom were ladies.

Mr. Hennessey is an ex-railway boy, and although only a young man, has travelled quite extensively, having crossed the Atlantic eight times, the Gulf Stream thirteen times, and having been around the Cape of Good Hope six times. He expected to reach Cape Town fifteen days from the date of his letter.—Truro News.

Two men were badly injured in No. 1 slope at Springhill mine last Friday by a fall of stone. One of them, Wm. Cox, is not expected to recover. The other, John McLeod, is recovering.

A MAN'S DESTINY.

"I have something to tell you," said Richard Thorne, when the departure of her other callers had left him alone with his hostess...

"Nice, gracious spirit to take things in upon my word!" commented his friend, with a suspicion of a snarl. "Might ask what put that idea into your head?"

"I don't know," said Thorne, shaking his head and going to the door. "By the way, what's the other man's name?"

The two alone examined the interior of the fire with an intensity worthy of a loftier devotion. It began to dawn upon the man that the whole thing was planned and he gave some of oblivion to the position for a moment by forthwith giving his whole energy to the silent apostrophizing of meddling women—especially Mrs. Vavasour.

"I don't know," said Thorne, shaking his head and going to the door. "By the way, what's the other man's name?"

NORTHUMBERLAND COUNCIL.

A Large Amount of General Business Transacted at the Recent Meeting.

Reports of the Newcastle and Chatham Firewards—Assessment for Police and Lights in Newcastle. Chatham, N. B., Jan. 23.—At the roll call of the municipal council of Northumberland last week the councillors from the following parishes answered their names: Alderman—John S. Pond, Wm. A. Brown, Blissett—Edward Mercereau, Wm. Russell, Northwick—David Whitney, Michael Ryan, Blackville—David G. Schofield, Denis P. Sullivan, Southwick—James Tozer, Thos. Johnston, Derby—James Robinson, M. P. F. John Betts, Nelson—Thos. W. Flett, Ephm. Hays, Rogersville—Augustus A. Richard, J. David Saunders, Newcastle—Donald Morrison, Wm. Lyons, Chatham—Nicholas Cunningham, Wm. Kerr, Glenelg—Wm. V. Ullock, Jas. Cameron, Hardwick—Jerh. Sullivan, Phineas Williston, Parishes—Wm. Anderson, Jas W. Robertson, Coun. Anderson was elected warden for this year. Minutes of July session read and approved. J. L. Stewart and D. G. Smith were nominated for the position of official reporter. Mr. Stewart was elected. After the appointment of a committee to nominate standing committees the council adjourned for ten minutes, when it reassembled and the following report of standing committee was adopted: County accounts—Betts, Tozer, Morrison, Kerr, Flett, Almshouse—Schofield, Mercereau, Williston. To visit jail—Ryan, Johnston, Cameron, Pettitions—Pond, Tozer, Morrison, County contingents—Betts, Kerr, Morrison, Kerr, Lyons, Flett, Parishes accounts—Lemons, Robertson, J. Sullivan, Cunningham, Hays, Ullock, Richard, Sullivan, Russell, Johnston, Brown, Robinson, Ryan. After reassembling at 2 o'clock Coun. Flett presented a protest against the return of the Rogersville councillors, and it was referred to a committee of five. At 10 o'clock Wednesday, when the council was called to order, Coun. Betts read a petition from Wm. Scott, James S. Wilson and others, complaining that the boundary line between the parishes of Derby and Southwick was not established, and that the petitioners' property was taxed in both parishes. Referred to committee on petitions. Petitions were read from Judge Wilkinson and Rev. Father Jones asking for the payment of land damages assessed in the extension of Wellington street in Chatham. After reassembling at 2 p. m. the list of parish officers for the parishes of Blackville, Rogersville and Ludlow were passed. Returns from Hardwick, Alnwick, Glenelg and Blackville were also passed. A by-law prohibiting sleep and lambs from running at large in Hardwick was adopted, and council adjourned till Thursday at 10 a. m. Thursday morning officers for the parishes of Blissett and Derby were passed. The report from the almshouse committee was then read as follows: The committee appointed an almshouse accounts examined the same. There are 19 paupers in the house at present. The commissioners have asked for an assessment of $1,325 to be placed on the district parishes as follows: Chatham, $450; Newcastle, $400; Nelson, $150; Northwick, $100; Southwick, $25; Glenelg, $75; Hardwick, $50; Alnwick, $50; Derby, $100; Blackville, $125; Blissett, $25; Ludlow, $25; Rogersville, $50. We find the accounts correct and the books well kept. The report was held over till the next session, as there was a good deal of talking from the councillors of some of the parishes. Returns from Southwick then passed and council adjourned. The warden called council to order at 2 p. m. An application to lease wharf lots was read from Clark and Lounsbury and referred to the committee on petitions. The report from the committee to visit the almshouse was referred back to the committee. The county accounts committee then retired and Alnwick returns were passed. Patrick Donovan, Blackville, was ordered to make returns in July, and officers for the parishes of Hardwick, Northwick, Southwick, and Alnwick were passed, when council adjourned for an hour for committee work. After reassembling the following report from the county accounts committee was read: Your committee, to whom was referred the audit of county accounts, beg leave to submit the following report: That the regular charges against the contingent accounts are larger than usual. But we regret to report that the accident which occurred on the steamer Miramichi has caused an increase in certain accounts, and a criminal case, the Queen v. Doherty, has materially increased the charges against the county. The steamboat fatality could have been guarded against, but since such has occurred, we recommend the payment of the accounts as the audit sets forth in the several accounts. The following accounts were passed: Almshouse, $914.44; credit of county school fund, $3,975.84; Wm. Irvine, printers' board, $254.49; S. Thompson, parish lists, stationery, pedlars' license, etc., $70; D. & J. Ritchie, public wharf repairs, $144.80; Angus Ullock, Doherty case, $23.50; prisoners' board in Chatham lockup, $24.85; jail committee, $47.14; pedlars' license, $48; J. L. Stewart, printing, $14.60; John Shirreff, $286; county buildings, $32.30; certificate of lunacy, Dr. J. B. Benson, $4.87; M. S. N. Co., Inc.; Dr. Fish, attendance on prisoners, $150; lists for revision, $50; auditor, E. P. Williston, $50; Oliver Savoy, constable, $12.95; W. C. Ansel, printing, $2; S. Thomson, criminal prosecution, $180; revising votes, $471; division register, $68.80; school lists, $7; Dr. J. S. Benson, requests on victims of steamer Miramichi disaster, $31.67; Anthony Forrest, steamer disaster account, $28.15; witness fees in Queen v. Alon Desrochers and Wm. G. Galt, $20.40; witness fees at inquest on victims of Miramichi disaster, $4; constables' services looking for Joseph Doherty and Chas. Morris, $30; Newcastle public wharf fund, $389.95; contingent fund on hand, $689.50; board of health, $57.52. The board of health report showed that nothing had been done with the open sewer in Chatham, and asked the council to attend to the matter. Coun. Kerr said as Chatham was soon to be incorporated it would be well for the council to leave the open sewer question to Chatham town council to deal with. Council reassembled at 10 a. m. Friday. A statement was read showing why an increased assessment for the almshouse had been asked. There was a decreased balance to the credit of several parishes, and no balance at all to the credit of others. The report was adopted. The jail committee reported as follows: We, the jail committee, beg leave to report that we have visited the jail and found everything neat and in order. The passages and cells have been whitewashed with lime and are scrupulously clean. We found four prisoners in jail and heard no complaints from them. The report was adopted. The sum of $285 was ordered to be assessed for the support of pauper lunatics in the provincial asylum. Of this amount Chatham pays $170, Newcastle $30 and Blissett $85. The following report from the Newcastle firewards was then adopted: During the past year there were five alarms of fire on which the department was called out under expense, but in only one of these was there serious damage done to property, and in that case the fire was confined to the building in which it originated. Herewith the board wish to submit their annual report, and a detailed statement of the receipts and disbursements of the department. They have paid $300 on account of balance due on the purchase of the steam fire engine, reducing that amount to $200. They were obliged to make permanent repairs to the tank on Castle street, and to lay a new line of pipe from the tank to the warehouse hotel cellar. This is now a good order, with sufficient water to supply the steam engine during an ordinary fire. The board had hoped the old hose would have proved reasonable, but the balance due on the engine had been paid. Of the hose on hand when the department last reported over 1,000 feet were nearly 20 years old, and during the past year it was found that the higher pressure necessary in working the engine from the engine house, and after making full enquiry into quality and prices the board purchased 1,000 feet of new hose, at $1.50 per foot, payable in 12 months without interest. They have also arranged for the sale of this quantity of the condemned hose. These purchases have necessitated an extra outlay of $1,500, of which $1,054 will not be due until November next, and the balance is on interest at 6 per cent. At the last meeting of the board it was resolved to ask this council to assess the sum of $1,000 on this fire district for the current year. The almshouse firewards' report was then read, and the following was adopted: The board of street and fire commissioners of the town of Chatham beg to present their report, with accounts and vouchers for the past year. This year the first department has been called out to two fires and two alarms. One of the two fires was a very disastrous one and entailed a very heavy expenditure. We have also spent a large amount on tanks which are now in fairly good condition, but there are two tanks yet which require a large expenditure, particularly the Armstrong tank (see card), which requires pipes laid to the railway at Wellington street. For the ensuing year the board asks for an assessment of $1,475, as per following estimates: Engineer, $225; hose, $150; coal, $40; telephone and light, $25; hauling engine and hose cart, $75; keeping holes in ice open and tanks and engine house clear of snow, $25; rent of room and secretary's salary, $37; 500 feet of hose wanted, $450; tanks and sundries, $450. An assessment of $1,200 was ordered; $2,000 was ordered to be assessed on Chatham police district. E. P. Williston was appointed auditor. An assessment of $900 for fire purposes and $700 for police and lights was ordered for Newcastle. After attending to several minor affairs, the Scott act inspector's report was read. Total amount collected in 1895, $1,658.00. Out of this amount $1,300.00 was paid out for attorney's fees, etc., leaving a balance of $358.00. When all the outstanding accounts are paid the Scott act in this county has $358.15 to its credit. Some discussion as to the amount of the inspector's salary followed and it was fixed at $500. Some changes were made in the personnel of the Chatham street and fire board. It is made up as follows: M. S. Hocken, John Wilson, Thos. Buckley, Chas. Gunn, Roger Flanagan, Patrick Connors, Alex. Fraser, Patrick Keoughan, Geo. Watt. Chatham has also a new dog tax collector in the person of John Lobban.

G. G. COREY HEARD FROM.

The Original Dingee Will Said to be in His Possession.

Rev. John B. Morgan is Reported to Have Solved the Mystery of Dingee's Death. New York, Jan. 23.—The World this morning says: Solomon S. Dingee, a dealer in real estate, disappeared from his office in the Potter building, January 12th, 1895. His body was found in the North River April 3rd of the same year. It was so badly decomposed that the coroner's physician, Dr. J. Donlon, who viewed it at the morgue, made no autopsy. Foul play is now feared. The mystery of the old man's death has been dug up during the past few days by the Rev. John B. Morgan, a young Baptist minister of Jacksonville, New Brunswick. He was sent to the city about eight weeks ago by parties in New Brunswick, who believe that he is heirs to a $20,000,000 estate in West Chester county. The dead man had spent years in collecting evidence of the big claim, but lived in dainty care that some one would murder him. A few days ago Mr. Morgan was told that George G. Corey, formerly of St. John, N. B., claimed to have the original Dingee will and other legal documents pertaining to the estate, and that he accounted for his possession of them by saying that they had been sealed up in a bottle, thrown from a ship by a man who expected to die and that the bottle was picked up in the North River. Since then Mr. Morgan has been investigating and now believes he is on the track of the murderer.

FRANCO AND THE CHURCH.

Drastic Measures Against the Roman Catholic Church Contemplated.

New York, Jan. 27.—A World special cable from Paris says: The report that the present radical government has decided to recall M. De Behaine, the French ambassador to the Vatican, because of his too great friendship towards the Pope, may be true or may not. But it seems certain, in any event, that Premier Bourgeois means to make good his declaration soon after taking office, that he contemplates drastic measures against the Catholic church in France. Mr. Bourgeois' first official statement in the chamber of deputies contained a promise "of a bill to regulate associations, a project to the separation of church and state." It has been doubted up to this time whether Premier Bourgeois would have the courage to enter upon a crusade, but the World's correspondent has learned from a near political friend of the premier the main points of the proposed bill. It will guarantee, in the first place, complete liberty of association, which has been denied since the days of Gambetta, but it will strictly define the position of prominent associations possessing real estate, and will compel all such organizations to prove their "public utility." Many humanitarian societies, such as the Society for Saving Human Life, the societies for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, Animals, etc., are recognized by the government as being of public utility. Several religious orders already enjoy such recognition, among others, the Sisters of the Dominicans, and the Little Sisters of the Poor. Besides these well known societies there are thousands of religious associations possessing enormous wealth in stocks, vineyards, estates and buildings, whose public utility it is claimed, is not evident. These associations will be required, by the forthcoming bill, to furnish proofs of their public utility, as well as detailed statements of their wealth and the use to which it is put. If proof of public utility is not furnished, the associations may be dissolved and their property confiscated. But will Mr. Bourgeois succeed? His bill, probably, will pass the chamber of deputies, but in the senate the battle will be fierce, for in the latter body the clericals are strong, both in membership and influence. Should the senate reject the bill, and a deadlock result, parliament probably would be dissolved, and a radical majority returned sufficiently strong, perhaps, to put the senate into submission.

FAIR BOXING NOT A BRUTAL SPORT.

There is nothing brutal about it. It is a business with the young fellows, who sit there with naked backs and clean, white, hard flesh and easy muscles, who are being rubbed and kneaded, and who are having their tongues scraped with a "stripl" and pressed with lemons. There is nothing ugly about them. They come up with other smiling, and something like take each other's hands in both their own to show they feel no ill will. When you have seen it all, and even, perhaps, one of the contestants a bit "grogy" at the end, you haven't seen anything immoral or bad or brutal. You have only been seeing part of the life that is explained by the word athletes. You have only been interested in those things that make for physical superiority, the power of which shall never cease to be admired.—Scribner's.

INSANE CLAIRVOYANCE.

A woman who has a great deal to do professionally with the insane and with their treatment, says that nothing has more impressed her in this strange and interesting people than the clairvoyance which they undoubtedly display. Often she has been told of occurrences in another part of the building which the mad narrator had no possible natural way of learning, and which were exactly correct as related. This curious fact would not surprise the peevish student who has a perfect belief in the undiscovered limitations of the subjective mind, but to most of us it is but further unconvincing proof of the existence of more things in heaven and earth than are dreamed of in our philosophy.—New York Times.

GLADSTONE AND DISRAELI.

A singular story was once related by Mr. Gladstone with reference to the late Hon. Mrs. Francis Stonor. Mr. Gladstone was asked during the seventies how he was able to bear with- out irritation the fierce political attacks of Lord Beaconsfield, then Mr. Disraeli. He replied that Mr. Disraeli's onslaughts had but little effect upon him, for he remembered the following incident: When Disraeli was assailing Sir Robert Peel, he was invited to a dinner party, at which Mrs. Stonor, then Miss Eliza Peel, was also a guest. Mr. Disraeli happened to sit near her at dinner and endeavored to enter into conversation with her. She met him with marked coldness and replied to his observations in monosyllables and with averted face. Mr. Disraeli persisted in his attentions, whereupon Mrs. Stonor turned angrily upon him and asked him what he thought of persecuting her with his distasteful society, having regard to his conduct to her father. Mr. Disraeli replied with the greatest nonchalance: "Really, Miss Peel, I am surprised at all the same voice had said more sweetly than ever: "A thousand pardons, Cleely; you must let Dick entertain you for a minute. I heard Tom's voice, down stairs, and I positively must see him about something." There was a frown-frown of silk, and she was gone, without even looking back to see the two appealing glances that followed in her wake.

SIR CHARLES AND MR. FOSTER.

The opponents of Sir Charles Tupper suggest that he does not give his associates and colleagues credit for the part they have taken and are taking in public affairs.

HIS REASONS.

Mr. Mitchell's references to the boodling of the liberal conservative party would be more effective if he had refrained from issuing his open letter giving the reasons why he did not support the Sir John A. Macdonald monument fund.

PREFERENTIAL TRADE.

The attempt was made in a recent Cape Breton meeting to show that an imperial preferential trade policy would mean the free admission of coal from Great Britain.

THE NOMINATION PROCEEDINGS AT NORTHUMBERLAND.

Mitchell denies that he was ever after the Governorship, but Tweedie proves the falsity of the statement.

MR. ROBINSON'S FAVOR.

Reports from all parts agree that he is sure of election.

MR. MITCHELL.

Mr. Mitchell's speech was a surprise to his most intimate friends. He was not eloquent, but he told what he had to say in good form.

MR. BURCHILL.

Mr. Burchill's references to Mr. Robinson were in keeping with the fact that he had canvassed for the Governorship, as Mr. Tweedie read his letter, thanking Mr. Robinson for what he had done in his behalf.

MR. BURCHILL.

The speaker next raised the point that Mr. Robinson did not discriminate between provincial and dominion issues, and challenged him to state his position on the N. P. and the Manitoba school question.

MR. BURCHILL.

Mr. Burchill attributed his defeat in 1878 by Mr. Snowball to Mr. Robinson and the Northumberland deal, although that deal was not made until twelve years later.

MR. BURCHILL.

At the polls in 1878 he (Mitchell) advocated this policy only to find that Sir John had gone back on his solemn pledges and had piled on an iniquitous tax.

MR. BURCHILL.

Mr. Burchill continued his political and personal reminiscences, reminding his hearers that the day that the chief issue was the N. P., which had enriched the party and beggared the many.

MR. BURCHILL.

Mr. Burchill was the last speaker, and was given a good hearing. He vigorously assailed the N. P. and made a strong bid for the county to fall into the hands of the liberal party.

The above armored battleships are at the several ports in Great Britain above mentioned, awaiting orders. The greater number have been constructed since 1883, under the Spencer building programme, in continuation of the naval defence act of 1889, 1900, 1906 and 1909.

ARMORED CRUISERS.

Achilles, 16 guns, 10,000 tons, 4,000 horse power; Portsmouth; Agincourt, 17 guns, 12,000 tons, 4,000 horse power; Chatham; Apollo, 8 guns, 3,400 tons, 9,000 horse power; Chatham; Astrea, 10 guns, 4,600 tons, 9,000 horse power; Devonport; Aurora, 12 guns, 3,600 tons, 8,500 horse power; Devonport; Blake, 13 guns, 8,000 tons, 20,000 horse power; Chatham; Blenheim, 12 guns, 9,000 tons, 20,000 horse power; Chatham; Gorgon, 4 guns, 3,000 tons, 3,000 horse power; Chatham; Nelson, 16 guns, 7,900 tons, 5,500 horse power; Portsmouth; Northampton, 12 guns, 7,680 tons, 4,500 horse power; Chatham; Shannon, 6 guns, 5,500 tons, 3,500 horse power; Devonport.

In addition to above fleet cruisers, available and ready for immediate service, can be mentioned the armored battleships and cruisers that would be detached from the Channel fleet to patrol the Atlantic, and this, be it remembered, without the withdrawal of a single ship from a foreign station.

As in all her past history, Britain has looked out to get good value for the enormous treasure spent in building her vessels. Not a single instance can be cited of fraud or manipulation. The equipment of every ship has heavy well looked after. The number of guns of her fleet beats the world; any of her battleships can anchor 10 miles away, far out of range of all the Russian squadrons, and can present a mine, and send explosive projectiles, weighing 1,800 pounds, into the very centre of either New York or Boston.

Fifteen torpedo destroyers of the very latest design, with a speed of 29 knots, are ready to accompany the above fleet. The manning of this host of ships has been well attended to, and never in any former period of British history has she had a fleet as well equipped and manned as at present. She is practically the invincible mistress of the seas, and ready, if need be, to fight the combined navies of the world. Knowing her strength she treats with a contemptuous indifference the vaporing impudence of impotent and unready foes who but little know the terrible strength of the great power they are so madly endeavoring to provoke.

BUILDING AND ABOUT READY FOR LAUNCHING.

Armored first class battleships: Caesar, 18 guns, 14,900 tons, 12,000 horse power; Hannibal, 16 guns, 14,900 tons, 12,000 horse power; Illustrious, 16 guns, 14,900 tons, 12,000 horse power; Mars, 16 guns, 14,900 tons, 12,000 horse power; Jupiter, 16 guns, 14,900 tons, 12,000 horse power. Armored cruisers: Andromeda, 10 guns, 9,000 tons, 10,000 horse power; Diana, 11 guns, 5,600 tons, 9,600 horse power; Doris, 11 guns, 5,600 tons, 9,600 horse power; Argonaut, 10 guns, 5,750 tons, 10,000 horse power; Furious, 10 guns, 5,750 tons, 10,000 horse power; Gladiator, 10 guns, 5,700 tons, 10,000 horse power; Isis, 11 guns, 5,600 tons, 9,600 horse power; Juno, 11 guns, 5,600 tons, 9,600 horse power; Powerful, 14 guns, 14,200 tons, 10,000 horse power; Vendictive, 10 guns, 5,750 tons, 10,000 horse power. With 31 torpedo boat destroyers of 4,000 to 6,000 tons each.

ARMED BATTLESHIPS AND CRUISERS, MEDITERRANEAN FLEET.

Amson, 10 guns, 10,000 tons, 11,500 horse power; Bardour, 14 guns, 10,500 tons, 13,500 horse power; Camperdown, 10 guns, 10,900 tons, 11,500 horse power; Collingwood, 10 guns, 9,500 tons, 10,000 horse power; Fort, 10 guns, 5,000 tons, 9,000 horse power; Hawke, 12 guns, 7,350 tons, 12,000 horse power; Hood, 14 guns, 14,150 tons, 13,000 horse power; Howe, 10 guns, 10,900 tons, 11,500 horse power; Trafalgar, 10 guns, 11,910 tons, 12,000 horse power.

CHANNEL FLEET.

Consists of armored battleships, armored cruisers, cruisers protected and unprotected, torpedo destroyers, etc., to the number of 50 vessels, all first-class in equipment and of the latest type; not one of an obsolete class amongst them. In case of hostilities, a number of these would be detached, to operate with the fleet already enumerated on the seaboard of the United Kingdom.

Britain has, today, a navy of 600 ships, manned by 110,000 sailors. This does not include a marine force of over 15,000 of all ranks, and an available reserve of 25,000 men, who, in the course of five days, would be on active duty. These 600 ships patrol, in Britain's interests, the waters of the globe; but within striking distance is a fleet that is already making our neighbors quake at the result of their frightful loss in arousing the wrath of a peaceful power, whose invincible navy alone would obliterate their commerce, fleets and ports at short notice. The navy of the United States, today, consists of 64 vessels. This includes the vaunted white squadron, torpedo boats and gun vessels, manned by a force of 13,000 men and 1,100 marines. Their naval reserve consists of 2,000 men. We take these facts from their own authorized navy list, a force utterly inadequate to cope with Chili, which only rates on sea as a sixth-class power.

SIR FREDERICK LEIGHTON.

London, Jan. 26.—The Globe announces the death of Sir Frederick Leighton, the celebrated painter, and president of the Royal Academy.

Sir Frederick Leighton, Bart., P. R. A., LL. D., D. C. L., was born at Scarborough, in Yorkshire, December 3, 1830, and was therefore little over 65 years of age. From his childhood he showed a passion for art, and as he grew up, in spite of some parental opposition, he devoted himself to the life of an artist. He studied at Rome, at Berlin, at Frankfurt-on-the-Main, at Florence, at Paris and at Brussels. He scored a great success with the first picture which he exhibited in 1858, at the Royal Academy. It was entitled Cimabue's Procession, and it was immediately purchased by the queen, attracting much attention at the numerous exhibitions at which it was available for view. Subsequently the artist resided in Paris for four years, and then he removed to London. In 1858 he exhibited at the Academy in London his Triumph of Music, the subject being Orpheus by the power of his music redeeming his wife, Eurydice, from Hades. He afterwards exhibited The Fisherman and the Shrimp, and Juliet, Francis, Susan House and La Nana, besides many other famous paintings, historical and Scriptural. Some of his latest pictures are the Feast of Epiphany, Paradise, and Risparmio. The last three being painted in 1888. On November 13, 1878, he was chosen president of the Royal Academy, and a few days later he was knighted by the queen. In 1888 he was created a baronet, and last New Year's day his name was included in the list of New Year's honours, he being elevated to the peerage. He was a member of many foreign academies and held a high place in the world of art.

CANNIBAL PLANTS.

Characteristics of Those Animals of the Vegetable Kingdom. (Cincinnati Enquirer.)

It has been proved time and time again that the so-called "cannibal plants," of which the Venus flytrap is the type, are much more healthy when allowed their regular insect food than when they are reared upon nothing but in any manner which excludes them from their regular meat diet. The above is an oddity of itself, especially when we consider the fact that there is a certain class of botanists which teaches cannibal plants make no use whatever of the insect prey captured by them, but it is nothing compared with the bold assertion made by Francis Darwin. This noted scientific gentleman gravely meets the "vegetarian botanist" with the assertion that all kinds and classes of plants, whether known as "meat-eaters" or not, bear more or less the same relation to their food as the flesh diet. He grew two lots, comprising various varieties of the different common plants.

One lot was regularly fed (through their roots, of course) with pure juices compressed from meat, the other with water and the various fertilizers. The final figures on this odd experiment proved that the plants which were fed pure meat juice bore 168 fruits of the different kinds, while the unfed plants of the same number and original condition bore but seventy-four.

Also that the parasite plants bore 240 seeds to every 100 borne by the plants there were not given a chance to graze cannibalistic tastes. This is certainly a discovery worthy of the most careful study and extensive experiment.

VERY ANONYMOUS.

Travelling on the Mississippi about the close of the war, we rode in the pilot-house for three or four days, and the pilot informed us that during the war, as one of the vessels was passing Vicksburg, a captain put his head out of the pilot-house and a cannon ball struck it off, the trunk falling into the water, and the pilot was killed upon the deck. He said that he narrated this circumstance the day after it occurred to a lady, when she exclaimed: "Terrible! It is the most anonymous thing I ever heard of!"—Christian Advocate.

can thus scrape off all the droppings from the walk into a box or basket. The nests below the platform are also reached from the walk, while below the nests is an opening in the partition, through which the fowls drink from a dish in the walk, no water being spilled or made filthy by this plan.

The windows are on the lower side of the house, a great sufficiency of light being secured in this way. This construction permits a much lower, and consequently warmer, house than is the case where the walk is on the upper side. Such a house may be built of rough boards and covered with heavy roofing papers, then battened, when it should be warm and last for years. When the covering does begin to give out, simply clapboard right over the tarred felt or paper.

RAISING OF SWINE.

TREATMENT OF THE SOW FROM BREEDING TO FARROWING. The Old Haphazard Methods of Feeding Have Gone Out of Date—Exercise Necessary to Good Health—General Observations.

If the breeders of swine generally realized the influence which the care of the sow during pregnancy exercised on the future progeny, the management of brood sows would quite frequently be very different from what it is. Every breeder should invariably try to bear in mind that during gestation the development of the pigs in embryo is almost, if not quite, as completely under his control as that of the same animals after they have appeared upon earth and given birth to a litter of piglets.

The practice of breeding immature sows should be abandoned, and nothing should be bred but sows of maturity in the first stage of emaciation. After mating, the breeder's attention should be directed to the care of the sow and the care of the mother until the litter is born.

In selecting the feed for the sows, your best judgment should be employed. He should have a thorough knowledge of the value of the different kinds of feed that are to be used in building the animal structure. All intelligent feeders know that the old, irregular, haphazard method of feeding, formerly did fairly well, have gone out of date, and can no longer be employed by those who expect to gain notably from their stock. In fact, the successful development is attributable wholly to scientific treatment and proper methods of feeding the most nutritious foods. The sow should have a variety of food, not only liberally and at regular intervals; she should be kept, if possible, gaining in flesh and increasing in vitality from the time of mating until the farrowing period; she should have the run of a lot and given plenty of fresh, sound roots, in order that she may take sufficient exercise and obtain bone and muscle forming material. In addition to this, give slop composed of ground corn, wheat and oats in the proper proportion, and at regular intervals. One-fourth pound of oil meal (ground linseed cake) old process, in addition to slop will prove beneficial. Cans should be taken in making changes of food. Do not make them suddenly, but begin in the appearance of the new feed and increase it gradually until the amount one desires to feed is reached; otherwise even the most healthy foods may sometimes produce temporarily ill effects. It is greatly important to the well being of the future litter that the sow be fairly well fleshed and strong and vigorous when the pigs are born. If she is not, while she is nursing her pigs by sucking them, there is danger that she will suffer from emaciation. Let emaciation go beyond a certain degree and vitality suffers. Generally speaking, three tons of silage are equal in feeding value to one ton of hay. On this basis, a much greater amount of digestible food can be secured from an acre of silage corn than from an acre of hay. The food equivalent of four tons of hay per acre can easily be produced on an acre of land planted to corn.

A carelessly constructed silo is an extravagance. A well made one is an economy. Temporary structures are not advisable.

The Effect of Salt on Milk. Salt given to cows has some effect on the quality of the milk. This is especially so as the salt adds very much in the digestion of the food, and it is the quantity of the food digested that regulates the quantity and quality of the milk. Salt is indispensable to the health of any animal that feeds on vegetable matter, and the milk is affected greatly by the health or opposite condition of a cow. When salt is given to excess, it is injurious and causes an intense thirst, but this does not necessarily make the milk more watery than is customary; there is no reason to be given why this excess of water dilutes the milk. The milk is not made in any such way as would make this possible. It is produced by the breaking down of the glandular tissue of the udder, and this never contains more than a normal quantity of water. The kidneys are charged with the removal of any excess of water from the blood, and this drain, or outlet, if in good working condition, will always attend to its own business, and if it does not, or cannot, for any reason, the milk glands cannot perform this function, but the cow becomes diseased at once. But this is a question that the careful farmer will never have to consider, because he will always take care that such a supposed mistake will never happen. It is only the careless farmer who runs risk of giving his cows, or permitting them to get, too much salt.

The Type of Sow for Breeding. The brood sow may be of a little larger and coarser type than the boar if she possess the other requisite qualifications. By all means should the dumpy or China build be avoided, but this does not mean that the other extreme is any less objectionable. She should be of a compact, firm build, but should possess size enough to be able to carry and support a good large litter of pigs. To be a good brood sow means that she is a good suckler. The milking quality runs in strains in sows, as in cows, and no sow should be selected to breed from that is not of a deep mature sire and dam. An animal that is in any way defective or delicate should be excluded from the breeding herd and in a sow especially are vigorous health and a good appetite necessary. With a litter of eight to ten pigs to feed, her digestive powers will be taxed to the utmost. If the pigs are not to suffer.—Tail Butcher, Miss. Exp. Sta.

THE CARE OF GESE.

VARIETIES THAT ARE USUALLY KEPT IN THIS COUNTRY. The Chinese Breed Are the Most Productive in Eggs—Characteristics of the Toulous and Embdens—Raising of the Goslings.

The varieties of geese usually kept are Toulous, Embdens and Chinese. The former are grey-and-white, the two latter pure white, and all have their admixtures. Eighteen to twenty-five pounds are considered excellent weights in full grown geese. They usually lay from twenty to thirty eggs in the season. Four or five may be placed under large Cochon or Langshan hens, and seven to eleven under turkeys, as all three make much better mothers than geese, besides the greater safety from the attacks of a spiteful gander.

Very early hatched geese are the best for stock, or very late birds in their second year, as the eggs are not reliable for hatching purposes until the parents are over fifteen months old. Two geese and one gander are the best number to begin with, and after the first season, four or five may be added, but not more than three geese to one gander should be kept at any time.

The shells of the eggs are extremely tough, and will stand splinters from the time to time with milkwater during the period required in hatching them, which requires from 29 to 31 days. When first hatched the goslings should be fed four times daily, from a mixture of barley meal, chopped eggs, soaked bread, rice boiled till soft, and chopped cress, leeks, onion tops, and turnip tops. After the third day discontinue the eggs and increase the quantity of barley meal and greens, adding some boiled refuse from the stock pot.

Geese should be kept well supplied with fresh water in a flat tub large enough for them to bathe in at their pleasure. When well looked after geese live to a great age, 30 or 40 years, and their eggs are very valuable, but the exception; but the gander should not be retained after his tenth or twelfth year, unless a very valuable bird, as old ganders are apt to be dangerous to their own flocks.

Adult geese thrive well on an unlimited range of grass, with the addition of vegetable refuse from the garden or farm, such as turnip and carrot tops, outer leaves of cabbages, lettuce and turnip, swedes, or mangold wurzel cut in halves and thrown down when available are a treat. A feed of corn or grain once daily, or occasionally a little barley meal, for a change in the morning; but it is not advisable to overfeed stock birds at any time, and especially in the autumn and winter, otherwise they become fat and useless.

The goslings intended for culinary purposes should be well and liberally fed for five weeks previous to being killed for table use. Corn soaked for some hours in water, sashes and grains, and buttermilk, when easily to be procured, on this food, fattens rapidly, and makes them 15 to 20 pounds, according to the sex.

The Toulous are the largest kind, and the Chinese the smallest of the domestic geese. They are usually kept in a small enclosure, and are usually killed for table use, laying from 50 to 70 eggs in a season. The birds and eggs are smaller by nearly half than Toulous or Embdens; the head is more square like in shape, and the beak is short and very high up to the head, with a knob between the eyes usually black, the beak being orange. The neck is long and elegant, and there is a little bare patch on the throat, and under the throat. The color is often pure white, but grey-and-white specimens are sometimes kept, and both varieties are handsome and worthy of attention as ornamental water fowls, although the larger specimens are more profitable.

What is Study? Mere reading is not study. Muttering the words over in a low, gurgling tone, or letting them glide in a soft, half-audible tinkle upon your lips is not study. Going over the lesson in a listless, dreamy way, one eye on the book and one eye ready for whatever is going on in other parts of the room, is not study. Study work. Study is agony. The whole soul must be roused, its every energy put forth, with a fixed, rapt attention, like that of a man struggling with a giant. Study worthy of the name forgets for a time everything else, excludes everything else, is incapable of being diverted by anything else, the whole internal and external man being bent upon making just one thing its own. One hour of such study accomplishes more than whole days of listless poring over books.—Hart.

Estimating a Horse's Height. The Arabs have two methods of estimating the height to which a colt will grow, the first being to stretch a cord from the nostril over the ears and down along the neck and compare this measurement with that from the withers to the feet, and the other method being to compare the distance between the knee and the withers with that from the knee to the coronet. In the first method it is considered that a colt will grow as much taller as the first measurement exceeds that of the second, and the second method, if the proportion is as two to one the horse will grow no taller.

Princess Frederic's Sad Story—Horse-whipped by Her Husband—A Divorce Will Be Applied For.

Berlin, Jan. 28.—There is no truth in the story that Princess Frederic Leopold of Prussia has of late persistently refused to see her sister, the empress, it is equally untrue that she has sworn never again to speak to the Kaiser, after the disgraceful scenes reported two weeks ago.

Though everybody knew of the bitter quarrel, which was of almost daily occurrence in the household, the princess maintained to keep the story of her despicable husband in the royal castle.

The prince finally forbade the exercise of his freedom. She was not allowed to leave Glienicke castle without his special permission, and driven to despair, she listened to the counsel of two ladies of her court, and actually dared to disobey, and indulge in her favorite sport of skating.

There is no doubt that the Kaiser will henceforth watch over the interests of his sister-in-law. As any prince Leopold has already been compelled to give up his command of the Imperial Body Guards, and his absence from the court is not altogether voluntary.

The Storm King arrived at Partridge Island at 4 o'clock on the 28th inst., and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who had been ashore at Little River, Me. Capt. Hatfield reports that he has very little news to report.

Some Idea of the Evidence to be Presented on Behalf of the Crown.

By the Time of the Preliminary Examination the Chain of Evidence Will be Complete.

Bear River, N. S., Jan. 31.—The conviction is firmly settled in the minds of the whole neighborhood that Peter Wheeler is the murderer of Annie Kempton; indeed, so strongly are some people impressed with the prisoner's guilt that their feelings have so overcome their better judgment that they desire to see summary punishment inflicted. While there is no doubt that the evidence shows up Wheeler in a bad light, there is no positive testimony that he is the slayer of the unfortunate girl.

Still, at the same time it is generally believed that he will find great difficulty in disproving some of the statements alleged against him. Wheeler's appearance certainly will not have the effect of eliciting sympathy in his behalf. He bears no evidence of refinement, and to many eyes he has left the impression that he might be a person capable of committing so heinous a crime. But those who know him intimately give him a good name, and are loathe to believe him to be the guilty person. Although physically a strong man, Wheeler seems to have had no fixed occupation, preferring rather a life of idleness and ease than one of industry.

For ten years, it is said, he has lived in this happy-go-lucky sort of existence, occasionally going to sea and when at home at Bear River employing most of his time at fishing and shooting.

The woman, Tillie Comeau, with whom he lodged, is the mother of four children, whose father no one in the neighborhood seems to have seen.

This woman has always shown a kindly nature to Wheeler, and there seems to have been a strong bond of mutual sympathy existing between them even since Wheeler appeared on the scene. Some of the neighbors are uncharitable enough to say that the pair are too intimate from a moral point of view, and this impression, possibly, along with other rumors heard, has had much to do with condemning the accused before he had even been given a chance to prove his innocence.

THE PRISONER'S STATEMENT.

The explanation of the movements of the prisoner Wheeler is a confused story in the minds of nearly all the people and, in fact, outside of the court, few persons are in a position to say just exactly what the prisoner did state to the coroner. Hence it is that his statement, taken by the coroner, is now given more fully on the morning of Thursday last, when the body of the murdered girl was alleged to have been discovered. Wheeler says: I went to the house at 8.30 a.m. of Thursday. Found a stick against the door. Rapped, the stick fell and the door opened. Went into the house. Found everything upside down and Annie Kempton lying on the floor. Thought she had fainted. Put hand on right side of head and she was cold. Took Mr. Kempton's coat and threw it over her. Looked in the rooms and found no one. Started for the back door, running. Went into Omer Rice's, told him of the murder and from there went home. Was not in the habit of going for milk so early in the morning. There was no milk in the house and the lamps were out. Saw out in the neck. She lay on her left side. Was not home until after 9 o'clock Monday night. Went to bed when I did not know where she was. Saw deceased pass my house coming and returning from the bridge. This was about 4.30 or 5 o'clock p.m. Monday. We did not speak. Annie Kempton told me in the forenoon of Monday that Grace Morine was going to stop with her on Tuesday night. Annie Kempton called me as I was going up the road past the house. She offered me a couple of beans and I said "no." I would go home. I stayed with her about half an hour. While I was sitting in the house deceased was making flowers. She asked me where Tillie was to work (she is the woman I stay with), and I told her at the hotel. I said she had work every day this week. Deceased said: Tillie said not to mind coming up to stay as Grace Morine was coming and that it would just be fun for Grace to come and stay all night. I don't know that Grace Morine promised to come. I told Tillie (she comes to work with) that she need not go to Kempton's, as Annie would get Grace Morine. Do not know that Grace stayed with her previously. Don't know of any man being up this way Monday night, but twenty minutes to two on Tuesday morning three men went by the house, talking, going toward the flat. I knew the time because I was cooking meat to go into the woods, and afterwards fell asleep on the quilts until I was so cold could not sleep and was aroused by the talking of the men outside. I don't know what time it was. Could not tell; it was dark on account of the frost on the window. One of the men was the height of little Jim Crabbe; another was like Will Marshall, and the third like Obedia Morine's boy, short and stout. Tillie came home from the hotel early Monday evening and she, Hatie Comeau and I went to the bridge together, but we did not come back together. I came home first with Hardy Benson. I think I told Tillie before I went to the bridge that Annie Kempton said she would just as leave she (Tillie) did not come, as deceased could get the Morine girl to stop with her.

From this statement it will appear that Wheeler does not account for himself from the time she left Annie Kempton alive in her house at noon on Monday until the time she was arrested at his lodging house at Comeau's. He does not say just what time it was he got home, but if his story be true he must have arrived there before dark, because he says he saw the murdered girl passing his lodging house between 4.30 and 5 o'clock Monday afternoon.

AGAINST THE PRISONER.

Here are the strong points in the evidence against the prisoner. In his testimony Elmsy Crabbe positively declares he saw Wheeler near the Kempton house about 5.30 o'clock on Monday afternoon. This witness said he saw Wheeler again at the bridge in an evening and asked him if he had not met him at the time and place mentioned. Wheeler replied that it was him witness had seen. Wheeler was then going towards Kempton's barn.

Another link in the chain of circumstantial evidence is the story told by Bernard Parker, who the morning the murder was discovered says he saw Wheeler from the back door of Kempton's house to the pig pen down to Omer Rice's house and through his orchard. The prints were exactly 10 inches in length. Detective Power, who accompanied Parker in this examination, took the precaution to remove the mosses which Wheeler had been wearing. The detective is confident that the footprints in the snow and those made by Wheeler when the latter was seen about Kempton's premises about 5.30 on Monday evening.

The importance of this evidence can readily be seen, as it conclusively proves that Wheeler was around the Kempton house. The question then naturally arises: Why did he go there, if it were not for some evil purpose? That he was on friendly terms with the girl there does not seem to be any doubt. Then why does he seek to enter the house in this sneaking and roundabout way, if it were not to do some wrong? The person has yet come forward to say that Wheeler had been seen to enter the house or commit the murder, but unless he can prove an alibi the circumstances will have material weight with the jury when the prisoner goes up for trial.

There is still another strong point in the case against the accused. Herbert Comeau, 15 years old, who is a son of the woman the prisoner has been lodging with, says that when he returned from school on Monday afternoon he went home and, finding no one there, took an axe and went out to some firewood along the side of the road about a quarter of a mile from home. While chopping Wheeler came along, and young Comeau asked him where he had been all day. The accused replied that he was up to Rice's for money which had been owed him for some time. Here again the prisoner is flatly contradicted, for the Rice family say that he was not seen near their premises that day.

Whether there should be any heed paid to the statements made by Wheeler to some of his associates concerning designs he had upon the murdered girl when alive, the readers of the Sun must judge for themselves, but there can be no doubt his foolish talk from time to time has greatly tended to strengthen the suspicion that now surrounds him. No one believes that Annie Kempton was other than a chaste girl, and it would seem that Wheeler had not the slightest justification for supposing otherwise. Her married sister, Mrs. Bernard A. Rice, was on the train up to Bear River in company with your correspondent on Thursday morning last. She was in great grief, and seemed to feel that her mother, who had about four months ago gone to Boston to pass the winter with herself and Peter, had done wrong to her younger sister, Annie, alone at home, and she said, was a bright girl, and the flower of the family. She was but 15 years old, and being studious in her habits she meant to make her mark in the world. Her ambition was to teach music, in the studies of which she proved herself an apt pupil. She had no enemies, and at school she was the general favorite. The poor woman could restrain her feelings no longer and burst into tears. When she reached the house she completely broke down, and wept all day. The accused, however, did not seem to care a fig for the grief of the reporter.

In the next room adjoining lay the mother in a semi-conscious state, overwhelmed with grief and surrounded by kind and loving friends, who did all in their power to lighten the gloom over that unhappy household.

The funeral of the victim of this most atrocious murder was held this afternoon and from the great number of citizens it was evident the whole neighborhood shared in the sorrow for the afflicted family so suddenly and inhumanly deprived of the companionship of one who had brought so much of sunshine and happiness to her home.

Detective Power had the clothing stripped from Wheeler on the day of his arrest, and from the man out of the church that a life of frivillity. They live to a great extent within themselves, and with them it is Bear River first, last and all the time. What one knows the other knows, but, as fortune would have it, very little of their knowledge was made manifest from pursuing the even tenor of his way.

Toward the lower part of the hill, on the Digby side, there runs a street in a southerly direction, stretching out through rich farm lands, passing cozy residences, and surrounded on all sides by beautiful landscapes.

About a mile and one fourth from the corner lives one Tillie Comeau, who, though never married, has four children, two boys and two girls, all of whom remain at home. Here, it is lived for many years, and about twelve years ago one by name Peter Wheeler, then about 14 years of age, came to live with her. He has since one of his home there, doing chores for the people around the village. He has always been a sober, industrious fellow, active when he wants to be, and keen in the powers of perception. Tillie's house is on the east side of the street, and east of the house adjoining runs a street parallel with the one on which Tillie's house is located. On the first street, by going on about 400 yards, then passing a few cottages, you see on your left a nice cozy little white residence, setting up off the road. Everything around the house would at once give on the idea that it was the home of a thrifty, industrious farmer, who had done well in this world's goods. To enter from the south, gives you the kitchen, and from there is connected the sitting room, the latter opening into a bedroom on the south side, and the parlor is on the west side.

About twenty-five years ago Isaac Kempton moved there. Detective Power courted it hard to get a start in the world, and by economy as a lumberman and small farmer amassed quite a little sum of money. But, as with many, there came a crash, and he was left with little of this world's goods. He was not despondent, and though afterwards he lost a foot, which was cut off at the ankle, he began life anew. He had managed to get along and had bettered himself considerably. His wife was also an industrious woman, and she helped Isaac fight the battles of the world. Five children she reared, and she was a very good living; the son, who is married, near the old homestead, Annie, who remained home to keep house for her father; and the others are in the States. One daughter, who was a very good housekeeper, her mother went on, where she has since remained, thereby hoping to gain a few dollars. She never forgot Annie, though, and she managed that money if often wanted by girls, sent her some from time to time. After spending a very enjoyable Christmas day, the mother on the 27th ult. wrote a very touching letter to her daughter, which the spectator man found between the inner and outside windows. It was sympathetic and the mother's love, expressed in homely language, was only as a mother could feel. She spoke of Annie's reported illness, and begged her to take life a little more easy, and not impair her health. The letter was very touching, and especially so when she mentioned that money if often wanted by girls, sent her some from time to time. After spending a very enjoyable Christmas day, the mother on the 27th ult. wrote a very touching letter to her daughter, which the spectator man found between the inner and outside windows. It was sympathetic and the mother's love, expressed in homely language, was only as a mother could feel. She spoke of Annie's reported illness, and begged her to take life a little more easy, and not impair her health. The letter was very touching, and especially so when she mentioned that money if often wanted by girls, sent her some from time to time.
