Interesting Discussion in the Commons on the Government's Policy.

Strong Opposition to Jingoism by the Liberals-The Fress Shows Little Enthusiasm in the Matter.

London, March 17 .- After Mr. Curon's statement in the House yesterin reference to the pro-British Soudan expedition, day posed Mr. Labouchere moved to adjourn in order to consider the serious situation which had been revealed by the statement in regard to Egypt and the Soudan, made by Mr. Curzon. He contended that the expedition into the Soudan was worse than needless. It hindered the fulfillment of the pledges of Great Britain to evacuate Egypt, and he doubted whether it would relieve the Italians. He was a warm friend of at Dongola, and it is reported that the men to whom that country be- in great danger.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the Liberal leader in the House, followed Sir Charles Dilke. He said that if this was the first step of a forward policy in Egypt, it was of a most perilous character, and deserved strenuous op-position. There was a great party in England which learned nothing from experience, and which was always eager for the extension of the empire, which was already large enough to please the most inordinate ambition. He would not in the meantime assume that there was any intention on the part of the Government to give the movement up the Nile a significance beyond Mr. Curzon's statement. asked the House to note that the Government repudiated any intention to occupy the Soudan. The House was bound to assume that this was a small movement for military purposes to meet a temporary occasion. He hoped there would be an early opportunity to discuss the matter in its larger bearings, when the whole policy of the occupation of Egypt was considered. BALFOUR EXPLAINS.

Rt. Hon. A. J. Balfour, Government leader in the House, said that all the Government could state at present was that the advance must be made. It would be premature to discuss further movements intended. Mr. Labouchere, he added, seemed to rejoice at the defeat of Italy. That, Mr. Balfour continued, was certainly not the view of a single man on the Government side of the House, nor was it the view of a majority on the opposite side, nor well known actress, is announced. of the English people. Even the nations of Europe, whose policy was most divergent from that of Italy, expressed sympathy for the Italians, in their reverses. Mr. Labouchere also rejoiced because of the resurgence of Mahdism. Had the world ever seen a more cruel or worse rule? He could not conceive a change more for the benefit of the Soudan than that that country should be transferred to Government acting under English influ-Nothing certainly would more conduce to the welfare and prosperity of the Soudanese than replacing brutal anarchy by regular laws. The Government had no reason to believe that any great power would object to the expedition. Certainly, those powers favorable to Italy would not object, and any other power that was desirous that Egypt should remain prosperous and secure would not regret the step the Government had taken. The Government did not dream of extending the conquest to Darfur. REDMOND'S PROPHECY. John Redmond, member for Waterford city, and one of the Parnellite leaders, said that if the expedition met with a misfortune similar to that which had befallen the Italians, the news would be received with satisfaction by the greater number of the Irish members of the House.

THE GOVERNMENT SUSTAINED. Mr. Labouchere's motion was rejected by a vote of 268 to 126. Government recommend it. The Daily News says that if real danger exists the country will support the Government, if the dispatch of the Soudan expedition is an act of prudence, and not a reckless adventure. The Chronicle takes the most gloomy view of the matter. It says that the country is committed to unknown British Troops Awaiting the perils, and is drifting it is not known whither. Unofficial military opinion is divided, but it is generally regarded as hopeless to employ Egyptian troops without a mixture of British soldiers. The Paris Figaro says the British expedition into the Soudan is undertaken in order to enable England to say that her work of civilization in Egypt was only the first phrase of her final development and annexation of that country. AT CAIRO.

Public feeling at Cairo is generally favorable to the Soudan expedition. This is especially the case among the commercial community, who foresee a revival of the trade with the south. BROWN WAS MURDERED. Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., March 17 .-The coroner's jury which sat on the death of Tax Collector Frank W. Brown, who was found sitting in his chair, dead, with three bullet holes in his body, has returned a verdict of death at the hands of some person unknown. The whole affair is a mystery. No motive for self-mur-der can be found and not motives for clusion of live Canadian cattle from murder are apparent.

The Life and Death of the Present Parliament.

How the Men in Power Try to Postpone Defeat.

Division on the Corolon Bill to Take Place Early on Wednesday.

Ottawa, March 17.-Nearly the whole time of the House was taken up yesterday afternoon in discussing the question of the duration of Parliament, the subject being introduced by Mr. Edgar, who protested against any reference of the question to the Supreme Court, as the life of Parliament would expire on April 25. That seemed to him rather an extraordinary course. According to the Governor-General's proclamation the date of the return of the writs in the last election was the 25th of April, 1891, and according to another proclamation Parliament was called and met four days later. It was therefore clear enough that the life of the present Parliament terminated on the 25th of April next Why, he asked, had any other date been suggested? For the reason that on the 3rd of June, 1891, a writ was presented of the election of a member for Algome. Evidently there was an error on the part of some official in not holding the election in that constituency on the date set forth in the proclamation, viz., 25th of April, Errors of this kind were, however, expressly provided for in the Dominion Election Act. He maintained that a returning officer's error could not in any shape or form effect the life of this Parliament. If a returning officer could delay the return of the writ for a month and a half, and hence the contention that such a course could influence the life of Parliament was manifestly absurd. The case of the Ontario Government in regard to Algoma had been referred but it must be remembered that in that instance the date of election had been extended by special procla-mation. The Ontario Legislature had power to extend its life, but this Pariament had not.

Mr. Edgar claimed that a reference to the Supreme Court would settle interested persons, and any way there was no time for consulting the Supreme Court, to say nothing of the Privy Council. "I must say," he observed, "this House has reason to know that her Majesty's Privy Council does not always on constitutional questions agree with the view of our Supreme Court I think, therefore, the suggestion that this should be heard, if in-deed it could be heard, by the Supreme Court, is futile, and was never intended the Supreme Court was only advisory and Chesley on Saturday. and not obligatory. The best way to put an end to the existing doubt was for Parliament not to sit after the 25th of April. The Government having were now raising a legal question in possible to have it put through order to extend the sixth session still session. further.

Mr. Dickey said that there was nothing so uncertain as law, and, while not expressing an opinion on the subject, there was possibly some force in the contention that Parliament could legally run along until the 3rd of June. ....

Mr. Mills (Bothwell) made a long and able argument, citing precedents from Magna Charta onward, to show that April 25 was the last day on which Parliament could meet. The courts, he pointed out, did not pretend to undertake to consider Parliamentary law; they undertook the construction of the law from Parliament itself. He held that it was not the period at which the last writ was returned that determined the question, but the period fixed in the proclamation for the return of the writ. The House met by authority of the Crown, and it sat as counsel for the purpose of advising the Crown. The Crown fixed the time for the meeting of Parliament, and the proclamation having fixed the date for the return of the writs, the House could not go behind that legally for the purpose of fixing in some other way the period at which Parliament would legally begin to exist. This House was the judge of its own privileges, and as such it de-cided when its life began. There could be no doubt whatever that the period for which this Parliament was elected began on April 25, 1891, and would expire on April 25 of the present year.

Dr. Weldon (Conservative) said there might be a question as to when the life of a Parliament began, but there could be none as to the length of time it could live. The present Parliament began making laws on April 29, 1891, and so, at most, it could not sit beyond April 28, 1896. He was strongly of the opinion that Parliament would die on

Mr. Davies took the same view, and Sir C. H. Tupper and Mr. Hazen argued that June 3 was the proper date.

Mr. Choquette quoted as the opinion of Quebec lawyers a letter written by Senator Landry in the Moniteur, of Levis, the Hon. Mr. Angers' organ, in

Annual Report of the Sunday School-Pleasant Tea and Concert,

The annual entertainment and pres entation of reports of the London West Methodist Sunday school drew a large audience last night. The chairman, Rev. B. Clement, introduced the following programme: Quartet, Hill street male quartet; piano solo, Mrs. Milligan; recitation, Miss Wrighton; vocal solo, Miss Fowler; vocal solo, Mr. Forsythe; recitation, Miss Horton; twenty-minute address, Rev. A. L. Russell, B.D.; piano duet, Mrs. and Miss Milligan; vocal solo, Miss Fowler; quartet, Hill street male quartet; recitation, Miss Wrighton; vocal solo, Mr. Forsythe; recitation, Miss Horton.

The report of the treasurer, Miss E. M. Woodward, showed receipts of $322 08, and a balance on hand of $49 27. The report of the secretary, Mr. R. Donaghy, showed a gratifying growth in the school. There were 118 girls and 93 boys on the roll, with an average attendance of 81 and 66 respectively. There were 23 teachers and eight officers; average attendance, 19 and 7 respectively. Why Hon. L. H. Davies Opposes Mapped Out by Mr. Laurier.

Ottawa, March 17.-In concluding his great speech against the bill for the coercion of Manitoba, Hon. L. H. Davies, Liberal leader in the Maritime Provinces, said:

"I oppose this bill because it is a political fraud, a Parliamentary juggle; because it embodies the maximum of evil with the minimum of good; because while applying a ocercion hateful to all Canadians, it is confessedly inefficient and unworkable; because on its very face it lacks finality, and by calling for further amendments must necessarily rekindle and encourage racial and religious disputes. I oppose it because it invokes an interference with Provincial rights, only to be tolerated in the last resort, and after careful investigation proves the existence of well-founded grievences which the Legislature will not remedy. I oppose it because, while technically within our powers, it is under present circumstances morally outside them; and because it is an uncalled-for and arbitrary exercise of a limited constitutional privilege or power, only to be resorted to when all other means have failed. I oppose it because, while ostensibly pretending to remedy the grievances of the minority, it gives them no effectual relief, and, while creating a vast and obnoxious machinery, provides no motive power either to start it going or keep it moving. I oppose it because the experience of all the Provinces has shown that the majority in each Province will, if left to themselves, do even-handed justice to the minority. I oppose it because, while violating the established practice of a quarter of a century, it creates a precedent which, if followed, may eventually disrupt and destroy the confederacy. I oppose it because, involving one of the greatest questions of State policy ever brought before us, a question pregnant with most far-reaching and dangerous results, it is beyond the moral competence of this dying Parliament in its dying hours to enact. I oppose it because, in my judgment, it is more than doubtful, whether, once passed, it can afterwards be altered or amended by this Parliament, because the power given to us to legislate at all, strictly limited and dependent upon certain necessary antecedent conditions, once exercised is exhausted, and cannot be again acted upon; because it is probably final and irrevocable so far as we are concerned, and, therefore, doubly calls for prudence, care, time and investigation on our part before being made the law of the land. I oppose it because the present exercise by us of the power is bitterly opposed to the wishes and desires of the vast majority of the Manitoba people. I oppose the bill because the higher law, the golden rule, bids me do unto others as I would be done by, and, as I would bitterly resent coercion being applied under similar circumstances to my own Province, so I will decline, unless in the last resort and after the fullest investigation, to join in applying it to another Province. I oppose it because do not believe in force as a remed for wrong. THE BETTER WAY. But, while I oppose this bill, I know there is a better way, a nobler path to follow, a simpler and more British method by which the grievances may be removed and justice for the minority obtained. That way, that path, that method is the equitable and British method proposed by the leader of the Liberal party. His earnestness, his sincerity, his ability, are beyond cavil or doubt. His race, his creed, his experience, render his position unique. and his power in such a case as this is very great. His noble and statesmanlike views, put forward in his speech during this debate, have established for him a reputation and a confidence rarely before enjoyed by a Canadian public man. His proposition for a settlement commends itself to our common sense and involves an amicable settlement through Provincial legislation, based on conciliation and compromise, and after thorough discussion and investigation. Sir, I cannot but believe that, with coercion abandoned and conciliation substituted, the Protestant majority of Manitoba will be ready to accord to their weaker brethren a full measure of justice pressed down and running over.

The Handsome Stowawau

A Romance Aboard the Atlantic Steamship St. Paul.

A Chicago Girl Falls in Love With Stowaway -Offers to Pay His Fare, But Was Refused.

New York, March 17.-The St. Paul had three stowaways on board when she came into port Saturday night. They lay shackled and handcuffed and begrimed with coal dust in a small room between decks aft.

They were questioned on the steamship yesterday by an inspector of the Emigration Bureau. While the examination was going on a handsome young woman attempted to get near. She seemed greatly agitated.

The ship's master-at-arms caught her with no gentle grip and pushed her

"I wish to see that young man," said she.
"You cannot; step back," said the officer.

The young man was the best-looking of the three stowaways. He is only nineteen, but he is a magnificent specimen of physical development. His features are regular and strong. His name is John W. Bradbury. The young woman was Miss Mary Olson, of Chicago. She was a second cabin passenger. She was dressed in good taste.

"I will pay that young man's fare and his fine, too, if you will allow him to land," she said, the tears beginning to flow. She waved a roll of money. The fare was $27 50 and the fine $10. "Impossible," said the master-at-

Miss Olson began to sob. The lips of the handsome young stowaway twitched. The master-at-arms was firm. The law, it seems, forbids payment under such circumstances.

After the examination the three stowaways were manacled to one another, placed in the transfer boat and taken to Ellis Island. As the transfer boat moved away Miss Olson threw a kiss to Bradbury.

Reuters, the eldest of the trio, said the home of the stowaways was in London. They walked to Southampton and slipped aboard the St. Paul the midnight before she sailed. They hid in the coal bunkers. When the pilot had been dismissed next day they crawled out and went to the second engineer. All three were set to work passing coal. Besides passing coal they did watch duty on deck four hours each day.

Saturday morning, when the St. Paul was in sight of land, one of the ship's officers shackled the three stowaways and locked them up.
"We had to knock down the door of our room to attract the steward's attention to get our breakfast," said Reuters. "We were treated like dogs." Early in the voyage the handsome Bradbury had attracted the attention of Miss Olson. She learned his story and made his acquaintance. The ship's officers have several notes which were found on Bradbury. They were writ-ten by Miss Olson and are full of expressions of affection.

The three stowaways will be sent back to England Wednesday. Six months' imprisonment awaits them there. The stowaway Wheeler had a friend in one of the passengers who is now at the Copenhagen Hotel. He offered to pay Wheeler's fare and fine, but the officers said, "Impossible."

RESCUED FROM INSANITY.

Gentlemen,—To say all that I ought to in favor of B. B. B. would be im-possible. It has been a great health restorer to me, and I do swear by it. I am a different man to what I was ten years ago, when it was expected I would be in the asylum, but now I am in perfect robust health, and it was the B. B. B. that did it. I suffered for five or six years from constipation, sometimes so severely that I went out of my mind.

I tried various doctors, both in the country and in the city, and took medicines too numerous to mention, but everything failed to have the desired effect. When I used Burdock Blood Bitters it succeeded beyond all expectations, requiring only two bottles to cure me. To make it still more certain that B. B. B. is the real cure for constipation, I may say that some two years afterwards I felt the symptoms returning, and took one bottle more, and from that time to this present day over eight years) I have never had any return of the disease.

I never knew any medicine to work so well. It does not seem to be a mere reliever, but a sure and certain cure, as I can testify to, for hundreds' of dollars' worth of medicine and advice failed to do me any good, but three dollars' worth of B. B. B. made a permanent cure that has given me health and comfort. Yours truly, C. L. KILMER, Toronto.

NO. 8 COMMITTEE'S REPORT. In the absence of Ald. John Heaman the report of No. 3 committee was read by Ald. Garratt. There were eleven clauses in all.

The first discussion arose over the re commendation of the committee to pay $7 50 to A. Isaac for cleaning water carts prior to storing them away last winter. The work was ordered by the engineer. Ald. Garratt mentioned that the assistant engineer had stated that the work had been ordered. What right has he to certify to anything?" asked Ald. Carrothers. Ald, Cooper and Ald, Pritchard opposed the payment, and Ald. Dreaney stated that the work had been done, and the man ought to be paid. The clause was adopted.

Progress was reported on the question of a public abattoir pending legis lation on the matter. Clause 4 empowered the fire chief to call for tenders for the yearly supplies for the department, according to a list submitted therewith.

"That is just the way," said Ald. Pritchard, as the clause passed, "things go through here without us knowing what they are."

Tenders will be called for the following work: The old hook and ladder truck repaired at a cost not to exceed $100, the hose wagon at No.2 hall painted, and the hose wagon at No. 3 hall repaired and painted, the estimated cost of work being $25 and $35 respec-

Clause 6 read: That the engineer be instructed to prepare plans and specifications for rebuilding the shed in the rear of No. 1 fire hall, and for the erection of a stable at the back of the addition built for accommodation of aerial truck, and that the committee be instructed to call for tenders for the proposed works and report.

Ald. Cooper and O'Meara contended that the work was not necessary. There was a lengthy discussion on the clause, and Ald. Carrothers hinted that Ald. O'Meara and Cooper wanted the money expended on a fire hall in the North End.

Why, I should think you would favor a fire hall up there," said Ald. O'Meara; "because if the brewery was

"I can do without a brewery better than Ald. O'Meara can do without a hack," retorted Ald. Carrothers. The clause was referred back.

Clause 7 empowered the committee to call for tenders for a soft water tank and force pump for No. 2 fire hall, and also for the construction of a new top floor in the hose room, and a concrete floor in the stables, the cost not to exceed $250. This met with similar opposition, but ultimately was carried. Clause 11 recommended the payment in full of the Waterous Company's account for the aerial truck. The contract price was $2,992 37, but $117 50 in extras has swelled the account to $3,- 109 87. The "extras" engaged the attention of the aldermen for awhile, and finally Ald. Powell moved that the contract. price be paid, and that the "extras" be referred back for fuller information. Ald. Cooper seconded.

In reply to a query by, Ald. Parnell, Ald. Garratt read the report of the mechanics-Messrs. Fairbairn and Yates-who were detailed to examine the truck. The report was very satisfactory.

made against him by the Free Press. they had tried in vain to capture. When he made a similar move in 1884, there was the same storm of abuse, but by the city owning its own pit, the price had been reduced from $10 25 for screened, unscreened and screenings delivered south of Dundas street, to $5 30, and there had been a saving to the city of $30,000 since that time.

The clause carried. It took just five minutes to adopt the report. THE FINANCE COMMITTEE. Ald. George W. Armstrong, chairman, read the report. Accounts amounting to $3,778 20 passed without discussion. The council sent back to committee the account of $5 each from Drs. Mc-Laren and Jento for examining Maggie rphy for insanity.

The committee had reported adversely because the examination had been ordered by a private individual, the mother superior of St. Joseph's Hospital, and the council was equally divided as to whether the account should

Ald. Parnell asked that the petition of C. Morton, re sewer rate, which the committee recommended to be filed, urging no power, be referred back for a fuller report. The city engineer rerorted that the case was a peculiar one, and the city auditor, according to the mayor, thought that the case was a hardship, and while the assessment doubtless fulfilled the letter of the law, it did not fulfill the spirit, and Mr. Morton was obliged to move a great deal more than the value of the sewer would warrant. The clause was referred back to No. 1 with power.

ance, $100; light, $275; heat, $200; rent The account of George Heaman for of telephone, $25; furnishings, $580; $105 75 for water cart repairs came up once more on a recommendation to re-Ald. O'Meara pointed out that Mr. Heaman had the engineer's order for the work, and could collect the amount in court.

The account will be paid. OTHER BUSINESS.

Ald. Parnell reported progress on behalf of the special committee re ex-

Ald. Pritchard insisted on having a report on the expenditure in connection with running the steam rolled last year. If it was not in by next meeting there would be a row. "We have two engineers," said Mr. Pritchard, "and they are too lazy to prepare a report." Ald. Taylor pressed his motion looking for a change in the present method of tax collection. He asked that no rebate of 3 cents on the dollar be allowed to those paying their full taxes with the first installment, and that the fine of 5 cents on each dollar be not charged to those who were slightly behind in their payments.

Ald. O'Meara supported the motion. Ald. Armstrong favored the continuation of the present method. Ald. Parnell went into figures to show the immense advantage the present method of payment of taxes was. He showed that the method made a clean saving in bank discounts averaging $3,797 51 each year. To prove that the people took advantage of the rebate by paying their taxes on the first call, mentioned that two-thirds of the taxes last year were paid on the date of the first installment. If continued, the plan would save the city half a mill on the dollar.

Ald. Powell asked Ald. Taylor to let the motion go to No. 1 committee for a report.

After some further talk the matter was referred to No. 1 committee. Ald. Armstrong pressed his motion for a report from the assessment commissioners as to the number of persons ranking as voters who are assessed as tenants and who ought to be assessed for income, and thus pay statute labor, and also to give a full list of all per-sons who are doubtful tenants. Ald. Armstrong disclaimed any political motive, and the motion carried.

Ald. Nutkins moved that the Western Fair supply the council with plans of the new buildings at Queen's Park.

Council adjourned at 11:40.

A Reference to Human Icebergs-How the World May Be Warmed-The Great Gospel Fireplace.

Washington, D. C., March 17.-The freezing blasts which have swept over the country, at the time we expected spring weather, make this sermon especially appropriate. Dr. Talmage's especially appropriate. Dr. Talmage's played in the rocky defile between text was Psalm 147, 17: "Who can Jerusalem and Jericho in Scripture

How few of us have studied the power of frost? "Who can stand before his cold?" This chalaccepted. Oct. 19, 1812, Napoleon's great army began its retreat from Moscow. An army of Arctic blasts, with icicles for bayonets and hailstones for shot, and commanded by voice of temptest, marched after them. The flying artillery of the heavens in pursuit. Was put on armful after armful. Then Mont Blanc, Jungfrau, the Matterhorn. The largest galleries of the world are a shovelfull of coal was taken from galleries of ice. Who can tell of the suffering of the winter of 1433, when all the birds of Germany perished? or the winter of 1658 in England, when the stage rolled on the Thames and temporary houses of merchandise were built on the ice? Or the winter of 1821 in America, when New York harbor was frozen over, and the heaviest teams crossed on the ice to Staten Island? One-half of the industries of our day are employed in battling inclemency of the weather. The furs of the north, the cotton of the south, the flax of our own fields, the wool of our own flocks, the coal from our own mines, the wood from our own forests, all employed in battling these inclemencies, and still every winter, with blue lips and chattering teeth, answers: 'None of us can stand before his cold.' Wrap something around these shivering limbs. Shoe those bare feet. Hat that bare head. Coat that bare back. Sleeve that bare arm. Hundreds of garments, hundreds of tons of coal, hundreds of glaziers at broken windowhand raps on the table, and a tender sashes, hundreds of whole-souled men and women, are necessary to warm this wintry weather. What are we doing to alleviate the condition of those not so fortunate as we? Know ye not my friends, there are hundreds of theusands of people who cannot stand before his cold? It is useless to preach world a lesson in common sense when before preaching the Gospel to the multitude in the wilderness, he gave them a good dinner. But, my friends, there is more than one way of warming up this cold world, for it is a cold world in more respects than one, and I am here to consult with you as to

to bare feet, and to empty stomachs and gaunt visages. Christ gave the the best way of warming up world. I want to have a great heater introduced into all your churches and all your homes throughout the world. It is a heater of divine patent. It has many pipes with which to conduct heat: and it has a door in which to throw the fuel. Once get this heater introduced and it will turn the Arctic zone into temperate, and the temperate into the tropics. It is the powerful heater, it is the glorious furnace of Christian sympathy. The question ought to be, instead of how much heat can we absorb how much heat can we throw out? There are men who go through the world floating icebergs. They freeze everything with their forbidding look. The hand with which they shake yours is as cold as the paw of the polar bear. If they float into a religious meeting, the temperature drops from 80 above to ten below zero. There are icicles hanging from their eyebrows. They float into a religious meeting and they chill everything with their jeremiads. Cold prayers, cold songs, cold greetings, cold sermons. Christianity on ice! The church a great refrigerator. Christians gone into winter quarters. Hibernation! On the other hand, there are people who go through the world like the warm Christian Influence. There are such persons. We bless God for them. We rejoice in their companionship. A general in the English army, the army having halted for the night, having lost his luggage, lay down tired and sick, without any blanket. An officer came up and said, "Why, you have no blanket. I'll go and get you a blanket." He departed for a few moments, and then came back and covered the general up with a very warm blanket. The general said, "Whose blanket is this?" The officer replied, "I got that from a private soldier in the Scotch regiment, Ralpin McDonald." "Now," said the general, ywt "you take this blanket right back to breath of a spring morning. Warm

greetings, warm prayers, warm smiles, that soldier. He can no more do without it than I can do without it. Never bring me the blanket of a private soldier." How many men like that general would it take to warm the world up? The vast majority of us are anxious to get more blankets. whether anybody else is blanketed or not. Look at the fellow-feeling distimes. Here is a man who has been set upon by the bandits, and in the struggle to keep his property he has got wounded, and mauled, and stabbed, and he lies there half-dead. A priest rides along, he sees him, and says: 'Why, what's the matter with the man? Why, he must be hurt, lying on the flat of his back. But I can't stop. I am on my way to temple service. After a while a Levite comes up. He looks over and says: "Why, that man must be very much hurt. Gashed on the forehead. What a pity. Why, they have taken his clothes nearly all away from him. But I haven't time to stop; I lead the choir up in the temple service." After a while a Samaritan comes along-one who you might suppose through a national lenge of the text has many times been grudge, might have rejected this poor, wounded Israelite. Coming along he sees this man and says: "Why, this man must be terribly hurt. I see by his features he is an Israelite, but he is man and he is a brother. Whoa!" says the Samaritan, and he gets down off the beast, and comes up to this wounded man, takes out of his sack a bottle of oil and a bottle of wine, then pours some of the restorative into the wounded man's lips, then takes oil and with it soothes the wounds > wounded man holding on with little strength he has left. Now, they have come up to the tavern. The Samaritan, with the help of the landlord, assists the sick and wounded mar to dismount and puts him to bed. Then he comes out, and says to the landlord, here is money to pay that man's board, and if his convalescence is not as rapid as I hope for, charge the whole thing to me. Good morning, all.' Sympathy! Christian sympathy! How gets him on toward the tavern, the many such men as that would it take to warm the cold world up? Notwithstanding all the modern inventions for heating, I tell you there is nothing so full of geniality and sociality as the old-fashioned country fireplace. The neighbors were to come in for a winter evening sociality. he middle of the afternoon, in the best room in the house, someone brought in a great backlog with great strain, and put it down on the back pile, and the kindling began, and the crackling, and it rose until it became a roaring flame, which filled all the room with geniality, and was reflected from the family pictures on the wall. Then the neighbors came in two by two. They sat down, their faces to the fire, which ever and anon was stirred with tongs and readjusted on the andirons, and there were such times of rustic rapartee, and storytelling, and mirth as the black stove and the blind register never dreamed of. Oh' come up close to the fireplace. have your worn faces transfigured in the light. Put your cold feet, weary of the journey, close up to the blessed conflagration. Chilled through with the trouble and disappointment, come close up until you can get warm clear through. Exchange experience, over the harvest gathered, tell all the Gospel news. Meanwhile, the table is being spread. On it, bread of life. On it, grapes of Eshcol. On it, new wine from the kingdom. On it, a thousand luxuries celestial. Hark! as a wounded voice comes through saying: "Come, for all things are now ready. Eat, oh, friends! drink, yea, drink abundantly, oh, beloved!" My friends, that is the way the cold world is going to be warmed up by the great Gospel fireplace. All nations will come in and sit down at that banquet. While I was musing, the fire burned. "Come in out of the cold, come in out of the cold."

TALK OF A RAILWAYMEN'S

New York, March 17 .- There are mutterings of a strike on the Great Northern Railroad in consequence of the cut in salaries, announced a few days ago as effective from March 1. Employes say if the cut is made applicable to the trainmen the road will be tied up as tight as a drum. The telegraph operators especially are incensed at the reduction.

Death of Parliament.

Senator Boulton, a prominent Northwest Conservative, speaking of the duration of Parliament, said that it was evident that it could not extend beyond April 25. The Parliament sat before June 11. It elected a Speaker, and transacted legislative business. If, therefore, Parliament does not expire until June 11, then the election of the Speaker was illegal; the Speaker has illegally occupied his seat all this time, and the whole legislation for the life of the Parliament is illegal.

In face of these unassallable facts, the men in power at Ottawa confess that they are still trying to prolong the life of the moribund Parliament. They fear and tremble as they think of the result of an appeal to the people, and even at the risk of having it declared that Sir John Thompson, Sir John Macdonald and those responsible for the assembling of the present Parliament on April 25, 1891, were either fools or knaves, they are ready, if they dare, to so affirm. "Anything to keep office for a month or two longer" seems to be the cry.

McGill's New Principal on Anglo-Saxon Unity.

Prof. Peterson, the new principal of McGill University, Montreal, gave an address on "The Unity of the Englishspeaking People," in New York city, the other evening, which stamps him as a broad-minded, patriotic man, who will have great influence for good in the molding of the minds of young Canadians placed under his care.

It is a mistake to suppose, remarked Principal Peterson, that because Britain has a monarchical form of Government, it is, therefore, the less democratic. The sovereign rights of the people are even more fully recognized In some respects than in the United States. England was taught a lesson by 1776 which has packed useful to her ever since in the treatment not only of her colonies, but of her people at home. Principal Peterson claims that the democracies of both countries are bound together by the strongest possible ties, and it is the duty of all to make stronger those ties that bind the two nations together. The life of the United States is indissolubly connected with the other great English-speaking people beyond the seas. The subjects of the British crown are one in race and religion with the citizens of the great republic of the west, and the statesman who, in the remote future, will succeed in bringing them together in a confederacy for the advancement of civilization, will have done the greatest act for progress and humanity in modern times.

Mr. Peterson did not mention Canada, the land of his adoption, as a necessary unit in this confederacy, but of course no Anglo-Saxon union, in which the motherland and the United States would be participants, could be complete without the Dominion.

Principal Peterson assured his hearers that Englishmen appreciate the march of progress in America, and are proud that the great republic was founded by men of their own race. Hence it was, he said, that in his opinion, the two great countries would never enter into a fractricidal struggle to prove which was the greater. It was the duty of every patriotic citizen of both countries, he said, to nurse the forces of cohesion that are at work. If England and the United States could coalesce their action would have a mighty influence on the other nations of the world. Such a confederacy might be a dream, but it was a dream worth cherishing. Referring fund is Mr. J. H. Bland, clerk of the to the dispute between England and the United States, he said he did not propose to discuss it in the present stage of the case, except to echo the The works of George Eliot have many wish of an American writer that Engand might accept the Monroe doctrine and America might lend its influence towards saving the Christians in Armenia. In conclusion he said that the coalition of the English-speaking people would be the strongest agency for the maintenance of peace ever established, for no other nation would ever dare to attack them.

These statements are in accord with the views of the best minds of the English-speaking people on both sides of the Atlantic. Realization of the coalition will come all the sooner if in each of the two great countries every man of good sense will frown down lingo outbreaks tending to keep the race apart, to foment international disprofes and retard mutually profitable commercial intercourse.

To Prevent Betrayal of Confidence.

After his late experience with the men in power at Ottawa, Premier Greenway will be warranted in refusing to have anything further to de with them unless in the presence of witnesses and with a shorthand writer to take down every word uttered on either side. If the Manitoba Premier does not take this precaution he can expect nothing but misrepresentation in the event of his attitude being such as not to fall in with the schemes of Sir Charles Tupper and his allies.

When Sir Donald Smith went to Winnipeg to confer with Premier Greenway, he told the Manitoba Premier that he came as a private member, and in no sense as a Government emissary. Sir Charles Tupper made a similar statement to Parliament, which was led to believe that the conference of Sir Donald with Mr. Greenway was strictly of a private nature. It now turns out that the men in power at Ottawa were informed of what took place in these avowedly private interviews, and Sir Charles Tupper confessed to Parliament that he had read a private communication sent to Sir Donald Smith by Premier Greenway, and had emasculated it so as to conceal from the House of Commons its most important paragraph. Commenting on these acts, the Montreal Witness very properly says:

"It seems obvious that Sir Charles Tupper's accession to the Government is a source of the greatest weakness to it in seeking honorable dealings with any party. How can it be expected that any Government or body of men will treat with Sir Charles Tupwill not hesitate to betray their confidence if he sees any advantage to be gained in doing so. As he treated Sir Donald Smith and Mr. Greenway, so he treated Mr. Blaine and the United States Government when negotiating a reciprocity treaty on behalf of Canada. In that case he not only broke faith but he uttered, invented and published deliberate falsehood, which the United States Government compelled him to confess and apologize for before it would reopen negotiations with him." An apology is now due to Premier Greenway. But what think the public of a leader who puts himself constantly in the wrong in order to uphold his case? The cause so championed must ever be injured.

By the Way.

Hon. David Mills, the respected member for Bothwell, has been suffering from la grippe for over a week past, and was for several days confined to his room. His many friends in the West will be glad to learn that he is now in much better health, and was able to take his seat at Monday's session of the House of Commons. Mr. Mills is one of the most useful Parliamentarians, and his views are always listened to with respect by every section of the House, London, or rather Central Africa, has produced a man who possesses strong claims to rank with Abe Slupsky. He got lost the other day. or rather he disappeared from his lodgings, and his landlady besought the police to find him. He has been discovered, and, as might have been expected, he proves to be a prince, a grandson of Prince Sangwyhagutofengtem of Mandingo's Land, West Central Africa. He has taken to the lecture platform as naturally as a duck takes to water.

The indications are that McKinley of Ohio will be the Republican nominee for the Presidency in the convention at St. Louis next June. He has already pledged to him 325 votes of the 455 necessary to nominate. Much money is being spent to insure his nomination. This is very unusual at this stage of the game. The custom is to save the wealth till the actual fight between the parties begins.

Important Measures Brought in by Sir Oliver Mowat.

Two of Mr. Hobbs' Bills Get Their Second

Toronto, March 17.-Mr. Hobbs moved the second reading of his bill to have the municipal elections held on New Year's Day. He said the measure is intended to allow workingmen to exercise their franchise without inconvenience. The bill got its second reading, and went to the municipal committee.

Mr. Hobbs' bills, empowering, under certain conditions, municipal councils to appoint free library boards to control public libraries and mechanics' institutes, and to provide for the redivision of wards in cities of between 30,000 and 80,000, each got second read-

The bill for extending the Sabbath Day observance law to farming operations, brought in by Mr. Charlton, was read a second time. Mr. Whitney asked: On what date was Dugald Campbell retired from the position of farmer, or assistant farmer, at the London Asylum? Was he asked to send in his resignation, and if so, for what reason? Who was appointed to succeed him?

Hon, Mr. Gibson-He was retired from the office of assistant farmer on 81, 1895. He had been per for a conciliatory settlement of Oct. 81, 1895. He had been any question when they know that he sick for some time, and was asked to send in his resignation because, owing to sickness, he was unable to properly attend to his duties. No successor has been appointed, the duties now being discharged by an ordinary farm hand.

Mr. Meacham asked how many of the 1,342 children who passed the leaving examinations in 1895 were now attending the high schools of Ontario. Hon. Geo. W. Ross said that he had no means of furnishing the formation except by writing to the principals of each high school. This he promised to do if Mr. Meacham would wait. Mr. Meacham got an order of the House for the return. In reply to Mr. Marter, Hon. J. M. Gibson stated that the cost of the

One of these prohibits trareling shows, circuses, menageries, wild west shows, and such like aggregations, from exhibiting in Canada without taking out licenses from the Provnice at a cost of $50 a day. It makes it the duty of Provincial constables

One very important change is that all actions against municipal corporations for injuries sustained through the non-repair of streets, roads and sidewalks, shall hereafter be tried without juries. The protection which police magistrates and justices enjoy in the case of actions against them is extended to constables Another bill by Sir Oliver Mowat provides that for sending out notices in the collection of debts, imitating Div-Court papers, a fine of $20 a day shall be inflicted.

Sir Oliver brought in another measure to provide that the Surrogate Court judge need not necessarily be the county judge. This will only apply to future appointments. It also simplifies the procedure in the matter of small estates. Mr. Marter has a bill to authorize the mayor and chairman of finance in cities of over 100,000 to sit on the public and high school boards and free library boards; to construct and maintain public lavatories and to offer and pay rewards for the conviction of impersonators at municipal club Saturday. Regarding John T. Brush's assertion that he is ready to lay out all kinds of money to strengthen his Cincinnati team, a caustic critic calls attention to the fact that thus far this season Mr. Brush has expended $1,000 and sold $1,-500 worth of baseball material.

Queer how a few dollars will change the estimate of a ball player of a team that wants his services. Here was Breitenstein, a few days ago, denouncing the Browns as having no business on earth. Since he received his advance in salary and signed a St. Louis contract he thinks the Browns will show their heels to several of the league clubs.

The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle says: There is joy once more in the camp of the Rochester baseball magnates, as they have received a copy of the letter written by "Nick" Young to the manager of the Austin, Tex., club, in regard to the case of Pitcher Donnelly, who has been claimed for the past few months by Providence, Austin and Rochester. Young gives the player to Rochester. HOCKEY.

A LOCAL CHALLENGE.

To the Sporting Editor of the "Advertiser": The London Rowing Club challenge the L. C. I. hockey team to play a match to decide the junior championship of London, at the Princess rink on Wednesday evening, March 18, W. MARTIN, captain L. R. C. H. T. BILLIARDS. Frank Ives, the billiard player, will arrive in this country within three weeks. He is now in Berlin giving exhibitions, and will go to London before sailing for New York. Garnier, the Frenchman, will get here about the same time, and arrangements for three tourneys one in Boston, one in New York, and one in Chicago-in which Ives, Garnier, and Schaefer are entered, will be completed. round encounter, which was five round shorter than was advertised for. Bright Eyes is built on the Fitz-AFSTATIC.

FOR THE ARGONAUT FOUR. London, March 17.-The illuminated address to the Argonaut Rowing Club's four, which has been for some time in preparation, is now ready, and will be on view at the London Rowing Club during the practice of the Oxford and Cambridge crews at Putney, after which it will be forwarded to Toronto. It is an artistic production, with a representation of the Henley Stewards' Challenge Cup at the top, and below are the royal arms.

CRICKET. The Australian cricket team for England engaged in a match at Sydney with the combined strength of Fiv times Joe swung fearful rights and lefts on Collins' neck, sending him to grass at every blow. His seconds the deach time he got up groggier than before. THE WHEEL The $12 Japanese bicycle story is not dead yet. It seems almost incredible that so ridiculous a yern should find such a wide circulation and so many believers. As a matter of fact there is one small bicycle factory in Japan that makes children's wheels, which sell at $30. American exporters are selling standard wheels in Japan now at $125.

McLeod, Davidson and McIntosh, of Toronto, will prepare for the season's riding campaign in Louisville, leaving for that place the first of next month They will probably remain in the south for a month or six weeks.

THE WESTMINSTER CUP.

To Fight in England.

Toledo, Ohio, March 17.—Pugilist Johnny Lavack has received a letter from the National Sporting Club, of London, announcing the articles forwarded some time ago for a fight with Billy Smith, had been properly signed. The match will come off early in June or the latter part of May.
It will be for a purse of $1,000, and Lavack is allowed $250 for traveling; expenses. In company with Sam Fitzpatrick and Kid Lavinge he will sail for England soon.

BODY BLOWS. The fourth race for the Westminster rink challenge cup was skated last night between Bert. Thomas, who has won it several times already, and John W. Stockton, of St. Thomas. Stockton proved a more formid-able opponent for Thomas than many of the local sports who have previously tried their luck, and for a time he gave the South Londoner a good pace. At the end of two miles he slipped in turning a corner and lost half a lap and the chance of winning.

Disastrous Effects of a Gunpowder Explosion.

The British Steamer Matadi Blown to Atoms.

Totally Destroyed on the Congo River-Viotims of the Accident Were Sleeping at the Time-Officers and 16 of the Crew Escaped.

London, March 17.-The British steamer Matadi, which sailed from Sierra Leone on Feb. 5, has been totally destroyed at Boma by an explosion of gunpowder. Some of her passengers and crew were saved.

The whole fore part of the Matadi was blown into the air and 40 persons were killed, including a missionary named Hawk and his wife.

It has now been learned that the ex-plosion on the British steamer Matadi occurred at Boma on March 7. Boma or Bomma is on the Congo River, only about 50 miles from its mouth.

Twenty-two of the Matedi's crew, two passengers and sixteen native laborers were killed. Sixteen of the crew escaped without serious injury. The Matadi had on board ten tons of gunpowder, a quantity which sufficiently accounts for the disastrous effects of the explosion.

The mails and specie which were on board were saved. The victims of the accident were asleep at the time of the disaster. The officers of the steamer

> West African Tramp Gets a Month in Jail-Frank Rourke's Great Record-The Bold McIntyre.

Police Magistrate Parke had a quartet of the toughest looking of the tough to administer justice to this morning. One was a native of the west coast of Africa, another was an experienced roadster, while another had a record only surpassed by one man who has ever figured in the court.

Wm. Reeves was the name given by a young colored man charged with vagrancy. Reeves had been hanging around the C. P. R. yards, East London, for several days. He boarded a freight train bound for Detroit one day, but was spotted by the conductor. and after being ordered off drew a large knife and threatened to make things interesting for the official.

Reeves told the magistrate that he was a native of the west coast of Africa, but lately he had been working as dish washer in a hotel in British Columbia. He always had an eye out for work, but since he left his last situation he had poor success. He walked, stole and worked his way from the Northwest, and was bound for the

The large blade of the knife which Reeves pulled on the conductor was four inches in length. A fine of $5 or one month was imposed. Frank Rourke was up again for vagrancy, having been arrested late last night while hanging around in store doors on Richmond street north. P. C. Woolway said Rourke had been loafing around town all winter.

"This paper shows that you have been arrested 40 times," said the magistrate, as he held up Rourke's record. "I don't deny that," said Reurke, "but I have been working nearly all

"Have you got a home?" asked the court. "Yes, sir, I have; up near the lot

Rourke was remanded for a week at his own request to allow him to disprove the vagrancy charge. He admitted being drunk. The last time he was arrested for vagrancy he was given six months in the Central, but he appealed to the county judge and had the conviction quashed.

John McIntyre was fined $5 or a month for drunkenness and vagrancy. McIntyre is a fireman on a lake boat, and is on his way to Hamilton. He held up several pedestrians at the corner of Richmond and Dundas streets, and also played on the sympathies of Mr. McCallum, the druggist. Fred Lyons' case was very brief.

'Were you drunk, Lyons?" asked the magistrate. "Yes, I was."

"Five dollars or twenty days." Joseph Nelson, a hard-working citizen, was fined $2 or a week for disorderly conduct. Nelson is a teamster, and was hauling a load of wood over Clark's bridge yesterday, when the sleigh got stuck on the bare planks. Two extra teams were hitched on to the sleigh, and the load was ulled across. One of the traces on Nelson's horses broke in the pull, and this so enraged the owner that he caught hold of one of the men who assisted and threatened to throw him into the river. Nelson was given time to pay.

The public who have so kindly supported the Protestant Orphans' Home in the past will be interested to know something of the good which has been done during the last twenty years. The trustees would add that there were all city children. Also many old people were taken care of until about three years ago, when it was thought best to confine our work to children.

The more I think of it, I find this conclusion more impressed upon mething, and tell what it saw in a plain way. Hundreds of people can talk for one who can think; but thousands can think for one who can see. To see clearly is poetry, prophecy, and religion—all in one.—John Ruskin.

A Dinner Pill.-Many persons suffer excruciating agony after partaking of a hearty dinner. The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healthy nutriment it becomes a poison to the system. They correct acidity, open the secretions and convert the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. They are just the medicine to take if troubled with Indigestion or Dyspepsia.

LIFE SAVED .- Mr. James Bryson Cameron states: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs, and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice I procured the medicine, and less than a half-bottle cured me; I certainly believed it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me any good."

People waste a great deal of time telling what they really ought to have. Truly Astonishing .- Miss Annette N. Moen, Fountain, Minn., says: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has a wonderful effect in curing my brother's children of a severe and dangerous cold. It was truly astonishing how speedily they found relief after taking this preparation.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

-This is St. Patrick's Day in the morning.

-Mayor Little leaves on a business trip to Winnipeg tomorrow. -Mr. Reycraft, assistant superintendent of the London electric railway, is in town today, and is doing the town under the genial pilotage of Mr. H. W. Mills.—Sarnia Post. -Mr. J. W. Wheaton, B.A., of this city, has been examiner in dairying at the Toronto University in place of W. J. Palmer, B.S.A., resigned; and Mr. F.

C. Harrison, B.S.A., examiner in entomology, bacteriology and plant pathology in the department of agriculture. -At Osgoode Hall yesterday: Taylor vs. Neill.-Judgment on motion by plaintiff to commit defendant or strike out his defense for non-appearance for examination for discovery, heard at London Weekly Court. Order made that defendant attend for examination at his own expense. Costs to plaintiff in any event.

-A most enjoyable concert under the direction of Miss Alice Galbraith was given at the asylum last Friday evening, the fol-lowing taking part: Mrs. Houghton, Misses Evelyn Allen, Annie Patton and Violet LeClear, and Messrs, F. Norton, A. Witting, W. Tnorn, A. Furness, G. Watts, H. Irvine and Hugh Galbraith. The programme was a varied one, and consisted of musical selections, songs and character dances by a number of Miss Galbraith's pupils. The evening's performance con-cluded with a laughable farce-comedy entitled "My Neighbor's Wife."

-Carter vs. Robson was an action brought at the Whitby assizes by John Carter, of Pickering township, against W. B. Robson, of London township, for $2,000 damages for malicious prosecution and arrest. Parson Hogle was a tenant on Robson's farm, and persuaded Robson to accept Carter in his stead, but as Carter failed to pay his rent Robson assumed that there was a conspiracy to defraud him of pay ment and issued warrants for the arrest of costs; hence the action. The jury brought in a verdict for the defendant.

-Mr. Ed. Horsman, of the Grigg House, wishes to emphatically deny the charge made in the Free Press that he was lobbying at the council while the board was in session last night. He merely asked Ald. Parnell whether the matter in which he was interested— the reduction of billiard and pool licenses-could be dealt with at that meeting. Mr. Horsman denies also that he was asked to retire, and says that the reduction of the license from $40 on each table is simply a matter of justice which does not require lobbying. In a number of city clubs, where no license whatever is paid, a charge is made for the use of tables and a good revenue derived.

We took one little baby, whose mother had died a week after its birth, and the poor father did not know what to do with it, as he could not leave his work. It was nearly midnight when he reached our home. He had traveled from 5 in the morning with the baby. He took it to one orphans' home, but they would not admit so young a child. Then some one directed him to the army, and he came on to London. It was so tiny and so helpless, I felt the Lord wanted us to take it in, and the poor father went and boarded at the Men's Shelter. He attended the meetings over Sunday, and got saved. People seem to recognize that we are the ones to help the needy. The authorities recommend those that are helpless

Broke Open the Safe

In a Dundas Street Jeweler's Store—A Hole a Foot in Diameter - The Combination Burnt Out.

London, as a rule, is pretty safe from the visits of safe-breakers and other persons of that ilk, but morning a gaping hole in the front door of a large safe in the store of a Dundas street jeweler, whose tale. The safe-breaker, as near as can be ascertained, must have secured an entance by slipping through the front door before the shop was closed for the evening. There are no broken windows, and no other evidence to prove that he came in by any other

The safe stands within ten paces of the front door, and is in plain sight at all times from the street. And to make assurance doubly sure, the firm keeps a night light burning near the huge mass of steel and iron. And what is also peculiar, in view of the circumstances, the police station itself is only 150 yards away, and a policeman patrols the street every hour, and yet the safe-breaker managed to make a hole a foot in diameter in the righthand door of the safe! Then successive ayers of steel and soft iron were attacked and cut away, until the combination itself was reached. There are distinct evidences that the visitor then introduced heat as his agent, and by making the door in the vicinity of the combination red-hot, managed to punch out this important part of the safe mechanism. This was left lying on a table at one side, where an "Advertiser" reporter saw it this morning. The safe was broken open at 11 o'clock p.m.-even while the City Council was in session around the cor-No booty was secured, from the simple fact that the proprietor was present. The safe is both burglar and fireproof, and the police department are absolved from any complicity in giving this item to the press.

St. Patrick's Day

Celebrated With Special Services in St. Peter's Cathedral - Rev. Father Tiernan Preaches.

Today is the 1401st anniversary of the death of St. Patrick, the Patron Saint of Ireland, and the event was celebrated by the hoisting of flags on all tion. the public buildings and the holding of special services in all the Roman Catholic churches throughout, the length and breadth of the land. The day was fine in London and passed off very quietly. Shamrocks or bows of green ribbon were to be seen on the coat lapels of many on the streets, while many residents decorated their homes in honor of the day. Services were held at 8 o'clock and 10 o'clock in St. Peter's Cathedral, his Lordship Bishop O'Connor celebrating mass at the first service. At 10 o'clock soleinn high mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Noonan, assisted by Rev. Father Tiernan as deacon and Rev. Father Valentine as sub-deacon. Bishop O'Connor presided on his throne. The music by the choir was of the usual high order, and the collections were in aid of the Mount Hope Orphanage. Rev. Father Tiernan preached a short ermon, in which he gave an outline of the life and labors of St. Patrick. He spoke of the darkness which Carter and Hogie. They came before a shrouded Ireland when the patron magistrate and the case was dismissed with saint first landed there, of the paganism and idolatious ways which existed among the people. Before his death, the light of divine faith which he had planted illumined the whole land, and today the same faith shone with still greater brilliancy throughout the world. The Irish people, of all the peoples of the earth, should be grateful, the speaker said, to Almighty God for his infinite goodness and mercy in sending an apostle who did his work so faithfully that his life and labors would continue to be cherished and loved as long as Irishmen lived.

Italy's Premier Says Hostilities Must Continue.

Rome, March 17 .- In the Chamber of Deputies today the Premier, Marquis Di Rudini, said that after the battle of Adowa, Gen. Baldissera was in-structed to treat for peace on the best terms possible, but that the Government is now convinced that * would be preferable first to establish a state of things agreeing with Italy's interests. In the meantime, hostilities must continue. Italy did not wish to did not desire a protectorate over Abyssinia.

The Premier asked for a credit of 140,000,000 lire for the African campaign, which was granted, and in conclusion he said: "Let us follow the same prudent course in our foreign policy as that which has heretofore secured us friends and alliances." (Cheers and cries of dissent.)

The marquis' speech was cordially received by the deputies, and he received an ovation when he referred to the heroism of the Italian troops. Contrary to general expectations, there was no very great difficulty .. 6 .. 6.. 6.. was no very great demonstration when the Socialists' deputation entered the House.

The Senate adopted a resolution thanking the British Parliament for its expression of sympathy with Italy and her soldiers, as expressed in the House of Commons yesterday.

J.F. Mitchell Also Struck With a Chair-

A Lively Affair. Port Huron, Mich, March 17 .- A dispatch to the Detroit Free Press yes-terday says: "A lively and somewhat bloody affray took place on one of the ferry boats while lying at the Port Huron wharf this afternoon between a Sarnia clergyman and two of his parishioners, the participants being Rev. J. C. Madill, of the Zion Congregational Church, ex-president of the P. P. A., J. F. Mitchell and Wm. Mc-Larren. The affair grew out of a church quarrel, and as a result the minister and Mr. Mitchell each have a broken nose and other injuries, while McLarren has been arrested charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm. Mr. McLarren's mother, it seems, had been treasurer of Zion Church, but was suspended from the church by a vote of the members about four months ago. While Mr. Madill and Mr. Mitchell were aboard the boat this afternoon they were approached by McLarren, who, calling the minister aside, asked him whether he had not made some charges reflecting upon his mother, at the same time taking away small perknife which the minister held in his hands. The minister, it is said, replied in the negative, whereupon McLarren struck him with the hand in which he held the knife, inflicting a serious wound and breaking his nose Mr. Mitchell jumped to the minister's assistance, at which McLarren, who is a large man of athletic build, picked up a chair and struck him a violent blow across the face, likewise breaking his nose and also disfiguring his face badly. McLarren was apprehended later at the tunnel depot, but was not locked up, being released on $500 bail pending a hearing. McLarren admits striking the men, but claims to have been provoked by the minister.

The Pall Mall Gazette Will Apologize to Her-Settled Out of Court.

London, March 17. - The Evening News this afternoon announces that the suit for $25,000 damages for libel brought by Lady Henry Somerset against Mr. William Waldorf Astor, as proprietor of the Pall Mall Gazette, has been settled out of court. It is added that Mr. Astor will apologize to Lady Henry Somerset, and that the Pall Mall Gazette and twenty other papers will pay the costs. The libel complained of grew out of the effort made by Lady Henry Somerset to re-form the notorious drunkard, Jane Cakebread, who has been convicted conquer the Tigri district, he said, and hundreds of times. The Pall Mall Gazette intimated that Jane Cakebread's association with Lady Henry Somerset was enough to drive the former mad. or words to that effect.

"I must say, however-," remarked Miss Shott; but she was again silenced by Mrs. Hembold, and the minister's wife went on. To come straight to the point," said she, "for a good while we have been wanting to do something, and we did not know what to do; but a few days ago we became aware, through Miss Willy Croup, that what was most needed in this house is blankets. She said, in fact, that the blankets you had were the same you bought when you were first married; that some of them had been worn out and given to your poorer neighbors; and that now you were very short of blankets, and, with cold weather coming on, she did not consider that the clothing on your own bed was that the clothing on your own bed was sufficient. She even went so far as to say that the blankets she used were very thin, and that she did not think they were warm enough for winter. So some of us have agreed together that we would testify our friendship and our sympathy by presenting you with a pair of good warm blankets for your own bed; then those you have could go to Willy Croup, and you both would be comfortable all winter. Of course, what we have done has not been upon an expensive scale. We have had many calls upon us—poor old Mrs. Bradley for one-and we could not afford to spend much money; but we have bought you a good pair of blankets, which are warm and serviceable, and we hope you will not be offended, and we do not believe that you will be, for you know our motives; and all that we ask is, that when you are warm and comfortable under our little gift, you will sometimes think of us. I have no doubt that Miss Willy Croup will bring them in."

Mrs. Cliff's eyes filled with tears; she ther embarrassment; for when Willy, who had been standing in the door-way, had gone to get the blankets, Miss Shott could be restrained no longer.
"I am bound to say," she began, "that to get those blankets—and I am very glad to be able to do it, Mrs. Cliff—I don't think that we ought to do anything which would look as if we were giving our countenances to useless extravagances in persons, even if they are our friends, who, with but small means, think they must live like rich be traveling with them. It is not for me to allude to hotels, in towns where there are good boarding houses, to vestibule cars and fur-trimmed cloaks; but I will say, that when I am called upon to help my friends who need it, I will do it as quick as anybody, but I also feel called upon by my conscience to lift up my voice against spending for useless things what little money a person may have, when that person needs that money for—well, for things I shall not mention. And, now that I have said my say, I am just as glad to help give you those blankets, Mrs.

Cliff, as anybody else is."

Everyone in the room knew that the thing she would not mention was the money Mrs. Cliff had borrowed for her passage. Miss Shott had not lent any of it, but her brother, a retired carpenter and builder, had, and as his sister expected to outlive him, although he was twelve years younger than she was, she naturally felt a little sore upon this point.

Now Mrs. Cliff was herself again. She was not embarrassed; she was neither pale nor trembling. With a stern severity, not unknown to her friends and neighbors in former days, she rose to her feet.

"Namey Shott," said she, "I don't know anything that makes me feel more at home than to hear you talk like that. You are the same woman that never could kiss a baby without wanting to spank it at the same time. I know what is the matter with you; settle up everything and come back in you are thinking of that money I borrowed from your brother. Well, I borrowed that for a year, and the time is not yet up; but when it is, I'll pay every cent of it, and interest added. I knew what I was about when I borrowed it, and I know what I am about now; and if I get angry and pay it before it becomes due, he will lose that much interest, and he can charge it to you. That is all I have to say to you. 'As for you, Mrs. Perley, and the other persons who gave me these blan-kets, I want you to feel that I am just as grateful as if—just as grateful as I can be, and far more for the friendlines than for the goods. I won't say anything more about that, and it isn't necessary, but I must say one thing. I am ready to take the blankets and to thank you from the bottom of my heart, but I will not have them unless the money Miss Shott put in is given back to her. Whatever that was, I will make it up myself, and I hope I may be excused for saying that I don't believe it will break me."

Now there was a scene. Miss Shott rose in anger and marched out of the house. Mrs. Perley and the other lady expostulated with Mrs. Cliff for a time, but they knew her very well, and soon desisted. Twenty-five cents was handed to Mrs. Perley to take the place of the sum contributed by Miss Shott, and the ladies departed, and the blankets were taken upstairs. Mrs. Cliff gave one glance at them as Willy Croup spread them out.

"If those women could see my Cali-fornian blankets!" she said to herself, but to Willy she said: "They are very nice, and you may put them away."

Then she went to her room and went to bed. This last shock was too much for her nerves to bear. In the afternoon Willy brought her some tea, but the poor lady would not get up. So long as she stayed in bed, people could be kept away from her, but there was nowhere else where ahe could be in

All night she lay and thought and thought and thought. What should she do? She could not endure this condition of things. There was only one relief that presented itself to her; she might go to Mr. Perley, her minister, and confide every thing to him. He would tell her what she ought to do.

"But," she thought, "suppose he should say it should all go to the Peruvians!" And then she had more thinking to do, based upon this emergency, which brought on a headache, and she remained in bed all the next day. The next morning, Willy Croup, who had begun to regret that she had ever said anything about blankets-but how could she have imagined that anybody could be so cut up at what that old Shott woman had said?-brought

This was from Edna, stating that she and Ralph and the two negroes had just arrived in New York, from which point they were to sail for Havre. Ed-na wished very much to see Mrs. Cliff before she left the country, and wrote that if it would be convenient for that lady, she would run up to Plainton and stay a day or two with her. There would be time enough for this before the steamer sailed. When she read this brief note Mrs. Cliff sprang out of bed.

"Edna come here!" she exclaimed.
"That would be simply ruin! But I must see her. I must tell her everything and let her help me." thing and let her help me.'

As soon as she was dressed she went downstairs and told Willy that she would start for New York that very afternoon. She had received a letter from Mrs. Horn, and it was absolutely necessary to see her before she sailed. With only a small leather bag in her hand, and nearly all her ready money gift, you will sometimes think of and her peace-destroying draft sewed the blankets are out in the hall, and the peace-destroying draft sewed up inside the body of her dress, she left Plainton, and when her friends and wanted to speak, but how could she they could only ascribe such a sudden speak! But she was saved from furdeparture to the strange notions she had imbibed in foreign parts. When Plainton people contemplated a jour-ney, they told everybody about it and took plenty of time to make preparations, but South Americans and Cali-"I am bound to say," she began, that the rest fornians would start anywhere at a while I put my money in with the rest fornians to would start anywhere at a but it was plain that they had been mistaken, and there were those who were very much afraid that even if the poor lady had got whatever ought to be coming from her from the Valmeans, think they must live like the paraiso business, it would have been people, simply because they happen to paraiso business, it would have been people, simply because they happen to of little use to her. Her old principles of economy and prudence must have been terribly shaken. This very journey to New York would probably cost

When Mrs. Cliff entered Edna's room in a New York hotel, the latter was startled, almost frightened. She had expected her visitor, for she had had a telegram, but she scarcely recognized at the first glance the pale and haggard woman who had come to her. "Sick!" exclaimed poor Mrs. Cliff, as she sank upon a sofa. "Yes, I am sick, but not in body, only in heart. Well, it is hard to tell you what is the matter. The nearest I can get to it is that it is wealth struck in as measles sometimes strike in when they ought to come out properly, and one is just as dangerous as the other.' When Mrs. Cliff had had something to eat and drink and had begun to tell her tale, Edna listened with great interest and sympathy; but when the good lady had nearly finished and was speaking of her resolution to confide everything to Mr. Perley, Edna's gaze at her friend became very intent and her hands tightly grasped the arms of the chair in which she was sitting.

"Mrs. Cliff," said she, when the other had finished, "there is but one thing for you to do; you must go to Europe with us.'

"Now!" exclaimed Mrs. Cliff; "in the steamer you have engaged passage in? Impossible! I could not go home and

"But you must not go home" said Edna; "you must not think of it. Your troubles would begin again as soon as you got there. You must stay here and go when we do."

But while the firm is old established the proprietors are still young and to the exhibition will be by invitation sions, facing both Dundas and Carling streets. Nine years ago the firm concentrated their several branch houses, and recognizing London's established yesterday afternoon in their rooms, with and growing reputation as a wholesale center, opened up their wholesale The offices of this portion of the business are situated on Carling street. Ever since the inception of the London Shoe Company has been successful, and lately it has been found necessary to considerably increase the dimensions of the building. This work is just about completed, and the firm has now in its wholesale branch no less than room.

The retail portion of the store faces Dundes street, just opposite the Market Lane. There are four flats and the show windows are models of art and ingenuity, and always engage attention. None but first-class clerks are employed, and the salaries range from $600 up. By this means the proprietors are able to insure for their customers the immense benefit of experienced and expert salesmen. The store is divided into compartments, the front portion being devoted to men's and youths' goods. The rear compartment is set apart for the use of lady customers. The value of this plan is plain, and is also highly appreciated by the lady patrons of the place. The store has recently been remodeled and a new ly simplify the handling of goods. The new fittings have a shelf capacity which will accommodate 20,000 shoeboxes. The fittings cost over $2,000. The first flat upstairs is utilized as a trunk room, where the firm carries a stock ranging from the packer to the steamer trunk, as well as almost every variety of valise made. The next flat is used as a wareroom for staple goods, shop for custom work and repairs.

The firm employs constantly 25 men. and two young women who assist the bookkeeper, and is justly entitled to rank as one of the leading city industries. Londoners generally are well acquainted with the high class of goods carried by Pocock Bros., but it will not be out of place to mention that they are the sole city agents for the celebrated "Slater" shoe (for men). These shoes are easily recognized by their style and finish, and the demand
