FOOTBALL

A TIE GAME.
The junior rugby football club of this city tried conditions at Atlantic Park, St. Thomas, Saturday afternoon with the Collegiate Institute club of that city. The score when time was called was a tie—4 to 4.

LOHNS WIN AT BRAMPTON.
Brampton, Ont., Nov. 15.—The Rugby football match played here between the Lohms of Toronto and the Excelsors of this town, resulted 11 to 0 in favor of the Lohms.

INTERMEDIATE CHAMPIONSHIP.
Montreal, Nov. 15.—The intermediate Rugby football championship of Canada was not decided Saturday, when the Brockville team defeated the Ontario series met the McGill club at M. A. A. grounds. The final score showed that each team scored an equal number of points—10. The match was played on ground as hard as ice, and witnessed by 2,000 people.

TORONTO WON THE CHAMPIONSHIP.
Toronto, Ont., Nov. 15.—The deciding game for the Rugby championship of Ontario took place Saturday afternoon between the Toronto 'Varsity and Toronto Athletic Club teams. The match, which proved to be an unexpectedly close contest, resulted in favor of the 'Varsity by a score of 18 to 16. Next Saturday the 'Varsity will play Ottawa College, champions of the Quebec Rugby Union, for the Dominion championship.

HARVARD WAS BEATEN.
Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 15.—It was dark Saturday night when Curtis made a touchdown, winning the game for the Boston Athletic Association by a score of 3 to 6. Harvard played miserably football.

YALE WAS A WINNER.
New Haven, Conn., Nov. 15.—On Saturday the greatest crowd of the season watched the Yale-Princeton game. Hine kicked all but one goal for Yale, making the final score 10 to 0. The new mass plays did not prove successful, but the interference was better.

CURLING.
WALLACEBURG CLUB.
The Wallaceburg Curling Club are making necessary arrangements for the organizing and are also arranging for a rink. It is likely that the mill formerly run by Mr. Morris, which is owned by Capt. Stedman, will be fitted up and used as a curling rink.

ATHLETICS.
CORBETT'S LATEST PROPOSAL.
San Francisco, Nov. 15.—Bob Fitzsimmons has received a telegram from Jim Corbett and Warren Lewis asking him if he would fight Corbett in New York for a purse of $25,000. Lewis claims to have a lease on the Coney Island Club, and is going to start a club to be known as the New York Athletic Club. Martin Julian, Fitzsimmons' manager, says Fitz will not undertake a limited round contest with Corbett, such as is proposed. Julian announces that Fitzsimmons will meet Corbett in a finish contest five weeks after his fight with Sharkey, provided $15,000 is deposited by the club, the money to be divided between the fighters in case the fight is not pulled off on the date set.

BLOWS.
"Pat" Daly, of America, and Walter Eyles, of London, have deposited a forfeit for a boxing match of twenty rounds before the Olympic Club of Birmingham. The winner is to receive a large purse donated by the club.

There was a large crowd at the Art Athletic Club, Philadelphia, Saturday night, to witness the four-round boxing bout between Frank P. Blavin, of Australia, and Walter Johnson, the young colored heavy-weight, of Philadelphia. Johnson had the best of the affair.

BASEBALL.
FLYS.
The Cleveland club has secured Sunday grounds for next season in Glenview, outside the city limits.

John T. Brush is being referred to as the Mark Hanna of baseball. It is this complaint that has been made by the league. Chronicle-Telegraph.

Frank Mountain, the once famous Pittsburgh Leaning, has just been turned down in an effort to be made chief of police of Schenectady, N. Y.

Some people never tire of telling "pipe stories." Detroit has as much cause of getting into the National League as Louisville has—New York Journal.

Although Anson says he lost $2,000 the past season by betting on the Chicago, he is ready to make a few more bets for next season. The old man is hard to down.

Chris Von der Ahe is broke, eh? Well, what's the matter with that little merry-go-round of his? Dan Donnelly drops a pretty good sum into Christ coffers daily for the ring privileges—New York Exchange.

Cleveland and Brooklyn are likely to figure in a sensational trade of players, McCarthy, Shindle, Daly, and perhaps Corcoran, being the ones interested on the Brooklyn side, and O'Connor and McKean on the Cleveland side.

Capt. Ewing has become a firm advocate of the sacrifice hit. This year, more than any other, he has seen the great advantage of the play, and he scoffs the idea advanced by Manager Seale that this style of play should be abandoned.

Tom Delehanty has signed to play second base with Milwaukee, and Tom O'Brien, who was also with Toronto last year, will play left field for the same club.

AQUATIC.
GUY NICKALLS.
Guy Nickalls, the famous oarsman, who at the close of the last Henley regatta announced his intention of retiring from aquatic sports, has reconsidered his intention, and will again enter the lists. His brother, Vivian, who has recently been suffering from a severe attack of rheumatic fever, has in consequence been permanently disabled. Dudley Ward, who pulled No. 17 in the famous Eton crew last summer, will row at the next regatta in the Cambridge crew.

SPASHES.
Bob Cook, Yale's coach, has said that he thought the proposed shifts to the English style of propelling eight-oared shells would enable the Yale crew to make better time in the annual American university races. He believed that the changes will be permanent at Yale.

THE TURF.
AT BALTIMORE.
Baltimore, Md., Nov. 15.—The Pimlico meeting came to an end yesterday. The four-mile steeplechase was a grand contest from start to finish between the two teams of the four starters. Trillon, owned and ridden by W. C. Hayes, set the pace from the start, and won by a length from Degarrette.

TIPS.
The stable of Mrs. W. E. D. Stokes, of New York, is destroyed by fire near Lexington, Ky., last night. Joe B. the world's record pacer mare, and six other valuable horses were burned.

The American horse Extravade (2:10 1-2) is entered in the St. Petersburg (Russia) prize of 15,000 roubles, and she will be driven by D. McNehe, of Vienna, Austria.

The pacer mare Gertie B. (2:13 1-4), who was shipped to England last summer, was recently put up at auction, and sold at Manchester for 300 guineas, or about $1,500. As Gertie B. is 10 years old and is a pacer, this is a very good figure.

Mr. Seagram's recent purchase, the 2-year-old filly, carried a lot of Canadian money in the last race at Nashville, on Wednesday. He was ridden by Songer, and won handsily. The track betting was 3 to 2.

Parsons and Humphrey, of the R. C. B. C. paced the first quarter, and Reemer and Hutchins, of the Wanderers, paced the second. The last couple also broke a record by going an eighth in 12 seconds. Harley Davidson and Miller made a new professional tandem record for the quarter, going the distance in :27 2-5. The timekeepers were the official watchholders, Skerrett and Laschneider. Roy Miller was starter.

WOMANLY INTUITION.

Was His Wife.

Another Chapter in the Clachan Sensation.

The Husband of Mrs. Stewart Found at South Bend, Ind.

He Denounces the Slanders and Feels Deeply the Loss of his Partner.

South Bend (Ind.) Tribune.

Through extensive information placed in his hands by the Tribune yesterday, Mr. A. J. Stewart, of 415 South Carroll street, this city, has been able to identify the sad case near Chatham, Ont., involving the death of a woman as of vital interest to him.

Every effort was made when the telegram was received to locate the husband. The dispatch said that he resided in South Bend, and was a wholesale druggist. One of two men named Stewart were found, but neither was surrounded by circumstances that identified him as the man in case.

It was learned that Mr. A. J. Stewart resided at 415 South Carroll street, and that he was the husband of the Tribune called on him. While interested in the case slightly, he was not connected with it, but did not wish to dismiss the matter from his mind.

Further and further investigation, the peculiar and unfortunate case were placed before Mr. Stewart, and he soon made the painful discovery that the woman now dead was his wife.

All circumstances of her life and of his so interwoven that there was no mistake, even in Mr. Stewart's own mind, painful as is the information to him. He is an honest, upright man, what he has learned, that the theory of murder is false, and he also stamps as wholly untruthful the slanderous statements made concerning the actions of Mrs. Stewart. His belief is in a measure borne out by the fact that Mrs. Stewart was in delicate condition, says such was not the case.

Mr. Stewart, who is now separated, he says, but a chain of unfortunate business circumstances connected them with the family of relatives at Wardville, Strathroy, and other points in Canada, and he is in South Bend.

An investigation of Mr. Stewart's character gives every reason to believe that he is an honest, upright man, and that his wife was not a bad woman. He came to South Bend some three years ago from Painesville, Ohio, at the same time that his wife came, and an only daughter remained in Painesville to complete her education, later joining her mother.

Mr. Stewart, after coming here, organized the Stewart Co-Operative Medicine Company, making headache remedies, and did other honorable work. He is quiet and unassuming, a good father, and a good husband, and honest and many hearing. He will go to Canada to aid in the investigation of his wife's death.

He is partly at least, to have resulted from none but natural causes. The and and slanderous stories have the appearance of this distance, having been started by the combined efforts of wayside gossips and sensation hunting newspaper correspondents.

LARGE OR SMALL FAMILIES.

Birth Rate Generally Declining Except in Austria-Hungary.

That the question whether a large or a small family is desirable is long on the minds of the people of Europe is amply proved by certain statistics recently collected by M. de Foville, and quoted by M. B. Baudouin in his "Social Evolution." According to these statistics the birth rate in Europe is declining, and in twenty years fallen in a very remarkable degree. At the beginning of the period in question the rate in Prussia was 29.1 per 1,000 of the population, at the end it was 26.3; in Switzerland the rate was 35.3 at the beginning, and 32.5 at the end; in England the period opened with a birth rate of 35.5, and closed with one of 32.7; in Scotland and Ireland the rate was 24.5 at the commencement, and 23.6 at the close.

Similar falls have been noticed in all other European countries, with the exception of Austria and Hungary. It is not difficult to explain why this condition of things should have come about. But the question for consideration is whether the decline in the birth rate is a good thing or a bad thing, and the whole of Europe is now faced with the question of marriage and of large families.

It leads necessarily to a relaxation of population, and that may be an advantage. But in France it is said to lead in another direction, which is not only not advantageous, but is disastrous. In that country the average family consists of not more than one or two children. One consequence of this is an excessive tenderness on the part of parents, and perpetual fear of misfortune happening to the offspring. The latter are excessively indulged in childhood, and so guarded and protected that the male children tend to lose all boldness, and grow up almost entirely destitute of enterprise and power of endurance. No robust minded person can fall to see that here is an evil of fatal character. If the children of the country are in detail without pluck or enterprise, it is certain that the whole adult nation will soon be in the same condition.

That is an object lesson which English men and women will do well to lay to heart. If our excessive dread of small means for ourselves and our offspring tends directly to the ruin of the nation's boldness, and enterprise, the outlook may well give us pause.—The Hospital.

CREMATED HERSELF.

Terrible Suicide of a Colored Woman at Cobourg.—Another at Ottawa.

Cobourg, Ont., Nov. 15.—Saturday morning about 11 o'clock Mrs. R. Lunn, after drinking a cup of coal oil, saturated her clothing with the fluid and then set fire to herself. Before assistance could reach her she was terribly burned about the head and chest. About 10 o'clock the same night death relieved her of her sufferings. Mrs. Lunn was the wife of Mr. R. Lunn, a respectable citizen, who conducts a laundry business here, and much sympathy is felt for him.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—James Watterson, a well-to-do farmer of Limebank, in the county of Carleton, near the city, shortly after rising on Friday morning committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. The unfortunate man had been ill for some time, and it is supposed that he became despond-

Michigan Coal

A Good Vein Discovered in Bay County.

Capt. City, Mich., Nov. 15.—George Penniman recently made the discovery of a rich deposit of coal on his land near the mouth of the river, at the depth of 70 feet. He sunk a number of test wells, ostensibly for water, but in reality for coal, and found a vein over four feet in thickness and of good quality. To ward off suspicion, he put pumps into the holes, and until within a few days it was not known what had been found, it being supposed that the wells were for the purpose of watering the cattle grazing on the land.

In the spring a shaft will be sunk and mining started. There are now two mines in operation in Monitor township on the west side.

STOPPED ITS COUGH.

The Baby Slept but Failed to Wake Up.

Stratford, Ont., Nov. 15.—A ten-months-old girl baby in charge of Hannah Morey, from Brantford, visiting here, was dead Friday evening. The child had been suffering from a cold, and on being put to bed early in the afternoon, was given a dose of "cod-liver" to stop the coughing. She slept all afternoon, as was supposed, and towards evening, on efforts being made to rouse her, it was found that the little one was dead.

Dr. Fraser was called, and said she had been alone, and that she had been notified, but on investigating decided neither post mortem nor inquest was necessary. The child had been suffering from pneumonia, and the medicine given was most unsuitable and killed instead of curing her.

THE GOTHENBURG SYSTEM FAILED.

Attempt to Make the Sale of Liquor in Norway a Monopoly Futile.

London Times.
The British vice consul at Skien, Norway, in his latest report states that for which two of the towns in his district—Skien and Brevik—had the been suffering from the sale of bolags, or salmagis, for the sale of spirits as a monopoly. According to the report, the liquor traffic in the towns have the right of vetoing the further existence of any bolag in their town.

Both bolags and the sale of bolags, which were so warmly advocated by the towns, have not been popular as might be supposed. But it should be stated that it is mainly owing to the persevering agitation of the teetotal element, aided by the women's votes, that these salmagis are being ousted. In towns where these institutions are thus abolished, and where no privileges for the sale of spirits are still held by private individuals, the liquor traffic flourishes undiminished to the great chagrin of those whose zeal has secured the abolition of the bolags. But no sooner are the bolags abolished, which is generally effected by agitation, and give rise to the ill-fitting question of the press complaints that large sources of income have thus been lost to the communities. The profits from the bolags were always utilized for the support of charitable institutions and objects of general local interest, which must now be maintained by the ratepayers or else be totally abandoned.

"The new Norwegian liquor law may have its advantages, but when it contains clauses prohibiting the sale, even in the best hotels, of any kind of spirits, from Saturday morning to Monday morning the law becomes inexpedient and onerous. This is proved by the fact that the Christiania police authorities have found it wise to make representations to the Government to obtain the relaxation of the above-named clause. The liquor question in Norway seems to be undergoing a crisis of alteration. Willing as the Norwegians seem to be to reduce the sale of spirits to a minimum, they are scarcely likely to allow of such far-reaching encroachments on the personal liberties of free citizens of a free country. The prohibitions already existing in some districts against the sale of spirits have already led to evil results in the excessive use of naphtha by the lower classes, and in the introduction of free citizens of a free country. W. H. Woodham Taken to Jail to Serve a Thirty Days' Sentence.

St. Thomas, Nov. 15.—W. H. Woodham, of Southwold, was brought to jail Saturday to serve a sentence of 30 days for not obeying a judgment summons. The original debt was $13 77, but the costs have swelled the amount to $21 55. The order was issued last February at the instance of A. C. McIntyre.

TWO LITTLE STORIES.

A teacher was taking a class in the infant Sunday school room, and was having her scholars finish each sentence to show that they understood her.

"The school has eyes," the teacher said, "but it couldn't—"

"See," cried the children. "It had ears, but it couldn't—"

"Hear," was the answer. "It had lips," she said, "but it couldn't—"

"Speak," once more replied the children. "It had a nose, but it couldn't—"

"Wipe it," said the children. "And the lesson had to stop for a moment for the teacher to recover her composure.—Scottish Leader.

It was on a Delmar avenue car, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The car had stopped, and everybody knew how, in the stillness of a stop, a voice as soft as a cooling dove, smites the general ear as clearly as the strident voice of the professional orator at a ward meeting.

The young man fumbled in his pockets in vain. He was moneyless. In a stage whisper intended for his companion's ears alone, but which went to the ears of all the passengers, the young lady looked in her purse, and felt in her pockets. The search was in vain. She stage-whispered, "I have done the same thing."

She meant that she had left her money at home, but she framed it unhappily. And when one or two heartless young men laughed mildly she blushed and made things worse by explaining audibly that she had left her money in her other dress. A fellow-passenger paid both fares, and the episode and the car passed on.

A Lover's Triumph.

He told her about his Southern home, and the life he led when there. He described the luxuriant beauty which surrounded "Vue de l'Eau," his father's estate, and so called from the broad, sweeping view which they had of the beautiful James River, which lay right beneath them. He told her something of his father and mother, and his stately, beautiful mother, and was really eloquent in his description of the spot that had given him birth.

"I wish you could come to 'Vue de l'Eau' sometime, Miss Huntress; I am sure you would agree with me that there is nothing finer in the way of scenery, even on your far-famed Hudson," he said, in conclusion.

"Thank you, Mr. Mapleson; your descriptions are surely very enticing," Gladys replied, with a smile. "I suppose your parents are both natives of the South?"

"Yes, they were both born in Richmond, and my father was a colonel in the Confederate army at the time of our civil war; but, as it happened, his estate was not harmed, and it has since increased greatly in beauty and value."

"Do you remember much about the war?" Gladys inquired.

"No, I knew very little about it at the time, of course, I was very young—only about 8 years of age—and besides, my father sent my mother and me abroad, where we remained until the war was over."

"I suppose some of your people still feel antagonistic toward us Northerners?" Gladys remarked.

"I presume there is a feeling of bitterness to some extent among the veterans, but as to the generation that has been growing up since, I think we all feel that we are one nation, and our interests are with one another. But if I had been ever so bitter toward Northern people, that feeling could not have possibly continued to exist after my present experience with them."

"That is hardly fair," urged her companion; "to the victor belongs the spoils, and you are the victor."

"Yes, but you will have your own friends to rejoice with you, and I could not desert dear old Geoff, though he should fall a hundred times," she returned, a tender glow overspreading her face.

"Happy Huntress!" sneered the exasperated young man, for a moment forgetting himself.

"Why, Mr. Mapleson, I hope you are not offended with me," she said, with surprise, and not once suspecting that this venom was aimed at the object of her conversation.

"Everett Mapleson was glad that supporter was announced just at that moment, which saved him the necessity of replying."

The mere thought of sharing any honors with his rival made him white with anger, and he praised of him had driven him nearly frantic.

He saw Geoffrey approaching them, and murmured that he contemplated taking Gladys into supper.

He resolved that he should not; so, turning to her with a smile, as he laid her hand upon his arm, he remarked:

"There is no doubt a pleasing announcement to everybody. Shall we follow the hungry crowd?"

"Thanks; but I see Geoffrey coming for me; pray find some one else, Mr. Mapleson; I have already completed more of your time and attention this evening than I ought," the fair girl responded.

"I could not bestow it more acceptably to myself anywhere else," he replied, in a low, earnest tone, and detaching the hand which she would have withdrawn from his arm.

At that instant Geoffrey bowed before them.

being so zealous for study during the recesses."

A startled look shot into Everett Mapleson's eyes.

If Geoffrey Huntress did gain a year he would graduate at the same time with himself, and the thought was anything but pleasant to him.

"He will have to be very smart to do that," he said with a skeptical curl of his lips.

"Geoffrey is smart; he has achieved wonders during the last few years, and I predict for him a brilliant college career. I am very proud of him."

The beautiful girl's face glowed, and her eyes gleamed as she said this while her glance rested more fondly than she was aware of on the manly form that stood beside her.

Her companion was so nettled by this, that for a moment he could not control his voice to reply.

"I should judge by that the young man must be a prodigy," he said, at length, with a covert sneer.

Gladys lifted her eyes searchingly to his, and then she said:

His tone was not pleasant to her, but he looked as innocent as if he had spoken in all sincerity.

"Why, she said, after a moment's thought, 'if Geoffrey does gain a year he will take his degree when you take yours'."

"Yes."

A little ripple of roguish laughter issued from the fair girl's red lips.

"Then let me warn you," she said, with a merry glance, "to look out for your honors, Mr. Mapleson, for Geoffrey is bound to go to the front, and I have fully made up my mind to hear him deliver the valedictory at Yale two years hence."

Again the young Southerner had to pause for self-control; it was very hard for him to conceal the rage that this, that for a moment he could not control his voice to reply.

"Miss Huntress, you have inspired me with an ambition which I never before possessed. I would give more than you can conceive to merit such praise from your lips as you have bestowed upon another, and from this hour my purpose shall be to go to the front, as you have expressed it."

I shall deliver the valedictory two years from next summer."

She never dreamed of the fierce enmity and jealousy that lay beneath all this, and she was delighted to think that she had aroused his desire to excel in his class.

"It will be a worthy contest," she said; "and I honor you for your resolution. I shall watch the rivalry with a great deal of interest. I assure you."

"Will you wear my colors if I succeed, Miss Huntress?" the young man asked, in a low, almost passionate tone.

"That depends."

"Upon what?"

"Upon whether Geoffrey takes his degree at the same time; if he gains his year and leaves with your class, I think I shall have to be loyal to him, even though he should suffer defeat."

Gladys replied, though in her heart she felt sure that he would not fail to do himself honor on the field of battle.

"That is hardly fair," urged her companion; "to the victor belongs the spoils, and you are the victor."

"Yes, but you will have your own friends to rejoice with you, and I could not desert dear old Geoff, though he should fall a hundred times," she returned, a tender glow overspreading her face.
