INDICTED FOR SHIPPING ARMS TO SINN FEINERS

Col. Marcellus Thompson and Seven Others Charged by Grand Jury.

GUNS SEIZED AT HOBOKEN Deal Alleged To Have Been Made Through Auto Ordnance Company.

Trenton, N. J., June 19.—Col. Marcellus H. Thompson, vice-president and active head of the Auto Ordnance Company of New York, has been indicted by the federal grand jury here on a charge of conspiracy to ship arms to Ireland in violation of the neutrality laws. The announcement was made today by Assistant United States District Attorney Thomas A. Arrowsmith.

Col. Thompson is a son-in-law of Col. George Harvey, United States ambassador to Great Britain. Indictments also have been returned against the Auto Ordnance Company and seven other individuals on the same charge, as the result of the seizure at Hoboken last June of the Cosmopolitan Line freighter, East-side, in the coal bunkers of which were found 455 machine guns.

The other individuals indicted are: Frank Williams, alias Lawrence DeLacy, alias Lawrence Pierce, who is alleged to have paid for the shipment of guns, and his brother, Fred Williams, alias Edward DeLacy, who is alleged to have been instrumental in the purchase of the guns. Both are now believed to be in Ireland. George Gordon Rorke, a salesman of Washington, who is alleged to have placed an order for the guns with the Auto Ordnance Company; Frank B. Ochsener, of New York and Washington, who is accused of placing the first order for some of the guns with the Auto Ordnance Company.

Where was considerable mystery about the guns after their seizure and an investigation was started by the United States Shipping Board and the Department of Justice. Frank Williams claimed ownership of the guns after the seizure. He declared he had purchased a number of guns through the Auto Ordnance Company and stored them in a warehouse. He said they had been stolen from the warehouse, and asserted he did not know how they got on the ship.

ADVANCE IN FURS PROVIDES PROFIT

Winnipeg, June 19.—Although prices reacted at the recent fur sales, generally speaking the year was a profitable one for the fur traders. The advance in the prices of furs, which enables the directors to report a substantial profit, states the annual report of the Hudson's Bay Company, made public here last night. The annual general meeting of the company will be held on June 30.

Ireland Approves Treaty By 4 to 1 Vote

EARLY RESULTS RECORD DEFEAT OF OPPOSITION

Disintegration of Collins-De Valera Political Pact Now Forecast.

GUARD DUBLIN BALLOTS

London Eagerly Awaits a Statement From Irish Insurgent Leader.

Dublin, June 19.—The Dublin newspapers treat the election results thus far recorded as conclusive evidence that the voters support the Anglo-Irish treaty.

The Irish Times prints a detailed report of the proportional representation voting in Cork City, arguing that it shows that labor voted 15 to 1 in favor of the treaty, and that the total polling was more than 4 to 1 in its favor.

The Irish Independent says the results thus far plainly indicate the trend of the country's opinion regarding the treaty, and adds:

"Already the anti-treaty forces have some notable reverses. It is significant that in the first constituency in Munster in which decision of a contest is known, the result is a serious reverse for the anti-treaty forces."

Quick disintegration of the political agreement between the factions, headed by Michael Collins and Eamon De Valera, is forecast by the Irish Times, which says in this connection:

"The Collins-De Valera pact is a notoriously fragile instrument. It could not have survived the first meeting of the provisional parliament by many weeks. The likelihood is now that it will not survive the publication of the constitution by many days, and an immediate statement on the subject of the constitution is expected from De Valera."

AWAIT DE VALERA PLEA

London, June 19.—Eamon De Valera's keenly anticipated statement, which is indicated will be issued today, is expected to denounce and repudiate the proposed Irish constitution. It is also universally believed that the statement will sound the death knell of the Collins-De Valera agreement under which last week's elections were held.

URGES FREEDOM FROM OLD-TIME PARTY POLITICS

Agnes McPhail, M. P., Declares Dominion Needs New Faction in House of Commons.

Ottawa, June 19.—Miss Agnes McPhail, M.P., on Saturday, at an open meeting of the Bowesville and Latrim Women's Institute, said the Liberals had been false to a true policy and the Conservatives true to a false policy. Therefore a new party was needed.

Miss MacPhail again emphasized that her whole heart was with the people of the farm, whose battle, she said, she was trying to fight in the commons, or rather the house of commons, where principles and honor and justice were hulled to sleep, she averred.

Keep free from old time partyism, was her advice, and she again objected to the policy of broadening out, which she claimed had been disastrous to the Liberal party.

Seeks To Aid Londoners In Aquatic Art of Diving

WITH the onset of the warm weather season citizens of London and district steal away by motor or train to Port Stanley, Bayfield, Oakwood, Goderich or Grand Bend, where the lure of the waves bids them don a bathing suit and forget the every-day routine of life.

Those who mastered the art of swimming last year, aim to continue this process, and cherish the hope that the 1922 season will develop them into finished swimmers, with prowess in diving thrown in for good measure. Others with a few initial swimming lessons to their credit purpose starting where they left off and finishing the season quite at home at the beach.

There is a slogan which says, "Dive and be healthy and happy," but those who have awkwardly struck the surface of Lake Erie or Lake Huron declare that it is easier said than done.

In their efforts to emulate the small boy at city bathing camps on the Thames these would-be divers have too often given up in disgust, convinced that he comes by it naturally, while the limit of their fun is to be splashing or swimming in the cool waters.

Swimmers who can dive are envied by the hundreds whose only boast in regard to aquatic recreation is that they can swim. Somehow or other the latter, willing as they are to learn, cannot master the knack of diving into the water like their more adept brothers and sisters.

However, The Advertiser has greatly simplified the art of diving, for Western Ontario residents, by securing a series of articles from Aileen Riggins, Olympic fancy diving champion, who at 14 years of age, won this title at Antwerp, Belgium, in 1920.

Miss Riggins ranks as the peer of the world's mermaids. Her achievements cannot be duplicated by everyone, but her lessons in diving can be grasped by those desirous of mastering this art.

The first lesson in diving will be given by the world's champion in the Tuesday editions of The Advertiser.

MRS. KOEHLER, CROWN WITNESS IN SARNIA CASE, FAINTS IN BOX

Admits Under Cross-Examination That She Had Told Robert Wilson "She Knew Someone Who Could Be Squeezed."

Special to London Advertiser.

Sarnia, June 19.—W. R. Meredith, K.C., of London, created a sensation in court by placing Wm. Ayers in the witness box at the start of the case for the defence. Ayers stated that he and Yohn went to Detroit on the Monday prior to the robbery and stayed at Mrs. Connelly's boarding house on Jones street. They were there when the robbery took place. Ayers said he was never in Wyoming in his life until taken there by police.

Sarnia, June 19.—After admitting during cross-examination this morning by W. R. Meredith, counsel for William Ayers, one of the four London men, alleged Wyoming Bandits, that she had repeated to Robert Wilson of Adelaide street, London, that "she knew someone who could be squeezed," Mrs. Olive Myrtle Koehler, the crown's star witness, fainted in the witness box and had to be removed from the courtroom until she recovered.

Turning deathly pale after fifteen minutes cross-questioning, Mrs. Koehler sank back in the seat of the witness box, and called for water. When a glass was hurriedly brought to her, she intimated to Judge A. E. Taylor, presiding, that she could not continue her testimony. Allowed to retire to the judge's ante-room she was guarded by a court attendant in order that no one should hold conversation with her.

"What do you mean when you told Robert Wilson that you could squeeze on someone and get money?" questioned Attorney Meredith.

As Mrs. Koehler declined to reply the latter shouted, "Who was the man?"

Fences Question.
While at first appearing to fence the question, Mrs. Koehler eventually declared that Mrs. McKenzie had "told her of someone who could be 'squeezed' and she had repeated the same to Mr. Wilson."

he explained that she did not know any names, but had intended listening to future conversations to find out if possible.

She denied taking a revolver to Mr. Wilson's home, stating that the weapon was but a water pistol. She denied also the suggestion of Attorney Meredith that she had threatened to take Mrs. Wilson's life.

Mrs. Koehler's collapse resulted in the adjournment of the case at 11:30 until 1 p.m. today. Dr. William Logie was called to the court house to attend to her, and announced

FLOODS DESTROY QUEBEC CROPS

Three Rivers, Que., June 19.—One of the most disastrous consequences of the torrential rainfalls of Saturday and Sunday in the Three Rivers district is that a rather vast area of seeded fields are under water, and that crops are practically ruined. Water has risen a foot and a half in the port and the St. Maurice River is nearly overflowing its banks near Shawinigan Falls.

OTTAWA, June 19.—Canadian Press.—General Sir Edward Morrison, commander of the Canadian artillery in France, and one of Canada's best known soldiers, is lying critically ill in St. Luke's Hospital suffering from a paralytic stroke, sustained when he ran to catch an elevator in the Woods' building this morning.

QUALIFIES IN GOLF CONTEST

C. Ross Somerville Makes the Course in 88 at Hamilton.

Competitors Commence Play Under Unfavorable Weather Conditions.

Hamilton, June 19.—Play in the qualifying round of the Canadian amateur golf championship tournament began this morning at 6:30 a.m. on the links of the Hamilton Golf Club at Ancaster. Eighteen holes were played this morning and eighteen this afternoon at medal play. The thirty-two low scores qualifies players to enter the first round at match play, beginning tomorrow.

The play began in weather conditions not exactly ideal for golfing. The sky was overcast, and a slight mist overhung the lower parts of the course. There was a threat of rain in the air, while the greens were drenched with dew. The conditions were reflected in the early returns.

Frank Thompson, Toronto, the champion, found no great difficulty in the course, returning on a neat 73. The course on the first round of 18 holes this morning were:

Lose Ferns at Peony Show.

IS THE WORLD dishonest, malicious, or merely thoughtless? The London Horticultural Society is seeking an answer to that question by heaping coals of fire upon its enemy's head, and offers to some individual, either genuinely ill-intentioned, or abominably thoughtless, who removed a couple of ferns from the armories following the peony show, a course of instruction in fern growing as well as the pots to the ferns, which were either by chance or neglect left behind.

During the international peony exhibition of last Friday and Saturday the firm of Gamgee & Sons, local florists, lent a number of ferns to the society for decorative purposes, and as their share of making

DOCTOR CLAIMS DELORME SPOKE AS LITTLE CHILD

Witness Describes Meetings With Accused in Public Garage.

REPEATED STATEMENTS

Crown Prosecutor Engages in Wordy Duel During Examination.

Montreal, June 19.—Adelard Delorme's fight to have himself adjudged mentally unfit to be tried on the charge of having murdered his half-brother Raoul promised to occupy the entire week, Judge Monet having this morning discharged the entire petit jury panel which remained after the Delorme jury had been selected. The proceedings today opened with the cross-examination of Dr. J. A. Handfield, an immediate neighbor of Delorme, on his observations of the prisoner's general behavior during the years of their acquaintance.

The examination resulted in a colorful duel between J. C. Walsh, crown prosecutor, and the witness, Fustave Monette, chief counsel for the defence, occasionally came to the latter's assistance when the question was raised as to whether Delorme's alleged furious pursuit of the money god should necessarily be interpreted as a symptom of insanity.

Occupied by Spectators.
The court room was again crowded to suffocation, each available inch of standing room being occupied by eager, curious spectators, the great majority of whom were women.

Delorme's former high color having fully returned. As usual, he appeared uninterested in the proceedings, and reclined in his chair, frequently closing his eyes as though in a light doze.

Mr. Justice Poullet, of the superior court, appeared to be in the best of health, his former high color having fully returned. As usual, he appeared uninterested in the proceedings, and reclined in his chair, frequently closing his eyes as though in a light doze.

In reply to searching questions on the part of Mr. Walsh, he admitted that any person might be liable to over-excitement before or after an automobile drive, though he could not remember ever having seen the prisoner troubled by those circumstances. Delorme frequently spoke, the witness declared, of the number of miles he had done in his car. He would give the most minute details, mentioning the number of forks, knives and spoons he had carried. He used also to refer to the little stove he had on which he could cook an egg in five minutes. "Those are things," said Dr. Handfield, "we would not note in a child of seven, but with an adult it is different. Those are the words of a man who is still a child."

SELL MOSUL OIL FIELDS TO BRITISH

Constantinople, June 19.—The heirs of the late sultan, Abdul Hamid, with the consent of the sublime porte, have sold extensive property in the Mosul oil fields to a British syndicate for $5,000,000, according to the Anatolian press. The Ankara newspapers declare the transaction illegal, and urge the nationalist government not to recognize it.

BRITISH PREMIER DINES POINCARÉ

London, England, June 19.—Prime Minister Lloyd George gave a luncheon at Downing street this noon in honor of Premier Poincaré of France, at which most of the members of the British cabinet were present. The function occurred in the oak paneled room in which hung portraits of former British prime ministers.

After the luncheon Premier Poincaré was to confer with Mr. Lloyd George and the Earl of Balfour, the foreign minister, leaving for Paris this evening.

SOVIET ALLOW LEASES.

Moscow, June 19.—New decrees presented to the council of commissaries propose granting of individual rights to build on leased lots, and thirty years for wooden buildings, and forty-nine for stone. The property would be tax-free for the first three years, with the right of direct line inheritance.

Pure Gasoline Station Is Guttled by Flames

FIRE of undetermined origin completely gutted the interior of the new Pure Gasoline Station, now in course of erection on Dundas street at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon.

The first indication of the blaze was received when workmen engaged in the construction were surrounded by flames, which burst forth from the windows and doors with a roar somewhat in the nature of a miniature explosion.

At the time of the fire one thousand gallons of gasoline were stored in the tanks, and it was thought for a time that the blaze might assume menacing proportions, but the timely arrival of the fire brigade quickly extinguished the outbreak.

URGES RULING ON TAX ISSUE

City Solicitor Meredith Suggests Legislature Be Asked To Clear Up Tangle.

City Council May Discuss Annex Collections At Meeting Tonight.

When the city council meets Monday night, the written opinion of City Solicitor T. G. Meredith on collection of annex taxes may be brought into discussion in view of the fact that it bears out the contention of Ald. H. B. Ashplant, that property in the annexed district is liable for school taxes.

While the written opinion of the solicitor has been submitted to No. 2 committee of the city council, it has never been published in full.

Following is the written opinion of Mr. Meredith on this important matter:

"My opinion has been asked as to payment of the taxes for income and business assessment in the annexed districts."

"I have already given you my opinion that the school rates are not included in the fifteen mill rate provided for by the orders of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, applies to the income taxes and the business assessment taxes in the annexed districts."

The opinion was filed at the meeting of No. 1 committee of the city council.

COUNCIL OF WOMEN OPENS CONVENTION AT PT. ARTHUR

Mrs. Gordon Wright Among First Contingent of National Delegates Which Arrived Monday.

Port Arthur, June 19.—Queens weather greeted the arrival of the first contingent of delegates to the annual convention of the National Council of Women, which opened in this city today. Twenty-seven delegates had registered by 9 o'clock, most of them arriving by steamer Horonic from the east. Included among the delegates were Mrs. Wiloughby Cummings, D.C.L., Toronto, first vice-president; Mrs. Horace Parsons, Toronto, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Gordon Wright, London, Mrs. W. C. Tillery, Bramford; Mrs. S. H. Secord, Brantford; Miss I. Malcolmson, Hamilton; Mrs. M. T. Scholles, Woodstock; Mrs. E. J. Coles, Woodstock.

Today and tomorrow will be occupied with national executive and committee meetings.

LONDON, England, June 19.—Canadian Press Cable.—Canon H. J. Cody, of Toronto, will preach in Westminster Abbey on Saturday, June 24, when the Archbishop of Canterbury will consecrate three bishops.

The three to be consecrated are: Archdeacon Lisle Carr, vicar of Sheffield, as bishop of Coventry; Rev. Howard Mowll, formerly dean of Wycliffe College, Toronto, as assistant bishop of Western China, and Rev. Thomas Chapman, vicar of Bolton, as assistant Bishop of Colchester.

MEREDITH BANS CHANGE IN SITE VOTED IN 1913

Declares Referendum or Special Legislation Alone Can Authorize Proposal.

UPHOLD FEDERAL SQUARE

City Treasurer Bell Believes $300,000 Will Be Available For Structure.

Declaring that unless a vote of the people or special legislation is obtained authorizing a new city hall on the present site, the city council cannot proceed with such a proposal, City Solicitor T. G. Meredith has informed Ald. J. C. Childs, chairman of No. 1 committee, of the legal status of this important question.

The city solicitor has also ruled that a new city hall can be erected on no other site than that voted upon and sanctioned by the people, namely: the proposed Federal Square on Dundas street, between Waterloo and Wellington streets.

The legal ruling was announced Monday, and much as the council may favor the site of the present city hall for a new building it prevents them from proceeding with the proposition.

As there has been no money voted for a new civic structure on the present site, it cannot be obtained unless by vote of the people or special legislation. The property acquired for the Federal Square scheme cannot be disposed of unless similar public approval to do so is forthcoming.

Funds Must Suffice.

However, the city solicitor has ruled that the council may proceed with erection of a new city hall at the southeast corner of Dundas and Wellington street, provided that the funds furnished by vote of the ratepayers will cover the expenditures involved.

City Treasurer James Bell informed The Advertiser Monday that approximately $300,000 will be available for this purpose. In 1913 the ratepayers by a large majority voted $250,000 on a bylaw for a new city hall on the proposed Federal Square. In addition debentures totalling $75,000 were issued for the same purpose.

According to the city treasurer, after a portion of this money had been used in acquiring federal square property, there remained $125,000, which is still available.

As the present city hall was obtained to be used temporarily until a new building was erected across the street, the city treasurer declares that it can be sold, netting thereby an additional $100,000. The federal square scheme having fallen through, due to Borden government inaction, Mr. Bell believes that property owned on this site by the city, and not required for the city hall, can be sold for $75,000, thereby bringing the total available for a new city hall up to $300,000.

However, Mr. Bell declares that $300,000 will not pay for a city hall worthy of London, and if further funds are desired a vote of the people is necessary.

This means that in any case of a new city hall for the city, regardless of site, the will of the ratepayers must be expressed.

Friends of the federal square scheme, who desire a new city hall on the old McCormick property, are related with the city solicitor's opinion, declaring that it vindicates their stand, and prevents the city council from proceeding with a new building on the present site this year.

They point out the fact that the ratepayers voted overwhelmingly in favor of the federal square site in 1913, and assert that when the question is taken to the polls the same vote will be repeated, thereby preventing the city fathers from bravely the opposition of the people in favoring the present city hall site.

TWO PROVES LAMSON TARIFF CHANGES MERELY BLUFF

All Proposals But Six Pass in House of Commons Unopposed.

ANNOUNCES LEGISLATION

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King Outlines Remaining Work For Parliament.

OTTAWA, June 18.—Criticism leveled at the tariff proposals of the Liberal budget during the recent debate was proven merely talk Saturday, when every item of the tariff resolution, with the exception of six, passed the house without opposition.

The six items, relating to farm machinery, on which the Progressives are seeking greater reductions, were laid over.

Without further opposition from the Conservative party and without alteration, the marking act was passed.

At the opening of the house Premier W. L. Mackenzie King made an announcement of the remaining legislation which would be introduced this session.

In addition to the supplementary estimates, there would be bills amending the income tax act, the act controlling the importation and sale of oleomargarine, the Three Rivers harbor commissioners act, the naturalization act, and such legislation growing out of the budget resolutions.

In answer to a question by Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, opposition leader, Hon. W. S. Fielding stated that the amendments to the income tax act would not be of a very important nature. There was a question regarding exemption, and one dealt with certain difficulties in regard to the incomes of commercial travelers. Hon. A. B. Copp, secretary of state, was unable to state the nature of the amendments to the naturalization act, but said he would try to do so Monday.

Hon. F. A. Crerar, Progressive leader, asked when the supplementary estimates would be brought down. Mr. Fielding replied that all possible speed was being made with them and that he hoped to table them on Monday or Tuesday.

Aged Woman Waiting Wistfully In Barren Attic For $100,000 Legacy

TORONTO, June 17.—In a little ill-furnished room on the topmost story of a local apartment house lives Miss Wilhelmina Horne, the center of a story that is as interesting as it is unusual.

This lady of more than three-score years is waiting patiently in this secluded nook that contains all her worldly possessions for news that may make her the possessor of about $100,000.

She is one of three sisters of the late J. W. Horne, former member of the British Columbia Legislature, who died intestate last winter and left an estate that is expected to run into half a million dollars.

Wistfully, almost plaintively, Miss Horne stated that she was lonesome, that no one ever came to see her, and that she had no relatives in Toronto. She spoke feelingly of her deceased brother, and stated that overwork had caused his death. Asked if she had any plans for using the money she was going to receive, she replied: "No. I am not sure whether any money is coming, and I shall not know until Mr. Hughes, who is representing me in Vancouver, returns from the West next week."

protested that the experience of farmers' organizations had been that they were taxed much higher than this. He instanced the case of a carload of plows and parts imported by the United Grain Growers at Regina. A duty was levied, and in addition a dumping duty, making a total duty of 51 per cent on the invoiced value. He did not see why such importations should come under the dumping clause.

Hon. Mr. Fielding said that if the invoice price was the same as that for which implements were purchased in Canada, there would be no dumping clause. The Canadian market price governed.

Mr. Fielding said he would ask his officers for a memorandum on the subject. The item carried.

At the opening of the house Premier W. L. Mackenzie King made an announcement of the remaining legislation which would be introduced this session.

protested that the experience of farmers' organizations had been that they were taxed much higher than this. He instanced the case of a carload of plows and parts imported by the United Grain Growers at Regina. A duty was levied, and in addition a dumping duty, making a total duty of 51 per cent on the invoiced value. He did not see why such importations should come under the dumping clause.

Hon. Mr. Fielding said that if the invoice price was the same as that for which implements were purchased in Canada, there would be no dumping clause. The Canadian market price governed.

Mr. Fielding said he would ask his officers for a memorandum on the subject. The item carried.

At the opening of the house Premier W. L. Mackenzie King made an announcement of the remaining legislation which would be introduced this session.

In addition to the supplementary estimates, there would be bills amending the income tax act, the act controlling the importation and sale of oleomargarine, the Three Rivers harbor commissioners act, the naturalization act, and such legislation growing out of the budget resolutions.

In answer to a question by Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, opposition leader, Hon. W. S. Fielding stated that the amendments to the income tax act would not be of a very important nature. There was a question regarding exemption, and one dealt with certain difficulties in regard to the incomes of commercial travelers. Hon. A. B. Copp, secretary of state, was unable to state the nature of the amendments to the naturalization act, but said he would try to do so Monday.

Hon. F. A. Crerar, Progressive leader, asked when the supplementary estimates would be brought down. Mr. Fielding replied that all possible speed was being made with them and that he hoped to table them on Monday or Tuesday.

RIVER CLAIMS GUELPH CITIZEN

William Flick Slips Off Dam in Riverside Park and Drowns.

Roy Robinson Discovers Body After Four-Hour Search.

Special to London Advertiser.

GUELPH, June 18.—The first drowning accident of the season occurred on Sunday afternoon at Riverside Park, when William Flick, 32 years old, lost his life in the River Speed, just under the dam. He was in bathing with a large number of others, and being an expert swimmer, not much attention was paid to him.

With others he was about to dive off the top of the dam into the deep water below, but missed his footing, slipped and fell into the water, and it is supposed he must have been stunned by striking a stone at the bottom, as he did not come to the top again.

An alarm was sent out, and the fire brigade responded, and for nearly two hours they worked in an effort to locate the body, but without success.

Later, however, as a raft was being towed across the river for men to work on in dragging the stream, Roy Robinson, who had been watching the river, and reaching into the water, he found the drowned man.

There was a cut across his forehead, which would indicate that he had hit rock. Coroner Dr. Orton was present when the remains were pulled out, and he decided that an inquest was not necessary. Deceased was a native of the village of Arthur, but had resided here for the last 26 years. He was a carpenter by trade and single. He leaves his parents, two brothers and three sisters to mourn his loss.

MRS. J. GANDIER PASSES
Well-Known Resident of Southampton Dies Suddenly of Apoplexy.

Special to London Advertiser.

SOUTHAMPTON, June 18.—Mrs. Gandier, wife of Rev. J. Gandier of the Anglican Church, died suddenly at her home here from an attack of apoplexy.

The deceased had been in usual good health, and about 10 o'clock in the evening she was in the act of preparing a bed for her son, Capt. E. B. Gandier, who had returned from London, when she was stricken with apoplexy, and expired almost instantly.

The late Mrs. Gandier was born at Port Hope 70 years ago, her maiden name being Mary Victoria Bates.

Her husband, five sons and two daughters survive. Rev. M. C. Gandier, Port McNicoll; S. H. Gandier, Vermilion, Alta.; A. W. Gandier, Toronto; R. P. Gandier, Windsor; Capt. E. B. Gandier, London; Mrs. Richard Carnegie, Sandusky, O., and Mrs. Charles Webster, Detroit.

The funeral was held from the family residence to Port Elgin Cemetery Friday afternoon.

POSSE CAPTURES CHAIN BANDIT
CHYENNE, Wyoming, June 17.—Fred Brown, whose cunning has kept him a lap ahead of posesses in three states for several weeks, was captured north of Medicine Bow, Wyoming, last night, after a pistol fight. Possemen came upon him when his machine mired, and Brown made a dash for a big rock to stand battle, but was shot down. The capture was revealed today by officers of the Union Pacific Railroad.

Brown, who is known here as the "Omaha chain bandit," since he restrained two women in chains recently in Omaha, was traveling through the wild Medicine Bow country in a stolen automobile. He was trying to get out of the mud when the posse came upon him. From their automobiles the pursuers covered Brown with guns, and ordered him to stand away in the opening. Brown sprang toward the rocks and was shot above the heart.

RIDICULES BURIED TREASURE STORY
MONTREAL, June 18.—"There is nothing to justify the legend about the Jesuits' treasure, supposedly buried at the bottom of the Wyandotté River," declared Very Rev. Father Filion, superior of the Jesuit Order in Canada, while discussing during the latest reports of excavation activities on that river near the ruins of Fort Sainte Marie.

Father Filion describes the talk as "a silly legend," and said the whole thing was preposterous. There had been in past years, he said, some excavation work at the ruins and this had given birth to the legend.

Two Wounded When Gun Is Accidentally Discharged.
Special to London Advertiser.

ELMWOOD, June 18.—Hector Boyce, aged 26, and his sister Myrtle, 18, figured in a shooting accident in Benick Township on Friday afternoon, when a gun carried by Kendal Stanborough, who was walking along with them, accidentally discharged. Hector Boyce was hit in the lung, while his sister received a nasty wound on the arm. The former was in a serious condition for some hours after the shooting, but is out of danger now.

"Home Brewer" Saved by Fielding.

OTTAWA, June 18.—(By Canadian Press.)—The day is saved for the "home brewer." Item ten in the budget resolutions, which would have prohibited the brewing of beer by anyone except a regularly licensed brewer, was struck out Saturday night at the request of the Hon. W. S. Fielding, who said that there had been abuses in the past in connection with the "home brew industry," and he had come to the conclusion that the proposed remedy would perhaps be worse than the disease it was meant to cure.

LAUD BEAUTIES OF FOREST CITY

Exhibitors at International Peony Show Enjoy Motor Tour.

Exhibitors at the International Peony Show, held in the armories today and Saturday of last week, at London last Saturday convinced that they had seen the completion of the finest peony exhibit yet staged by the society. One lasting result of the exhibition so far as Londoners are concerned, will be the increase of peony culture in the city. The magnificent blooms exhibited were the admiration and envy of all who saw them, and flower lovers went from table to table, pencil and paper in hand, copying down the names of new varieties which they wished to obtain for their gardens.

Prominent growers from other Canadian cities and from the United States, who were the guests of the London Horticultural Society Saturday morning on a motor drive through London and vicinity, were enthusiastic in their admiration of the city's boulevards and gardens, and the magnificent trees with which the streets are lined. The party visited Springbank Park and were the guests of S. F. Wood at his home near Kilworth.

At the conclusion of the exhibition the peonies were put in charge of W. G. Moore, and under a committee composed of Bert Masurel, Dr. W. J. Nolan and M. Brown, distributed amongst the various charitable organizations in the city. The hours of Sunday were reached before the last load was taken away from the armories.

Members of the London Horticultural Society are more than pleased with the results of the exhibition, and confident that it will mean a decided increase, both in membership and flower growing in London.

HOLLIE TO PAY $20 FOR BEING ROUGH

In the face of contradictory evidence by three witnesses to the effect that he was acting in a disorderly manner with Margaret Harris a week ago Sunday, Clifford Hollie, colored, declared he was in bed at his rooming house. However, Magistrate Graydon decided he was a disciple of Ananias and fined him $20 and costs, with the option of spending 21 days in jail.

"The governor's got the money. If you go down there, I'll pay you off," declared Hollie.

FORMER DAYS.

A CORRESPONDENT writes:—"I read with great interest your reference to the contemplated retirement after most honorable and effective service of Alexander McQueen, principal of Ryerson Street School after fifty years' service. I also noticed the names of numerous former pupils of Victoria School, better known to old-timers as Asklin Street School, who have made their mark in the world. The list could be indefinitely extended, and three other pupils who got their groundwork in the "Red" under Mr. McQueen's supervision may be added to your list. I refer to Dr. Wilbur MacBroom, a well-known Toronto medical man; to George Clarke, manager of the Bank of Commerce at Stony Plain, Alberta, and to his brother Jack, well known in his early life as "Dick," a graduate afterwards of McGill University and now occupying a responsible position as chemical expert at Wilmington, Mass. There is one other feature of this school that has not been mentioned in this connection and that is the fact, as I recollect, that it had the distinction of being the first public school in the province that established a kindergarten. I am sure that not only former pupils living in your city, but hundreds of them who have now homes in widely different places throughout the continent, will unite with you in wishing the distinguished principal good health and happiness in his retirement."

TO OPEN PLAYGROUNDS OFFICIALLY ON JUNE 24

Capt. "Mel" Brock, Chief Supervisor

Completes Arrangements for 1922 Season.

June 24 marks the official opening of all the playgrounds under the direction of the civic playgrounds committee of the public utilities commission, A. O. Hunt, acting general manager of the latter body, explained Monday morning.

Mel Brock, who retains the position of chief supervisor again this year, was in the city over the last week, when final details as to work yet to be accomplished were arranged. His return to the city from Ridley College, St. Catharines, is expected by June 24, when all the supervisors under his charge will assume their respective tasks.

Work is being pushed with remarkable rapidity at Thames Park and at the Queen's Park playground. The latter is a new location, and the work of preparation has been in progress for about three weeks. The wading pool has been commenced and will be completed in good time for the opening. It is anticipated.

All the grounds are opening fully a week earlier this year than during last season.

HUNDREDS ATTEND ESCOTT FUNERAL

Wife of T. B. Escott Buried in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Several hundred people were in attendance Saturday afternoon at the burial services of Mrs. T. B. Escott in Dundas Central Methodist Church, Mrs. Escott, who died in the city of Miami, Florida, on Feb. 20 last, was the wife of T. B. Escott, prominent wholesale grocer of London.

Mr. and Mrs. Escott moved to London from Chatham some 30 years ago. Soon afterwards Mr. Escott became prominently identified with business and commercial life in London and Western Ontario. Seven years ago Mr. Escott relinquished active participation in business and and his wife took up residence in Miami, Florida.

During his 23 years' residence in this city, Mrs. Escott, through the medium of her warm personality and kindly nature, established a circle of friends numbering hundreds.

On account of her associations here it was decided to bring the body to London for interment shortly after her death.

The funeral was held at Dundas Central Church Saturday afternoon from Harrison's undertaking parlors. Rev. John Garbut, the pastor of the church, conducted the services, and was assisted by Rev. Mr. Bingham of Toronto.

Present at the services were Mrs. Escott's sister, Mrs. (Dr.) J. N. Hutchison and Dr. Hutchison of Winnipeg, and Mrs. H. Escott, also a sister, of Miami, Florida.

The active pallbearers were John MacDonald, Edwin Smith, P. M. Johnson, H. E. Kennedy, W. Eardley, and W. J. Smith. The honorary pallbearers were C. E. German, William Heaman, W. H. Winnett, James Bowman, Robert Green, and C. J. Beal.

Mrs. Escott is survived by her husband, T. B. Escott, and two sisters, Mrs. H. W. Escott of Miami, Florida, and Mrs. (Dr.) J. N. Hutchison of Winnipeg.

Interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

TO CONSIDER "Y" WORK FOR FALL

Staff Will Hold Meeting June 26 To Draw Up Program.

A conference of the members of the Y. M. C. A. staff in this city will be held Monday, June 26, for the purpose of drawing up the fall program.

This conference has been delayed until the appointment of a new physical director, but now that George Sinclair, of the Moncton, N. B. Y. M. C. A., has been chosen to fill the position, Edward Jenkins, general secretary, stated that a fall program would be drawn up as soon as possible.

Mr. Sinclair, who has had considerable experience in athletic work in different parts of the country, has indicated that the physical culture program for the fall and winter will be a very complete one. He arrived in the city late to associate for the "Y" with summer sports in this city, but next year it is his plan to enter Y. M. C. A. teams in baseball, football and other branches of sport.

The officials who will take part in the conference are: Edward Jenkins, general secretary; Lloyd Houlding, boys' secretary; George Sinclair, physical director; Bob Liddle, men's secretary; and Wilfrid Spearman, assistant boys' secretary.

An important thing to be discussed at the meeting will be the advisability of employing an assistant physical director who would devote his time mainly to the younger boys. Art Horwood formerly held this position, but he tendered his resignation about a month ago.

CANON SAGE DENOUNCES PRESENT-DAY LITERATURE

Delivers Address On "Summer Reading" At Ministerial Alliance Meeting.

Rev. Canon Sage was the speaker at the Monday morning meeting of the Ministerial Alliance, and during the course of an address entitled "Suggestions for Summer Reading," but which dealt in a most comprehensive and understanding manner with the literature of the present day, deplored the lack of constructive mission in many of the productions of modern writers, and their tendency to reflect rather than shape the thought of the day.

The modern problem novel was denounced by Canon Sage as having a sinister influence upon the morals of many readers, while contributing nothing to the betterment of mankind.

Members of the Alliance pledged their support to the congregation of the Hill Street Baptist Church (colored) in its campaign to raise funds for the new $5,000 church, to be built on Hill street, the foundations of which are already laid. Rev. S. J. Johnson made the appeal on behalf of his congregation, and clerical present at the meeting will place the request before various city congregations.

The following officers were elected for the coming term: Honorary president, Rev. Matthew Kelly; president, Rev. J. H. Versey; first vice-president, Rev. N. S. McKee; second vice-president, R. D. Mess; recording secretary, Rev. J. Hosie; corresponding secretary, Rev. A. E. M. Thomson.

Dr. Hill Predicts Next Great War Will Be Fought Between Man and Disease

That the great war of the future will be the war between the species, man on the one side and germs and diseases on the other, was the prediction made by Dr. H. W. Hill to the members of the Rotary Club Monday noon.

Taking for his subject, "The Fallacies of Public Health Education," Dr. Hill said no matter how much physical exercise a person may indulge in, or how careful a person is in his diet and health, he cannot escape altogether infectious diseases.

It was a well known fact, he declared, that the babies from the slums and the lower classes were usually the ones who won prizes in baby shows and clinics, and that the death rate was higher in the residential district than it was in the slums.

A note of appreciation was read for the splendid work of W. E. Saunders, president of the London Horticultural Society, in bringing the International Peony Show to London.

This showed, he said, that infectious diseases were caused by contact with other persons and not by the conditions in which a person lived.

It was decided to hold the Rotary Club picnic Thursday, June 23, at Port Stanley, and arrangements will be made later for the annual celebration.

It is planned by the members to take the patients at Byron Sanatorium out for an automobile ride on Tuesday, June 20, and already many city Rotarians with cars have placed them at the disposal of the committee in charge.

A Challenge Not Met.

THE Ottawa Citizen discusses the budget and the surrounding incidents very candidly, especially that part relative to the attitude of the Progressives to the FIELDING proposals. The Citizen draws the inference that the Progressives were challenged by Mr. FIELDING to name a better way of raising the money if they had been in power, and that they failed to bring up any other plan that would meet the financial condition of the country today.

The Ottawa paper goes on to say that "according to Progressive critics, the budget is protectionist. The Progressives must take up Mr. FIELDING's challenge, or depart for their constituencies under the charge of having nothing more effective than the other parties to offer on the fiscal issue. Mr. FIELDING conceded that some of Mr. CREEK's followers had spoken of a tax on land values and inheritance taxes. But he pointed out that at present there is no federal machinery for collecting a tax on land values, and he expressed doubt that any large sum would be realized from an inheritance tax at the time when large sums are needed."

"Mr. FIELDING might have added that the worthy Liberal member for Gloucester, Mr. ONESIPHORE TURBON, has just as consistently urged taxation of land values, session after session. In the Parliament before last, too, Mr. GEORGE P. GRAHAM, the present minister of militia, commended it to the minister of finance, Sir THOMAS WHITE, as an alternative method of raising revenue. Hence, it might be said, there is nothing outstanding in the Progressive support of taxation of land values, although it formed one of the planks in the Progressives' election platform."

"In the meanwhile, Mr. FIELDING has to meet some heavy liabilities. In spite of the heavy increases in taxation this session, it is estimated that the deficit during the fiscal year will be upwards of $140,000,000. The minister may find himself short of revenue to that extent, when national debts have to be paid.

"The sales tax is a serious burden on trade and industry—as all such taxes on consumption are bound to be; reduce purchasing power. Mr. CREEK vigorously criticized the sales tax; but, as Mr. FIELDING properly replied, the Progressives have advanced no constructive proposal to take the place of the sales tax."

The same thing can be said of the Conservative attitude in the Commons. The country can ask the Conservative leader and his followers, "You objected to the FIELDING tariff—you spoke against it for hours—you voted against it—but what did you suggest in its place? Faced with that question, the Conservatives will find it very difficult to make an answer that will carry conviction."

Cultivating Flowers.

LONDON'S PEONY show attracted wide attention from all parts of Canada, and from United States as well. A few years ago the average idea of a peony was a hardy old perennial that used to come along about the end of May.

Now the thing is different. Peonies have names like folks. They have pedigrees like all good aristocratic families, and people grow them for the pure delight of seeing to what new measures of excellence they can attain.

After all it's not a very difficult matter, with a little foresight, patience and planning, to bring the peony to your aid in quite an extensive and elaborate floral scheme. It responds quickly to care, and gives results in short time.

For instance, T. A. ENLOW of Hamilton, president and general manager of the Dominion Sheet Metal Corporation of that city, was in London at the peony show. His factory is in the factory district of Hamilton, and if things had been left as he found them about the only decoration in the locality would be a rust-colored creek that wanders through the iron belt. Instead the premises are taking on the bearing of a place of beauty—a few days ago there were enough peonies cut by the men in the plant on the way home to make it look like a flower parade. Don't you suppose such an atmosphere is rather a pleasant one in which to carry on business? Peonies, like other flowers, have a commercial value in the attractiveness they lend to any surroundings, and we imagine that Mr. ENLOW has realized long ago that it is good business to have his premises stand out as the most attractive in the district.

The growing and cultivation of flowers is certainly on the upgrade all through Western Ontario. We have one city specializing in tulips, one roses, another in peonies and gladioli, and so on. It is certainly worthy of every encouragement, for in no other way can a community better give its tangible sanction to the development of things bright and beautiful.

THE ANNUAL DELUGE.

After Seven Years.

THE STRANGE case of little JIMMIE GLASS may be cleared up very quickly, and if it is, there will be one force that has seen this baffling case through to the end, and that is nothing less than the love of a mother for her own little boy.

It was early in May, 1915, that JAMES DOUGLAS GLASS, aged 4, disappeared from Jersey City. He simply went out to play and did not return. So complete was the mystery of his disappearance that it would seem the earth had opened to receive him. Creeks and rivers were dragged to find his body, and every possible move was made that might lend assistance to the solution of the mystery.

The mother of the boy has always held to the theory that he was kidnapped by a band of gypsies that disappeared from the locality the same afternoon that Jimmie failed to come home. With that one idea in mind she has covered the country, interviewed and searched, finally turning to the department of justice at Washington, which came to her assistance with all the power and scope at its disposal.

Now comes word that a band of gypsies found at Porto Rico have with them a boy of 11 years, fair hair, but tanned of skin, who resembles, by marks of identification, the lost boy Jimmie. There will be a member of the family to make certain that there is no mistake. So it will be that after a search of seven years the mother wins. Men talk about their devotion to an ideal, their tenacity, or their strong resolve. Fine, no doubt, but the mother searching for seven long years, without a clue or evidence to go on to find her boy Jimmie, makes a record of unselfish devotion that no man could equal or surpass.

London's Opportunity.

THERE IS little doubt that London can kill two birds with one stone and do a magnificent stroke of business for the city at the same time.

If the city enters into negotiations with the Dominion government to purchase the Customs House for a city hall, and agrees upon the price, it would obtain the best possible city hall at a low price. The building is a very fine one, and would make a perfect city hall, with light all round. That would be a splendid stroke of business alone.

The other part of the transaction is that if the city agrees to take over the customs house for a city hall, the government would proceed with the erection of the new post-office and customs house on the site of the postoffice and Carling's Block. The plans have been prepared. The buildings would be an acquisition to London, classic in design, and kept back some feet from the street line, it would make a very handsome corner in London. If at the same time the new hotel could be proceeded with, it would further add to the importance of the new city hall, postoffice, customs house and up-to-date hotel corner, with banks, etc., in the vicinity. This is a great opportunity that should not be lost. The customs house is carried by the government at a very low sum which would enable the city to obtain a real bargain, and a city hall that would be a credit to the city. MAYOR CAMERON WILSON should move in the matter without delay.

LITTLE 'TISERS

The most cutting thing one man can say to another is the announcement of a reduction in salary.

To be quite honest it's hard to tell whether a lot of busy folks go to Montreal on business or to get a drink.

They say toads eat mosquitoes. If that's so the chances are that the wars are simply the bites coming through.

The preserving season, having arrived in our midst, sugar shows its interest in the bout by moving up a couple of pegs.

The time is on when we have quite a struggle with the flies at our house to see who's going to get the things put on the table to eat.

Mind when the ladies used to wear sleeves that looked like a whole ham! And now they don't wear 'em at all, or of a variety that looks like a porch awning.

After sharpening the neighbor's lawn mower with the neighbor's file on Saturday afternoon and thereafter mowing the hay on the front lawn, we pronounce this as powerful good growing weather.

This is the season of the year when folks leave a perfectly good home in the city and go to a lake to live in a shack with no conveniences and few comforts. 'Tis then they have a good time.

The meals they used to talk about in the country have largely disappeared. One city spunger thought he was in for a regular set-up the other night, but was brought up against a feed of canned salmon and baker's bread. Perhaps that's why folks are leaving the farms.

When a young man takes his girl to a ball game what is he to do when the ticket seller suggests that of course he wants to sit on the grandstand, and on the way to the grandstand what's he to do when a youth suggests that he will want to have his girl sit on a cushion? And then after he has her on a cushion in the grandstand what's he to do when the vendors suggest that the lady wants a score card, peanuts and an ice cream cone? Yes, yes, the great national game has come to be quite a financial experience.

A scheme is under way in Britain and has been receiving some consideration, the aims and direction of which can be summed up in the pungent words, "migrate or starve." It is shown that the population per square mile in the United Kingdom is 394, while in Canada it is 2.5, and Australia, 1.5. It is also pointed out that unemployment does paid out in Britain in 1920 amounted to $75,000,000, while in 1921 the amount was $210,000,000. The question then comes, when the money for doles is at an end, what is going to take place? Granted that the figures are correct, some authority in England is going at the problem in a forceful way. If they are simply coming to Canada to be hard up instead of being hard up in England, it does nothing but transfer one of Britain's most acute problems to this country.

Our Own Country

CANADIAN GOV'T. MERCHANT MARINE.

Q.—What is the Canadian Government Merchant Marine?

A.—The Canadian Government Merchant Marine is a fleet of between fifty and sixty ocean-going freight vessels, owned and operated by the Canadian government in conjunction with the Canadian National Railways. They cover the world in their sea routes.

CANADA'S AREA.

Q.—What is Canada's area in the North American continent, and in comparison with that of the United States?

A.—Canada's area is estimated at 3,296,645 square miles, or 111,992 square miles larger than the United States and Alaska combined, of 3,184,653 square miles.

READ YOUR CHARACTER

By Digby Phillips.

NO. 24—BUYING FROM THE CROUCHER.

Every once in a while you run across a "croucher." You know the type, the man who instinctively and habitually seems to hunch himself forward.

As in other walks of life you'll find crouchers among salesmen. Once in a while they call on you and try to sell you something.

First of all you should observe carefully to make sure whether he is a croucher by instinct or as a result of infirmity. Of course, in the latter case there is no indication of the man's habitual posture that you can count upon except that of his physical infirmity.

But if it appears to be merely a habit with him, be on your guard. He's the type that will "slip one over" if he sees his way clear. This does not necessarily mean that he is dishonest or downright unscrupulous. It means merely that he has in his make-up a certain amount of slyness, of cunning, and that as likely as not there is something in connection with his proposition that he is not telling you for fear it will influence your decision against it.

In short, in letting a man of this type sell you, you should be very careful to pin him down directly on all points which possibly can affect you. Quiz him, draw him out. Get at what is in the back of his mind before you commit yourself. As a rule you can tell when you have uncovered the point in question. Something of the "croucher" type is very likely to creep into his manner when his cunning has failed.

LEARN A WORD EVERY DAY

TODAY'S word is PUERILE.

It's pronounced—pu-er-ile, with accent on the first syllable.

It means—of, or pertaining to, a child, childish, foolish, unthinking, unworthy of an adult.

It comes from—Latin "puer," a child, a boy.

It's used like this—"Complaints that the Italian ambassador in London was trying to influence legislation by a remark he made concerning tariff protection are referred to by the diplomat's friends as puerile."

POETRY

WHAT WAR IS.

War is hell, said Sherman.
One awful thing to say;
But let us hope it's underground
And always there to stay.

Man is a tool that's no mistake,
He's always in the fray;
He never knows its horrors
Till he gets right in the way.

He makes the guns that knock him out,
The ammunition too;
And then he thinks it terrible
What trials he goes through.

Some folks like the game of war.
They'll play with it all day;
But they can't live on for ever,
They must pass the other way.

When will the swords be pruning hooks,
And the plowshares with us shine?
That's told us in the book of books
That man should be divine.

What can be said and that's not dead,
That war is just a game;
It comes about through ignorance
Of those who look for fame.

Then why should man be lauded
Away up to the sky,
If he lives just for a purpose,
To see his brother die.

The world is what we make it.
Its honey and its gall,
A good God must have made it,
But man has cursed it all.

TO THE EDITOR

SCHOOL TERMS

Editor of The Advertiser:
1. Is it correct that the term of the normal schools and faculty is to be increased to two years?
2. Is it possible for anyone, who has not reached their eighteenth birthday, and holding a first-class certificate, to gain admittance by applying to the deputy minister of education or by any other means?
AN ANXIOUS STUDENT.
Ans.—There is rumor to this effect, but nothing has been done officially.
2. Any person holding a first or second class certificate may be admitted to the normal school if they reach their eighteenth birthday. Under the regulations, no one is allowed admittance if they have not reached that age when the school term opens.

THE JOY OF GIVING

Editor Advertiser:
Sir.—It reads in Proverbs, 11 chapter, 24-25 verses, thus:
"There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that which withholdeth more than he meet, but it tendeth to poverty. The liberal soul shall be made fat; and he that withholdeth shall be watered also himself."
The Welfare Campaign gives everyone a chance to show how liberal they are. Everyone who has been in steady work during the past winter should give a donation.

There are some men where I work who have been earning from $20 to $35 per week, and no one but themselves to keep, yet would not give a nickel to the campaign.
These kind of people should live in Russia, where they would be made to give.

I could find excuses, if I did not want to give, but it is my duty as a citizen to give, also my duty to God in thankfulness for steady work and the strength to keep at it.

I would sooner die knowing that I had done my little bit towards making life a little brighter for some of the poor and needy than to die wealthy, for after all what will it profit a man should he gain the whole world and lose his own soul.

It was the poor and needy to whom Christ came to save, and if we carry on His work in helping the same, we shall hear Christ say: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto me."

True and lasting pleasure can only be found in helping others; all other is vanity. Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy. Trusting the class of men I've referred to will soon see that they are the losers in not giving. Yours respectfully,
EDGAR TAYLOR.

APPRECIATION

Editor Advertiser:
Sir.—I am always interested in your column "Poetry." Once in a while you publish a poem under that heading. In your issue of June 13 you have there what I call a poem, written by Margaret Clarke Russell. It isn't very long, but it's sweet. I congratulate that lady on her poetical ability.

London may have other poets besides her, but she certainly has one in that lady.

A true poet is a lover of nature, and no one can write poetry that isn't. It seems to me we have too

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

HERE WE HAVE ITEMS OF LOCAL AND DISTRICT INTEREST AS RECORDED IN THE ADVERTISER OF 1897.

JUNE 19, 1897.

Weather—Fair and warmer.

The annual installation of officers for Merill Lodge, No. 334, A. F. and A. M., was held in their hall Thursday night, Bro. John Boyd of Belmont, assisted by Very Wor. Bro. Partlo of Ingersoll, performed the ceremony in a most excellent manner, after which luncheon was served. The following are the officers for the ensuing year: Wor. Bro. J. C. McNeven, worshipful master; Bro. H. W. Partlo, senior warden; Bro. J. Sharp, junior warden; Bro. S. Sweet, chaplain; Wor. Bro. W. H. Shaw, secretary; Bro. J. J. Ford, treasurer; Bro. W. Drake, senior deacon; Bro. J. Capstick, junior deacon; Wor. Bro. J. Durand, inner guard; Wor. Bro. G. Wade, tyler.

Mrs. Thomas Wright of this city is the guest of Mrs. John Summer, Harris street, Ingersoll.

The concert hall at the Sacred Heart Convent presented a most picturesque scene today when the annual distribution of medals and prizes took place. On the platform were Bishop O'Connor, who presided; three lady graduates of the Superior Class, Miss M. Weisson, Miss Kate Howe and Miss Maggie Connelly. The recipients of medals are: Gold medal for Christian doctrine, Miss Connelly; gold medal for order, Miss Quinlan; gold medals for arithmetic, Miss McQuade.

The London Y. M. C. A. wheel men had a run last night to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, Lambeth, where refreshments were served. Twenty-one wheelmen were in line.

The attendance at the market was quite large today, and prices were steady. Home-grown strawberries were selling at 12 cents a box. Other prices were: Fresh eggs, 7 to 8 cents a dozen; butter, 12 to 13 cents a pound; cheese, 10 cents a pound.

The mayor presented each of the aldermen last night with a silver jubilee medal, handsomely incased. The aldermen have decided to walk in the jubilee procession Tuesday, instead of taking carriages.

Conductor Parker is back on his old run between London and Wingham.

DR. BISHOP'S ADVICE

EMERGENCIES

DR. R. H. BISHOP.

ONE should go camping without some knowledge of emergency treatment for accidents. A little Red Cross first aid book is a mighty handy thing to have when some body breaks a leg, sprains an ankle, suffers sunstroke or meets with some other physical misfortune.

An elementary knowledge of what to do, however, until the doctor comes, can be carried easily, safely and well right inside your own head.

One who has had a fall or any other accident resulting in shock shows the following symptoms: Pale, clammy skin, weak pulse and weak, gasping respiration or sighs.

Place this patient on his back, cover him. Give him to the best solution of shock, at once and, if possible, apply external heat by means of blankets, hot water bottles or hot bricks. But be careful not to burn him. Hot water, tea or coffee are useful stimulants. In heat exhaustion the skin will be cold and clammy; other conditions much the same as in shock.

The same treatment will be required. The body of a sunstroke victim feels hot and dry to the touch. Clothes wet in the coldest water at hand should be applied to the head and body, especially along the spine, from the head downward. This treatment should be renewed frequently. Application to the head of cracked ice in a towel is good.

If an arm or leg is broken use splints composed of folded newspapers, pieces of board or heavy pasteboard. Bind into position with bandages or handkerchiefs. If the arm is broken, place it in a sling. A couple of men's ties knotted together will do temporarily. If a leg is broken tie the legs together if no splint is available.

Don't try to set broken bones. Straighten to relieve pain, then apply splints.

Don't allow fractured limb to dangle. A good treatment for poison ivy inflammation is a wash of boric acid solution mixed with water, followed by ordinary zinc ointment smeared on the skin. The wound then should be covered with a thin piece of cotton cloth. A thick, heavy cloth will create heat and increase inflammation. Washing the inflamed area with common soap—laundry soap is good, if nothing else is available.

The BOOKSHELF

BENNETT MALIN. By Elsie Singmaster. Houghton, Mifflin Company, Publishers, New York.

TWO types of fiction are always considered when any attempt to classify the novel is made. One is the novel of plot and the other is the novel of characterization.

In the case of Elsie Singmaster's "Bennett Malin," it is a sense of character that the reader will carry away with him, and because of this the tale must be placed among novels of characterization, although the plot is well handled, and has its moments of suspense. However, the reader is never very long in doubt as to what Bennett Malin will do.

Malin is the central figure in the book, and before the reader has traveled many pages he has a well-defined idea of the man, his personality and his drawbacks.

The tale is of a somewhat leisurely moving type, but this does not prevent the reader from following it with the closest interest.

Malin is a divinity student, a man whose secret ambition is to be a writer, and the author has cleverly enough seen to it that his lack of certain human qualities are as emphatically intimated as the other to be expected traits in this type of man.

It is hardly to be admitted that the reader will feel any particular fondness for Bennett Malin. He is not the type of man that induces a fond interest. But, at the same time, he has certain qualities that appeal. Malin is selfish as only an ambitious man, somewhat too sure of himself, can be. Everything is sacrificed to Malin's ambition to become a great writer during the progress of the tale, but it is of no avail. One cannot become a great writer unless the gods are kind. Instead of the hard-laboring, scheming Malin's success the reader witnesses the easy success of Malin's careless, unstruggling son, to whose pen come words as easily as breath to his nostrils.

Word must be said for the consistency with which the author develops the various characters who surround her central figure. All of them are painted with a careful brush, and because of this care they stand out as breathing realities before the eyes of the reader. It is this quality that is so great a part of the author's charm.

AT HIS OWN RISK.

A young man was leaning out of the car window. A brakeman passed down the aisle and said to him: "I shouldn't do that, sir. It's dangerous. Only the other day—"

The young man interrupted him insolently. "I can look out the window if I wish," he said.

"Of course, you can, sir," answered the brakeman, "but if you damage any of the ironwork on the bridge or tunnels we have to pay for it."

How often have you put in a call for — say Mr. Brown of the Robinson Machine Company — and when connection was made, learned that he was out?

Because you asked for Mr. Brown, it cost you — because of the extra service we rendered — about 20% more than if you had asked simply for the Robinson Machine Company.

The majority of Long Distance users find that if they put in a call for a firm — not for an individual — at the lower Station-to-Station rate, they can nearly always get in touch at once with the particular person they prefer to talk with, or with a deputy who will answer the purpose.

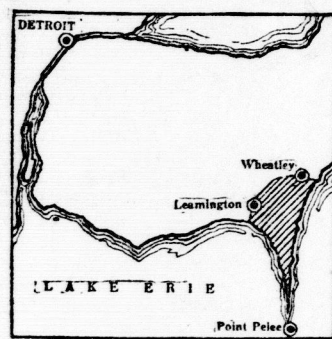

Our gain will come when you appreciate the speed and economy of Station-to-Station service, because you will use it more frequently. Remember that after 8.30 P.M. the evening rate on Station-to-Station calls is only about one-half the day rate.

HOLD RECEPTION AT SANATORIUM

London Health Association and Queen Alexandra Staff Entertain 300 Visitors.

12th Anniversary of Opening of Big Institution At Byron Celebrated.

Saturday afternoon was a great occasion in the history of the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium, Byron, when it celebrated its twelfth birthday.

No individual invitations for the affair had been issued, and more than 300 visitors made pilgrimages during the afternoon. All were greatly impressed with the institution, and were delighted to hear that the event is to be made an annual one.

What the visitors saw was an expanse of 205 acres, situated on the brow of the hill overlooking the Thames. The velvety lawns and wide verandas were dotted with groups of patients and nurses in crisp white uniforms. On the west side of the grounds the Royal Canadian Regiment Band, under the direction of Capt. Ryan, with the kind permission of Lieut.-Col. Hill, played a delightful program of music.

Under a picturesque marquee trees and cold drinks were served, and in the administration building tea was served.

Visitors Taken Through.
Dr. F. Pratt, and Miss Forrest, lady superintendent, assisted by the nurses and doctors, conducted little groups of interested persons through the buildings, including the administration building, the infirmary, recreation hall, vocational building, where wood carving and basketry are taught, preventorium, doctors' residence, the Marion Beck Nurses Home, laundry, the electrified model farm and model stables, with a far-famed Holstein herd.

All were greatly impressed with the perfect order and cleanliness, with the pretty shrubs and the sunny wards. In the preventorium, the classroom was pointed out where the children are instructed for a few hours each day. Miss Linecar is the sister in charge, and Miss Elizabeth Evans the teacher.

Sir Adam Beck, president of the London Health Association, accompanied by his daughter Miss Marjorie, were among the visitors, also Brig.-Gen. W. B. M. King and Mrs. Shuttlesworth King, Lieut.-Col. Francis B. Ware and Mrs. Ware, Rev. Quintin Warner and Mrs. Warner, Miss Annie Macbeth, Miss Shaw-Wood, Mrs. Fritz Beck, Mrs. C. S. Hyman, Mrs. Harry Blackburn, Mrs. Cl. T. Campbell, Mrs. Joseph Leach, Mrs. E. C. McCann, Miss Louise Gahan, Mrs. Ronald Harris, Col. Murphy, Judge Judd, Mrs. Rapley, Mrs. Frank Leonard, Miss Moore and many others, including the heads of the various women's organizations.

Decked With Peonies.
Receiving in the large reception room of the administration room, which was decked with clusters of peonies, was a joint committee representing the Ladies' Auxiliary of the London Health Association, the Women's Sanatorium Aid, and the London Health Association, including H. E. Gates, Col. Ibbotson Leonard, T. W. McFarland, Dr. Pratten, and Mesdames, John Stevely, C. H. Ziegler and J. C. Judd.

Mrs. J. C. Judd was in charge of the tea room, and was assisted by Mrs. Ronald Harris and Mrs. Pratten, who poured for the first hour; Mrs. Cameron Wilson and Mrs. Wood for the last hour. Assistants included Mrs. F. R. Eccles, Mrs. A. Leonard, Mrs. T. McFarland, Mrs. Herbert Gates, Mrs. David Arnott, Mrs. Ray Lawson, Mrs. A. E. Miller, Mrs. Howard Higgins, Mrs. Fred White and Mrs. W. Falls. The tea table was attractive, centered with a graceful cluster of peonies resting on a chintz cloth, with bud-vases holding roses at the corners.

Mrs. Ibbotson Leonard was in charge of the marquee, and was assisted by Mrs. Harley Brown, Mrs. Gerald Pearson, Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Lionel Elliott and Mrs. Gordon Ingram.

Seeing Week-End Market With Aunt Maria's Eyes

Cherry ripe, cherry red, in any case, "cherry" arrived on the Saturday week-end market, the newest and latest of June's offerings, amid the lavish display of strawberries, the gooseberries that were obliged to take second place for the new baby in the fruit family.

Cherry, really nice and ripe could have been purchased in one place by the basket. There was just one basket when Aunt Maria arrived, and the young girl in charge announced she would take seventy-five cents for them, the full measure, six quarts.

As in everything else, a great diversity of opinion was manifested with regard to the value of cherries. The owner of the cherry ripe basket asked only twelve and a half cents, a single box, two for twenty-five, in other places, fifteen cents was the rate named, and in several cases, twenty cents.

Fruit is coming on with a rush, apparently. One strawberry grower, who had boxes of mammoth, firm, ripe berries retailing at eighteen cents a box, stated that the heaviest of his picking was past. He turned out a box to show that the berries were even better at the bottom than on the top.

Businesslike wife suggested that he tack on two cents more for the extra fine value. In many cases twenty cents was asked for much inferior berries. One woman who wanted twenty cents for berries, which justified the belief that the strawberry is nature's perfection of handiwork in the line of offerings for extra inducement for purchasing them to can that they were so sweet they wouldn't require nearly so much sugar as just ordinary berries. And that is something to think about, according to the Easter bride, whose hubby likes gooseberry jam.

Hard on Sugar.
In order to please him, she bought gooseberries a week ago, little gooseberries which took a long time to prepare for the preserving kettle, even with the assistance of a sharp pair of scissors for snipping off blossom and stem.

After the big, big hole made in the sugar bag, ungrateful young husband declared the jam tasted sour, at least the little sample jar she kept out for him.

She paid fifteen cents a quart for the first fruits of gooseberries, but she was sorry on Saturday when she saw the big, plump real English gooseberries, much sweeter and of finer flavor. "And they'll be bigger yet," said the English woman market gardener. "There's nothing like the real English gooseberries. I sold thirty boxes of 'em in no time this morning."

Beets had come down to three bunches for twenty-five cents, mostly five in a bunch.

The long-headed farmer who is specializing on garden products had a practical demonstration of thrift in his neatly arranged corner. Beet-tops were tied up in bunches which appealed to the eye, while the roots with plenty of stems left, were much more convenient to carry away.

"Beet tops for greens. What a splendid idea!" exclaimed a woman who paused to approve.

"You want some, madam?" asked the farmer-salesman. "No," she answered, "the beets need thinning out in our own backyard garden and I'll use our own tops for Sunday. I had forgotten all about beet-top greens until I saw these. I thought of buying your spinach, but I won't need it now, thank you." And the mean woman passed on, leaving the farmer who specializes on gardening to ponder and think.

"Just the sort of thing some women do about my hats," said the milliner standing near, who also was

What Women Are Accomplishing in London.

KNOX W.M.S. EMBROID.
At the June meeting of Knox Church W.M.S. Embroid, as many of the members as possible were urged to attend the presbytery meeting to be held at Chesterfield, on June 27. Missionary papers were given by Mrs. A. Foster and Mrs. R. A. Sutherland.

ST. JOSEPH'S UNIT.
At the June meeting of the St. Joseph's Mothers' Unit, plans were made for a garden party to be held June 26th, at the home of Mrs. William Wilson, Mount Pleasant avenue. Mrs. Joseph Leach, president of the London subdivision, gave an illuminating address on the work of the Catholic Women's League.

LOSERS GIVE SUPPER.
The members of the Women's Missionary Society of Brick Street Church, appointed some time ago, Mrs. A. Norton and Mrs. J. H. Mair, as captains of teams to increase the membership of the society. The winning side was to be treated to a supper by the losing side. Mrs. Norton's team won, and on Thursday evening the event took place at the home of Mrs. S. D. Dawson. The evening was spent in games on the lawn, followed by dainty refreshments. A delightful program was given. The artists taking part were Mrs. J. H. Mair, Mrs. Charles Foster and Mrs. F. Whitteall. Selections by the Excelsior orchestra were also enjoyed.

TEMPO LADIES' AID.
The June meeting of the Tempo Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. J. O. Burdett. There was a large attendance, roll call being responded to by "Facts we should know," consisting of household hints, current events and maxims. The society is busy planning for the annual garden party to be held in the near future, with Jim Farris as a drawing card. Tea was served by the hostess. The July meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. Cole, 193 Grey street, London.

doing her week-end marketing. They come in and look around, when I know they have no possible intention of buying. Next time I discover them with an imitation of one of my hats."

Poultry was plentiful, and the broilers a bit bigger than a week ago, but not big enough to warrant such an advance in price. Saturday, 10th, nice, plump little broilers that would have made a wonderful meal for two were selling for 75 cents each, Saturday morning, the only ones discovered just before twelve o'clock, stubbornly held to the price of $1.50 each.

Last year's chickens were offered by one farm homemaker at $1.50, $1.45 and $1.75 each.

"But, how much is that a pound?" inquired Aunt Maria.

"About twenty-five cents," came the answer.

Week-end marketing develops in time some sense of weight at least, and Aunt Maria felt assured she couldn't possibly be fined for deflation of character when she poised a $1.50 fowl judicially on her hand, then declared, "that chicken doesn't begin to weigh six pounds. I'm sure it doesn't weigh much more than three."

The scales are always waiting in the corner.

Peonies everywhere bloomed riotously on stands, in wagons and in rows, and down the long tables of the market, very often the work of the institute in co-operation with the municipality.

"Next week I am going to Granston to attend the unveiling of the war memorial there."

Mrs. Edwards is also attending next week the district conventions in Galt and Hamilton, which will commemorate the organization of the first Women's Institute at Stoney Creek, 25 years ago, by the late Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless of Hamilton.

The attention of the Ontario provincial president was drawn to the fact that girls' clubs of the Women's Institutes of Alberta have been holding an annual convention in Calgary, beginning June 15, following the convention of the Alberta Women's Institute. What about girls' clubs in Ontario?

"We find," said Mrs. Edwards, "that in our own old province the women and girls work splendidly together, and the presence of the girls adds much life and interest to the institute, while they cannot fail to gain much that is valuable from association with the more mature women. The more I see and hear in travelling about the province, the more I am convinced that it is advisable to keep the interests of the girls and their mothers as closely in touch as possible."

Prof. A. G. Dorland and family, of 914 Colborne street, left Saturday for their summer home at Wellington, Ont. Prof. Dorland will return later to teach in the summer school at Western University.

Col. Ibbotson Leonard, D.S.O., and the officers of the First Infantry Brigade are entertaining at the tea hour Monday at Carling Heights. Tea will be poured by Mrs. Francis B. Ware and Mrs. C. H. Hill.

Many delightful parties have been arranged in honor of Miss Margaret Simson, a popular bride-elect of next month. Next week's hostesses include Mrs. Lloyd Chapman, who is entertaining Thursday, and Mrs. J. G. Gunn on Friday.

Mrs. A. K. Melbourne of Nelson, B. C., formerly of this city, has arrived in town to spend the summer with her sister, Mrs. William Lamb, 565 Dufferin avenue. Mrs. Jessie Lamb Macdonald of New York, daughter of Mrs. Lamb, is also her guest for the summer, reaching town Saturday.

A beautiful tribute was paid to Mrs. G. B. Sage, St. George's rectory, on Saturday on the occasion of her birthday by the branches of the Huron Diocesan Women's Auxiliary to the M. S. C. C. In recognition of her personal worth, and in appreciation of her service as president of the auxiliary for 18 years, the branches presented her with a purse of $450, accompanied by expressions of warm affection and good wishes. Mrs. Sage's resignation from the diocesan branch presidency was respectfully accepted at the annual meeting in Stratford in May.

With the weather just now deciding to turn a bit cooler, the Hunt Club was an immensely popular rendezvous Saturday evening, when the regular week-end dinner dance was an added attraction. A number of jolly little parties were made up for the occasion, and amongst those noticed who were out were Major and Mrs. Kippen, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kerrigan, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smallman, Col. C. K. Morgan and Mrs. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Hammond, Capt. and Mrs. Balder, Col. and Mrs. Langford, Col. E. I. Leonard and Mrs. Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Greene, Mrs. W. G. Webster, Mr. Arthur Mitchell, Mr. Douglas Weld.

MANAGE TO PREVENT CONFLICT OF DUTIES

Northern Ontario Institute Workers Warmly Praised by Provincial President.

"The wonderful vision of the women, their grasp of practical methods for improving home and community, and the wonderful way in which they combine activities for home and country without permitting any of their duties to suffer has impressed me wherever I have gone this past few weeks, visiting district conventions and institute meeting in New Ontario, the Georgian Bay district and other parts of Ontario."

The speaker, who paid tribute to women of the rural districts and small towns, especially in the more isolated sections of the province, was the Ontario provincial president of the Women's Institute, Mrs. G. F. Edwards of Komoka, who was in the city on Saturday addressing the annual meeting of the East Middlesex Women's Institute.

"Another of the encouraging features," she continued, "was the keen interest and sympathy of the men, their willingness to abet the efforts of the women in every possible way. In almost every town and hamlet I found war memorials of various kinds, very often the work of the institute, or better still, the work of the institute in co-operation with the municipality."

Grange-Cowan Wedding of Saturday Is Brilliant June Society Event

One of the smartest and most picturesque nuptial events in many a day, the city was responsible for a large assemblage of fashionable guests Saturday afternoon in the First Presbyterian Church, when Isabel Florence, daughter of the late David James Cowan and Mrs. Cowan, "Birkhill," was united in marriage to Mr. George Reginald Grange of this city, son of the late A. W. Grange, Esq., and Mrs. Grange of Napanee.

Summer flowers, magnificent peonies, with branches of syringa were massed against the choir gallery and pulpit, while the pews reserved for invited guests were marked by knots of orange blossoms. The minister of the church, Col. (Rev.) William Beattie, D.D., C.M.G., officiated, Mr. George Lethbridge presiding at the organ.

Promptly at 4:30 o'clock the groom and best man, Mr. Mervin Sutcliffe of Lindsay, entered the church from the vestry and took their places. The triumphant strains of the Lohengrin bridal music announced the arrival of the bride party, which advanced up the aisle preceded by the ushers, Messrs. Kenneth Ingram, Grant Fisher, Ernest Little, Russell Beattie, Eric Stewart, Lindsay, and Sherman Hill, Kingston.

Next came the flower fairies, Mary of Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Lailey of Toronto, veritable little human flowers in petal frocks of yellow French organdy. With these were worn hats with scalloped and fluted yellow organdy brims and crowns of lattice work of pale pink, blue and orchid. They carried colonial bouquets of sweet peas. Following was the bridesmaid, Miss Kathleen Cowan, younger sister of the bride, winsome in trailing frock of pink georgette, gracefully draped with long side panels, and her pink hat wreathed with lilacs shading from pink to mauve. Her bouquet was a shower of orchids and sweet peas.

The young matron of honor, Mrs. Clarence Kemp of Toronto, was a picture to delight the eye in a gown of orchid georgette, fashioned exactly like that of the bridesmaid, with which she wore an orchid mauve moiré hat, twined with lilacs shading from pale pink to deep purple, and silver shoes. She carried a shower of orchids and pink sweet peas.

Last came the lovely young bride, one of London's most popular society girls, a vision in her nuptial robe of cut velvet on satin, draped at the sides, a cascade of orange blossoms caught down one side. The neck was cut in batteau mode, the sleeves girlishly short. The long court train was of white satin lined with pale green georgette, and over it fell in graceful folds the wedding veil of rose-pointe lace, arranged in coronet fashion, held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried Ophelia roses showered with lilies of the valley.

Following the service in the church the guests drove to "Birkhill," the home of the bride's mother, Talbot street, where a reception was held, during which the music of Lombardo's Orchestra provided a delightful accompaniment to the hum of conversation and laughter.

The happy young couple received the congratulations of relatives and friends, standing in a bay window in the drawing-room, banked with palms, roses and peonies.

Mrs. Cowan, mother of the bride, welcomed her guests, wearing a handsome black gown of canton crepe embroidered in jet, a black hat with ostrich garniture, a corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley adding a color touch.

Mrs. Grange, mother of the groom, also wore a handsome black costume and corsage of orchids and lilies. Mrs. E. W. Grange was gowned in mauve with white leghorn hat, and carried mauve sweet peas. Miss Constance Grange, sister of the groom, wore a dainty frock of white and blue, and blue hat.

A buffet luncheon was served in the dining-room from a table centered with a silver basket of roses and adiantum ferns, with vases filled with roses and ferns placed at the corners.

Mr. and Mrs. Grange left Saturday evening to spend their honeymoon at Lake Placid, N. Y., after which they will take up their residence in London. For traveling the bride donned a chic French frock of navy blue canton crepe embroidered with steel beads and navy blue straw hat with ostrich plumes. Her smart wrap was of black canton crepe lined, with cherry red, and finished with a caracul collar.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pepler, Toronto; Mrs. A. W. Grange and Miss Constance Grange, Napanee; Mrs. Winnie Thompson, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sampson, Gananoque; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Richardson, Napanee; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gooderham, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carlyle, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rice, Detroit; Mrs. DeCoursey O'Grady, Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. Lang Cowan and Miss Mabel Cowan, Galt.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR—I am sorry, but your letter goes under the head of advertising, and cannot be published.

OFFERS HELP.
Dear Miss Grey,—Well, well, it's been a long time since I last wrote, nearly seven months, I guess. We had a new baby boy born at our house three days after Christmas, so that accounts for such a delay.

I see in the paper where Hopeful Sylvia wanted some things for a family in the city. If she'd call around to my house I could give her some things that might come in handy. In tonight's paper I see where Hamstead would like some clothes. I could give or sell her real cheap some baby things, and perhaps some for herself. My address will be with Miss Grey. I have some things I'd like to see. I have some I could send her. Some time ago someone wanted a mint robe; I also have some of that. If you Boxites would pay postage I would help you. I'm not rich myself, but we could help each other along some, surely. Poor thirty-seven did have it quite bad, summer is on, and it's not out yet, so sad as winter.

Has anyone some morning glory seeds? I love them. I planted some this year, but they never came up. Could I please have some? Where I live I have a garden on Elgin County, and I know nearly every town in it. Must close now. Will inclose mite for seeds, and will send more next time.

A BUSY YOUNG MOTHER.
Thank you for all the help you brought with you, Busy Young Mother. I am sure your baby is a darling, and keeps you busy looking after him. I am mailing you some morning glory seeds, and many thanks for the hospital mite.

A PITIFUL APPEAL.
Dear Miss Grey,—I am writing to the Mail-Box for the first time, and I am not proud to confess that it is partly to ask a little help.

I am not yet 23 years old, I have two little children, one of 3 and the other 2 years, and I am expecting another little mite later. I wonder if some Boxite would think me, if she had anything I could cut up for either of them.

I would not think of asking such a favor, had it not been that my husband has been very sick and unable to work, and I have found it very difficult to get along.

So dear Miss Grey and Boxites I ask you kindly to excuse the liberty I am taking.

If any one could find use for some small beads, various colors, I would be pleased to send them. Please find small mite enclosed. Sincerely, HOPE.

I sincerely hope that you receive clothing for your little tots, as it must be hard for you to manage when your husband is not working. Any of the Boxites who have clothing they do not need would be doing a kind deed by sending them for Hope, who is so young. Thank you, Hope, for the little mite, and also for offering to send the beads to any one wishing them.

CARROLL—BROWN.
A quiet wedding took place at St. Peter's Cathedral, London, at 9 o'clock on Tuesday morning, June 13, when Gertrude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown of Alvinston, was united in marriage to Mr. Edward Ellis Carroll of Stratford. Rev. Father Brisson performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Celestine McManus of Watford, while Mr. Edward Brown, brother of the bride, acted as groomsmen. After the wedding breakfast the happy couple left on the 12:29 train for Niagara Falls and Ashtabula, Ohio.

SCARBOROUGH—JACKSON.
A pretty wedding took place at 3 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, June 14th, in Wardsville, when Miss Nellie Adelin Jackson and Thomas Edward Scarborough of Ilderton were united in marriage.

While the wedding march was being played by Miss Ila Quigley, the happy couple took their places under a beautiful arch of foliage, the Rev. Dr. Husser, pastor of the Methodist Church, performing the ceremony. The bride looked charming in a white silk dress, with bridal veil, and carried a bouquet of cream roses. After the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served on the lawn. Among the guests were: W. B. Jackson and wife, T. J. Jackson, wife and daughter, brothers of the bride and Alfred Jackson and wife, all of St. Thomas; Mrs. and Miss O'Neill, Chester Hutchinson and wife, Mrs. Crapp, of Ilderton; Mrs. James Birrell and son of Fanshawe; William Atcheson and wife of London; Mudock Matheson and wife of Cranston; Morgan Wilson and wife of Aldboro'; Matthew Armstrong and wife of Newbury; Miss Baker of West Lorne; James and Mrs. Ward of Windsor; Miss Ila Quigley of Essex; Mrs. McLean and daughter, George E. and Mrs. Cornelle, Dennis and Mrs. Ellwood, Mrs. Dr. Husser, Miss Flossie Palmer and Lloyd Simpson, Wardsville.

The happy couple left to spend a honeymoon in London and Toronto and other points east, and will be at their home in Ilderton about June 26th. Mrs. Scarborough taught school for a number of years in Ilderton and held recently the principalship of the public school in Wardsville, which position she resigned at Easter. She was an active worker in the Methodist Church as Sunday School teacher, worker in the Young Ladies' Mission, president of the Epworth League, and organist of the church.

Before Cortez Reached Mexico

When Cortez landed in Mexico with his band of Spanish warriors he found that not only was chocolate used as a staple food, but that cocoa beans were the recognized form of currency in the country.

These native Mexicans were quite familiar with the nutritious value of chocolate. Yet it must have been a crude affair compared with the coating used to-day by Moir's on their chocolates.

The Cocoa beans used by Moir's are imported from the West Indies, Ceylon, Java and South America; blended by their own secret process and ground for many hours between steel rollers. They are then sweetened with pure granulated sugar and flavored with the finest quality vanilla beans. This smooth, creamy mixture forms the coating for the luscious cream, nut, fruit and nougatine centres, which you can buy in Moir's handsome boxes at your favorite store.

CHAPTER XI

THE NOISES OF SPACE

IT was early in the morning when Garriek with Dick turned into the driveway of Glenn's house at Nonowant.

"Any word of Vira and Ruth?" queried Glenn.

"Not yet. But there is something you can do. Have you had your breakfast? Then come along."

At DeFoe's boathouse-laboratory Garriek posted Glenn on guard. "Now, look here, boy—if you love Vira and want her back, guard this place as you would your life. Garriek had assumed a rather stern tone; he knew he must impress Glenn.

"I'll be inside and out," he added seriously.

"I'd like to be with you hunting the girls," returned Glenn promptly.

"But if sticking here will help me, depend on me. I'll be a sticker, all right. Only for heaven's sake, get those girls."

Dick grasped his hand and Garriek slapped his back encouragingly. With one last look to see that nothing had been disturbed, Dick grabbed up a small oak case and some other portable paraphernalia and lugged it to the car.

"Never can tell," he said to Garriek. "I hate to be out of radio touch. And why the club can't appropriate money for an outfit, I can't see."

Garriek made the club his headquarters and he would like to start the day there.

"Just thy words upon the ether and they will return unto thee after many days," laughed Garriek as he looked over his mail. "I suppose now for a week I'm going to be bombarded with mail from radio fans. It's always that way. Where do they find the time to write all the letters? Say—here's one, though. Read that. A postcard—postmarked 'North Port.'"

Dick, who was familiar with the ways of the radio listeners, read the card.

"Your message was good and clear—but why did you suddenly stop when you began to tell us your suspicions?"

"P. S.—I don't approve of phonograph as a means of radio broadcasting, anyhow. I can buy records."

"Someone on a cruiser or motor boat with a wireless," commented Garriek. "I like your radio fraternity, Dick. They certainly do take an interest in one another and go out of their way to do it."

Dick laughed. "You should see my mail! Why, if they don't like a thing they almost take it as a personal insult—for a free service!"

"There's a catch in it somewhere," considered Garriek. "Now what does he mean? I didn't stop. I went right on to the end. And the phonograph record—what's that?"

Dick shrugged. His mind was on something else. Garriek, in his room, having without avail tried to find out the identity of "K 902" from the limited lists at the club, called the Customs House in New York and requested the looking up of the number in the motor boat registration under the federal law. He waited.

"Just what I expected," admitted Dick. "Marooned—away from a radio for no one knows how long. That's why I grabbed this thing up, the first thing I laid my hands on. Got the receiving apparatus—all but the antenna. Oh, very well—we'll see."

Dick snapped in place small clips which connected the bed springs of Garriek's bed—and put the headpieces like a telephone receiver to his ears.

"Bed springs—the from fire escape—the gas and water pipes—the telephone wire—," he remarked as he tuned and adjusted, "almost anything may serve as an antenna in a pinch."

The room telephone rang for Garriek. It was the Customs House calling. "We find," registered the clerk, "that K 902 is registered by Patrick Devins, Bridgeport, Connecticut, a forty-foot cabin cruiser, named 'Lassie.' Want a description?"

Garriek had just finished copying it when a loud exclamation came from Dick. "By Jove—Guy! It's a message from Ruth! Repeated—twice—here, I scribbled it on this book."

"Please give this to the newspaper," it now develops that Jack Curtis, who attempted an elopement yesterday with me has a wife—Mrs. Rae Larue Curtis. That is all now. Tell my mother I am safe and will be back the first chance I can swim ashore. Ruth Walden."

The two men gazed at each other. "Looks like she's a prisoner," scowled Dick. "The first chance I can swim ashore!"

"Yes... but, man, she's safe—somewhere. Her mother!"

Somewhat Ruth had cleverly contrived to communicate with the outside world by radio. Together the two hurried down the long corridor and up a flight of stairs to Nita Walden's room. Dick's heart was pounding. He felt as sure as his knuckles on the door. He had heard from Ruth!

Mrs. Walden opened the door. She was afraid. What did the sudden rapping mean? Her worried and weary face searched Dick's eyes. "About Ruth? Tell me, Dick!"

Dick blurted out. "Oh, what awful people! But—what?"

"But—Ruth says, 'attempted elopement'—that means Ruth is all right. It didn't succeed. But—what can you do now? Oh, there's my telephone ringing again."

She turned from the room phone bewildered. "It was that Rae Larue girl—calling me. Oh, but there was hate and spite and jealousy in her voice! The little vixen!"

"But what did she say?" called Garriek.

"I can't begin to repeat the flood of words. Why, you'd think that I, Ruth's mother, had tried to frame up something against her! She said, 'I'd have you know that Jack Curtis is my husband! I married him in Chicago two years ago. I won't have that daughter of yours coming between us, and I've told him so. I'll squeal—I'll hand the whole bunch over, first!'"

"Bully!" interrupted Garriek to Nita's astonishment. "Got 'em fighting among themselves. He hath no fury—and all that. You couldn't want a better guard than Ruth than that woman scorned! And I'll bet you she'll do something—the first chance she gets. Here," without waiting for any comment from the surprised Nita, "let me have the wire. Central where did that last call to the Club come from? Can you trace it?"

He put his hand over the transmitter and asked, "In the city you can't trace a thing. But out in these little Long Island towns these hick telephone girls listen in on all the village gossip. Wait, you'll see."

Then, with his hand off, "Yes, thank you." He hung up. "From the Gravel Works at the mouth of the harbor!"

"I'll be damned—our harbor!" exclaimed Dick.

"You'll be something else," quickly from Garriek. "Your boathouse!"

"I hadn't thought of that. We'd better get down there."

"Well, I thought of it. That's why I left Glenn. You don't need to ask. I know. You're nervous and all upset. Yes, I think doing something, anything would do you good. Have McKay drive us all down. And hurry. We're not going to make a call!"

They were coasting down from the top of the hill a few hundred feet from the boathouse when McKay jammed on the brakes and scraped a couple of dollars' worth of rubber off the tires.

Just over the tops of the trees could be seen the roof of the boathouse. But beyond, in the harbor, one instant was a rowboat with a girl and fellow in it, the girl in a bathing suit. They seemed to be struggling. The next instant, like a three-foot flash of a motion picture, there was a huge column of water and puff of smoke, black wreckage of the boat. It seem that, by a split second before, the two had struggled overboard or leaped. Then came the deep report, echoing and reverberating among the Nonowant hills.

"Glenn!" exclaimed Garriek, as McKay released the brakes and rolled down like a roller coaster the rest of the way.

They were in time to see that the boathouse was unharmed. A little speed boat which they had not noticed now circled about. It picked up the girl and started off furiously toward the mouth of the harbor. A black object, Glenn, struggled feebly in the water. By this time Dick had his coat off. He ripped his shirt as he ran down the dock and plunged off, almost unnumbered by that time.

When Garriek pulled them both out and had Glenn sufficiently revived to find that there were no

Satin Gives Way To Crepe in New Bridal Gowns

SHE comes dressed in a wedding gown of crepe this season. The traditional satin, although used, has yielded its popularity to dull ivory crepe.

Silver brocade is worn, too, and so are tucked marquisette, net trimmed with embroidery and lace or georgette beaded with pearls and crystals. All-over lace is fashionable and needs no trimming.

Most gowns have soft clinging sleeves and either round or bateau neck lines, cut rather high. Where trains are seen they are always detachable and are usually very long.

White silk stockings are worn with broadened white satin slippers or plain or brocaded silver ones.

Headresses and veils are of lace or tulle with an infinite number of variations in trimming, although clusters of orange blossoms still are favored.

broken bones, he had begun to get the story.

Glenn, it seemed, had been on the road-side of the boathouse from which he had expected attack, if at all, when he had heard a noise under the workshop.

The workshop was on the second floor. Under it had been a boat-shed. It had been converted into a hanger by Dick, with a skid-way down into the water. In it he had a hydroaeroplane on which he was working, installing one of his new radio ideas.

"I saw Rae," he panted for breath. "She had come up to the boathouse, alone, in a rowboat with a little engine over the stern. She was sticking the nose of the boat under the boathouse. I saw something smoking in the bow. The engine was going slowly, keeping the nose of the boat up under the boathouse. I ran down and jumped into the boat. 'My God, Rae,' I shouted. 'Going to kill us both?'"

"With a boat hook in both hands she lunged at me but it hit my shoulder instead of my head. 'Damn you!' she cried. I have had to say so many nice things to you when I didn't feel like it—here's another wallop!"

"I swung the boat fork, gave the pier a kick and it turned. The engine was turning over slowly and carrying us away. I got the boat-hook away; then she grabbed me. 'You fool! Take your hands off—before I bite them off! ... Look! It's going to explode! It's going to explode! Then—we jumped. There was that geyser of water and stuff. Someone picked up Rae in a speed boat ... I felt as if that darn engine had hit me ... till Dick got me! But ... the boathouse ... is safe, fellows!"

Garriek smiled. "I could decorate you on the field of action, Glenn!"

He looked over at Dick. The blow had been intended for them; it had missed. Garriek and Glenn had risked his life. "We'll leave McKay here for a few minutes. I'll drive your car, Nita. I must get Glenn home. He's mustered out with all the honors!"

"Wait a minute." It was Dick. "We left that other set in your room at the Club. I've got a new one. I'm a buzz on this. I can't be out of touch with the air a minute and be happy."

As Garriek drove them, Dick told what had happened at the club. There was a huge column of water and puff of smoke, black wreckage of the boat. It seem that, by a split second before, the two had struggled overboard or leaped. Then came the deep report, echoing and reverberating among the Nonowant hills.

"We just came to see if you'd seen anything of Peccaboot, the Man-in-the-Moon. He's lost," said Nick.

"Hee, hee, hee!" giggled Cob, clasping his hands joyfully. "That's verily."

Garriek looked about keenly. The former boathouse had been transferred to a real hanger. Dick looked up from his work.

MUNNY MUSK'S MITE.

Dear Miss Grey,—I enjoy your page and get a lot of pleasure from it. I would like to get three of the cinnamon vine bulbs if you have any on hand; if you have not may be the one that sent them in could let me have some if you send me her address. Please find two shipmasters from the children for the C.

MUNNY MUSK.

There are a few cinnamon bulbs left. Munny, so am sending them to you. Thank you for the mite for our hospital fund. I am proud of your appreciation of our corner, and judging from your name, I think you might write an interesting letter. We would be pleased to hear from you soon again.

OFFERS HER HOME.

Dear Miss Grey and Boxites,—I see where Cinnamon Vine has sent in bulbs. I would like three of them if they are not all gone, and enclose 20 cents for the fund. I live in the country, and would be willing to adopt a little girl from three to five years of age if I knew of one such in need of a home. I could give her a good home and education. If any of the Boxites know of a little girl in need of a home, they can write to me through the Mail-Box. Miss Grey will forward any letters sent in. I see where some of the Boxites know of a little girl in need of a home, they can write to me through the Mail-Box. Miss Grey will forward any letters sent in. I see where some of the Boxites know of a little girl in need of a home, they can write to me through the Mail-Box. Miss Grey will forward any letters sent in.

It is good to offer your home to a poor little homeless child, and I hope you will find one that you will love. The bulbs have been mailed to you, Salvia, and many thanks for the seeds.

Salvia.

Everyone Is Welcome at Any of These Churches On the Sabbath Day

Robinson Memorial Church Is Made Beautiful For Annual Flower Sunday

Sunday was Flower Sunday in Robinson Memorial Church. The auditorium was beautified by the rich profusion of flowers with which the church had been decorated by the members of the C. G. I. T. group. The boys and girls of the Sunday school the service of song. The minister, Rev. W. L. Hiles took for his subject "The Gospel of the Flowers." Choosing his text from Matthew 21:28 and 29, Mr. Hiles spoke of the wonderful sermon preached from the hillside under the open sky.

"After 1,900 years, men are turning to this sermon and finding it as relevant as the day it was first preached," said the minister. "That when the poor carpenter of Nazareth spoke, he spoke to people of every age and every clime, is one of the assurances that Jesus was not only the carpenter of Nazareth, but also the Son of God, the eternal word, made flesh and dwelling among men."

"In that great multitude listening to his words were all sorts and conditions of men. Doubtless this day, as on another day later in his ministry, when he saw the multitude, he was moved with compassion. He knew what was wrong and why people found neither peace nor joy in their religion. It was a formal thing. Even their religious exercises were more concerned with the husk than with the kernel. They thought, as many think today, that true religion consists in saying so many prayers, reading so many Bible portions, attending so many services, abstaining from certain ways of living."

"Jesus knew that men might do all this and yet miss the vital thing. To know the Father is the essential thing. And so he spoke to them of the inwardness of true religion. And he spoke to those who were burdened with the cares of life, and told them that God was their father, who, by day and by night, was thinking of them and planning for their good."

EMPRESS AVENUE HAS FLOWER DAY

Flower Sunday, which was observed by special services at Empress Avenue Methodist Church yesterday, was also girls' Sunday. The loveliness of massed blooms which banked the pulpit and choir only served to accentuate the charm of the girls ranging from infancy to maidenhood, who undertook complete charge of the services. At the morning service the pulpit was filled by Miss Bessie McCamus of the South London Collegiate. In the evening, Miss Helen Hardy delivered an address.

At both services the organ was supplemented by an orchestra of young girls, whose splendid rendition of special choruses and familiar church songs was worthy of the highest praise.

The choir, too, was turned over to the C. G. I. T. girls.

Rev. Geo. Dewey, the pastor, and then at both services that selected girls would read the Scripture lessons. In the morning, Miss Mary Mitchell read Ruth's noble pledge of fidelity and Mary's, "My soul doth magnify the Lord." In the evening, Miss Maud Terryberry read the great psalm of praise attributed to women of the Bible. First Miriam's chant of triumph when the hosts of Egypt were overthrown in the Red Sea, next Deborah's song of triumph, and finally the spontaneous outpouring of gratitude from the heart of Hannah, the prophet Samuel's mother.

SAYS COLLECTIVE WORSHIP IS VITAL

"The plea of non-churchgoers, I can worship as well alone, does not satisfy the social instinct in the religious nature of man," Rev. Roy Mess declared, preaching in St. Paul's Cathedral on Sunday evening. Mr. Mess gave a sermon which was inspiring and full of practical advice.

"Congregational worship, I maintain, is a vital need in religious life, or social, and they are systematic or unsystematic. God has revealed himself to man in a systematic manner, step by step, as man's intelligence grew to accept his revelations. We know him first as the Creator, then as the Father, then as the brother or man through our Lord Jesus Christ, and finally as the Spirit, the Holy Ghost. In congregational worship

SEES OPPORTUNITY FOR BROTHERHOOD

Rev. J. N. Norton Emphasizes Scope For Service at King Street Church.

Preaching at both services conducted in King Street Presbyterian Church Sunday, Rev. J. N. Norton, secretary of the Western Ontario Brotherhood Federation, emphasized the opportunity presented for the Brotherhood movement to evangelize the world, citing the splendid records already achieved as a precedent.

At the evening service Sunday, which was in the form of a Brotherhood rally, Mr. Norton recounted the history of the world Brotherhood meeting and pointed out the wonderful work accomplished in all countries.

Taking for his text, "Because as He is, so are we in this world," the minister began: "The apostle indicates that the Christian is here presented with a great responsibility, namely, that of representing God to those who do not know him."

Lack of Appreciation.

"Much of the drift away from the church and the Christ of the church is due to a lack of appreciation by the Christian people of this responsibility and privilege. Wherever there has been an earnest endeavor to truly represent him and a consequent consecration of self to the service of those for whom Christ died there has always been a corresponding turning of the tide to God and his son Jesus Christ."

Using these remarks as a basis, Mr. Norton introduced the story of missionary achievements of the World Brotherhood. He informed the congregation that forty years ago a number of men in England, alarmed at the increasing numbers of those "who are passing up the church and who are openly antagonistic to Christ," endeavored to win these opposed to Christ over to his service.

These men inaugurated what was known then as "a Sunday afternoon meeting," from which grew the British Brotherhood Federation, later broadening out into the World Brotherhood Federation. During the first year of this work, 5,000 men were converted, and ninety per cent of them became members of the church in which they made such profession.

Spread to France.

"Soon after this, the British Brotherhood Federation was formed," said Mr. Norton, stating that the French Protestant Church existed, and that there was a Protestant Church in France, where one hundred Brotherhoods were formed during the first year.

He declared that in every instance in the formation of a French Brotherhood in a community where no Protestant Church existed, the church was the result, while in communities where there was a Protestant Church it became a stronger force.

From France the movement to Belgium, and "there accounts of the work read very much like another Acts of the Apostles, churches being organized everywhere as a result of Brotherly activity."

A New Testament Church was the result of the first meeting of the Brotherhood in Belgium," said Mr. Norton. During the war, the activities of the Brotherhood centered largely on philanthropic work, such as relief in Belgium and Serbia, nearly one-half million orphan boys and girls being cared for as a result.

Open Book in Window.

In Czechoslovakia, Mr. Norton pointed out that great work has been done by the World Brotherhood movement. He mentioned those homes in that country which have the open book in their windows, indicating that in those homes there resided persons who have taken an oath that they would rather die than give up the hope that some day in their homes there would be an open Bible and free access to the Lord's Supper.

"These people are the descendants of the followers of John Huss, one of the church martyrs burned at the stake 500 years ago by the Roman Catholic authorities," declared the minister. "As the result of the first Brotherhood meeting in Prague, one thousand men, in addition to the women and children, professed faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and signed documents for ever renouncing their allegiance to Rome."

"In one of the churches where before the armistice the people had met in a peasant's hut in fear of the authorities, 6,000 members were added last year. So great is the hunger of the people to hear the word of God preached, in many cases services begin at 10 o'clock Sunday morning and continue until 4 in the afternoon, and sometimes until Monday morning, the churches being packed for each hourly service."

Open College.

"At the highest of one thousand priests, a college was opened for the purpose of teaching the Bible to them and their people. At the last World Brotherhood convention government statistics were quoted showing that 1,500,000 Roman Catholics have left the Church of Rome."

"The British and Foreign Bible Society is authority for the statement that they are unable to meet the demand for Bibles in that country."

Mr. Norton stated that in Cairo, Egypt, the Brotherhood has formed an institute for Mohammedan boys, accommodating 500, who are fed, clothed and educated. The institution at Alexandria accommodates 700 boys, many of whom have renounced Mohammedanism and are now Christians acting as missionaries to their own people.

Concluding the minister stated that the World Brotherhood Federation embraces twenty-seven countries, and great progress is noted. During the past eight months, seventeen new Brotherhoods have been formed in Western Ontario, and many others are expected to organize this fall. Committees are now engaged in completing plans.

MARK FEAST OF CORPUS CHRISTI IN CITY CHURCHES

Special observances in all Roman Catholic churches Sunday marked the observance of the Feast of Corpus Christi, one of the major feast days of the ecclesiastical calendar of the church. This particular feast is set aside to commemorate the institution of the sacrament of the Holy Eucharist. The institution, as recorded, took place on Holy Thursday night at the last supper, but on account of the fact that the anniversary of the feast would fall within Holy Week, or Easter week, the church has distinguished another day for the festival.

In each church, first holy communion classes received holy communion for the first time at one of the earlier masses. At the high or 10:30 mass, following the mass, processions carrying the Blessed Eucharist, and followed by the first communion classes, were held in the churches and church grounds.

At St. Peter's Cathedral, the communion class of 23 boys and 23 girls received holy communion at the 8:30 mass. Monsignor E. J. McKeon delivered a short instruction at this service.

He dwelt on the obligations of parents towards their children, particularly with regard to inculcating obedience to parental control.

There was no malice in the heart of a child, he said, but if they were to obey when they grew up, they should be taught to do so in infancy. He pointed out that Christ had said: "If anyone should offend one of these little ones, it were better for him that a millstone be placed around his neck and he be cast into the sea; it were better for him if he had not been born."

Monsignor McKeon said that teachers and others in charge of children, when parents did not teach them to obey, found it very difficult to train them as they should be.

After high mass, a procession leading through the grounds of the church to an altar that had been erected outside, took place. Here benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given.

Similar processions were held in other Catholic churches of London, but it was only at the cathedral that an open-air service was held. At St. Mary's a class of 50 children received Holy Communion. Father Chisholm delivering the sermon at the 10:30 mass.

Claims Ireland Will Be Greatest Influence in World For Human Uplift

Declaring that the Irish people clung tenaciously and deeply to ideals based on things that North Americans had passed over lightly, and to traditions, traditions, sentiments, fairy tales and folk-lore that other races and nations had forgotten, Francis L. Watts, speaking at the Social Psychology Center, 21 Dundas street, Sunday afternoon, expressed the belief that Ireland, when she finally emerges from her present time of trial and testing, will prove to be the greatest influence in world politics for human betterment and international brotherhood.

The new Irish nation, said Mr. Watts, speaking on the subject of "The Psychology of the Irish Question," was becoming dissatisfied both with the Roman Catholic and Protestant faiths, and demonstrating an inclination to return to the mysticism of earlier epochs in the Celtic race, as exemplified in recent works of art and other Irish poems.

Varying views on the Irish question were presented in the discussion which followed by Fred W. Daly, P. Carter, H. Jaeger, Fred Haselgrove, Bert Miller and others present.

Mr. Watts said that the Irish mind was inclined to romantic speculation of the freest kind. Now a new era in dreaming and thought-fashioning had become evident in Ireland, wrapped up entirely in the thrill and urge of producing a national civilization. Even the Roman Catholic Church had lost its hold on the Irish people, said Mr. Watts, who strongly denied any suggestion that the trouble in Ireland was a religious strife.

It was purely a psychological change. The Irish mind had changed over from the inductive and passive to the constructive and aggressive phases of thought.

Just as the Irish mind was turning to national aspirations, so was it religiously becoming dissatisfied with the Roman Catholic and Protestant faiths, and demonstrating an inclination to return to the mysticism of earlier epochs in the Celtic race, as exemplified in recent works of art and other Irish poems.

SOLDIERS ATTEND CHURCH PARADE

Brig.-Gen. King Presents Medals to Troops After Service.

Sunday morning a divine service parade was held at Carling Heights for the troops stationed in the city for the annual nine days camp of the forces in Military District No. 1. A large number of people were on the grounds to witness the service, which was conducted by Senior Chaplain Major Robinson and assisted by Col. William Beattie, C.M.G., and the chaplain of the units.

The parade was formed up under the supervision of Major Gordon Ingram of the brigade staff.

A separate parade was conducted for the Roman Catholic soldiers at St. Michael's Church, under the command of Major Ashwell of the Mid-dlesex Light Infantry.

Col. Beattie spoke briefly to the men, and taking for his text, "And they prophesied in the camp," spoke of the opportunity that is given to all Christian men to show their respect for their colors in camp life.

Cited War Instances.

The chaplain of a regiment, he said, could not look after the needs of the individual soldier and so it was up to the men themselves to see that the spiritual side of their training was not neglected. He cited the instances during the war when he had encountered privates in the trenches and in the Y. M. C. A. huts leading classes in Bible study.

Dr. Beattie referred to an incident in the Bible when the people of Israel were marching to the land of promise and Moses called 70 leaders to his hut. All came but two, Eldad and Medad, who failed to receive the order, but who were found prophesying to the men in camp.

He urged the men to follow this example and to do their work without being called upon.

After the services Camp Commandant Brig.-Gen. W. B. M. King, C.M.G., D.C.O., presented decorations and medals to eight soldiers in camp.

Hon. Major S. F. Robinson received the British War medal and the Victoria Medal for his son, Capt. F. W. Robinson, who fell at the battle of Ginchy, June 15, 1915. Major Robinson also received the C. A. F. Officers Decoration, which is emblematic of 20 years service in the Canadian Militia.

Quartermaster-Sergeant H. A. Carter was the recipient of the Long Service and Good Conduct Medals for eighteen years service in the permanent forces.

Awarded O. B. E.

Other medals and decorations presented by Gen. King are: The Order of the British Empire to Hon. Capt. Harry A. Marshall of the 15th Field Ambulance, C. A. M. C.; the 1914-15 Star, the British War Medal, and the Victoria Medal to Col. William Beattie, D.D., C.M.G.; the British War Medal and the Victoria Medal to Sgt. S. G. Spence of the Engineers; the British War Medal to Sgt. W. F. Rowbotham of the R. C. R.; the British War Medal and the Victoria Medal to Sgt. A. S. Ward of the R. C. R. and Pte. J. C. Frith, also of the R. C. R.

The parade next concluded the service. Much favorable comment was heard on the splendid showing made by the lads as they marched past Gen. King, who took the salute.

A Gen. McNaughton, chief of the general staff, will inspect all the units under canvas on Tuesday morning.

GOD SEEKS GIFT OF MAN'S HEART

Rev. James McKay Delivers Inspiring Sermon at St. James Church.

"When we remember that every good and every perfect gift cometh from God, how glad we should be of the opportunity to give to him when he asks a gift of us," declared the Rev. James McKay at St. James' Presbyterian Church Sunday. "Just think of God's gift to us—Canada, fair, free, rich, roomy, a liberty of speech, religion! What a land! Other gifts are health, strength, hope, salvation, hope in this life, peace, and in the hereafter eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. This beautiful benefactor seeks a gift from us, and notice what it is. It is certainly not the branch of that vine."

Has Right to Service.

Is it work or service? It is not work or service, although we hear that emphasized so much today. The call of last year was service, and God has a right to our services, and no man or woman who loves God and appreciates what he has done will refuse to render service. We must work as Jesus did while it is day, but that is not what he first seeks as a gift from us. What can man do that God cannot?

The heart is the greatest thing a man has to dispose of, his heart is given when its affection is given. God will have nothing if he does not get the best we have. So long as we withhold our heart from God he gets nothing else, but grudgingly. Where our heart is there all else is in reality. The money we give, the time we give, is in a large measure forced from us unless the heart gives. The gift without the heart is barren. The heart is the only thing which man in reality has to give. All are but trustless lent. We are trustees of God's love. God says of money, cattle and lands. The cattle upon a thousand hills are mine. The silver and the gold are mine. The heart is also written that our times or days are in His hands, and again that all our strength cometh from the Lord. Our health, strength and wealth then, whether that be great or small, God claims as His own, and when He needs any of it that we possess, He does not say "Give me," but "Thou shalt give unto Me." "Bring thy tithe." "Thou shalt serve the Lord thy God." Son, go work, and if we do not render these unto Him, then, of course, God can take them from us.

With the heart it is different. That He gives us to do with as we may. And He who has given us everything to enjoy asks us, saying, "Son, give Me thine heart." The great giver is now the beggar.

Necessary to Love.

Again, God asks us for our heart, because He knows that we shall have to give it to someone in any case. Man is forced to dispense of it, not by outward coercion, but by inward pressure. It is as necessary for the soul to love as it is for the lungs to breathe. Sometimes so ravenous does a man's animal appetite become that he will devour with a kind of relish the most loathsome things, etc., and so voracious is the hunger of the heart for some object to love that it will settle down upon the lowest and most contemptible object rather than not love at all, etc., the miser and his gold, the childless woman and her dog. The heart must be given to something. When God asks us to give it to Him to give it to the best. Give me. He would not force us. Is my God so desirous of my heart? It is not worthy that He should enter it. Yet He asks it. Would I had a little gift. Prepare thyself, oh my heart. Open up that the King of Glory may enter in. Who is not sorry that he has withheld his heart from God so long? Is He not worthy of it, who redeemed it, etc? and will purify it instead

Bible Never Goes Back To Jungle For Genealogy of Man, Says Dr. Williams

Taking his text from Psalms cxix, verse 156, Rev. George Williams, D.D., of Toronto, preached an instructive sermon, entitled "A Pathetic Plight," during the evening service at the First Methodist Church.

The preacher declared that he thought that one of the most pathetic and childish objections to the Scriptures was on the grounds that man was described in such a manner as suggested a likeness with the beasts of the field or a vine. It was hard to understand this objection, as the smiles were such that man was alluded to as the most innocent and the most gentle of all domestic animals, a sheep, rather than as a wolf, fox or other ferocious beasts, although there are people who are willing to believe that man is such.

Despite the use of these smiles the Bible never goes back to the jungle for the genealogy of man, as in its very first chapter it describes man as being made "in the image of God." There is no other work which describes man as being on so lofty a plane as the Bible does. The Scriptures do not relegate man to any lower or baser condition of life. It suggests God as the vine, and man as the branch of that vine.

Dr. Williams believed that human life had no value except it was lived in the light, spirit and principle of the Bible. Some of the truths in the Bible can be compared to the fort of the Belgians and French who were exposed to the attacks of the German hordes, in that they stood and challenged the world, with the exception, in that the forts were demolished, but the truths in the Bible have withstood all attacks.

Some people take objection to the description of the fall of man. The fall of man is a primary and fundamental truth of the Bible. If there was no fall, then the reincarnation could be dispensed with, and they would be no need for the atonement.

Why challenge the Bible? questioned the pastor. Would one challenge experience? No person could doubt the possibility of the fall of man when the ancient nations, such as Rome, Greece, and others, are taken into consideration. They fell. The Anglo-Saxon race is the only race that has really risen, while all the others have gone, such as the Incas of early history. No person can possibly doubt the fall of man if the facts of today are considered.

The person who goes astray from Christ into consideration. They are sheep which strays never forgets the fold of his shepherd, so, therefore, the prodigal can never forget his God.

MAKES PLEA FOR BUILDING FUND

Strong appeals were made by laymen at both services in Askani Street Methodist Church yesterday on behalf of the building campaign which is being carried through this week in order to provide such an addition to the church as will include a junior Sunday school, gymnasium and provision generally for the work among the young people.

Speaking at the morning service Mr. J. F. Maine referred to this as a very positive and practical form of Christianity, to provide such facilities both for the instruction and physical betterment of the young people who came under the influence of the church.

He felt sure that the people of Askani Street would respond heartily and loyally to the opportunity given them of making their work in South London tremendously more effective than ever before. The church today was known far and wide for its young people, but this must ever grow there must be constant new accessions, and the church must be ready to meet every situation that arose.

The trustees of the church have arranged it that the contribution may be paid monthly, quarterly, half-yearly, extending over a period of about eighteen months. It is being arranged to call on every home on Tuesday evening of this week.

PREDICT TUESDAY STRAWBERRY DAY

Market Officials Expect Thousands of Boxes Will Be Offered.

The demand was only fair for the ten loads of hay that were offered for sale on the local market Monday morning. They brought $15 to $18.50 a ton.

Wheat and straw were steady at $1.35 to $1.40 a bushel for the former, and $10 to $11 a ton for the latter.

The price of hogs was up a little, but not many were offered for sale. Live hogs sold for $13.50 and dressed ones at $18 to $18.50.

Little or no change was noticed in the prices of vegetables the demand being fairly big.

An exceptionally large market is expected on Tuesday and many predict that Tuesday will be strawberry day in London. Thousands of boxes of berries will be offered for sale Tuesday morning but it is not known as yet whether the prices will remain steady.

London, June 18.—Not a little mystery cloaks the burial near Dungannon, a week ago Thursday, of a supposed "corpse" landed from the steamer "Grayhound" arriving that day from Detroit, Michigan, to convey a party of excursionists to Detroit and return.

With suspicions subsequently aroused, License Inspector Pollock and High Constable Whitesides, it is reported, conducted an impromptu excursion of their own, out to the cemetery, where, with a minister and all the customary funeral rites the burial had been held.

That their curiosity was duly rewarded is the report here today. Unearthing the "corpse" the officers, it is related, pried open the lid and encountered a substantial consignment of choice liquors, shipped, it is now supposed, from Windsor.

Just whom to suspect as the consignee of the shipment is causing the officers not a little meditation at this moment, however, and the undertaker, minister and others who participated in the burial proceedings, are evincing complete surprise over the discovery.

W. Bartlett Presented With Gold-Headed Cane at Annual Picnic.

Once a year even the hardworking officials of the customs and excise find the best way to take an afternoon off and Saturday afternoon last they made the occasion of their annual picnic.

The grounds committee, under the direction of Walter Bartlett, prepared the grounds at the park for the gathering and their taste and efforts were heartily commended by the picnicers. The arrangement of the flags, the latter found particularly prettily decorated.

Drawn by the reports of the success of the customs and excise picnic in the past, this year the wives of the officials were very anxious to attend.

A large banqueting table was set at the grounds, and was presided over by R. C. McCallum. After the toast to the King, the master of the ceremony, in the past, year the wives of the officials were very anxious to attend.

Among the guests of the officials at the picnic were C. H. Elliott, former collector and Inspector McGuire and Wilson, and former employees of the customs, O. Sharp and J. C. Brady, Neal Gray, collector at Parkhill; Mr. Jones, collector at Glencoe, and William Jackson, collector at Port Stanley, were also present.

FIVE PERISH IN FARM HOUSE FIRE

HALIFAX, N. S., June 18.—George Pace, 38, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Henry Fye, 77, and three of his seven children, Frederick, aged 11, Percy, 6, and Arthur, 3, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the home at West Eum Secum, 25 miles east of Halifax, early this morning. The mother and the remaining four children, Nelson, 14, Alexander, 12, Foster, 8, and an 18 months' old baby were rescued by the father, who is known that an effort to rescue the rest of the household.

The Pace homestead, a 2-story wooden structure, occupied a secluded site, and the mother was in a state of collapse today and could give no connected account of the holocaust, but it is known that the father and mother, occupying the lower floor, along with the four rescued children, were awakened at 4 o'clock this morning by the roaring of flames, believed to have spread from a fire in the kitchen stove.

JUDGE CHAUVIN DIES SUDDENLY

MONTREAL, June 18.—Judge Hector Chauvin, for the last ten years one of the most distinguished members of the superior court bench of the district of Montreal, dropped dead at his residence yesterday from heart failure.

Although he had been troubled with his heart for many years it was thought that he had fully recovered, and until yesterday he had continued his duties at the courthouse. z

MANY PENSIONS CHANGES URGED BY COMMITTEE

Sheltered Employment For "Problem Cases" and Appeal Board Recommended.

MAY EXTEND INSURANCE

Further Reparations Favored For Soldiers Paid in British Money.

OTTAWA, June 17.—(By Canadian Press).—Measures for the further re-establishment of returned men are outlined in the report of the parliamentary committee on pensions, insurance and re-establishment, tabled in the Commons this afternoon by H. M. Marter, chairman of the committee.

The principal changes recommended in the report tabled today are the establishment of board of appeal in respect of pensioners, and patients claiming treatment from the department of soldiers' civil re-establishment, the approval of sheltered employment for so-called problem cases, further reparation for former members of the forces who took their discharges in England, pension to widows who were married within one year of the discharge of their husbands, relief for soldier settlers through consolidation and amortization of interest.

The following are in brief the recommendations of the committee: 1.—That the department should prepare a set of regulations setting forth the rights of all returned soldiers in respect of pension and treatment and should arrange for the publication and distribution of this information.

Constitute Medical Board.

2. That a further medical advisory board be constituted, consisting of three independent medical men with office in Ottawa, entirely independent as to decision of the department of soldiers' civil re-establishment or the board of pension commissioners, or a physician or physicians not more than two, on the staff of a recognized hospital of standing in any city or town approved by the minister of soldiers' civil re-establishment similarly independent, for the purpose of hearing limited appeals. (a) Where the D. S. C. R. in a first or subsequent instance gives a decision that a soldier is not entitled to treatment owing to a disability being not attributable to war service, and that the applicant has produced a certificate from a medical practitioner of standing showing that such decision is at fault, submitting therewith reasonable evidence substantiating the facts set out in such certificate.

(b) Where the physicians of the board of pension commissioners give a decision as to attributability of estimation of disability contrary to that of the district medical examiner; or (c) Where a disability pension has been suspended, reduced or cancelled by the board of pension commissioners without or contrary to the opinion of the district medical examiner, and, or a traveling medical board of a similarly constituted medical board.

3. That the department of soldiers' civil re-establishment should endeavor to reduce the number of hospitals operated under its direct control by placing patients in institutions privately operated or operated under provincial authority.

Hasten Provision.

4. That adequate provision should be made without delay for the purpose of continuing and extending sheltered employment through the establishment of workshops and otherwise, either under direct governmental control in co-operation with a non-governmental agency, for certain classes of ex-soldiers who are enumerated, upon the basis that pay and allowance should not be granted, but that returns should be based upon the man's own efforts.

5. That free transportation should be granted to any blind men requiring to travel with an escort, for travel at frequent intervals, at the discretion of the department of soldiers' civil re-establishment.

6. That an annual grant be made to the last post fund for the purpose of assisting towards the provision of burial expenses of former members of the forces who die in destitute circumstances and for whom no other provision is made.

7. That the department of militia and defence be requested to carry out an investigation into the claim that members of the forces suffered serious financial loss through their being paid in sterling while overseas and to report to subsequent parliamentary committee.

Use Canteen Funds.

8. That a board of administration be created for dealing with the canteen funds at present in the hands of the government. It was considered that those funds might be used for the purpose of providing workshops where sheltered employment can be provided and for the provision of further educational facilities for children of ex-members of the forces.

9. That the reparation of ex-members of the forces and their dependents, where the former took their discharges in England, be revised in respect of the most deserving cases, the expenditure for the same to be $150,000, also that a further sum of $10,000 be appropriated for the relief of distressed Canadians in the United Kingdom.

10. That after the 30th June, the cashing of sterling checks including the pensions of imperial pensioners at par of exchange be discontinued, but that the provision allowing former members of the C. E. F. to receive par for moneys presented to the department of militia and defence representing pay, allowances, pension and gratuities be continued.

11. That where ex-soldiers reach a stage in life considered to be old age and are not in receipt of such reasonable pension under the regulations at that time existing, and are not in receipt of care or treatment in homes which may be provided for the purpose, consideration should be given the establishment of pensions or other help as may be considered reasonably necessary.

12. That consideration be given to

Overland Accountant

H. G. BOSS.

IN surrounding himself with a sales force of well-known residents of London, J. W. McLaughlin of the Overland and Wills-Knight agency for this city and district, has been no less pains-taking in the selection of his office staff. In H. G. Boss he has been fortunate in having at the head of this department a man of high character and ability. Mr. Boss has acted as accountant for the past two years. Previous to this time he was with the Standard Paving Company, and also served for three and a half years in the Canadian army during the war.

Mr. Boss is a native Londoner, is married, and his home is at 676 William street. He is popular among a wide circle of friends, who are interested in his progress in the motor industry.

the providing of old soldiers' home.

13. That in regard to wholly incurable or chronically recurrent cases needing institutional care the department of soldiers' civil re-establishment be authorized to grant medical treatment subject to a continuation of pension, and to a fair deduction of maintenance cost in lieu of the issue of pay and allowances.

14. That steps be taken by the government for the starting of work for returned soldiers out of employment, where this is possible, instead of the issue of relief as heretofore.

15. That the department of soldiers' civil re-establishment continue its investigations as regard the various orthopedic appliances issued to ex-soldiers, and that any improvements discovered be embodied in the appliances furnished by the department.

16. That the time during which former members of the imperial forces previously domiciled in Canada may make application for augmentation of war service gratuity be extended to 31st March, 1923.

17. That no pension for a disability should be reduced or cancelled on account of reduction or disappearance of a disability until a proper medical examination is made by a traveling board, or for other causes such as failure to appear for re-examination, and that wherever possible, action by the department of soldiers' civil re-establishment and the board of pension commissioners should only be taken after a personal examination of the ex-soldier.

Will Amend Section.

18. That the section of the pension act which provides that no pension should be paid to a widow of the member of the forces unless she was married to him before the appearance of the injury or disease which rendered him incapable of service, should be amended to include widows who were married within one year from the date of the discharge of the member of the forces.

19. That on the death of a pensioner whose dependents are not pensionable there shall be paid in respect of his children a bonus equal to one year's pension of such children.

20. That in the case of wife desertion the board of pension commissioners should continue pension to the deserted wife and children so long as it is known that the man is alive in cases where the pension is fixed.

21. That an allowance equivalent to that awarded a married pensioner on account of his wife be granted in certain cases on the decease of the wife.

22. That pensions awarded to men suffering from tuberculosis should not be reduced at one time to an extent of more than 20 per cent.

23. That when a pension has been awarded through an error of the board of pension commissioners and through no misrepresentation or concealment on the part of the pensioner three months notice be given before the pension is discontinued.

24. That in the case of a mother of a deceased soldier who has been deserted by her husband a pension should be granted to her provided she is separated from her husband under conditions which would entitle her in a court of law to have him declared legally dead.

25. That there shall be no reduction in the amount of bonus added to the basic rate of pension before September 1, 1924.

Extend Insurance Act.

26. That the returned soldiers' insurance act be extended for one year, namely, until the 1st of September, 1923.

27. That section 13 of the act granting the minister the right to refuse to enter into any contract in any case where there are, in his opinion, sufficient grounds for his refusal, and the regulations made thereunder would seem to be fair and should not be amended.

28. That the section of the act which provides for the return of premiums where pension is granted to the beneficiary be amended so as to provide that in all cases the $500 of the insurance shall be payable.

The committee received representations suggesting that a re-establishment bonus based on place and length of service be issued to all returned soldiers. It was felt that this

Inebriated Youth With Road Oil On Boots Resents Father's Reprimand

Special to London Advertiser.

BRANTFORD, June 18.—Brantford's road oil caused another domestic combat last evening, when an Alfred street youth, said by the police to have been under the influence of liquor, walked into his home with oil on his boots.

He was reprimanded by his father and the boy promptly staged a scene, to which the police furnished a finale. The drunken youth was taken to the police station, but as no court was held today he will come up before Magistrate Blake Monday.

Proposal could not be entertained.

The committee expressed the opinion that the law now in existence regarding pensions to widowed mothers is equitable and should not be altered.

Dealing with soldier settlers, the committee considered that the difficulties surrounding any revolution would be almost insurmountable, but that some measure of relief in repayments should be granted. It was therefore recommended that the stock and equipment loans be placed on the same basis as the loans made for the purchase of the land itself.

In other words, be repayable by 25 consecutive annual installments with certain interest exemptions.

FIRMS INCORPORATED.

OTTAWA, June 17.—(By Canadian Press).—Companies incorporated this week include the following: Reliance Finance Corporation, Limited, Brantford, Ont., $500,000. Diamond Specialty, Limited, Windsor, Ont., $50,000. Culling Cutlery Corporation, Limited, Welland, Ont., $1,000,000.

The oiling activities of the board of works are practically completed, according to Ald. Ballantyne, chairman of the board, and the work of laying the pavement on the asphalt roads will be commenced on Monday or in the early part of next week.

Ald. Ballantyne stated yesterday that the board would, in all probability, recommend to the city council at the meeting on Monday, that a permanent road be built the Avenue road to the city limits, and in this manner connect up the last link with the pavement in Brantford township.

Albert Conley, one of the proprietors of the Talbot Hotel, testifies as to the elusive character of the accused, and says that although he had been seen several times in the city, he seemed to disappear as soon as an attempt was made to stop him.

The information was laid by Frank W. Simpson, manager of the east field, who had apparently suspected that he was about to be arrested, managed to escape by dropping from a window at the back of the house, and was seen by officers running towards the north of the city clad only in trousers and shoes. He was apparently something of an athlete, because when the police got automobiles and brought him to a halt at the point of a gun three miles north of the city, one of the officers said that he was far from winded, and could, he thought, have run several miles more.

and branch of the Royal Bank. Oldfield will appear Monday morning before the magistrate. It is understood that relatives are endeavoring to make restitution by paying alleged fraudulent checks.

SARNIA COUPLE UNDER ARREST

SARNIA, June 18.—Andrew Clenko and his wife, residing in the foreign quarter of Sarnia, were arrested tonight, following a family quarrel, during which Mrs. Clenko received severe head cuts from broken glassware and crockery, said to have been hurled at her by Clenko after they returned from a house-warming of a neighbor's new house.

Clenko at the police station became so violent that he had to be locked in a padded cell. Mrs. Clenko, after receiving surgical attention, was released on bail.

Officers went to the house, but Old-
