PATRICK McBRIARTY, AGED 100 DIED AT POLL

The death of Patrick McBriarty, one of the oldest residents of St. John county, occurred suddenly yesterday. Mr. Mc-Briarty's age was around the century mark, friends estimating it at as high as 104 years. He was a native of Milford and had lived there all his life. One daughter, Mrs. Alfred Gallagher, of Milford, with whom he made his home, survives. He retained his faculties and fair health until the last. His death occurred at the polling place in Fairville, where he had insisted on being taken to cast his vote in the municipal elections. He collapsed at the doorway and died immediately.-Telegraph, Oct. 20.

His Majesty's appeal to Manhood of Empire

London, Oct. 22.—King George has issued the following appeal to his subjects:

SAINT ANDREWS, NEW BRUNSWICK, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1915

"To my people: At this grave moment, in the struggle between my people and a highly organized enemy, who has transgressed the laws of nations, and changed the ordinance that binds civilized Europe together, I appeal to you.

I rejoice in my Empire's efforts, and I feel pride in the voluntary response from my subjects, all over the world, who have sacrificed home and fortune, and life itself, in order that another may not inherit the free Empire which their ancestors and mine have built. I ask you to make good these sacrifices.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR

[October 19 to October 25] DURING the past week hostilitie have been prosecuted with great vigor on all fronts, and the result was certainly satisfactory to the Quadruple Entente. Russia and Italy both declared Entente. Russia and Italy both declared themselves in a state of war with Bulgaria, has lost her life, but gained immortal Great Britain and France having done so in the week preceding. News kept coming in all week of the heavy losses incurred by the British in the fighting of the preceding week. The total British casualties from October 1 to October 22 were 2,285 officers and 50,072 missioned officers and men. The exact total up to October 25 was not known, but in the last three days a large addition was | 1 more men for the colors. We print it made to the list. Of the political situation in the Balkan States as a whole it is not posssible to say anything definite. Bulgaria, it is true, is now a belligerent on the side of the Central Powers; but up to the close of th week no definite announcement had been made as to the future attitude of Greece and Roumania. It was said that the Quadruple Entente had jointly demanded a definite declaration on the part of Greece, and, moreover, that Britain had made the specific offer of the Island of Cyprus to Greece in consideration of her immediate participation in the war on the side of the Allies. Before this appears in print the decision of the Greek government may be announced.

In Great Britain no untoward even disturbed the political horizon, the resignation of Sir Edward Carson not being followed by that of any other member o the cabinet; but the illness of the prime minister, Mr. Asquith, may have been the cause of the postponement of other cab-

Wake Up! New Brunswick!

This World War Demands the Supreme Effort of a United Empire.

Shall Our Province Fall Behind?

It should not be supposed that contributions of a couple of thousand men, a few odd dollars, some barrels of potatoes and boxes of socks constitute our rightful sacrifice. So far and boxes of socks constitute our rightful actifice. So far not more than a handful of people in all this country have any actual realization of what the war means. These few have given their husbands or sons to the cause of the Empire. The remainder have done nothing in comparison with their abilities and their opportunities.

Our national life, our peace, our prosperity and our happiness are so dependent upon the well-being of the British Empire that only by playing our part in that Empire can we maintain our fortunate position.

Up to the present ninety-nine per cent. of us do not realize what sacrifice means, nor what is being endured by those nearer the firing line than we are. We must give, not only of our material wealth, but of our blood, and not niggardly, but with a generous hand.

None of us wish to part with our husbands and our child-ren, but it is better that they should serve the Empire and save our homes than that the enemy should triumph and all that we hold dear be taken from us.

"For Romans in Rome's quarrel

Spared neither land nor gold, Nor son nor wife, nor limb nor life, In the brave days of old."

The 88th Battalion requires a large number of men from New Brunswick. These men must be furnished at once, and must be recruited from New Brunswick homes. We cannot ask strangers to take our places. The duty before us is clear, however hard the part may seem. Some will lose their lives; others will be maimed; many will return. BERNADOTTE

Bernadotte: the First Phase, 1763-1799. By D. Plunket Barton. With Portraits and Illustrations. London: John Mur-

M R. BARTON'S excellent study of the first phase of Barnadotte's career has been thrown by most of the biographers on the formative, or earlier, period of Bernadotte's life. There are points in he said, "a young man of twenty-five or Bernadotte's life. has been written to throw more light than Bernadotte's conduct that have been seized upon by his admirers and his traducers indifferently to support their arguments. A final judgement has not been pronounced. But in estimating the motives of Powerdative has been been pronounced to the state of Powerdative has been been pronounced. tives of Bernadotte's behavior when, for break up his division, the latter may well example, he turned upon Napoleon (who, whether designedly or not, had helped the affection of Bernadotte for his him to the Swedish throne) and joined division and his strong sense of the miliwith the rest of Europe in overthrowing tary value of its coherence were thorthe great tyrant, it is obviously of great oughly likable emotions, and Bonaparte's value to know fully what Bernadotte's relations had been previously with Na. dotte is a very weak person. I cannot do poleon. It is not enough, in reading Bernadotte's character, merely to say poral who complains lustily when a man that, as all Europe was unquestionably is taken from his file. When you see right to get rid of the incubus, therefore him again tell him that my only answer Bernadotte must have been right to assist is that I never dined out of the wooden that when Bernadotte had become King pression meaning that Bonaparte had of Sweden his acts were properly guided by the interests of his country. For, as Napoleon wittily said in St. Helena when Bernadotte's conduct was discussed, "A man does not renounce his mother because he gets married." If Powerful to the property and extending that Honaparte had never been in the ranks. We must pass over Bernadotte's record as Ambassador to Austria and as Minister for War, and come to the coup of Brumaire when Bonaparte on his return from Egypt unset the Directory and extellighted cause he gets married." If Bernadotte had been a topical Jacobin, or a zealous the Consulate, Bernadotte was ready to exponent of the policy of the Directory, understanding just what he was inflicting only stipulation was that he should reunderstanding just what he was inflicting upon the world when he fought as a soldier of that "organized anarchy," we should have to conclude that his motive in rounding upon his patron at the end conclude that his motive in rounding upon his patron at the end conclude that his motive in rounding upon his patron at the end conclude that his motive in rounding upon his patron at the end conclude the stated by the conclude that he should reduce the support of the should reduce the support of the soldier of the should reduce the sho in rounding upon his patron at the end was probably no more admirable than his political motives had been before. On the other hand, if we are convinced on the evidence that Bernadotte was a man who had always distrusted extremists, who had watched the ambitious acts of Bonaparte with intense suspicion and not without open protest — a man, in short, who was just an honest soldier who did not apprehend the meaning of much for apprehend the meaning of much for leave of him in the forest of Senart, which he fought — then we shall be able whither he was accompanied by the future fairly to say that when Bernadotte took fairly to say that when Bernadotte took up arms against Napoleon he not only will examine the steps by which Bernaacted rightly in fact, but acted consistently and on the same honorable impulses which were clearly traceable in his early days. Mr. Barton's book does show some consisting to the property of the mistrusted master in his new guise.—The specially days are smaller to deliver such a judgement. Some of these are no doubt apocryphal, but probably it is true that the private soldier who used to gratify his passion for horsemanship b riding postilion gladly accepted the pour boires offered to him by the passengers in the coaches, and that as a "common soldier" he was turned away from the house of Désirée Diary, who afterwards became his wife and Queen of Sweden. The fact that Marceau and Kikher who were horseshed because he was the work because he was the work of from home. The fact that Marceau and Kléber, who were honorable men, bestowed their warm friendship on Bernadotte is in itself a certificate of character. The soldiers of the Directory were, in fact, as often happens, infinitely better men than the Government who employed them. In the long campaign against Germany, when Bernadotte belonged to the Army of the Sambre and the Meuse, and again when he fought under Bonaparte in Italy, there was nothing to his discredit as a soldier and a man. We may observe the indignation with which he defends himself against a charge that he had plundered and exacted a levy from a German city:
