The Only Food You Can Eat Three Times A Day For A Lifetime

Bread is the only food you can eat, day after day and year after year, and relish and digest. You can't eat one kind of meat or one kind of cake or one kind of any other staple or delicacy for any length of time.

Every food contains certain compounds which the digestive system adapts to its needs. The fact that the system will digest and assimilate bread, shows that bread is nature's food, the one perfectly balanced food.

Bread and milk is the diet of babyhood—bread is the first solid allowed the sick and convalescent—and bread, in its manifold varieties, is the "staff of life", that best and cheapest food for young and old. So, eat plenty of good homemade bread made of and the problem of economic living is solved. "Beaver" Flour is the famous blended flour that is equally good for Bread, Cake and Pastry. It contains the rich nutriment of the finest Manitoba Spring Wheat combined with the flavor and delicacy of Ontario Fall Wheat. It is a bread flour and a pastry flour—as good for one as for the other, and best for both—and makes the bread that you can eat and enjoy and live on, three times a day for the rest of your life. YOUR GROCER has it or will get it for you. Ask for "Beaver". DEALERS—Write for prices on Feed, Coarse Grains and Cereals.

CHAPTER XXII.

QUITE HARMLESS.

SORRY I can't discuss the matter of Prior's farm buildings just at present, Mr. Green; some other time, perhaps."

Quite so, just so; as you say, some other time," said Mr. Green, with the sweetest amiability. "Good-morning, ladies; good-morning, gentlemen. Beautiful morning, ain't it?"

And raising his hat, he picked up his traps and turned away; in doing so, however, he managed to get a keen, piercing glance at Lillian, as, with a faint smile on her lovely face, she stood watching him.

Laura laughed her little bright, quick laugh.

"Quite interesting, isn't he? I found him here, fishing away in the most peaceful manner; evidently enjoying himself so much that I didn't like to disturb him, and I should have left him alone, but I was afraid one of the men would see him and turn him away roughly, and so I asked him to go!"

"Had he begun to argue?" said Harold.

"We heard your voice, as we came through the woods."

"Yes! too absurd, isn't it?" exclaimed Laura, but with a swift glance at each face. How much had they heard?

"Quite," said Lillian.

"Oh, yes, he can argue," said Harold.

"Yes, those simple people always talk so freely," said Laura, as if she had had long experience in a lunatic asylum. "I think he is not quite right, but I'm sure he's quite harmless."

"Oh, quite!" said Harold, and Lillian echoed it with her soft, ringing voice.

Dawson Slade alone had not spoken.

Laura turned to him with an arch smile.

"You don't think him dangerous, do you, Mr. Slade?"

He smiled in the most charming manner, and the smile might have meant yes or no; but though he said nothing he kept a keen, though with quite hidden keenness, look-out along the bend of the path which the simple Mr. Green must pass, and was rewarded by catching a glimpse of that gentleman stepping along at a good pace, and with a face as shrewd and cunning as a monkey's and with as little simplicity or insanity as a human face could possibly bear.

Then he smiled again.

"It is a sweet comedy," he murmured. "I wonder what our friend Mr. Green is going to play; he would do well as 'Not such a fool as he looks.'"

With perfect serenity Lillian went on her way, with Laura, Judas-like, hanging on her arm, and murmuring affectionate nothings.

"Don't let us forget our errand, Lillian," said Harold, suddenly. "There's a picnic in the wind, Miss Laura."

"A picnic!" exclaimed Laura, delightedly. "Where?"

"To Scarfoot, to the Giant's Breastplate," said Lillian.

"How delightful, and when is it to be?"

"The day after to-morrow—weather permitting; always weather permitting," said Lillian.

"Ah," said Laura. "It is a dreadful climate, is it not, dear? You must feel it terribly. You who have been used to America."

Lillian looked up, and instantly Dawson Slade stepped forward.

"Don't fancy America is paradise, Miss Warner," he said, in his ready way. "It has a climate, and a trying one."

"For Heaven's sake don't get into comparison of climates, Miss Laura," said Gerald, coming up on Lady Warner's arm. "What this about a picnic?" and he slipped to Lillian's side and took her arm, as a matter of course.

"To the Giant's Breastplate," said Lillian.

"Oh, count me in!" said Gerald, at once. "Oh, yes, say yes, Lady Warner! It will be delightful. The day after to-morrow! Slade, what are you silent about?"

"I was wondering who would carry me down the cliff," was the languid reply.

CHAPTER XXIII.

FRESH POSIES.

TIME, that flew with fleet wings for Lillian Woodleigh at Woodleigh Hall, dragged with tender, weary feet for Ethel North in the little cottage at Higham Lane.

There were no picnics, no dinner parties, no tennis, evenings for her. Day after day wore away like its fellow, clothed in the dull russet of monotony.

After breakfast she went down to the church and filled its quietness with exquisite harmony, which she and the church mice alone heard. Then, for another walk, the simple, frugal dinner, and some music. It was the life of a saint, a devotee; and to compensate for its lack of variety and excitement, it possessed health-giving and beauty-bestowing powers.

Ethel North grew, like Ruth, more beautiful every day.

So her life had gone on until that afternoon, when, with her hat in her hand, and a song on her lips, she had run in and found the stalwart figure of Harold stretched out in the arm-chair.

Since then a change had come over the spirit of her dream.

The song died out of her. The old dame who watched her as if she were a child, just as she watched Harold when he was a boy; noticed the change in her. Noticed how often, and how long she would lean on the little gate and look down the road with an absent, speculating look in her soft, brown eyes.

The old dame chided her.

"My dear," she said, "you don't sing as you used; I miss it as the birds in winter miss their crumbs. What ails ye?"

"Nothing, nothing, dear dame!" she would reply, and would run to the piano and strike out, like a bird in summer, into music and song, and fill the little room with a gay barcarole, but it would die away presently, and she would glide into her chair and be lost in thought.

The dame, who had a dread of consumption, would have administered cod-liver oil, but Ethel, with her straight figure and full-developed chest, laughed at her.

"Cod-liver oil, nurse," she said laughing—she had taken to calling the dame nurse, since Harold's visit—"I am as strong as a lioness, I can sing for two hours right off. Cod liver oil! It would be a sheer waste."

"Then what is the matter with?" demanded Dame Hester. "You are quite changed."

"One can't be laughing always," said Ethel.

Eight days had passed since Harold had sat in the easy chintz-lined chair. Eight long days, and in the afternoon of the eighth Ethel came in at the gate and slowly walked along the hall, into which she used to run eight days ago.

She had been to church to practice and she had played and sung the music and the hymn which she had played and sung that afternoon when wicked boy, he had fallen asleep in the church.

A perfect picture she made, as she paused beside the autumn roses, her graceful figure standing out against the cottage, her sweet face turned to the blue sky. A very flower among flowers she looked, the fairest of them all. But there was no one to see, excepting the dame, who paused a moment at the cottage door.

"Come in, Miss Ethel, dear," she said, in her soft, ringing voice. "Tea's ready."

With a little start the girl turned away from the rose tree and was entering the cottage, but at that moment there came the sound of a horse's hoofs upon the gravel of the lane, and turning, she saw a stalwart figure riding a great, powerful horse coming towards the cottage.

Like a lawn turned to bay she stood, a tide of crimson flushing her face.

"Was he going to stop, or would he merely bow and ride on? She knew, in that moment of intense longing, what it was that filled her monotonous life with a sense of vague gladness—of sweet, melancholy pleasure—of infinite, dreamlike longings; she had been looking for the second visit of this young squire with the crisp, golden hair and frank, boyish smile.

Would he ride past? Suddenly, as she asked herself the question, Harold caught sight of her. A pleased, welcoming light shone in his blue eyes, and he bent great Noll forward with a spring, scattering the gravel in all directions.

"Good afternoon—good afternoon," he said, dropping from his horse, and standing bareheaded before her.

"What a beautiful afternoon!" She murmured something, and Harold, who was waiting to see her put out her hand, at last held out his. With a little twitch of the scarlet lips she put her hand in his brown paw, and felt a thrill run through her as his strong fingers closed over her soft ones, and held them prisoner.

"You see," he said, still holding her hand, "I have kept my word, and will very soon put yours to the test. Will you give me a cup of tea? Where is the dame?"

"She was here a moment ago. What a beautiful horse!" she exclaimed, leaning over the gate, and stroking the sleek, bright chestnut neck. How warm and smooth his neck! Isn't it a very strong one?"

"A very strong and very wicked one," said Harold, with a laugh. "No amount of work will wear him out, or cure his temper. Mind! take care, Miss Ethel; he is apt to snap. I am the only person for whom he entertains decent respect, leave alone affection; though I really think he is fond of me—aren't you, Noll, you rogue?"

Ethel looked up with a quick, soft glance.

"He does not seem so very vicious; I am not afraid. See!"

And she drew the great, bony nose toward her. Noll sniffed and worked its nostrils about with a quick, nervous little twitching, and glared out of his dark, cavernous eyes, and Harold kept his hand ready in case of emergency. But the great, ill-tempered brute remained perfectly still, and even allowed her to pull his silky ears.

"Oh, oh, it is quite wicked to take a poor brute's character away!" she said, stroking him, and looking up at Harold with an arch smile.

"I give you my word, Miss Ethel, you are the first woman who has ventured even near him, to my knowledge. He really is vicious—there!" he exclaimed, half-triumphantly, as Noll stretched out his hind leg at a passing dog. "Wasn't I right?"

"And yet he comes back to me," said Ethel, as Noll, having missed the dog, put his nose in her hand and sniffed in a friendly manner.

"It's a case of horse-taming," said Harold. "What is the secret influence which you exert over man and beast, Miss Ethel?" he added, with a smile.

"I," she said, drawing back, and giving Noll one last pat—"I have no influence. I am the most helpless and insignificant of creatures."

Shipment of Copper From Twillingate Mine

By latest advices from the north we are pleased to hear that the Great Northern Copper Co. has commenced to ship ore from the mine at Twillingate. The pier is completed sufficiently for loading and the conveyor is in full swing, and last week the schr. Mouna Loa, Capt. Wm. Davis, took in a full cargo of 160 tons of copper ore and sailed for Chrono, New Jersey, U.S.A. This week the steamer Molina is loading ore and will sail in a day or so—possibly for the same place. It is encouraging, both from an individual standpoint and general welfare to see the enterprising determination manifested by Manager Hodder and the G. N. Copper Co. in mining at Sleepy Cove, Twillingate, and all well wishers of men and laboring industries and capital investments can but wish all concerned abundant success. A Mr. H. Klock, W. F. Main, a chartered accountant of America, and a Mr. Bowers have just visited the workings at Sleepy Cove. Mr. Klock left Lewisporte by train on Wednesday morning for New York, and Mr. Main and Mr. Bowers will take passage by the copper steamer now loading for New York also. Besides the mining property of the G. N. C. Co. at Twillingate, we understand they visited other mining claims and are well pleased with the north and its mining prospects.

The Prodigality of Samuel.

"Millions for defence, not one cent for tribute," is the proud boast of our venerated Uncle Samuel. He pays no tax to support any effete monarchies, and the balance of trade in his favor last year, against the rest of the world, was $187,111,349. With all this to the good, the most fiercely American of all American papers estimates that the old gentleman will come out about $200,000,000 short on last year's account. American tourists are accused of spending from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 a year in "Yurrupe." American citizens of foreign birth are accused of sending $10,000,000 a year to their relatives abroad. Then there are, to use a purely American expression, "quite a few" American bonds held in Europe, upon which interest has to be paid. Our beloved uncle need not worry. Considering his age and his infirmities, he is getting along fairly well. It isn't everybody can afford to spend $150,000,000 a year on travel and to send $10,000,000 a year to relatives abroad; and it isn't everybody can raise abroad all the capital he wants for home development. —Montreal Star.

Mitchell and Matrons at Quebec.

Scotland Yard Officer at Quebec to Take Crippen and Miss Le Nere Back.

QUEBEC, Aug. 14.—The arrival at an early hour this morning of Sergeant Detective Mitchell of Scotland Yard, and two Jail Matrons, again set the newspaper men guessing as to what the last move in the now celebrated Crippen case would be, as it is well known that something will happen within a few days.

Mr. Mitchell and the Matrons were passengers on the steamer Lake Manitoba, which docked shortly after five o'clock this morning. They were accompanied by Inspector Dew, who had met the steamer at Father Point and the party drove up to the St. George's House, where they had breakfast.

Detective Mitchell, like Inspector Dew had nothing to say to the newspaper men, and even could not say when and by what steamer the prisoners would be conveyed back to England.

Living Salaries Required to Keep Teachers.

Editor Evening Telegram:

Sir,—In his annual School Report for the past year, Mr. Burke, the Superintendent of the Catholic schools, draws attention to the fact that male teachers are very scarce in the profession, and also that it is a difficult proposition to induce such valuable workers to remain within the teaching ranks. Undoubtedly there is ample foundation for such a complaint, as regularly we witness the withdrawing of our most capable men from the profession in order that they may enter other walks of life where merit, success and bread and butter are not denied them. Without any equivocation whatsoever, the fact looms up, horribly and shamefully that poverty is the principal motive for such resignations. Truly an asceticism which brands our "Newfoundland twentieth century system" of supposed progress and advance as the most pitiable spectacle of indifference and carelessness that hypocritical legislators and farcical systems can invent.

The education theorists who desire to encourage the poor teachers by constantly harping on the nobleness of the calling, etc., may to a certain extent be justified in such an argument, but had they all the vocabulary of Webster at their command they could not convince those suffering officials that the practice harmonizes with the theory. Sentiment is no doubt a well-meaning motive, but will it pay the practical boarding-master? Will it clothe the teacher as befitting his position? In short, will it suffice for the bare necessities which keeps the body and soul together? Evidently not. In 1908 many second grade Catholic male teachers received a yearly salary of $227.50. The generality of such do not teach in their home settlements, and consequently they must pay from $100 to $150 for board. A little figuring will reveal the pitiable sum that must of necessity suffice for the other essentials of life. Naturally, then, it is impossible to expect intelligent men—men who have spent years at various schools, to remain in such a starving bondage. It was thought that when the extra amount of $100,000 was voted last session that salary conditions would improve, but it all went for school buildings and many other affairs of minor importance, while the poorly paid teacher was left in the lurch. This is where the farcical system comes into play. Superintendents all get high salaries, the various contingencies and reports usurp quite an amount, school equipments are calculated for, but the educator in the person of the teacher is expected to work for a salary that at best can only leave him a prey to all lawyers and bill collecting societies.

Hence it stands to reason that the man who has ambition and knowledge will as soon as circumstances permit leave a profession that offers only a remuneration equal to about a third that the average fishing boy of sixteen earns in a summer. Mr. Burke's lamentation because of the St. John's student not becoming a teacher is both amusing and absurd in face of the above facts, since the lowliest educated amongst us can command at any trade or line of business more pocket-money in six months than the average outport teacher has for the necessities of existence, after deducting a year's board from his insignificant pittance.

With a few facts before them the public must see the justice of such withdrawals, and until such time arrives when sufficient inducements can be offered to teachers in the shape of living salaries, they and the authoritative educational boards must submit with good grace to the resignations of many of our best educators, even though such withdrawals may exercise a most detrimental effect on the rising generation.

Thanking you for space, I am, Yours truly, JUSTICE. St. John's, Aug. 18th, 1910.

Wedded Last Evening.

The marriage of Mr. W. C. O'Neill, proprietor of the West End Tobacco Store, to Miss Lilian Kavanagh, of Colonial Street, took place yesterday afternoon. Rt. Rev. Mons. Roche officiated. The bride, who was dressed in white silk and carried a bouquet of white carnations, was attended by her sister, Miss Bride Kavanagh. Mr. R. Burnham was groomsmen. After the ceremony a lunch was partaken of and then the newly wedded people joined the outgoing train for Avondale where they will spend a week. The bridegroom's present to the bride was a gold locket and to the bridesmaid a gold ring. The other gifts were costly and numerous, attesting the popularity of the couple. The Telegram extends hearty congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

"My Donald," the Grand Old Man of the Empire.

We are in receipt of an excellent little booklet called Canada's Coeur de Lion and British Hearts of Oak. It contains the birthday greetings to Lord Strathcona, High Commissioner for Canada and President of the British and Foreign Sailors Society. The Secretary of this Society, Rev. Edward W. Matthews, is the author. He has spent a lifetime in the service of Sailors and has been called "Archbishop of the Sea." The fore-part of the book is taken up with appreciations of Lord Strathcona and contains a speech of congratulations from societies and persons of eminence. These include Premiers, heads of Universities and Colleges. A long appreciative message of Lord Strathcona from Premier Morris appears under the caption "What the Premiers Say." Then follows a series of chapters in a patriotic and inspiring strain to the boys and girls of the Empire. The first is on Strathcona, the Silent—the Grand Old Man of the Empire who does things with a big heart and a silent tongue. The next is on "My Donald," and opens with the saying of the mother proud of her boy, who prophesies: "They'll be proud of my Donald yet." The spirit of the book may be sampled by this extract: "But to-day the schoolmaster is abroad. Yes, that is true, but in spite of schools there are thousands of lads, through stress and storm of human life, affliction and death, it may be poverty, trials to which flesh is heir, many boys start the race of life with tremendous odds against them. But there are merciful Providences, marvellous compensations to true-hearted, loyal-hearted, brave-hearted, God-fearing youths of our land here and beyond the Seas. It is a favourite doctrine of mine that every boy (or girl) is destined in

A Big Fire!
 Old Alexander Street Church and Three Dwellings Totally Destroyed.

At 12.25 p.m. to-day an alarm of fire was sent in from box 334 at the foot of Alexander Street. The firemen of the West End and Central stations quickly turned out with their fire fighting apparatus and found that Alexander Street School, formerly used as a church by the Methodist people of the West End, was on fire. The wind was blowing from the westward a good stiff breeze, and as everything was as dry as powder the crowd that gathered saw a risk of all the houses on Alexander Street, including Parker & Monroe's new factory, being burned. The firemen soon got busy and started four streams of water from the nearest hydrants. The West End men found that they did not have enough of hose and drove back to the fire hall and procured an additional supply. Messrs. Parker & Monroe's men got on the roof of the factory and with buckets and their own hose guarded the building from the effect of sparks that fell now and then on the factory. The fire had got too much headway on the school to leave any hope of saving it. The wood was as dry as powder and the streams of water had very little appreciable effect. The firemen soon had their attention directed to the houses immediately across the way on the east side of Alexander Street. The sparks from the roof of the school fell in the roofs of the houses there and in quick time the tenements occupied by the families of Fitzgerald, Galway and Noseworthy were ablaze. It looked now as if the whole range would go. The firemen abandoned the school, which was long ago doomed to destruction, and concentrated their forces on the houses on the opposite side of the street. By hard work they managed to get the fire under control at 1.30, but not till the three houses had been almost completely gutted. The tenants managed to save the most of their furniture, bedding, etc. The houses destroyed are insured and belong to Messrs. Wells, Rodgers and Sheehan. Alexander Street School is insured for $2,500, we are informed.

 A newspaper is soon to be started at Grand Falls. It will be controlled by the company and will be published for the benefit of the workmen and residents of the paper city.
 W. F. Saltonstall, of Boston, is at the Rivers after salmon. Mr. Saltonstall has fished in every stream of importance in the United States and Canada, but thinks Newfoundland far superior as a sporting country.
 Channel and Port aux Basques are growing very rapidly. Real estate there has increased 300 per cent in value in the past five years. With a daily mail steamer from the continent the progress of those settlements would be greatly increased.
 After an exciting chase, J. Pennell, the game warden, rounded up a sportsman of Lincoln, Mass., and compelled him to pay his license fee which he had tried to evade.
 According to the Western Catholic, Archbishop McNeil has been kept busy of late visiting interior settlements. Some of the Indian communities turned out in force to meet His Grace, serenading him with their quaint music.
 Several camping parties are enjoying the delightful aroma of the Newfoundland woods in the vicinity of the Big Rapids. If the outside world could only be made to realize the varied charms of our forests and streams, Newfoundland would have more visitors than Maine or New Hampshire, whose attractions are not to be classed with those of our own beautiful island.

Decision in a Fortnight
(Daily News Message.)
THE HAGUE, Aug. 18. The decision in the Fisheries Arbitration will, it is understood, be announced on or about the first day of September. Sir Edward P. Morris, in an interview, says that he had been struck with the earnestness of the Tribunal. "Our stay at The Hague," he says, "brought home to us, how necessary, in the interests of peace, is such a Tribunal, and the value of it would be largely increased if it were made permanent."

Regatta Crew Feted.
The British crew that won the boat race on Regatta Day were feted by the officers of the British Society at their hall last night. Forty guests were present and a very enjoyable time was spent. The toast list, which is appended, was interspersed with songs and witty speeches and recitations. The British crew deserve to be warmly complimented on holding the race for three consecutive years. The officers show their appreciation of the work in giving them such a sumptuous feast last night.

Our Historical Comedy of Errors.

(By D. W. Prowse.)

II.

Our historical Comedy of Errors is very humorous. It begins with making the rank imposter, Sebastian Cabot, the discoverer of North America, whilst the English and Venetian records show us distinctly not only that he was not with his father, John Cabot, on that memorable voyage, but at the time he must have been a mere boy of tender years. The discovery took place in 1497. Sebastian lived well into the age of Queen Elizabeth, and at the later part of her reign was very active in promoting English trade with Russia. How old could he have been in 1497?

When our American cousins gave the monument to Raleigh in Westminster Abbey as the founder of English colonization, they rightly understood history and gave the glory and honour to the right man, the one and only man of his day who with the genius of a statesman and the inspiration of a poet, not only conceived the idea of an English Colonial Empire, but spent his life and his fortune in carrying it out. To no one in the Elizabethan age does Newfoundland owe so much as to Raleigh. In eloquent words and stirring pamphlets he was continually setting forth the importance of Newfoundland and her great fishery. He was for ever pestering the Government to buy our cod. Bacon and Guy, associates, took their ideas from him. Raleigh will for ever have the immortal honour of being the founder and originator of our Colonial Empire. "In the spacious days of Queen Elizabeth" Raleigh, poet, historian, was the greatest statesman and the most brilliant man of action in that glorious era. The founding of Guy's Colony, was a memorable event, and every one must be pleased to learn that the celebration was so successful and that everything went off well. Both the Governor and Mr. McNelly made very able and eloquent speeches, but after all is said and done, we know very well that Newfoundland was settled, and North America colonized, not by swells and aristocrats, but by humble, daring old fishermen from Devon and poor enthusiasts like the Pilgrim Fathers. The instructions to Guy are very interesting. They had never appeared in any previous History of Newfoundland. I discovered the original half burnt copy in the British Museum. Just as I was the first to set forth the Act of Henry VIII. about our fishery, and to tell all about John Mason, a name that had never appeared before in our annals and one who really did far more for Newfoundland than John Guy. He and his master, Bacon, were both politicians. The old West Country pirates soon drove Guy home, and he and his Colony utterly vanished away. The latest and most absurd error of all is the contention of Messrs. McGrath and Gosling that there was not a solitary resident in Newfoundland until Guy came. No man acquainted with the Newfoundland fishery then carried on by 10,000 men in about fifty different harbors will ever credit the absurdity that all this great property and stores of great value was left every year for seven months absolutely without a guardian. # Sham Battle

The Attack and Defence of Carbonear Island Thursday.

Special to Evening Telegram.

HARBOR GRACE, Yesterday. The "sham battle" has been a great success. Some of those who witnessed it from a distance were disappointed in not seeing more fighting; but when it comes to actual view it is hard to know what they expect, unless it is to see some men killed. Those who were fortunate to be near have had an experience of a life time. The weather was perfection with bright sun and zephyr breezes. Quite a heavy sea had been raised by the N. E. winds of the past two days, and while this was a great hindrance to boats landing on the island, still it enhanced the beautiful scenery with the majestic waves breaking on the headlands. At 8 a.m. the launch of H. M. S. Brilliant started for Carbonear Island with three heavy guns and many smaller ones. It was found impossible to land at the regular jetty owing to the heavy surf. Lieut. Lyon, who was in charge, almost feared he would have to return, but with that British pluck and determination, he watched the opportunity and beached his boat on the top of a big wave at Soper's Cove. The cliffs around here are precipitous, but Lieut. Grigg who must have had great experience as an Alpine climber, got to the top with a rope, leaving the most of his pants in shreds. With this rope the sailors then got to the summit, and after the heavy guns had been thrown into the water they were hoisted up the cliff. It was a sight for our sailors to see these marines working to their waist in water. With the help of long carts, sent by the committee, the heavy cannon were now removed to the battery. At ten o'clock the brilliant with a select party comprising His Excellency and Acting Premier and a few others sailed from Harbor Grace and came to an anchor about N. W. of the island. A cannonading from the ship and fort was then started, and as not sufficient time was given to order an extra supply of ammunition, the warship had to draw on her own resources, and this was the reason a fierce cannonading was not followed up. At the distance from the land the firing from small arms could not be seen to advantage. Lieut.

Pritchard was in charge of the attacking party, and with about fifty boats manned with landmen, he manoeuvred his fleet, attacking at several points, but was driven off each time. The main attack under protection of the Brilliant's cannon was made at Sandy Cove. Pritchard, who is the first Lieutenant and a gallant officer headed his men. He ran his boat ashore, landing twenty men on the beach and before the defenders knew it, he had scaled the cliff with two men. Lieut. Lyon rushed to the scene with a number of men, and after a heavy struggle he captured Pritchard and his two men, and drove the rest back into the landwash. I must tell you that Lieut. Pritchard was disguised, wearing a big yellow wig with a heavy cockade hat, a red jacket and brown pants. He was decorated with numerous medals, in fact every one who saw him thought it was the resurrection of Peter Easton. So much was his resemblance to that arch-pirate that it was decided that he be hanged to-night with his two men. The battle now came to an end. The boats' crews were re-called

Twitching of the Nerves

Wonderful cure brought about by DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD. It is only by watching the symptoms of nervous exhaustion and applying restorative treatment that you can ever hope to ward off locomotor ataxia and paralysis. Mrs. E. J. Vanderburgh, of Eastern Walland, St. Catherine's, Ontario, writes:—"For twenty-one years I was badly afflicted with heart trouble, nervousness and cramps in the limbs, also twitching of the nerves and nervous headaches. I became weak, debilitated and emaciated. My condition was distressing and I was made worse through worry and loss of sleep. "I tried a hundred remedies in vain. After having used half a dozen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food my old troubles had entirely vanished, and I was enjoying better health than I had since girlhood. "Such cases as this prove the wonderful efficiency of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food. It cures in Nature's way by enriching the blood and for this reason, enriching the blood and its benefits are lasting. 50 cts. a box, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

by the brilliant and the gallant defenders had time to get

Lunch at the Lighthouse with several members of the committee. One of the officers had a slight accident to his hand; but notwithstanding the hard work put up by every member of that splendid crew, no harm was done to any person until the very last moment. When Lieut. Lyon was boarding the Brilliant on his return—a very heavy swell heaving all day—it was a difficult piece of work getting so many men safely aboard of the warship. Unfortunately an accident did happen, and the lot fell on that gallant officer, Lieut. Lyon.

Who Had Defended the Island so heroically like the Pymms and Davises in the days of old. He was also the man who with his own hands captured the chief enemy. Lieut. Lyon, got his leg crushed between the launch and the warship. It is reported that his leg is broken and that he is suffering terribly. It will be interesting for your readers to know that Lieut. Lyon is the son of Admiral Lyon who arrived at St. John's yesterday on a visit to Newfoundland to see his son. There was about

Three Thousand People assembled at Bristol Hope Point, and everyone was delighted with the situation—the grand view of the Islands and the waves dashing against the precipitous cliff of "Old Sow." Head made a beautiful picture. With a spy glass you could see every point and hill on the Carbonear side throughed with people watching the battle. The scenery of the Bristol Hope Valley was magnificent, and the numerous visitors from St. John's, including

Members of Parliament, and clergymen and other professions will endorse what I have said. In the afternoon the skiff race came off, from the beach at Bristol's Hope to buoys at the entrance; the Freshwater men carried off the first prize. The Brilliant has returned to Harbor Grace and arrangements are being made for the race their crews were to take part in at the regatta will come off at the harbour to-night. The social event of the celebration is the ball for the officers and visitors that comes off at the Masonic and British Halls to-night.—H. F. S.

At Harbor Grace To-day.

Special to Evening Telegram.

HARBOR GRACE, To-Day. The ball in Masonic Hall last night was a grand success. In the walking match Arthur Warren took first prize and the special prize donated by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Piccott. The cricket match is now on in Shannon Park, the City vs. Brilliant. Athletic sports will be held this afternoon, and the exhibition will drop on the Guy Celebration till next centenary, which we hope the descendants of all Newfoundlanders will make a successful celebration as this one. The people of Harbor Grace are all deeply thankful to His Excellency, Sir Ralph Williams, and Commander Woolcombe of H. M. S. Brilliant, for remaining here so long and taking such an active part to the end of the celebrations; also, for the deep interest they have taken in all the historical events connected with the town.—H. ## Austrian Emperor Eighty Years Old.

Special to the Evening Telegram. ISCHL, Austria, Aug. 18. No less than 74 archdukes and archduchesses of the Austrian Imperial House are in Ischl personally to congratulate the venerable Emperor Francis Joseph upon the occasion of his 80th birthday to-day. Telegrams and letters bearing felicitations to Europe's oldest monarch are pouring in from all parts of the world, all of his fellow-rulers adding their congratulations to those of His Majesty's subjects. The city is elaborately decorated in honor of the event, and the streets through which the Emperor will pass on his way to the Kurhaus, where the State Banquet in honor of the birthday will be held is a veritable triumphal way with arches, flags and streamers of bunting. At the special desire of the King Emperor there will be no costly festivities such as marked the celebrations of the 60th anniversary of his accession to the throne two years ago. He requested that the money be devoted to charity instead.

Moissant's Machine Gives Out.

Special to the Evening Telegram. CHATHAM, Eng., Aug. 18. Two accidents to his monoplane to-day brought down to earth the American aviator John Moissant, who yesterday made a remarkable flight across the English Channel with a passenger on a starting attempt to fly from Paris to London. To-night his machine lies partly wrecked in a brick field near Rainbow, Kent, some 30 miles from London. By a remarkable stroke of fortune, which seems to have followed the American an almost inexperienced aviator Moissant and his mechanical assistant escaped unhurt. But the machine came heavily to earth, alighting on a pile of broken brick. There it is likely to remain until it can be removed piecemeal and refitted with parts now on their way from Paris to replace those broken by the fall. The aviator is in no way discouraged at this misfortune, and promises as soon as the machine is in working order again to make another start for Crystal Palace, or wherever he can find a suitable landing place in London.

Eczema's Tortures

All treatments failed for three long years—Cure complete with DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT. Mrs. Link, 12 Walpole St., Halifax, N. S., writes:—"After three years of miserable torture and sleepless nights with terrible eczema, and after trying over a dozen remedies without obtaining anything but slight temporary relief, I have been perfectly and entirely cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment. After the third or fourth application of this grand ointment I obtained relief, and a few boxes were sufficient to make a thorough cure. It is six months since I was freed of this wretched skin disease, and as there has been no return of the trouble I consider the cure a permanent one. "Such cures are not brought about by imitations and substitutes for Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is therefore necessary for you to be certain that the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., the famous Receipt Book author, are on the box you buy. 50 cts. a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for a free copy of Dr. Chase's Receipts.

Yacht Racing.

Special to Evening Telegram. MARBLE HEAD, Mass., Aug. 18. America again defeated Spain to-day in the spondee yacht races of this sport, all three American boats leading their foreign rivals at the finish. The Harpoon, owned by C. F. Adams, which took the first race of the series yesterday, again carried off the honors to-day, with the Cimp a close second and the Beaver third. The Spanish yacht Chonta was only a minute and one second behind the Beaver, while the other two Spanish boats were far behind. The Chonta at times during the race led the entire fleet. She not only pushed the American boats but astonished her rivals by maintaining her place principally through her use of the balloon jib in beating to windward. This violation of yachting set the Americans to scratching their heads over what may be proved to be a valuable innovation.

Sculling Championship

Special to Evening Telegram. LIVINGSTONE, Rhodesia, Aug. 18. The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

How much this or that cost—what this one is earning, and how much that one is making—Do you realize how large a part these subjects and similar ones make of our daily conversations?

As I sat alone at dinner in a restaurant the other evening, the talk of the people at the table behind me came unavoidably to me.

Occasionally an unfinancial remark was made, but for the most part, the fragments that broke upon my ears were something like this:

"Did you know the M's new limousine cost every penny of $5,000?"

"That's nothing; Charley N. is going to have a racer built especially for him, and it's going to cost $7,500."

"—when his father allows him $20 just to run that car. I think it's absurd to think he can't do it on that."

"But then, they say, it isn't the gasoline or even the repairs that cost so much in running a motor, as it is the entertaining of all kinds that a-talking people motoring entails."

"—lovely gown? Well, no, I don't fancy it particularly. That trimming looks awfully expensive, but I saw some in a window and I priced it, and it only cost about a dollar a yard."

"—and they say he is making $10,000 a year. You see, he went into business for himself. That's the place for brains, I think."

On the way home, in the trolley, I sat in front of two women who were arguing as to whether it cost more to have one's gowns made or buy them ready-made. Each was trying to prove her side of the question by numerous price citations from her own wardrobe.

I walked up the street with an old resident of the neighbourhood, who had come back to make a call. As we passed the house where my horse neighbour lives, "Yes, sir, he did—a cool twenty thousand for that horse the minute he went under the wire," floated to us.

We came to an open field near my house. In the corner of it a little plaster bungalow has just been put up.

The old denizen regarded it with interest.

"Yes," I ran on in explanation, Mr. C. put it up for his daughter. She was married last fall. You didn't know? Yes, a bank clerk in her father's bank. Artistic little place, isn't it?" And then, with entire unconsciousness, "But what do you think it cost? $4,000. Isn't that terrific for such a little place?"

The old denizen of the neighbourhood passed on down a side street. He didn't look back. It was lucky that he didn't, for if he had he would have surely thought me insane. For in the consciousness of my own contribution to the chorus that had irritated me so all the evening, I was laughing aloud to myself and saying "Et tu, Ruthie."

Perhaps you think I'm exaggerating or fabricating a bit.

I won't attempt to exonerate myself. Instead, I'll just ask you to watch your friends' and your own conversation for a day or two for such references, and I'll be willing to let that test exonerate me.

Should one never talk of prices and wages and costs and values?

Yes, but never and are perpetually are a long ways apart, and between them lies a golden mean.

It seems to me that the tendency to measure success almost entirely by a financial standard is one of the worst disease spots of our twentieth century life.

Our perpetual talk of money is one of the symptoms of this disease.

I don't suppose you can cure a of the symptoms of this disease, but oh, I do wish we could do something for both.

The Late Sir Fleetwood Edwards.

The death has been recently announced, by cable, of this distinguished official. He was Private Secretary to Queen Victoria, one of Her Majesty's most intimate friends and confidential officers. He held the same position under King Edward, and His present Majesty. Forty-three years ago he was an Engineer Lieutenant, quartered in Bermuda. There he became A. D. C. and Private Secretary to the Governor. Edward's was a great friend of the Harvey's, and when Mr. and Mrs. Eugenius Harvey paid their annual visit to St. John's, they brought the young Engineer Officer with them. The late Hon. A. W. Harvey was an enthusiastic yachtsman, and he gave Edward's many a pleasant cruise. In those days there was very good shooting about our neighbourhood and a young barrister friend of the Harvey's, who was a keen sportsman, gave the Lieutenant many good days on the barrens. Edward was a capital walker and a good shot. He thoroughly enjoyed the mixed sport. His lawyer friend had lost sight of Edward's for nearly forty years. We can judge of his surprise when, on a visit to Windsor Castle, he found his old companion transformed into a great official who received him with all the kindness in the world.

New Cruiser Lion is a Naval Marvel.

She Exceeds All Existing Dreadnoughts in Size, Speed and Armament—Has Speed of 30 Knots.

London, Aug. 10.—The gigantic battleship cruiser Lion was launched last week at Devonport. It is the greatest battleship afloat, exceeding all existing Dreadnoughts in size, speed and armament. The Lion is officially described as an armored cruiser. She is superior to every battleship in the world and is the naval marvel of the year.

The Lion is the first naval vessel to be armed with eight of the new 13.5 inch guns, which are arranged in four barbettes on the centre line of the ship. The two middle barbettes are raised, which permits their guns to be fired over the other barbettes, which system will allow the whole of the main armament to be trained on either broadside.

The guns will fire projectiles of 1,250 pounds a distance of 5,000 yards. These projectiles will penetrate twenty-two inch armor. The Lion will have a displacement of 26,000 tons. The length will be 700 feet and the beam 83 feet. The horse power of the Lion will 70,000, developing a speed of thirty knots. She will be fitted with Parsons' turbines and will have forty-two water tube boilers, situated amidships, and will be protected with nine-inch armor plating.

The Lion is the fifteenth British Dreadnought to be launched. She was constructed in eight months and cost $10,875,000.

Burin Notes.

A few days ago a very successful garden party was held at Burin in connection with the Methodist Church. The grounds were tastefully decorated for the occasion with hundreds of flags and an arch was erected over the entrance gate. The beautifully fine day helped to enhance the brightness of the scene. About 600 people of all denominations were present, including several visitors and a number of men from the Nova Scotia vessels which were in port at that time. During the afternoon ice creams and candy were sold and later a substantial tea was provided by the Ladies' Aid. After tea various games were indulged in and on all sides there were evidences of good feeling and satisfaction. One of the most pleasing features was an impromptu concert followed by a splendid display of fireworks. Great credit is due to Mr. C. F. Bishop who lent the grounds and who spared himself no trouble or expense in his efforts to make the event a successful one.

The Methodist Parsonage, which is being rebuilt, is steadily progressing and when completed will be a very substantial and well appointed house. The members of the Ladies' Aid are working hard to meet the expenses of the scheme. The proceeds of the party mentioned above go for that purpose.

We understand that the contract is completed for the building of a C. O. of E. Parish Hall and the work is about to be commenced by Messrs. Davey Bros., of St. John's.

The Merchant's Association is holding its picnic at Salmonier this week, and about one hundred and twenty are anticipating an enjoyable time. CORRESPONDENT.

Nutritive Hypophosphites

When a person feels "blue" — "all tired out" — doesn't feel like doing anything — cannot concentrate his mind on his work — feels weak mentally and physically — doubts his powers — complains of poor appetite and sleeplessness — suffers from headaches — then his nervous system is run-down and demands a good up-building tonic. Nervous exhaustion is a modern disease, caused by too close attention to business, overwork, worry, devotion to trying family cares overstudied, etc.

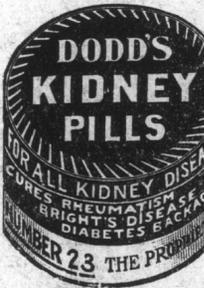

Nutritive Hypophosphites forms the best nerve and brain food known, and have restored thousands of sufferers to health. Large bottle, $1.00.

Fish and Game Protection.

A new departure, but one that should receive the approval of all sportsmen, marks the August issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Ltd., Woodstock, Ont. The greater portion of the reading pages is given up to the reproduction in full of the Interim Report of the Ontario Fish and Game Commission. As a rule Government publications receive only scant attention and have but a limited circulation. In this instance, however, the Report, through its appearance in the Magazine, will be brought prominently before the attention of sportsmen, not only throughout Canada but also in the States, and the many suggestions and recommendations contained therein can scarcely fail to have some effect in a much wider field than the Province. The interest taken in Fish and Game protection is now general throughout North America and this document will be studied and quoted for a long time to come. The statement of existing conditions and the many recommendations for improvement will bear much consideration from sportsmen. Through their organizations they should let the Government know their views on these matters in order that legislation may be based upon at least some of them. The interesting experience gained in "Canoeing on Lake Superior" is concluded and the story told of Mr. Vance's Pet Fox, while the capture of a big fish is related. For trapshooters the number is fascinating as it gives interesting accounts of many big meets and numerous smaller ones, showing the importance attached to this branch of sport throughout the Dominion.
