"ECHOES of the Past;

The Recompense of Love!"

CHAPTER XIII.
 "I shouldn't be surprised if he pulled round," said Tibby, eying him with reluctant admiration. "He's a strong 'un. Lor', to see the way those wretches went down afore his straight 'uns! He ought to 'a' been in the fightin' profession; it's a kind o' waste he's bein' just a common gentleman with a harm like that. An' what we goin' to do with 'im when we get 'im 'ome, I don't know!"
 "He can have Elisha's room," said Mina absently. "If he would only open his eyes, or—speak," she sobbed out again.
 "Just you be quiet," commanded Tibby. "If he comes to and catches sight o' that undertaker's face o' yours, it will send 'im off again. You let me take 'im; look at your dress—clean spoil!"
 But Mina shook her head, and unconsciously pressed him closer to her, and so held him for the rest of the fortunately short journey.
 It was indicative of the character of the Rents and the frequency of "accidents" to its residents that their arrival created very little surprise or even curiosity; and they carried Clive to Elisha's small and poorly furnished, but scrupulously clean, room. Then Tibby summoned the landlady to her assistance, and, while Mina ran for a doctor, got Clive undressed and into bed.
 Mina ran to the next street and quickly returned with a doctor, who happened to be at home, and, for the first time for three nights, was going to bed. He sighed, gave up the attempt to glean some information from Mina's breathless, agitated account of the case; and having arrived at the conclusion, based upon his experience of the neighborhood, that the injured lad had met with his hurts during a street fight, was considerably surprised at finding a gentleman by the name of the brain, caused by a row at a political meeting.
 Tibby would have kept Mina from the room; but with a display of firmness and resolution which was not to be thwarted, the girl stole to the bedside, her great eyes wandering from Clive's face to the doctor's.
 "Yes; it's concussion," he said when he made his examination. "Danger? No-o, no; I think not. Too soon to tell yet. You must keep him quiet. I shall want some hot water—and some ice. One of you go to the chemist. Here, I'll give you a paper for him." Mina almost snatched the paper from him and was off again. Though she did not realize it, action was the best for her at that moment, for her heart was nigh to breaking at the sight of the still, lifeless face which looked so fearfully like death.

 When she returned she found Elisha pacing up and down the sitting room, and her heart throbbled in sympathy with the rage and fury that battled with grief in his countenance.
 "The hounds, the curs!" he groaned. "To hurt him! They aren't fit to breathe the same air with him! Oh, Mina, when I went in, all unprepared-like, and saw him, I thought I should choke! And him so good, so kind. There, there, don't cry, my girl." There were no tears in her eyes, though his were running over, and he had to turn away. "He'll pull through, he's so strong and brave!"
 She looked at him gratefully and passed into the sick-room with the things she had brought from the chemist.
 The blood-stains had been washed from Clive's face, but he was still motionless, and he lay as one dead or dying. She crushed back the tears, the means that rose to her quivering lips, and, when the doctor had made an ice-bandage, took it from his hand as if she had the right to constitute herself the injured man's nurse. And when the doctor said in a low voice: "I wish these renewed as they get hot," she nodded as if the instruction were addressed to her exclusively.
 "His friends had better be communicated with," he remarked a little later. "No, no," he added in response to her anguished glance. "I don't think he's in immediate danger."
 "In the morning? That will be time enough?" she asked in a dry voice; and he nodded and shrugged his shoulders.
 "Will he be long like—this?" Elisha inquired in a husky whisper.
 The doctor shook his head. "Impossible to say. He may be conscious at any moment or may remain in the same state for a long time. There was a well-known case in which the patient was unconscious for six weeks, but I don't think that he will be unconscious for so long. I'll wait and see how he gets on."
 Tibby went and made some tea—that panacea of the poor—and brought it in; but Mina, without raising her eyes from Clive's face, gently pushed away the cup offered to her.
 They watched in strained silence beside the motionless figure for the rest of the night, and just before the dawn, Mina, who was kneeling by him with his hand in hers, made a faint sign and bent more closely over him; for Clive had opened his eyes. At first they met her eager, anxious, tender ones without intelligence; but presently he sighed and frowned as if with an effort to recover his memory.
 "Mina—you here?" he breathed almost inaudibly, but she caught her name, and her lips quivered as her hand pressed his limp one. "Ah, yes. I remember. Were you hurt? Not hurt, Mina!" And his eyes were kept with deep anxiety on her account.
 She shook her head, for she could not speak.
 "Thank God!" he murmured gratefully. "I was afraid—they were violent—mad, quite mad. Was any one hurt?"
 The doctor touched him warningly.

How To Get Rid of a Bad Cough

A Home-Made Remedy that Will Do It Quickly, Cheap and Easily Made

If you have a bad cough or chest cold which refuses to yield to ordinary remedies, get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking a teaspoonful every hour or two. In 24 hours your cough will be conquered or very nearly so. Even whooping cough is greatly relieved in this way.
 The above mixture makes 16 ounces—a family supply—of the finest cough syrup that money could buy—at a cost of only 54 cents. Easily prepared in 5 minutes. Full directions with Pinex.
 This Pinex and Sugar Syrup preparation takes right hold of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough in a way that is really remarkable. It also quickly soothes the inflamed membranes which accompany a painful cough, and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Excellent for bronchitis, spasmodic croup and whooping cough. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children like it.
 Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes of the throat. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex,"—do not accept anything else. It is guaranteed of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

"Don't try and talk," he said. "You have had a nasty blow."
 Clive nodded. "Yes? Ah, yes. Where am I?"
 "Here—at home," whispered Mina. "I mean—Elisha's, you know?"
 "That's good for you," he said. "I'm sorry. I'll be all right in an hour or two. Don't—tell any one."
 "Your friends?" suggested the doctor, but Clive tried to shake his head.
 "No, no!" he said feebly. "Just let me keep quiet for a little while—soon up again. Is that Tibby?" He tried to smile, but had to check a groan.
 "That will do," said the doctor grimly. "If you'll lie quiet, as you say, you will be all right."
 Clive nodded and closed his eyes, but he opened them again presently, and they rested on Mina's with a strange intensity. His lips moved as if he were going to speak, but he did not, and he lay quiet as if asleep. The doctor looked at his watch.
 "I'll go home and send some medicine. Get some more ice and keep the bandages going, and, above all, keep him quiet."
 When he had gone, Tibby went up to Mina.
 "You go off to bed, Mina," she said, but Mina just glanced at her, and Tibby bit her lip and left her alone; for she knew that, for the first time, she could not exact obedience.
 The dawn grew to morning sunlight, and Mina still knelt by the bedside with Clive's hand in hers. Once she had attempted to take it away that she might reach the basin, but his hand had gripped on hers, and Elisha removed the bandage, so that she should not have to move.
 "About his friends?" he whispered later on. "I don't know where he lives, or how to find them!"
 She looked up as if she were about to tell him that she had seen Clive coming out of a house in Burleigh Street, but her lips closed again tightly. The longing to keep him here, to herself, was too strong for her, and Elisha, rubbing his head with a puzzled frown, went out. Tibby came in presently with a cup of tea. She had her bonnet on and her working-apron over her arm.
 "I'm obliged to go to the factory," she said in a whisper. "We're short o' work as it is, and I'd lose my place if I stopped away. I'll send up the landlady—she's showed herself a good sort—while I'm away."
 "No," said Mina, almost fiercely. "I can manage. Oh, let me, Tibby! If I want her I'll send Elisha for her."
 "Elisha's got to go to his teaching," said Tibby.
 "He is to be kept quiet; she will talk," pleaded Mina earnestly. "I'll knock on the floor or run down. Oh, do you think you can't trust him to me? I know what to do."
 "You'll be ill," said Tibby grimly. "Not a thing's passed your lips since yesterday, and you're white as a ghost."
 "Give me the tea—put some food anything on the table," broke in Mina, with a kind of subdued impatience. "Oh, leave him to me, Tibby dear! See, I'll have the tea and something to eat, I'll do everything you tell me if—if you will let me take care of him!"

 Tibby looked from one to the other with pursed lips.
 "Wish I'd taken 'im to the 'orspital," she said, but in the end Mina had her way, and Clive was left in her care and Tibby reluctantly went off to her work, for with the poor the daily wage must be earned, though men may lay a-dying.
 The doctor himself brought round the medicine, and did not appear surprised to find the girl in sole charge of the sick-room, for not seldom his patients were left entirely alone.
 "He is better?" her eyes asked rather than her lips, and he nodded.
 "Yes; he is going on all right. Give him another dose of this in a couple of hours, and don't let him talk when he wakes. I'll come in later. Send for his friends yet?"
 She colored and turned her face away.
 "He does not want them. He asked us not to do so."
 He shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, well, it doesn't matter. He knows his own business best. Good-morning." He paused at the door when he was going, and looked at her with a doctor's keen but calm glance. "Don't wear yourself out, my girl. Better get some help."
 "There is the landlady," said Mina, and as if satisfied he nodded and went out.
 Elisha came in and out until he was obliged to start for his lessons, and he, too, showed his anxiety on her account, but no distrust of her capacity as a nurse; but at last Mina was alone with her hero.

Clive woke from his sleep, feverish and restless, and only half-conscious; but she sat on the bed and put her arm round him, murmuring soothingly, and with a sigh he grew more peaceful, but he talked in broken sentences with long pauses—bits of the speech he had made in the hall, snatches of conversation with Lord Chesterleigh, and presently he laughed softly and murmured:
 "I beg your pardon, Lady Edith—it was a quotation—a heart as golden as her hair! You have been very good, and I am very grateful—very grateful."
 Mina heard the words plainly, and at the name "Lady Edith" she shrank slightly, shyly, as if she were trespassing on his confidence. He was silent for a moment, his hand going to his head to pluck at the bandage, but she took the hand in hers and stroked and soothed it, and he sighed and was still, then presently the weak, rambling voice rose again:

SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Canadian women are continually writing us such letters as the two following, which are heartfelt expressions of gratitude for restored health:

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of womb and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully for years until I began taking your medicine. I also recommend it for nervousness and indigestion." — Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ont.

Chesterville, Ont.—"I heard your medicines highly praised, and a year ago I began taking them for falling of womb and ovarian trouble. My left side pained me all the time and just before my periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see any one or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated. I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial." — Mrs. STREPHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario, Canada.

Why People feel Depressed in the Cold Weather

Why is tiredness and languor so prevalent just now? A physician explained that the cold of winter drives blood from the surface of the body to the liver. Normally one-fourth of the whole blood supply is in the liver, and when more blood is accumulated there that organ everything goes wrong. No better remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills which are composed of such vegetable extracts as Mandrake and Butternut, and possess wonderful liver stimulating powers. It's a marvel the way Hamilton's Pills clear the blood of the poisonous humors. They put new life into worn out bodies, build up the appetite, bring back a reserve of nerve energy, tide folks over the cold days of winter and the depressing days of spring. For your health and body comfort get a 25c. box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills today.

Robert Templeton

Clergymen at the Front

"Tommy's" Friend and Cheery Companion.
"The task of the clergy in this terrible crisis is a task which no other men can discharge," said the Archbishop of Canterbury recently. And right nobly did the men of the Church rise to the task with which they were confronted when this great war broke out. No sooner was war declared than over 2,000 clergy volunteered for service as chaplains to the troops both at home and abroad, besides another 1,500 who offered themselves for work at sea. Every big warship carries a chaplain, and some of the newer Dreadnoughts, the Queen Mary, for instance, has a steel church of its own in which service is held when, through bad weather or other causes, a minister on deck is impossible. Such was the anxiety of the clergy to do "their bit," that in some cases clerical "freelances" went out at their own or their friends' expense to render what spiritual aid they could in rest-stations behind the advanced trenches. Others enlisted in the Army Medical Corps as dressers and stretcher-bearers, having an opportunity for ministry among the sick and wounded all the way from the firing-line to the hospital ship.

Exciting Work.
That the work of the chaplain at the Front is often of a very exciting character is illustrated by the fact that they are often under fierce shell-fire, even when conducting a funeral service. A case in point was the burial of Major-General Hubert Hamilton, who was killed instantly by a bullet in the forehead while watching operations with his staff. Sir John French, Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien, and other generals and men of high rank were present at the funeral service, held at night in the village church, lit only by the chaplain's electric lamp. Before the service was over the Germans began to shell the church, and those present had to make a hasty escape from the walls which began to tumble in.

Of All Denominations.
The chaplain is "Tommy's" friend as well as spiritual adviser. He writes the letters for the sick and wounded; his pockets often bulge with purely secular comforts—chocolates, caramels, beef lozenges, rolls of lint, and packets of cigarettes, tabloids of morphine for men in great pain, and a few classics for his own diversion to be read at night in the bombproof of the light of a candle. Such is the life of the church militant at the Front.

These chaplains are of all denominations. There are even Jewish chaplains for the first time serving in the Jewish battalions under the Rev. Michael Adler. Colonialists have their own chaplains. With the Australians in the Dardanelles is the Bishop of Kalgoorlie, who was once a London curate, and who served in the South African War.

As is well known, the Bishop of London is chaplain of the 1st Battalion of the Rifle Brigade, and spent Holy Week at the Front, at the invitation of the Commander-in-Chief. In some cases chaplains have been taken prisoner, while it might be mentioned that the Rev. W. A. Wigram, of the Crismean Memorial Church in Constantinople, who insisted on taking the place of one of the men, was one of the hostages sent by Enver Pasha to be held in the Gallipoli Peninsula. These hostages, it will be remembered, have since been brought back to Constantinople as a result of Sir Edward Grey's resolute message warning the Turkish Ministers that they would be responsible for any casualties to the men.

The Hun in India

In Our Eastern Empire, as Elsewhere, the German Has Been Proved a Cad.
Chatting to a friend recently returned from India, an Answers' man asked him whether there was much behind the statements that Germans had grossly abused our hospitality whilst residing there.
"Rather!" he said. "In fact, if you were to publish all the stories which I could tell of the wiles and practices of Germans throughout the great Dependency, many of your readers would regard them as fiction."
"Here's an illustration. About ten years ago, during the worst period of the seditious movement, I discovered the trail of the 'Hun' even in the jungle. I had been shooting all day, and was trying a short-cut through a very lonely district, right on the top of the Western Ghats, in order to attempt to catch my train at a wayside station. A house loomed into view, rather pretentious, surrounded by a dense garden, and I decided to give up my quest for the train, and essay a call at the house for a cup of tea.
"As I approached the house sounds of industry were plainly heard, and before reaching the porch, a European came forward, and crisply asked my business. He was a Hun without a doubt, but invited me into the house, with very evident reluctance.
"In a sort of office we partook of lager beer, whilst my host searched me with piles of questions. I told him where, whom, and how I was, and politely asked him the character of his industry.
"Spreading Seditious Prints.
"It was nothing more than a printing and lithographic press, the leading product being cheap and nasty playing-cards to sell in the native bazaars.
"Whilst we were chatting I observed several highly-coloured portraits of various leaders of sedition hanging on the walls, and mine host told me that his presses were working all hours turning out thousands of these prints, the colouring of which alone was quite sufficient to inflame human passions.
"Before leaving him I begged specimens, and forwarded them to the India Office, with the suggestion that here, indeed, was a concrete case of Berlin aiding and abetting the seditious movement. Beyond a formal and sterile acknowledgment nothing further eventuated, and no investigation resulted. But you may take it from me that that young German was by no means paying his way legitimately, and the production of cheap playing-cards was simply a cloak to hide the real purpose of the press.
"Take another instance of the Hun's handiwork. Many large British firms in Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, and Karachi were frequently at a loss to account for the success of German firms quoting for contracts.
"The Native Clerks Were Bribe.
"It was eventually discovered that German agents bribed the native clerks in the British offices, not only to secure information concerning special contracts but also the names and particulars of large regular customers.
"To circumvent this procedure, the British firms were compelled to keep a dummy set of books in the office, the real set, or the actual ledger, being carried home each evening by some responsible member or partner in the firm.
"Socially the Hun was treated with the usual British courtesy. He could join practically any club or gymkhana, and his business standing was always carefully recognized in municipal or other events of importance.
"And yet it was a sine qua non with the Hun never to allow a Britisher, as guest or visitor, into the German clubs, and, to render this attempted insult worse, natives would be occasionally invited.
"Nothing in the way of business ever came amiss with the German. He would dabble in forms of commerce which his British rival would contemptuously ignore.
"Moreover, the Hun away from home made no effort to hide his preference from unmanly pleasures. While the Briton sought sport, the Hun sought vice.
"There you have the two national characters—vice versus vitality."

Obituary.

MRS. O'NEILL.

There passed peacefully away at East Boston, on Sunday last, the 2nd inst., Mary Ann, daughter of the late James Whelan, of St. Mary's and relict of John Crocker, and Harry A. Nickmeuse. The deceased lady who was in her 69th year, had been ailing for a considerable time past and her demise was not altogether unexpected. She is survived by one brother, the Rev. James Whelan, of St. Lawrence, and a sister, Mrs. P. D. Burke, Monkstown Road, this city, to whom the sad intelligence was conveyed by the Telegram on Tuesday last. Mr. J. Whelan, grocer, Colonial Street, is a nephew of the deceased. To these and to other relatives of the deceased, the Telegram extends sincere sympathy. The funeral was to take place at East Boston yesterday, the obsequies being held at the Church of the Assumption.

PRESERVE THE COLOR.

All vegetables are more attractive if their natural color is retained in cooking. To be sure of doing this use enameled ware sauce pans. Metal will darken all vegetables, especially such as contain much vegetable acid as do tomatoes. The delicate green of spinach is also easily changed by cooking in metal. Beets and small young carrots should be cooked whole, only the leaves being removed. The tops can be cut off after they are boiled.

Mapleton's Peanut Butter is made in England. When you buy it you will know its value. When the children get it on their bread they know its quality. Cheap nourishment these strenuous times. The proof of the pudding is the eating of it.

Schooner Goswip and Harry A. Nickerson sailed from Belleoram yesterday for Gloucester with 200,000 and 250,000 pounds of fish, respectively.

Recruiting Appeal by Labor Leaders.

The appeal made yesterday by the National Committees of the Trade Unions, Parliamentary Labour Committee and the Labour Party, asks for continuous recruiting at the rate of thirty thousand volunteers a week, or the equivalent of thirty battalions. To ask for thirty battalions a week and to be in a position to assure the new recruits that munitions and equipment are now ready for these additions, show what a mighty step forward has been taken by the Commissionariat, and some months ago the great difficulty was to provide the new units with clothing, rifles, guns and ammunition, and at the same time keep the men at the front well provided. Now the stage has been reached when very large armies at the front can be fully equipped and provided with heavy artillery and shells in order to work such devastation as has been made the past fortnight in the Artois and Champagne fighting zones. The providing of equipment has now reached a satisfactory stage, and the great effort is now being made to keep recruiting up to a standard required to win the war. The trouble is to keep up a high standard of recruiting after the drain on civil life which has taken place during the past fourteen months, and to do it in such a manner that there will be enough workers left behind to provide food, clothing and coal for army, navy and people, to provide guns, rifles and ammunition to feed them, as well as keep up sufficient trade to permit of the financing of the war.

A BIG SALE!

About two months ago a statement appeared in this paper that over "TEN THOUSAND" (10,000) bottles of STAFFORD'S LINIMENT had been sold since the beginning of the year 1915. Certain persons were heard to remark that they were not so sure about this statement. We will go farther now and offer $1,000 to the person or persons who can come in to our store on THEATRE HILL and ask us to show them orders amounting to over FORTY-THREE THOUSAND (43,000) sold since the beginning of THIS year and by our not being able to produce them, will gladly forfeit the above sum mentioned.

All you have to do is to come in and ask us. The reason of the big demand for STAFFORD'S LINIMENT is that it is superior to any other LINIMENT on the market at the present time. It has a unique record for relieving RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, NEURALGIA and all ACHES and PAINS, in fact no home should be without a bottle.

"STAFFORD'S LINIMENT" is sold everywhere, and always be sure that you obtain the bottle with the RED LABEL inside.

Half a Million Killed in Last Week of Warfare.

PIERCED BATTLE WAS THAT FOUGHT IN CHAMPAGNE REGION.

Paris, Sept. 29.—In the last seven days the war has taken a heavier toll of human life than in any previous period. Careful calculations show that not less than half a million soldiers have been killed, wounded or captured in Europe's fifteen hundred mile battle line—that is, on the west from Belgium to Switzerland; in Italy, from Trent to Trieste; on the eastern front, along the Danube; on the Gallipoli Peninsula; along the Caucasian Mountains, and from Bukovina to the Baltic.

Of the two battles waged in France, that in the Champagne was far the fiercer and bigger. Gen. Joffre himself conducted the advance, not as a picturesque general on a white charger, but sitting attentively at a kitchen table in a wine shop behind the lines, while his aides with telephone receivers attached to their ears shouted the latest developments of the various attacking columns.

Joffre Was Calm.
A staff officer states that General Joffre sat impassively with eyes glued on a huge map, making no comments, but giving concise orders in a quiet and unemotional voice.

Meanwhile, a few miles distant, a scene worthy of Dante's Inferno was being enacted. In the dead of night scores of thousands of blue-clad French infantry leapt out of their trenches at the word of command and dashed across the ground, turned up like a ploughed field by shells.

What the Germans saw in his shell-battered trench when the rockets starlight illuminated the grim spectacle was the gleaming point of a fixed bayonet handled by an infuriated soldier wearing an anti-gas mask, which gave him the appearance of a demon.

From a distance the battlefield formed a phantasmagorical spectacle. Lit by greenish lights, whose rays pierced the dense clouds, smoke and poison gases, the troops were seen swaying in a titanic struggle, wherein no quarter was given or asked. All around flames leapt from concealed batteries, belching high explosives and shrapnel.

The victory, which produced the greatest number of prisoners, the Allies have yet gained in a single action, was won in true Hindenburg manner. The attacking forces were divided into three columns.

Powerful Pincers.
While the right and left wings swept forward the central body remained quiescent until the advance on the flanks began to converge and act as powerful pincers. Then the centre delivered the last blow, netting regiment after regiment.

One of the most terrible features of the battle was the number of German artillerymen driven mad by the terrific cannonade.

The French wounded brought to Paris say that during the advance they came upon groups huddled around their guns, which they made no effort to serve. Some were dumb. The teeth of others chattered, while still others screamed wildly.

"These poor wretches," said one soldier, "were quite harmless, gone stark mad."

The advance might have gone still further but for the fact that the Germans had constructed a huge series of polygonal fortifications as a second line of defence, which the French guns had not played upon.

A study of the map, however, shows it was a distinct artillery victory for the French. They literally blasted four kilometres.

"Between the German first and second lines so utter was the destruction, even positions protected by converging gunfire were carried without any extraordinary effort. However strong the second network of German defences, the French are prepared to employ the necessary weight of metal to flatten them out as they did the first line.

Crown Prince's Attack.
This, in fact, is what is now going in Champagne, but it is probable several days must elapse before the positions can be stormed.

A few miles further east the Crown Prince failed in what was described here, as a dynastic offensive, designed to impress the German Empire with the Hohenzollern military qualities. He threw 100,000 men against strongly defended trenches along the wild Argonne hills, and, although for a time his densely formed battalions rushed somewhat advanced posts, the French artillery, which has been battering his new lines, gained the upper hand and the infantry were able to drive the German legions back.

The action has created a firm impression that the great munition efforts of the Allies in the past summer have finally given them the superiority necessary to conduct the general offensive.

Women Who Take Advantage!

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

When asked what he thought about a certain woman's preaching, Dr. Johnson said that it was like a dog standing on its hind legs, it was remarkable, not because it was done well, but because it was done at all. Even in these days there are women who seem to have at least a remnant of that feeling about their performances in the business world. That is, they seem to feel that it is sufficiently remarkable and condescending that they should do the work at all, and that therefore no one should expect them to work as hard as men or find fault when they arrogate special privileges to themselves.

She Had A Headache.

A woman who employs other women told me this little experience the other day. She had an unusual rush of work and contrived to reach her office a half hour early in order to have all her material on hand and be ready to dictate the moment the stenographer arrived. She even hoped that my some miracle that person might be a few minutes early. On the contrary, nine o'clock came and went and no stenographer appeared. It was after ten when she finally put in a leisurely appearance, nonchalantly removed her hatpins and explained calmly, "I had a headache."

"If she had only telephoned me," said her employer, "I would have arranged my work differently. As it was, I waited from moment to moment, expecting her to come in every instant, and you know how hard it is to fix your mind on anything when you are waiting like that."

She Stole Fifteen Minutes A Night

In another office in which I used to work one of the stenographers used to leave at quarter of five to catch a five-eight train. She had never asked nor received permission to do this. Furthermore, there was a train at five-thirty which she could have taken, and as the depot is only a ten-minute walk, she need not have left until five minutes of five, even to get the earlier train.

In Another Office of Which I Know, all the women, as a matter of course, quit work from five to ten minutes early in order to be ready to leave at prompt five.

She Had to Powder Her Nose.

Someone remonstrated with one of the girls and she opened wide eyes of wonder. "But it takes me ten minutes to wash up and fix my hair and powder my nose and get my coat and hat on properly," she said. The idea that her employer had not contracted to pay her for these functions had evidently never occurred to her.

Mind you, I am not claiming that all women are like this or that men never snatch any of their employer's time for personal purposes. Far from it! I have known many a woman who worked harder than any man in the office—and probably got less money. Some of the bravest, gamest, fairest fighters in the great industrial army are women.

But because I am keen for the honor of my sex, I want all women like that—not just a few.

Louisburg, N.S., March 5, 1904. I have always found Dearborn's Perfect Baking Powder good and reliable. I consider it superior to all other brands.

Canada Expects Large Orders for Making Big Guns.

Fifty Million Dollars is the Amount Likely to be Spent First—Negotiations are Now Proceeding—Montreal as the Probable Central Point for Assembling Parts.

Ottawa, Sept. 29.—While the promised official announcement is not yet ready, matters continue to shape themselves favorably in connection with the proposed manufacture in Canada of heavy guns and ordnance. If the arrangements now under way go through, the orders to be placed will be in the vicinity of fifty million dollars.

Since the conference of bankers and manufacturers on the subject here a few weeks ago there have been continued negotiations in which D. A. Thomas, representative of the War Munitions Minister has taken a prominent part. Certain proposals respecting the manufacture of ordnance have been submitted to the British authorities and their view is said to be favourable. It is learned that negotiations have not yet come to a head but in the course of a week it is expected that there will be a definite development and an official announcement.

Heretofore no heavy guns have been made in Canada nor any big works here equipped at present able to go into the making of such a highly specialized product. It would be necessary to secure special machinery. This factor in the situation, and also the heavy financing of the undertaking are subjects of consideration which make for delay.

General Mahon, who accompanied Mr. Thomas, is the technical expert in such matters, and the scheme which he outlined at the recent conference was that the component parts of the guns be made in works scattered throughout the country, allowing the assembling to be done at a central point. This, it is understood, is the plan being worked out, and there is every reason to believe that it will lead to the industrial department proposed. It would not only be a new and vitally useful industry, but would bring to the country about fifty millions more in war contracts. Three thousand guns was mentioned at the gathering here recently, as the prospective order to be executed within two years.

Canada already has done well in the shell business. It has turned out over a million of them, and upwards of three hundred factories are now engaged. The orders heretofore placed have totalled $160,000,000. Before long it is expected that there will be new or renewal orders bringing the total to $250,000,000. When this is done a larger shell will be made than has been made heretofore with the 9.2 and 12-inch shells. About a million dollars a day is now being spent by the Shell Committee.

For the prospective new orders, 170,000 tons of steel will be required. It is believed that if the heavy ordnance orders are placed, Montreal will be the central point for the assembling of the component parts.

The metropolis is doing well in the munition business, generally. Forty-three factories there now have shell orders and the aggregate of them is $45,000,000. This is solely for British orders, and is exclusive of one almost double that amount being executed for the Russian Government. Toronto has twenty millions worth of shell orders.

10 Cent Cascarets Best Laxative for Liver and Bowels

Don't stay constipated, headachy, bilious, with breath bad or stomach sour.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches; how miserable and uncomfortable you are from a cold, constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets.

Don't let your stomach, liver and bowels make you miserable. Take Cascarets to-night; put an end to the headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, bad cold, offensive breath and all other distress; cleanse your inside organs of all the bile, gases and constipated matter which is producing the misery.

A 10-cent box means health, happiness and a clear head for months. All druggists sell Cascarets. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

THE UNCONQUERABLE SPIRIT.

A little French girl of fourteen who took her father's place as a baker when he was called to the ranks, and who baked bread for an entire village, has just been decorated by the Government. It will be hard to overcome a country where even the children show such a spirit.—Baltimore American.

Action is Needed, Not Squabbles in the Cabinet.

London, Sept. 10.—J. L. Garvin, writing editorially in The Observer on the subject of conscription, while dismissing the idea of a general election, adds:

"The moral and practical problem is very acute, and it is very grave. Some solution must be found for it. The unwieldy Cabinet as a whole has yet to deal with and decide a question, which it is very ill-qualified to judge. To leave the matter to Lord Kitchener alone is not possible. In the first place, it is unfair to put the main responsibility on him, and, in the second, there are involved and must be faced far wider problems than those bearing immediately upon recruiting."

"We are in the midst of a war where what we require is action, action, action; yet the prospect before us, apparently is that of profound Cabinet disagreements. Discussion is adjourned and readjusted, and this in regard to the most vital of all questions, raised at the most pressing hour."

"As Lloyd George, before all other men, has given the country the leadership for which it longed. He has made articulate the very soul of the nation, which craves to know more and do more."

"If there are, indeed, to be two sections of the cabinet, then, as we value our safety, we must follow those who would have us do our very utmost, and quickly, rather than those who would lull us and postpone. The real danger is that of a tardy, insufficient effort on Great Britain's part, which would mean a dragging, wasting, yet inconclusive struggle, followed by a weak, disgraceful peace. We hold that the immeasurable calamity of this latter result ought to be avoided at all hazards."

"The question at issue is not one which ought to be decided by a Cabinet of twenty-two, constituted, as we know, and with a majority of members to whom public opinion attributes no real responsibility at all. If the miniature mob of Mr. Asquith's present colleagues is indeed to be the deciding body, and if it decides at the present crisis against a full effort under national service, it will take upon itself a grave responsibility indeed."

"Mr. Lloyd George and his colleagues, who will have endeavored to move the Government to adopt a stronger course, should be allowed to disassociate themselves publicly from all responsibility for the rejection of their counsels. At such an hour as this the opinions of the minority would be expressed with decency, and in order that the Government might continue unchanged for a time, but there would be a smaller, stronger, Government in reserve. We are convinced that there will be need for it, and at no distant date."

One Pair of Hands is enough.

If you give your Cook a Gas Cooker she can always cook her best and need never keep you waiting because she has nothing else to do but cook. She has no troublesome coal fire to look after, but can get the exact heat she wants for every dish by merely turning a tap—and she can cook several dishes (each requiring a different degree of heat) at the same time. The Gas Cooker needs no preparation, makes no cleaning work, and is turned out as soon as it is finished with and therefore burns no unnecessary fuel. By using a Gas Water-Heater in addition to the Gas Cooker hot water is supplied for all household purposes with the greatest promptitude, and the use of coal in the kitchen can be done away with altogether. Where Gas Appliances are used in the kitchen the cook will always find that "one pair of hands is enough."

BULGARIA REPLIES.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.
A despatch from Sofia under yesterday's date, was given out here today by the Overseas News Agency. It says that the Bulgarian Government made reply yesterday afternoon to the joint note, presented last month by the Entente Powers.

BULGARIAN CONSUL LEAVES.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 6.
It is understood here that the British and French Ministers at Sofia have received instructions to leave Bulgaria, if Russia severs diplomatic relations with that country. Military action against Bulgaria, however, is not contemplated unless the latter attacks Serbia, or takes other steps clearly inimical to the interests of the Entente Allies. The Bulgarian Consul at Petrograd departed last night by way of Vienna. Many Bulgarians residing in Russia are reported here as offering to enlist in the Russian army.

VENIZELOS CHEERED.

ATHENS, Oct. 6.
A great crowd marched to the home of Venizelos, the retiring Premier, singing the Greek National Anthem and the Marseillaise. The former Premier at that time was in consultation with diplomatic representatives of the Entente Powers. The crowd jammed the street, crying "Long Live Venizelos," "Long Live France," and cheers for France. On account of the occupation of Salonika by French troops, the general opinion seems to be that the King will attempt to form a coalition cabinet, headed by the aged ex-Premier Phaliss. Should this plan fail, it is believed the King will dissolve parliament.

COALITION LIKELY.

LONDON, Oct. 6.
A despatch from Athens says that the totally unexpected resignation of Venizelos has created a great sensation among both his partisans and his opponents. The loyalty of the people to the King saves the situation. A coalition cabinet appears to be assured. There is reason to believe that Venizelos would support such a cabinet.

THE GREEK CABINET.

LONDON, Oct. 6.
Another despatch from Reuter's correspondent at Athens says that King Constantine to-day conferred with Premiers Rhalis and Zaimis, and requested their assistance. After discussion of the situation it was decided in principle to form a coalition government without Venizelos, under the premiership of Zaimis. The construction of the cabinet is expected to be completed to-night. The British minister had a long audience with the King to-day.

THE BALKANS.

PARIS, Oct. 6.
The landing of French troops to Salonika, and their prompt despatch northward, across Greece territory to the Serbian frontier, proceeded without regard to the cabinet crisis at Athens. The downfall of the Venizelos cabinet is considered here as relating to formalities rather than determined opposition to the landing of the French troops. Statements based on official information relate that King Constantine received French ministers at Athens after the landing of French troops had begun, and made

Our New Idea!

Having shown where we excel in the Bedding Line, we wish to add one word more on Our New Idea Bedstead. Having installed machinery the past month for the punching, boring, &c., of our Beds, we can now fit our Oxford or Copper Spring to any Bed as required. This does away with the wood altogether, makes it absolutely vermin proof, and makes a Bed superior in every way to the old, as it is made into the Bed and can be removed and packed very closely—a great convenience when removing. We also have the Combination Lath and Spring Beds, the only thing of its kind in the country.

no mention of the incident or the suggestion of a protest. It is therefore held that the King has not taken a stand against the landing, but merely differs with Venizelos as regards a fixed policy of Greece of supporting the Entente Powers. In some official quarters it is pointed out that former Premier Gounaris made a definite request to France last March that the French would land an expedition at Salonika in order to back up the position of Greece. The Temps says that Gounaris will probably be called to form a ministry. It is generally believed that the ministers of France, Britain, Italy and Russia have already unyielding attitude in face of the left Sofia, as a result of Bulgaria's timorous calling for a definite announcement of her intentions. Such a step will involve the severance of diplomatic relations. No information is available here concerning the withdrawal of the Bulgarian legion, although it is expected that representatives of Bulgaria would be recalled, if a diplomatic rupture should occur. A statement is made by the Temps that the King of Bulgaria has decided to attack Serbia before the end of the present week. This newspaper urges the government to increase largely the number of troops at Salonika, in order that they may be ready with ample force for the protection of Serbia, and for holding back the expected Austro-German advance from the north. Despatches from Salonika estimate the number of Austro-German troops concentrated along the Danube at 350,000.

EMPEROR OF AUSTRIA ILL.

It is said on good authority here that Emperor Franz Josef of Austria is dangerously ill, and that the Austrian Crown Prince has been called to Vienna. In addition to the heir to the throne, it is said that Baron Von Burian, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, and Count Tiesza, the Hungarian Premier, have also been called to the capital. This news, it is stated, has been kept secret up to this time, for fear of the influence it might have upon the international situation.

A BERLIN REPORT.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.
A despatch from Czernowitz, Bukovina, reports that Russian forces made a violent attack on the Austrians along the Bessarabian frontier northeast of the city. The attack is said to have been made along the Pruth River, which the Russians attempted to cross at one place by swimming. The despatch states that the Russians made five assaults without success, and that many of them were drowned.

GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS.

pointed Commander-in-Chief of the Russian forces on the Caucasus front when Emperor Nicholas assumed supreme command of the armies of Russia, arrived to-day at Tiflis.

KING VICTOR EMMANUEL.

UDINE, Italy, Oct. 6.
King Victor Emmanuel recently had a narrow escape from death and serious injury by shell fire. While close to the firing line at the front, his horse was wounded by splinters, but the King was unhurt.

FRENCH SUCCESSES.

PARIS, Oct. 6.
French infantry, after heavy bombardment by artillery to-day, captured by assault the village of Tahure and reached the summit of the hill of the same name which constituted a supporting point of the second German line, according to an official statement issued by the War Office to-night. The French also made progress in the environs of the Navarin farms. The number of prisoners taken exceeded one thousand.

APPEAL FOR RECRUITS.

LONDON, Oct. 6.
An appeal for recruits for the British Army was issued to-day by authorized representatives of three National committees, the Trade Unions, Parliamentary committee and Labor party. The manifesto states that tens of thousands of men of military age and fitness have not yet joined the colors, stating that equipment and supplies of munitions for these men are ready. The manifesto urges that they assume immediately their share of the burden. Their failure to do so is attributed to the fact that they do not appreciate the seriousness of the situation. Thirty thousand recruits weekly, the appeal declares, must be raised to maintain the efficiency of our armies, and secure such victory as will free the world from the fear of that military tyranny which Germany would impose upon it. The manifesto which is addressed by the joint labor board to its fellow-countrymen, points out that at no time in the history of the nation has it been faced with a crisis of such gravity, as now exists. The appeal concludes: "We know defeat or an inconclusive peace means for us not only the loss of prestige as a nation, and the certainty that this conflict will be renewed in a few years, but the loss of those personal liberties and privileges which it has taken centuries of effort to win. The responsibility for victory or defeat rests on those who have not yet responded to the call."

PRESIDENT WILSON TO MARRY.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.
Woodrow Wilson, President, announced to-night his engagement to Mrs. Norman R. Galt of Washington. The date of the wedding is not fixed.

Spies All Around.

Lord Chancellor's Warning.
Replying to Lord Parmoor as to secret trials under the Defence of the Realm Act, the Lord Chancellor (formerly Sir S. Buckmaster), in the House of Lords, said: "I am astonished that when we stand in the peril and jeopardy that we stand in to-day, when we know that we not only have to fight a foe in the open field, but that their spies are in every land, that the webs of their intrigue enmesh and entangle every Government — when we remember this, I am surprised that we have found it possible, as we have up to the present, to proceed under the comparatively moderate and benevolent legislation established by the statute."
Lord Parmoor (formerly Sir C. A. Cripps) replied that these words seemed to imply a desire to see further powers bestowed. "If legislation of that kind is introduced I shall oppose it at every stage." Many people still believed in the maintenance of British liberty.
Lord St. Davids, on the contrary, thought the vast majority of members would be found in agreement with the Lord Chancellor.

The latest fishery reports compiled by the Board of Trade are:—

Oct. 2nd. From P. J. Wade, (Salmonier Cove Pt. to Colliers North Pt.)—The catch to date is 490 qtls. and for last week nil. Prospects are poor, bait being unobtainable and most of the fishermen have given up the voyage.

Six schooners arrived from the grounds last week. Bait is very scarce and prospects are not very good for the Fall fishery.

seven years ago, he reached this world that loves him so, and it is now a better place, more fitted for the human race, because he's lived in it and sung his lyrics in the Hoosier tongue. To-day he eats a birthday lunch with all that gifted Hoosier bunch, whose well-earned honors do not fade—Booth Tarkington, and "Abe" and "Ade," and Nicholson, and many more, and guests from many a distant shore. If all who love him could be there, to greet the bard beyond compare, they'd need a banquet hall so great that it would reach across the state, and many herds of slaughtered kine, and seas of milk, and dentured wine. But we, obliged to stay away, still celebrate his natal day, and send this wireless note to him, "God bless and keep you, dear old Jim!"

429th Day of the War TO-DAY'S Messages.

11.30 A.M.

AMERICAN NOTE OF PROTEST TO BRITAIN.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
Secretary of State Lansing, indicated to-day that the settlement of the Arabic case cleared the way for the despatch of a note to Britain, covering the general subject of trade interference with American goods to neutrals. The trade Note has been completed and is ready to be forwarded to Ambassador Page. It is understood the Note does not specifically cover the problems of the Chicago Packers, who are pressing the State Department to make representations on behalf of products, valued at many millions held up and part confiscated by the British prize courts. This subject will be covered in a separate communication probably, although the course to be followed has not been finally determined. The American note, it is understood, contends that the burden of proof is upon the British Government to show that goods of neutral destination, destroyed or seized, are intended for Germany, that the assumption that all food products going to Germany is intended for German military use is not justified.

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day.
There is little change in the military situation on any of the various war fronts. Reports which remain unconfirmed are to the effect that an Austro-German force, variously estimated from 100,000 to 500,000 men, with two thousand guns, is proceeding through Southern Hungary to attack Serbia. Military observers here, however, assert it is probable a figure between these estimates would be nearer the truth, declaring there is no evidence of any very heavy withdrawals of Teutonic troops from the Russian front and that the Western front every day is making new drafts. These observers say the Germans are not in a position to withdraw many troops from the Russian side, as the armies of Emperor Nicholas are making a desperate effort to assume the initiative in fighting. On some sections, Petrograd reports the Russians have already succeeded in doing this. Besides, it is asserted, they have now held up Field Marshal Hindenburg's drive against Dvinsk, and for several weeks have inflicted very serious losses on him. Von Hindenburg is now reported to be receiving reinforcements with a view to making another attempt to force his way through the outer defences of the city. In the West the big guns are booming and seemingly preparing for a continuation of the offensive by the allies, which the Germans doubtless will try to forestall by an attack from their side. In Champagne the French have captured the village of Tahure and the summit of the hill Tahure which is situated at a point in the second German line of defence. The Italians record another advance toward Roveto, which has so many times been reported as evacuated by the Austrians. The heavy losses were sustained by the British and French in their attempts to penetrate the German lines in France, the large number of men required for operations along the Euphrates River and in the Dardanelles and the Balkans have made it necessary, it further appears, for the enlistment of men throughout the country. Earl Derby who is directing recruiting and who is receiving the assistance of Labor organizations in his work has taken charge of the campaign, the object of which is to obtain at least 30,000 men weekly. Should it fail, it seems fairly certain Parliament will adopt a National Service Bill.

ASKED FOR PASSPORTS.

SOFIA, To-day.
The Russian, French, British and Italian Ministers have asked for their passports. Bulgaria's answer to the Russian ultimatum being unsatisfactory. The Serbian Minister also asked for a passport.

MYSTIFIED BY GREECE.

LONDON, To-day.
The London morning newspapers declare frankly they are mystified by the turn of events in Greece, but they do not conceal from themselves the gravity of the situation for the Entente Powers involved and the evident triumph of German diplomacy. The Daily Telegraph Editorial pointing out that the defeat of the Teutonic powers would mean the accession to the Balkan States by the enormous amount of territory which they expect while victory for the Teutons will destroy the independence of the Balkan countries without enlarging their territory, says the contrast is great. The failure of the Balkan States to adjust a common frontiers by friendly agreement and then throw their weight upon the side of the Entente is an astounding tribute to the success of German diplomacy. That success is doubtless partly due to bribery, but German gold would have been spent in vain, if the progress of German arms had not created the impression that the Quadruple alliance had no chance of victory.

RUSSIANS SURPRISED.

PETROGRAD, To-day.
Great surprise is occasioned here by the turn of events in Greece. The Russian Foreign Office learned this afternoon of the resignation of Premier Venizelos, after an audience with the King, in which the King declared he could not pursue the policy of the Venizelos Cabinet. No official comment has been forthcoming on the new attitude which that country now necessarily assumes but it is known the intervention of the King was not looked for by Petrograd in the light of the strength which the Greek Premier had shown.

CAN KING CONSTANTINE CARRY GREECE.

LONDON, To-day.
The dramatic downfall of the Greek Cabinet astounded diplomatic circles here. What the outcome will be no one appears to be able to predict. No official comment has been forthcoming on the new attitude which that country now necessarily assumes but it is known the intervention of the King was not looked for by Petrograd in the light of the strength which the Greek Premier had shown.

REPLY TO ULTIMATUM UNSATISFACTORY.

LONDON, To-day.
A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from Sofia, by way of Petrograd, says Bulgaria's reply to the Russian ultimatum is unsatisfactory. The Russian Minister notified Premier Radoslavoff of the rupture of diplomatic relations between the two countries. The Russian interests in Bulgaria were confined to the Dutch Charge D'Affairs. Bulgaria's reply was delivered at 2.40 o'clock on the afternoon of October (Tuesday) 5th.

THE GREEK CRISIS.

LONDON, To-day.
Even the greatest battles war may prove to have had less weight in deciding the future of Europe than the events of the past few days in the Southern Kingdoms. King Constantine of Greece, brother-in-law of the German Emperor, seems to hold the balance of power in the near East in his hand for the hour. This is the second crisis when Greece seemed to be on the brink of entering the war by the side of the Entente Powers. He has virtually dismissed the foremost Greek statesman, Eleutherios Venizelos, from the Premiership and asserted a personal control of the Government. King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, has rejected Russia's ultimatum, demanding a break with the Central Powers and the expulsion of the German officers who have taken charge of Bulgaria's army staff, and at the same time according to several correspondents sent an ultimatum to Serbia, allowing a time limit of twenty-four hours for the cession of Macedonia to Bulgaria. The programme of the Germanic Empire

Dr. Geisel at Bay Roberts.

Special to Evening Telegram.
BAY ROBERTS, This P.M.
Dr. Geisel gave to the people of Bay Roberts one of the most instructive lectures ever given in our midst. A live wire instilling in our minds and bodies some of the wonderful knowledge stored up in that frail body of hers. Some years ago Dr. Geisel was facing that dread disease consumption. She comes to us to tell us how to fight this monster, how to keep well, not how to get well. She pictured the evil of alcohol in a most thrilling manner with the aid of charts, and convinced the audience of the necessity of removing from the island this curse, giving to the colony strong able-bodied men with a will to develop the future destiny of this island. A standing vote of thanks was presented by the chairman Canon Field to Dr. Geisel this morning. Dr. Geisel is addressing the school children at 11 o'clock, and at ten a large audience of women only. This afternoon and evening she will speak in Harbor Grace.

stream of French infantry rushed breast deep through the water and stormed the village by an irresistible charge which carried them to the crest of the hill and beyond, although every house in Tahure had been transformed into small forts; the French artillery again rendered these defences useless and only a few Germans were left to guard the debris of what had been underground forts. The Bulgarians have evacuated all buildings on the coast, and Desdaghatch, while forts of that city are being armed with long range guns and mine layers are placing a double line of mines across the port. Desdaghatch is reported full of troops ordered by Germans from Constantinople.

EDGAR ALLAN POE died 1849, aged 40. One of America's foremost poets and prose writers. He lost many good opportunities through his irregular habits and remained in poor circumstances till the last. Poe's life was not a happy one, and no doubt this accounts for the morbid tone of many of his writings.
O. W. HOLMES died 1894, aged 55, American author, perhaps the most versatile of the American men of letters who were his contemporaries.

"THE KING AND THE BOOK" AT THE CRESCENT.

The wonderful picturization of Browning's celebrated poem, "The Ring and the Book" is being shown at the Crescent Picture Palace again today, the large audiences that attended the Crescent yesterday were charmed with this great Biograph production. A dramatic feature of great power is "Mrs. Trenwith Comes Home," Gedra Holmes plays the lead in this drama. "All for the Boy" is a beautiful melo-drama and "The Fable of the Husband who Showed UP and did His Duty" is one of George Ade's best comedies. This is a splendid picture programme, you would not miss seeing it. On to-morrow and Saturday the great Lubin War drama: "A War Baby" will be shown.

THE HARMONY BOYS MAKE BIG HIT.

The Nickel Theatre was crowded last evening and it was impossible to get seats until long after the first intermission. "The Million Dollar Mystery" was continued and was closely watched. The two-part melo-drama, entitled "His Roman Wife," was a most impressive subject which was followed with interest. The comedy was by the Vitagraph Co., with Kate Price as a principal. The singing of the Harmony Boys, Messrs. Huskins and Cairns, was of the finest quality and they were thunderously applauded. They first gave a love song and followed it with a comic about the Kaiser. It took like wildfire. This evening the programme will be repeated and we strongly advise all our readers to attend.

ROSSLEY'S THEATRE.

Special attention is called to the competition which takes place on Friday evening at the above theatre. Tickets are selling rapidly and intending patrons should secure their seats now. Quite a number of new and interesting candidates have given in their names and a mammoth show is assured. The pictures shown last night and to be featured to-night are of the very highest class. "The Power of the Angelus" is one of the most fascinating films ever shown here. No one should fail to see this picture. Jack and Marie Rossley continue to keep their patrons in the best of humour and a ripple of laughter moves through the audience all the time they are on the stage. There will be a complete change to-night, the presenting of another very laughable sketch and Ian Mackenzie, Miss Rix Guerin and William Wallace will appear in all new numbers.
