Your Grocer has it

Safe and Wholesome for Baby

Pure Cow's Milk. Nothing is added either to "preserve" it or prepare it. Nothing is taken from it but part of the natural water.

Safe. It is sterilized—absolutely free from any germ that might impair baby's health.

Easily Digested. Pet Milk is more easily digested than raw milk. The heat of our sterilization changes the casein content, causing it to form in small, soft, easily assimilated curds in baby's stomach.

Like Mother's Milk. Our process of homogenization breaks the large fat globules of the raw milk into tiny particles, distributed in a fine emulsion closely resembling that of mother's milk.

Normally Nourishing. Pet Milk contains all of the growth-giving, health-promoting elements which milk must supply for infants.

Pet Milk is "Milk at Its Best" for everybody, for every milk use.

The Imprisoned Heiress

—OR—

The Spectre of Egremont.

CHAPTER XI.

As he lifted his inflamed and tear-swollen countenance his lordship could detect no wickedness in it. It had no weak lines, no indecision, nothing sinister, but expressed exactly what he had always been reputed to possess—an active, honest, resolute character.

"Your mother says you are going to leave Egremont, Kepp," said Lord Ashcroft, abruptly, keeping a keen gaze upon the young fellow's face.

"Your lordship has seen her, then?" returned the under-forester, almost inaudibly. "I might have known that she could keep it so secret."

"Why should she?"

"I don't know, my lord, except that I don't care to have everybody know of my going. But it makes no difference," he added, in a crushed, heart-broken way.

"Where do you think of going?"

"I can't tell, my lord—to sea, I think."

Lord Ashcroft reflected a moment, and then said:

"Perhaps I may assist you to go, Kepp. Be perfectly frank with me, and tell me why you are my enemy."

"Your lordship's enemy?"

"Yes, Kepp. Tell me frankly why you hate me."

"But I don't hate you, my lord. Taint for the likes of me to be hating a nobleman like you."

"Why are you intending to leave Egremont?" inquired Lord Ashcroft, determined to change his course, and approach the subject more carefully.

"Because, my lord, and the poor fellow's face blushed again, and the tears sprang into his eyes, "Donald Kay has determined that I shan't have Jessy, and my good name, that I've always prized so, is gone, and the servants up at the great house turn their faces away from me and pretend not to see me, and my lord looks upon me as a murderer. Oh, dear! oh, dear! I wish I were dead!"

"But is not this state of affairs your own fault?"

"How my own fault, my lord? I could not help my father running away from his family."

"True, but you can avoid doing wrong yourself. Behold this knife," and he drew the knife from his breast. "It is yours! Last night that knife was in your hand, and I saw it, as with it you strove to pierce my heart!"

An ashy shade passed over Kepp's features as he quickly started to his feet.

"That knife is mine," he asserted, "but I lost it in the park. Oh, what fearful mystery is this?"

"But tell me to whom you loaned the gun, as you have already said you lent it."

In answer to that Kepp led Lord Ashcroft to Donald Kay's cottage, and there openly stated that he had loaned the forester the gun. He, to the utter bewilderment of Kepp, denied the assertion.

At this juncture of affairs Jessy Kay entered the room, coming from an inner apartment. Seeing Gosman beside the man who had reason to suspect him of an attempt upon his life, she walked to the side of her lover, and extended her hand.

The under-forester was cheered in his misery by this assurance, and clasped the girl's hand as if by clinging to it he could escape the perils surrounding him.

"You refuse, then, to acknowledge the truth, Donald Kay?" he asked, loth to relinquish the subject.

"Of course I do—now and forever. There's no use in saying another word upon the matter."

Gosman turned from the contemplation of the head-forester, and then addressed Lord Ashcroft.

"Let 'em take me, my lord," he said. "They can try me, and hang me, if they will; but I am an innocent man."

"Go away from Egremont, Gosman—dear, dear Gosman!" cried Jessy, tearfully. "Do go. You can escape to some place. His lordship won't prevent your going, and some time you can come back. I will be a daughter to your mother. Oh, go!"

"No, I will not see like a guilty wretch," returned Kepp. "I should be unhappy anywhere with this charge hanging over me, and my going away would make everybody think me guilty. I will not go."

"Not for my sake and your mother's?"

"No, not even for your sake, Jessy. The truth may come out if I remain—yet, no, I hope it won't," he added, distractedly. "I could not bear that the man whom I have always regarded as a father should be convicted of so awful a crime."

Kay covered before the glance that accompanied this remark, and ordered Jessy to leave the room.

The mandate was so harshly given that the girl dared not disobey, and sobbing bitterly, she caught her hood and shawl from the peg on which they hung and rushed out of doors.

The scene at the cottage was not prolonged.

Gosman Kepp made a last fervent appeal to the head-forester to confess the truth in regard to the borrowing of the gun, and it was answered as before by a firm denial, which was half refuted by Kay's shifting, uneasy glances.

And at last the under-forester left the dwelling.

Lord Ashcroft lingered a moment to question Donald Kay, but no light was thrown upon the mystery, and he followed poor Kepp.

At a little distance from the cottage he came upon the young lovers clasped in each other's arms, and sobbing bitterly together.

Woman like, poor Jessy was whispering comforting words, and her lover leaned upon her, endeavoring to derive hope from her assurances, and reiterating his declaration to remain at Egremont.

Lord Ashcroft longed to say something to comfort him, but he knew not what.

Whenever doubts of the under-forester's guilt arose in his mind they were immediately succeeded by the remembrance of the discovery of the knife and its ownership and the mystery in regard to the gun.

"Kepp," he said, unwilling to go away in silence, "I think you are doing right to remain here, if you are really innocent. The case looks black against you, I must say, but the truth must eventually prevail."

The under-forester thanked his lordship fervently, and assured him that he would risk his life for him rather than deprive him of existence and Lord Ashcroft then wended his way back to the mansion, taking care to throw away the knife in the darkest portion of the forest.

As he emerged from the plantation in the midst of which he had encountered the first assault, he met Lord Egremont, who inquired the reason of his long absence.

"I was afraid, my dear Lord Ashcroft," he said, "that you had come to harm at the hands of that desperate young ruffian, Kepp. Your sister is fearfully alarmed about you, and Lady Egremont is almost in hysterics, while poor Xina does nothing but look anxious. Did you see the young scoundrel?"

"I saw Kepp, Lord Egremont," answered our hero, "and I want to talk to you about him. Help me to some conclusion, and then grant me a favor."

He linked his arm in that of Lord Egremont, and entered upon a narration of the events of the morning, keeping back Mrs. Kepp's admission in regard to the ownership of the knife, and carefully preparing the way so that at the most favorable moment he might make his request.

Again the shadows of evening had fallen around the stately mansion of Egremont. Lord Ashcroft had taken advantage of the moonlight to steal away from the drawing-room, and, in company with old Duncan Graham, he had taken a brief sail upon the neighboring waters in the hope of hearing again that unearthly music, or seeing the form of the Spectre of Egremont.

But no such good fortune occurred to him.

The windows of the haunted floor were all shrouded in gloom, not a ray of the ghostly light appearing, and, disappointed and troubled, he had given the command to return.

The Couturier Overwhelmed

New York, Nov. 22.—(Canadian Press)—The Herald-Tribune has a very "Frenchy" account of a deluge of potential mannequins who almost overwhelmed M. Jean Patou, the couturier so elegant from Paris. The latter had come to the offices of Vogue to choose three mannequins for his establishment in Paris. "Ah, mes enfants, such an assemblage as is there! Here is the M. Jean Patou and the Mme. Edna Woolman Chase, Mile. Elsie de Wolfe, the M. Steichen, who makes of the most beautiful women the photographs also the most beautiful, and the silent M. Benito, the artist so celebrated. These are to judge, mes enfants. Such happiness is theirs. But wait, The doors are opened and the most beautiful women enter.

But they do not enter, mes enfants. Mon! They—how do you say it here in America—they make a crash of the gate. The judges they are surrounded.

"So, mes enfants, there is such confusion, and Benito, the great artist, always so chivalrous, he is all the time engage upon helping the young American Women with their coats. They take them off, Benito, he assist. They place them on, Benito, he also assist once more. Ho! In an hour and Benito is exhaust. He is, as you say, in altogether. So, And then, mes' enfants, Jean Patou, he is not. He is gone away from that place. He is hide. Most thoroughly, he is hide. Of a certainty he

PROMINENT SUPPORTERS OF ZAGLOUL ARRESTED.

LONDON, Nov. 27. The British authorities in Cairo have taken into their own hands drastic measures to suppress possible nationalist plotting by the arrest of four prominent members of the party organization headed by former Premier Zagouul Pasha. Those arrested were Nekrasby Bey, a secretary in the Ministry of the Interior in Zagouul's cabinet, Abdul Fahmy, one of Zagouul's closest political assistants, William Obeld, a prominent coptic member of the Nationalist delegation, and Barakat Pasha, who was Zagouul's Minister of the Interior.

STORM SWEEPS SOUTH COAST OF ENGLAND.

LONDON, Nov. 27. Much damage was done to-day by a gale which swept both the East and South Coasts of England and inland points. Seventeen persons were drowned when the freight steamer Hartley, a vessel of 2000 tons, sank off Portland. Only two men of the crew were rescued. There were many minor casualties to coastwise shipping. The Channel steamer Dieppe grounded at the mouth of New Haven Harbor, and a tug which attempted to rescue her was smashed against the breakwater. The Dieppe was refloated after her sixty-six passengers from France had spent five hours on board. The cruiser Calliope was sent from Portland to assist vessels in distress in the English Channel. At Southampton the Royal Mail steamer Almazora, of the Buenos Aires service, broke from her moorings and swung about dangerously. She narrowly escaped smashing a naval transport. The vessel eventually was warped into her berth again after three hours of hard work by tugs. The Southampton pilot who took the steamer Vendam out of port were unable to leave the vessel out side the harbor and were carried on to Plymouth and landed there.

QUEEN SAYS GOOD-BYE TO EMIGRANTS.

LONDON, Nov. 27. Queen Mary to-day received a party of 25 discharged soldiers with their wives and children, 79 in all, these forming the first army group under the Empire settlement act sailing for Western Australia. Most of the men in the group have done 20 years army service. They recently received training in agricultural pursuits at the army vocational centre.

FREIGHTER LOST.

LONDON, Nov. 27. During a furious gale in the English Channel to-day, the freight steamer of Harin, Hona, according to Ghent, sank off Portland with all hand, except two who were rescued by the Liverpool steamer Machaon. Says a despatch to Lloyd's Shipping Agency from Weymouth.

MISSIONARY HELD FOR RANSOM.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 27. Misses Elizabeth Berglund and Ingelborg Mystad, American, attached to the Augustana Synod mission, at Juchow, Honan Province, 550 miles west of Shanghai, were missing to-day, after the capture of the town by Chinese bandits, according to a message from Hankow. All other foreigners escaped to Kihshien, 25 miles away. The bandits are holding the Rev. Arne Arnda for $100,000 and 200 rifles ransom, since his capture at Sichuan, Honan according to a message to the Norwegian Consulate. Mr. Arnda was reported captured November 21. Sichuan is 130 miles south-west of Juchow.

NEWFOUNDLANDER DROWNED.

COBALT, Ont., Nov. 27. Information reached here to-day that while crossing the narrows of Pelletier Lake, in the Roux Gold Fields District, earlier in the week, Joe Cormier, aged 32 years, a native of Nfld. went through the ice and was drowned.

DOMINION ELECTION NEXT YEAR.

TORONTO, Nov. 27. The Evening Telegram, in a news item to-day, says it is reported in political circles that there will be a Dominion election in June next as a result of the West Hastings bye-election results.

STEWART TRIAL CONCLUDED.

TORONTO, Nov. 27. The trial of J. F. M. Stewart, Toronto, director of the defunct Home Bank, was concluded this afternoon. Judge Coatsworth who heard the case will give his decision on December 18.

A LAME EXCUSE.

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y., Nov. 27. Leonard Kip Rhinelander, scion of one of New York's oldest families, who married Miss Alice Jones, of New Rochelle, on October 24, to-day filed suit in West Chester County Supreme Court to annul the marriage. Rhinelander alleged his wife concealed from him the fact that she had negro blood in her veins. The papers were sup-

OCEAN TRAFFIC FROM MONTREAL ENDS TO-DAY.

MONTREAL, Nov. 27. Ocean passenger traffic from this port will close for the season with the departure to-morrow for Belfast of the Canadian Pacific liner Melita.

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. To-day is Thanksgiving Day in the United States and is a legal holiday throughout the country, practically all places of business being closed.

A LUCKY WINNER.

MONTREAL, Nov. 27. In the racing season of 1924 J. K. L. Ross of Montreal, internationally known turf magnet, won $127,465 in stakes and purses, his stable of thirty horses accounting for fifty-seven races. Hallucination proved himself the star winner by being victor in five races and netting his owner $27,500. Filly Vrana came second, having accounted for $22,130 in the Canadian derby and five other races.

MURDERER REMANDED.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Nov. 27. Harry B. Williams, charged with the double murder of his half sister's two little daughters, at Foster's Hill, appeared in the police court here this morning before Judge Walter Limerick, and was remanded to York County Jail until December 5th at 10 a.m.

PRINCE'S VISIT TO U.S.A. A THRILL.

LONDON, Nov. 27. The Prince of Wales to-night declared that his recent visit to the United States was a thrill that can only come once in a lifetime. The occasion for this declaration was the annual Thanksgiving dinner of the American Society which was attended by Frank B. Kellogg, the United States Ambassador. The Prince gave his impressions of the United States. He admitted he had a warm regard for Will Rogers, the Woolworth Building, and New-York subways, and that he even delighted in his memories of the Chicago Stockyards.

EGYPTIAN PROTEST TRANSMITTED TO HYMANS.

GENEVA, Nov. 27. After reconsidering the problem raised by the receipt of the protest against Great Britain from the Egyptian Parliament, the League of Nations has decided to transmit a copy of the protest to Paul Hymans, of Belgium, as President of the League Council. It was also decided to notify all other members of the council that the protest had been received.

PASSING THEM OVER TO EGYPTIAN AUTHORITIES.

CAIRO, Nov. 27. It was decided to-day by the British military authorities to hand over to the Egyptian Government the three Egyptian Nationalists arrested by the British.

AN OLD STORY.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 27. Sir Thomas Lipton, well-known Irish yachtsman, who is a visitor here to-day, informed the Evening Telegram that he had definitely decided to challenge for the America Cup in 1926. Sir Thomas made kindly enquiries concerning his friend and fellow yachtsman, Asmillus Jarvis, Toronto financier, who is under conviction and sentence in connection with Provincial bond deal irregularities.

NOT SERIOUSLY INJURED.

AIKEN, S.C., Nov. 27. Sir Gilbert Parker, the Canadian author, who was run down by an automobile here last night, was hurt painfully but not seriously, doctors said to-day. He spent a restful night. Sir Gilbert arrived in Aiken a few days ago to spend the winter season.

O'Mara Scores Big Hit

AT MAJESTIC LAST NIGHT.

The new show that opened at the Majestic for a three day's run went far beyond the expectations of the audience present. Two wonderful artists, singing a splendid programme of songs in which their art was expressed to a degree of beauty in conjunction with a picture that is fascinating. This picture holds the audience spellbound with its thrills and marvelous scenes and situations. Cameo Kirby starring John Gilbert, is an American story of the aristocratic old South land. The setting in this period produces a love story with a great plot that unfolds a dramatic climax that will hold you and cause many a thrill. The costumes worn in this picture are quaint and beautiful. This production concludes one of the best shows shown in St. John's for some time, and the way the audience received Emmett O'Mara's singing of Tosti's immortal "Good-bye" and the song "Dearest" as sung by Jeanne Talowa proves beyond a doubt that St. John's people are lovers of only the best of music.

Majestic patrons are already advised of the two exceptionally strong features to be shown within the next two weeks. In all probability, "Alimony" will be exhibited on Monday next, and the following week, you will likely see "If Winter Comes," a 12 reel super-special. To-morrow, more particulars as to "Alimony" will be given. Same show as last night will be repeated to-night, to-morrow afternoon and night.

Rotary Luncheon

At yesterday's luncheon of the St. John's Rotary Club, Chairman Rotarian "Tim" Hartnett introduced Hon. A. B. Morine, M.L.C., who gave a very practical and forceful address on "Developing Our Tourist Traffic."

The tourist attractions of this country—our scenery, climate, fish and game, are the best in British North America, but we need to advertise the fact. There are yet many prospective tourists who think that Newfoundland is the next thing to the North Pole. We must convince them that our climate in summer is, as it is—ideal. Travelling from Detroit to Toronto and New York, Mr. Morine had passed through some very pretty stretches of country, but none could compare with the scenery around St. John's, and no attractions could be found to equal those of the fish and game of Newfoundland. True, it is, the roads are good abroad, and distant places are very easy of access; but after motoring a couple of hundred miles the sameness becomes monotonous. But, in this country, with our rivers teeming with salmon and trout from June to August, excellent climate and beautiful scenery, there is something to offer tourists—a variety which they cannot obtain so readily and in such abundance in British North America as in Newfoundland. Our Caribou—the big attraction to sportsmen, need protection; and it is to be hoped that the matter of having a close season for two or three years will be considered seriously by the Game Board. Our Moose are increasing rapidly, and it is understood that further importations will be made.

With reference to these splendid attractions which we have to offer, however, we have first to provide facilities for tourists when they come here. It is of very little avail to congratulate ourselves on our possessions if we are not prepared to put them within reach of the outside world, to the benefit of the country. The first thing we need is hotel accommodation. We cannot expect tourists if we have no hotels. We need a large modern hotel in St. John's, and a chain of smaller hotels at tourist resorts throughout the country. In planning the hotel scheme, the country should be divided into two sections—East and West; Port aux Basques should be one base, and St. John's the other. The "tripper" traffic is not so much in evidence because of our lack of hotels. We can fill this country with tourists if we but add modern hotel accommodations and good roads to our present attractions.

The next thing to hotels is steamships, but we can rest assured that adequate steamship facilities will be provided just as soon as we have the hotels. We have the assurance of Sir Edgar Bowring that the Red Cross line are prepared to increase their service when required. A party of Boston capitalists are also prepared to give us sufficient tourist transportation.

Another essential to tourist traffic is good roads. There is very little use in trying to bring the class of tourist which we desire to this country if we are not prepared to provide him with good motor roads to travel from one vantage point to another. We do not want to cater to the man with the "river." We want the mounted tourist—men who will bring their families, their parties, bring their own cars along with them; stay in the country for weeks and spend money here; we require men of influence who will advertise our country. But they will require good motor roads; there is no use in our talking to them of fishing, game, and scenic attractions if these are not of easy access. This class of tourist does not want to leave his family at a hotel and then tramp miles through the woods to a stream. Of course, we cannot undertake the expense of paved roads in this country and this class of road is unnecessary; the type built in Nova Scotia is quite good enough; that is, a good foundation with gravel topping, and we have the best materials in this country for making such roads.

The roads of Nova Scotia are about 30 feet wide, 7 1-2 of which is taken up with ditches; three to four feet for a sort of shoulder, and the travel part of the road is slightly convex. These roads are always dry, and the grading such that there is no danger of toppling into a ditch if one was obliged to swerve to one side. There are also no ruts to make the car a fixture in the middle of the road. A Road Commission with ample scope and authority is necessary in Newfoundland. A Commission closely connected with the Government, but not so closely as to make it political; it should be free of political pull and waste. The roads should be built with a design as to the system as a whole. They should be built from certain bases; they should project, connect and improve a definite road system. St. John's should be the base. Old roads should be improved, and in many cases, with the opening of a few more miles of road connection could be made with existing systems and which would furnish longer motor routes and open up additional attractions to the tourist. For instance, we could connect Bay Bulls with Holyrood. Connection could also be made with Trepassay. The present road to Placentia could be improved so as to make it possible for motor cars. A good motor road could also be provided from Clarendville to Goose Cove, Bonavista, Catalina, Trinity and a road system opening up Port aux Basques, Codroy, Plaisance, Harry's Brook, Humber, DeerLake, Bonavista Bay, should also be provided. The building of such roads should be carefully planned and supervised by modern road builders. The Road Building Road of Ontario have generously offered to supply us with all the information at their disposal. The work could, with advantage, be carried out by our Government engineer with the assistance of a road building specialist.

Public sentiment is a big asset in carrying out a project of this nature. We should all be united, public-spirited, and aggressive in boosting a scheme which will be incalculable benefit to our country. North Carolina is a typical example of the assurance that may be obtained by a good road system. Governor Chas. B. Aycock was a dreamer, but a practical one, and the present educational facilities of North Carolina are the result of his life's dream. Education brought higher standards and enlightenment and progress, and the necessity of good roads to bring the tourist wealth to the State was soon realized and acted upon. Led by Governor Cameron Morrissey, the State Highway Commissioners obtained sixty-five millions of dollars to commence modern road building. To-day Carolina has 4,500 miles of roads as good as any in California, and 1,500 miles of "sand-clay" roads, connecting every town of importance. Seventy-six millions of dollars have been spent on roads to date. To-day, North Carolina is the biggest manufacturer of tobacco products in the United States, second in textile manufactures, third in furniture manufactures, and twelfth in hydro-electric power. The State has multiplied its wealth by ten in the last twenty years, and during this period its bank deposits have increased from sixteen to three hundred and forty-five millions of dollars. The revenue derived from automobile license, and a cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline, is sufficient to maintain the new roads, pay interest on the bonds. Does it pay to have good roads?

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Morine for his practical and interesting address. The guests were Hon. J. J. Long, Mr. Geo. Bartlett, of Burin; C. C. Pratt, Mark Chaplain, Str P. T. McGrath, Hon. R. K. Bishop, and Mr. Bert Hodge, of Twillingate.

Child's Death Caused by a Fanatic

NANAIMO, B.C., Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press)—Details of the astonishing and unique case of the suffocation of an infant while in its grandfather's arms at a christening have been revealed at the inquest. The Dickie family was dominated by the father, Leslie Dickie, 54 years of age, and a recent convert to the Pentecostal faith. The slain boy was with his mother on a visit to relatives here from Merritt, B.C., and on Sunday morning after an all-night religious service conducted in the home, amongst members of the family only, the grandfather decided there was a devil in the child and he was the one to exorcise it. While the family were in a state of trance he placed his young grandson on the floor, and put his hand over his face, telling all to get on their knees and pray. At sunrise he warned them, on pain of instant death, not to take their eyes off the window for a single instant. The mother, with the babe in her arms, was the last one forced to the window. She said she thoroughly believed that unless she did as she was told she would be stricken dead. She held the child while watching the sunrise and felt it struggling. She knew the baby's grandfather had his hand over its face but was powerless to prevent him. Eventually her father-in-law told her that her "poor wee baby" was dead and to bring it back to life she must stand in front of the window, holding it and praying. She did this for as long as she could then her brother held it for 3 hours. He was then given permission to lay the child on a chair, and all lay on their backs and prayed for three more hours.

There are a great many women who simply must be lovely. They are not satisfied to watch their once exquisite skin losing its freshness, its lustre, its fragile charm. And these are the women who have turned to the Pond's method. It is based on the two principles of skin perfection—a Rejuvenating Cleansing and a Delicate Protective Finish—which Pond's two famous creams so beautifully supply. nov24,26,28

Hall Door Robbery

Now that the dark evenings are here, the sneak thieves are getting busy, and despite many warnings, householders leave their front doors unguarded. The loss of an umbrella, raincoat, overshoes, walking stick, Brushes, children's sleds, skates, etc., is very simple.

The value of any one of these articles is MORE than a full year's premium on everything in the house.

Phaff Will Seek Redress in Court

New York, Nov. 22.—Max Phaff, New York lawyer, who recently spent some time in jail at Brest, France, and some days in court on trial on charges of rum piracy, returned home on the steamship President Harding yesterday. He announced he would file an action for damages against the French owners of the pirated liquor, which was aboard the French steamer Mulhouses. It was they, he said, who had caused his detention and trial.

Phaff, now at liberty on 5,000 francs bail pending further action, asserted that his trial had been irregular, that newspaper men had been barred from sessions, and that garbled reports of the proceedings had been given out by French officials. Finally, he said, he was released on small bail and handed a passport in an obvious effort to put an end to the proceedings.

Phaff said it was his belief that the Paris firm of Maur Francaise, owners of the pirated liquor, had caused his arrest in the hope that those really responsible for the crime would come forward to exonerate him and thus incriminate themselves.

The lawyer was accused of having aided the hi-jackers who raided the Mulhouse off the New Jersey coast last July 24, when her cargo of liquor and all money in her safe were stolen. Two employees of Maur Francaise who had travelled with him from London to Paris made affidavit that he had drunkenly boasted to them that he had participated in the raid. Phaff asserted that he had never drunk in his life and denied that he had discussed rum-running with his French companions. He asserted that the Brest authorities refused to let him produce witnesses who would have given him a perfect alibi and that he was not permitted to see his attorneys.

Expert Counterfeiter Sent to Jail

FORMER ROYAL ARTIST.

Berlin, Nov. 22.—One of the most startling cases in the history of counterfeiting had its conclusion here yesterday when a Berlin court sentenced Ivan Missoyedoff, Russian artist and former favorite of Russian Royalty and his young sweetheart, Malvinana Bernick, to three years and six months in prison for manufacturing and distributing British pound and American dollar notes.

With the aid of a band of other counterfeiters, composed of former Russian officers, Missoyedoff and his pretty Italian accomplice circulated counterfeit currency throughout Europe, disposing of a total of $30,000, but according to the evidence, very little American money was put into circulation.

Their counterfeit British notes were so perfect that the Reichsbank experts had to send them to the Bank of England to confirm its suspicion. Missoyedoff was formerly a member of the Imperial Russian Academy of Fine Arts, and many of his works were bought by the Czar's family.

Last of the Lotteries

Ninety-eight years ago the last English State lottery was drawn. The State lotteries were participated in by all classes of people, and were held at intervals for all sorts of objects. Westminster Bridge owes its existence to one such lottery. The British Museum to another.

Usually the drawing, which took place in public, was performed by a boy chosen by lot from amongst the scholars of the Bluecoat School, who received for his trouble the sum of one guinea.

The coin was solemnly handed to him on a small silver salver by the senior presiding officer.

Sometimes however the proceedings were varied by getting a little girl, brought in at haphazard from the street, to draw the numbers; and at one lottery, held in 1683 for the disposal of Prince Rupert's jewels, King Charles II. himself took the leading part.

The novelty of a king presiding over a "lottery wheel" drew crowds of investors to the Banqueting Chamber at Whitehall, where the ceremony took place. The first prize was a pearl necklace valued at £8,000, won by a poor washerwoman.

Unsystematic Departmental Methods

The system found in operation or the lack of it in various branches of the public service has been a continual source of trouble to the Government since they took office, and a great deal of time and thought is being given to the question of re-organization.

Among the many problems which the Government have before them none appears to call more urgently for attention than that of improved hospital facilities. Apart from the institutions at St. Anthony and at Twillingate, the General Hospital has to attend to the many demands from all over the country, and the accommodation there is always overtaxed.

To these private hospitals great credit is due for the response that they have made under the circumstances, and for the manner in which they have dealt with the cases that have come under their care, but this method of meeting the difficulty does not altogether commend itself for various reasons.

In an article which appeared in the Telegram in March last attention was called to the fact that while only 110-120 beds were available in the General, there had been for some time a waiting list in the Department of Health containing some 700 names.

surgeon who could restore them to health and strength.

We have suggested before and we repeat that considerable confusion arises in connection with the calling in of patients, owing to the fact that this is looked after by the City Department of Health, and the Magistrates who are also Health Officers in the various outlying settlements.

Another peculiar arrangement which has resulted from the numerous and incessant demands made on the district Health Officer is that patients have been sent on to St. John's before they have been notified to report.

We have referred to chronic cases that are at present occupying beds in the General Hospital. Some of them may be incurable, others require treatment which from its very nature must necessarily take considerable time.

Prompt Response

Prompt response of the fire apparatus saved the residence of Mr. W. Dunn, Mundy's Pond Road from destruction to-day. A blaze started in the kitchen shortly after noon, due to a can of tar which was being heated on a cooking stove, boiling over. The Central Fire Hall was notified by phone and the pumper and ladders were on the scene in quick time. Chemicals were applied and the blaze subdued before much damage was done.

IN FOND AND LOVING MEMORY

Of our darling child, Mary Isabella Wiselan, who died November 28th, 1923. Darling Mary how we miss your smiling face, When we look at all the others and see your vacant place; As we sit and think in sorrow of the day we said good-bye And we kissed our little darling just before he saw you die.

But we know you are in heaven, We won't fret for we know it is a sin; Angels called and you did answer, We know it was God's Holy Will. But let us hope that we will meet you On that bright and happy shore; When we will gather around our Angel And our parting will be no more. —Inserted by mother and father.

Record Attendance at Poultry Show

The attendance at the Poultry Exhibition for the past two days has exceeded all records. Yesterday afternoon and night, about two thousand people were present. The silver black foxes entered by Dr. Bishop's farms, Brendon Tilley, Clareville, and the Silver and Black Fox Company, Millertown, were judged yesterday morning by Messrs. W. H. Cave, W. H. Ewing, taxidermist, and Mr. D. F. Percy. At 4.30 the entries of Newfoundland dogs were judged some 29 animals being paraded on the main floor of the Armoury. The judges were: Mr. H. W. LeMessurier, C.M.G., Dr. Ferneaux, Veterinary Surgeon and Mr. W. H. Cave. The silver cup which has been donated by the Poultry Association as the champion prize, will be given the winner to-night, at 9 o'clock by Lady Allardice when all the other prizes will be distributed.

The Committee dined Judge Landry and the other judges, in the Armoury, at seven o'clock last evening. A special vote of thanks was passed to the ladies of Spencer Club for their kindness in catering during the three days of the show, which added a great deal to the comfort of the visitors. The Committee wish to acknowledge their thanks to the following donors for special prizes:—Messrs. T. & M. Winter, J. V. O'Dea Co., Rothwell & Bowring, Ltd., Stevens, Ltd., George Knowlton, Ltd., Halley & Co., Pope's Furniture Factory, Robinson & Co., His Honor Judge Morris, Mrs. Thomas Lynch. After the presentation of prizes to-night, the Lottery Committee will conduct their drawing.

Municipal Council

WEEKLY MEETING.

The regular meeting of the City Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided and Councillors Martin, Cuthbert, Collier, Ryan and Lawson were present.

A communication was read from the Deputy Colonial Secretary, informing the board that its request for a loan for purchase of the Quidi Vidé Lake property has been granted.

A communication was also read from the Newfoundland Methodist College Board, conveying their thanks for the prompt manner in which the retaining wall, Harvey Road, was attended to.

In the matter of Thos. Downey's application to repair buildings Bell and Henry Streets, permit was granted.

The Newfoundland Butter Company Ltd., submitted plans for the erection of a new butterine factory, location of which will be the McDougall property, Topsail Road. They stated that this erection would be some thirty or forty feet from the street line. Consideration was deferred until further necessary information is obtained.

The Medical Officer of Health reported two new cases of Diphtheria, three Scarlet Fever and two Typhoid in the city during the week.

Many routine matters were discussed. The reports of the City Engineer and Sanitary Supervisor were read. After the passing of accounts the meeting adjourned.

Second Performance

OF "PADDY CASEY THE MILLIONAIRE."

The second performance of the delightful play "Paddy Casey the Millionaire," at St. Patrick's Convent school last night attracted a very large gathering. The high standard attained by the performers on the opening night was well maintained and frequent applause attested the appreciation of the audience. The specialties, which consisted of vocal selections by Miss S. Shea, Miss Redstone, Miss Bambrick and Mr. Karl Trappell with Miss Meaney and Miss M. Hanniford as accompanists, were delightfully rendered, and the playing of the Mount Cashel Band was also an added attraction. Mr. H. B. Chafe, violinist, also capably assisted in parts of the performance. The performance will be repeated this evening, when the Prince's Orchestra will be present, and new specialties will be added.

Trappers Brains Worked Overtime

PORT ARTHUR—(Can. Press)—Angus Myer, veteran trapper and settler, had a thrilling adventure in Dorion township when, going over his trap line, a giant bull moose appeared suddenly in the narrow trail and disputed the right of way, by making a furious charge on Myer who refused the challenge and attempted to escape into the bush.

In the excitement he tripped, and a moment later, the gigantic animal towered over him, ready to stamp the human obstruction into the ground, or to tear it to shreds with his sharp hoofs.

Myer who, with a huntsman's instinct had managed to cling to his rifle and his wits, fired upwards, killing the big animal instantly.

He states that the thrills of these short seconds will last him a life-time.

Growth Confidence

THE OUTGROWTH OF

Luck and accident play a very small part in business. Growth is the direct result of success—and success, the outgrowth of confidence. With pride we point to the pre-eminent position we occupy in the St. John's wearing apparel field as an example of the confidence of the public in the BROADWAY Store—a confidence well deserved and one which we will ever cherish and safeguard to the very fullest extent of human endeavour.

Baronet Speaks Out

SIR BRODERICK HARTWELL, PURVEYOR OF LIQUOR TO THE AMERICAN BOOTLEGGERS, TELLS HOW HE CONDUCTS HIS UNIQUE BUSINESS WITHOUT LOSS OR AN UNEASY CONSCIENCE.

(By Donald Lawler)
Sir Broderick had no apology for the business in which he was engaged. In fact, he talked and acted very much the part of a man who was conducting a legitimate business and taking every care to protect and insure his stockholders. It was with embarrassment that I proceeded to ask a question that I felt was very personal and might probably offend him.

Before I outline my question and give his answer it might be well further to describe the character of the man and to tell something of his past history.

Sir Broderick Cecil Denham Arkwright Hartwell of Dale Hall, Essex, is the fourth baron in his line. The baronetcy was conferred by the Crown in 1805. Not all persons in England who bear the title of "Sir" are baronets. A knighthood does not pass from generation to generation, but ceases with the death of two years from whom it is conferred. But a baronetcy descends from father to son throughout the life of that particular family.

Tea Planter and Soldier.
He is the son of a distinguished father, Capt. Edward Hughes Broderick Hartwell, R.N., former Inspector General of the British Constabulary at Jamaica, and later his Britannic Majesty's Consul for Naples and Southern Italy.

Sir Broderick's life itself has been somewhat of an adventure before he undertook his present business. As a boy he spent five years in Jamaica while his father held his official post there. When he was 19 years old he was secretary under his father to the British Consulate at Naples. Then he went off to Ceylon, where he tried his hand at tea-planting for two years. He joined the British Army at the outbreak of the Boer war and got his commission as lieutenant in the 17th Leicester Regiment, the old regiment of his uncle, Sir Francis Hartwell. Sir Broderick was with Lord Roberts' column on its historic march to Bloemfontein and wears the South African medal with two clasps to testify to his service in that campaign.

After the Boer war he resigned his commission and purchased a schooner. He wanted more adventure and found it. Setting out to explore the Pacific Ocean, his little ship was wrecked and the story of his rescue is a story in itself. After that he travelled over the world, was engaged in various financial ventures in London, and then the great war broke over Europe.

Back into the army went Sir Broderick to bear a torch the family tradition in the military history of England. He participated in the "tragedy of Gallipoli" in 1915, was wounded and invalided home.

Recalling that background of family tradition and honorable achievement, I found it a little hard to put the next question to Sir Broderick. I wanted to ask him how it happened that he, a baronet, the descendant of men who had written their names on the pages of English history, had become engaged in a business that in the United States is considered beyond the pale.

I felt around for a diplomatic opening. "There is one thing I would like to ask you," I stated. "Yes," he said, pleasantly enough.

"How did you come to—how did it happen—why are you—well, to be frank, how does it come that you are in this business? What induced you to get in it? Why are you in it?"

I awaited a burst of anger. Instead, Sir Broderick laughed. A pleasant laugh.

"You don't seem to understand in the first place, that my business is a strictly legal one," he answered slowly. "I thought I had made that clear. Secondly—"

"But I don't mean you are actually breaking laws," I returned. "But you are—well, in short, you are helping others break them. Doesn't that sort of put you in the same class?"
He smiled. "You are wondering if my conscience doesn't hurt me because of being in this business. What you don't seem to understand is that the remedy lies in your own country, not in mine."

How He Got His Start.
"You ask why I started in this business. Well, why does any man start in any business? To make money. It happened that in August, 1923, I was able, through my New York connections, to enter into an arrangement to act as their buying agent in England. At the same time I was allowed to put all the goods I could on their vessels for sale at an agreed price on my own account."

"In order to find the capital I offered the public the opportunity to join me. I found this public by sending out 100,000 circulars to selected lists of names in England and elsewhere. This brought me about 10,000 subscribers. I placed a minimum limit of £2, about $8.00 American money, on each subscription. The first shipment was oversubscribed."

"You mean to say that 10,000 people in England helped you finance these liquor shipments to our country?" I asked, to make sure I had understood.

"Exactly," sir Frederick replied. "That is a matter of record. However, I have now reduced my stockholders to about 1,000 on account of the immense details involved in handling a larger number of subscriptions. I raised the minimum subscription to £20, or about $82.80 in your currency. That eliminated some. Then others voluntarily raised their subscriptions."
"You have asked me quite a number of questions," he went on. "Now let me ask you one. Here is a clipping from The London Daily Mail of March 8, 1924. It is headed 'From Our Own Correspondent' and the date line is that of New York City. Here is what is said:
"Revenues totalling £38,160,000 ($172,904,000) have been lost to the United States on liquor landed by rum-runners in waters adjacent to New York in the two years since the so-called Rum Row came into existence."
"These figures were given by Mr. Edward Barnes, Assistant Solicitor to the Collector of the Port of New York, who says that a careful check by the Coast Guard shows that 2,400,000 cases of 14,400,000 gallons of liquor have been landed from Rum Row. The revenue from each gallon would normally be £2 13s. ($11.66).
Sir Frederick asks a question.
"Now will you please tell me," asked Sir Frederick, "how your Coast Guard was able to arrive at those figures?" It is a natural presumption to consider the Coast Guard is stationed to stop smugglers from landing goods. But in relation to whisky it appears it not only made a careful check of the number of cases landed in New York City during the period of two years, but that it actually notified the Collector of the Port of this fact. I cannot understand it.
"I am not deceiving American public officials nor American public servants; don't misunderstand me. But a shipload of liquor is a rather bulky affair. It must be carted somewhere. It must be carted from the landing place to some warehouse. And it must then be redistributed from that warehouse to its ultimate customers. How it gets there is none of my business. But I don't see how they can check it so accurately."
"Of course," he laughed. "I don't expect you to be able to answer that."

Glynnmill Inn Gets Ready for Winter

An enthusiastic and largely attended meeting was held at the Glynnmill Inn, Corner Brook, on the evening of Tuesday, November 12th, at which both residents of the Inn, and members of the outside community were well represented.

The gathering was for the purpose of preparing for winter. These preparations, it may be explained, had nothing to do with the fixing on of double windows or such like practical precautions to keep out the cold, but were for the purpose of appointing a general committee and such sub-committees as the meeting might deem necessary to look after sports and entertainments during the winter season. H. G. Ogden, acting as secretary, explained the purpose of the gathering, after which Messrs Butler was unanimously voted into the chair and called the meeting to order. For the position of president of the general committee, the name of G.

Meebergen was proposed and carried unanimously.

Both Major Butler and H. P. Frost were nominated for the position of vice-president but when Miss F. Powers rose on behalf of the sex and proposed the name of Mrs. H. E. Harris it was generally felt that the wife of our genial purchasing agent was the lady for the job. Major Butler, with the gallantry that distinguishes his actions in such delicate situations, withdrew gracefully from the contest. Mrs. Harris was elected by 36 votes to 27 cast for Mr. Frost. The latter, was unanimously elected as secretary of the general committee. H. V. Anderson, the company cashier, was then elected treasurer, in recognition of his tact in handling pay cheques and a certain faculty of getting cash to balance.

The following were then elected: Chairman of the Entertainment Committee:—A. E. Simpson. Chairman of Winter Sports Committee:—A. Martin. Chairman of the Rink Committee:—H. W. H. Thompson. Chairman of the Billiards Committee:—J. E. Goodacre. Chairman of the Tennis and Badminton Committee:—J. B. Gough. Chairman of the Theatrical Committee:—A. R. Stansfield.

The meeting, seeing that the work was good, then rested from its labors, and, after proposing a vote of thanks to the acting officials, Messrs. Ogden and Butler, broke up about 11 p.m. It was generally felt that any possible dullness in the days that lie between this and next spring had been effectively guarded against.—Western Star.

Report of Fire Patrol of Newfoundland

The following is a report of the Nfld. Fire Patrol Committee which has been received from Mr. L. R. Cooper, the Secretary:—The annual meeting of the Fire Patrol was held in the Department of Agriculture and Mines on the 21st inst., when representatives of the various Companies operating throughout the country met to hear the annual reports and statements. The meeting was also attended by several gentlemen from St. John's interested in the prevention of Forest fires. The Fire Patrol of Newfoundland has been in existence for fifteen years and during that time, a progressive policy

Use Cuticura Soap And Ointment To Heal Sore Hands

as regards the most effective method of fire fighting has been carried out. During the past year, the Patrol was extended for a distance of nearly one hundred miles, and now no less than three hundred and eighty six miles of railway lines are under constant patrol. During the past season four hundred and fifty-three fires have been reported. This is a considerable increase over last year, but fortunately very little material damage was done, thanks very largely to the effective work of the patrolmen. The financial help given by the Government backed by the subscriptions of the various operating Companies has enabled the increased cost of the Fire Patrol to be met, and the Committee in charge of the operations gratefully acknowledge the ready and willing help given by the officials of the Government Departments concerned, and also by the Officials of the Railway.

POOR BUSINESS.

WALT MASON

All the day I have been reading tales of criminals and crime, of the skates who, law unheeding give to crookedness their time. Mighty men, at divers seasons, have embarked on seas of sin, pulling murderers, thefts and treasons, and they all were gathered in. For a time their scornful daughter rang at mention of the law; but that law was trailing after, with a purpose cold and raw. Adams Worth had talents splendid, all to wickedness applied, and in woe and want he ended, in bleak misery he died. Jim the penman was a wonder and for years he plied his trade; but his bones are rotting under stones where prisoners parade. Gifted were the Bidwell brothers, and they framed a mighty plan; but they ended like the others.

chained and broken, to a man. There were rogues whose reputation reached to Dan and back again, calling for the admiration of the half-baked boys and men; for a while we see them glitter, and their luck seems fine and rare, but their end is always bitter, dust and ashes and despair. Books on crime make useful reading when there's truth in every tale, showing how sin's paths are leading to the scaffold or the jail. Fiction often makes the sinner march to triumph, wildly well; truth, which is a four-time winner, shows the hangman and the cell.

Washington Letter

(By Our Own Correspondent).
The Coolidge administration gives expression to the opinion that it is now up to Europe to call a conference to consider reduction of land armaments. Unless Samuel would invite the world powers to such a parley in a minute if he had any assurance, or even expectation, that they would accept. The United States government does not think that this country can cut the same figure in a land armament reduction conference that it did in the naval arms reduction and for that reason, while the Coolidge administration are ready and willing to sit in on such a pow-wow, they do not wish to take the initiative. Let Europe be the starting place for such a movement is the verdict rendered by the Coolidge advisers.

tempt to save the battleship Washington from the fate planned for her by the Secretary of the Navy has failed. The position is taken that because the other nations who were parties to the agreement have not yet ratified it no reason why the United States should not live up to the contract made, nor is it a proof that these nations will not ratify the disarmament agreement in their own good time. Therefore, the Washington must be used for target practice as was planned by the Navy Department head.

against Secretary Mellon and Commissioner Blair to restrain them from giving further publicity to return while a test case has been brought against a Baltimore paper for publishing the returns on the grounds that the amendment to the Revenue Act is unconstitutional.

U.S. Navy an Asset in Peace and War

Washington, Nov. 22.—Modernization of the six older battleships of the American fleet is essential, Secretary Wilbur declared today in his annual report, "If our ratio of naval strength is to be maintained." He indicated his intention to renew the Department's much debated recommendation for a special appropriation for that purpose.

The report omitted the annual study of the Navy General Board relating to supplementary construction required to round out the fleet, and made no direct reference to the programme of ten cruisers and sundry auxiliary craft which failed of passage in the final hours last session. The Secretary is understood to have decided to treat this subject in a special report sent to the House sub-committee on naval appropriations. Neither did he include in his annual report any recommendation for a change in the Navy's authorized personnel of 86,000.

While the report of the General Board for the current year thus is withheld from publication, it is said in naval circles to have stressed the increasing necessity for expediency a construction programme to correct deficiencies in the fleet which, the board held, now prevents the United States from maintaining its proper ratio under the limitations treaty.

With respect to aircraft, Secretary Wilbur said the special board appointed to develop a policy had not completed its work, but had gone far enough to make certain that the navy already recognizes the importance of the air arm to a modern fleet. The recent contract for a patrol plane capable of a sustained flight from San Diego to Honolulu is believed to have had more than casual connection with this study.

"The policy of maintaining the fleet on the Pacific Coast is approved and should be adhered to." The Secretary said, adding that facilities there for its maintenance should be extended. Inadequate funds for repair were the cause of a lowered material condition in the fleet during the past year, he said, and this condition might be expected to become more serious as the ships aged. A subsidiary effect of inadequate appropriations would be a breaking up of expert navy yard organizations, the report warned.

The battleships Wyoming, Florida, Utah and Arkansas were found "unsuitable for fleet work" because of impaired boilers, the Secretary reported, but he said temporary repairs had been made on all except the Florida, which still is out of commission. He characterized the reboling of these units as "a military necessity."

Declaring the scrapping programme was progressing according to schedule, Secretary Wilbur predicted its completion well within the period allotted by the Washington conference agreements. Although the report was written before the filing of the recent injunction suit to prevent the sinking in target practice of the uncompleted battleship Washington, the Secretary devoted considerable space to a description of the tests to which that ship was to be put. It was the only hull, the Secretary said, which embodied new structural ideas intended to meet modern mining and aerial attack, and the department regarded it as essential that information be obtained of the efficiency of such installation. Had the Washington not been available, the report said, it would have been necessary to construct a heavy cost model containing the same features.

The Value Of EXPERIENCE

A Trust Company's Officers are specially trained and experienced in the handling of Trust Funds—that is their business. All transactions in the administration of an Estate are the result of careful consideration by the Trust Company's Officers, guided by the Board of Directors. Every Estate administered by the Trust Company is benefited by the experience of its Directors.

Federal co-operation with and between the United States to develop a national fisheries programme and to conserve the United States fisheries is recommended by Henry O'Malley, Commissioner of Fisheries, in his annual report to Secretary of Commerce Hoover. The report stated that while the fisheries last year showed the industry to be gradually recovering from the depression of 1920 and the following year, there was danger that an adequate supply should be maintained unless steps were taken to safeguard the remaining fisheries and further develop them. The tendency of fishery prices, the report adds, is upward and is likely to continue so for some time to come.

President Coolidge addressing the National Conference on Utilization of Forest Products now in session here, sounded a warning that the United States faces timber exhaustion and urged a specific programme of forest conservation. Approximately 745,000,000 cubic feet of timber is left in the country, the President pointed out, and against this supply there is an annual drain of 25,000,000,000 cubic feet while the annual timber growth is only 6,000,000,000 cubic feet. In the face of this situation, he declared, the nation must turn to the problem of growing wood from the soil like any other crop.

In the course of his address President Coolidge gave expression to sentiments which are as applicable to Newfoundland as they are to the United States and are worthy of repetition. "We hold the resources of our country as a trust," he said. "They ought to be used for the benefit of the present generation but they ought neither to be wasted nor destroyed. The generations to come also have a vested interest in them. They ought to be administered for the benefit of the public. No monopoly should be permitted which would result in profiteering, nor on the other hand should they be indiscriminately bestowed upon those who will unwisely permit them to be dissipated. These great natural resources must be administered for the general welfare of all the people, both for the present and for the future. There must be both use and restoration."

That there will be no special session of Congress is now practically assured. It is anticipated that all appropriation bills and other legislation of a routine nature will be dealt with well within the period of the short session in December and the new Congress will therefore not meet before March 4, 1925. Senator Warren, of Wyoming, is slated for the leadership in the Senate to replace the late Senator Lodge and it is now said that General Pershing will be a member of the reorganized cabinet in the capacity of Secretary of War.

The city of Washington is now menaced by what has come to be known as a traffic murder epidemic. Since Hallowe'en there has been an average of a death a week caused by reckless motorists who have in every case escaped from the scene of the crime without their identity having been disclosed. In almost every case the victims have been killed while standing on the streets waiting to board approaching street cars. The government of the district of Columbia are taking as drastic measures as lie within their power to put a stop to this wanton lawlessness on the part of motorists. They cannot jail breakers of the District regulations under the existing laws so they can only raise the fine limit to a figure that should at least make the ordinary driver extremely careful.

Ambassador Jules Jusserand, French representative in Washington for a number of years has ended the term of his service on behalf of the French Republic in this country. M. Jusserand has done much to maintain pleasant relations and an intimate understanding between the two countries during his term of office and Washington sees him depart with a great deal of regret.

The publication by American papers of income tax returns has caused the greatest stir throughout the country that has been seen in years. Under an amendment to the Revenue Act passed by Congress during the present year the commissioner of internal revenue is required to make available to public inspection the amount of income tax returns with the names and addresses of those paying the tax. Suit has been entered asset to all nations as a guarantee of peace and order." The report called attention to the increasing shortage of officer personnel declaring it already had become necessary to utilize young officers with limited service in responsible positions. It was urged that the allowance of midshipmen at Annapolis be increased to the capacity of the institution, but the Secretary said it would be far better to raise the requirements for graduation and so weed out weaker men than to lower the standard in order to keep a necessary minimum of new officers.

Mystery of a Baby

T. HOLLIS WALKER PASSES SENTENCE.

Child-Mother Arraigned on Own Confession.

Possessing features of a most remarkable character, a pathetic case has been investigated at Lincolnshire Assizes. It involved a charge of murder against Miss Elizabeth Norman, 24, servant, and incidentally revealed a series of kindly acts performed by persons who sympathized with her in her distressing position. The girl was charged with the murder of her baby, Margaret Irene Norman, at Sutton Bridge, between Aug. 31 and Sept. 3, 1923. The infant was born in Holbech Workhouse in June, 1923, and the mother left that institution with the child on August 1. In addressing the Grand Jury, the Commissioner, Mr. T. Hollis Walker, K.C., drew attention to the poignant circumstances of the charge. In the first place, his lordship pointed out, the body had never been produced, which was very uncommon, and another feature was a pleasant one. If one could get pleasure out of such a case, and that was a story of most extraordinary Christian charity on the part of people in the neighbourhood of Sutton. A month after leaving the workhouse accused was found at Sutton Bridge with the baby, and apparently in want. In one house a woman gave her milk, a roadman shared his dinner with her, and a cottager let her stay all night, lighting a fire for her. Afterwards accused was seen without her baby, and explained its absence by saying it had been taken by a friend. That was not true. Arrested at Wisbech a year later prisoner made a statement, and largely upon her remarks the charge was founded. The Grand Jury returned a true bill. Upon the girl being placed on trial the prosecution called witnesses to prove that baby's clothes and a feeding bottle were found in a lake, and were recognized as those of the child. Upon being charged Norman remarked: "I did it because I was homeless, out of work, and starving, and I could not hear to see the child want. She had been ailing and crying all day. I threw it into the river about a mile above Sutton Bridge late at night. I heard a splash."—Defending counsel urged that even in the event of a confession of the crime by prisoner it should be treated with the greatest caution because the fact of murder must be proved by some other source than the absence of the body, as in this case. His contention was that the child was perhaps already dead when it was thrown into the water. In this case, he added, there was no evidence of murder. The jury found Norman guilty of attempted murder, with a strong recommendation to mercy. The Commissioner passed sentence of 21 months' imprisonment.

Fish That Wear Labels

The study of the eggs of fish and also of the early stages of hatching is carried on mainly by means of fine silk nets, known as "Hansen" nets; and at the later stages, by means of the Paterson young-fish trawl. The spawning grounds of the plaice have been discovered with tolerable certainty, and it has been found that the young larval fish are borne on certain currents towards the shallow waters off the coasts from Holland northward to Denmark.

This concentration of millions of young fish into restricted areas has an inevitable effect on the fish themselves. The food supply is limited and the severe competition for it means that the growth rate in these waters is slow.

Accordingly experiments have been made in transplanting young plaice to the rich food grounds of the Dogger Bank, and these have had remarkable results. It has been found that, while plaice in the nursery grounds grow at a rate of about two inches a year, those transplanted to the Dogger will grow as much as five inches.

When a plaice is to be transplanted, it is first captured and then marked with a small numbered disc in the form of a cuff link, which is inserted under the fin. A record of the number of the disc is kept, together with the time and place at which the fish was released.

Fishermen are rewarded if they return the captured fish to the Laboratory at Lowestoft, where it is possible to trace from the records all the relevant details. Approximately 30 per cent. of the marked fish are returned within a year.

"COMME MOL"

"I do hate anyone who is so reserved and reticent," a friend of mine said the other day in regard to one of our mutual friends. "I don't see any need for keeping everything to yourself the way she does. I like to tell my friends things they may be interested in."

"And yet you don't approve of any," I reminded her, mentioning another one of our acquaintances, who is emphatically not reticent, but will tell you what she paid for her new suit, and all about her mother-in-law's quarrel with her sister-in-law, and the full story of her sister's operation, if you are with her ten minutes.

In other words . . . "Of course I don't," she said, "but she goes too far the other way. I don't like to bore people with every detail about my life. I believe in being just reserved enough but not too reserved."

In other words, just as she herself said. She didn't say it but, of course, that was what she meant.

Isn't that what we all mean when we criticize people for going to any extremes and say: "I believe in being just and so to a reasonable degree?" Don't we really mean to just that degree ourselves have reached?

"Now I believe."

We don't like people who are too conservative about everything. We believe in taking a chance once in a while and in being open minded to new things. But, on the other hand, we don't like these people who go off half cocked about everything and want to change everything. "There's reason in all things, we say. And perhaps adds with that unconscious accent on the I "Now I believe in . . ."

Or we don't believe in spending every cent one gets. That's foolish and wicked. On the other hand, we can't see any sense in scrimping and saving the way the R's do. "There's such a thing as being too economical," we say. "I believe in saving a reasonable sum but knowing when to spend money too." In other words, "Comme mol."

The Happy Medium.
I have a friend whom I think is too serious minded. She is always terribly interested in some new movement or other, always studying and improving her mind. Terribly intense. No sense of humor. "I believe in improving one's mind," I find myself saying, but of course one can go too far, I wouldn't want to be like Jane (another friend) and never read anything except novels. But I think there's a happy medium." In other words, being just as serious minded as I am myself.

Yet, if anyone accused us of thinking we represented the happy mean in everything we should be offended at the implication of conceit. Said Horace Walpole: "If angels have a sense of humor how we must divert them."

Let's hope they have.
has been allowed to become quite cool. After all marks have been removed the articles should be rinsed in salt and water to get the colors, and passed through the wringing machine and dried, wrong side uppermost, out of the sun.

If linen is badly scorched, try the following mixture: A cup of vinegar, half an ounce of soap, two ounces of fuller's earth, and the juice of one lemon. Boil well, spread the solution over the scorched spots, and let it dry. Wash the linen, and the stain will disappear.

A tablespoonful of ammonia added to hot water will remove grease from hair-brushes and combs.
A sliced banana added to the white of an egg and beaten stiff makes an excellent substitute for whipped cream.

Borax will remove fur from kettles. Place two teaspoonfuls in a kettle of hot water and boil for fifteen minutes. Then rinse well.
Marble that is stained can be cleaned with two parts of crushed soda, one part of powdered pumice stone, and one part of fine chalk, mixed to a paste with water. Rub the mixture over the marble and clean with soap and water.

Oriental bed spreads, table covers, and other articles considered likely to lose color when washed should never be immersed in water to which soda has been added, but after being shaken free of dust should be washed in a bath made with soap jelly which

St. Andrew's Society

CELEBRATION LARGELY ATTENDED.

Upwards of one hundred and fifty couples attended St. Andrew's Celebration in the Gaiety Hall last night. The affair was held under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor, Patron of St. Andrew's Society, and was one of the most enjoyable and successful social evenings yet held by that body. His Excellency Sir Wm. Allardye, accompanied by Lady Allardye, Miss Allardye and Capt. Goodfellow, were received by the President of the Society and escorted to the ball room, where they remained for a considerable time. The party enjoyed the dancing and before proceeding to supper, Lady Allardye was presented with a bouquet of flowers, by the Ladies' Auxiliary. The programme consisted of fourteen dances, and several extras, the music for which was supplied by the Society's eight piece orchestra. The ballroom was tastefully decorated for the occasion, with autumn leaves, balloons, etc., and made an attractive display. The supper arrangements were in charge of the Ladies' Auxiliary, who had left nothing undone to cater to the wants of those present. Following supper the second part of the programme was begun and did not conclude until an early hour this morning.

Annual Meeting

BROTHERHOOD OF RAILROAD TRAINMEN.

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen held their annual election of officers Saturday night last, at their rooms, off Hamilton Street. A referendum vote of all the members, by ballot, was taken over the whole Railroad, all the ballots being assembled. Trainmaster Noseworthy, Conductor Pushe, and Brakeman Dawe were appointed checkers. The ballots on being counted resulted in the election of Bro. Leonard Clarke, as President; Bro. Austin Tipple, Vice President; Bro. E. A. Mercer, Secretary; Bro. James Thomas, Treasurer. Bro. C. A. Lush, who for three years, was President, was elected as delegate to attend the Triennial Convention which is to be held next May, at Cleveland, Ohio; Bro. G. Forey of the western division was elected as an alternative. The friends of Conductor Lush all over the country, and particularly his old comrades in the C. L. B. will be glad to hear of the honor conferred on him, by the B. of R. T. in selecting him to represent them at the coming convention.

Card Party and Dance

The Star of the Sea Ladies' Association began their season's activities last night with a card party and dance in the Society's Rooms. The affair was largely attended and proved an evening of thorough enjoyment for all. The card tournament was participated in by a large number, and the prizes were won by Mr. Chasity and Mrs. Leonard. Supper was then served by the ladies, following which dancing was indulged in until an early hour this morning. The G.C.C. Orchestra rendered a delightful selection of musical numbers. The prizes for the Elimination Dance went to Mr. P. Flynn and Miss B. Wakelam.

London's Underground Railways

London, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press).—"On the old London steam underground railway nobody travelled except under compulsion," said Basil Mott, in his inaugural address as President of the Institution of Civil Engineers. Mr. Mott gave an interesting review of the London traffic problem. He has been closely connected with the development of the Tube railway system, and is a well-known consulting engineer in London.

The opening of what has since been developed into the City and South London Railway was followed by promotion of 32 tube railways, of which 17 were authorized. A reaction followed and some excellent schemes that would have been of value to London were thrown out. It was now improbable that there would ever be a tube from Piccadilly under the Strand and Fleet Street, into, and passing through, the City. With the exception of extensions of tube railway lines existing in 1903, no further tube railways had been constructed, and considering the heavy cost of works at the present time, it was unlikely there would be many further developments in the immediate future, unless it was found necessary to double some of the lines or construct express lines beneath them. Development other than by the London County Council's tunnels had failed to keep pace with the growing needs of the population during the last 50 years, Mr. Mott said. From Vauxhall to the Tower only 55ft. of width of roadway had been added across the Thames in the last 50 years. From Westminster Bridge to the Tower, 2 1/2 miles, only 55ft. of width of roadway had been added to the cross-river communications since 1831.

Household Notes

Cranberries, candied, and stuck on toothpicks, make a delightful garnish for roast goose of turkey.
Finger-shaped crullers are nice delicately flavored with cinnamon, and dusted with powdered sugar.
Before baking apples, to make them especially attractive, dot them with small red cinnamon candies.

Article IX.
HARBOR GRACE,
May 4th, 1832.
"Mr. John McCoubrey of St. John's sends word that he intends starting a newspaper to be called 'The Times' of St. John's, and promises to give us all the latest news, and he will press diligently forward for the advancement and welfare of Newfoundland." The Mr. McCoubrey mentioned above was the grandfather of our young friends, Dr. and Andrew Carnell of this city. The "Times" had a long and honorable career, but like its contemporary the "Times"—known as the "Thunderer"—had its ups and downs. I edited the "Times" for some years in the interest of the great Liberal Chief, Sir Wm. V. Whiteway—that would be in the late eighties and early nineties.

"June, 1832—We have now arrived at the month of June, and instead of Midsommer Day, we are still looking for the Spring. During the past three weeks the whole Eastern Coast has been completely beset with Arctic ice, and consequently there have been no arrivals. In 1813, just nineteen years ago, the coast was similarly blocked all winter, and if the information of several old persons be correct, our coast was blocked in a similar way for a very lengthy period in the year 1775 and 1774—which looks as if these calamities come cycles of about nineteen years."

"The last two months have been characterized by much frost, and the absence of rain, with the wind mostly from the East, most of the time, has been more like the roudest winter than the time of Spring, and will be long remembered."

"A letter has been received by T. Chancey & Co. of Carbonear from Captain Cowman of the brig 'Alexander' stating he was then off Northern Bay (Bay de Verde), and had been in the ice since April 30th."

"A messenger from Slade Elson & Co's branch established at St. Mary's, St. Mary's Bay, passed through Harbor Grace yesterday on his way to Carbonear, and informed us that St. Mary's Bay was free of ice, but no vessels had arrived there yet."

"Harbor Grace, June 8th, 1832.—The schooner 'Henry' Gave, master, belonging to Bay Roberts, was lost on the weather edge of the ice on Sunday last. Master and crew were rescued by Funton & Munn's brig 'Lord McDonald,' and arrived at Carbonear by way of the North Shore."

"The brig 'Worraile' from Liverpool was lost on Baccaieu on Monday, Captain Bennett and crew were saved."

"The brig 'Elnor' for St. John's with passengers got into Conception Bay this week. The passengers—Mr. John Kent, merchant of St. John's, and Simon Kent, landed at Gull Island Cove, and walked to Harbor Grace." (This will interest Mr. Justice Kent of the Supreme Court, and probably he will hear of the exploits of his ancestors for the first time.)

"It is reported that several vessels which had got into Conception Bay, fortunately got out again, and went southward from Sunday's storm."

"While the 'Elnor' was in the ice a number of men from the North Shore boarded her and demanded provisions, saying they were in distress and need of food. The Captain offered to give them a share of the ship's stock, but while he was below they removed the hatches and plundered part of the cargo."

"June 22nd, 1832—The ice embargo is still on. The brig 'Chance,' Capt. Lowery, for Harbor Grace from Liverpool, is jammed between Clow's Cove and Salmon Cove (Bay de Verde). The 'John and Charles,' Capt. Mead, belonging to Brigus, from her first sealing trip, is jammed near the same place. The brig 'Providence,' Captain Delaney, from the sealing trip, has been some days off Bay Roberts Pt."

"June 29th—Nine sail of square-riggers, also some schooners, were in the ice off Broad Cove this date."
"July—On Friday last, after an unprecedented continuation of North East wind, it shifted to the South West, carrying away the icefloes, and happily relieving the inhabitants of this island from the perilous situation in which the affairs of so many were placed by the long obstruction of navigation."

"In many parts of the North Shore (Bay de Verde) and other remote places of the Bay, men and women were in a state bordering on starvation, and in the Northern Bays famine existed to such a degree that some were reduced to either eating loathsome substances or perishing with hunger. We have it from indubitable authority that in one place a mare and foal were devoured, which had died under disgusting circumstances. The charity of many compassionate persons of Carbonear and Harbor Grace was exercised in dispensing relief from time to time to many suffering people. Notwithstanding this distress and privation and the gloomy outlook for so many, in one short week a crisis, which was so pregnant with deplorable and melancholy evils, was succeeded by the arrival of abundance of provisions and supplies, and preparations for the codfishery were in sight everywhere."

"Twenty-five vessels were entered at the Harbor Grace Custom House from foreign parts in one week, and

TO-MORROW.

To-morrow—if it ever dawns,
Men will get out and trim their lawns.

To-morrow—if it ever breaks,
Men will no longer make mistakes.

To-morrow—on that day sublime,
The laggard now shall start to climb.

To-morrow—if that sun shall rise,
Fools will remember to be wise.

To-morrow—then the world shall find Misers turned generous and kind.

To-morrow—if that day we reach,
The bitterest tree shall grow a peach.

To-morrow—day supremely blest—
Virtue shall reign in every breast.

To-morrow—if that day we see,
The world and men will perfect be.

In my next article I will give some particulars of Brigus. It will show what an important place it was in those days.

Are Women 100 Per Cent. Efficient

How many women do you know who are one hundred per cent. efficient? That means every nerve and sinew of the body pulsating with life and health as nature intended. Do you not know more who are half dead and half alive with aches, pains, nervous, irritable and despondent, making themselves miserable and every one around them?

Women in this condition should let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rebuild and restore them to a normal healthy condition which will make them one hundred per cent. efficient and all life worth living. There are women in every section of this country who testify to its merits.

Dry Sleuths in Motor Car Have Accident

RUN INTO BIGGEST SEIZURE OF YEAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The biggest liquor seizure in New York during the past year was thrown into the laps of Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith, the demon rum sleuths, by pure accident, coupled with the refusal of a truck driver to let well enough alone. The seizure consisted of synthetic booze valued at about $100,000.

Izzy and Moe, in Izzy's car, were motoring about town without a care in the world, when they bumped into a butter and egg truck in front of the office of a "fruit company." There appeared to be little or no damage, but the truck driver chased after the two dry agents and demanded payment for alleged damages.

Returning to the scene, Einstein either noticed or smelled something suspicious about the packages being taken from the truck into the building.

Promising to return and settle the matter of the truck, he went to the United States Commissioner's office to secure a warrant to search the premises of the "Fruit Company" and the $100,000 haul followed.

Rice pudding will be of more creamy consistency if stirred frequently while baking.

"Owe my life to Carnol," says Mr. Sinclair

Following a railway accident, after other medicines failed, he got relief from two bottles of Carnol.

The following letter needs no comment from us. We leave Mr. Sinclair to tell you about his experience in his own words—"I was very much run down and nervous following a railway accident some years ago. Medicines failed to give me any real help, so I decided to try Carnol. I did not have any faith in patent medicines, but a friend of mine said Carnol was far superior to any other of the so-called patent medicines. 'Give it a trial,' he said, 'and let me know the results.' I am glad to say this wonderful medicine has done for me what no other medicine has done, and it therefore gives me great pleasure to give this evidence in favor of Carnol. I would advise all business men who feel, after the strenuous life of the world, that they need a building up tonic, to take Carnol. It is only by giving it a fair trial that they will know its splendid qualities."
"After using the first bottle I noticed a marked improvement. My appetite improved and after the second bottle I could eat like a horse, even raw potatoes and onions would be as welcome as apples. I slept like a log and after a refreshing sleep, I was able to take up the strenuous work of the bustling insurance agent. This work calls for considerable nervous energy in closing business and I can say, with confidence, Carnol has no superior in the medicine line. I would suggest that your company give this letter a most conspicuous place, so that everyone may know what a great medicine is before the public as a restorative tonic and flesh builder. I say, with all confidence, I owe my life to Carnol. Nothing equals this medicine."—Gordon M. Sinclair, Chatham, N.B.

The Situation
at Bell Island

(Bell Island Miner.)
Notwithstanding many strong remonstrances to the contrary, the Mines are still operating with the exception of the submarine, and the Company is maintaining a reasonable force of men. The laying off is not conspicuous as far as the residents of the Island are concerned, but a number of men from Conception Bay have voluntarily quit work and gone to their homes, while several floaters are leaving each day. No. 2 mine did not operate last week, but the force there was used handling the cargoes from the pier, so that no employment was lost. In the meantime rumors of an early "close down" are persistent although there is a general feeling that the main haulages will run, if possible, until December 21st, and the realization of the latter report will have our heartiest support.

Great Picture Now
at the Nickel Theatre

NEXT WEEK "THE LOVER OF CAMILLE."
A picture that will delight everyone who sees it opened at the Nickel Theatre yesterday. It is Goldwyn's first King Vidor production, "Three Wise Fools," fashioned by the director himself from the successful stage play by Austin Strong as produced in New York by John Golden and Winchell Smith. This comedy-drama had a three-years run on the speaking stage. A worth while scene is the jailbreak in which the heroine's father escapes with two other convicts who had staged the flight. The jail delivery, by armored motor-car, is one of the most exciting sequences which we have recently seen.

Miss Eleanor Mewa delighted her audience last evening by her renditions which were faultlessly delivered. Her costumes were appropriate to the nature of her songs.

And look what is coming to this Theatre for Monday. "The Lover of Camille," coming next week to the Nickel Theatre. This is the screen adaptation, by arrangement with David Belasco, of the Sacha Guitay play, "Deburau." Monte Blue plays Deburau, and opposite him is Marie
Prevost, as the Lady of the Camellias.
If a man loves a woman she might sink to the lowest depths of the social ladder and his love for her would remain unflinching. She could be Cleopatra, his love would never leave.
In Marie Duplessis we find a Cleopatra who does not return the love of Deburau, the perfect lover. She does not know what "true love" is. She is coldbloodedly unfaithful and deliberately mercenary. Then she turns her attentions to Armand Duval.
Brokenhearted, Deburau goes on with his work with the thought ever foremost in his mind that one day his Marie would return to him.

N. S. Coal Miners Demand Increase

FROM TEN TO FORTY PER CENT.
MORE TO BE ASKED IN NEW CONTRACTS.

SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 22.—(Canadian Press)—The wage policy to be followed by the executive officers of District
26, United Mine Workers of America in pursuing negotiations with operators in connection with the drawing up of a new contract, was formally decided on at yesterday afternoon's session of the miners convention when the report of the committee under this head came up for discussion.
With the exception of the recommendation that a ten per cent. general increase be demanded the clauses in the committee's report covering the wage question were adopted as read.

The miners' demands are:
"A twenty-five per cent. increase for dotal men, and a ten per cent. increase for contract workers.
"A ten per cent. additional increase for all miners working on night shift or two shifted places and a fifteen per cent. increase for all three shifted places."

The opinion expressed by the delegates during the discussion on this clause was that the company should do away with the double and triple shift and the only way for the miners to bring this about, was to force up the operating costs by demanding high wages for the men employed in those places.

The convention adopted a resolution to the effect that the executive board use its influence with the corporation and the Department of Mines to have all mines now working, continue in operation. Failing this, the resolution states "direct action" will be taken by the district.

Every Dept. Facing Improving Earnings—American Brass Production Making New High Records.
 (From Boston News Bureau, Nov. 21.)
BOSTON—Every Department of the Anacoda Co. faces an improving prospect.
 The American Brass Co. will hang up a new high record of output in its 12 months to end next December. Its production of manufactured material will amount to more than 500,000,000 pounds. The rolling mills at Great Falls, Mont., will turn out in addition sufficient to make Anacoda's total sales of brass and copper fabrications 650,000,000 pounds for the current 12 months. This output is in excess of last year which was the biggest 11 months in point of volume of material manufactured in the history of the company.
 Some misinformation exists as to Anacoda's copper production cost in Montana. The company's reports do not specifically mention the figure but we can state that including expenses of every character and credit in silver as usual to the operating account, its cost is 10 cents per pound. Including depreciation it is about 10 1/2 cents, a figure considerably under that claimed by some who thought they knew the facts.
 The Chile Copper Co., which is 51% owned by Anacoda, is making the best cost records in its history. This great South American producer is outputting 18,000,000 pounds of copper a month against 17,000,000 pounds in the first part of the year and the cost per pound of copper including depreciation is well under 6 cents a pound landed in New York.
 Chile should soon be producing 20,000,000 pounds of copper a month or at the rate of 240,000,000 pounds per annum at a cost lower than can be shown by any producer in the world comparable in size with this great South American property. The company is well supplied with cash through the operations of the depreciation account, it has written down its plant account from above $4,000,000 to under $20,000,000 and is steadily "smuggling" its finances in every direction.
 The Anacoda Co. is one of the great stabilizing factors in the copper industry. It has maintained and still adheres to its position that the copper producers as a whole are guilty of inexcusable waste of one of our great natural resources in forcing the red metal upon the world's markets at such ridiculously low prices as have prevailed during the past few years.

Russian Woman Tells of Cheka

THROWN IN PRISON WITH THREE-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER AND TORTURED—FILTHY CELL—FINNISH METHODS EMPLOYED BY EPSTEIN TO EXTRACT CONFESSION.
 On June 13 four men sat in a back room of a boarding-house on Dorostenstrasse in Berlin and listened to a Russian woman telling this story. She is the wife of a military engineer and had just made good her escape from Sovdepla.
 The others present took notes as she talked. It was not necessary for me to do so, as almost every word she uttered caused me much pain and suffering that I knew I should not easily forget. It is in an effort to rid myself of the nightmare that I now put her story on paper, writes A Student of Bolshevism in the London Daily Mail.
 Mrs. O. M. is a highly cultured woman. Her husband left with Denekin in 1920. She remained in Cherson with her three-year-old daughter—Anita. For a long time no one interfered with her—she even found employment in the secretariat of the town militia.
 In August 1921 she was arrested. In the street, without any warning, Anita was in her arms. They were taken to the Cheka on the Sobornaya street.

DEMANDS DECLARED INQUITOUS.

GENEVA, Nov. 28.
 The League of Nations received a protest from the Egyptian Senate today condemning Great Britain's recent action in Egypt. The document is couched in terms similar to the protest received from the Egyptian Chamber of Deputies, characterizing the British demands for satisfaction for the assassination of Sir Lee Stack Sirdar as excessive and iniquitous.

Auto Accident Restores Cripple

ABLE TO WALK AFTER USING CRUTCHES FOR EIGHT YEARS.
NEWPORT, Ky., Nov. 22.—Herbert K. Flutmus, city commissioner of Newport, a hopeless cripple for eight years, will be able to walk again as the result of an automobile accident last Monday night in which he received bruises near the base of his spine.
 In 1916 Mr. Flutmus fell down a flight of stairs at the Newport water-porks plant, receiving injuries to his spine that resulted in his left leg becoming useless. Since the accident he has been forced to use crutches to walk.
 Monday night his automobile collided with another automobile on a country road near Newport. He received a severe shock and complained of pains near the base of the spine. He was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Covington, Ky., where physicians said he had received minor bruises and that his condition was not serious.
 Last Tuesday he noticed that feeling was returning to his paralysed leg and in a few hours he felt warmth in the injured limb, and it began to perspire. Each day since, strength has flowed into the leg.
 The return of life to the limb is puzzling his physicians, as they had abandoned hope of ever restoring it to use. They said the controlling nerves had been so badly injured in the fall that Flutmus would be crippled for the rest of his life.
 For $2.75 we have a limited number of Girl's Boots in many pretty designs: sizes 11, 12, 13, 1 and 2, at F. SMALLWOODS. nov15.1f

Ottawa Has a Big Hockey Team Now

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—When the Ottawa Hockey team opens the season in the N.H.L. race, Manager Gorman will have two players for every position. In fact, the Ottawa second string has been going so fast in practice that they look almost as good as the seniors.
 It is now settled that Alex. Connell will be the regular Ottawa goalkeeper. Joe Ironstone will be retained for a time, but Connell has played so well that the position is undoubtedly his. He will be a real "find." George Boucher and Edwin Gorman will form the Ottawa defence with Hooley Smith, right wing; Frank Neighbor, centre, and Cy. Denny, left wing. In reserve, the Ottawas will have Clancy and Hitchman for the defence and Campbell, Finnegan and probably another for the attack. Smith and Gorman are showing up brilliantly, and if they continue in the matches, the sensational work they have done in the practices, Ottawa will certainly be one of the teams to beat for the National Hockey League championship.
 The Ottawas rested up yesterday and will do their final practicing tonight in preparation for the Calgary matches on Monday and Wednesday. There is great interest in the appearance of the rejuvenated Senators and big crowds will attend both matches.

STORM SWEEP FRANCE.
PARIS, Nov. 28.
 A violent tempest yesterday wrought havoc both along the western seaboard and the interior of France, occasioning some loss of life at Nantes. A rowboat ferrying homeward bound workers from the shipyard across the Loire filled and sank when struck by a large wave drowning eight of the occupants. At Sables d'Olonne, a seaman was swept off a ketch while trying to make harbor and was drowned near Le Mans. The wind started two freight cars, blowing them into a passenger train and three persons were injured. Other freight cars were blown off the tracks at Champagne nearby, causing long delays in the Paris breast train service.

INRUSH OF IMMIGRANTS CAUSES AUSTRALIA CONCERN.
MELBOURNE, Aus., Nov. 27.

European countries are turning their eyes to Australia for an outlet for their emigrants in view of the restrictions placed upon immigration by the United States. A stir was created in Australia last year owing to the large number of Italian families who arrived without any provision having been made for their subsequent support. Consternation now has been caused by the receipt of a message from Marseilles, which states that a German mail boat is undergoing alterations for the purpose of engaging in immigration to Australia to carry twelve hundred Jugo Slavs to Australia on its first trip.

EIGHT PERSONS KILLED IN TRAIN AND MOTOR CAR COLLISIONS.
CHICAGO, Nov. 28.

Eight persons were reported killed last night in two separate collisions between trains and automobiles at Lombard, Ill., 20 miles west of here, and Aurora, Ill., 30 miles west of Chicago. Three women were reported killed when the Chicago and North Western train struck an automobile at Lombard, and three men and two women died at Aurora where the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy train struck an automobile.

MINING ACCIDENT IN WALES.
CARDIFF, Wales, Nov. 28.

After working waist deep in water and battling with deadly black damp all night, rescue crews this morning were still struggling to reach nine miners who were entrapped last night in Penlan pit at Dunvant, when a sudden rush of water caused numerous roof falls. One body has been recovered from the debris and several score miners escaped through the water, reaching their necks. Hundreds of women relatives of the trapped men kept a night-long vigil at the pit head.

EGYPTIAN NATIONALISTS RESOLUTIONS.
CAIRO, Nov. 28.

A resolution adopted at a meeting of the members of the Nationalist delegation including several who held Cabinet portfolios under Zaglouli Pasha declared the nation does not ask for arrangement regarding the waters of the Nile but that it insists on the rights of Egypt in the Sudan. The resolution protests against the Government's consent to the withdrawal of Egyptian troops from the Sudan to which step the Zaglouli Cabinet and parliament categorically refused to agree.

A NETWORK OF PLOTS DISCOVERED IN EGYPT.
CAIRO, Nov. 28.

Twelve more persons were taken into custody this morning, and the police expect to detain thirty five in all, as precautionary measures. Four prominent members of the Egyptian party with which former Premier Zaglouli Pasha is identified were arrested by the British authorities in Cairo yesterday, and later turned over to the Egyptian Government. Official quarters in London last night were quoted as declaring that men arrested, two of whom were members of Zaglouli ministry, were leaders in a conspiracy against the British interests. Following the recent assassination of Sirdar Sir Reginald Stack, it was said a network of plots has been discovered menacing the lives of British officials of all ranks in Egypt.

Forty-Five Years in the Service of the Public—The Evening Telegram.

London Letter

(By PANTON HOUSE, for the Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Of all the sights and shows of London none is so famous and well-beloved as the Lord Mayor's Show, which took place today. Unlike the historical pageants arranged from time to time in ancient towns all over England, it is the real thing—not a painstaking revival, but a medieval pageant that has lived on into the 20th century. Every London citizen expects his Lord Mayor to do his duty and provide it; in 1852 there was nearly a riot when the Chief Magistrate of the year drove to the Royal Courts of Justice attended only by his sheriffs and officials.

The show is one of the reasons why it is an expensive honor to be Lord Mayor of London. It is paid for, half by the Lord Mayor and half by the Sheriffs. What with this and hospitality to distinguished guests, British and foreign, a year of office means at least $75,000 out of his private purse. The show is never twice the same, though some of the ingredients are always there—several military bands (this year there were 10, duly spaced along the procession); representatives of the Army and Navy, and nowadays the Air Force, to say nothing of the Keepers of Epping Forest in their "velveteens"; and, of course, the Lord Mayor's wonderful vehicle, a mass of curly gilded ornament—his coach. It was built in 1767 and weighs nearly four tons. It is Cinderella's coach come to life, but it is uncomfortable to ride in, for it is supported on leather braces instead of springs.

The incoming Lord Mayor's connection with the Vintners' Company inspired the spectacular part of the show this year. Between 1270 and 1890 this company had furnished the city with 16 Lord Mayors, and they were all represented, each with the custom of his period and mounted on a charger, and each accompanied by an esquire mounted on a charger and carrying a banner with his emblazoned arms. St. Martin, patron saint of the company (since his day, Nov. 11), falls at the time when the new wines are first drawn off from the lees in the vintage countries) was attended by a number of officials in picturesque attire—the company's Bargemaster-Swan Warden, Swan Marker, and Swan Uppers. It must be explained that for centuries all the wild swans on the Thames have belonged to somebody—either the King, the Vintners' company, or another City company, the Dyers. During the summer officials representing the owners round up the birds, and, as it were, brand all the "cleanskins" by cutting a certain number of nicks on the youngsters' bills.

Another feature of the show was a representation of the lighting of the city in 1689. Twelve men in the costume of that time carried poles bearing lanterns of the design then set up by the Tallow Chandlers, Tin Plate

Workers and Horners' Companies. Altogether there were over a thousand persons in the procession. Its length has not been officially estimated, but some shows of the past have extended to a mile and three-quarters. As it went at a foot-pace from the Guildhall to the Law Courts in the Strand, by a roundabout route that takes in the Lord Mayor's own particular ward, and after the Lord Mayor has been sworn, returns to the Guildhall by another way; it cannot be denied that it thoroughly dislocates traffic and interferes with business for a good many hours. But nobody cares, except a few kill-joys, and the Show will probably go on as long as we have a London and a Lord Mayor.

Canadians who lingered in London up to Nov. 16 (for the month fell this year on a Sunday) were able to take part in a holiday that has only varied in detail for six or seven hundred years. They also saw the London crowd at its best—miles of it, five or six deep along the pavements, patient, amiable, and taking care that the children, and the weak, and the hospital nurses got the best places in the front row.

After the Show the Lord Mayor's banquet at the Guildhall at which His Majesty's ministers are the chief guests, and an important speech is always made by the Prime Minister of the day. Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald was not in office quite long enough to perform at this function, and Hon. Stanley Baldwin spoke, as he spoke last year. The Canadian lawyers, newspaper men and other who parroted the city's hospitality this summer need not be told that the scene is magnificent and the food worthy of the occasion. Turtle soup, of course, led the way—the traditional nourishment of the city Aldermen; and lamb cutlets, partridges and pheasants were supported by "barons" of cold beef. A "baron" is almost the entire back of a heifer, and weighs on the average about 180 lb. To provide each of the thousand guests with a portion, five were needed. These noble roasts have to be cooked some days before the banquet, so that they may be allowed to cool.

Many Canadians are under the impression that for several weeks about Christmas all the London theatres present children's plays and pantomimes, and nothing else. This is not the case and was never even approximately true even in the great days of pantomime. In central London alone there are over 40 theatres among which, 20 years ago, there may have been a dozen "pantos". This year there will only be three pantomimes of the old school—really an elaborately-mounted variety entertainment strung on a thread of nursery story, "Dick Whittington", for instance. Besides these there will be a few children's plays of the "Peter Pan", "Treasure Island", of "Where the Rainbow Ends" type.

The old-style pantomime has split up into two separate kinds of entertainment—the revue and the real children's play. Managers will not take off a successful play in London for a few holiday weeks, and which may cost anything from $75,000 to $100,000.
