Leach and John Murphy. The four last named announced their withdrawal and George Flint was called to the chair to preside over the speakers to ten-minute addresses.

Mr. W. T. Stewart read his speech and was well received, but at the end contrived to offend some of his hearers by his allusions to the aqueduct scheme.

On the whole, the proceedings in No. 1 were distinctly in favor of E. A. Macdonald, and in the expression of approval or disapproval of the candidates who all sought for economy and retrenchment in expenditures.

The crowd that Deputy Returning Officer John Beale, the candidate for civic honors in No. 2 Ward faced in Moss Park rink was a good-natured one and free in its expression of approval or disapproval of the candidates who all sought for economy and retrenchment in expenditures.

T. EATON Co., (LIMITED)

190 YONGE STREET, Dec. 31, 1895.

Store will be closed all day to-morrow—New Year's.

The Christmas candles have almost burnt out. The old year is almost a memory. Ring out the old, ring in the new—1895 has been the best of years.

Trade has been phenomenal, success has been emphatic, and the record of daily sales shows constant increase. The store is pre-eminent in its command of values, and evidence of prosperity is all around. The year has emphasized more than ever before the possibilities of Early Closing. For two months in midsummer we close regularly at 5 o'clock, in addition to Saturday half-holidays. The days before Christmas we closed regularly at 6 o'clock, in spite of the stress of business. Good-will with us is more than profit, and the appreciation of hundreds of salespeople is endorsement enough for any reform.

Ring out the old. The business is bigger and the store is better than a year ago—bigger in range of stocks, better in values and service. We swing into January with higher aims and broader ambitions. We round out December with colors flying and the laurel crown of a prosperous year. Good-bye, '95. We'll keep your memory green.

THE MOUNTAIN AND THE MOUSE.

Some few months ago, when our waterworks gave out, and when we had to fall back on the primitive system of delivering water from houses to houses, the fact that it spontaneously occurred to many citizens that there were several screws loose in Toronto's civic government. Bankers compiled official figures showing that the city was richer than any other city on the continent. Civic citizens protested that the civic machine was, or had been, in the hands of corrupt politicians and jobbers. The papers were filled with letters from prominent citizens bewailing the unenviable position in which the city found itself. It really seemed as if the city fathers of Toronto were determined to do something to lift themselves out of the mire. Public meetings were held to devise a new constitution for the city. A special committee of the City Council was formed to wrestle with the matter, and they did wrestle with it to the best of their ability. The Ratepayers' Association and other public bodies discussed the pros and cons of Civic Reform. Civic Reform, in short, was the order of the day. Toronto during the present year, the war scare alone excepted.

The whole city was in labor over the thing. The pains came on in time. The city went to bed in great distress. And what was the outcome?

Bob Fleming. This is more ridiculous than the fable of the mountain and the mouse. Bob Fleming, the resultant product of all this pious indignation at civic corruption, hubbub and incompetence!

Bob Fleming, the pilot who is to steer the civic craft through the narrow and to bring it safely into port!

What a farce this whole question of Civic Reform has turned out to be! We, who have experienced a regeneration, we have to put up with a Humbug.

Bob Fleming is as genuine an all-round humbug as is going. He is now endeavoring to humbug the people into providing him with a situation at a big salary.

Bob Fleming is out of a job. He can't get the Assessment Commission. There is no money nowadays in the temperance business. The only thing that might be done is to bring in approaches that high and honorable offices in the capacity of an incidental unobscured himself to the cause of the movement for Civic Reform.

If the citizens were to commit the blunder of electing Bob Fleming, they would be represented by a man who is insincere. He poses as a temperance man at one minute and the next he is confidentially unobscured himself to the cause of the movement for Civic Reform.

Bob Fleming is not only a Humbug himself but he is surrounded by humbugs. The News and the aqueductors support him. The former, as everyone knows, is the proponent of the Toronto press. Two years ago The News repudiated Fleming as vigorously as it was able. It charged him with conspiracy with the Street Railway Co. to alter the franchise agreement in such a way that would have caused the city to lose several hundred thousand dollars. It specified his many shortcomings, and it discredited him by adding further to it with Bob Fleming. The News is now advertising the cause of the Consumers' Gas Company as against the rights of the citizens. The News is trying to betray the citizens into letting the pocket of hungry aqueductors into the city treasury. What we want in Toronto to-day is a man of character, a man of sincerity and courage, who will take with him and scourge who will stand by his business and defend it. We don't want those who will supply for us. We don't want them to supply with water. The aqueductors and Bob Fleming are both after the same game: They want to make a living. If it is a fortune, by collecting tribute from the ratepayers.

Our advice is to send a list of these people adrift. Make them produce something, make them earn an honest livelihood. If they can't make a living in Toronto in the same way as respectable citizens do, let them go to the Northwest and grow wheat and herd cattle. That's exactly where the whole gang should be. The way to get cheap light is not to let a new parasite in upon us but to regulate, and, if necessary, destroy the parasites that already feed upon us. The way to improve our present system and not to further add to the expense by bringing into existence another company whose shareholders are the community as a whole is to let the community as a whole be in the drive.

Bob Fleming believes in the aqueductors have been told half a dozen times by the people and the council that they are a nuisance, yet Bob Fleming they are a nuisance to his coat tails. If Fleming should be elected, the aqueductors will have another innings and for another whole year. We wish to see subjected to an intolerable nuisance.

Follow-citizens, spare the city from the onslaughts of this "Civic" gang. Drive them back as you would a pack of ravenous wolves. They have no conscience. They are insincere. Their only object is to squeeze the city as one would an onion.

WHITTING DOWN.

The World some time ago gave the purport of the remedial bill that the Government proposed at that time to submit to the citizens. It was thought the conditions of the bill were so palliative that they could be accepted by all moderate members. But what was the bill at that time was, it will have to be whittled down to have any chance of being carried at the forthcoming election. The Premier should have whittled it down when he heard the news from North Ontario. He should have whittled it down still further when the result of Cardwell was made public. He should also have taken a whack at it when Clarke Wallace resigned, and now that Governor Centre and Jacques Cartier, two of the men who have no necessity for the remedial legislation, it would be better on the part of the Premier to whittle it down to the vanishing point. There is apparently no need for a remedial bill at all.

SELECTING A TROUSSEAU.

This Advice Ought to Command Itself to Every Girl, But It Won't.

The preparation of a trousseau is always a matter of delight to even the girl who must economize in the pile of dainty linens and the various pretty trifles so dear to her feminine heart. The romance is not always taken out of the task when carte blanche is given to a big firm to prepare everything, for there are dozens of small details which no outsider can manage to the entire satisfaction of a prospective bride. But it is the girl who is able to supply herself with what she desires and selecting herself, that the duty has the supreme right; although on an economical little woman, whose mind dwells more on the love attached to the pretty garments than on their intrinsic value, the selection of a trousseau, which cannot be equalled by any other job of courtship.

A word of advice to these latter maidens, and to those whose purse is not unlimited is to the effect that quality is better than quantity in the little incident of life, as well as in all others. A few pretty nightgowns, well made and daintily adorned with lace, are better by far than a dozen cheap, flimsy ones. Two well-made gowns are better than six cheap ones. And so on through all orders of garments, if they are provided. The state of life is to be considered at this time even more than at another, for as the besting of the country have been waiting solution for some years past, we find during this time that a want of harmony has prevailed between the various branches of the government. One or other of the three legislative bodies has been antagonistic to the balance and the result has been the creation of a deadweight from time to time, which has paralyzed business and retarded the progress of affairs throughout the whole country.

Another serious defect in the constitution has just become manifest. No matter how serious a blunder, no matter how many millions of loss, the Premier may entail upon the people there is no method of having him removed from office until the expiration of the term for which he was elected. The blunders of a century, and yet he remains in office and will remain in office until his term of office expires. If the Prime Minister of England were to commit a blunder, he would find himself out of office within 24 hours; and if there was any doubt as to the feeling of the country, a few weeks would be a general election and the Government of the country would be entrusted to men who were entirely in sympathy with the people. Such close scrutiny of the Government and the public is impossible in the United States.

A further weakness in the constitution of the United States lies in the fact that insignificant States have an equal voice with the most important States in the determination of the west and northwest, with their sparse population and limited contribution to the revenue of the country. In the United States, the States of New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts. An effect of this inequality of representation in the present system of unequal representation of the petty States of the west and northwest are enabled to dictate terms to the States of the east, and to start the introduction of a sound financial system. The property of the Eastern States has been checked for years back by reason of the unequal financial propositions of the United States.

The United States will most effectively rid itself of its very serious troubles by commencing a new constitution. Unless it is amended, chaos must be the outcome of all attempts to successfully govern the country.

WASHINGTON FINANCES.

The financial situation as regards the United States continues to grow more gloomy. Wall-street was lower yesterday and closed weak; no Americans were sold in London; and over $500,000 were drawn from the gold reserve at New York. Americans are hoarding their own gold, expecting that it will soon go to a premium. We believe it is at a slight premium here.

The President is likely to authorize the Secretary of the treasury to offer. But this is not certain; it is, however, quite certain whatever the amount of the issue may be it will simply drive away. It is not likely to be a success. Congress, however, seems ready to enter upon an elaborate system of tariff tinkering and tariff discussion, the net result of which will be to unsettle business.

The country is rapidly losing faith in Congress doing anything to improve the financial situation.

THE GRAND TRUNK'S NEW MANAGER.

Mr. Hayes, the new manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, has now in his hands the destinies of one of the largest railway systems on the continent. If Mr. Hayes brings into play the executive ability that has characterized his work in other spheres, we believe he will effect a wonderful improvement in the Grand Trunk system. There is a splendid field for an energetic and original mind to operate in. Mr. Hayes is credited with having some good ideas in regard to the best way to give effect to them on the system which he now directs. Mr. Hayes enters upon his new duties with the best will and the best wishes of the public. We are sure that he will improve the great property that has been committed to him and that he will surprise the world by making it profitable. We earnestly trust he will improve the great property that has been committed to him and that he will surprise the world by making it profitable. We earnestly trust he will improve the great property that has been committed to him and that he will surprise the world by making it profitable.

NOT ON THE SHELF.

Women of Advancing Years no Longer in the Background.

One of the greatest mistakes of life is that of a woman's sitting down when she has passed the meridian of years and quietly waiting for death. It may be exceedingly good and quite like the action of some sweet old story, the patient waiting for pale face and plaid smock and folded hands, playing in a way the part of the old ladies and penates beside the fire; but there are much more effective parts than that of a statue in a niche, hid and forgotten, as far as the world is concerned. It is no real reason for going into the grave before it is ready for us.

It is not, however, very long since this attitude was thought the proper thing for the elderly. Women with grey hair not only hid it with a wig or cap, or even hid it with a veil, they said, and so they put it out of sight, as far as the world was concerned. But times have changed, and the old are not so well as they were. They are now being urged to be more active, to be more interested in their own lives, to be more interested in the lives of others. They are now being urged to be more active, to be more interested in their own lives, to be more interested in the lives of others.

It is a pleasant sight now in all the country towns where the trolley car has penetrated to see the elderly people sitting on the benches, reading their papers, or talking to their neighbors. They are now being urged to be more active, to be more interested in their own lives, to be more interested in the lives of others.

RING OUT THE OLD YEAR.

FATHER TIME, HIS SCYTHE AND HOUR GLASS AGAIN TO THE FORE.

Why We All Resolve to be Good as a New Year Dawn—Watch Night Services—That Will Attend the Closing of 1895 and Assist in Entering in What Promises to be a Happy, Successful Twelvemonth.

Before the dawn of another day we shall have buried the old year, and all its cares and joys, will be things of the past, and 1895, fraught for us with we know not what, will be upon us. As Canadians we may look back upon the past 12 months as a comparatively happy and prosperous period. Abundant crops and improved trade conditions generally have bettered the standing of our agricultural and commercial communities and as a consequence we stand on the threshold of the coming year fairly buoyant and hopeful.

One thing there is that mars the fair outlook—the possibility of hostile relations between two of the world's great nations—hostilities in which, if they ensue, our country will be involved in a most disquieting prospect—only slightly disquieting because it is so remote—reminds us of a custom that obtained among the Romans in pagan times. In Rome, New Year's was dedicated to Janus, sacrifices were offered to him upon 13 altars, and every one was careful so to order his conduct on that day that he might offer to the gods a happy augury of all the days of the year both for himself and the nation.

Though the early Christians condemned this manner of keeping the New Year, and the celebration was proper, and it behooves us all, both individually and as a nation stand on the better chance of getting the most out of the impending 12 months.

It was no doubt the origin of the idea that originated the custom of starting the new year with a resolve to "turn over a new leaf" and to regard personal conduct. And though we have all experienced the truth of the adage "good resolutions are like the lilies of the valley; they bud, blossom and fade away," we shall most of us likely resolve on the morrow to do great things during the coming year.

The New Year at the Churches.

New Year's eve and day will be kept in Toronto as in former years. When the bells have tolled out the old year and the church organs have rung in the new, a day of mingled worship and merry-making will be commenced. Church services will be attended, feasts will be spread, and general goodwill born in the Christmas cheer will reign throughout our city.

Watch-night services will be held this evening at various churches and in others people will gather to worship to-morrow.

At St. James' Cathedral no New Year's service will be held, but the congregation will gather for public worship at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning. The first day of 1896 will be celebrated in a similar manner in other Anglican churches at 11 p.m. To-day watch-night service will be held at St. Stephen's.

Presbyterians do not, as a rule, spend the closing moments of the old year and the opening moments of the new in the manner of the Anglicans. They prefer to assemble during the forenoon on the 1st of January in accordance with this practice, the Rev. Dr. McVicar, the Rev. G. M. Milligan and the Rev. J. W. Jones will conduct services commencing at 10 a.m. to-morrow in New St. Andrew's, old St. Andrew's and St. James' squares churches respectively.

The Rev. Dr. Thoms will open a series of lectures in the lecture room of Jarvis-street Baptist Church at 10.30 a.m.

Watch-night services being in more favor amongst Methodists, services of prayer will be held at the Metropolitan and at the Methodist churches at 11 o'clock this evening.

It is not necessary to gather together on New Year's Eve, but uniformly keep Jan. 1 as a festival, celebrating it as the anniversary of our Lord's Resurrection. Our Lord's Resurrection services will therefore be held in St. Michael's Cathedral at 6, 7 and 9 a.m. to-morrow, and corresponding services at other churches.

The Army will celebrate the coming of the year by Watch-night meetings at the barracks except the Dovercourt and Yorkville.

The gathering of Methodist Sunday School children last New Year's Day was such a success, that it was resolved to make the event annual. Therefore a meeting will be held at Massey Musto Hall to-morrow afternoon, and the combined orchestras of the schools will be present to lead the singing. The top gallery will be reserved for the parents and friends of the children, and an admission of 10 cents and upwards will be charged for the children.

The committee have decided to make this collection a New Year's gift to the Society.

For those desirous of attending a concert, the Metropolitan and Yorkville places of amusement to-night and to-morrow afternoon and night, the theatres and concert halls offer attractions.

Mass meeting to-night—Fleming for Mayor—Vardell's Hall, Spadina-street, 8 o'clock; and Town Hall, Brockton, 8 o'clock.

The Old Story Every Time. Nothing succeeds like success, but permanent success means merit, in an age of enlightenment. The success achieved by Pinemal is due to merit. Remedies injurious to the nervous system and nauseating to the stomach are displaced by a remedy that is more rational and scientific. John L. Simpson, a prominent merchant, Chairman, Ont., writes Feb. 1895: "I suffer from chronic throat and bronchial trouble, attended with a cough which has continued until I struck the new medicine, PINEMAL, that gave me immediate relief. I have testified to the great merits of the new medicine. Other persons in Chatham bear like testimony. In chronic cases of cough and indolent consumption, ask druggists for Pinemal and Hypophosphites instead of plain Pinemal."

Pinemal's Many Uses. Turpentine is an article so widely used in the arts, and so easily obtained that its virtues as a domestic remedy have, in a great measure, been overlooked, says the Boston Globe.

In the early stages of croup, or any throat or chest trouble, it is well-nigh a specific. The writer has seen a child who had the cough disappear after its use, as follows: Rub the chest and throat until the skin is red, then tie a piece of flannel or cotton-batten over the chest, moistened with a few drops of the oil, and inhale the vapor. By rubbing on sweet oil, irritate the throat, but would not be so effective as turpentine.

For burns it is invaluable, applied either with a rag, or as a salve. The pain vanishes and healthy granulation soon begins. Its use is at first attended with considerable smarting, but the permanent good more than compensates for it.
