W. E. HEBB, Esq., Mgr. for Nova Scotla, The Fidelity and Casualty Co, DEAR SIR DEAR SIR:

I received the Company's cheque, through you to-day, in the amount of $82.86 for my sickness claim. As the claim papers only went in on the 15th inst., I was completely surprised by the promptness with which it was settled, and I feel that personally I am under an obligation to you for your activity in the matter. Certainly no other company could have been prompter, and it is doubtful if any other agent would have expedited matters as specifly.

I shall have much pleasure in recommending your excellent Company to my friends.

The cure welcomed me with both hands to the presbytere, which, even for a presbytere, was noticeably clean and tidy. The chief ornament was a life-sized potrari of Louise Quipze, enfant, painted by a former cure in the days when the young Louise Quinze was beginning with almost as much religious observance as Louis Quatorze had ended with. We took a walk round the glebe, which was the same sixty acres that had been set apart for the purpose under the old regime. The large, new double-spired Church of St. Louis was built by another cure, good Father Pelle-tier, who paid two-thirds of the cost with the savings of a lifetime, twenty thousand dollars. The remaining third was raised by the parishioners—less than a thousand souls. I looked round for the poor box, to the great amuse-ment of the cure, who said I'd have to come again—perhaps after they

The cure

Among the hundreds of thousands who pass Isle-aux-Coudres every year, not even the hundreds know it is the most historic of all Canadian islands, not even the hundreds know it is the most historic of all Canadian islands, writes Col. Wm. Wood of Quebec, in The University Magazine. It is the home of folklore, story and romance. Its population forms one of the purest and most primitive of French-Canadian communities. It has always bred a splendid race of seamen. It was the last stronghold of the fighting smugglers, who survived there in affluence and power down to the final decade of the nineteenth century. It was the scene of one of the most marvellous and best-authenticated apparitions ever reported by believers in either modern miracles, second-sight, or psychical research. And it played a notable part in Pitt's great Empire Year of 1759. At that time it was the renderways, first for the vanguard and then for the rearguard, of the mightiest British feet which had ever yet crossed the seas. The famous Captain Cook was the first British officer to take soundings along its shores. Guy Carleton commanded its first garrison. A Good Bond That Yields 6.66 p. c. Such Is Porto Rico

Besides this deserved popularity there is a newer reason why our limited offering of For. Side General Telephone Bonds should move quickly. And that is the gratifying results of the Company's operations during 1912. Earnings were 35 p. o. greater than the previous year, and were sufficient to meet the bond interest several times over.

has owned the seigniory since 1687; the ecclesiastical power has probably enjoyed a longer unbroken reign here than in any other part of America, and, granting the right or expedience of churchly rule at all, it cannot be said to have been abused in its little principality of Isle-aux-Coudres. The first cross in Canada was set up here in 1855, a year before the one commemorated at the Tercentenary of Quebec. And Mass was said here, at intervals, by ships' chaplains, from that time on for the next two hundred and thirteen years, when Father Gerrault was appointed the first regular cure. Ten years after this, Pere La Brosse, the great apostle of the maritime St. Lawrence, was the cure in charge. And sixteen years later again, on the old night of the 11th and 12th of April, 1782, the bell of Isle-aux-Coudres began tolling of its own accord, and Father Compain got up, dressed and went down to the beach at Le Mouillage. Here he waited patiently till a canoe from Tadousac, nearly seventy miles away, came in with the corpse of Pere La Brosse. The crew said Pere La Brosse had been apparently in perfect health at hine o'clock the night before, and was enjoying a game of cards with them, when he rose from the table suddenly, saying that they were to come for his body at midnight and take it to Isle-aux-Coudres, where they would find Father Compain waiting. There are still some old folks alive to-day who had the tale from those whom the three solemn strokes roused from their explaration what it may, that is the evidence as it has been given, again and again, by every witness concerned, without a word of contradiction, for the last hundred and twenty-nine years. She was followed by Heaty, who car-ried a tray laden with things that ought to have tempted any man. She motioned for Hasty to put the tray motioned for Hasty to put the tray on the table and then began arranging the dishes. Hasty stole to the window and peeped out at the tempting flare of red fire.

When Douglas discovered the presence of his two "faithfuls" he was touched with momentary contrition. "Have you had a hard day with the new gravel walk?" he asked Hasty, remembering that he had been laying a fresh path to the Sunday school a frest path to the Sunday school room.

"Jes' yo' come eat yo' supper," Mandy called to Douglas. "Don' yo' worry your head 'bout dat lazy husban' ob mine. He ain't goin' ter work 'nuff to hurt hisself." For an instant she had been tempted to let the pastor know how Hasty had gone to the circus and seen nothing of Polly, but her motherly instinct won the day, and she urged him to eat before disturbing him with her own anxieties. It was no use. He only toyed with his food; he was clearly ill at ease and eager to he was clearly ill at ease and eager to be alone. She gave up trying to tempt his appetite and began to lead up in a roundabout way to the things which she wished to ask.

"I ar's quite some racket out dar in "I ar's quite some racket out dar in de'at tonight," she said. Douglas did not answer. After a moment she went on, "Hasty didn't work on no walktoday." Douglas looked at her quizzieally, while Hasty, convinced that for reasons of her own she was going to get him into trouble, was making frantic motions. "He done gone ter de clarges" he behuted out. Douglas' face rranc motions. "He done gone ter de circus," she blurted out. Donglas' face became suddenly grave. Mandy saw that she had touched an open wound. "I jes' couldn't stan' it, Massa John. I had ter find out 'bout dat angel chile."

There was a pause. She felt that he was waiting for her to go on.
"She didn't done ride today." He looked up with the eyes of dumb, persecuted animal. "And de gemmen in de show didn't tell nobody why—jes' speaked 'bout de udder gal takin' her place." "Why didn't she ride?" cried Douglas, in an agony of suspense.

"Dat's what I don' know, sah."

Mandy began to cry. It was the first time in his experience that Douglas had ever known her to give way to any such weakness. Hasty came down from the window and tried to put one arm about Man dy's shoulders. "Leab me alone, yo' nigger!" she exclaimed, trying to cover her tears with a show of anger that she did not feel; then she rushed from the room, stollowed by Hasty.

The band was playing loudly. The din of the night performance was increasing. Douglas' nerves were strained to the point of breaking. He would not let himself go near the win-dow. He stood by the side of the table, his fists clinched, and tried to beat back the impulse that was pulling him toward the door. Again and again he set his teeth.

It was uncertainty that gnawed at him so. Was she ill? Could she need him? Was she sorry for having left him? Would she be glad if he went for her and brought her back with him? He recalled the hysterical note in her behavior the day that she went away—how she had pleaded, only a few moments before Jim came, never to be separated from him. Had she really cared for Jim and for the old life? Why had she never written Was she ashamed? Was she sorry for what she had done? What could it mean? He threw his hands above his head with a gesture of despair. A moment later he passed out into the night, anything to wake her." But she did not complain. She went through her daily routine very humbly and quietly. She sometimes wondered how Jim could talk so much about her work, but before she could answer the que tion her mind drifted back to other days, to a garden and flowers, and Jim stole away unmissed and left her with folded hand and wide, staring eyes, gazing into the distance.

The memory of these times made Jim helpless tonight. He had gone on hoping from day to day that Barker hoping from day to day that Barker might not notice the "let down" in her work, and now the blow had fallen. How could he tell her? One of the acts came tumbling out of the main tent. There was a me-ment's confusion as clowns, acrobats and animals passed each other on their way to and from the ring; then the lot-cleared again and Polly came slowly cleared again, and Polly came slowly from the dressing tent. She looked very different from the little girl whom Jim had led away from the parson's garden in a simple white frock one month before. Her thin, pensive face contrasted oddly with her glitter-ing attire. Her hair was knotted high on her head and intertwined with flowers and jewels. Her slender neck seemed scarcely able to support its burden. Her short, full skirt and low cut bodice were ablesse with white and colored stones. "What's on, Jim?" she asked. "The 'leap o' death.' You got plenty of time."

of time." Polly's mind went back to the girl who answered that call a year ago Her spirit seemed very near tonight The band stopped playing. Barker seen, and her eyes wandered to the distant church steeple. The moonlight seemed to shun it tonight. It looked cold and grim and dark. She woncoid and grim and dark. She won-dered whether the solemn bell that once called its flock to worship had become as mute as her own dead heart. She did not hear the whir of the great machine inside the tent as it plunge through space with its girl occurrence things were a part of the routine, part of the strange, vague dream through which she must stum-ble for the rest of her life.

Jim watched her in silence. Her face was turned from him. She had forgotten his presence, "Star gazin', Poll?" he asked at ength, dreading to disturb her reverie. "I gness I was, Jim." She turned to him with a little, forced smile. He longed to save her from Barker's hreatened rebuke. "How you feelin' tonight?" "I'm all right," she answered cheer "Anything you want?" "Want?" She turned upon him with startled eyes. There was so much that she wanted that the mere mention of the word had opened a well of "I mean can I do anything for you?"

"Oh, of course not." She rememthe whole matter should be investigated in the courts. The "Star" says:

The 'nauseating welter of affidavits which was poured out before the House of Commons yesterday, should lead to prosecution in the courts. The Minister of Justice, Leader of the Opposition, and the Prime Minister employed the terms—'blackmailier' and 'perjurer.' Now blackmailing and perjury are offenses against the law. And the enforcement of the law and the punishment of crime will have sunk to ashockingly low state of efficiency lin this country if three of the leading exponents of law in the high court of Parliament can adjudge men guilty of blackmail and perjury; and no subsequent effort be made to bring them to justice. Generally speaking, no political question should go to a committee of politicians. They make exceedingly bad judges in their own causes. It was because of this that election trials were removed from the purview of Parliament and committed to the care of the courts, Still somechanges against the honor of the members have been referred to political committees, and tried by them with a maximum of seandal and a minimum of justice; so that it can hardly be said that there would be no precedent for such a course.

Mr. Borden's ringing statement that However, and, further, so long as I am connected with the Government of Canada, he never will be appointed." will be read with satisfaction throughout the country. But when Sir Wilfrid Laurier states with equal positiveness, on his responsibility as a member of Parliament, that he is prepared to state and prove that this man (Bourasse) was notified by an officer of the department that he had been appointed, the country will also feel that it desires a very clear and explicit statement of just what did happen. Mr. Borden's deliaration will be accepted at its, full value; and no one will imagine for a moment that the Prime Minister would permit any trifling in such a case from the instant is was selzed of the facts. But a Prime Minister cannot know everything, and Sir Wilfrid's charge is very circumstantial and a full statement of the dealings of any Government department with Emile Bourassa, after his allegations were called to the attention of Mr. Coderre, should be immediately made public. ate the Amherst Gun Club.

Boats unable to make headway against floods at Dayton Men and women creep along cables

DAYTON, Ohio, March 26.—At Wyoming street, on the south side, where the National Cash Register Co. centred its efforts at rescue from the floods, many swed their lives last night by creeping on a telephone cable ahundred feet above the flood. At first linemen crept along the cables carrying tow ropes, to which the flat bottomed boats were statehed. When the flood became so fierce that the bests no longer were able to make head way against it, men and women crept along the cables of safety. Others, less daring, saw darkness fall, and gave up hopes of rescue. The first to seek safety by sliding his body along the telegraph conduits was a man. Then came four women. The first of the women was Mrs. Lucella Meyer. She is a widow with one son, a lad in knee breeches. Yes, the past winter certainly was, but March is not over yet, so look out for the sting which this month usually carries in its tail and don't be beguiled into neglecting your house heating. It is very much better to keep the house comfortable and avoid colds than to get ill and pay Doctors' bills; besides, it's pleasanter. To be around and about at work and enjoying life is more to be desired than to be confined to the house because of a little false economy in a fuel bill. carly reports.

Columbus, Ohio, March 26.—From Lake Erie to the Ohio River, and from the lodiana to the Pennylvania State lines, Ohio to-day, is experiencing the worst flood the State has ever known. With an appalling loss of life at Dayton, estimated Stody to trin over 500, almost every city and village in the State follows with a death toll that cannot be totalled until the raging waters subside.

Although first reports had put the loss of life at Dayton as high as 5,000, refugees arriving in Xenia from the flood stricken city said that it would be below 1,000. The most serious news carly to-day was that the town of Miamisburg, with a population of 4,000, had been washed away.

Heavy rains continued through most of the State last night and all flood records in most sections of the State have been broken. Bridges have been washed away, railway and interurban traffic is ab a standstill, and in many cities there is grave danger of fire loss, due to the shatted in the state of the state have been considered the control of the state have been been deadly and in the state of the State have been been of the state have had not state have been of the state have been of the state have OHIO.

Governor Cox estimates there are 250,000 PROPLE HOMELESS.

The State is unable to cope with the situation in its entirety, and the Governor has called upon the National Red Cross Society and adjoining States for aid. The immediate need is for tents and food for the homeless. Every militia company has been ordered to report for duly to-day and the troops will be sent to the points of greatest emergency. The State Commissary Department is making every effort to rush supplies to the many points which, need them. rush supplies to the many points which, need them.

The property damage sann it at present be calculated, but will run far into the millions. This includes actual fire losses and flood, and prospective loss where farming lands have been inundated and in many cases washed away. No immediate relief from the flood-bound conditions is in sight, as rainy weather is promised for the State to-day.

HAROWING TALES

HARROWING TALES
are now beginning to filter in from various sources of families who spent the night in a drenching rain in tree tops or on roofs of their flooded homes. Many of these marooned in tree tops are believed to have been worn out from cold and fatigue and to have dropped from their perilous positions to death in the flood below. Thrilling rescues are reported without number, as are also unavailing efforts to rescue persons seen to be drifting by in the ruins of their homes or on chance drift wood.
The list of missing is also swelling, but is believed that this will be materially reduced when scattered families have the opportunity to units. duced when scattered families have the opportunity to unite.

At least 150 persons were drowned in Columbus as a result of the flooded Scioto river, acdording to reports this morning as the result of a partial restoration of telephone communication with the west side. Numerous persons who are considered conservative, assert that they saw scores of bodies float down the stream and dozens of persons carried away in their houses.

The crest of the Dayton flood passed about midnight, but the next few hours showed no appreciable lowering of the water. Morafing brought little hope of immediate relief to those who had spent the night in horror, however, and it is feared that the number of drowned had been greatly increased during the 12 hours of darkness.

The rescue work looked as hopeless as on yesterday, however, no one in the city attempted to sleep.

AMONG THE DEAD ARE:

ANONG-THE DEAD ARE:

Anton Saetell, grocer, Wine and Maine streets, killed in an explosion; his wife, drowned; unknown woman found nearby hanging on wire.

The Bish family was wiped out with the exception of a son; John Bish. His mother, aged 65; sister Florence, 27; niece Viola Bish, and Muriel, wife of John Bish, all being victims of the flood.

It is not believed the rescuers will be able to mike any advance ingo the flooded district to-day, but will have to be contented with saving those who were marconed within a few doors of the water's edge. More than seventy thousand persons, either were unable to reach their homes, or held in their water-looked houses, were unable to reach land. The inundated district is estimated as more than fifteen square miles, most of which is under from six to eighteen feet of water. AMONG THE DEAD ARE:

INDIANA.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 26.—First word from West Indianapolis, cut off from the city when the great west Washington street bridge went out last night, came this morning when an Associated Press staff correspondent from Chicago marooned there, who said shat it is generally estimated that at least 200 persons were drowned when the Morris street levee broke early last night.

A telephone from South Bend says that at Peru, death faced hundreds of persons who at dawn to-day were clinging to the roofs of buildings, where they sought refuge from the flood which leat night swept in from the overflown banks of the Wabash River, drownings within a few minutes probably sixty persons. The prospect at daylight was distressing. Currents of muddy water from ten twenty feet deep were racing through the main streets at twenty miles an hour.

Among those marconed was Mayor J. the flood rushed in on the city, and was rounded his home tag freat depth. He delegated the functions of the mayor to lighting plant. For and clighting plant. the water running between the business houses was too swift to admit of navigation by ordinary row boats.

No one was able to estimate the number of drowned, because of the bodies that had been carried down the river, and because of the submerging of whole streets of houses known to have been occupied before the water came up, but the city officials agree that the fatalities would not be less than three score.

Excellent Methods of Prevention Are Emptying Prisons.
In recent years England has been nietly drying up the sources of the abitual criminal class with such exhabitual criminal class with such ex-cellent results that suggestions are being made for other uses for some of the prisons. There has been a decrease of 25,000 prisoners in the last three years — a decrease which has been provided by the serious crim-inal, as well as the less serious and been provided by the serious criminal, as well as the less serious and occasional offender.

The first step was taken by the probation of offenders act, and a long step that has proved to be. Under this act when any person is charged before a magistrate with an offense punishable by him, and the charge is proved, but the magistrate thinks that the character or the antecedents or the age or health of the offender or the nature of the offence or the circumstances under which the offence was committed justify him, it is open to him to make an order discharging the offender conditionally on his being of good behavior for the next three years, and he thereupon places the offender under the supervision of a probation officer.

What has been the result? Out of a yearly average of 10,000 persons between the ages of 12 and 50 years that were admitted to probation, and kept out of prison, less than six per cent. have behaved so badly as to necessitate their being called up by the court and sentenced for the original or some subsequent offence.

Even more courageous and even more successful has been the result, schieved by the prevention of crime act, so far as it deals with what is called juvenile-adult criminal. Here we have youth of from 16 to 21 years of age who have proved themselves criminals, and, on the average, have already been convicted three times. The problem is to prayent these young men and young women swelling the ranks of the habitual criminal—their certain destination if imprisonment is to remain the sole restricting influence in their lives.

So the Borstal system came into being, and these young criminals are taken and placed under restriction, but no longer in prison. They are each brought into contact with officials of exceptional character, who take a real personal interest in them, and who leave no legitimate opportunity unutilized to appeal to the better side that crists in everyone. Hard work is required, strict discipline is enforced, prompt obedience is demanded: but throughout it all Hard work is required, strict discipline is enforced, prompt obedience is demanded; but throughout it all there is present the sense of friendly search for the better element; and once this is discovered no trouble is spared to develop it Games, reading, lectures, free association and all manner of educative privileges follow, and as confidence is deserved confidence is reposed. So that when the Borstal sentence of two or three years draws to an end the Borstal lad is occupying posts where his own right sense of responsibility and his own self-reliance are continuously demanded and exhibited.

And what is the result of this method? The reports from the Borstal Institution show that so far as the lads are concerned — the girls and young women are more difficult—shout 80 page cent are appearable. young women are more difficult— about 80 per cent. are apparently re-claimed, and the reports of the Bor-stal Association, which deals with the after care of these young people, prove that 73 per cent. of those who have served a Borstal sentence are going

His Use of the Bible.

His Use of the Bible.

Sir Archibald Geikie, the well-known geologist, has a great fund of Scottish anecdotes. One of them concerns a clergyman who had recently been appointed to a Scottish country parish. In the course of his first round of visits to parishioners he called at a small farm and found only the farmer's son at home. He was shown into the parlor, and after a glance at the bookcase he said to the boy, "Are these all the books your father has in the house?" "Aye," said the boy. "Now tell me," continued the minister, "which of them does he use often-"Now tell me," continued the minister, "which of them does he use oftenest?" "That ane," the boy told him, pointing to a large leather-covered Bible which seemed to be well worfu. The minister beamed. "Oh, the Bible; that's right. I'm glad to hear that and how often does he use it?" "On Sunday mornings," was the reply. "What, only once a week! Well, well, does he read aloud to you all, or just to himself?" "Na," came the devastating reply, "he shairpens his razor ont."

Profits of Ceinage. Rentoul, examining a Mint official in a coinage case which came before him, elicited the fact that a crown piece costs the Mint 1s. 6d. in the making, leaving a clear profit of 3s. 6d. But, indeed, the profit of the silver coinage is exceedingly hand-some all round. On every shilling turned out the Mint makes a profit of nearly threepence. The exact mental value of a shilling is 9.72d. mental value of a shilling is 9.72d. Five shillings and sixpence weigh one ounce, the metal value of which is 3s. 3d. To this there is, of course, the cost of minting to be added, but that is a mere fraction. The profits on bronze coinage are not less attractive, and account for the jealousy with which a recent incursion of French bronze was peremptorily stopped. On every ton of penny pieces taken out from the Mint there is a profit of £382.

Must Pay For Luxuries. Must Pay For Luxuries.

A British soldier in time of peace has te pay for his groceries and vegetables and other little luxuries, as well as for his washing and hairdressing. It is true he draws six cents a day messing allowance, but this by no means pays for the numerous little extras which Tommy is called upon to buy. When a soldier rises from the ranks to the position of sergeant-major his pay is gradually increased to $1.25 or $1.50 a day; but it must be remembered that the stoppages for various items are also increased as he rises in the ranks.

Beresford vs. Churchill.

The long-threatened and much-sdvertised suit between Leprd Charles Beresford and the terrible Winston Churchill has resulted in a unanimous verdict for the defendant. The two litigants are fond of the limelight, and neither of them has had much of it of late, so that they were feeling like the Irishman who complained that he was "blue-mouldy for want of a beating." The "bright and breesy" Charlie never looked so himp as when the First Lord had finished with him, for Winnie had — metaphorically speaking — taken Charlie across his knee and spanked him unmercifully.
"Lulu" Harcourt once said of Lord Charles that he was for ever talking politics on the quarterdeck and navi-Beresford vs. Churchill. Charles that he was for ever talking politics on the quarterdeck and navigation in the House of Commons, and Churchill bubbled over with epigrams of a not less deadly type. Perhaps his heaviest broadside was contained in the sentence: "The noble lord never, knows what he is going to say when he is up, and he never knows what he has said when he sits down."

A Veteran Home Ruler. Several veterans voted on the Home Rule Bill, and the appearance of Mr. Robert Cameron in the British House Robert Cameron in the British House of Commons stracted much interest. Mr. Cameron, who sits for the Houghton-le-Spring Division of Durham as a Liberal, is eighty-eight years of age, and the second oldest member in the House of Commons. Though he has been in very indifferent health of late he insisted in taking part in the historic division, and thus he has maintained a remarkable record. He entered Parliament in 1895 and voted for Home Rule in 1895, 1892, and 1913. Few remain who heard Mr. Gladstone introduce his first Home Rule Bill, and Mr. Cameron has witnessed some remarkable changes in political life.

AN AUTOGRAPH FIEND.

ndon Enthusiast Has a Remarkab Collection of Signatures. There is a collection of autographs in London which, after inspection, should make the amateur collector enthusiastic, albeit somewhat envious. Reference is made to the remarkable collection to be seen in the smoking-room of Haxell's Hotel, at the corner of Exeter street, in the Strand. It belongs to Mr. Vines, the proprietor of the hotel, the collection comprising over a thousand autographs of English and foreign celebrities.

Each autograph has been written on a card or piece of letter paper, and has been carefully mounted, framed, and classified, according to the particular section of the collection to which it belongs. There are, for instance, scores of autographs of famous musicians—singers, conductors, There is a collection of autograph ons musicians—singers, conductors, violinists, etc. In many cases the autographs are written at the foot of a phetograph specially sent to Mr. Vines. autographs are written at the foot of a phetograph specially sent to Mr. Vines. The signatures of theatrical celebrities, famous judges and lawyers, noted writers, jockeys, explorers, artists, statesmen, Royal Academicians, music-hall celebrities, actors and actresses, lord mayors of London for a generation past, and many other autographs are also to be seen, tastefully framed and arranged.

"It was about twelve years ago," said Mr. Vines, as he very kindly showed his collection to the writer, "that I began collecting, and every autograph has been sent to me personally in compliance with my request for an addition to the collection. Rebuffs? Oh, yes, I have had plenty; and I well remember, when I wrote to Sir William Howard Russell, he bluntly replied that d might as well ask him for his hat og his coat as his autograph.

"But, generally speaking, I have been treated very kindly indeed, and I suppose that two out of every three people I have written to have complied with the request. I have not had the whole of my collection ramed, as that would have meant cutting up several of my autograph, albums, which include autographs of many eminent foreigners."

In reply to a question as to which section he was most proud of, Mr. Vines hesitated between his collection of autographs of famous politicians, legal celebrities, and those of famous artists. The former is remarkable in view of the fact that it contains the signed photographs of leading members of the Cabinet—Mr. Asquith, Mr. Lloyd-George, Mr. Winston Churchill, and such members of the Opposition as Mr. Austen Chamberlain, his Iather, and Mr. Balfour, which are surrounded by the autographs of many of their most prominent followers.

A beautiful signed photograph of Lord Alverstone arrests the attention as one looks at the autographs of many of their most prominent followers.

A beautiful signed photograph of the legal luminaries of to-day. Many of the autographs of famous musicians are written across specially-composed bars of music, while there are typical sig

Employment In Great Britain. Employment in Great Britain.

Statistics of unemployment among labor unionists in Great Britain show that for the month of December the number of unemployed amounted to only 2.3 per cent. of the total membership. The average percentage of unemployed during 1912 was 3.2 per cent. The coal strike in March raised, the percentage to 11.3 per cent. The next month, however, the percentage had fallen to 3.6 per cent., and by May the percentage of unemployment had dropped back to the figures prevailing before the coal strike.

Curiosities of Ducks Many of the ducks in Hyde Park and Kensington Gardens, London, pre-fer the trees as resting places to the low lying thickets, where dogs and fer the trees as resting places to the low lying thickets, where dogs and boys might molest them. The mystery was how the young brood got conveyed to and from the water, some of the keepers asserting that they were transported on the back of the parent bird. Recently a gentleman set himself to watch one of these flittings. The nest was in a hollow branch twelve feet above ground, and the spectators saw the mother fly up and carry down successively twelve little ducklings in her beak, and as each one was deposited in the grass it waddled toward the water. Of course she must have carried them up to the nest in the same way.

the same way. Bradford's Trackless Trams. Bradford, which, with Leeds, is one of the pioneer cities in England in regard to trackless trams, will shortly see an extension of its system. The short experimental route is to be extended in both directions, and three new routes are in course of construc-tion. In addition to the passenger traffic a big business is being done in the transportation of parcels. The operations in Leeds are also said to have been very successful.

Limit South African Whaling. Because of the rapid increasing slaughter of whales in South African waters, the Government is discussing the question of limiting the number of companies to those already in operof companies to those already in operation or to whom authority to operate has already been granted in order to prevent the total destruction of the herds. The total number of whales captured by the Natal companies operating during 1911 was 1,015.

South African Explosives South Africa not only supplies itself with explosives, but exports dynamite in large quantities to Australia and the east. The saving to Australian mines by this means is estimated to be £125,000 a year. Windsor's Royal Palace.

When the Canadian red man of the old type wants to construct a cance, he fells a cedar tree or else seeks a prostrate trunk of the dimensions he fancies. In either case he proceeds to cut out a section of the desired length, peels off the bark, and hollows out the log, leaving a smooth surface upon the sides and bottom from end to end. Next the log is turned over and the outside fashioned.

The log is hollowed by burning and chopping. A fire is built on the top and is so carefully watched and so skillfully directed that when the burning is finished the big piece of timber is neatly hollowed, with wonderful symmetry from bow to stern. The whole concave surface is left so evenly and nicely charred that when the surface is worked down to the sound timber by the use of a buck-horn adae there remains but little alteration to be made. sound timber by the use of a buckhorn adae there remains but little alteration to be made.

The log is turned over, with the hollow side down. A slow fire is employed to shape the arterior and once more the surface is neatly worked until the sound timber appears.

Since the coming of the white man the Indians have, for the most part, felled trees for their cances with axes;
but in the old days this was accomplished by burning and by stone implements, the fire being so handled as not to injure the portion whereof the cance was to be built.

When the interior and the exterior of the cance have been finished to the liking of the builder, his next step is to "stretch." Without this operation the craft would be entirely unseaworthy. To make the cance seaworthy, it is set level on a firm skid foundation and then filled with water. A fire is then built and stones at a red heat are thrown into the canoe until the water boils. This boiling is maintained until the walls of the cance, which are more than an inch thick, become as pliable as sole leather and capable of being stretched a feet or more beyond their normal writh.

The builder's attention is now turned to the adjustment of eleverly fitting sticks in it transversely along the gunwale, increasing in length from the ends to the middle. By reason of these stretchers a cedar log of, say, two feet and a half in diameter will furnish a cance of three or four feet in beam. The width of the cance varies, of course, with the length.

The sides of the cance having been brought to the desired curvature, the water is then emptied out and the shell allowed to dry thoroughly, but without hacking.

The finishing touches consist of a smearing, inside and out, with fishoil, together with artistic decorations in brilliant colors.

Poets and Their Pay

Till now, I trust, your wits are riper—
Make no delay — come while you may—
And pine for those who nay the may— And pipe for those who pay the piper."
Then turn to Lampman and list to his answer:
"What do poets want with gold?—
Cringing slaves and cushioned ease?
Are not crusts and garments old Better for their souls than these?"
Who wins?

To Protect Forests. The secretary of the Canadian For-estry Association suggests that a num-ber of forest fire protective associa-tions should be formed all over the country to co-operate guarding agains fires. The limit holders in the St Maurice valley formed a co-operative fire protective association last year, taxing themselves one-quarter of a cent per acre to raise funds with which the rangers were equipped with which the rangers were equipped with cances, tents, gasoline speeders for use on railway lines besides making possible the cutting out of trails and the erection of telephone lines. Lookout stations are to be erected next year, on the highest points throughout the territory. These will be connected by telephones so that a force of men can be sent instantly if a fire is discovered. Similar co-operation on the part of lumbermen throughout the country would prevent waste of both labor and valuable property. The Canadian Forestry Association will take up the linking together of the provinces of Ontario and Quebee in the co-operative fire protective scheme and hope to produce good results. and hope to produce good results.

A Merger In Gloves. Economy is a blessed thing when intelligently applied and an astonishing instance of its successful application was recently encountered by intelligently applied and an astonishing instance of its successful application was recently encountered by a traveler over what used to be the old Canada Atlantic Railway which runs through Algonquin Park. At one point on the line is a telegraph operator who has had the misfortune to lose his right hand; at another there is one who met with a similar catastrophe to his left hand. Now to both of these men a pair of gloves would be unnecessary; yet it is impossible to buy a single glove. These two friends have therefore formed a combination for mutual interest. They buy gloves turn about,—one wears the right hand one, the other the left hand one. Or rather the buying is done in Ottawa by a brakeman on the train who whenever a new pair is purchased throws one of the gloves off the train as he passes one station and the other at the next. It is rather clever of the brakeman not to get them mixed.

HIDDEN CITY OF GOLD.

Startling Discoveries Have Been Made Within the Sphinx.

Startling Discoveries Have Been Made Within the Sphinx.

In an attempt to solve the riddle of the Sphinx, a problem that has pussled the agea, Prof. G. A. Reisner, Egyptologist, has mede several sensational discoveries. Inside the Sphinx Prof. Reisner found a temple dedicated to the sun. It is older than any of the pyramids, and its date is somewhere about 0.000 B.C., the most ancient in Egyptian Instory. Mens, or Menes as his name is sometimes spelled, was the first king of Egypt of whom modern ecientists have discovered historic record. The tomb of Mens, the king who made himself a god and who fashioned the Sphinx, is also within it. There are tunnels leading into caverns which have not yet been penetrated, for the work has only been going on for six months.

The Sphinx is carved out of the mattral rock, but within are the caves and buildings of a city of gold, which was, perhaps, once open to the air.
At present the excavations are confined to the chamber in the head. This chamber is sixty feet long by fourteen feet wide. It is connected by tunnels with the temple of the sun, which rests within the paws of the Sphins.
Such relice as the "Crux Ansata"
(the looped crost), symbol of the sun, are found by the hundreds. Several of these are gold, and have wires for tiny bells, which, when sounded by the priests, summoned up ghosts. Inside the Sphinx are also tiny pyramids, although the Sphinx was built long before the Great Pyramids pyramid in those days was a sundial, according to Prof. Reisner, and scratched, and the interior of which probably never will be disclosed. Prof.

Like the Titanic.

Like the Titanic.

Tragio fate, similar to that which sent the Titanic to the bottom of the Atlantic ocean with an appalling loss of life, must have overtaken the Naronic, it newly-discovered evidence is authentic. The 20-year mystery surrounding the loss of the big freighter with 74 souls—all on board—has been solved by the finding of a sealed bottle on the beach at Holyoke, near Birkenhead, Eng., which contained this hastily scrawled message, still decipherable:

"Struck icoberg: sinking fast; midocean; Naronic.

"The Naroni: left Liverpool Feb. 2, 1893, for New York on her second westward vorage. She was new and of the latest construction—one of the biggest freighters aflost. It was before the days of wireless, of course, and from that time to this not a word has been heard from her. Only one or two bits of flotsam, included as smashed boat, were ever found.

Seafaring men now say that if what befell the Naronic had become known doubtless the Titanic disaster mightnever have occurred. Some years before the Naronic's loss, the then grey-hound of the see, the Arisona, struck an iceberg and had her bows stove in badly, but she was going slowly and her water-tight compartments held, so she managed to creep into port.

Freak of Lightning.

Lightning plays some peculiar tricks at times, but we have never heard anything to come up to the following, which The Melbourne Age properly labels "Extraordinary Incident".

"A young man, while riding through the timber country at Willium during a vocar storm, while riding through the timber country at Willium during a vocar storm, while riding through the timber country at Willium during a vocar storm, and a remarkable estimate of the country and a remarkable estate.

Doctors are noted for disagreements, lawyers likewise, but the poets eclipse both professions in this respect.

In going over the poetical works of the late Archibald Lampman, and of Charles G. D. Roberts, a careful student will note a wide divergence of views on the topic of poets and their pay—the divine afflatus and its relation to coin of the realm.

Rogers found financial recognition slow in Canada, and went to New York to sell his wares. At the time he wrote a little poem entitled, "The Poet Bidden To Manhattan," explaining his removal. This is one verse: "You've piped for those who will not pay Till now, I trust, your wits are riper—

More and the poets eclipse at times, but we have never heard anything to come up to the following, which The Melbourne Age properly labels "Extraordinary Incident": "A young man, while riding through the timber country at Willing during a recent storm, had a remarkable escape from death in peculiar circumstances. A large tree directly in front of him was struck by lightning and split in halves. The horse he was riding, becoming terrified, started to plunge, and jumped through the gap between the halves came together with a snap like a rabbit trap, and crushed off a length of the horse's tail, which can still be seen protruding from the tree. The young man, while riding through the timber country at William at the stimber country at William at the same place."

Queer New Industry.

An industry which, though young, is reported to be in a flourishing condition in London, consists in providing gold and silver articles—plated if preferred—which masquerade at wedding ceremonies as gifts from devoted friends. Parents and the hopeful pair are thus enabled to enjoy their rented environment. No doubt it is possible by this means also to inspire regret and suitable amends among any parsimonious guests who may be present. The business is conducted by certain gold and silversmiths. The objects are delivered at the home of the bride are delivered at the home of the bride in such glistening condition that they are guaranteed to pass as new. The detail of providing cards, suitably inscribed and tied to the ostensible gifts by silk cords, is attended to for a fee. Where Buffaloes Are Plentiful. An Australian hunter, twenty years ago, imported 16 buffaloes which he placed on Melville Island, and 16 more which be turned loose on the mainland. There are now about 17,000 buffaloes on the island and at least 200,000 on the main land of Australia. It is said that the majority of the It is said that the majority of the island animals have swum across the intervening 30 miles to the mainland. The local natives now have as much beef as they can eat.

A Costly Family. It was stated at the last meeting of the Wandsworth (Eng.) guardians that $10,000 had been spent out of the rates on one family, members of which had been continually in and out of the workhouse for years.

The Baddeley C:ke. The Baddeley Cake was cut for the 118th time at Drury Lane Theatre, London, and distributed to the principals of "The Sleeping Beauty" company. The cake is provided every Twelfth Night by the proceeds of a fund of $500 invested in consols in 1796 by Robert Baddeley, a Drury Lane comedian of the period.

Every year hundreds of postoffice money orders are not paid in Britain. Those to whom they are made payable for some reason fail to present themselves at the paying office, and the money reverts to the Government after one year has elapsed.

The Biggest Policeman. Supposed to be the biggest and heaviest police officer in the country, Sergt. Fuggle, of Sheerness, England, is retiring after twenty-five years' service. He weighs $22 pounds, and has the girth of two ordinary men.

One-Handed Planist. Although she can only use one hand, Miss Evelyn Webb, of Brentwood, England, has been awarded the special silver medal of the London Academy of Music for plane-playing.
