"A few years ago I suffered the entire loss of my hair from the effects of tetter. I hoped that after a time nature would repair the loss, but I waited in vain. Many remedies were suggested, none, however, with such proof of merit as Ayer's Hair Vigor, and I began to use it. The result was all I could have desired. A growth of hair soon came out all over my head, and grew to be as soft and heavy as I ever had, and of a natural color, and firmly set."—J. H. Pratt, Spofford, Texas.

A BACKWOODS WEDDING.

BY CLARA AUGUSTA. At the age of eighteen I married the life of a minister's wife is a sort of a refined slavery, still, I have never for only the room I had just left, where I a moment regretted my choice.

Eugene's first call, after our marriage, on my feet, remarking coolly: was to the village of Brookboro. Our home was primitive, but we both were young and hopeful, and life was not unpleasant to us. at this time, and my faith frequently down below low water mark.

My parishioners were exceedingly faithful in pointing out the beam in my eyes. If ever a woman had incentives Thad; not a day passed but I was ad-much. A minister's wife ought to set a her flock. I laid my admonition to leart, and took the trimming off my honnet, and wore it with nothing but the cape. Then Mrs. Hale called to tell me that I was a disgrace to the parish wearing such a dreadful bonnet. People would think I was of the Quaker persuasion. So I put the trimming on again. Then Mrs. Stanley met me on the street and said so much blue ribbon was unbefitting to the wife of a preacher and appeared in brown.

Aunt Sally Jane called the next day before breakfast to know who of my folks was dead—she had noticed that my bonnet was trimmed in mourning. they would say I was gadding, and pitied with tallaw, and his huge feet encased If I called on a few of our parish, 'poor Mr. Morrison, dreadfull;' if I in sheep—skin pumps. staid at home I was 'too stuck up to visit the poor.'

Just as sure as the supply in my of appetite.

All the straggling ministers, tract yer gal.' agents, beggars and vagabonds came to But Sally refused to be trotted. She entertain them because Eugene said by not at all. We arguedland coaxed but unawares. In endeavoring to obey this command self a colporteur, and who proved his right to wear rings by stealing a dozen silver napkin rings and a butter knife given me by my sister.

duple joined tands through a rent in the coverlet, and the ceremony proceeded. Just as Mr. Morrison was asking Lemuel 'Will you have this voman,' etc., down came the coverlet, envelop-I gave shelter to a man who called him-given me by my sister.

One fine day in early winter, my husband had received a summons, to Burke's settlement, to unite a couple in the bonds of wedlock. It was especially requested that his wife should accompany him, and should be expected to remain all night, and partake of the festivities.

etc., down came the coverlet, enveloping bride, groom and pastor, and filling the house with dust. Dick had been up in the loft and cut the string that held it.

Mr. Morrison crawled out, looking decidely sheepish, and Sally was obliged to be married openly. To the momentous question, Lemuel responded. the festivities.

'Marm! marm! here's the Elder and know about that air. Just show me his woman! They're nothing but folks! She's got a man's hat on, and a turkey wing in the front of it; and his nose is just like dad's-crooked as a cow horn

Alas for Mr. Morrison's aquiline nose, of which he was a little vain! pot! Sal, you quit that churn and sweep the floor. Kick that corn dodger under the bed! Bill, you wipe the taller out of that cheer for the minister's wife, and be spry about it!', Further remarks were cut short by our entrance. Mrs. Burke, in calico short-gown, blue peticoat, and bare feet came forward-wiping her face on her apron.

'How do you do, Elder? how do you do, marm? Must excuse my headhaven't had a chance to comb it since last week. Work must be did, you know. Powerful sharp air, haint it? Shoo, there! Bill, drive that turkey out of the bread trough! Sal, take the Burke went getting breakfast; and at lady's things. Set right up to the fire, marm. Hands cold? Well, just rub our horse and we bade them adieu. 'em in Bill's hair-we keep it long a-

Bill presented his shaggy head, and I declined with a shudder.

'Lawk, if she ain't actilly shivring! cried Mrs. Burke, 'bring some more might have gone to the dickens. wood. Here, marm, take this hot corndodger into yer lap, it's as good as a

A fateful sqall announced the execution of the rooster, and shortly afterward he was bouncing about in a fourpail kettle hung over the fire. Sal returned to her churn, but the extraordin ary visitors must have made her careless, for she upset the churn, and butter and buttermilk went swimming over the floor.

'Grab the ladle, Bill!' cried Mrs. Burke, and help dip it. Take keer, don't put that snarl of hair in. Strange how folks will be so nasty. Dick keep your feet out of the buttermilk-it won't be fit for the pigs when the butter's gathered. Drive that hen outshe's picked up a pound of butter already. There, Sal, try and churn a little more keerful. If you are a-goin to be spliced to-morrow, you needn't run crazy about it.

'I'd advise you to dry up!' remarked the bride-elect, thumping away at the

By the time I had got fairly warmed dinner was ready; and you may be sure I didn't hurt myself by over-eating. Night came on early, and after a social chat about the event of the mor row, I signified my desire to retire. Sal lighted a birch knot, and began climbing a ladder in one corner of the room-I hesitated. 'Come on !' cried she-'don't you be afeared. Sam and Bill, and Dick, and all the rest of ye, duck yer heads while the Elder's wife goes up. Look out for the loose boards, marm; and mind or chimney comes through-Her warning came too late. I caught Engene Morrison was my first and last bled, and fell headlong through what who caught me in his arms and set

'What made you come that way ? We ginerally use the ladder.'

I was duly commiserated, and at I, of course, encountered the trials of last got to bed. The less said about most ministers' wives. I was criticised that night the better. Bill and Dick and found fault with, until I wondered and four others, slept in the same if I was not the incarnation of original room with us, and made the air vocal min itself; and I frequently had doubts with their anoring. I fell asleep, whether anybody in the world was to be and dreamed I was just being fired held responsible for the ill-deeds, but from the muzzle of a Columbiad; and n.yself. My theology was very dubious was awakened by Mr. Morrison, who informed me that it was morning.

The marriage was to take place before breakfast, and Sally was already clad in her bridal robes, when I dessended the ladder. She was magnificent in a green calico than the rest of her apparel—a white apron with red strings—blue stockings -a yellow neck ribbon, and white cot better example befor the younglings of ton gloves. Her reddish hair was fastened in a pug behind, and well adorned with the tail feathers of the defunct rooster before mentioned.

When it was announced that Lem Lord, the groom, was coming, Sally dived behind a coverlet, which had been hung across one corner of the room to conceal sundry pots and ketties, and refused to come forth. Mr. Lord lifted one corner of the curtain and peeped in, but quickly retreated with a stew-pan of the gospel. So I laid the blue aside following close behind, and a few sharp words from Sally, advising him to mind his own business.

Lemuel was dressed in blue with been made for his grandfather on a similar occasion. His hair was well greased Very soon the company began to
