

HOME BANK DEPOSITORS FEAR SAVINGS POST

Two Townships In County Are Still Without Constables

CITY DEPOSITORS FEAR TOTAL LOSS OF THEIR MONEY

Not So Much Confidence Now That Bank's Affairs Can Be Arranged.

BANK'S NOTES GOOD

Disappointment over the announcement of Attorney-General Nicks that the provincial government had no authority to open a probe of the Home Bank was general among local depositors this morning.

"The Federal government, however, will institute an investigation, and that is one satisfaction," a depositor said. "If Toronto men involved in the bank's failure after the curator vigorously enough and the Federal government does its duty, there should be no chance of possible improper manipulation of the bank's funds being allowed to remain unknown."

It is now more than a week since the bank's suspension was proclaimed and London depositors have lost much of their former confidence regarding the possibility of having their savings redeemed. Failure of any other financial institution to volunteer to form a committee to take over the bank is viewed as an almost certain indication that the affairs of the Home Bank are beyond recovery.

"We felt assured we would receive payment for our deposits in full," another Londoner declared, "but it begins to look as if our hopes in this respect were without foundation. Personally, I stand ready to take my losses and I believe every other depositor has the same feeling. Of course, the double liability clause may delay the bank's debts and leave enough for depositors, but it is doubtful."

The majority of local retailers still refuse to accept Home Bank bills. The defunct bank's currency is as good as any other, and the public have been informed in this regard, but retailers maintain that discretion is the better part of valor and a Home Bank five-spot just now is about as popular as the smallpox.

According to a bank account sold for $500 yesterday in the Flower City. This reflects the uncertainty among depositors regarding the chances of having deposits redeemed in full.

TO HAVE 300 PEOPLE IN PAGEANT AT FAIR

Selection Committee Named and Rehearsals To Start Monday.

A meeting was held last evening in the Y. W. C. A. building to discuss the forthcoming pageant of Western Fair week. Andrew Jerpe, member of the Junior Rogers Producers (Company of Fostoria, Ohio, who is in charge of the great pageant was present, and it was decided to form a committee to engage talent and arrange for rehearsals.

It was decided to hold the first rehearsal at Hyman Hall on Monday evening. More than 300 people are to be engaged in this pageant, which will be the first of its kind ever staged in the city. Undoubtedly a pageant will add greatly to the Western Fair program, said Mr. Jerpe, and we intend to put it over successfully.

MANY OUTSIDE PUPILS COME TO COLLEGIATE

Board of Education Secretary Still Receiving Applications For Admission.

The secretary of the board of education wishes to state that it is only in the case of children living outside the city that formal application for admission to the collegiate and technical school is needed. Children living in the city enter automatically, but those outside London have to make application. The secretary has had some 70 or 80 applications so far from the country, and is expecting to reach the 100 mark in a few days.

ALBERTA WHEAT POOL NOT READY TO OPERATE

Associated Press Despatch. Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—That the Alberta wheat pool organization cannot be ready for action for at least two months was the opinion expressed by James Stewart, chairman of the Canadian wheat board, 1919-1920, and chairman of the Stewart Grain Company, last night on his return from Calgary.

WHOLESALE DRUG HOUSES VISITED BY 'DOPE' THIEVES

Two Efforts Made To Force Entrance and Obtain a Supply of Narcotics.

Several desperate attempts to steal dope have been made on a local wholesale drug establishment in the past three weeks, a member of the concern, which desires its name withheld, informed The Advertiser today.

Twice in a week signs of dope fiends' nocturnal activities were seen by employees returning to work in the morning. In one instance a window was smashed in and on another occasion an effort was made to force the door at the back entrance. Both were unsuccessful. In the first case the would-be thief apparently could not find the whereabouts of narcotics and contented himself with purloining a small bottle of Florida water.

The company fears that publishing of its name might lead to other attempts. The police were not informed of the dope fiends' action. They claim similar efforts on the part of "snowbirds" and other dope addicts have been evidence about the plant for a year or more.

Fearing a repetition of the visit to Dr. M. A. Platt's residence last night of the prowler who this week terrified the family by three successive visits, the doctor took extra precautions. All the lights were left on during the night and the alleged exploit, did not relish working under a blaze of light, for no signs of him were forthcoming.

Members of the family think the publicity given his attempts in local newspapers has probably frightened him off permanently.

Cerns is placed every night in a large safe and nothing short of dynamite or the use of nitro-glycerine would be required to open the safe, morphine, opium, etc., from the vault.

ROXIE GOES BACK TO HER TENNESSEE HOME

Girl Held on Vagrancy Charge Sent Back to Her Parents.

Roxie Williamson left this morning for Jackson, Tennessee, after a protracted stay in the local jail, where she has been kept on a charge of vagrancy while steps were being taken to have him deported. When she appeared in police court this morning she was discharged, and escorted to the station, where her ticket for "way down south" was purchased.

EXPECT BATTLE TO GAIN CONTROL JAP GOVERNMENT

Factions Determined To Have Their Choice For Vacant Premierships.

MOURN FOR KATO

Special Cable To The London Advertiser and Chicago Daily News, Copyright.

Aug. 25.—An intense factional fight to gain control of Japanese government affairs seems imminent here today following the death Friday of Premier Kato. Prominent possibilities as Baron Kato's successor are Admiral Saito, now governor general of Korea, and Baron Den, governor general of Formosa. It is rumored that Prince Matsukata, leader of the "elder statesmen" group, also is determined to form a Satsuma cabinet which will favor Admiral Yamamoto for the vacant premiership.

The death of Premier Kato early Friday afternoon followed an attack of hemorrhage at five o'clock in the morning in which he lost a large quantity of blood. At 10 o'clock Friday morning Dr. Honda issued a bulletin expressing hope for the premier's recovery. Death followed three hours later.

Baron Kato is a heavy blow to Japan, the premier undoubtedly being the outstanding figure in Japanese public life of today. He was a statesman of the first selection as head of the government, despite the fact that he was without a party to support him. Before his appointment as premier he had been an unusually successful administrative career in the Japanese navy by heading the Japanese delegation to the Washington conference, where he proved to the world his sincere desire to have Japan co-operate with other powers in maintaining world peace.

BOY GETS ARRESTED BY THOUGHTLESS ACT

Thoughtlessness on the part of A. Rusling, advertising manager of the Coca Cola Company, led to John Calhoun, a boy in the employ of the firm, being arrested last night and charged with the theft of five bottles of ginger ale from the garage of the company.

According to evidence in police court this morning, complaints had been received by the police from Mr. Semerville, manager of the company, that some persons were entering the garage during the night and stealing some of the produce of the firm. Chief Birrell detailed a man to watch the building, which is on the corner of Dundas and Rectory, and last night P. C. Leach saw the boy approach the garage about 10 o'clock. He watched the lad open the door, turn on the lights and come out with the ginger ale, and then arrested him, taking him to the station, from where he was bailed later on.

BOY GETS ARRESTED BY THOUGHTLESS ACT

This morning the boy told the court that he had been sent there by Mr. Rusling, who had given him his keys. The evidence of Mr. Rusling and the manager of the company, cleared the boy and the charge was dismissed.

BOY GETS ARRESTED BY THOUGHTLESS ACT

At the conclusion of the case, Deputy Magistrate Gladman blamed Mr. Rusling for thoughtlessness in getting the boy to go on the errand when he knew complaints had been made to the police. The manager also came in for a little lecture, when the magistrate told him that he thought he allowed his men too much leeway in the matter of securing their refreshments from the trucks after they were locked up for the night.

PLANS TO HOUSE MANY STUDENTS AT COLLEGIATES

Principal Miller Looks For at Least 1,500 Pupils in Attendance This Winter.

PROBLEM OF ROOMS

"There will be almost 1,500 pupils attending the Collegiate School this year," in London, as far as I can judge," said Principal E. A. Miller to The Advertiser. Mr. Miller was explaining the way in which, by the most careful reorganization, it had been possible to fit all these students into rooms for the coming school term.

"In the London South unit," Mr. Miller said, "there will be approximately 350 pupils. In order to accommodate this number, we have had to give up the old library room, and to move the office upstairs. For library accommodation, the London South pupils will be able to use the branch of the public library in the Victoria Public School. Physical culture accommodation is also a problem in this school. The girls will have the use of the auditorium at the Victoria School, and the boys will do their work in the basement of Victoria."

The East Unit. In reference to the arrangements in the east unit of the collegiate, the principal said: "There we shall have about 280 in the Princess avenue building. There are eight classrooms and two drill-rooms. In this case also we shall be without library accommodation, and the pupils will have the use of the library in the Central Collegiate building. Their various organizations will also use the auditorium at the central. The pupils at the east unit will take their lunch in the school canteen, which is in the Central Collegiate building."

As regards the Central Collegiate itself, Mr. Miller pointed out that there would be some 700 students taking their work there this winter. In the main building another large room in the basement on the south side has been finished, and the work of reorganization has been so devised that we shall be able to take care of the 700 pupils adequately.

In the north building we have four rooms in which to put the students and will be able to look after 140. Mr. Miller stated that these figures are warranted by the number of applications by pupils who have taken their entrance examinations. Speaking of the change that has come over the educational situation in the last few years, he said: "Not so long ago parents were quite satisfied if their children took their entrance. Now they are not happy unless they take their matriculation. Both the children and the parents and guardians are coming to realize that the extra work and training involved in taking the matriculation were a real dividends in the long run, and nearly all the students of today stay on and take this work."

The natural increase in school attendance in London, the principal puts at one hundred, and adds that in periods of financial and commercial depression, when positions are harder to obtain, the pupils stay longer in school and take a higher standing, having it brought home to them very pertinently that training is success, and is absolutely necessary to getting the position they want.

Olympic Puts Into Port After Unofficial Race Across Ocean.

Associated Press Despatch. Southampton, Aug. 25.—The White Star liner Olympic arrived at this port from Cherbourg at 7:35 o'clock this morning.

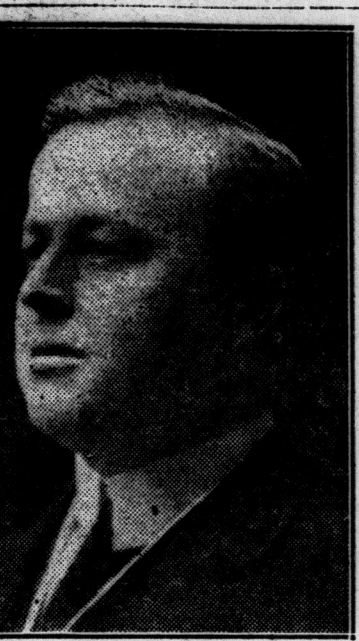

The United States Shipping Board's steamer Leviathan put in at Southampton at 12:35 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Greenwich time. She preceded the Olympic into Cherbourg by 14½ hours.

Before the Olympic left New York, however, officials of the White Star Line said definitely that there was no intention to race the United States liner.

Deputy Magistrate Gladman blamed Mr. Rusling for thoughtlessness in getting the boy to go on the errand when he knew complaints had been made to the police. Rain Saves Burning Town When Only Well Goes Dry Canadian Press Despatch. L'Alphany, Que., Aug. 25.—A deluge of rain which opportunistically fell during the night saved this village from destruction by fire. It had been feared a fire which was burning in the general store of J. A. Nadeau would spread to the village, which was at its mercy owing to a well running dry after water had been pumped from it for a short time. The convent and church were threatened.

SEIZE ALCOHOL WORTH $30,000 ON WHITBY FARM

Provincial Officers Also Take Three Autos When Rum-Runners Flee.

MAN IS ARRESTED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Thirty thousand dollars' worth of alcohol was seized early today in a farmer's barn on the lake shore near Whitby by provincial officers, besides three costly automobiles that the rum-runners abandoned when they fled before the raid of the O. T. A. squad. One man, a foreigner, was arrested, while two others made their escape in the darkness amid a raid of bullets from provincial officers, who found 300 five-gallon cans of alcohol, of a total of 1,500 gallons, valued at $20 a gallon.

The alcohol and cars were brought into Toronto today.

Rum pirates, it is stated, brought the alcohol up the lake and stored it in the barn at Whitby, which is situated a mile and a quarter from the lake.

The provincial men were on the lookout for the consignment on Thursday, but they discovered they were being watched, and the rum-runners did not land their cargo. But some time later they managed to make a landing and cart the alcohol to the farmer's barn. The provincial men were thrown about the district on both sides of the barn waiting early today for the rum-runners to appear when they sighted the cars, and gave chase. The man who owns the barn stated he knew nothing about the liquor being stored there.

The man police found driving to the barn gave his name as Joe Flammours, 267 Niagara street, Toronto. He was taken to Whitby jail.

POLICE WITHOUT TRACE OF KIDNAPPED N. Y. BABY

Special To The Advertiser.

New York, Aug. 25.—Today, end of the first week since the kidnapping of the 3-months-old Lillian McKenzies, found the mystery apparently as far from solution as ever.

The man police found driving to the barn gave his name as Joe Flammours, 267 Niagara street, Toronto. He was taken to Whitby jail.

One Big Union to ascertain the prevailing sentiment of both organized and unorganized railway workers throughout the country. R. Ball, secretary of the Central Labor Council, announced last night.

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—Urging a general tieup of the Canadian railway lines during the height of the western grain rush as the means of forcing the Railway Association of Canada to accede to the demands of railway workers for increased wages and other conditions, "a call to action" will be sent out today by the One Big Union to ascertain the prevailing sentiment of both organized and unorganized railway workers throughout the country.

The store was destroyed, with a loss of $25,000.

TWO TOWNSHIPS STILL WITHOUT COUNTY POLICE

Westminster and Parkhill Have Not Yet Made Appointments.

THE NEW FORCE

Two townships, Westminster and Parkhill, in the County of Middlesex, are still without police, according to Clerk John Stuart, who this morning stated that the recommendations for the positions in these two localities had yet been made.

The selection of the new men depended on the municipal council who recommended to the county council the men whom they thought would be the most satisfactory for the work and capable of producing results. With this in view the council chose, in some cases, men who had been members of the old constabulary and who had proved their worth, while in other cases new men were appointed.

According to Clerk Stuart it is difficult to get men for the position owing to the fact that no salary is paid and they must depend on fees from arrests made.

No men have yet been mentioned for the position of high county constable, this appointment being made by the county council, which does not meet until next December. In the meantime, Sheriff Donald Graham is acting in that capacity, the duty having fallen to him when the council neglected to make an appointment at the beginning of the year.

Force At Work. Although no high constable has been appointed the new police force is already at work, as is evidenced by recent cases which have been disposed of by the magistrates. They are working in conjunction with the provincial authorities and the city police and the county is promised a more efficient service than in past years.

Reasons given for seeking the resignation of the 200 men who previously formed the force are many, the biggest being the inactivity of many of the constables. Sheriff Graham stated this morning that the method of choosing the force was a farce. From time to time names would be put in to the clerk of the peace as being suitable for the work. These names would be entered in a book for the purpose and that was the only formal requirement except the swearing-in of the men.

The result was that the list grew to such proportions that some action was necessary and a revision of the time names would be made. On looking over the list, however, the clerk of the peace as being suitable for the work. These names would be entered in a book for the purpose and that was the only formal requirement except the swearing-in of the men.

It was discovered that the list grew to such proportions that some action was necessary and a revision of the time names would be made. On looking over the list, however, the clerk of the peace as being suitable for the work. These names would be entered in a book for the purpose and that was the only formal requirement except the swearing-in of the men.

Clerk Stuart, who wrote and asked for the resignation of the men, stated that several of them did not see why they should be deprived of the title "county constable," being a majority question in their resignations without question. Several letters accompanied these, explaining why the writer was not a good man to have, why he thought he was being shabbily treated.

The new force at present consists of fourteen men, with the municipalities, Westminster and Parkhill, to make their appointments, is located at the most central parts of the county where they can be easily reached.

The new force is composed of the following men: John Henry, Glenora; William Minna, Wardsville; Stephen Fennell, Newbury; B. W. Fisher, Mount Brydges; Chief of Police A. E. Wilson, Strathroy; Harry Elvidge, Delaware; George Chittick, Dorchester; James Gungb, Thorncliffe; Alton Cornell, Brookbridge; W. S. Campbell, Lobo; Ed. Guest, London; Wesley Hodgins, Lucan; B. A. Kaen, Alton; Craig; William Laycock, Kerwood.

ORCHARD BEACH COTTAGERS SUE FOR USE OF ROAD

Londoners and Others Take Action Against E. Smith Over Pt. Stanley Property.

PROCEED TO LIMIT

A court action somewhat similar to the Purdon-Robinson suit, which went as high as the privy council, years ago, has been launched by half a dozen residents of Orchard Beach, Port Stanley, against Edgar Smith, real estate agent, of St. Thomas.

The action commenced by bench residents was the result of a dispute regarding the legality of Mr. Smith's building a garage over the entrance to the west Orchard Beach road. It is claimed the garage blocks the road and prevents delivery of groceries, etc., to many cottagers. Last year a similar condition existed and the cottagers removed the garage. This year, it is alleged, Mr. Smith asked a dollar a year from the owners of summer houses affected, for the use of the road. They refused to pay, and yesterday Mr. Smith, Judd and Henderson, solicitors for the plaintiffs, issued a writ demanding a declaration giving cottagers the use of the disputed property by right of 20 years' past usage.

Took Legal Action.

Old citizens will recall how, many years ago, T. H. Purdon, on behalf of the cottagers, took legal action to secure right-of-way through the Robinson survey, just east of the section of land now in dispute. This case was taken as high as the privy council and resulted in a victory for the late Mr. Robinson. Disagreements in connection with the use of the Robinson road have long since been cleared up.

Cottagers on the extreme western side of the beach believe, however, that the only means of getting to their summer houses, on grounds that it has been used for this purpose 20 years or more, Mr. Smith, on the other hand, claims to own the section of the road and, denied toll for its use by neighbors, placed his garage in such a position as to prevent them from driving vehicles over it. The road is just west of the "Summerholm," the Y. W. C. A. girls' summer house.

Six Residents Combine.

Six residents have combined to fight Mr. Smith, including C. L. Gray and Oliver F. McElroy of the plaintiffs, Lena Torrie, Brantford; C. E. Keane and Dr. Wm. Babb of London, and J. A. McCance, St. Thomas. "Others behind the writ are John A. Croden, F. J. Webb and Mr. Shelden of Woodstock.

St. Claire Leach of St. Thomas and McElroy, Judd and Henderson of this city are solicitors for the plaintiffs, while Colter & Colter of St. Thomas are handling the case for the defendant.

"If necessary we will take it to the supreme court," one of the residents affected said today. "We have no money to do it."

The action against Mr. Smith is arousing much interest among residents of Orchard Beach. It is slated to come before Judge Duncan Ross in the October sessions of the Elgin court.

CAMPBELL BECHER CHAPTER.

The day conveners have been appointed for the Campbell Becher Ice cream booth at the Western Fair, of which Mrs. F. J. Greenaway, the regent, is the general convenor. They are as follows: Monday, Mrs. F. J. Greenaway; Tuesday, Mrs. Claude White; Wednesday, Mrs. Roy Cunningham; Thursday, Mrs. Margaret Atkins; Friday, Mrs. Harry Bell.

WILL TAKE YEAR TO BUILD SCHOOL IN WEST LONDON

Trustees Move So Cautiously in Preparing Plans, Construction Is Delayed.

"BEAUTY, NOT SPEED"

The London West school, which the board of education have decided to build on the Wharfedale road, will, according to the progress that has been made in the last few months, be ready for occupation about this time next year. Architect Carrothers, who has three plans of the building ready, presented them to No. 3 committee at a special meeting some weeks ago for their consideration.

At that meeting the committee was not able to arrive at any definite decision, and the whole question was laid over until further orders. Mr. Carrothers at the time was most anxious to get the work begun, and even promised to have a large part of the basement in and some work above ground done before the winter weather stopped work.

The final purchase of the site from the St. George's West Church dragged over a long period, and members of the board walked many a weary mile to the office of the city solicitor in an effort to discover when the deed of sale would be ready. On the top of that delay comes the decision of No. 3 committee, or part of the committee, that they are not able to decide on a plan for the school. So the problem passes from one stage of indecision to another.

A. N. Udy, chairman of the board of education, said this morning: "When the building of a school in London West was first mooted, we were told that it would be 1923 before they could use the school, and as there is no very pressing need for it, we are satisfied with the progress that is being made."

"We want to have a worth-while school on this site, and a little longer may give us the kind of building we want."

At the time of the board meeting at which the drawing of the plans was decided upon, Bryden Campbell, chairman of No. 3 committee, stated that he thought the board should retain the services of a consulting architect, as the school is going to stand in a most conspicuous place at the entrance to the city, and it is essential that it should be one that is pleasing to the eye, as well as useful and efficient."

The next meeting of the full board is on September 6, and it is expected that there will be a meeting of No. 3 before then, so that they may have some definite plan to recommend to the board.

LABOR EXPERT, IDE SECURE OBS AT LABOR BUREAU

Ditch Diggers and Mining Engineers Served Alike at Local Office.

WAGES FAT OR LEAN

The versatility of the local labor bureau is little recognized by many Londoners.

Everything from a few dollars a week to a few hundred can be earned by success—fully filling some of the varied positions offered. All the way from swinging on the end of a long handled shovel to the most exacting of executive work can be found on the files of the bureau.

Travel-stained tramp and book-wise student can find their El Dorado by searching the windows, or at least the books of the office, and are assured the aid of a willing and interested office staff in landing the "job" or position, as it may be.

Following are a few of the vacancies that have been offered Londoners in the past six months by the local superintendent:

Variety of Jobs.

Let's start with the porcelain expert. This man is required to superintend pugging, balling, forming, glazing and assembling. He has to know all the operations in connection with the manufacture of high voltage porcelain insulators. He has to be physically fit, and in return he gets $2,500 per annum.

Then there is the furnaceman. In this case also the applicant has to be physically fit. But he gets $1,104 per annum. If you are a silk hose dyer and care to go as far as Quebec you can get a week and a bonus of 1 per cent. If your tastes turn to the buying of ladies' dresses, a firm will pay you $50 a week, and throw in medical attendance free. The age limit in this case is 35 years.

If, on the other hand, you are possessed of "a superior education, have the best of references, and are willing to do work of a confidential nature and also act as assistant to the manager of a large concern," you will be paid the princely wage of $25 per week.

Women, Too.

Three female barbers wanted; able to play the violin, piano, or cello; wages $50 a month and board? As a diamond drill operator, you will be paid the modest sum of $10 per day.

Cooks are, apparently, always in demand, and they get board with their salaries. A Mac and a Mac reaps $175 per month, a snuff cook $150, a Garde Manger, "for all sorts of fancy cold dishes," $130, a broiler $80, a French baker "for all kinds of fancy rolls and cakes," $130, a night chef $150, and an "Entremetier," to make all those fancy French dishes, $125 a month.

If you are qualified as a logging engineer and are capable of handling from three to four hundred men, you can get paid at the rate of $4,000 per year.

But if you tend toward the accounting line and want to work in a lumber camp, where you must take full charge of the show, and the manager is away, you will only get $100 a month.

And Miners—

Coal workers, qualified as miners would least one year's experience underground and under 25 years of age, get 50 cents per ton, with a minimum of $3.35 per day. A grain buyer, to take charge of an elevator and keep all the books in connection with it, besides putting up a bond, gets $110 a month and an extra $20 a week.

Jim Jingles was a hollerer when you follow in his early footsteps, you'll get 70 cents an hour. Shoe philosophy has little to offer except that you can polish pitch-forks you can make $33 a week.

You could make a job as confectionary instructor out of it. You would have to teach the young how to shoot candies through a chocolate bath and make a low-browed, but profitable, salmon splitter at $150 a month; smelly but interesting. It only lasts four months.

If you care to demonstrate cream separators throughout the province you receive $200 a month and get medical attendance free.

Education Counts.

The next "position" on the list is a sidelight on education. A book you be fully qualified as an accountant, possessing university training, have practical experience in the fabric cost accounting, and be thoroughly familiar with the New York, Liverpool and Alexandria markets; also should your university training include economics, business organization, marketing and statistics, some big spirited, open-hearted firm will give you $2,000 per annum "to start," and you must be under 25 years of age.

As an expert coremaker, working in an automobile shop, $225 per month is what you are entitled to. You will be paid $5,000 a year if you can qualify as a mechanical engineer, one of the large American plants, and if your abilities run to the supervision of a corset plant, you will find $150 in your monthly pay envelope. A chemist in a sugar refinery sounds a sweet job, but $5 a day is all you get for it, and a twelve-hour day at that.

Pays to Sell.

It pays to sell anything. As a successful sales organizer you start at $300 per month and increase according to the increase of the sales. "Supervisor beater man" looks like another "man" job, but, as he ably isn't. He works in a factory. Eighty-five iron men per week and full pay during sickness is your portion of trouble, provided you go to Quebec and take over the duties of an instructor in men's clothing. As a thoroughly experienced armature winder you can give the "sweet work." Or you can rake in from $50 to $60 a week as an operator on a hard on the eyes.

The list, like the brook, goes on for ever. From the valleys of depression, where cents looks like dollars, to the heights of financial bliss, where dollars are merely tips for waiters.

BEIJING PRESS WILL ASK LEAGUE TO ACT IN CHINA

Chinese Press Thinks Linching Outrage Altered Attitude of Other Powers.

HOPE FOR RELIEF

By CLIFFORD FOX.

Special Cable to The London Advertiser and Chicago Daily News. Copyright.

Peking, Aug. 25.—Alleged British plans for intervention in China, which, it is said, already have been brought unofficially to the attention of the Peking government, are widely published in the Chinese press today. In commenting upon them, Chinese newspapers express the fear that the Linching outrage has altered the attitude of other powers toward China, and that this attitude will result in the British delegate to the League of Nations asking the league to undertake the solving of China's problem.

It is declared that Great Britain at the present time wants control of the railway and an international auditing commission to check the accounts of various Chinese government utilities, with a view to paying the foreign debts and also the alteration of railway, postal and other communications receipts together with stamp taxes, salt customs and tobacco funds into a "fundamental fund" to be used toward the paying of such debts. A foreign high advisory commission to formulate plans whereby China will pay off her obligations according to their age, also is said to be sought.

The allegation is made that at the last League of Nations meeting the British delegate proposed league intervention in China, but that this was objected to and finally rejected by other powers. It also is alleged that the Chinese press is now making the league the British delegate will propose that the league approve international aid for China, together with troops and armaments.

The Chinese express the hope that America and Japan will control together against foreign control of railroads and other reported British proposals, and that this will prove her own administrative ability.

Limit Booth Heights for the Western Fair

Those in Manufacturers' Building Cannot Exceed Eight Feet.

It was decided by the manufacturers' building committee of the Western Fair Association at an inspection of the building yesterday afternoon to limit the height of the booths to eight feet. This will include advertising signs and all ornamental work. The committee also decided that as being highly satisfied with the progress that had been made with the building, many of the exhibitors, who have been assigned to them for a period of ten years.

They have been granted this privilege, and have undertaken to make the booths inviting and attractive. Today, the booths will be finished on the ground floor and will have their correct numbers attached.

The Hon. W. R. Motherwell and the Hon. W. R. Martin, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, will be asked to attend the opening day of the Western Fair. They will be asked to extend an invitation to these two ministers to the actual ceremony on the first day of the fair.

It was decided also to ask the Western Fair Association to help the children on children's day in fair week. President J. H. Saunders will be asked to look after several large live stock exhibits, and it is likely to come to the London fair this year.

MOTOR SHOW AT FAIR WILL BE RECORD ONE

Secretary Reports All Makes of Autos Will Be Exhibited.

Entries for the motor show of the Western Fair have been received from all the leading automobile manufacturers of the United States and Canada. "The show this year held in London," said A. M. Hunt, secretary of the Western Fair, "and the entries are the largest we have ever received."

All makes of cars, from the cheapest to the most expensive, the smallest to the largest will occupy space at the motor building, and besides the display of motor cars, gasoline tractors and automobile accessories will play an important part in the exhibit. The latest models of Canadian and American cars will be shown, and enthusiastic admirers are already preparing for the display.

Plans are being made to exhibit the "one-lung" original which preceded the modern machine of today. These will form an interesting contrast to the sleek, compact bodies and soft-purring engines produced by the automotive industry of the present day.

The new manufacturers' building will be completed and ready for occupancy on Tuesday night. Citizens then will be given the opportunity of inspecting the spacious structure. The finishing and decorating is practically cleaned up now, but a few additional touches will be given today and Monday.

America an Infant by Contrast. For 1600 years Constantinople has been one of the great cities of the world. Sitting among her hills, she has looked out upon Asia, on one side and Europe on the other, and for 1000 years was the mistress of the gateway of the two continents.

Fathers Sees Girl Killed As He Saves Her Brother

Special to The Advertiser. Kalamazoo, Ont., Aug. 25.—Three-year-old Carolyn Nosen, who was crushed to death and her brother Ronald, aged 7, miraculously saved yesterday afternoon when the train wrecked in which they were playing topped off the station platform and threw them under the wheels of the freight train.

Their father, Roy Spencer, C. P. R. agent here, glanced up from his key in the station window as the train came in from the west and noticed that the children were close to the track. Before he had time to shout a warning the wagon suddenly caught and turned sideways and the children fell under the wheels.

In the fraction of a minute left before wheels would pass over their bodies, he rushed out, and realizing instantly that he would be unable to rescue both, he reached desperately for the boy who was nearest to him. One wheel caught the boy's knee as he grasped him, but in spite of this the father was able to drag him out to safety.

His tiny daughter was crushed to death before his eyes just a few inches beyond his reach.

WATCH CENTURIES OLD STILL TELLS THE TIME

City Jeweler Has Timepiece Made in France About 1650.

A beautifully cast French watch of a quaint design and perfect workmanship and more than 270 years old is one of the most treasured possessions of E. S. Barnard, well-known London jeweler. Mr. Barnard purchased the "grandmother's watch," as it is known, some years ago, and although it has passed through many generations, it will keep as perfect time today as it did nearly three centuries ago.

The watch, which, of course, is hand made throughout, was finished in Paris by one, Jean Martineau, about the year 1650. It boasts a rather unique dial, showing the figures in irregular patches of enamel, of the style known as "cartouches." A surprising feature of the watch is the thickness of the case, which is at least to the present generation, it has an hour hand only. An inner circle in the dial is graduated, however, permitting one to tell the time fairly accurately within the hour.

In these modern days, when a man's individuality varies directly as the thickness of his time-piece, the "grandmother's watch" is a class by itself. It is one and a half inches thick, and two and a quarter inches in diameter. It has a wappan watch though back in the 1600's, and the waistcoats of those days were noted for their roominess.

At the center of the watch is a hand, which carries the hand in front, and a balance wheel of an indeed original design vibrates back and forth in a pendulum. The working parts of this antique watch are beautiful in design and workmanship.

The entire case of the watch is chased in a design, illustrating a story from Greek mythology, while the several small pillars supporting the dial, which are made of perfect evidence of the extreme care taken by the maker.

DISCUSS FAIR PLANS AT PLEASANT PICNIC

After deciding to procure a booth at the Western Fair to serve tea during exhibition week, members of the King Street Presbyterian Church met for this purpose yesterday afternoon to discuss matters pertaining to the booth. Over twenty members of the Ladies' Club of the church were present, and a menu and prices for the teas were decided upon. The decoration of the booth is already under way.

GLADIOLUS NOTES FROM NEXT WEEK'S BIG SHOW

The amateur is more concerned with the science of varieties than the wins of a particular person or society. The following notes are made with that idea in mind. The Gladiolus show was a splendid performance from every standpoint. The rooms were large and well lighted. The quality of bloom was absolutely top notch, and the exhibitors could be desired. Visitors who had seen the American Gladiolus Society show at Rochester, declared that the Gladiolus show was certainly the best they had ever seen.

St. Thomas had a fine exhibit, as usual, and was well represented by H. Attridge and his well-merited awards. Campbell Bros. of London, showed the show a little early for them, but their flowers were golden opinions, but really the outstanding feature was the exhibits headed by the late Mr. Attridge, as if his spikes had been cut from 6 and 7 foot stems, and the number of flowers at once almost passed belief. SEAFORTH DOCTOR IS KILLED BY CAR

Dr. J. G. Scott Is Victim of Accident Near Brussels.

PRACTICED 50 YEARS

Special To The Advertiser.
Seaforth, Aug. 24.—Death came with startling suddenness about a o'clock this afternoon to Dr. J. G. Scott, one of the oldest and most prominent physicians in the County of Huron as the result of a car accident. His sister, Mrs. Thynne, of two Huron, was driving the car when it had been visiting him, and he engaged a car to take them to visit their brother, Frank Scott, in Bluevalle where they remained for a few days. Dr. Scott returning with his wife, Robert Jones, was driving on this side on Bruce when Dr. Scott's hat blew off and he got out to get it, but did not notice the car. The car was driven by a woman, who, with his family was in the car. He did everything in his power to avert an accident, and in the attempt drove the car into a ditch. The car was a turtle, several of the occupants being

Dr. Scott was for many years coroner of the County of Huron and health officer for Tuckersmith Township.

One son, H. R. Scott of Seaford survives; also three brothers and two sisters, George Scott, Toledo; Frank Scott, Detroit; Andrew Scott, Detroit.

GOVERNMENT DECIDES

TO RAISE GUARANTEE

Point Edward Is Assured by Mr. Haney of Its Housing Bonds.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, Aug. 24.—W. S. Haney, M. L.A., announced today that he had been advised that the Cabinet coun-had decided to increase the guarantee limited to $30,000 by the late government, for the issue of housing bonds by the village of Point Edward, the decision being made following representations made by Mr. Haney.

The village had made expenditures and accepted applications amounting set by the late government, and matters looked unpleasant when Hon. C. Nixon advised the local commission that the late government could not go beyond the amount originally set.

In taking up the matter, Mr. Han-reported to Toronto that all payments of homes erected to date have been met, and the government security had increased considerably in value.

Award Bessie Sandeman Shield For Best Camper

Elsie Saunders Receives Shield For Sports—Best All-Round Tribe Is Found To Be the Echeekonahs.

Special to The Advertiser.

Orondaga Camp, Port Bruce, Aug. 24.—A very jolly party was given on Thursday evening, Aug. 23, by the leaders of Port Bruce Y. W. C. A. camp in honor of Miss E. V. Jones, camp mother. The cozy living-room of the lodge was prettily decorated with August flowers, tall rushes, sprays of asparagus, and the graceful spray of the virgin's bower. By candle light the party gathered around the fireplace, while every cool evening sends its glow over circles of happy faces. There were 15 guests, Miss Jones, Professor and Mrs. Frank Anderson, Miss Helen A. Brown, Miss Beatrice Reid, and Miss A. M. Menhennick of London, Miss Sadie Knowles of Sarnia, Miss Lois Kingsley of Ottawa, Miss Helen St. John, Miss Louise Burns, Miss Marjorie Hughes from Toronto, Miss Elsie Pretty of St. Thomas, and Miss Muriel Oliver from Hamilton.

Professor Anderson was asked by the leaders to make the only speech of the evening. He voiced their appreciation in a humorous way, which conveyed, however, the love and sincere good wishes of everyone that Miss Jones might have a pleasant and restful winter after her heavy duties during the camping season. Miss Jones was surprised to receive a camp souvenir book, made by hand, containing snaps and autographed verses. After a short reply by Miss Jones the guests found the toast made at the fireplace most appetizing, especially when served with tomato soup, and other camp delicacies.

Thursday evening found the campers at Orondaga gathered around the glowing fire at the Lodge of Orondaga, eagerly waiting the report of the winning tribe. The report of the winning tribe, which was the Echeekonahs, was given by Miss Jones, who, in the opinion of leaders and campers alike, was the most fully realized of the ideals of the camp, and who helped most to make camp a happy place for all. Many little tales were told of small kind things—in the words of Lowell—she doeth little kindnesses which others leave undone or despise.

For naught which sets one's mind at ease, Or given happiness or peace, Is low esteemed in her eyes."

Bessie was accordingly presented with the best camper shield, a white "O" with a blue "C" and the year embroidered in gold. To the delight of all, Elsie Saunders received the shield for sports—a gold "O," blue "C" and figures of white.

The best all-round tribe was found to be the Echeekonahs. Judged on the basis of code cards, camp spirit of its members, nature study, stunts and sports, this tribe out of a total of 100 points received 42.34 points. The Aylmer tribe came closely second, with a total of 41.13 points.

Marshmallow Roast.

The members of the Echeekonah tribe are Alma Reid, Edith Finlayson, Winnifred Crump of Galt, Daisy Owens and Miss Helen St. John, who have been spending the summer in England and Scotland, and for home from Liverpool on August 1.

Miss Marion Tanton, Waterloo street, is expected home next week from Toronto, where she has been spending the summer as student dietitian at the Sick Children's Hospital.

Miss Eva Clare is back in Winnipeg after spending the summer associated with the tribe were Miss Oliver, the tribal leader, of Hamilton, Miss Kingston of Ottawa, Miss McCamus, Miss Menhennick and Miss Phillips of London, and Miss Burns of Toronto. The tribal shields are a blue "O," with a yellow "C" and figures of white.

At the close of the presentation of the shields, Daisy Owens of Sarnia was hostess for a marshmallow roast for the camp, after which Miss d'Avignon read the 13th chapter of Corinthians, and Professor Anderson, closed with prayer. Taps were sung as usual on the bank of the river, where a large camp fire had been lighted to cast its light and its glow upon the tents as the campers for the last time for this season enjoyed the sleeping out-of-doors.

The leaders' camp opens at Orondaga on Saturday.

The home of Mrs. James Finch, William street, was attractively decorated yesterday afternoon on the occasion of a handkerchief shower given in aid of the handkerchief booth at the White Shrine bazaar to be held in the autumn. White sters and marigolds throughout the living-room and dining-room carried out the white and gold colors of the shrine.

On the tea table white asters and marigolds in silver vases were used effectively. Mrs. Duncan Ross presiding over the tea cups in the afternoon and Mrs. Arthur Russell in the evening, assisted by Mrs. Angus Fraser, Mrs. Eddy and Mrs. Weames.

A brightly-glowing log fire lent its warmth to the room which witnessed the arrival of many guests during the afternoon and evening. A goodly number of pretty handkerchiefs being deposited in the basket which was there for that purpose. One handkerchief came from as far away as Wingham, the gift of a former member of the shrine.

The guests were received by Mrs. Malcolm Kerr and Mrs. James Finch, joint conveners of the shower. Mrs. Angus Fraser is convener of the handkerchief booth at the bazaar.

SPARTA LADIES ATTEND COOKING DEMONSTRATION

Special to The Advertiser.

Sparks, Aug. 24.—The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church, here, held a home of Mrs. (Dr.) Elliott Saturday afternoon with 32 present. Mrs. Rolison, the president, presided.

Mrs. J. T. Russell, Mrs. E. Russell, Mrs. (Dr.) Kilgour, Miss Rose Grisdale and Mrs. (Dr.) Elliott were appointed program committee in connection with the church anniversary to be held Oct. 7 and 8. The men of the congregation will take charge of the supper. The Scripture lesson was read by the pastor. The feature of the afternoon was a cooking demonstration of aluminumware by F. A. Gilbert of Fingal. Mrs. Gilbert explained in an interesting way the use of aluminum compared to other cooking utensils, and gave a practical demonstration of cooking. A number was placed upon one utensil and became the property of the one guessing that number or the one nearest to it. Mrs. Matthews, who is visiting Mrs. (Dr.) Kilgour, had the lucky number. At the close a dainty lunch was served.

MOTHERS' CLUB HEARS OF MRS. COURTIS' DEATH

The Mothers' Club members of the city of London will hear with regret the news of the death of Mrs. Ada Courtis, organizing secretary of the Home and School Association of Ontario. The London Club is sending its word of sympathy, but it is not expected that any of the London members will attend the funeral, which takes place in Toronto at 10 o'clock, Monday.

Mrs. Courtis was widely known and loved throughout the province.

Paris, Aug. 21.—Lace trimmed with monkey fur, the long strands flowing gracefully on the edges of real lace flouncings, is a feature of smart party frocks today. This combination is seen also on afternoon costumes.

Big Ribbon Bows.

Paris, Aug. 24.—The big ribbon bow today is being manipulated skillfully by the designers of fashions. Many of these garments, increasingly splendid in materials, have a huge silk or velvet bow on one shoulder, with ends hanging nearly to the ground.

Many-Flooned Apron.

London, Aug. 24.—An apron of many little flounces is substituting for a panel on the front of any number of little gowns just now. The idea is copied in lingerie.

Browns and Tans.

London, Aug. 24.—Browns and tans combined are among the fashionable shades for autumn. Tailored suits in these shades shown here today are trimmed with brown lamb.

Blossoms of Leather.

New York, Aug. 24.—The flowers that bloom in the spring would scarcely recognize their sisters that bloom in these shades shown here today are blossoms to ornament the new hats.

Black and White Season.

New York, Aug. 24.—It looks for the moment like a black and white season. Black and white is the color scheme for the chic street wear, the black costumes often being trimmed with white fur.

Dyeing the Ermine.

New York, Aug. 24.—Talk about painting the lily! They are dyeing ermine now. It is to be seen, both dry and summer ermine, on the fur-trimmed jackets which are expected to have such a vogue.

Your Home and You

By HELEN KENDALL.

HOOK YOUR OWN RUGS.

Those of us who have a fondness for the quaint old candlewick spreads, rag carpets, knitted bell-pulls and other hand-wrought articles of our grandmothers' day, are especially enthusiastic over the rugs which have been acquired not only an artistic popularity but a money value these latter days. Forth from the old farm houses and the country attic, or the "best chamber" of one's elderly aunt, come these brightly-colored, crudely designed mats, to add their charm to our modern old-fashioned bedrooms or living rooms.

To those of us who want them but cannot afford to purchase them, it is good news to learn that we can make our own with as little trouble, and perhaps even more pleasure, than our ancestors did. In many departments stores the naive and the teaching are to be had, and for those who live away from the great centers there are schools of handicrafts and household industries that will send printed instructions for this interesting old art.

The materials for these hooked rugs are varied and unusual. At one school it has been found that silk or mercerized stockings make ideal "rags," when cut into the proper lengths. Heavier rugs are made of unbleached muslin, dyed by the rug-maker to any color and shade, or a little to her rug.

Old woolen or cotton pieces may be used, too, combined with pieces of new material.

The tools and equipment for making hooked rugs are very simple. A framework of light strips of wood holds a piece of burlap on which the design is drawn, and the pattern is worked in by drawing strips of material through the meshes of the burlap with a hook made of a piece of steel set in a wooden handle. The process is simple, unburied, and may be taken up at odd moments when ever the home woman finds time to devote a little to her rug.

Instructions for making these rugs and for securing the equipment will be gladly sent by the schools which have the materials, patterns, and tools.

The Doo Dads—Tiny Performs On Main Street.

By Arch. Dale.

Once upon a time, many years ago, Tiny, the elephant, traveled with a circus. When he was with the circus, Tiny had to pull the big, heavy wagons out of the mud holes. They made him load the wagons with big poles; and the thick, heavy boards from which the seats were made. Tiny had to work very hard, and one day he became angry and ran away. After he left the circus, Tiny had many interesting experiences. One time he was locked up in jail, and many, many times he was hungry. Then after wandering about Tiny found Nicholas Nutt, and they became partners. Tiny lived in a crooked little barn back of Nicholas Nutt's twisty little house. Tiny would help Nicholas deliver ice and sell toy balloons. Nicholas would buy nice fresh hay for Tiny, and sometimes peanuts for dessert. One day Tiny told Nicholas about the circus. Nicholas asked Tiny if he could do any tricks, and Tiny told him that he could not do any tricks. Nicholas told Tiny that if he would learn to do tricks they could go with the circus, and not have to work so hard, and that they could make lots of money. This pleased Tiny, and they began to practice, and very soon Tiny could do many wonderful stunts.

Today Nicholas is having Tiny perform for the little Doo Dads right on the main street of Dooville. Tiny looks as if he was afraid of tumbling over backwards. The little girly Doo Dad is wondering what would happen to her little brother if Tiny should lower himself. My, but she is scared, but the little brother just goes on licking his all-day sucker as though he were in no danger. Old Man Grouch is trying to have Flannelfeet arrest Nicholas for blocking the traffic. Flannelfeet acts as if he had not heard a word. He thinks it is a very fine performance that Nicholas is giving. When he starts to walk away, and Roly's tin can begins to rattle, something may happen. The poor little Doo Dad in front is almost heartbroken. He is asking Doc Sawbones why his hobby horse can't do tricks like Tiny, and for once Old Doe is at a loss. The pussy on the peak, the mouse in the chimney, the crow on the eave, the little Doo Dads on the balcony, and the ones in front of the hotel, are thoroughly enjoying themselves. Old Sleepy Sam snoozes away, and hasn't an idea of what a good time he is missing.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON.
Authors of "The Lightning Conductor."

Miles Sheridan Is Baffled By the Unassuming Manner of Terry

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.

Teresa Desmond (Terry), lovely and unbelievably innocent, is impersonating her beautiful half-sister, Julius Divine—known as the Million Dollar Doll—whose sketchy career is unknown to Terry.

Miles Sheridan, Terry's "Dream Prince," furnished the money for her convent education when she was a child. His wife is making him wretched with her infidelity and in order to facilitate her obtaining a divorce, Miles offers the Million Dollar Doll $20,000 to take a yacht trip with him. Julius is unable to take the trip herself, but working on her little sister's gratitude to Miles, she persuades Terry, who is an exquisite counterpart of herself, to take her place.

Betty Sheridan, Miles' wife, is deeply in love with Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian. Eustace Natio, a wealthy Greek, who does not know of Terry's relationship to Julius, is in love with the younger girl.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, is Terry's maid on board the yacht. Her early disapproval of "The Million Dollar Doll" is swiftly disappearing under the influence of Terry's childish charm. But Miles, "the Prince," is cold and hostile. He has no desire to be friendly with this notorious young person, in whom he does not recognize the little girl he befriended so long ago. A storm comes up and Terry is frightened until Miles appears.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

A Prince's Solicitude.

"I heard you'd hurt yourself today," he said, pausing in the doorway. "You sprained your ankle, didn't you?"

No longer had the girl to strive for courage. She felt no fear at all. Miles had come. He looked almost kind. He was here on purpose to ask how she was.

"Oh no, I didn't sprain my ankle, thank you," she answered cheerfully. "It was only a little wrench. I shall be all right tomorrow." "Good!" said Sheridan. "This yacht isn't much of a place for invalids—with no doctor on board. I suppose I must be an optimist, not to carry one. We've had one casualty today. I'm glad you don't call yourself an optimist."

Delicate Girls Need New Blood

Rich, Red Blood Means Health and Strength

The anaemia of young girls may be inherited, or it may be caused by bad air, unsuitable food, hasty and irregular eating, insufficient out-of-door exercise, and not enough rest and sleep.

It comes on gradually, beginning with languor, indisposition to mental and bodily exertion, irritability, and feeling of fatigue. Later comes the paleness of the face, headaches, dizziness following a stooping position, frequent headaches, and breathlessness. In a majority of cases constipation is present. There may be no great loss of flesh, but usually the complexion takes on a greenish-yellow color.

Cases of this kind, if neglected, become more serious, but if taken in time there is no need to worry. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which are free from any harmful or habit-forming drug, are just the tonic needed to remedy this wretched state of health. Though it is not noticeable, improvement begins with the first dose. As the blood is made rich, the pallor leaves the face, strength and activity gradually return, and the danger of relapse is very slight.

If any symptom of anaemia appears, prudence suggests that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be given at once, and the sooner they are taken the more speedily will their action improve the blood. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail, at 50 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.—Adv.

The Young Chuck Is Badly Scared By Bowser the Hound

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The old stone wall with the bushes growing along it on the edge of the Old Orchard is a blessed place. At least that is the way the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest think of it. In its time it has saved the lives of many, many little people. Probably no other place anywhere has seen so many narrow escapes as the old stone wall. Peter Rabbit, Striped Chipmunk, Chatterbox the Red Squirrel, Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel, Johnny and Polly Chuck, Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse, and the children of all these have learned to call that old stone wall blessed.

The young Chuck who had run away to see the Great World is one of these. It saved his life the very first time he saw it. He had turned the corner of Farmer Brown's barn and come face to face with Black Pussy the Cat. With his back to the barn, he had made himself look very

The young Chuck watched Black Pussy out of sight. Then he himself started on. He was all puffed up. Yes, sir he was all puffed up. He felt very big and bold and brave. He forgot all about the fact that he had been so badly frightened.

"I'm not afraid of anything," boasted the young Chuck to himself. "That Cat was twice as big as me, but she was afraid of me. I would like to see anyone try to scare me now. I would show them! Yes, sir, I would show them that they can't frighten me!"

He was so busy with his boastful thoughts that he didn't even take the trouble to look for possible danger. So he didn't see Bowser the Hound come around the corner of the barn. He was only a little more than half way to the Old Orchard when Bowser saw him. Bowser opened his mouth and let out his big voice in what, to the young Chuck, was the most dreadful noise he ever had heard. He looked back. All he saw was a great mouth filled with the most

THE DAILY SHORT STORY

POLLYS PURPLE BEADS.

"Polly, dear, I like to see you taking an interest in clothes, and I do love the pretty orchid evening gown you're so devoted to of late, but I am tired of picking up purple beads everywhere I go," sighed Polly Anderson's chum one afternoon, as she picked up bits of colored chins from the rug.

Polly laughed. "That's the trail of my aura!"

"Aura nonsense! And, besides, they don't have trails," they have merely depth. I've been reading some very learned book about the human atmosphere by a person who has almost all the letters of the alphabet after his name, and he has pictures of your aura in his articles. They have no trails, Polly, my dear."

"All right. Have it your way. Anyway, I am known by my wake of purple beads, am I not?"

As usual, Polly had the final word. The orchid gown trimmed so heavily in tiny purple beads was a venture with her, and it amused her to have it attract so much attention.

Somewhere in an essay on colors she had read that the mauve and purple shades were mental stimulants, and with no further excuse or motive than that in her whimsical mind, she had searched the town for a gown in which should blaze forth those shades. "For I shall be mentally stimulated—I shall," she said to herself on that occasion.

She had felt herself getting into a rut for months. Nothing was any fun. Nothing amused her. She seemed subnormal spiritually. And she had happened to see this little essay on colors. It had appealed to her and she had bought the gown in which were all the tones of purple. Now it was shedding its beads everywhere she went, and she was being amused by the result. No doubt she would have been equally well entertained if the beads had been green.

One morning she was casting her eyes casually over the lost and found column of her daily paper. She liked to read them. She stopped suddenly, her eyes fairly glued to a small inset. FOUND—Numerous small purple beads, evidently the tones of a gown, may have same by matching them for identification.—A. N.

"What if they should be my purple beads?" thought Polly. Then she scoffed at the idea. Who would be so silly as to advertise common china beads he had found?

But her interest and curiosity were aroused, and she replied to the advertisement and inclosed a dozen of the small trimmings in order to prove possession.

"Well—I have stimulated my interest in the everyday life, anyway," she said to herself as she felt a positive thrill at the sight of the postman again.

A small package addressed to her was handed to her by the mail carrier. Polly opened it eagerly. There, on a bed of white cotton in a small jeweler's box were dozens of her little purple beads. She looked on the wrapper. "Arthur Norton, College Heights."

"College Heights? Where is there such a place? Not in this town, I know. Anyhow, did my beads get out of town?" All these questions tumbled through Polly's mind.

She looked at the postmark and found that the town was a small university town not far from where she lived. But who was Arthur Norton? Where did he get the beads and why did he advertise for the owner of anything so valueless?

Nevertheless, she put the box of beads aside and proceeded to recall the names of everyone she had ever met from the university town. She had not been to a hop or a fraternity dance since she had worn the gown. Otherwise it might have been a prank of some of her student friends.

Trying to be entirely indifferent as to the answer, she asked her chum one afternoon, when they were together if she knew any Arthur Norton.

"Why—no. What makes you ask?"

"Nothing, specially. I happened to think I knew someone by that name and yet I could not place him. Perhaps it is someone I've read—some writer," fibbed Polly glibly.

The girls compared notes and found they were both invited to a dance at one of the fraternity houses at the university the following month.

"Let's go," said Polly. "It's ages since we've been to one. I know the boys bore you, Lil, and they do me, but they can dance. You'll have to grant them that, and I know of nothing more exciting to do."

"All right," said Lil.

"All right," said Polly. "I'll go."

Polly had a premonition that she ought to wear her purple frock. It was her habit to have a new dancing gown for such occasions, but she seemed to want to wear the beaded orchid chiffon. She didn't quite admit it to herself, but this was the real reason for her going to the dance at all—to find out if there was such a person as Arthur Norton in the college town.

The men with whom the girls were to go to the dance had arranged to meet them at the train and take them to the fraternity house, where they were to stay with a number of other out-of-town girls.

They were scarcely inside the door of the fraternity house when the stranger who was with was stopped by a friend.

"Hello, Norton, coming tonight of course?" asked Polly's companion.

"Rather," replied the stranger. He had not noticed Polly.

Polly, accustomed at least to a glance from most male eyes, was a trifle piqued when the stranger passed on. "Who was that?" she asked, softly, the name having caught her ear.

"Oh—that Prof. Norton, the new professor of applied psychology. A bit of a nut, perhaps, but quite all right. He'll be at the dance."

Surely he could not be Arthur Norton, argued Polly to herself.

That night when Prof. Norton was presented to her and she saw his splendid gray eyes fall on the designs of purple beads all over her shimmering gown she knew it was he.

"But—" he began.

Polly stopped him while she got into step. "Don't ask me now. I'd rather wait a minute. Isn't it funny?"

The two danced for a couple of moments in silence, wondering at the rhythm. The music suddenly caught them up together.

"Now tell me," said Polly, looking up at him. You are Arthur Norton and you did send me the beads, but—where did you get them and why did you advertise?"

He explained that in the beginning it had been a joke. One of the men from his house had been visiting in Polly's town, had picked up the beads here and there during the course of a dance, for fun, had pulled them out of his dinner pocket and dared Norton to advertise for the owner. There the subject had dropped between the men, but unknown to anyone he had sent in the advertisement. "With this result," he began.

"Do you believe in such infinitesimally small things having any real place in the scheme of-of Fate?" asked Polly, later.

"Do I?" asked Norton, all the earnestness of his nature having been let loose in these words. "Wait and see."

Polly did not have to wait long to learn that the purple beads had strewn themselves across her path way for a wonderful purpose.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 25, 1923.

Flouting the Law.

Coupled with the announcement that representatives of Canada and the United States will confer in September to arrange a joint effort for the suppression of the rum-running activities of unscrupulous gentlemen operating off the coasts of the United States comes the interesting news that a member of the English aristocracy, Sir Broderick Hartwell, is promoting a company to sell whiskey to the United States rummers, and is guaranteeing profits to his shareholders. The promoter estimates that he can sell 10,000 cases of whiskey each month at points 20 miles off the United States coast, and guarantees a profit of 20 per cent bi-monthly to his investors. It is stated that legal authorities have pronounced the venture of the titled promoter to be within the law, so there is little doubt that he will find many people ready to invest.

The very boldness of the announcement by Sir Broderick Hartwell affords ample evidence of the need for some concerted action to prevent illicit traffic from which unscrupulous gentlemen are waxing wealthy.

But the illicit liquor traffic is not confined to the coasts. A day or two ago five aggregating $4,000 were struck in the city police court against two men caught transporting liquor between London and Brantford. One fine was promptly paid, but not before intimation was given that there might be revelations which would include men in both cities named as behind the transaction. Scarcely a day passes in the annals of the London police that does not see one or more cases of violation of the Ontario temperance act. No other provincial or federal statute is so openly or flagrantly violated. It is true there are many people, not to be classed as in sympathy with the liquor traffic, who believe the Ontario temperance act does not offer the best solution of the prohibition problem, but the fact remains that the act is on the statute books, and consequently must be enforced and obeyed.

There is much speculation as to what the future may bring in the way of provincial liquor legislation. Although Premier Ferguson was careful to avoid any direct statement on the O. T. A. in his last election campaign, his supporters "whispered" assurances that if he was victorious at the polls the existing legislation would be changed to make it easier to obtain those beverages now under the ban. It is sincerely to be hoped that in these cases the wish was father to the thought and that any change in the existing legislation will not be in the direction of reducing the present restrictions. Ontario is the bulwark of prohibition in Canada—any recession from that position would be a retrograde step.

Please Give Us the Details.

A British astronomer, P. M. Ryves, has watched Mars for a year, and announces that there are people there.

No person will get excited over this. The only possible flare-up would be if he produced a couple of people from Mars by bringing them down on a rope or a long pole.

And if he did, what then?

Would they be able to spread mustard on a hot-dog and call it a meal, or could they sing our 1923 classic about the pushcart being short on a consignment of bananas?

Let these star gazers give us something definite about the Martians. We are a bit weary of hearing that Mars has people, and that sitting on the banks of a system of canals is the great outdoor pastime.

Ocean Travel.

If one is in search of a vivid picture of what ocean travel was like a hundred years ago one ought to read in Dickens "Martin Chuzzlewit" about the emigrant ship in which Martin and Mark Tapley made the voyage to America. If one wants to study the same picture today all one has to do is take a passage on any of the up-to-date ocean liners. The contrast is sure to be a startling one, for the ocean voyager of today scarcely realizes that a trip of thousands of miles is being made until he is delivered in good condition at his destination. Take for example the trips of the Leviathan and that of the Olympic which are at present taking place from New York to Southampton. This unofficial race began on Saturday and is due to end on Thursday morning. Where at the present day these ocean vessels take days, it is not very many years since they took weeks. One of the factors which render the ocean voyage little more than a passing incident nowadays is the home-like surroundings in which passengers find themselves on board ship. It is the object of the larger steamship companies to make each vessel "a home away from home" as far as the ingenuity of man will follow. The suites of rooms differ very little from those to be found in a first-class hotel. There are lounges and music rooms for all, boudoirs for the women folk and smoke rooms for the men. In these rooms the furnishings and fittings are such that one has to look out of one of the windows and gaze on the rolling expanse of sea and sky before realizing that the land is hundreds of miles away. There are open fireplaces in these rooms, pictures hanging on the walls, and curtains on the windows; no longer circular portholes, but with casement frames like a bungalow or cottage. A typical smoke room is a triumph of artistic psychology meant to delude men into the belief that they are still on land enjoying all the comforts of their favorite club. A fire of logs glows in the grate, an old-fashioned clock ticks on the mantelshelf, the walls are adorned with rare sporting prints appropriately framed, and the chairs and tables might have been taken from the Maypole or the White Hart of super-pleasant and cosy memory. There are a hundred and one other things that make the modern ocean trip a pleasure and not a pain, and it is only those who have made up their minds to be miserable in spite of all that is done for their comfort who are in danger of being disappointed.

The Love of Home.

The love of home is one of the primitive instincts of the human race, and wherever the lot of man may be cast, no matter what his adaptability may be, there is invariably the home feeling, with all its associations of light and shadow, of joy and sorrow. This is to a large extent the genesis of those reunions of which we have lately been hearing so much and which have become an integral part of the life of the nation. The immigrant may adopt a country as his own, but he never forgets the land of his birth or fails to dwell with pleasure on the traditions of his forefathers. Men may become Canadianized or Americanized, losing their national identity in the exigencies of daily life, but the characteristics of his race unconsciously remain with him all the time, and he readily responds to the call of the blood whenever occasion arises. It is sometimes asserted that if immigrants would entirely forget their racial origin and conform in every way to the customs of the country of their adoption that it would be the most desirable thing that could happen not only for the country but for themselves as individuals, but who is to set the standard as to what is best for the country or for its people as a whole?

Conformation to the laws of the land, and a desire to do all that lies in one's power to advance the cause of good citizenship are perhaps among the best means of doing one's best for one's country, adopted or otherwise, but this does not necessarily mean that men are to sink their national identity or to rid themselves of those characteristics which have been proved to be good. What is really most desirable is that all prejudices should be laid aside, that misunderstandings should be avoided, and that all should strive for the common good. This will prove no detriment to their love of the homeland, but will still further sweeten its memories and render them more tolerant of men and things in the land in which their lot is now cast. They will be Canadians first, and whatever they please to be afterwards provided it is good.

Why Presidents Break Down.

Many United States papers are seriously discussing the advisability of some change that would relieve the president of the republic from some of his administrative duties. They point out that in England the crown has very little of this work, and that in France it is shared by president and premier.

The United States expects much of its president. Their methods of political warfare are more strenuous than ours. The constant and persistent denouncement of the government and all that pertains to it by organized opposition bears heavily upon the president.

There is very little let-up as far as the president is concerned. He has to deal with the world and with his own people. He has powers greater than those of a king.

Let the U. S. papers go on with their discussion. It may help at arriving at the conclusion that a president is only human; that he can be hurt by malignant criticism or helped by kindly consideration.

As a rule a president, or any man in public life gets much of the former and little of the latter.

Note and Comment.

Chilly breezes have made bankrupt a German seaside resort. It is also chilly in the Ruhr, but may soon be warm.

This is the season when vocalists begin to warble "Tosti's 'Good-bye' and elocutionists to recite "The Last Rose of Summer."

With farmers growing wheat to sell around $1 a bushel, and a bricklayer getting in some case $10 to $14 per day, how long will it take a farmer to have a brick house?

A crying baby, stolen from her parents, is taking front page space in every paper in New York, while millionaires and kings are ignored. Which proves, perhaps, that there is a good deal of human kindness in the world after all.

Your Health:

Here's the Way To Add Twenty Years To Your Life

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

At Atlantic City the other day there was a convention of doctors. The presiding officer, Dr. Claude A. Burnett, devoted a part of his presidential address to the prolongation of human life. He thinks twenty years can be added to the span of an average life, and that it is merely a problem of learning how to live.

The doctor says long life is ahead for many men and women who are carefully and naturally. This is to be accomplished by thoughtful planning of the daily routine.

There is much food for thought in this subject. What do you think of the statement that the time will come when it will be considered criminal to have a death in a community from a preventable disease?

Of course, the victim of the disease will be past paying further penalty for his temerity. But if the victim is a minor, or if his illness makes him too sick to be responsible, somebody blunders if he is not put in the way of cure and long life.

There is no question of the correctness of the statement that deaths from preventable disease exceed those caused by war and accident. I fully agree with Dr. Burnett that that overlook, overeat, unbalanced exercise, unintelligent eating, and unintelligent living are the fundamental evils of the day. Truly, these things pave the way for early invasion by the degenerative diseases and an unnecessary shortening of life.

Perhaps the most serious of modern faults is overeating. Almost everybody eats too much. We eat because we like to eat. The food is tempting, it is served in appealing ways. We sit down at table so many times a day, and attack the food just as industrious persons attack their jobs.

Recently, I visited my father, spending ten days under his familiar roof. I am happy to say that he carries his eighty-five years very lightly. He showed this by his physical and mental alertness, being more active, I fear, than his son.

What struck me forcibly was his abstemiousness, particularly at the evening meal. Meat and other of the ordinary substantial things he declines to take at night, confining his eating largely to bread and milk.

Of course, bread and milk contain all the essentials of a well-balanced diet. Not only do they satisfy appetite, but they give everything needed for health and physical prosperity.

But most of us would consider them a pretty poor substitute for the elaborate evening meal of modern times. There is no doubt, however, that unconscious gluttony is one of the important things to do, if you would get the twenty additional years that can be added to the span of the average life, is to eat less and to be more thoughtful in planning your living.

The Handy Man

By ANNE CAMPBELL.

The Handy Man with tools and pail Goes up the street and down. Is there a bit of board to nail In all this busy town?

A floor to scrub, a porch to clean, Some windows to make bright? Oh, any kind of work will mean That he will eat tonight!

The Handy Man does not complain, But whistles as he goes. No one need look for work in vain. That much he surely knows.

And there's a joy in labor done That nothing else affords. The busy hours pass on by, one, with plentiful rewards!

The Handy Man could teach us all A lesson fine and true. We'll take whatever may befall If there is work to do.

For work well done spells happiness, No matter what you say. Brave Handy Man, may heaven bless Your tireless search today!

TO MY BOOTBLACK.

(Many bootblacks one sees on city streets are descendants of the old Roman emperors.—New York Globe.)

Son of those heroes that sophomores scan about, Scion of days when the deities ran about, Hurling their wrath from Olympian rocks, Don't smear that polish all over my socks!

Listen, you limb of an ancient nobility, Practice more care and restrain your agility. Youth with those lavish Cimmerian locks, Work on the shoes, but lay off o' my socks!

Child though you be, of the tragic Euripides, Sobered, Plato, heroic Pheidippides, Your blue blooded ears will receive a hard box If you let that darn polish embellish my socks!

Fancy a man being divorced because he bought a cover for his typewriter. But the cover in this case was an imported French gown.

It's getting so any motorist who survives Sunday driving should get a Carnegie medal for bravery.

Another drop in wheat prices. The public hope millers will say it in flour.

Securities are suffering from a bear market, including bonds of matrimony.

Last Thursday four weddings were held here. Last Thursday, you will remember, was bargain day.

A New York bride got a baby elephant for a wedding present. We have a couple of friends who married baby elephants.

Citizens who neglected to store their coal early apparently think there's fuel born every minute.

It ought to be made compulsory for every man who chews tobacco to yell "fore" before he parts with it.

An Indiana man died from laughter at a movie screen comedy and every newspaper told about it. But they never mention the millions who almost die from boredom.

A United States senator claims to have been insulted in Germany. It seems to be part of that shrewd Teutonic propaganda to make American visitors feel at home.

It's two months now since Mr. Meighan has unleashed his stock phrase about "violating the sanctity of political pledges." But we'll hear it again, don't worry.

One touch of winter shakes the old oak bin.

Porcupines are becoming popular as household pets and their exploiters want a slogan that will sell them. Why not "A skin you love to touch?"

SUMMER RESORTS. The same old lake, the same old moon, The same old bark canoe, The same old home-made brew.

The same old nook by the water's edge, Eyes of gray or blue, The same old seat on a rocky ledge—Only the girls are new.

Is there any significance in the fact that since powder and rouge have become so popular, soap sales have fallen off?

It seems a shame that all fat people don't belong to the Reform party.

The Guide Post—By Henry van Dyke

THE BEAUTY OF HAPPINESS.

Again I will say, Rejoice!—Phil. iv., 4.

The first thing that commended the church of Jesus to the weary and disheartened world in the early years of his triumph was his power to make his children happy—happy in the midst of afflictions, happy in the sense of divine fatherhood and human brotherhood, happy in Christ's victory over sin and death, happy in the assurance of endless life.

At midnight in the prison, Paul and Silas sang praises, and the prisoners heard them.

The lateral force of joy—that was the power of the church. Was not St. Paul a happier man than Herod? Did not St. Peter have more joy of his life than Nero?

It is said of the first disciples that they "did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart."

Not till that pristine gladness returns will the church regain her early charm for the souls of men.

Every great revival of Christian power—like those which came in the times of St. Francis of Assisi and of John Wesley—has been marked by a revival of Christian joy.

ENTERTAIN RETURNED BOYS AT HYDE PARK

Women's Institute Members Ideal Hostesses For Sanatorium Patients.

Special to The Advertiser.

Hyde Park, Aug. 24.—Under the auspices of the Women's Institute, between 40 and 50 returned soldiers from Byron Sanatorium were hospitably entertained Wednesday afternoon on the beautiful lawn at the rectory, which proved an ideal place to hold the annual banquet.

The many tables placed on the grounds were well spread. While the tables were being cleared away, Rev. V. Durnford gave a kindly word of welcome to the boys. One of the soldiers, in replying on behalf of the boys, thanked the ladies who had provided the splendid supper, and was loud in his praise for the unbounded kindness and hospitality that had been extended both by the institute and Rev. and Mrs. Durnford.

The boys then gave three cheers, after which the program was commenced with a humorous reading by Miss Mae Winter of Hyde Park, which was so much enjoyed that an encore was called. Then followed a number of races.

After the races the soldiers put on a short program consisting of singing, mandolin, guitar and piano selections, combined with an enjoyable half-hour of community singing.

On behalf of the returned soldiers, the president, Mrs. W. Mason, moved a vote of thanks to the neighbors who so kindly conveyed the soldiers in their automobiles to the rectory.

Previous to the entertainment the regular monthly meeting of the institute was held, at which there was a splendid attendance. The only business item of importance was that of arranging a prize list for the school fair. After a short discussion the decision was to award prizes for white and dark cake, apple pie, tea biscuits and an ideal school luncheon.

Miss Ida Routledge kindly extended an invitation for the September meeting to be held at her home.

GERMANS ARE FACING REAL FAMINE IN MILK

SAYS DE VALERA MADE SECRET PEACE OFFER

Women of Aristocratic Birth Stand in Line For Ration Cards.

Republican Leader Sought Possession of Party Funds in U. S.

Special Cable to The Advertiser.

Berlin, Aug. 24.—A threatened milk famine due to the proposed closing of the Boile Company's milk wagon routes, caused mad rushes on the so-called "bread and milk commission" today for ration cards.

Long queues of patient women, many of them of aristocratic birth, stood in line for hours waiting for the cards. The famine will hit the well-to-do as well as the poor, as milk will not be supplied anybody without a ration card. Hitherto the rich have been able to obtain supplies from the country for their children without permits.

The food situation was extremely critical. Many small shops were threatening to close at the end of the month, declaring they would be forced out of business by the new taxes.

CHARGE CHILD DESERTION.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hamilton, Aug. 24.—Pearl Gould was arrested today at Kitchener for the local police charged with having deserted her baby about two weeks ago. The child has since died.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Aug. 24.—That Eamon DeValera a fortnight before his arrest made a secret peace offer to the Irish Free State government is asserted by the Dublin correspondent of the Daily Express, who attributes the information to a member of the Free State government.

The substance of the offer, the correspondent says, was that if the government would put in DeValera's possession all the republican funds in the United States, amounting to £500,000, he would undertake to use them solely for "constitutional agitation" in Ireland and terminate military activities throughout the country.

According to the correspondent the government turned down the offer with decision, declaring they would make no terms with DeValera whatsoever.

The approach to the government is said to have been made through Free State Senator Andrew Jamieson, who, after receiving most persuasive messages from DeValera, undertook to convey the offer to the government.

DeValera's offer was described as a dangerous pilgrimage to the Republican leader's retreat, previously obtaining from the government a passport and having stated that no attempt would be made to locate the hiding-place.

As the incredible burdens kept mounting up, Stephen and his associates were constantly face to face with bankruptcy. The great achievement in Stephen's career was his part in bringing this project to a successful conclusion, for it was he, above all others, who provided the sinews of war.

On one occasion the directors had staked their private fortunes and the fortunes of their friends, until for them as for Stephen, the only alternative was to be the government or the penitentiary.

The end of the marching rails, like an insupportable burden, still up the last of their millions, and still cried out for more.

Finally there came a time when the pay car failed to go forth. There was no money to pay the men for their construction. The gangs struck, demanding immediate pay. In extremis the directors had raised their last cent. Careers of long and honorable endeavor were faced with ruin. That board room had become a Golgotha. In that blackest moment there came a cable message from George Stephen in London:

"Stand fast, Craigellachie!"

The rallying cry of Clan Grant had become the rallying cry of the C. P. R. When at last the marching roads of steel, under construction from the Atlantic and from the Pacific met, the place of meeting was marked out by the name of that Highland battler, "Craigellachie."

George Stephen, from start to finish, played the game of a man. Pluck was his crowning virtue; when things went against him he was no quitter. Best of all he played according to the rules. A nephew, Colonel George Cantlie, recalls his Uncle George saying continually "Tell the truth, tell the truth, and take the consequences."

In 1901, when he was presented with the freedom of the city of Aberdeen, Lord Mountstephen said:

"Why He Succeeded."

"Any success I may have had in life is due in great measure to the somewhat Spartan training I received during my Aberdeen apprenticeship, in which I entered as a boy of fifteen.

"To that training, coupled with the fact that I seemed to have been born utterly without the faculty of doing more than one thing at a time, it is due that I am before you today."

"It was impressed upon me by the best of mothers that ever lived that I must aim at being a thorough master of the work by which I had to get my living."

"I had neither the training nor the talent to accomplish anything without hard work, and fortunately I knew it."

We will have to call George Stephen back again from the forgotten past, not because of his achievement, but because of his life.

To have lived a great life is surely the greatest of all achievements. I never could bring up much on copy-book maxims, but when things are looking black, for me to recall this Scot is like listening to a voice saying "Pull on your hands, lad, and take a new grip."

I hope, even yet, to see George Stephen's story in our school books, not as a mere record of his success, but as a picture of a man's life, for the emulation of Canadian youth.

Someone remonstrated with George Stephen, saying: "You are a man of letters, and you should write a book."

George Stephen replied: "I have no time to write a book. I am too busy being a man of letters."

His Crowning Achievement.

From the presidency of the Bank of Montreal, we passed on to his crowning achievement, the building of the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

As soon as the idea of a Canadian transcontinental was proposed, the English press began to ridicule it as "a commercial absurdity." A railroad to nowhere would never pay for the grease for its axle wheels.

Poor Vision Never Helped To Make a Play Enjoyable

Not only the theatre but every other form of pleasure will lose its attraction if your eyes are not "up to par." And 70% of all people have defective vision. It is a serious thing, this question of good and poor eyesight, and unless your eyes are attended to now you will suffer later on. Perhaps you do not need glasses—but it is satisfying to know just how your vision measures up. An examination takes only a few moments, and is painless.

Good eyesight is invaluable to and They wear glasses "on location" to preserve their vision while working under the strong kilig lights of the movie studios.

It is a fact that hundreds who could not enjoy the pictures for reason of headaches from poor eyesight now enjoy the theatre as much as anyone, after having their eyes corrected with glasses.

You may choose YOUR glasses from dozens of designs. There is one to suit your features, to fit your face and your pocket-book.

Not All the Stars Are In the Movies

The 'Star' of all Pianos is the Gerhard Heintzman

No Movie Star ever gained prominence except by merit, and it is the same with pianos. The Gerhard Heintzman has gained an enviable position among instruments because it has proven its merit through years of critical usage. That is why today it is called everywhere Canada's greatest piano.

If and ever came to London they would undoubtedly prefer the marvelous Gerhard Heintzman.

At the Western Fair the Gerhard Heintzman will be on display in the Main Building.

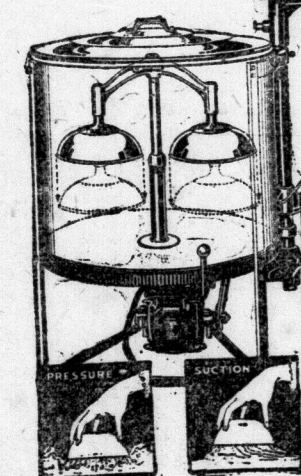

Always, in our showrooms, you are welcome to see the many models of the famous Gerhard Heintzman.

GREAT STORY OF THE MOVIES IS JAMES CRUZE'S PRODUCTION OF "HOLLYWOOD" AT LOEW'S NEXT MON., TUES. AND WED.

To Hollywood come Angela Whitaker and her grandfather, Joel, who has been ordered West for his health, but Angela's object is a movie career. Behind them are left Aunt Margaret, Lem Lefferts, Angela's "steady," and old Grandmother Whitaker. After days searching for work, Angela returns home discouraged, to hear her grandfather announce that all day he has been "in pictures." Angela is delighted, for this means a prolonged stay in Hollywood, and they move to a bungalow in a court uptown. It is here that Angela meets Horace Pringle, a young scenarist and author of a picture story, "Beware, the Avenging Hand!" Almost at once he recognizes that Angela was born to be the star in his play. So he haunts the path of a movie magnate with cards bearing the inscription, "Beware, the Avenging Hand!" which sinister inscription reduces that individual to a state of nervous apprehension. By this time Joel has become a rather swagger and gay old sport and is regarded as a regular feller by the boys and, likewise, by some of the girls. Back in Centerville, Lem, while pressing pants, is taking care of Grandmother and Aunt Margaret. They hear of the change in Joel, and there is but one thing for the trio to do—go to Hollywood and rescue the brands from the burning. So the trio arrive in Hollywood prepared for the worst. Immediately Margaret sounces over to the studio to yank Joel out of that movie hell if she has to drag him out by the scruff of his neck. At that moment, when the great, remote Cecil B. De Mille is quietly explaining the urgent need of a cyclonic woman, Margaret bursts in as if conjured by his thought. She continues to battle with her umbrella, indiscriminately. Mr. De Mille is delighted, and before Margaret realizes what has happened she is engaged to play a part. Further, Grandmother is ordered to be on hand tomorrow to play a part, too.

Tec's Snake Vehic Hoodoo and Win Last Game 4-2

McCaffrey Holds Flint To Six Scattered Hits, But Two of Them Were Homers—Coogan's Catches Feature—Ruane Stars.

Special to The Advertiser.
Flint, Aug. 24.—London had the punch and McCaffrey, the pitching prowess, today and the Tecumseh, the batting prowess, in the final game of the series, also the last one of the season here between the two clubs.
McCaffrey yielded only six scattered hits, two of them being four-base knockers and gave the Techs only two runs. Landrum dropped the left field wall in the third, while Morehart drove over Schaefer's head in deep right in the eighth for the other out. Coogan, who did not do a great deal of batting, but did hit the only home run, Coogan tripled to right in the fifth and scored on Barbelon's long sacrifice fly to John. Flint's error on Schaefer, coupled with Morehart's error, added another in the sixth. Barbelon's pass, McCaffrey's sacrifice, Stimpson's double to left for the third in the seventh, while Coogan's sacrifice, Coogan's long double—a fly that Luce hardly knocked down—produced the final run in the eighth.
Coogan did some stellar outfielding for the visitors, while Ruane's defensive play was brilliant.

REDS CONFERENCE PLAYERS STRAIGHT

Records Show Duncan and Bohne Fought Hard Against Giants.

BATTLE FOR FLAG

By JOHN B. FOSTER.

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, Aug. 24.—President Healy's prompt action the force a showdown on the charges made in a Chicago publication that gamblers approached two Cincinnati players with a proposition to help them win the game.

The game will start at 3 p.m. The borderlines arrive in this city some time this morning, and League accounts are confident. So are the Alerts confident. And it may be said in a few words that the fix will be tight.

Baker will likely accept the hurling duties on the Alert mound. The big fellow, wanted by the seniors during the season, is not letting up in his effectiveness and, in fact, seems to be going better each time out. McLeod, Balkwell and Goodman are being held in reserve.

Not much is known locally about the Cincinnati players, generally, who are masters of brevity, very probably with the intention to either win and tell about it afterwards or to remain silent if beaten. But this much is known:

Color was given to the story because the Giants won five straight games from the Reds in the last month. Apparently the champions won because they outplayed the Cincinnati thoroughly. The breaks of the game were made by the Cincinnati players, and the Reds found them strong for them in the emergency. The two players mentioned played as well in the series as other members of the team, as records show.

No Nationals involved.

It was the Cincinnati-Chicago world series of 1919 in which the scandal arose that resulted in the perpetual exclusion of Clifton, Jackson, Weaver, Risher, Gandil, Williams, McMullin and Felsch from the Chicago American League.

No National League players were involved in the charges which were made at the time.

The Cincinnati have been very anxious to win the pennant this year, and if they cleared up the Giants in that last series at home they would be out in front now after their recent victory in the east. The advantage would be all with them if they had.

At the situation stands today the Giants still have the edge, although they have lost two-thirds of the last series when they came home, or, if the champions go completely to pieces the Reds will overtake them.

Alerts Meet Windsor in Intermed. O.B.A.A. Today

Baker To Hurl For Locals —Game Starts At 3 p.m.

It is known: The Horsehoes started out this season looking like anything else but a ball team. They took some stinging defeats during the first series, but toward the end of the initial series they began to show the results of experienced coaching. They ran away with the second series honors, and took the play-off without even meeting opposition, when the Monarchs defaulted to them.

Alerts should find them tougher opposition than Inter-Club teams have been. Alerts may even take a setback right here on the alert, but no Alert supporter will hear of such a thing.

They're out to win today, and every lover of Simon Pure baseball in the city who can make the trip across London's little creek that used to be the Thames "River" is going to be there.

The game will start at 3 p.m., and will be on sale downtown at Plynns, as well as from members of the team.

The probable line-ups are: Alerts—Sumner, 2b; Connors, s.s.; Pritchett, c.; Hodgson, 1b; Baker, p.; McLeod, p.; Balkwell, p.; Goodman, p.; Prie, c.; Hicks, 1b; Mayhew, 2b; Carleton, 3b; Arthur, 1b; Plaster, 1b; Hornehoes—L. Parent, 1b; Gilbeault, s.s.; Lou Paré, 2b; Martin, c.; Benette, 3b; Mulheisen, 2b; Gilbeault, p.

FRIENDLY GRAHAM GALT WINS

Midnet Terrier Hurler Is Star Among Ontario's Simon-Pures.

BEAT GUELPH TWICE

Special to The Advertiser.

Galt, Aug. 24.—Friendly Graham, pitching ace of the Galt Terriers, and hero of the Inter-County play-off series, is one of the smallest twirlers in amateur ball, standing only five feet six inches, but despite the handicap in size, he has proven in his encounters with the pick of the Simon-pures of the province to be one of the best right-handers in Ontario today.

Graham has a great pair of shoulders and a wonderful great arm, and has a snap and a hooked curve, and when his breaks are coming right he is hard to beat. He has been most successful in conquering the best right-handers in Ontario today.

LLOYD GEORGE. France Wins No German Coal But British Gold

"Mr. Bonar Law Was Right When He Said That Great Britain Would Be the Only Country To Pay a War Indemnity."

Special Cable to The Advertiser.
London, Aug. 25.—What will Mr. Stanley Baldwin and Lord Curzon do next? Much depends for Europe on that next step, and something for them also hangs upon their action or inaction. One is reminded of the answer given by Emile Ollivier to a question as to his opinion of one of Napoleon the Third's experiments in constitutional government.

"Si cest une fin vous estes perdus, si cest un commencement vous estes fondez." (If it is an end you are lost, if it is a beginning you have laid a foundation—or are found). That sage observation is equally applicable to the last Curzon note.

We can only wait and see. The only factor in the situation that may have a determining influence on events is the accession of Herr Stresemann to the German Chancellorship. I know nothing of him beyond newspaper report, but he is generally supposed to be a man of energy, courage and resource. If that be true, his appointment to the official leadership of the German people may be an event of first magnitude. We shall soon know what he is made of.

Germany has suffered more from weak or misguided leadership in recent years than any great country in the world. It blundered her into the war; it blundered her through the armistice; it blundered during peace negotiations, and it has blundered her affairs badly after the peace. But no one can predict what Germany is capable of with a wise and strong leadership. Herr Stresemann has a responsibility cast upon him and an opportunity affording him such as have not been given to any statesman since the days of Stein and his coadjutors for regenerating his country and lifting her out of the slough of despond in which she has been sinking deeper and deeper. Those who ignore the effect which powerful and magnetic personalities may have upon the fortunes of nations in despair must have forgotten their history books.

Stresemann Holds the Key.
The fall of Dr. Cuno and the rise of Herr Stresemann may well turn out to be a more decisive event than the despatch or publication of the Curzon note. But if he lacks these rare qualities which can alone inspire a people in an emergency to heroic action and endurance, then there is nothing but chaos in front of Germany. For the moment it is more important to keep a discerning eye on Herr Stresemann than to peruse these endless notes and speeches.

It is not often I find myself in agreement with M. Poincare, but when he says that British unemployment is not attributable to occupation of the Ruhr I am in entire accord with him. In November last I called the attention of the House of Commons to world conditions which furiously affected our export trade, and which made unemployment on a large scale inevitable in the British labor market for some time to come. We are more dependent on our overseas trade, export and import shipping, and incidental business than any country in the world. Nearly half of our industrial and commercial activities are associated with outside trade in all its forms. That is not a full statement of the case, for if this important section of our business were to languish, home trade would also inevitably suffer by the consequential diminution in the purchasing capacity of our people.

Before the French ever entered the Ruhr our overseas trade was down to 75 per cent of its pre-war level. Our population has increased by two millions since 1913. Our taxation has increased four-fold. Our national debt tenfold. But our business is down 25 per cent. What is this fall in our outside sales and services attributable to? It is the direct consequence of the war. Our customers throughout Europe are impoverished. What is just as bad, our customers' customers are impoverished. So that neither can buy at our stalls quantities or qualities which they could be relied upon to purchase before the war.

Europe Must Recover First.
Until Europe can buy, Australia, Canada, India and China cannot pay, as the prime minister pointed out in his last House of Commons speech. Germany before the war bought Australian wool, Canadian grain, Indian jute and tea, and the proceeds often as not went to pay for goods bought by those countries in British markets. The same observation applied to Russia, Austria and the Levantine countries.

The purchasing capacity of Europe must therefore be replenished. That must at best take years of patient industry. The mischief of the Ruhr lies not in the creation of bad trades, but in the retarding of the process of recovery. It has undoubtedly had that effect. Before the French entered the Ruhr, trade was gradually, if slowly, improving all round. The prices of 1922 were lower than those of 1921. Therefore the contrast in sterling was not as apparent as it became when you examine weights and measures. Export figures, notably in manufactured goods, show a

THE CENTRAL FIGURES IN EUROPE'S CRISIS.

These three gentlemen perhaps more than any other trio in Europe may be regarded as the key figures in the present political crisis. Left to right they are, Dr. Gustave Stresemann, the new German chancellor; Poincare, the most powerful of all German industrialists, and Jasper

Lloyd George Says:

"He (Poincare) is not winning much coal out of his discourses, but to do him justice, he is getting something for his country."

"M. Poincare may not be able to extract reparations out of Germany, but in seven months he has succeeded in forcing 290,000,000 pounds out of Great Britain. He will certainly ask for more—and probably get it."

"The Ruhr occupation has already brought down the British claim against the Allies by 290,000,000 pounds."

"The fall of Dr. Cuno and the rise of Herr Stresemann may well turn out to be a more decisive event than the despatch or publication of the Curzon note. But if he lacks those rare qualities which can alone inspire a people in an emergency to heroic action and endurance, then there is nothing but chaos in front of Germany."

"Today we (Britain) suffer because we helped to save their (the French) capital from foreign occupation and their country from being humbled to the dust by a foreign foe. Neither in French speeches, notes nor articles is there any appreciation shown of that cardinal fact in the situation."

declined increase on those of the preceding year.

This advance is reflected in statistics of unemployment. During the first ten months of 1922, there was a reduction of over 500,000 in the numbers of registered unemployed. The succeeding ten months gave only slight improvement. Something has happened to arrest the rate of progress towards better times. This is where the Ruhr comes in. It is not by any means, to quote the prime minister, a penknife stuck in the watch and stopping the works, but it is certainly more than a grain of dust which has perceptibly slowed the action of the sensitive machinery of trade.

Germany Becoming Poorer.

The effect of the Ruhr disturbance would continue for some time if the penknife were removed now. For the present, M. Poincare is wedging it in more deeply and firmly. But even if he withdrew it, the works would not recover their normal steadiness for a long while. During these last disturbing months Germany has become appreciably poorer.

Her wealth production has been depressed throughout most of her industrial areas. To a certain extent Lorraine and Belgium have also been affected adversely. The reservoir of wealth upon which industry draws has not been filling up as it ought to if the world is ever to recover.

These things are hidden from France. She is a more self-contained country than Britain—perhaps also a more self-centered country. Even after the Napoleonic wars, which drained her best manhood and exhausted her fine nervous virility, she suffered from no interval of economic depression. Her great and victorious rival across the channel lumbered painfully through fifteen years of misery, poverty and distress. Her own population, basking in the sunshine of prosperity, regarded across the narrow waters with natural contentment dark fogs that enveloped and drenched their old enemies. You could not expect any commiseration or sympathy from them at that time. We had fought them for twenty years with an insatiable pugnacity, and at last beaten them to the ground and occupied their capital. Today we suffer because we helped to save their capital from foreign occupation and their country from being humbled to the dust by a foreign foe. Neither in French speeches, notes, nor articles is there any appreciation shown of that cardinal fact in the situation.

France Remains Stubborn.

All that is clear at the moment is the stubbornness of the French attitude. M. Poincare has not so far yielded one millimeter from his original position. Threats and cajoleries alike are answered by a repetition of the same formulas, with slight variations in word or phrase, which one would expect from a practised writer. But the theme is always the same, and the application is identical to the point of monotony. He is not winning much coal out of his discourses, but to do him justice he is getting something for his country.

Last year, Lord Balfour, in the note he sent to the allies on behalf of the British Government, offered to forego all claims for debts and reparations if Britain were secured against payment of the American debt. That meant the surrender of claims aggregating over 3,000,000,000 pounds in return for 1,000,000,000 pounds. A very handsome and generous offer. The Curzon note proposed to surrender all our claims for 710,000,000 pounds. The Ruhr occupation has already brought down the British claim against the allies by 290,000,000. M. Poincare may not be able to extract reparations out of Germany, but in seven months he has succeeded in forcing 290,000,000 pounds out of Great Britain. He will certainly ask for more—and probably get it.

Mr. Bonar Law was right when he said that under certain conditions Great Britain would be the only country to pay a war indemnity. Those conditions have arisen under his successors.

PARASITES WILL KILL CORN-BORER

Dominion Officials Liberate Thousands of Habrobracons To Exterminate Pest.

WORK IS DESCRIBED

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Thomas, Aug. 24.—With the daily liberation of over 10,000 parasites, mislabeled "wasps," from the Dominion Experimental Station in St. Thomas, the campaign to control the deadly ravages of the European corn borer in Canada by the introduction of its native enemies has begun in earnest. A. L. Baird, Dominion entomologist, who has his laboratories on Erie street, told The Advertiser today that at least half a million "habrobracons" would be liberated this year, while if a fine open fall prevailed the number would approach the million mark. The liberations are being made in the most heavily infested fields in the vicinity of St. Thomas.

The work of breeding the flies is most interesting. A thousand corn borers a day are collected to serve as "host" material. This work entails considerable labor, as the stalks have to be cut up before the worms can be secured. Only sweet corn is yet available for this purpose, and many of the corn borers are not full grown and "plump" enough to be entirely satisfactory as host material. Mr. Baird expected that these conditions would be remedied in a week or two, when field corn would be available and most of the worms fully matured. Collection would then proceed at a greater speed, he stated.

In the laboratory the work of breeding is carried on in small, round, glass containers with lids. Five hundred of these are used. Two corn borers and two males and two female flies are inserted in each glass. The worms are only left in for 24 hours, during which time an average of 30 eggs are deposited upon the female flies. Before laying its eggs the habrobracon pierces and paralyzes the borer, setting all blood action, which might combat and kill the eggs.

The borers are placed on glass plates, and in ten days the four stages of life development—egg, larvae, cocoon and fly—have taken place and the parasites are ready for liberation. The average female flies live between three and four weeks, laying as many as a thousand eggs.

Mr. Baird was disappointed at the prevalence of the term "wasp" in reference to the habrobracon. It had led to much misconception on the part of farmers in the district, he said. The parasite is scarce a quarter of an inch long, with a body little larger than a pinhead. It was noted positively that the habrobracon did not sting only on insects, and was not known to touch vegetation, and hence was quite harmless to the farm.

Charing Cross Methodists To Celebrate Anniversary

Special to The Advertiser.
Chatham, Aug. 24.—Charing Cross Methodist Church, of which Rev. Harold Bentley is pastor, will celebrate its 50th anniversary next Sunday. Rev. W. D. H. McAllister of Galt, who finished his probation at Charing Cross circuit 50 years ago, will occupy the pulpit. This circuit 50 years ago was quite a large one, including such places as Blenheim. The church, as it now stands, is a brick building with a very fine steeple. It is situated at Charing Cross, where the former place of worship stood a mile or so west.

In connection with this anniversary an old boys' and girls' reunion will be held Sunday and Monday. Although invitations were sent to a large number, everyone will be welcome. The ladies of the congregation are preparing supper on Monday for 1,500 people.

WILL OPEN VOCATIONAL CLASSES AT WALLACEBURG

Special to The Advertiser.
Wallaceburg, Aug. 24.—The board of education met recently, and it was decided to commence evening vocational classes. Subjects which will be taken include home-making, commercial work, sewing and dress-making. It is not expected that any fee will be charged the pupils, who will probably be called upon to make a deposit which will be returned at the end of the session, providing the necessary attendance is made.

NEW SARUM

Special to The Advertiser.
New Sarum, Aug. 24.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller (nee Bessie House), a former highly respected resident of this place) motored here and were the guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. W. F. Charlton. They left on Thursday by motor for Montreal and New York City, and will return home via Buffalo and Cleveland.

Dr. and Mrs. George Smith of Mansfield, Ohio, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Justus Elliott, of St. Thomas. Dr. and Mrs. George Smith of Niagara Falls, motored here and were the guests of the latter's parents, ex-Sheriff and Mrs. W. H. Elliott. Haines Miller of Detroit, is a guest of their aunt, Mrs. W. F. Charlton. Mr. and Mrs. John Couse have been visiting friends in St. Thomas.

Miss Norrine Miller and Mr. Ernest Miller of Detroit are the guests of their aunt, Mrs. W. F. Charlton. Mr. and Mrs. John Couse have been visiting friends in St. Thomas. Miss Mary Soper of Detroit has been visiting her cousin, Miss Audra Soper.

will furnish the program Monday evening.

During the past 50 years many changes took place, and among the various pastors were Rev. E. E. Scott, superannuated this year, and who is very well known. Rev. McAllister has had very fine charges, and was at one time president of the London conference, and chairman of several districts. He will conduct both services.

Of Wallaceburg were Rev. Armstrong, Rev. J. E. Hunter of Brantford, Rev. Findlay of Gorrie, Rev. J. F. Wright of Calgary, Rev. S. Salton of London (superannuated), Rev. A. H. Gonne of Edmonton and Rev. Redmond.

The history of the church will be read by Thomas Knott, only surviving member of the original trustees of the church. Addresses will be made by many old boys.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR NEW SCHOOL AT BRANTFORD

Special to The Advertiser.
Brantford, Aug. 24.—The P. H. Secord & Sons Construction Company was awarded the contract for the new eight-room school which is being built by the separate school board on Pearl street. Their tender was $41,550, and the lowest received. The contract for the electrical work was given to T. J. Minnes & Co., while Charles Taylor & Co. will have charge of the installation of the heating and plumbing systems. The price for the electrical work was $231, while the tender of the Taylor Co. was $7,755.

The members of the board originally estimated that the work would cost $100,000, but indications at present point to a cost price of about $51,000.

INTOXICATED DRIVER GOES 2 MILES IN 5 HOURS

Special to The Advertiser.
Windsor, Aug. 24.—Found guilty in police court today of driving a motor car while drunk, Albert G. Stead was sentenced to seven days in the county jail at Sandwich. Stead denied being drunk, but could not account for his movements between 12 midnight and 5:30 today.

"Where were you then?" Magistrate Gundy asked.

"On my way from Walkerville to Windsor. I have an old car. It gives me a lot of trouble," Stead replied.

"It must. Two miles in five and a half hours. You could hardly be charged with speeding," said Daniel Thompson, chief of police.

The entry list is the largest in the history of the city. Many outside exhibits are on exhibition. The judging will be held tomorrow, and the first day's attendance is large.

All flowers left over after tomorrow evening will be donated to Other Lodge No. 50, I. O. O. F., for their decoration service on Sunday.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION NAMES NEW DIRECTORS

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—Three additional directors were elected this morning to the American Association of Inspectors and Investigators in Poultry Husbandry, at its closing session today. The new directors are: F. N. Marcellus of Guelph, H. C. Knaedel of Penn. State College, Pennsylvania, and W. C. Thompson of New Brunswick, N.J. The convention was one of the most successful the poultry industry has ever had.

LAMBTON'S NEW OIL FIELD INDICATES GOOD RESULTS

Special to The Advertiser.
Petrolia, Aug. 24.—A well drilled on the town line of Warwick and Plympton townships by Alex. Calvert and Alf. Brownie was found in the well with 40 quarts of glycerine at the total depth of 572 feet. On the day following the blast, 300 feet of oil and water was found in the well. Mr. Calvert reports that three barrels were taken out by bailing. This is oil field, the capital for the drilling is furnished by the Canadian-Dutch Oil Company, which has $800,000 loaned in that section. Other wells will be drilled at once.

FINE DISPLAY AT ZORRA.
Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, Aug. 24.—With an enviable array of flowers and plants, an excellent crowd of appreciative spectators, and good weather, the first flower show under the auspices of the East Zorra Horticultural Society held in Hickson Community Hall on Thursday afternoon proved a most successful success. The officials of the society are being congratulated upon the result of their efforts. Mrs. S. P. Fraser is president of the society. Miss Shadwick the vice-president, and Mrs. H. Buckle the secretary-treasurer.

RAZE OLD LANDMARK.
Special to The Advertiser.

Petrolia, Aug. 24.—An old landmark of Petrolia, the Noble home, which witnessed the ravages of more than fifty years is being razed, and the material sold. Dr. C. O. Fairbanks will replace it with a well-leveled lawn, which will add to the doctor's attractive lawns and gardens.

Worst In All Ontario, Declares T. Beeching

Hamilton Citizen States No One Could Have Suffered More From Stomach Trouble Than He Did—Thanks Tanlac For Full Restoration.

"I feel fit as a fiddle, fully 20 years younger, and just like a 2-year-old," declared Thomas Beeching, 156 Rebecca street, Hamilton, Ont., while discussing his experience with the Tanlac treatment.

"I don't believe anybody in the whole Province of Ontario had stomach trouble worse than I did. I suffered so I was sick all over, and at times could hardly hold my head up. My appetite was all but gone. I often went all day without eating, and at times even the sight of food would nauseate me so I would have to leave the table. My nerves were all undone, and I was so restless nights I almost forgot what it was to get a good night's sleep. It was an effort for me to do any work, and nights when I got home I just could put one foot before the other. "I heard so much praise of Tanlac I went up to the corner and bought a bottle. It was the luckiest day of my life, for I started to pick up as soon as I began using it. My appetite is so big now I eat like a hungry wolf, and never suffer at all from indigestion. My nerves are back to normal, and I sleep all night without waking up. Mornings I feel plumb full of life, and ready for work. In fact, Tanlac has made a new man of me, and that tells it better than anything else."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37,000,000 bottles sold. Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.—Adv.

MRS. BUDGE SO WEAK COULD HARDLY STAND

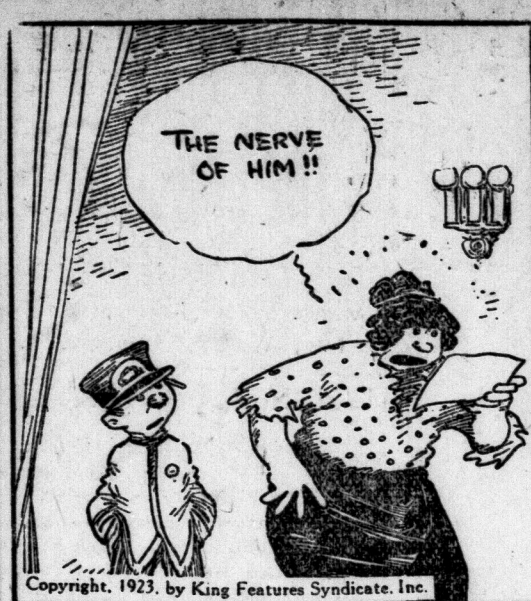

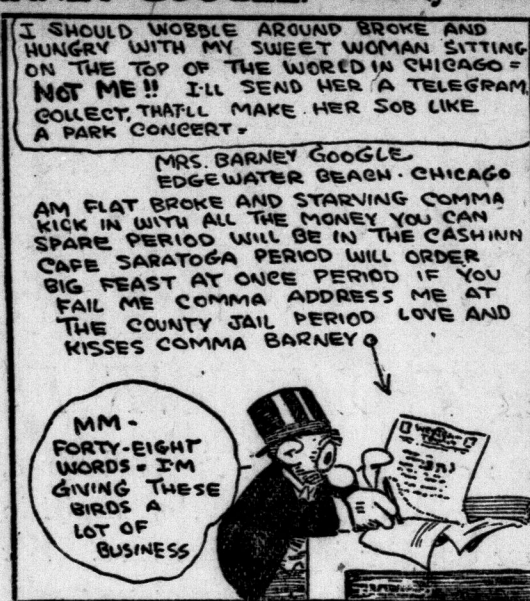

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

River Desert, Que.—"I used to have a severe pain in my side. I would be unable to walk fast and could not stand for any length of time to do my ironing or washing, but I would have to lie down to get relief from the pain. I had this for about two years, then a friend told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had had good results. I certainly got good results from it, too, as the last time I had a sore side was last May and I have not had it since. I am also glad of having good nursing for my baby, and I think it is your medicine that helped me in this way."—Mrs. L. V. Budge, River Desert, Quebec.

If you are suffering from the tortures of a displacement, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness, or a pain in the side, you should lose no time in trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write for it to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario. This book contains valuable information that every woman should know.

NOTED GLADIOLI TO BE AT FLOWER SHOW NEXT WEEK

Londoners will likely have an opportunity to see some of the great Groff gladioli at the flower show next week, as Miss Annie Campbell, the well-known expert in charge of the finer varieties on the Campbell farm, at Simcoe, will probably be the judge, and she has been asked to bring with her some of the finer varieties for exhibition. When Mr. Groff allowed his stock to pass out of his hands, there were some kinds of which the stock has never amounted to enough for a public offering, but they are gradually coming into commerce, and the gladioli world is so much the richer. Last year, the Seedling prize at St. Thomas went to the Campbell, and they ought to be just at the very top again this year at Guelph, where the capital prize for seedling is a cool hundred, offered by Mr. Carter, of that city. That is certainly a worth-while prize, and our London originators will find real competition if they send their own sets there.
The Campbells have several acres of gladioli, and a visit to their farm is quite an impressive event.
Not much has been heard of the St. Thomas gladioli plot, until we saw in the papers that Dr. Bennett and much a grand sweep of prizes, and had been elected to the chief office in the society. The doctor is a great enthusiast in horticulture, and if he has a favorite, the gladioli is it.

EIGHTY-THREE MEN LOST WHEN SUBMARINE SINKS

Special Cable to The Advertiser.
Honolulu, Aug. 24.—Seven officers and 83 men were lost in the sinking of the Japanese submarine 70, according to a revised casualty list received today by the Japanese newspaper Jiji, from its correspondent in Tokyo. Of the men lost 46 were deck workers. The correspondent said salvagers lost sight of the submarine when rough weather broke a cable. The vessel is believed to be lying in deep mud.

NATIONAL HONOR

QUITE SAFE WITH THE LABOR PARTY

Fear That Foreign Socialist Views Would Control in Britain, Without Foundation.

WHEN LABOR RULES

By PHILIP SNOWDEN, M.P.
Many people who have confidence in the Labor Party to manage domestic matters have grave doubts about the ability of a Labor government to run the empire and to conduct international affairs.
This misgiving is due to several causes. The Labor party is supposed to have no strong affection for the empire, which it regards as the product of commercial greed and imperial ambitions. In foreign affairs it is considered to be anti-national, or at the best non-national. It is feared that a Labor government would sacrifice the interests of the empire and of the nation to its ideal of internationalism. The close association of the British Labor party with the working-class movements in other countries, is looked upon with suspicion. It is alleged that the foreign policy of a Labor government would be dictated by some continental socialist bureau, which with Machiavellian intent, would beguile the Labor government into a betrayal of British interests.

These fears and misgivings are quite without substantial foundation. The answer is surely to be found in the fact that the vast majority of the Labor party, at the outbreak of war, forgot their internationalism when they were told that the minority which opposed the war did so because they believed, and never have men been more abundantly justified by events, that this country had been dragged into war by the cunning machinations of foreign militarists and diplomats. They were none the less patriotic because they believed that Great Britain was engaged in an unnecessary war which could serve no national interest, and which would result in nothing but disaster. A Labor government would be as jealous of national honor, as keenly alive to the great possibilities of empire, and as determined to promote good international relations, as any British government of the past. It might, and I hope it would, adopt different methods to attain those objects.

Responsibilities of Empire.

The British Empire is a fact. We have our views about the way in which it has been built up. But it is a fact, and having incurred the responsibility we cannot lightly cast it off; indeed, we cannot cast it off at all. So far as the self-governing dominions are concerned the problem of empire presents few difficulties, but many possibilities. It would be a large task to take any action which would weaken or break the ties which now bind Great Britain and the self-governing dominions together. But the advantage to the British Empire, and to the world, of the maintenance of the federation rests upon its attitude to the rest of the world. If the Anglo-Saxon empire be animated by the idea of Britain against the world, then nothing but evil can come from such a federation. But if, on the contrary, the policy of the British Empire is one of friendliness and co-operation with the rest of the world, if the British Empire uses its great position and power to the benefit of the world, then it can be the greatest instrument for world progress which has ever been created. This is the only worthy destiny of the British people.

The policy of a Labor government towards the dependencies of the British Empire will be to insure the populations humane and just government; to secure for them the enjoyment of their own property; freedom and liberty to develop their own culture; to freely confer upon them powers of self-government as rapidly as they are educated to use them; and in short, to pursue unflinchingly the policy of qualifying these dependencies to become self-governing dominions. If by such a policy these dependencies have been raised to that position, there is little fear that they will not appreciate the advantage of remaining members of a great democratic commonwealth.

It is to the mutual advantage of Great Britain and the dominions that the resources of the latter should be developed. But tariffs will hinder, not advance, development, and there is a tariff wall between the counties of Great Britain would help their trade and commerce. We can help the dominions best by giving them a willing population which will become the customers for the manufactures of Great Britain. I cannot enter into that profound and menacing problem now, but I am convinced that when the resources of Great Britain have been developed to the utmost it will be necessary to distribute the population over the less populated parts of the Anglo-Saxon countries.

I do not wish it to be understood that what I have just written expresses the settled policy of the Labor party on empire emigration. But I do know it is the view of those members of the Labor party who have had the advantage of studying the problem in the colonies, and it is a policy which will be forced upon a British Labor government. By the time we have such a government here it is more than probable that there will be Labor governments in all the dominions, and co-operation will then be easy.

I turn now to briefly define Labor's attitude to international affairs. That can only be stated in general terms, and not in relation to the grave problems which face Europe today. These will either be temporarily settled, or Europe will be reduced to chaos before a Labor government has the responsibility for conducting foreign

THE DESIGNER FOR SEPTEMBER IS HERE.

The foreign policy of a Labor government would conform to its democratic principles. Its diplomatic war would be open and honest, it would not, as governments have done in the past, make secret alliances and secret treaties, and then ask parliament to approve them when their fulfillment was demanded. "Open covenants openly arrived at" would be its policy. If parliament and the country were fully informed on foreign affairs, they would never blindly support a war. Foreknowledge would almost make war an impossibility.

Protection and War.

Two other points in the foreign policy of Labor may be mentioned. Believing that protection breeds ill-will between nations, and is often a cause of war, it stands for free trade, and in this is supported by the working-class organizations in the continental countries. It is also opposed to military alliances, which as the result of war proved, transform local conflicts into general wars.
The fear that some people, otherwise sympathetic to the Labor party, have that a Labor government would fall in international affairs is, I repeat, unfounded. I assert with confidence that there is no party in this country which is so well informed on foreign affairs, which has taken so much trouble to inform itself by actual contact with international problems in other countries, whose sources of first-hand information on foreign opinion and foreign conditions are so complete, and which has given so much proof of all this in recent years by the publication of elaborate memoranda on these subjects.

Time To Critically Consider
Real Meaning of "Patriotism"
Says Western Writer.

NEXT WAR IN AIR

By LUCY L. WOODSWORTH.
Another world war: the papers are foretelling it. They are pointing out to us the preparations. Military men are warning us that the next war will be something as yet unenviaged. Our writers—at least the prophet among them—have been and are crying out to us that our more catholicism and western civilization vanishes from off the earth. And what are we doing as this night of horror is slowly and perhaps not so slowly after all—conquering us?

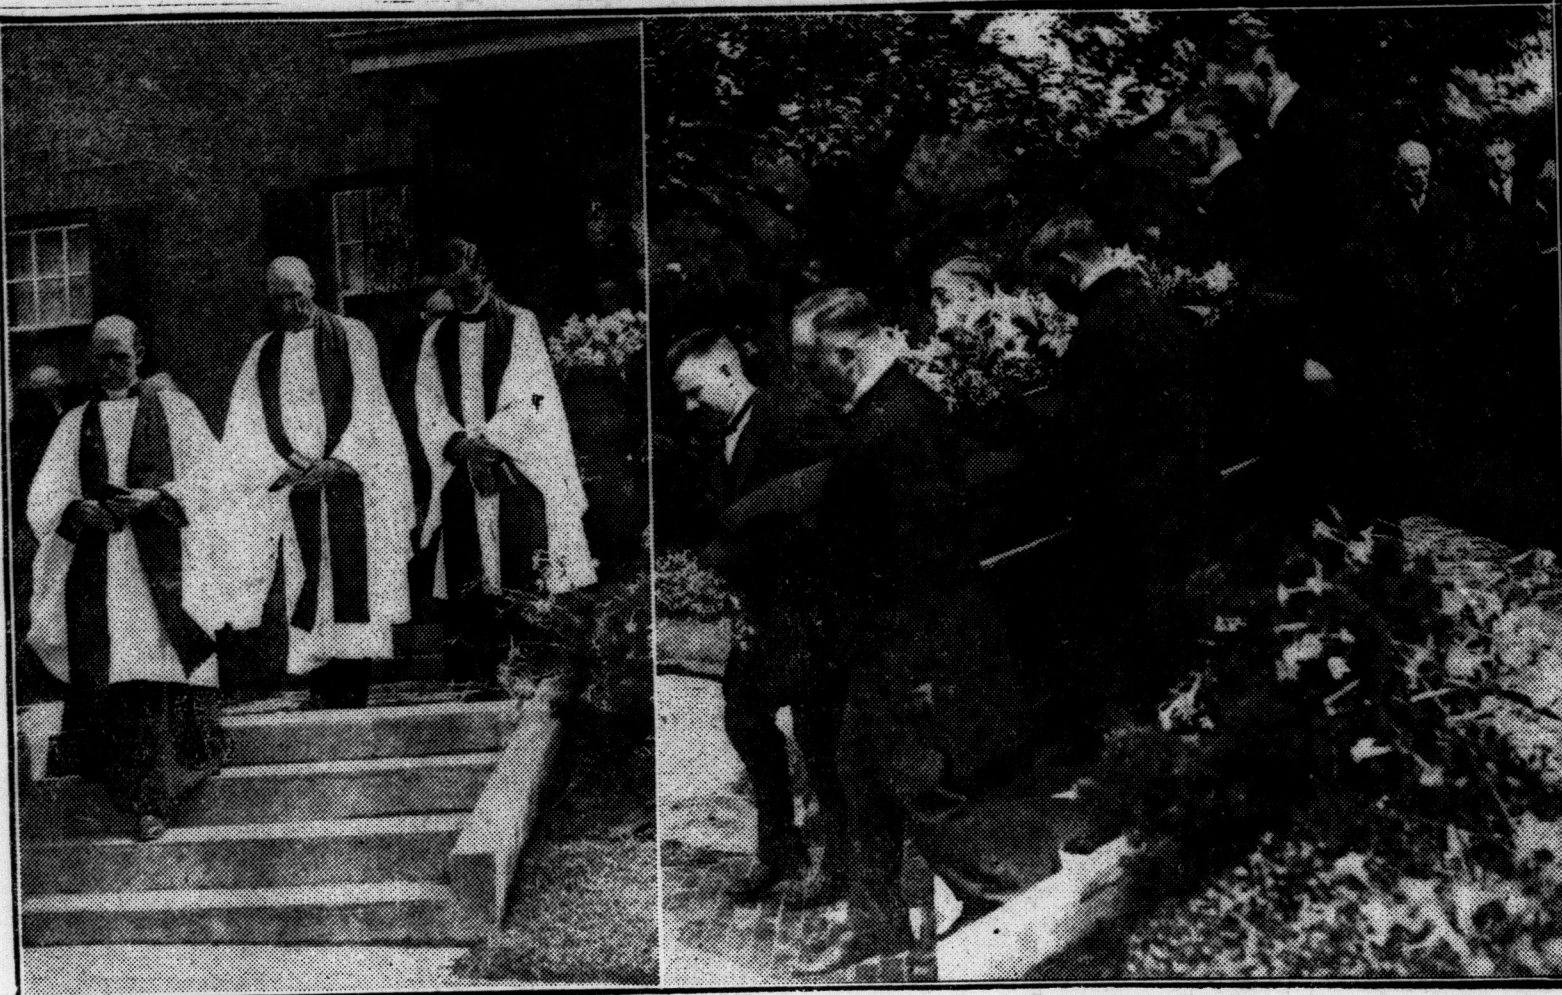

This time when we awaken, we cannot speak of it as a bolt from out of a clear sky. No; this time we are warned; though I believe that every news sheet worthy of the name Canadian, should follow the lead of some of our papers and point out to us editorially and with great incisiveness, the vortex into which we are being drawn. They should sound the alarm which they alone possess. Let us cause the vast majority of our people to be asleep. If not, they are calm in the false belief that what they fear is but the last stretchings and mutterings of the demon-war, as he is crying down upon his full-fed prey. In reality these things are portents. This demon never sleeps. What we hear is his threatening as he sits in his speedily up his millions of fingers with the military and diplomatic of the world—to launch him upon his next great orgy of slaughter. Well, he knows that this time, through his old men and women and little children, French, German, British, American, Russian, Chinese, Japanese, alike, we shall huddle hopelessly together, abandoned by him, to him the demon war—we have dedicated our new and vaster kingdom than has been—the Air.

Cause for Concern?
Is there any real cause for concern? Even a cursory reading of the papers supplies the answer. Recently the Ottawa Citizen analyzed conditions and preparations looking towards war in the leading (?) countries of the world and their pawns—the smaller nations. The editorial gave this conclusion: "That, from achieving reconstruction, the world is being led through economic warfare to another upheaval of which the consequences are likely to be more far-reaching than the last. Just a little earlier the Winnipeg Free Press set before us whether the world's diplomats are really the rather let me say at-tempting us. The article closed with this memorable, compelling statement: 'In 1913 we were not much interested in European politics; yet it was in the light of that that Europe did to Canada in 1914.'

Major-Gen. John F. O'Ryan, in his "Locomotive Engineers' Journal," April, writes: "This very day great groups of well-trained, industrious workers are working out in all their details, how your boys and others like them are to be employed in the next war. After backslapping this idea in all its sickening details, he states: 'If we could see before our eyes a composite picture of the sacrifice, suffering, death, grief and waste of these terrible wars, we should be likely to be more far-reaching than the last. Just a little earlier the Winnipeg Free Press set before us whether the world's diplomats are really the rather let me say at-tempting us. The article closed with this memorable, compelling statement: 'In 1913 we were not much interested in European politics; yet it was in the light of that that Europe did to Canada in 1914.'

Cause of Trouble.
In its May numbers the New York Nation is running a series of articles by M. W. Royce upon "The Next War in the Air." In the first of these the writer rolls back the clouds which by some strange power have held our eyes from seeing in the development of aviation, into the light of the ghastly preparations for turning stretches of country into deserts, and wiping whole cities off the face of the earth over night.

What matter that it is the military of France who are setting the pace to the time of an aeronautical strength nearly four times that of Great Britain, and that the combined strength of Europe. What matter that Germany, with her middle classes literally starving, is by the learning of the strenuous efforts that men and women are making in other countries to grapple with the problem. In its political aspect we can consider whether our vote of nearly $13,000,000 for next year "for national defense" does not mean a raveling-on of the chains which now link us to this madness of militarism. Should we not rather join forces with all those in every country who are pressing for total disarmament? Why should not we play a large part in preparing the peoples of the world for this next great step forward?

SCENES AT FUNERAL OF SIR WILLIAM R. MEREDITH YESTERDAY.
The Advertiser photographer here shows two pictures taken at the funeral of Ontario's late chief justice at Toronto yesterday. On the left is shown the officiating clergymen preparing the casket from the family residence, Canon Plumptre of St. James' Cathedral is on the steps, while behind him is seen Canon Coady, former minister of education in Ontario, and the Rev. J. F. Moore, being made to the death of Sir William by officiating clergymen. The floral tributes included wreaths from Osgoode Hall, board of governors and the chancellor of University of Toronto, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson and his cabinet, the Ontario Bar Association, members of the bereaved family and many others. The honorary pallbearers were all immediate members of the family: Chief Justice R. M. Meredith, Sir Vincent Meredith of Montreal, T. G. Meredith of London, Ont., and Charles Meredith, all brothers of the late chief justice; F. E. Meredith and Howard G. Meredith of Detroit, cousins of the deceased, and James Allan of Montreal, a brother-in-law of Sir Vincent Meredith, and Redmond Meredith of London.

Is there not a grave possibility that Canadian parents may be so absorbed in trying to procure the immediate well-being of their children as to be entirely oblivious of the danger which so ominously threatens.

Time presses; the task is mighty. By the anguish of untold millions in this and other countries by the wealth of disinterested good-will, native to human hearts the world over; by our sacred obligation to those who go to their lives, not to perpetuate, but to end war; by the fact that we know now that, due to its very nature, war does not and cannot settle our misunderstandings and quarrels, let us arouse ourselves to the supreme task which faces the people of this generation. H. G. Wells is truly a prophet when he warns us that it is a race between education and catastrophe.

RIFFIANS RALLYING

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Aug. 25.—Under Tangier and other date lines, the London newspapers today print reports of the Spanish losses and difficulties in Morocco. The Tangier correspondent of the Daily Express quotes a Riffian communique on the fighting previous to the relief of Tifarutis as saying that the rebels counted 739 Spanish dead, while it took them two days to remove the enemy's wounded.

The withdrawal of the enormous quantities of captured supplies would take several days, the communique added.

Abdel Krim, the rebel leader, a week ago summoned 100,000 Riffians to arms, the correspondent continues, and threatened to confiscate the goods and lands of all who disobeyed the call. The French zone and Tangier itself is practically denuded of Riffians in consequence of the general response to the summons.

Abdel Krim has issued a manifesto, the despatch adds, declaring that the treaty of Algiers must go the same way as the treaty of Sevres, for his people are capable of governing their own country, and like the Turks, are prepared to prove they are able to support their determination.

FATE OF IRELAND
WILL BE SETTLED
AT POLLS MONDAY

Quietness Prevails On Eve of
First General Election in Free State.

TO SUPPORT TREATY

Associated Press Despatch.
Dublin, Aug. 25.—The first general election in the Irish Free State, which will be held next Monday will mark the close of a political contest that has been unexpectedly quiet and peaceful. The only exciting feature of it so far has been the arrest by Free State soldiers of Eamonn de Valera, the Republican leader, who seeks to overthrow the Free State and the treaty with Great Britain, by which the Free State was called into being.

Since de Valera's arrest, which occurred on Aug. 15, as he was beginning an address in public to the electors of County Clare at Ennis, his whereabouts have been kept secret by the authorities. This has added to the interest in the elections, particularly as de Valera is a candidate in Clare.

What effect his capture and detention may have upon the election results is a matter of speculation that can be settled only when the ballots are counted on Aug. 27.

Whole Empire Awaits.
It is worthy of note that the government took advantage of the opportunity of the Republican leader's public appearance since the period when assassinations and destruction of property were common occurrences to promptly place him under arrest. The result on Monday of this bold stroke will be watched with more or less concern throughout the British empire.

Monday will be a public and bank holiday in Southern Ireland, so the Irish Free State electors may be expected to attend attention to the elections.

The party strength on the formation of the provisional government under President Cosgrave, Sept. 9, 1922, was as follows:
Pro-treaty, 68; anti-treaty, 38; Labor, 17; Independent (farmers, etc.), 17. Total, 128.

There is general belief here that the success of the government party is assured, but there is admitted the existence of sufficient unknown quantities to leave some doubt on this point, especially in view of the large number of new electors.

Cordial Relationship.
The first Irish Free State parliament (Dail Eireann), was convened on Dec. 12, 1922, with W. T. Cosgrave president. A notable feature thereof was the exchange of cordial messages between the King and the first governor-general of the Free State, Hon. "Tim" Healey. This was the first Free State parliament following the enactment by the British parliament of the Irish Free State constitution.

The Dail Eireann was dissolved on Aug. 7. The nominations took place on Aug. 18. The new Dail will meet on Sept. 19.

President Cosgrave, accompanied by Desmond Fitzgerald, minister of foreign affairs; Professor John MacNeill, minister of education; Hugh Kennedy, attorney-general; Marquis Macswiney and others, plan to leave Dublin the evening of Aug. 25, and reach Paris the next day. Mr. Cosgrave, Professor MacNeill and Marquis Macswiney will go thence to the League of Nations.

A WESTERN CLERGYMAN.
Rev. C. W. Brown, B.A., B.D., who for the past two months has been preaching in First Methodist Church, leaves on Monday for his home in Saskatoon. Mr. Brown is a minister of exceptional ability and his pleasing personality has made many friends for him in London. He is preaching his farewell services in First Methodist Church tomorrow.

Paris, Aug. 25.—In his newspaper, The Echo National, Andre Tardieu today attacked Premier Poincare vigorously for reducing France's minimum reparations claim to 26,000,000,000 gold marks, which sum, according to Tardieu, represents barely 25 per cent of what France is entitled to receive under the Versailles treaty.

Successive reductions of France's share in the German reparations debt are thus enumerated: The full claim for pensions and reparations, 100,000,000,000 gold marks; the amount fixed at the Paris conference of Jan. 1921, 77,000,000,000 gold marks; by the reparations commission fixation of the German debt in April, 1920, 68,000,000,000 gold marks; by the schedule of payments of May, 1921, with a bond expenditure, 24,000,000,000 gold marks, and according to the present Poincare plan, 26,000,000,000 gold marks.

ALREADY AT WORK

Special to The Advertiser.
Washington, Aug. 25.—The anthracite crisis was up to Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania today, with President Coolidge and all interested federal agencies merely standing by with information and advice.

Pinchot made it clear before returning to Pennsylvania that the president had literally given him carte blanche to seek a solution of the strike threat.

CALLS CONFERENCE.
Associated Press Despatch.
Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 25.—Governor Clifford Pinchot began today to "crystallize" the plans by which he hopes to avert a suspension of anthracite mining operations on September 1.

Appointed by President Coolidge as a special mediator of the controversy between the hard coal miners and operators, after a conference in Washington yesterday with the president and John Hays Hammond, chairman of the federal fuel commission, Mr. Pinchot was today prepared to invite the representatives who failed to agree in their negotiations at Atlantic City early this week to meet him here. The conference, if it takes place today, will be called next Monday in Harrisburg.

Upon his return from Washington last night the governor said his plans had "not crystallized enough to talk about."

Though the governor had not made any announcement of the detailed plans for the conference, it was reported that likely informal meetings will be held by each delegation separately with the governor, with the view of determining whether or not any grounds exist for further discussions. Such a plan, it was the belief of the state officials, would permit the resumption of negotiations if any common basis for agreement still exists, without effecting the position of either side at the beginning of the conference.

If no basis of understanding can be found the meetings with the governor, would be virtually unchanged. Despatches from Atlantic City last night, which expressed the probable willingness of both miners and operators to accept an invitation from Governor Pinchot were received at the state capital today with satisfaction and the expectation that the governor's telegram was expected at the executive office with little delay.

The mayor is strongly in favor of the Mardi Gras evening during the Fair week, and brought the question to the attention of various members of the Western Fair board after their meeting yesterday. Today he said: "Yes, the suggestion has been well received by the directors of the Fair Association, and it is probable that it will take place on Friday evening of Fair week. The dancing will take place in the Queen's Park grounds, and will be in the nature of a carnival night. Prizes will be offered for the best costumes, and it would be an added attraction to the other events of Fair week."

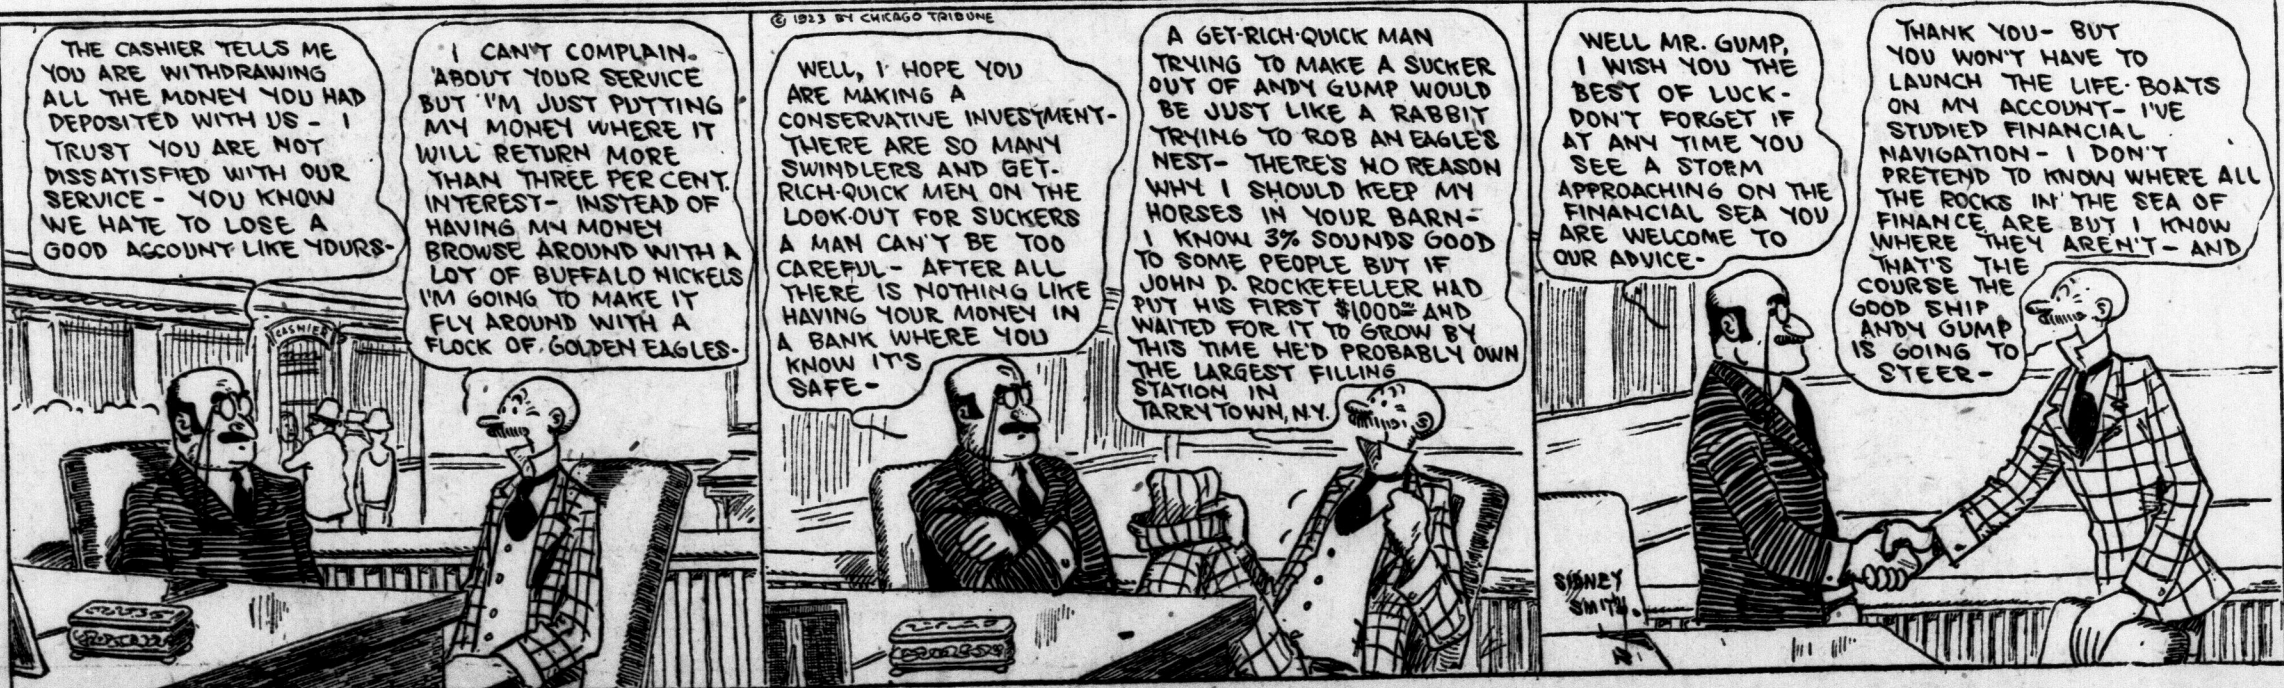

The mayor himself is an enthusiastic supporter of the idea, having been pleased with the festival nights held during the Old Boys' week. He intends with the help of the board to make the next one even better.

Toronto, Monday.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, Aug. 25.—A demand for wage increases on the part of the station shop sheds, roundhouses and clerical employees of the Canadian National Railways will likely result from a meeting of the men's committee in Toronto commencing on Monday next. It was announced here this morning by higher officials of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway employees that the chairman, vice-chairmen and secretaries of the general committees, covering the Atlantic central and western regions would participate in the conference. In addition to the question of wages the meeting will ask for the readjustment of the three wage and working condition schedules so as to secure uniformity of these groups on the C. N. R. lines in all parts of Canada. The meeting will probably last two or three days, some 12,000 men are affected.

A. E. Chick of London is vice-chairman of the central-region general committee.

PORT COLBORNE SUPPLY
BASE FOR EXPORT OF BEER

Canadian Press Despatch.
Bridgeburg, Aug. 24.—That car-loads of beer reaching a total of from seven to ten per week are being shipped out from Port Colborne, which has now become the principal base of supply for the U.S., was learned today. It appears there is no secret among those who are handling the ale in the lakeside town that a big trade has been worked up over the waters of Lake Erie. The beer is being legally exported.

AGED WOMAN COLLAPSES
WHEN SUEING HUSBAND

Special to The Advertiser.
Windsor, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Mary Webb, 78 years old, broke down on the witness stand in the police court today, and her case against her husband, John Webb, 70 years old, in which she charged desertion, was laid over for a week. Magistrate Gundy ordered an attendant to lead her from the courtroom.
"Her 30-year-old son caused all the trouble," Webb said. "He came to board at our place, and only paid us $44 in four years."

HONOR DEPARTING
BANK MANAGER

Londoners Banquet Harvey F. Skey and Present Gold Watch and Chain.

WORK IS EULOGIZED

To few men are honors given with such lavishness as that bestowed on Harvey F. Skey, late manager of the Bank of Montreal, last evening. It was the eve of his departure for Winnipeg, and one hundred citizens turned out at a farewell banquet in the London Hunt and Country Club to testify to the esteem in which the popular bank man is held, and wish him luck and prosperity in Western fields.

Leading Londoners could not be too eulogistic of their departing friend's character, and speeches evidencing the affection felt for Mr. Skey by his host of intimates were the order. When E. S. Little presented him with a handsome gold watch, and a delightful watercolor painting by St. Thomas Smith for Mrs. Skey, the applause which followed could leave no doubt as to the feeling of the guests. Customary farewells were then called for, and the banquet was closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

On few occasions have so many of the city's prominent men been gathered together. James Gray, who acted as chairman, Hon. C. S. Hyman, Major Hume Cronyn, Col. William Gartshore, E. S. Little, Gordon Ingram and Walter Ambrose, Mr. Skey's successor as manager of the Bank of Montreal occupied the head table. Gordon Phillip opened the improvised program by reading letters of regret from absentees, and Mr. Gray followed with an address.

Eulogize Mr. Skey.
The banquet, arranged by the Chamber of Commerce, drew scores of members from that association, in addition to representatives from other prominent clubs and business institutions. The speech-making was devoted exclusively to praiseworthy references of Mr. Skey and to expressions of regret at his departure for Winnipeg.

"We are gathered here to do honor to Harvey F. Skey," Mr. Gray said. "I have had the pleasure of being associated with Mr. Skey on the directorate of the Rotary Club and the Chamber of Commerce. In all public services he has been indefatigable, loyal and faithful, and a him on his promotion in a business way, but we don't feel like it is a promotion to go from London to Winnipeg. However, his opportunities, activities and scope for giving service will be broader in the western city, and we wish him luck, happiness and prosperity in the future."

Frank White, M.P., said he did not know Mr. Skey intimately in a personal way, but he knew him well by reputation, and could substantiate Mr. Gray's observation that the late manager of the Bank of Montreal had endeared himself to citizens of London. Mr. Skey, he felt sure, would not forget the problems of the east when confronted with the manifold problems of the west.

Major Hume Cronyn remarked that the element of luck frequently entered into successful business enterprise, but in Mr. Skey's case it was not a question of inspiration but a question of perspiration.

Hon. C. S. Hyman Speaks.
Hon. C. S. Hyman received a stirring reception when he rose to add eulogies to the character and splendid work of the guest of honor.

"We are assembled here," Mr. Hyman said, "for the purpose of wishing our friend Mr. Skey the best of luck. We all bear a real affection for him, and are acquainted by a deep and sincere recognition of Mr. Skey as a banker, and, above all, a man."

"To be a successful bank manager one must possess numerous virtues. One must be a hard, conscientious worker, a student, an executive and greatest of all, a diplomat. Mr. Skey has the latter quality ingrained in him. When he is asked for a loan his manner of saying 'no' makes it difficult to determine whether he has spoken in the affirmative or negative. In his new sphere we know Mr. Skey will receive promotion after promotion, and it will be a great disappointment to us if he does not achieve those things we believe he is capable of achieving."

Col. Gartshore dwelt briefly on Mr. Skey's laudable efforts in the interests of all measures designed for the betterment of London, industrially and socially. As trustees of numerous patriotic and philanthropic societies, and in other capacities of public service, he has contributed much to the welfare of London.

E. S. Little summarized the honored guest's career and took the banquet back 25 years ago when Mr. Skey commenced his career with the Bank of British North America as a junior. He has endeared himself, Mr. Little said, to all right-thinking men and women by his sterling citizenship. If he is not the very best banker the city ever had, he is one of the best, Mr. Little declared.

Major Gordon Ingram and Mr. Little then presented Mr. Skey with a gold watch and a water color painting by St. Thomas Smith, while the guests, led by Mr. Hyman, gave three ringing cheers and sang, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Guest Replies.
"A banker has to face difficult problems," Mr. Skey said in reply, "but the most difficult in my career is facing so many of London's foremost citizens on this occasion. You are gathered here to show appreciation and affection for a departing Londoner. I have worked with you and understand the public-spirited motives behind this banquet."

Mr. Skey thanked his hearers for their many kindnesses and outlined briefly the high spots of his life with the Bank of British North America, and latterly his association with the Bank of Montreal. Coming here as a junior under Robert Inglis he was transferred to Montreal after four years, and returned to London in various capacities three times. In 1911 he succeeded G. B. Gerrard as manager of the B. N. A. here.

"It isn't well to be called a quitter in financial service any more than in military service," Mr. Skey said. "When a call comes to depart for other fields one must heed it. I have learned to love London and its good-hearted citizens. I have seen the city grow from 30,000 to its present size. I have watched the many public undertakings launched by individuals who are here this evening. George Reid has fostered many of our public enterprises, and I know he will ultimately realize his ambition and have a new hotel for London. I attribute the city's failure to complete some of its projects to growing pains. But I believe conditions preventing a number of schemes designed for the city's good will soon right themselves."

"When I go to Winnipeg," Mr. Skey concluded, "I will have the inspiration of this gathering to take with me, and you may be sure there will never be any place quite like good old London to me."

Regret Their Absence.

Letters and wires of regret for their inability to attend the banquet were received from Col. T. S. Hobbs, A. T. Little, Sir Adam Beck, J. K. F. Pope, Dr. Hadley Williams, A. M. Smart, Lt.-Col. C. H. Hill, Thomas Baker, John Pringle, J. I. A. Hunt, Col. A. M. Smith, W. E. Robinson, J. C. Elliott, A. D. Jordan, R. J. Donaghy, V. F. Cronyn, H. T. Brymner, W. H. Pratt, Brig.-Gen. W. H. King, D.S.O., Norman Howden, Thos. Allan, F. C. Field, Col. Ibbotson, Leonard and Thomas Rowe.

Those present included James Gray, Hon. C. S. Hyman, J. F. White, M.P., Major Hume Cronyn, Col. W. M. Gartshore, E. S. Little, Major Gordon Ingram, Walter Ambrose, F. S. Ashplant, M. Aylsworth, J. P. Forristal, M. F. Forristal, Dr. Percy Banghart, George H. Belton, John Bridge, J. Harley Brown, E. V. Buchanan, Lt.-Col. W. J. Brown, George T. Brown, Lt.-Col. Isaac Carling, C.

WILL CARRY OUT PLANS
AT TORONTO BREAKWATER

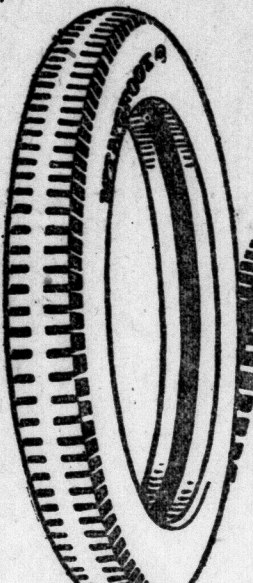

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Aug. 24.—While on a tour of the harbor today, accompanied by the members of the harbor commission, the Hon. Dr. King, minister of public works in the Dominion cabinet, said today the government will "carry on with the plans already arranged, which calls for the completion of the cement breakwater down to Bathurst street, a distance of about 4,000 feet more." When completed it will extend from Bathurst street to the Humber, nearly four miles.

Saved tires pay for Hasslers

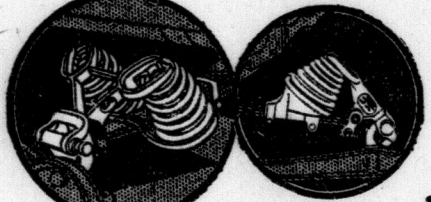

BUMP! Up goes your car! Whizz-z-z-z—your engine races faster than car speed—then a sudden, arresting grip of the whole car with its momentum against the road again—and an awful wrench on your tires! Thousands of times a year—often than you think—your tires take this punishment besides jars, jolts, vibrations and the bumps unavoidable in everyday traffic. Do you wonder the best of tires give way too soon!

HASSLER
Shock Absorbers
Made in Canada

Put on Hasslers' and the wheels will just roll over the bumps! They stick to the road. Hasslers', not your tires, stand the punishment. They absorb and dissipate not only the rebound shocks, but add resiliency and also prevent side sway, saving tires. On tires alone you soon save the cost of Hasslers', not to mention saved gas and fewer repairs. They also save the car. You're paying the price of Hasslers' now in unnecessary tire expense—why not have them! Your dealer knows these Hassler facts.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR COMPANY ANNOUNCE
IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENTS

Dodge Brothers have not simply brought out a complete new line of motor cars. They have done something infinitely wiser and better than that. They have brought new beauty, new riding ease and new mechanical perfection to the product on which their reputation as builders has been founded. They have built a better and a more desirable line of motor cars—yet basically and fundamentally the identity of their product remains the same. The same sturdy engine is under the hood; the same dependable chassis, improved in numberless details, underlies the body. But the rear springs—now underslung—have been materially lengthened. The wheelbase, too, is longer, and the combined result is a notable improvement in riding qualities. Bodies of all types have been designed to give improved appearance, and greater comfort. Lower, longer, with deeper seats and more leg room, the lines of these new cars are low-swung and graceful—the interiors are comfortable and roomy. New head lamps and fenders, especially designed by Dodge Brothers to conform with the general lines of the car—a long straight hood and cowl effect—longer and wider running boards—unusually wide doors—combination stop signal and tail lamp—and instruments attractively grouped on raised panel—are a few of the numerous body innovations common to all types. Combining these features with important mechanical improvements too numerous and technical to enumerate here, it is not extravagant to predict a reception for these cars unprecedented in automotive annals.

CHEVROLET

Greater Values Than Ever

CHEVROLET economy is further established by new refinements and equipment. Added improvements in the Superior Models make Chevrolet stand out more prominently than ever as "the world's greatest motor value," "the lowest priced fully equipped car in the world," and "the most economical car to operate." The Chevrolet National Economy Contest showed an average of 34.4 miles to a gallon of gasoline. Improvements include cord tires, Alemite lubrication system; "bodies by Fisher" on closed models; nickel plated radiator and dumb-bell radiator filler cap; horn button in centre of steering wheel. Want Ad Readers Want To Know Reason for Selling An Article

WANT AD TIPS

The Reason For Selling

One question for the classified advertiser to put to himself is: "Are people likely to be suspicious of my offering, if I don't tell them why I am selling?" If the answer is: "Yes," he usually should give the reason in his Want Ad.

Back in olden times, long before the ethics of trade had developed to the high level of today, suspicion was the characteristic attitude of buyers. "Caveat emptor!"—an old Latin injunction, "Let the buyer beware!"—had both popular and legal approval. The seller, frankly, was out to "beat" the buyer, and whether he succeeded or not, his conscience was clear.

A buyer, to be successful, had to be every second on his guard. He considered not only what the seller claimed, but every pertinent detail on which he could obtain information. One point which often greatly interested him was: "Why does the seller wish to sell?"

Take the case of a horse offered for sale. The owner knew that horse better than anyone else. And he wished to sell it. Did he have a satisfactory reason for wishing to sell—a pressing need for money, perhaps; some change in his affairs which made a horse unnecessary—or had he found something seriously wrong with the animal?

Trickery and dishonesty in business are less prevalent today than at any time in the world's history. Nevertheless, the attitude of suspicion of prospective buyers sometimes remains a serious matter for the advertiser.

When this suspicion exists, and the Want Ad user has a legitimate reason for selling, it is usually well for him to state the reason. Some of the reasons which often arise, not reflecting on the merit of the offered commodity, are need for cash; poor health; disagreement between partners; leaving city; no longer need in own business; taken in on mortgage; bought and found not fitted to owner's particular needs; overstocked. Any one of these reasons tends to give buyers confidence in the article offered for sale.

ALBERTA COAL PLEASERS.
Special to The Advertiser.
Stratford, Aug. 24.—Stratford people, who bought Canadian coal from Alberta from local dealers this week, are very well pleased with it. This is the conclusion drawn from information given at the Lennox and Schneider coal offices since they each received coal last Monday. Every car of fuel in these shipments has been sold, and customers have been back for more at both offices. Those who used the fuel report that it has good burning qualities and retains the heat very well.

CONTRABAND NETS FINE.
Special to The Advertiser.
Windsor, Aug. 24.—Arrested by Chief Constable Deneau of Riverside and Customs Officer Valentine of Walkerville, August 24th, a small boat was seized this afternoon off being in possession of cigarettes that had been smuggled, and several jars of moonshine liquor. Magistrate Gundy imposed a fine of $250 and costs. Several tubs of mash were seized by the officers when they surprised the "wash" bottles, which he admitted, he used for his business.

HARRISON REMANDED IN CHATHAM COURT

Big List of Cases Came Up Before County Magistrate Arnold.

LOVERS LANE CHARGE

Special to The Advertiser.
Chatham, Aug. 24.—Remands were the order of the day in the dock cases in the county police court. Magistrate B. Arnold presided and had his hands full of the latter part of the morning and all afternoon.

Harry Trudell of Ringold was remanded for trial until Monday next. He is charged with indecent assault, preferred against him by Mrs. Nellie LeTourneau, stealing of a machine, broken down car on the river road, Dover township, one night, by a county police patrol, and the machine was minus the necessary markers.

Andrew Ritchie was charged with carrying a concealed weapon, a loaded revolver, contrary to the criminal code. He admitted that he had the weapon in his pocket, but stated that it was necessary to tote a gun in his neighborhood. As other charges were preferred against him in connection with alleged O. T. A. infractions, his case was also laid over until Monday next.

Alphy Toulouse, 8th concession, Dover, was remanded until Monday next. He is charged with having liquor for sale, and escaping from custody, after being placed in the rest. Toulouse is the man who gave county police officers a merry chase after he saturated Chief Pettis of the county police with a bucket of moonshine.

Fines of $5 and costs, $19 in all, were imposed upon Thomas Siddall and J. Halliday for indulging in a crap game on August 6. The ended with a fight and a choice selection of abusive language. A case of stealing of a coat and a Gilbert Reaume, was dismissed, as it was a civil action for settlement pending between the parties, which, it is stated, will take care of this matter.

ST. THOMAS GLADIOLI HONORS.

First honors for the finest hamper of gladioli to be exhibited at the annual exhibition of the Ontario Gladiolus Society in Chatham this week went to the St. Thomas Horticultural display. Above is a photo of St. Thomas hamper, followed by a picture of "Mrs. Dr. Norton," the white gladioli bloom exhibited by the St. Thomas Horticultural Society, which was adjudged the finest individual spike at the exhibition held at the Ontario Agricultural College.

For Sunday At Home

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR AUGUST 26.
BARNABAS THE GREAT-HEARTED.

Barnabas the Great-Hearted.
Scripture Lesson: Acts 4:36, 37; 9:30-31; 11:19-30. Golden Text: Acts 11:24.

By REV. T. DECOURY RAYNER.
Does goodness make a man effeminate? Our modern nick-name "goodly-goodly" suggests this. Nevertheless, some of the most manly men of history and of modern life have been good men in the noblest sense of the word: God's men! Christian men!

Barnabas was a great man because he was a good man. He may not have become as famous as his co-worker, Paul, as far as earth is concerned, yet he surely is as famous in heaven, for it was he who really led Paul into the Christian ministry. The church did not take kindly to the idea of Saul the persecutor becoming a preacher, and it was Barnabas who allayed their fears. Acts 9:26, 27.

Barnabas sought Paul out and persuaded him to enter the active ministry. Acts 11:25, 26. Barnabas was able to succeed in this because his own whole-hearted consecration to Christ and his church had endowed him with nobility of character. A consecrated life always becomes a transfigured life. And it was this transfigured life which gave Barnabas his name, for Barnabas was really a nickname, lovingly given by the apostles, meaning "the son of prophecy, of exhortation, or of consolation." A gifted preacher and a friendly man, Barnabas the nickname comes a good name, given you indicate the noble qualities of the reverse? Some of the noble qualities of Barnabas were:

1. His great-heartedness. Abundant goodness in this case really means "goodness in the heart." Acts 11:24. Goodness in this case really means "goodness in the heart." Acts 11:24. Goodness in this case really means "goodness in the heart." Acts 11:24.

2. "He was a good man." Acts 11:24. Goodness in this case really means "goodness in the heart." Acts 11:24. Goodness in this case really means "goodness in the heart." Acts 11:24.

3. "Full of faith." Acts 11:24. And his faith made him good. Life's supreme lesson is this: "Have faith in God!"

4. "Full of faith." Acts 11:24. And his faith made him good. Life's supreme lesson is this: "Have faith in God!"

5. "Full of faith." Acts 11:24. And his faith made him good. Life's supreme lesson is this: "Have faith in God!"

6. "Full of faith." Acts 11:24. And his faith made him good. Life's supreme lesson is this: "Have faith in God!"

7. "Full of faith." Acts 11:24. And his faith made him good. Life's supreme lesson is this: "Have faith in God!"

8. "Full of faith." Acts 11:24. And his faith made him good. Life's supreme lesson is this: "Have faith in God!"

9. "Full of faith." Acts 11:24. And his faith made him good. Life's supreme lesson is this: "Have faith in God!"

10. "Full of faith." Acts 11:24. And his faith made him good. Life's supreme lesson is this: "Have faith in God!"

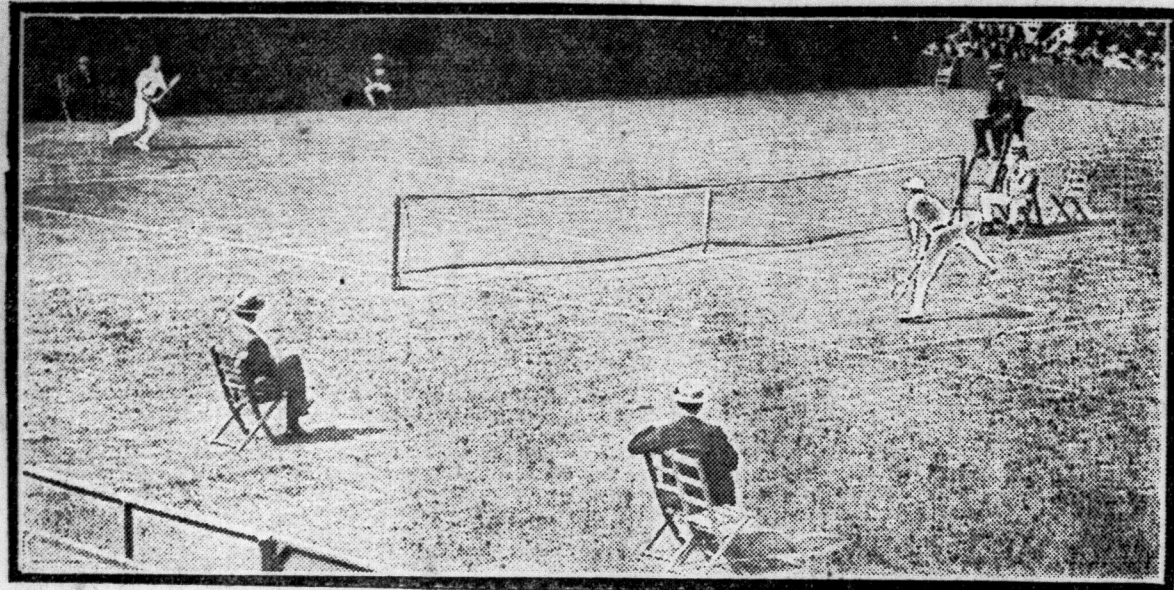

11. "Full of faith." Acts 11:24. And his faith made him good. Life's supreme lesson is this: "Have faith in God!"

A black and white cartoon illustration of a busy street scene. In the foreground, a man in a suit and bow tie is shouting, "OVER HERE! — CAR FOR TH' PRINCE RUDOLPH HOTEL!". To his right, a man in a uniform is shouting, "CHARGEMORE HOTEL!". In the center, a man in a suit is shouting, "THIS WAY FOR TH' BUS TO THE CHARGEMORE!". To his right, a man in a suit is shouting, "HERE Y'ARE FOR YOUR EXHIBITION TICKETS!". Further right, a man in a suit is shouting, "CARRY YOUR GRIP MA'M?". To his right, a man in a suit is shouting, "I HAVE A NICE FRONT ROOM ONLY TWO BLOCKS FROM THE EXHIBITION GATES". Further right, a man in a suit is shouting, "TEXI-KEB! TEXI-KEB!! —RIGHT THIS WAY!". To his right, a man in a suit is shouting, "YOO HOO AUNTIE! — HERE I AM —". Further right, a man in a suit is shouting, "COME A LONG — HERE'S YOUR CAR!". In the background, there are several cars and a building with a large archway. The scene is filled with people in various outfits, including hats and suits, all appearing to be in a hurry. The cartoon is signed "FRIS" in the bottom right corner.
