We think the importance of sait over-estimated, but those who neglect to sait, neglect also more important matters, thus depreciating the value of their stock.—Country Gentleman.

Hints to Pork Makers.—The philosophy of increase of fat in animals is, that the digested food not needed to supply weste in the system, is laid up in the form of fat around the muscles, ready to be absorbed again into the circulation if needed. Waste induced by exercise, or use of the muscles, and also by combustion in the lungs, of the digested food, to supply animal heat. Hence, the same amount of food given in warm weather will, if digested, afford a greater surplus of fat than when fed to cold weather. Hope or other animals intended for fattening, should be shut up this month. Many advocate making the size of the fattening pen semilithat the animal will have just room to stand or lie. While confinement favore rest and a disposition to fatten, too close quarters are not healthful for the small that the animal will have just room to stand or lie. While confinement favore rest and a disposition to fatten, too close quarters are not healthful for the animal, which needs moderate exercise to promote digestion. The quality of the flesh produced must be somewhat impaired by any confinement that in terferee with the health. The appetite may be kept up by change of food, a frequent supply of grasm vegetables, such as corn, cabbage leaves, pen vines, and the refuse of the garden. Cocked food digests much more easily than raw, and is lie a condition to yield more nourishment, and is slee better railabed by most kieds of stock. Cleunliness in the fattening pen should not be overlocked. Although pige proverbially are fifthy, they are not really set; they do not delight in the affluvia of their own droppings, as any one can see by noticing that they generally appropriate one portion of the pen to fifth. An occasional washing and coubling with conduce much to their thrift, all animals keep in condition more easily when the skin is kept clean and healthy. Mains Farmer.

Being Useful.

The Cost of Magligenos.

It is a notorious fact that there are more losses from negligeness of admostledged duties, among all classes, than from almost any ether cause. Of ferminers is this most automingly true. A succh-dealer and wend-buyer gives the following good site in the Ohio Chitector:

"I am fully persuaded that farmers lose more an anally by persuaded that farmers lose more an anally by gengigenes or procreatisation than would pay the entire taxes of the State. How many farme them become coursed with burrs, and sell the functions of them become coursed with burrs, and sell the remoded.

"Another fault is, by neglecting to separate their dealer, they have been dealer and the state of the sunday by coming in midwinter, get by very little attention this all could be remedied.

"Another fault is, by neglecting to trim their stock; by neglecting to separate their dealer, and they know too how farmed the state of the server of the season o
