STRESS OF BUSINESS
A nation's necessity has plunged many thousands of boys and girls in their teens into the vortex of business before their time.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

A very little, taken regularly, is far more beneficial than when taken by fits and starts.

Love in the Abbey
OR,
Lady Ethel's Rival

CHAPTER XI.
TO THE RESCUE.
But Kitty takes no more notice of him than would a deaf person.

But Kitty has made acquaintance with the Lombe before to-day, she knows all its tricks too well to make a mistake in the calculation of his current, and like grim death, the stream bears her victim toward her.

But Kitty is one too many for him. As he nears the bridge he strikes against the pile, and sways aside. This is Kitty's opportunity.

Lord Sterne throws his arm over the bar and looks up at her breathless with a look that Kitty will never forget while she has eyes and memory left her.

Breathless he holds, for quite a minute, to the bar, then he pulls himself onto it, and extends his hand to help her.

like that danger, perhaps Death himself had nearly laid his grip upon one of them.
Lord Elliot Sterne is the first to speak; he is still rather white, and there is a curious expression in his eyes.

He puts out his hand, and touches her habit.
"Kitty frowns quickly, and looks at his arm."
"Your arm—it is hurt? I thought so."

"It was all my fault. I—I knew that the brute couldn't clear it, and I tempted you to try it. It is all my fault!"
"Is it all your fault that I am standing here, alive and well!" he says, the light flashing into his eyes.

"Your arm," pleads Kitty reproachfully.
"I don't feel it," he responds; nor does he, for it is numb. "If you will change your clothes here I will do the same."

"Of course, my lord, Miss Trevelyan must get out of those wet things. She's so darning, my lord!" exclaims in the old lady, "and I can send for the doctor, Pritchard," calling out through the doorway, "ride over for Doctor Greene as quick as thee can."

"Aye, aye!" responds Pritchard, only too glad to do something in his excitement, and he disappears.
Kitty flops down onto a chair with a sigh of resignation.

the carriage, and—do—do you think you are able to ride?"
He looks at her with a smile.
"All for me," he says very quietly; not a thought for yourself, not one—"I've not been nearly drowned, and quite broken my arm," retorts Kitty.

"Not at all," says Lord Sterne, telling a deliberate falsehood, or obfuscating of the fact that the pain is something almost unbearable.
"Will you ride fast for my sake," he says, glancing at her habit regretfully.

"I love it," he says quietly.
Kitty laughs, but, the treacherous colour ripples over her face.
"Here is the Abbey; I do hope Mrs. Pritchard is at home. Oh, dear! how she will talk; she'll talk hard enough to dry us."

"My good woman, I am not going to stay here a moment—I won't budge an inch, I mean; I won't do anything unless Miss Trevelyan exchanges her clothes."
"Your arm," pleads Kitty reproachfully.
"I don't feel it," he responds; nor does he, for it is numb.

"What a beautiful old place!" says Lord Sterne; "one could be happy here!"
"Is in a blue coat with brass buttons," says Kitty.
"Yes, or without," he responds, sitting down on a rustic seat beneath a chestnut so crowded with bloom that it looks like a huge cauliflower.

"Darby and Joan," says Kitty, at the moment it is said, she would give all she possesses to recall the words.
"Is," he says slowly and with an intent gaze into her eyes that she will not cast down—"yes, Darby and Joan; they were a very happy couple. I feel this morning that I should make a good Darby."

"And I feel that I should make an execrable Joan," says Kitty quickly.
"Where can that stupid old doctor be? I wish I had insisted upon going myself."
"Insistence was out of the question," he answers. "Why do you worry about the doctor?—there is no occasion; I feel no pain, and I don't believe there is anything the matter with the arm."

Private Ross
Borrowed an Auto-Stop from his chum—he used it once and immediately wrote home for one.
Don't wait for a request from your soldier boy—include an Auto-Stop in your next Overseas package.

Auto-Stop RAZOR
SAFETY
Kitty backs, and Lord Sterne smiles a refusal, but Mrs. Pritchard looks so dreadfully heartbroken that Kitty takes up her glass and sips it, at the peril of death by scalding.

HOLLAND SURRE

Paris Gives King Austria Promise many Will be M

THE BLOCKADE
LONDON, Nov. 28.
The Entente Allies have decided to demand that Holland surrender the former Emperor of Germany to justice, according to the Daily Express.

THE TIMES SAYS THAT THE ABURD story the Germans are reported to have spread semi-officially that the Allies probably will consider the position of the blockade is absolutely unimpaired. The Allies have not the slightest intention, the Times continues, of throwing aside their chief weapon for insuring the signature of a just peace and the performance of the conditions, particularly in the present chaotic state of Germany. After gaining evidence in an endeavor to induce Dr. Solf's declaration that Germany is starving, the newspaper says, that the German statement on this subject requires careful examination.

When the truth has been ascertained the Allies and the United States will allow the Germans from time to time during the peace negotiations such food supplies as humanity dictates. The blockade must remain in force until a definite peace has been made. Thereafter it may be kept in abeyance as the chosen instrument of the League of Nations for enforcing its decisions. With regard to President Wilson's coming visit to Europe, the Times says, the Allies look upon his unprecedented event as a great landmark in the world's history, they rejoice that the President is to make the visit, first because they desire to show the United States by the reception they give the chief executive their sense of the immense debt they owe for American assistance, and second because they are anxious to have the personal aid of President Wilson in a task before them.

KING GEORGE IN PARIS.
PARIS, Nov. 28.
King George accompanied by the Prince of Wales and Prince Albert, arrived in Paris to-day. His Majesty was received at the Bois de Boulogne station by President Poincare, Premier Clemenceau, Foreign Minister Pichon and other cabinet ministers and the presidents of the Chambers of Deputies and the Senate. Troops lined the route and the King had difficulty in making his way through the throngs. The crowd was so great in front of the Hotel Dorsay that it broke through the lines of policemen, the Parisians frantically shouting "Long Live the King," "Long Live France," "Long Live England" and "Long Live the Republic." King George, after a brief rest went to the chateau of the Elysee to visit President and Madame Poincare.

REMANDS SURRENDER OF THE KAISER.

LONDON, Nov. 28.
The Entente Allies have decided to demand that Holland surrender the German Emperor of Germany to justice, according to the Daily Express.

THE BLOCKADE.

LONDON, Nov. 28.
The Times says that the absurd policy of the Germans is reported to have spread semi-officially that the Entente probably will consider the blockade of the blockade is absolutely unbreakable. The Allies have not the ues, of throwing aside their chief reason for insuring the signature of a peace and the performance of the conditions, particularly in the pregiving evidence in an endeavor to make Dr. Sol's declaration that Germany is starving, the newspaper says, that the German statement on this subject requires careful examination.

Thus the truth has been ascertained that the Allies and the United States

THE KAISER.

LONDON, Nov. 28.
A despatch to the Daily Mail from Amerongen, Holland, says the stories regarding the former German Emperor's princely surroundings and big dignities and similar functions are not altogether true. The most striking feature of the daily life of William Hohenzollern, the correspondent continues, is the mass of correspondence to which he devotes most of his mornings and apparently unrestricted by the Dutch government. He is kept accurately informed of every development in Germany and elsewhere, and is reported to be about to keep in close touch with the other side of the frontier. The correspondent says he learns on good authority that the Netherlands Government considers the former Crown Prince the only dangerous intriguer, the former emperor's day being regarded as ended.
It is commonly reported at Amerongen, the correspondent declares, that William Hohenzollern will not be there long but it is uncertain whether he will go.

AUSTRIA WANTS HELP.

VIENNA, Nov. 24.
Provided the Allies extend immediate help, the Austrian Republic will be able to arise from the position it is

At present, said Dr. Joseph Radich, former Minister of Finance to the correspondents to-day. We hope there is no revengeful desire on the part of the Allies to see us remain in poverty, he continued. Our enemies should be generous and remember at least that Austria did what she considered her duty to her ally and tried repeatedly to give up the war. If we are helped we will be able to help ourselves and our farmers from Bolshevism. Our financial position looks like bankruptcy on paper, but we will be able to pay our debts.

BOLSHEVIK SUCCESSES.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 28.
Reports from the Baltic province of Esthonia, Wednesday, said that Russian Bolshevik troops on Tuesday captured Pskov, 60 miles southwest of Petrograd. The fate of the volunteer northern army was unknown. It was also reported that Dundagov, 110 miles southeast of Riga, had been taken by the Bolshevik forces and that Marva, 81 miles southwest of Petrograd, was being bombarded.

NEW TRIAL OR STRIKE.

DETROIT, Nov. 28.
At a meeting of the Detroit Federation of Labor last night, delegates representing approximately twenty thousand union workers, unanimously voted for a general strike on Dec. 9, unless Thomas J. Mooney, waiting execution in California next month, is pardoned or given a new trial by that time.

PERU PACIFIC.

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 27.
The Peruvian Government is apparently determined to prevent the occurrence of outward incidents in connection with the Peruvian-Chilian dispute. The situation continues calm.
The only incidents reported to-day were from Callao where the port workers are refusing to handle cargo from Chilian steamers. No demonstrations have taken place.

WOMEN WORKERS RETAINED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.
Women railroad employes, about one hundred thousand in number, who were added to the pay rolls on account of the war, mainly as clerks and stenographers, probably would be retained permanently, it was said to-day at the headquarters of the railroad administration.

Lost the Bet.

The small office boy invariably turned up at his employer's with a particularly dirty face, and one morning he appeared with the remains of a breakfast round his mouth.
"I bet you sixpence," said one of the junior clerks, "I can tell you what you had for breakfast this morning."
"Don't," was the reply.
"It was eggs," said the other, triumphantly.
"You're wrong," said the office boy, with a grin; "what you see on my mouth is yesterday's."

FOR DISTINGUISHED SERVICE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.
Officials of the Independent Order of Knights presented to President Wilson to-day the gold medal awarded him by the society last October, as the man who rendered the most distinguished service to humanity during the past year.

MOVING ON.

LONDON, Nov. 28.
Advance guards of the British troops have reached the Belgian German frontier in the region between Beno and Stavelot and are in possession of more than 1,400 surrendered German guns, according to an official communication issued to-night.

The Influenza.

The influenza epidemic has had a much greater toll in Bay Islands than the four years of war. Some forty deaths or more have resulted;
these include people of all ages.
Among whom were Mrs. Wm. Messer-vey and Mrs. Pym, aged 85 and 86 years, respectively; Mr. John Pritchard and his son of Corner Brook;
Mr. John Griffin's family man of Humbermouth; Mrs. Geo. Prosper who died a week ago; Mr. John McCue died Sunday, Mrs. W. J. Boland died Monday morning, Mrs. John McDonald died a couple of weeks ago, Mrs. A.
Brookway died last week; these were all of the middle aged class, and there have been several deaths among children and young people. At Middie Arm practically everybody was down with the disease at one time.
There was only one death at that place. The disease seems to be on the wane here now and it is hoped within a few days those now afflicted will be able to get around again.
At Bay St. George there are many cases. A hospital has been made of the upstairs of the Court House which has been fitted with number of beds,
and a nurse went there last week--

STEAMERS COLLIDE.
NEW YORK, Nov. 28.
The inbound Norwegian freighter Jephrow from Rotterdam while entering the lower harbor here to-day early, during a dense fog, collided with an unknown steamer. A large hole was made in the Jephrow's port bow. The ship disappeared in the fog.

THE KING'S RECEPTION.

PARIS, Nov. 27.
King George who arrived to-day at Boulogne is expected to reach Paris at 2.30 o'clock Thursday afternoon.
The arrangements provide for the King's reception at the small station at the principal gate of the Bois de Boulogne. The avenues leading to the Place De La Concord and across the river to the ministry of Foreign Affairs, transformed during the King's stay into a royal palace will be lined with crack French regiments particularly chosen from among those which fought during the war in close conjunction with the British army.

At the City Hall.

The City Council held its weekly session yesterday all the members being present.
A letter was read from the Colonial Secretary in which it was intimated that the government was not prepared to advance $40,000 for the housing proposition but the Government would make a point of having the Charter brought forward and adopted at the coming session of the Legislature. As there is evidently some misunderstanding the Mayor was authorized to see the Government.

The Col. Secretary also went asking the Council what they would be prepared to do if the water power of Mobile River was given them. As the government promised to pass the Charter, provision was made there for developing this power.
A letter was also received in connection with the application for Tor's Cove Brook.

C. R. Thompson wrote he was confined to the house and that at an early date he would take up the question of the lay out of Subury property.
Jas. Bolger was permitted to repair house, Barnes' Road.
An application from J. and F. Davey to install a motor was referred to the Engineer.

The Solicitor reported that in the case of the action against the Reid Co.
for repairs to road between tracks of Street Car system, he was waiting for the defense.

He also wrote as to the powers of the police respecting the ordinances of the Municipal Council. Mr. Carter is to be consulted again on this matter.

The Engineer reported on the cost of removal of house, Pennywell Road, repairs to Water Store, general work Water Department, sewer work, Forest Road, etc.

The plumbing inspector reported on Ralph Strong's house, LeMarchant Road. Water was given this man during the time the house was quarantined for a case of infantile paralysis with the understanding that lavatory arrangements would be installed when the transaction was resumed. Ordered the water be turned off immediately at this house.

Plan of garage for Mr. Storey,
Casey St., was approved.
Insp. Murphy reported on a number of houses to which repairs to stop leaks as ordered had not been done.
Decided to get Solicitor to prosecute owners.

Ordered that the Hr. Master be asked as to the mooring of vessels near the South Side wharf.

After passing of pay rolls and bills and transaction of routine business the meeting adjourned.

The Ethie.

The S. S. Ethie returned from the Strait Sunday afternoon. She brought an exceptionally big mail, having called at places passed by the Diana, a full freight, and a large number of passengers. She reports several cases of influenza at Port Saunders, and at Bonnie Bay the disease has assumed the proportions of an epidemic. In the Straits there is no medical services, and we would draw the attention of the authorities to this condition, and trust an effort will be made to relieve the situation at once.
We are pleased to quote the following from a letter which we have received from a correspondent concerning the Ethie away from Humber-mouth--
"I am sure Capt. English cannot in any way be blamed for our long list of troubles because, given anything like ordinary good luck, he would have done well. I know it to be a fact that everyone down this way has a good word for him on account of the courtesy and consideration he has shown traders and fishermen and his work generally since he came to this coast.--Western Star.

The herring fishery has been brisk

Friday and Saturday the fish made their appearance in Humber Arm, and on Monday some boats secured from 30

SEETHING REVOLUTION. LONDON, Nov. 28. At a Berlin meeting of the Soldiers and Workers Council, Herr Barth, Secretary for Social policy in the Ebert ministry, declared that a counter revolution was in full swing. According to a Copenhagen despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, several Generals have issued counter revolutionary proclamations, and have attempted to dissolve the Soldiers and Workers councils.

A SERIOUS LOSS.

CHARLOTTETOWN, Nov. 28. The steamer J. A. McKee, which left New York on the 26th, with a cargo of rails for the Prince Edward Island railway, is reported ashore outside New York. It is not yet known whether she is a total loss or not. This steamer brought a cargo here earlier in the season. The rails are for the widening of the gauge, and her non-arrival will delay this work considerably.

TRILLIA'S OFFER.

LONDON, Nov. 28. (Via Reuters Ottawa Agency)—Wm. H. Hughes, Australian Premier, has received a cablegram from A. Watt, the treasurer of the Australian Government, stating that in view of the fact that another wheat harvest is due, and will require payments aggregating at least £10,000,000, the Australian wheat-board considers it desirable to sell 1,000,000 tons of wheat at a minimum price of 57 pence, approximately $118 per bushel, provided that Australia is permitted to compete on the world's market and is able to reserve the rest of the wheat supply on hand.

COMING TO LIGHT.

LONDON, Nov. 28. (via Reuters Ottawa Agency)—The British and French press both comment in scathing terms upon the various allegations disclosing that the German High Command had ever been prepared in a more cold blooded and deliberate manner. Besides this little group of plotters in Berlin and Vienna, Napoleon at his worst, appears as a white man. Even the German papers are shocked at the revelations and advanced Socialist organs in Berlin demand the arrest of Bethmann-Hollweg, Von Jagow and Zimmermann.

A NEAR THING.

LONDON, Nov. 28. (via Reuters Ottawa Agency)—The latest batch of interesting war time happenings, now released for publication, contains a story of how Dover narrowly missed being blotted out just prior to the last Belgian offensive. The harbor was packed with war vessels of all descriptions, including four monitors about to start out for the Belgian coast to cooperate with the land offensive. Suddenly an explosion shook the town, and soon it was discovered that the monitor "Glatten 2" was furiously ablaze in the harbor. It is stated that Admiral Keyes, hearing the Glatten, and realizing the catastrophe that would result, if the Glatten's magazines exploded, ordered air raid sirens to be blown to clear the streets. Orders were also given to sink the Glatten. The destroyer Broke succeeded in hitting her with three torpedoes in that part of the Glatten which was away from her magazines, thus sinking her and saving Dover.

NOON.

BARRAGE STILL THERE. LONDON, Nov. 28. (British Wireless Service)—The Secretary of the British Admiralty today made the following announcement: The statement has appeared in a portion of the press to the effect that the Dover barrage had been removed. This is not the case, and as such statements are liable to lead mariners in to danger, it is necessary to emphasize that the barrage is still in place.

Advertisement for Grape-Nuts cereal, stating it is a valuable food for people who are saving find.

that all notices and information regarding the surrendering of the mines will be officially notified to mariners in the usual way, and they are accordingly warned that only such official notifications should be acted upon. ... (British Wireless Service)—The war correspondent of the British Wireless Service, who has been in France since the beginning of the war, says that when the German delegates came to see Marshal Foch with regard to the armistice, the Marshal, as well as the high British command, knew perfectly well that a few days more (the Marshal put it at ten days at the most) would have seen the surrender of the entire German army into his hands, and the culmination of the greatest victory of all ages. The Marshal, says the correspondent, re-echoed that great victory deliberately, and with his eyes open, because the continuation of the struggle would have cost a certain number of British and French lives, and he could not have it on his conscience to sacrifice one life after it was in his power to make peace on terms of victory.

COMING HOME.

LONDON, Nov. 28. A Copenhagen correspondent says that at six o'clock this morning, two squadrons of British warships passed the Skaw, Denmark, steaming slowly southward. There were twenty-two ships, including destroyers, cruisers, mine sweepers, and transport steamers. When the fleet passed through Aalborg Bay, it met steamers with British war prisoners aboard on their way from Copenhagen to England. Marines and soldiers cheered each other as the warships passed the repatriating vessels at a distance of a few metres.

WAR PRISONERS ILL TREATED.

LONDON, Nov. 28. An official statement issued today says that since the armistice was signed, 444 British officers and 3,350 men of other ranks, former prisoners, have arrived at Hull from Holland and Germany; 550 officers and 8,216 men of other ranks, at Dover, and 500 at London. The statement says, the protest of the British Government with regard to the treatment of British prisoners has been communicated to the German Government, and the German authorities say that the German High Command is prepared to use its power to deliver prisoners in good condition, but that the severity of the armistice conditions present a difficult problem. The German High Command later, was informed that no excuses would be accepted by the British Government, and that full reconditioning would be exacted for any unnecessary sufferings of British prisoners of war. To this the German replied that they would do their utmost to alleviate the conditions of prisoners. One sergeant who had been a prisoner for seven months, spoke bitterly of an enforced march after his capture. For four days, he said, the prisoners had virtually no solid food, and when they arrived at camp they were put right to work burying men who had died from starvation. In one week fifteen of them died. No pity or leniency was shown to men who were unable to work through sickness. Only half rations were given them.

GUEST OF PRESIDENT POINCARÉ.

PARIS, Nov. 28. King George was the guest of night of President Poincaré at a dinner at the Elysee Palace, which was attended by high personages of State, members of the diplomatic corps and the heads of the British Military Mission. Toasts were drunk to both Great Britain and the President. They were received enthusiastically.

A LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

LONDON, Nov. 28. (By the A.P.)—Sir Robert L. Borden, Canadian Premier, speaking at the annual Thanksgiving Day Banquet of the American Society today, approved of the plan to form a League of Nations, but insisted that England and America are able to command the peace of the world by acting together. America's share in winning the war was praised by Viscount Chinda, Japanese Ambassador to Great Britain. The Earl of Reading declared that Great Britain would in future join in celebrating Thanksgiving Day in memory of America's achievements in the war.

HUN COMMANDER PROTESTS.

LONDON, Nov. 28. Admiral Von Reuter, commander of the German fleet which surrendered to the Allies on Nov. 21, has protested against the order of Admiral Sir David Beatty, of the British fleet, directing that the German flag be hauled down. He points out, according to an Admiralty statement, that under the terms of a neutral port, which in accordance with precedent flags are allowed to remain hoisted. He adds, "I regard it unjustifiably and contrary to international custom to order the striking of the flag of German ships. However, in my opinion, the order to strike the flag was not in keeping with the ideas of chivalry between two honorable opponents." Admiral Beatty, calling attention to the fact that the armistice merely suspended hostilities, and that a state of war still exists between Germany and the Allies, has replied: "Under the circumstances no enemy vessel can be permitted to fly its national ensign in British ports while under custody."

Labor Strike.

COAL HEAVERS LOOK FOR MORE PAY. This morning the labourers who were discharging coal from the S. S. Lakeview at Harvey & Co's premises struck work and demanded more pay. The men were receiving the scheduled union wages, viz., 45 cents and 50 cents per hour, but evidently were not satisfied with it. They now demand 60 cents per hour by day and 80 cents per hour for night work. Their demand appears a little bit unreasonable for it is understood that this coal is not a commercial enterprise, but the United States Government ordered it to be stored here for the use of naval units and other boats engaged in special war services. If we take into comparison the wages of a coal heaver with a coal miner, there is a contrast presented. Surely the coal heaver ought to be satisfied with a daily wage of $5 or $6 even though the work is hard. When a navy man endures all the hardships and perils of the sea for his comrades on land receives only a pay of little better than a dollar per day. No settlement can be reached until a reply is got from Washington, and it is quite possible that the steamer may be ordered to discharge elsewhere. In this case labor has overstepped the boundary a little, and if the local coal heavers obtain a few days idleness they have only themselves to blame.

THIS MORNING'S FIRE.

An alarm from Box 27, at 1.30 this morning, called the Central and Eastern companies to Bond Street, where a fire in the house occupied by Mr. P. Walsh had occurred. This was in the chimney, and a couple of hand grenades effectively put out the blaze, making the services of the fire engine unnecessary.

Break for Freedom.

About 12 o'clock this morning, a bull was the cause of considerable amusement to the people of the street, which was tied to a long car, broke loose, and dashed about the streets, and then, after a while, with the rope attached to its nasal organ, trailing on the ground. The driver of the car, sitting in front, did not know of the bull's freedom until he received a blow on the head from one of the animal's horns as the bull had mounted the car from behind, and was then giving an interesting exhibition of gymnastics to a large crowd of delighted spectators. The driver, upon receiving intimation that the capture was no longer in slavish subjection, stopped his horse and made chase for the bull, which by now had meandered up the street. The horse, being a very fair example of the almost humanly intelligent equines looked around, and seeing nothing to stop him, resolutely decided to shake off the shackles of servitude, and without stopping to think where his next feed of oats was to come from, made his way down the street, at the speed of about a hundred yards an hour. But alas! for his dreams of deliverance, a rude but determined passer-by made an impolite dash for his head, caught the bridle in his hand and hung on. This decided the noble beast. Nobody wanted him to be free; everybody wanted him to be a good one, very well, he would submit. But who beside the unhappy mortal crossing behind him, while he had a hoof in. Meanwhile, the male representative of the bovine species had continued his amuse, and having more than an ordinary share of humor, led the weary driver a long run between horses and carts, into shops and out the "back street" side of the street, and was about two miles this side of Topsyall, when he quietly stopped, allowed the man to get into the saddle, and then he home and hearth. The distance was made in quick time, and the animal was soon engaged in seeing how many straws of hay he could swallow per hour.

The Epidemic.

Although reports from the outside world tell us that the influenza epidemic is not in our midst, it is apparent that it is present, for it is reported that the last few days several patients including some of the Petrel's crew are now convalescing.

Crucified Kitten to Trap British.

The London Post says the authenticity of the following incident is taken on unquestionable authority. During the recent operations of the Allies, it fell to the Fourth British Army to re-occupy a town when the Germans retreated from it. As they were making their way through the war-torn streets of the town, a group of them were arrested by a sight that startled and shocked even men inured to the horrors of war.

Spendthrifts of the Past.

No wata, a six-shilling inkpot and a three-and-a-penny breakfast, can be counted the height of luxury, the Greater-Spendthrifts of the past may be remembered with envy. There was the Emperor Hellogabellus, who in a procession had the streets of Rome strewn with gold dust, and who "would never eat fish except a great distance from the sea." We also remember the Duc d'Orleans, who used 700 pearls for an embroidery on his sleeve, and the Prince de Conti, who thought nothing put powdered diamond good enough to dust his letters to his mistress.

How to Reach the Heart.

By RUTH CAMERON.

How much shorter and easier is the road to a person's sympathy if the sufferer by an appeal in behalf of the Syrians and Armenians. In the pamphlets were the usual terrible tales of starvation and homelessness. Of course this concentration of sympathy is in a way a sort of selfishness. But at any rate it's a very forgivable kind.

For the Student.

NERO'S PALACE. The golden house was the palace of Nero in ancient Rome, which occupied the valley between the Palatine and Esquiline, and connected the palaces of the Caesars with the gardens of Maecenas. It was built after the great fire of 64 A.D. and was so large that it contained porticos 2,800 feet long and inclosed a lake where the coliseum now stands. The forecourt contained a colossus of Nero 120 feet high.

LIBERIA. Liberia may be one of the smallest and humblest of the nations, but it is one of the most faithful and earnest of those allied against Prussianism. The Consul-General of the Republic, speaking before the "Altar of Liberty" in New York the other day, in behalf of the Government of his country, "consecrated her man-power and her resources to the final extinction of German autocracy and justice." There is something bordering upon the marvelous in the capacity Germany has shown for winning the abhorrence of the smaller, as well as of the greater, nations.

NOAH'S ARK. A good word for Noah's precidence as a shipbuilder is found in an allusion to his Ark in Nauticus. "It would not be a difficult task," says that journal, "to pick out of Lloyd's Register many ships built within the last twenty years whose demensions suggest a form closely resembling that of Noah's Ark. According to the dimension given in the Bible as translated in terms of modern measurement, the Ark was 480 feet long, 90 feet wide, and 45 feet deep. Her tonnage was 11,413, and she had plenty of room for pairs of all the distinct species of animals that are classed by Buffon—244—and she could have accommodated a thousand persons and then had plenty of room for the storage of supplies."

THEY WILL RETURN.
They will not come in swiftness. They will not march along the street. They will see each tender sign. They will see those we long to greet. They'll see the tears in gentle eyes. That watch the broken kangs go by. They'll hear the mother's sobs and sighs. And understand the reason why. The missing have for whom we yearn. In victory's hour will all return. Because his comrades left there. To sleep / near "Flanders" poppy rows. Think not that he will fall to share. In all the prairie the world bestows. Think not that he will fall to bear. The music and the shouts of joy. He will be always hovering near. Oh, mother of such missing boys. He'll know across life's dusky rim. That all your smiles are meant for him!

When they return to sound of cheers. And all their cruel tasks are done. The shouts the living soldier hears. Will also reach the absent one. When all the battle flags are furled. And peace has come to every land. The joy that reigns throughout the world. They will be near to hear and see. And share in victory's jubilee.

Short and Sweet.

The official war communique of today is a comparatively lengthy affair. There were no detailed despatches in the old times. The country at war waited anxiously, day after day, week after week, and when the official message arrived at last very often it contained only three words or so. But those three words were usually convincing. Even in comparatively recent times many classic communiquees may be found whose whole point lies in their brevity. After he had beaten the enemy at Duren, Turenne wrote home to headquarters: "The enemy came, wez beaten. I am tired. Goodnight!" That was all. "We have met the enemy and they are ours," was how Perry put it to General Harrison after the famous battle of Lake Erie.

Admiral Blake, in a typical bulldog despatch, announced his victory over the French in the following terms: "Please, your honor and glory, met with the French Fleet, beat, killed, took, sunk, and burned as per margin. Yours, etc."

Milady's Boudoir

CONTROL OF THE LIPS.
Real beauty which is always of character, can be engraven upon the mouth by right living, right thinking. Physically, the lips may be cared for properly so that they are soft and red, well shaped by proper care of the teeth, by correct massage, by a little thought in their management both in laughing and speaking, this last named method may seem to smack of artificiality, but this is not necessarily so. Have we not seen some singers who grimace horribly over their utterances, while others make charming mouths which really enhance each word as it issues forth? In the one case, the singer has been taught to handle his lips incorrectly or perhaps has not been taught to handle them at all, all effort being concentrated on the forming of the tone. In the other instance, the facial expression has been taken into account and while tone is not sacrificed, the pleasing effect of the music is not marred by grotesque mouthings and lip-stretchings.

If such lip control is possible in singers, it is also possible in those who do not sing. The woman who will persevere may learn to speak and use the lips becomingly, thus not only enunciating clearly but with graceful movement. She will take pains to keep her lips when in repose, in an expression of good cheer and courage rather than allow them to slackerly droop in sadness and gloom.

We are all familiar with the nervous mouth that is drawn far to the side when talking. Others pucker the lips when thinking and often while talking. The former is bound to make the mouth incline permanently more to one side than the other. The latter habit will wrinkle the lips and age them far more quickly than the passing years. Others seem to pout continually. All these unbecoming little habits bring about anything but an attractive expression.

EARLY SHOPPING.

"We'll do our Christmas shopping early," said Kaiser Bill to Eitel Frits; "so when I've made my mustache curly, we'll go up town and blow two bits. It is a time for stern re- t a e c h i n g we can't spend lavishly, that's sure, while hunger, like a fiend, is wrenching the vitals of our German poor. Some simple gifts—none ostentatious—for friends who have been lean and true; our giving these will seem as gracious as though a lot of marks we blew. A can of ox-tail soup for Lutz, who-fet the tail go with the hide, will cheer him up, who is now moody, since he saw all his triumphs slide. For Tirpitz, too, soup would be fitting—the kind that's made of navy beans; he spilled our beans and sent hope flitting when he sent forth his submarines. Mock Turtle soup we'll give to Hinden, for he's a mockery the dub; we thought him bigger than a linden, and find him smaller than a shrub. Beef soup will do for Kronprinz Freddy, for he will beef where he should fight; we might have won this war, already, had we but kept him out of sight. A can of soap for every fellow, clam chowder is the stuff for Max, for it's a sort of sickly yellow, and tastes a lot like liquid war. Come, let us go and see the grocer, and buy what soap he has in stock, before the allied guns draw closer and shoot the helmet from his block."

A People Past Shame.

We have now no trust whatever in the Germans generally or, strange to say, in a single individual German. The names of statesmen keep constantly changing, but they are all one to us. They all have behind them infamous pasts. They are all, so far as appears, tarred with the same brush. There may be among the people seven thousand who have not bowed the knee to Baal. If there are they are silent. What we see, what we have learned about the Germans during the war, is that they are a people to whom truth, honor, common decency, not to speak of mercy, are things to be jeered at. They are happily not past suffering, but they are past shame. Their cruelty is the cruelty of demons. While they prattle about peace they are busy, as President Wilson says, in the worst and basest kind of atrocities. Whether there ever will be any mitigating circumstances, whether there may be a change of heart in Germany, we do not know. There must come repentance first, and while no doubt the Germans are sorry for the plight in which they find themselves, and their Kaiser in particular must have his own thoughts on his future, they keep on maintaining that what they did was right, that they fought in self-defence, and that for their endless atrocities no apology of any kind is necessary. We fancy that for the present generation at least, we must accept the judgment: "Wolf he is and wolf he will remain."

When you wish to wrap presents in the prettiest, most unique fashion, use raffia in several shades. The dishcloth is a poor thing with which to wipe pots and pans; it is not free from soap and grease. In preparing dates for dessert wash and drain them; they will be much juicier and more palatable.

A Man of Destiny

Last of Russian Czars Was a Tragic Figure.

Nicholas II, ex-Czar of Russia, reported slain by the Bolsheviks, was a man of destiny in the most tragic sense of the word. He symbolized a political system, closed an historic epoch, and contributed to destroy a vast empire. It is not possible to understand that most momentous phase of European history which culminated in the war of nations without taking full account of the last czar's ambitions and aims and of the measures by which he sought to achieve them.

His reign focused the most corrosive forces inherent in a corrupt bureaucracy, and brought them to bear with blighting effect upon the narrow-minded, well-meaning potentate, who had earnestly striven, to Russinize the alien elements of the population, to turn the policy of his Government into a national channel, and to deserve the epithet of the peace preserver of the world. Nicholas II, while endeavouring to continue his father's work, merely kept all the peoples, parties and religious creeds of his empire in a continuous ferment of revolt against his person, his dynasty, and the regime, and he ended by making reform by evolution impossible.

Like other monarchs of his type, he had a defective sense of the relation between cause and effect, possessed no trustworthy knowledge of the people he was governing, nor of the problems he was tackling, and was deficient in that moral strength which enters so largely into the fibre of a ruler of men. Nicholas II. knew nothing of the realities of life, drew inferences from the accounts about them which he read in official papers, lived in an atmosphere of artificiality and make-believe, and displayed in most of his public acts a startling lack of political foresight or loftiness of moral ideas. Outside his family circle he had no friends, and seemingly felt the need of none.

For what he lacked most was that fellow feeling for others which is an indispensable condition of genuine friendship. This failing escaped the notice of the many whose relations with him were casual and transient, and startled the few who, being in close and continuous touch with him, perceived some of its worst manifestations during the famine that carried away tens of thousands of his subjects, and at other times of public calamities. In part, no doubt, it was due to a certain lack of imagination, which makes it to me quite credible that at the close of his reign he felt vaguely the catastrophe that was coming, but, like the bird fascinated by the basilisk, could do nothing but gaze and wait helplessly for the stroke of destiny.

Before Nicholas II. had done anything from which the nation could learn his character or assess his worth an absurdly flattering portrait of him was drawn by courtiers and publicists and reproduced throughout the world. He was depicted as a wise and benign leader of men. This official picture was everywhere accepted as true to nature, and for 10 years all the discordant facts that belied it were generously distorted in order to bring them into harmony with this deceptive fiction.

Model Towns By War Workers.

Perhaps the most remarkable example of the government's ability as a town builder is Yorkshir near Camden, N.J., designed to serve employees of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, writes Robert H. Moulton, in December Popular Mechanics Magazine. This town, where 10,000 of Uncle Sam's ship-workers will live might almost be said to have been built overnight. Starting work early in the summer, about a thousand houses were ready for occupancy in October with another thousand to follow within a few months.

The plan for Yorkshir is perhaps the most complete town plan ever made. Every house is complete; it has hot and cold-water systems, modern plumbing, up-to-date plumbing fixtures, gas range, hot-water heater, electric light, and cellar furnace. The government has at its service the best town planners and architects in America and with all the haste that is being made, beauty and good taste are not being sacrificed. The houses will not be all alike in color, material, or style. On the contrary, throughout each of these spacious, slumless tracts will be evidence that the thing was planned as a whole. The chief benefit which accrues to the worker from the building of these towns is the fact that landlordism is to be a thing unknown. The benefits are to go unfailingly to the workers. Rents must be based on cost and not on the maximum which the tenants can be forced to pay. And inasmuch as the government has no desire to retain the ownership after the war, a scheme has been evolved to sell them, not to individuals, but to the new communities as a whole, to be held in trust as community property.

Puzzling the Huns.

That famous patriotic paper the 'Libre Belgique' which is published clandestinely, recently celebrated its fourth anniversary by issuing a special number containing a portrait of General von Falkenhausen, whom it derided in a scathing fashion.

In some mysterious manner the Governor not only received, through the post a copy of that number, but found one in his overcoat pocket. In his rage he imported forty of Berlin's most famous detectives and ordered them to find the culprits at all costs. They at last did so, and the printer was sentenced to twelve years' hard labour, while the detectives celebrated by a dinner what they believed to be a final victory.

A fortnight had not elapsed before the 'Libre Belgique' reappeared, and this time with a photograph of the detectives' banquet and biting comments. And again the Governor found a copy in his pocket. The paper is still appearing.

The Challenge That Returned.

(From the Toronto Globe.)

Seventy years ago a Hohenzollern King, Frederick William the Fourth, met the General Assembly of the States of Prussia and flung this challenge in the face of the agitation for political reform:

"I have convoked this Assembly to make myself acquainted with the wants of the people; but the Government will not be changed in its essence. The absolute monarchy has only become consulting. I do not deem it for the interest of my people to adopt a proper representative government. I consider it my duty to resist the levelling and innovating spirit of the age. I will never permit a charter to intervene between me and the duty I owe my people. I will never yield to the rule of majorities, and will resist to the last extremity the ruinous democratic designs which are the disgrace and peril of the age."

A year later the flame of revolution, kindled in France, spread over the continent. Frederick William affected to yield to it, but at the first opportunity he used his military power to crush the democratic Parliament. Prussian Liberalism was beguiled by Bismarck from its true mission into the scheme of German Imperialism, which was brought to fruition by the Franco-Prussian war. The King of Prussia sounded the doom of his destiny when he issued his defiance of Prussian democracy. If he had granted Parliamentary government and been content to base his Throne upon the will of the people, his country would have entered the process of orderly evolution on liberal lines which has characterized Great Britain. In destroying Liberalism he sowed the wind, and Germany is now reaping the whirlwind of Red Revolution.

An Extraordinary Museum.

"The most eccentric bidder I ever had to deal with," says Mr. J. M. Hill, for fifty years with the well-known auctioneering firm of Debenham, Storr and Sons, "was Mr. T. G. Middlebrook, proprietor of the Erinburgh Castle tavern at Regent's Park, who had an extraordinary museum. He bought for it great auk's eggs at £200 and £300 apiece. "He had on show a silver coin which he averred was one of the thirty pieces for which Judas Iscariot betrayed his Master, and his collection included many other objects of equally doubtful authenticity, such as Arab spear with which General Gordon was killed, Haydn's fist, and Johnson's spectacles."

Is irritable, itchy or sore? If so, follow the wise example of Mrs. J. Knox of Pine Creek, Man. She writes: "My little daughter suffered with a rash during teething. The irritation caused the child to be very cross and peevish. I applied Zam-Buk, which was at once most soothing. It kept her skin soft, drew out the inflammation and soon ended the irritation altogether. Before long, thanks to my perseverance with Zam-Buk, the rash entirely disappeared. Zam-Buk is a great soothing balm."

A Bargain in COAL. A Small Quantity North Sydney Coal. Price: $15.50 cash, per ton, Sent Home! Geo. M. Barr

In Loving Memory

Of 5516 Pte. Ernest Fisher, Who Died of Wounds, November 29, 1917, at 421st Casualty Clearing Station, Somewhere in France, Aged 18 Years.

TO HIS MOTHER. Deep in her lonely sorrow, Nothing on earth so sad, Far from the land of his loved ones They have buried her darling lad. Words of comfort were useless— What did they mean to her? Out in that No Man's Country All that was left lies there. Never a smile to greet her, All that was worth doing done, The joy of her life lay silent And he was her darling son. All the gifts of humanity Could never more atone, For life and love are finished When the heart is left alone. Only one thought take comfort In the depth of that dark despair, Christ has allowed your darling In his death and suffering to share; And greater love hath no man, Or glory without end Who lays down his life without murmur For his country and his friend. R. F. adrt

West Coast Notes.

(Western Star.) The Gorton Fish Co.'s new schooner Aviator, arrived from Gloucester on Monday. She is now loading herring at Summerside. The schr. Earl Grey, Capt. John McLeod, is loaded with cod and herring for Halifax. The schr. Muriel Walters, Capt. Sam Shaw, arrived here on Monday night with a full freight from the Farquhar Company. The schr. Eugene Cresser, chartered by Capt. George Peeples, arrived here on Sunday, and is now taking salt bulk herring. At many places along the coast to the north there were enthusiastic peace demonstrations. At several of them great displays of gun work were a leading feature. The coopers and herring factory of Thomas Power, at Woods Harbor, was totally destroyed by fire on Monday night. The loss included all his cooping outfit, barrels for this season's packing operations and a quantity of herring he had packed, and is a severe blow to Mr. Power, particularly at this the midst of the packing season. At Aquathua, Port au Port, the Dominion Iron and Steel Company had a successful season, and shipped about a quarter million tons of limestone. They would have shipped a much greater quantity, however, but for the scarcity of tonnage. They fired two batteries of seven holes each, bringing down thirty thousand tons of limestone at each shot. Rowland W. Clark, of the firm of Willis Clark, Norris Point, Bonne Bay, died on the 19th November of influenza. The young man was a great favorite of the place, and will be greatly missed by his many friends. The business place of W. Clark was closed for a few days. It resumed operations again this week. Last week we had a letter from Capt. T. Butler, saying that the s.s. Brunswick had been held up at North Sydney two weeks waiting to go on dry dock for repairs, and that owing to bad weather and holidays the delay had been much longer than Capt. Butler had anticipated, hence the interruption in the Bay St. George Steam Mill Service. After coming out dock there was some difficulty in getting her coaled. However, he hoped to leave Sydney last Wednesday, and would resume the regular service at once upon arrival at St. George's.

Statutory Meeting

ST. GEORGE'S COAL FIELDS, LTD. A meeting of the St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd., was held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Board of Trade Rooms, there being about two hundred shareholders present. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Warren, the Company's Solicitor. Mr. St. John being appointed to the chair. Mr. Warren explained the nature of the meeting, it being the statutory general meeting, and that the time appointed for the annual meeting would be the first Monday in February when a full board of seven directors would be elected. The following gentlemen were elected to act until then: Mr. J. J. St. John, Mr. William Campbell, Capt. Edward English, Harbor Master; Mr. John A. Hiscock and Mr. T. J. Freeman. The reports submitted by Mr. Freeman showed the affairs of the Company to be in a very prosperous condition, and that considerable development had been done at the mines. The Jukes seam now being prospected according to latest reports, appeared to be showing up beyond expectation. The foreman in charge of work at the mine reported that they were driving north and south on the Jukes seam and had tunnelled in 27 feet, and that they were cutting through a seam of good clean coal 4 feet 9 inches wide and 1 foot 3 inches of mixed coal on the hanging wall. The drift on the north tunnel was being commenced and that they were in several feet, the coal being similar in both drifts. Several tons are now piled on the dumps. At the meeting samples of the coal were distributed and evoked much favorable comment. Better samples were shipped from the mine on Nov. 12th, but unfortunately had not arrived here yet. When they come they will be exhibited in some window on Water Street. After the meeting several hundred dollars worth of stock were subscribed for.

Use of Trade Marks.

How many people know the difference between trade marks and patents? The general idea seems to be that they are one and the same thing. Certainly they are both dealt with in the Patent Office, for the sake of convenience, and it seems that this fact has conveyed the above impression. A trade mark is a registration of a word or design attached to goods of a certain trader making it clear to the public that they are his manufacture, and that nobody else may use that same trade mark. Its use is almost indispensable in the commercial world, and this can be realized better when one knows what its functions are in respect to the trader and his customers. In the first place, being a certificate of genuineness, it protects the public. Secondly, being an identifying mark, the trader is protected by the law against any competitor who endeavors to trade on another's name or goods. Trade marks were issued as far back as the time of James I., and probably even before that, but it was not until 1875 that the Trade Marks Registration Act was passed. A sanitary garbage pail is one of the points of household equipment which the careful housekeeper will not overlook.

Interesting Lecture.

At the second of the series of lectures at the Llewellyn Club last evening, R. R. Wood, Esq., Vice-President, presided. The speaker Rev. Dr. Jones spoke on Moses and the contrast between his legislation and that of modern legislators. The speaker first outlined the early life of Pharaoh with its many temptations, and showed from Biblical references how Moses had emerged from the Egyptian court untarnished in morals. He showed the laws of Moses to be based upon humanity, justice and morality. He emphasized the need of these basic fundamentals in modern legislation. He declared that the politician of today was a party man, not a reformer, not a helper for uplifting his people, but very, very often a party supporter for the advancement of personal interests. The speaker pointed out the need of real reform in our midst today. He showed the need of legislation to protect children, for it was not right nor fit to allow children of tender years and for minor offences to be confined in prison with hardened criminals. He urged the need of a child reformatory and also of "Curfew" to send children off the street at an early hour, and further a statute to keep children under age from manual labor, as many of our children to-day were working when they should be at home or school. Of course, he said, the task of the man who brought forward such reforms would be bitterly battled and opposition would be rife, but, in time people would see the justice of his propaganda, and would rally to his support. After the lecturer had finished, Messrs. McDonald, Dowden, Colley and Burnell gave their views on the subject. No lecture will be given next Thursday, but a kind of peace celebration will be held and patriotic addresses given.

Christian Brothers Collection.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—The ex-pupils of the Christian Brothers and all the kind friends of the latter, will, I am sure, not forget to respond with their usual liberality towards the annual collection this coming Sunday. We have never yet permitted this collection to slide backward, notwithstanding the ups and downs that have prevailed in the years since the first arrival of the Christian Brothers; so to keep up the fine record we must all be prepared to give generously again this year. The ex-pupils always look forward to this event with the greatest of pleasure for they feel that in handing in their donations they are rendering a just tribute to the learned and noble community of gentlemen whose lives are so unselfishly devoted to the great cause of education. All that is needed is that no friend or ex-pupil should let the occasion slip from his memory, and then we are united and agreed to give generously, there is no doubt the collection will be the biggest yet. Yours truly, BX-PUPIL, Nov. 29, 1918.

WALL-JOY. On Wednesday evening last a very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Capt. Walter Joy, Holyrood, when his daughter Mary (May) was united in matrimony to Mr. John Wall, of that place. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Finn in the presence of a number of friends. Miss Nellie Vetch, daughter of Conductor Vetch, attended the bride, while Mr. George Vetch, of the Postal Telegraphs, St. John's, did the needful for the groom. The bride was the recipient of a number of valuable presents and good wishes. The groom has recently returned from Newport, Rhode Island, where he has been successfully engaged for a number of years in the fishing industry. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Wall much happiness.

The Mysterious V.C.

STORY OF HEROIC BATTLE OF "Q" SHIP WITH U-BOAT.
(New York Herald.)
When Captain Gordon Campbell, of the British Navy, received the Victoria Cross early in February of 1917, the imagination of the civilized world was aroused until he became known as the "mysterious V.C." The British Government announced that Captain Campbell's act would not be revealed until the end of the war. Since the armistice has been signed, the British Bureau of Information has related the circumstances. The reason that the details of the action were withheld was that Captain Campbell was the commander of several "Q" boats in the course of the war, and there was reason to believe that his actions were of the greatest secrecy regarding these boats whose only value was in the mystery which surrounded them.
The boats for the most part were tramp steamships fitted up with powerful and cunningly screened guns. On board were picked men of the fighting navy. Some wore women's apparel, others were bent old men in appearance, and frequently half of the crew appeared with arms in slings or other disguise to indicate disability. The ships were used to lure submarines.
Captain Campbell was navigating one of these ships early in February, 1917, when at a point in the Irish sea a torpedo fired by a hidden submarine struck the vessel. It was the activity which followed on the "Q" ship which won the "V.C." for the ship and commander and the Distinguished Service Order for every one of the crew and officers. The torpedo knocked a great hole in the "Q" ship's side and several of the bulkheads gave way. She started to settle and to further deceive the enemy part of the crew jumped into the boat and pulled away from the ship. Others leaped into boats attached to the ship the men were thrown into the water and gave every evidence of panic.

In the meantime the gunners were waiting at their hidden posts, some of them up to their thighs in water, for the appearance upon the surface of the apparently successful submarine.
Finally the great undersea craft came lurching out of the water and passed across the "Q" ship's bow three hundred yards away. The British White Ensign was hoisted, the order to fire was given and a blast of guns aimed point blank at the U-boat blew it to pieces. The German commander had just stepped onto the deck and was blown to atoms with the great salvo from the apparently defenceless "Q" boat. The boats were recalled to the stricken ship and help signalled for.

While the fight was on the chief engineer and his staff remained in the flooded engine room and kept the dynamo and machinery going until driven from their points by rushing water. They then crept on to the engines and hid there until the fight ended. Even after warships came to their aid, the dangers of Captain Campbell and his crew were not over. Time after time it seemed as if the sea would claim their vessel, but on the day following the action she was beached to prevent her from sinking.
This "Q" ship was a steamship of 3,000 tons, her armament being disguised by various devices.
Another time she was sighted at 11 o'clock in the morning and attacked by a submarine. Hysterical appeals were sent out from the "Q" ship by wireless in hope that the enemy would intercept them and gain confidence. The "panic party" proceeded to abandon the ship.
To lend color to the general demoralization and confusion, one of the boats was purposely blown up by single fall and remained hanging in a vertical position. The ship, however, became disabled and a fire raged at which eventually caused the magazines to blow up. The concussion started the electrically controlled fire pumps and the white ensign fluttered automatically up to the masthead. One gun—the only gun that would bear—opened unavailing fire on the enemy, which had begun to dive.
The ruse failed, and every man on board realized that what must follow was to be the supreme test. The ship was now openly a man-of-war. Previously detailed were ordered to abandon the ship, and the captain and crew of two guns and both torpedo tubes, the navigator, assistant paymaster and quartermaster remained aboard. For the ensuing eighty minutes, while fire in the poop exploded furiously and ammunition detonated, the submarine circled around suspiciously. At half-past two in the afternoon the submarine once more began shelling the ship and boats with vindictive fury. The ship awaited its chance, but two torpedoes missed the submarine, which promptly dived. The game was up.
Wireless signals were sent out for assistance and Allied destroyers rushed to the rescue. The "Q" ship sank thirty-four hours later. Despite the almost incredible ground the crew had undergone, all survived the action. The officer in charge of the after gun received the Victoria Cross and one of the gun crew was selected by ballot for similar honor. The remainder were awarded conspicuous gallantry medals.

Lincoln An Example.

One of the Many Great Writers Unlearned in Greek or Latin.
Several times recently, in Letters to the Editor, reference has been made to the practicability of acquiring a clear, neat, strong, and direct style of English writing without the aid of Latin.
Possibly the strongest impartial authority that could be quoted on the subject is Viscount Bryce, former English Ambassador to the United States, and a ripe classical scholar.
After alluding to the fact that "Comparatively few of those who have given us our best literature were trained in Latin, retain a knowledge of either language sufficient to afford either us or pleasure to them through the rest of life," he says: "Let us frankly admit these facts. Let us also discard some weak arguments, our predecessors have used, such that no one can write a good English style without knowing Latin. There are too many cases to the contrary. Nothing is gained by trying to defend an untenable position."
One of the most striking of these cases is among us in the person of President Lincoln. Although preceded and followed in the Presidential office by men who had received long and thorough college and university training there is, nevertheless not one of them his equal in clarity, brevity, and felicity of expression. "His simple, luminous sentences," says one of our national writers "are models that cannot be improved upon." Even President Wilson falls short of him. Lincoln stands among the Presidents as the peerless prince of classic prose.
One who knew neither Latin nor Greek, still The London Spectator declared that "he is among the greatest masters of prose ever produced by the English race."
"He contrived to obtain," continues

Food.

Let Germany ask of the cold, gray sea
The wheat that might have been green again
In generous fields for the good of man.
Let her ask for fruit of the murdered trees—
Has she already forgotten these?
In the midst of her crying who has heard
Any regret for deed or word?
Is there repentance in Germany?
Let Germany ask of the mothers who Have heard their children crying for bread
While insolent brutes were warmed and fed.
There is wheat enough in the cold, gray sea
To feed a city in Germany.
Let her send her submarines to-day
To find the food that she threw away.
This is the thing she can do!
Let Germany say to the world one word
Of her broken faith and her bitter shame,
Let Germany call herself by name,

Topical Church Windows.

One does not usually associate a church window with illustrations of a topical nature, but there are several to be found scattered about in different parts of the country.
In St. Michael's Church, Golders Green, there is a window connected with flying. This is a recently built church, so is perhaps not so surprising as it seems.
At Plimmer Church there is a topographical window. It is a memorial window to a churchwarden, and in the lower panels are some quite good recognizable pictures, one of Plimmer Church itself, and another of Geddington, in Northamptonshire, showing the Eleanor Cross that stands there.
Perhaps the most remarkable case in this connection is to be found at Stoke Poges Church which contains a "bicycle" window. This may, of course, be an attempt to show one of the other of the "visions," but the fact remains that it contains a bicycle. The remarkable thing about it is that the window was made as far back as the seventeenth century!

You know it! It begins with a tickling, irritating sensation in your throat. You cough to clear the throat. In a moment there it is again.
A minute's peace, then again you cough, and so on until you cough your throat sore, and by the time the cough is sufficiently allayed to permit you to sleep, you are thoroughly worn out. This kind of experience is particularly trying to old people.
Peps make this sort of thing quite unnecessary.
Put a Peps pastille on your tongue and allow it to slowly dissolve. Healing fumes are then liberated, which mingle with the breath and are carried to the remotest parts of the air passages, and thus allaying the irritation and soothing the inflamed membranes, thus ending the cough and making sleep possible.
Peps are also sold for bronchitis, laryngitis, asthma, sore throat and cold. Try Peps at our expense. Send this advertisement and 1c stamp for return postage, to Peps Co., Toronto, and receive FREE TRIAL PACKAGE. All dealers, etc. etc.

Regarding Visions.

A MYSTERIOUS CROSS.
No explanation can be offered, but on the testimony of a number of witnesses, whose truthfulness is vouched for, a large white cross was seen in the sky over the place where the Leinster went down, shortly after being torpedoed.
At first it seemed as if it were a great cloud figure with outstretched arms, which assumed the form of a cross. As the sharpness of its outlines passed, it seemed to be full of the faces of men and women. While the imagination of some of the witnesses may account for some of the details, there does not seem to be much doubt that an amazing phenomenon did appear over the spot where the Leinster sank.
It calls to mind the story of the vision of Mons, which is said to have appeared not only to our soldiers when they were so hard pressed by overwhelming forces in 1914, but also to the Germans.
The Bishop of Durham cites the evidence, in support of the story of the vision of his friend, the Rev. W. Elliott Bradley, vicar of Crosthwaite, Keswick, who got a practically identical account of the miracle of Mons from each of three soldiers to whom he talked on three different occasions.
The Germans were coming on in massed formation, and the men of the thin British line were preparing to sell their lives dearly.
Suddenly the gray masses halted; even the horses of the cavalry jibbed and reared; and the collision did not take place. German prisoners taken a little later, were asked why they failed to attack at such an advantage. The answer was straight and simple; they saw strong British reinforcements coming up. There were no reinforcements. It was a vision.

Saved by Dreams

FAITH THAT FORTIFIES.
The faith of some people in dreams is strikingly illustrated by the story of Mrs. Fry, of Lewes, who, although repeatedly informed by the War Office, the commanding officer, and the chaplain of his company, that her son was killed fifteen months ago, steadfastly refused to believe he was dead, simply because she dreamt he was alive.
Constant dreams of her son buoyed up her hopes, and she expressed herself as in no way astonished when at last she heard that he was a prisoner in Germany.
Ten days before the Titanic disaster the Hon. J. C. Middleton, vice-president of the Akron-Canton Railway in Ohio, who had booked a passage on the ship, called in a mid-coast and a lot of passengers struggling for the water. The following night he dreamt exactly the same thing, and this so impressed him that he decided to cancel his passage.
Mr. Melton Prior, the famous war correspondent, once told the writer how, on two occasions while in Africa at the time of the Zulu War, he dreamt that he saw himself shot and witnessed his own funeral. Later, on arrival at Durban, he received a letter from his mother stating that she had had a precisely similar dream, and begging him not to go with a certain expedition. The coincidence so impressed him that he obtained a substitute, who was killed with the rest of the members of the expedition.

Te Deum Laudamus.

(By George Harvey in the War Weekly)
Thanks and praise to Almighty God. Who of his great mercy has shown salvation to this Republic and to all nations!
Thanks and praise to Belgium, the hero nation, who at the cost of her own martyrdom stood steadfast at Liege!
Thanks and praise to France, who for four long, weary years damned back the tide of Hunnish barbarism with a rampart of the bodies of her glorious sons!
Thanks and praise to Britain, who made at Ypres a new Thermopylae, and who for four long, weary years made all earth's seas a great Marathon!
Thanks and praise to Italy, the resurgent, to Portugal and Greece, to Brazil and Cuba, blessing the way of Latin-America into the council chamber of the world, and to every nation, great or small, that stood for freedom!
Thanks and praise to the peoples who were not yet free nations, Poles, Czechs, Slavs, Jews, and who, not also, who from their bondage struck with fettered hands brave blows for freedom and humanity!
Thanks and praise to the sons and daughters of this Republic who gave their all to guard its rights and freedom, and to aid all neighbor nations to win a like estate.
Thanks and praise and everlasting glory to Almighty God, Who, of His infinite mercy, hath brought salvation to this Republic and to all nations of mankind!
