FURTHER AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

The number of Automobile Accidents, doing both injury to life and damage to property, is increasing daily. In many cases the auto owner cannot avoid these unfortunate occurrences, but whether to blame or not, he is invariably held responsible, and often called upon to pay large sums of money, far beyond the average man's ability. No owner, therefore, can afford to operate a car without the financial backing of the Automobile Policy. OUR Policy not only indemnifies the Insured against loss from the liability imposed by law, but also provides for the Defence and all expenses of Court. The premium for this protection is but small.

OR—

A COMPLICATED TANGLE.

CHAPTER X.

They advanced to meet the two similarly-cloaked figures, and Dalton, who seemed less anxious and more ready as the time for the meeting drew near, said, in a low voice:

"For Heaven's sake; don't forget, Clifford; aim at his pistol hand and fire at the second. It is no use firing at his heart, for—"

The opponents had reached them before the sentence was concluded and Clarence Clifford, who seemed not to have heard it, raised his leg. The salutation was returned and the two seconds, after raising their hats likewise, drew apart to measure the distance, settle the weapons, etc.

Lord Harcourt stood with folded arms, his face turned to the sea.

Clarence Clifford paced slowly up and down, his head held up with a haughty sternness, his eyes flashing and resolute.

Col. Hawkesley stepped forward.

"Mr. Clifford," he said, with the smooth, polite voice, "Mr. Dalton and I cannot hit it off as one might wish. The choice of weapons is with the challenger. You, he tells me, leave the choice to my friend, Lord Harcourt, but he, Mr. Dalton, insists that the pistol shall be used. Now—"

Clarence Clifford stopped the smooth, courteous speech by a wave of his hand.

"Sir," he said, "I am indifferent. Let your principal choose the weapons. All that I ask is that he do so quickly and let me hasten to punish him."

Lord Harcourt made half a step forward at the cold contempt of the words, but stood still again and turned a sardonic smile upon the stern young face.

Col. Hawkesley conferred with his principal for a moment, then returned and with the utmost politeness informed Dalton that Lord Harcourt had decided to use the sword.

Dalton sullenly unlocked the sword cases, compared the weapons, and raised another question.

He would have none but Clarence Clifford's rapiers.

The dispute went on for some minutes in a smooth undertone, until Clarence Clifford strode forward, laid his hand on his second's shoulders, and said:

"Give way. Let me see their swords."

Col. Hawkesley handed him Lord Harcourt's rapier.

He examined them, bent them and weighed one in his hand, then with a careless gesture said:

"That will do. I am ready."

Dalton turned and walked to the spot with him.

"One word," he whispered in his ear. "Have—have—you any message?"

"Message?" repeated Clarence Clifford. "To whom?"

"To anyone," replied the young man, who looked upon his principal as already dead. "To your mother—your sister—your friends."

"I have no mother—no sister—no brother—no friends," came the low, thrilling reply. "I am alone in the world, and ready, quite ready to leave it, after I have marked this cowardly bullier of women."

Whether the words reached Lord Harcourt or he was impatient, he stepped forward, fung his coat to Col. Hawkesley, and put himself into position.

With calm composure Clarence Clifford removed his coat, handed his hat to Dalton and confronted him.

"One, two, three, garde!"

Lord Harcourt felt his opponent's weapon for a moment, miscalculated the strength opposed to him, and made a feint.

Instantly the sharp, serpent-like steel of the younger man pierced his arm.

He set his teeth hard as he felt the prick, and, with his weapon on guard, looked down into the calm depths of Clarence Clifford's eyes with a glittering snakelike regard.

"So!" he muttered. "You think you can throw me off, do you? Well, caution, and it shall be one more life out with the tide."

Thus self-warmed the practiced duelist kept a careful guard and watched his opportunity.

But none seemed given him.

Clarence Clifford's sword met him at every point; he could not by strength or skill break down or throw him off his guard.

Suddenly, while he was still watching, Clarence made a feint, Lord Harcourt was a little too late and the supple steel had pierced another little hole and snapped his lordship's weapon in two.

The two seconds sprang between them, but some of Lord Harcourt's blood had flown and what remained was burning to revenge the lost.

"This is child's play, after all," he ground out, with slow and metallic distinctness. "It is too puerile; let us have some powder."

"No!" exclaimed Dalton, fiercely. "Blood has been drawn; the duel is over. You are satisfied, Col. Hawkesley?"

But the colonel was not, and looked from one to the other, Lord Harcourt stanching the two small holes in his arm, the younger man standing firm and immovable, his weapon crossed upon his arm.

"Well—" he said, but Lord Harcourt interrupted him. "We came for satisfaction," he said, "not a hollow farce. I demand satisfaction, and, by Heaven, I will have it!"

"Never fear, my lord," rang out the clear, haughty tones of his opponent. "I but wait your weapon."

"Give me the pistols," said Lord Harcourt, striding himself to the case.

But Col. Hawkesley got them, and he and Dalton examined them.

"They are loaded," said he. "Is your man ready, sir?"

"He is," said Dalton.

"Then place him, if you please," said the colonel, politely.

Dalton measured out the distance, and Clarence Clifford took up his position, Dalton whispering as he did so: "Mind, he will murder you—it is murder. But as a last chance, aim at the pistol hand."

Clarence Clifford nodded, and Col. Hawkesley took out the white handkerchief.

"When I let it fall, gentlemen," he said.

"One, two—"

Before the word "three" could be pronounced, a woman's shriek startled the colonel into silence, the handkerchief remained firm in his grasp, and Lord Harcourt turned swiftly to see whence the cry proceeded.

The lady to whom Clarence Clifford had heard him speaking in the ante-room ran swiftly towards them, and catching Lord Harcourt's pistol arm stood panting for breath.

"Thank Heaven!" she cried. "It is not too late!"

"No," sneered Lord Harcourt, savagely. "You are in time to see the fight. For Heaven, I thought it was your lordship's scream. Hawkesley, put up the handkerchief."

"No!" shrieked the lady. "I will not have his blood shed for me. Oh, sir," and she sprang to Clarence Clifford's side and catching his arm looked up into his face. "For Heaven's sake, desist; he will kill you."

"Stand aside," shouted Lord Harcourt. "Hawkesley, have the goodness to take Lady Melville away. I will give the word."

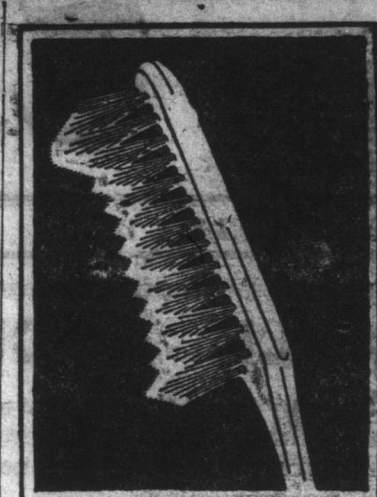

The colonel, all a throb for the coming bloodshed, advanced and with a firm hand was about to take her from Clarence Clifford's arm, but he stopped him with uplifted hand and beckoned Dalton.

"Give the lady your arm, Dalton," he said, and his voice shook. "Madam be patient and strong for a moment."

Dalton by using as little force as possible, drew her aside, shrieking and struggling, her hands before her eyes.

The colonel resumed the handkerchief, gave the words, "One, two, three," dropped the speck of white, and two reports rang out sharp and spiteful on the thick, misty air.

A dull thud followed, and Dalton, loosing his hold of Lady Melville, sprang forward and knelt beside the form of Clarence Clifford.

Five things you should know about your tooth brush

- 1 Is it made of the best bristles the world produces?
- 2 Are the bristles serrated (saw-toothed), and set in a curve to fit against all your teeth, and to reach the crevices between?
- 3 Does it have a large end tuft, and a properly curved handle so that the end tuft can reach and clean back teeth?
- 4 Will it keep germs, tartar, food debris, and other unclean substances off your teeth?
- 5 Is it fully guaranteed?

When your tooth brush is a Propy-lactic, you can answer all of those five questions correctly. The Propy-lactic Tooth Brush has for more than forty years been the standard, correctly designed tooth brush for keeping teeth clean, white and beautiful.

The Cosmos

Professor Shapley, dealing in Harper's Magazine with the size of the universe, says:

The prevailing conception of the physical universe has gradually evolved in close correlation with the mental evolution of man. To the primitive man the cosmos, of course, was anthropocentric—a natural depiction from the circularity of the horizon and the concentric character of the dome of heaven. At a subsequent stage of intellectual progress the universe was, no doubt, centred in restricted areas on the surface of the Earth rather than in the individual, and man adopted a geocentric or topocentric idea of the world. In this later stage the cosmos was perceived to be larger than formerly; and with each subsequent step in the widening of mental horizon, greater physical dimensions have been found. To Ptolemy and his school the universe was no longer geocentric but geocentric; and since the time of Copernicus the Sun, as the dominating body of the solar system, has been considered to be at or near the center of the stellar domain. We have in general accepted the heliocentric view of the universe for the last four centuries.

The researches of recent times have again changed the conception of the scale of the visible universe, and of the position of its centre. Neither the individual, nor his abode, nor his earth, nor his sun has now the dignity of a central place. For one thing, the solar system is slightly to the north side of the central plane of the Milky Way and is increasing the distance from that plane as time goes on. In addition, as previously noted, we are at least six hundred centuries of light-travel from the central region of the Milky Way. (A light year—the distance which a ray of light will travel in one year—is about six trillion miles.)

NERVES AND FAINTING SPELLS

Sent Woman to Bed. Great Change After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sarnia, Ontario.—"After my girlie was born I was a wreck. My nerves were so terrible for words and I simply could not stand or walk without pains. I suffered with fainting spells until I was no longer any good for my household duties and had to take to my bed. The doctor said I should have an operation, but I was not in a fit condition at that time. My neighbor said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' I am sure it will do you good and will save those doctor's bills." So I was advised by my husband to try it after I told him about it. I am very thankful to say that I was soon able to take a few hours for a while as rooms were so quiet at that time. My baby is a beautiful girl and I have not yet had an operation, thanks to your medicine. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to a few people I know and they all think it is good. It has done me good and I feel and look a different person. These last few months and I could not be without a bottle of your medicine in the house. I have used this letter as you see it, as I should be only too glad for every word as I have to know what it has done for me."—Mrs. ROBERT G. McNEED, R. R. No. 2, Sarnia, Ontario.

A recent canvass of women users of the Vegetable Compound report 98 out of 100 received beneficial results. C

British Mine Owners Against 4 Months of a Sett

A WET OR DRY

A despatch to-day says a controversy has arisen over the question whether entertainments in honor of States Fleet should be liquor, prohibitionary law of the United States, but public opinion regarding customary decision will probably be in favor of Admiral commandant.

THE DISCUSSION OF

A conference of the mine owners' Federation is discussing the agreement of 1924, which they say the owners assume to be an extension of an even hour to an eight hour principle of the law that a general rule no longer be changed by agreement, but only by reducing the higher paid men, and of this nature will be a special circumstance to special circumstances in districts. British Miners Determined to Resist Mine Owners Proposals -- German Plotters Against Trotsky Sentenced to Death-- 4 Months Strike in N.S., Shows no Sign of a Settlement.

A WET OR DRY RECESSION.

LONDON, July 3.
 A despatch to-day to the Daily Mail says a controversy is raging here over the question whether the official entertainments in honor of the United States fleet should include alcoholic liquors, prohibitionists contend the dry law of the United States should rule, but public opinion wavers regarding customary hospitality. The decision will probably be left to the Admiral commanding the visiting fleet.

THE DISCUSSION OF A NEW AGREEMENT.

LONDON, July 3.
 A conference of the delegates of the Miners' Federation will to-day discuss the mine owners' proposals for replacing the agreement of May 15th, 1924, which they recently denounced. The owners assume men will not consent to an extension of the present seven hour to an eight hour day. The basic principle of the new proposals is that a general minimum wage will no longer be chargeable against the proceeds of industry as under the expiring agreement, but will operate only by reducing the wages of the higher paid men, and that adjustments of this nature will be made according to special circumstances in different districts. Thus both railwaymen and miners are obliged now to negotiate on the basis of reduction in wages.

GERMAN PLOTTERS AGAINST TROTSKY SENTENCED.

MOSCOW, July 3.
 The Supreme Court yesterday sentenced to death Dr. Karl Kindermann, Max Von Ditmar, and Theodore Volzsch, three Germans charged with plotting against the lives of Leon Trotsky, M. Stalin and other Bolshevik leaders.

BRITISH MINERS' DELEGATES RE- JECT OWNERS' PROPOSALS.

LONDON, July 3.
 Miners' delegates from all the coal fields in the country meeting at a private conference of the Miners' Federation to-day decided to resist the mine owners proposals for lower wages and for an extension of the present seven hour day to an eight hour day.

FRANCE AND HER DEBT TO BRITAIN.

PARIS, July 3.
 France's intention to renew discussion of her debt to Great Britain is understood to have been expressed by Foreign Minister Briand in a communication he despatched yesterday to Right Hon. Austin Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, acknowledging Great Britain's recent Note suggesting an offer by France for settling the debt. M. Briand is said to have reminded Great Britain that French experts went to London in March to go over the technical points connected with a settlement with the British treasury, but that changes in the French Government interrupted the proceedings. M. Briand made it known that he had instructed the French Ambassador in London to get in touch with the British treasury to ascertain what procedure would be agreeable.

FRANCE CONSIDERS U. S. DEBT.

PARIS, July 3.
 The French Government has decided to send a mission to the United States with the object of reaching an agreement with the Debt Funding Commission relative to the payment of France's debt. The plan was approved by the Council of Ministers to-day and it is taken for granted that the Cabinet at full session to-morrow will give its formal assent. Foreign Minister Briand has asserted that the mission will start as soon as possible, but Finance Minister Caillaux's pre-occupation with grave financial problems has caused September to be mentioned as the most likely time. The magnitude of the burden is emphasized by the newspapers which calculated that the debt including $400,000,000 for army stocks on which France is paying $20,000,000 in annual interest, amounts with accrued interest at five per cent. to $1,000,000,000 paper francs.

SANTA BARBARA, July 3.

The second shock came at 10.21 a.m. and was less violent than the first and lasted only two seconds. No serious damage was done. The third shock was felt at 10.41 a.m.

SANTA BARBARA, July 3.

Santa Barbara citizens to-day went about the work of digging out from under the earthquake debris. Most of the city streets were lighted last night. The damage to the city is estimated at $11,000,000.

THE STRIKE SITUATION.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 3.
 The United Mine Workers' previous offer to the Minister of Labor to replace all maintenance men in the Nova Scotia coal mines of the Besco Corporation, if so requested, stands, according to the District Executive, as stated to-night. A controversy through official statements is taking place between the Corporation and the miners as to the responsibility for the lack of maintenance at No. 6 colliery, each blaming the other. Up to midnight no disorders or burnings were reported in Cape Breton since last night. The military police are maintaining the customary vigilance in all possible areas. These were the main features in the struggle between the Corporation and their miners which is now nearing four months of actual shut down of work. The Provincial Police made three arrests to-day at Dominion No. 1, for alleged contraventions of the N.S. Temperance Act. The enquiry into the death of William Davis, miner, in the fight at New Waterford on June 11th, between the miners and the Corporation Police, was adjourned for the second time to-day until next week.

COAL SITUATION.

MONTREAL, July 3.

 Great Britain—The British coal mine owners' offer has been rejected by the miners. The Government will intervene if the miners and owners reach a deadlock.

CANADA—Twelve thousand miners in Nova Scotia have been on strike for twelve months. Alberta miners have virtually declared a strike.

The Thumb

THE GREATEST FACTOR IN CIVILIZATION.

Are we not proud of our high state of civilization, and the great advance in culture we human beings have made since Adam and Eve? I should say we are, and rightly so.

Comparing mankind with his forbears the Cave-man and the Treeman, or his cousins the Lemar and the Spider monkey we are bound to admit with pardonable pride, that undoubtedly on many points we are superior, but many of us do not know why.

Ask the man-in-the-street "what is the greatest reason for man's obvious supreme position in the animal world," and you will be told "because man has an immortal soul," or that "man has certain reasoning advantages." It's like a child being given the reply, "because I pressed the button," to his query of "Why does the bell ring."

Many savants including the late Anatole France declare that the prime factor in raising the status of man above the tend of the brute, is the simple thumb, that familiar fifth appendix on the extremities of our arms. And if we examine into this hypothesis we will find it is not as foolish as it seems at first.

It is quite plain to everyone that the human hand, minus the thumb is perfectly useless, and even if mankind possessed the soul and reason power, simultaneous with the arrival of the first examples of our species on earth, what good would those blessings do for him, without the use of his hand, without his thumb?

Any of the fingers could be spared.

In preference to the thumb, for bereft of it, we can neither pull, draw, grasp, nor manipulate in any way as we do to-day. In fact without it, mankind would perhaps not be existent at the present moment.

Some apes and monkeys, such as the Gorilla, Chimpanzee and Orang-Outang, possess hands nearly similar to our own, but in the fact that the thumb lies at a different angle to the first fingers, and that the fingers are much longer, and the thumb smaller in proportion, they are not of such importance, because a monkey's hand is too clumsy, and quite disproportionate to use in the way a man's may. In fact the only real use for a monkey's hand is for raising food to its mouth or hanging from trees.

The peculiar and unique relationship between the thumb and the rest of the fingers and hand of a human being, has made such arts as writing possible, hence reading and hence the intelligence, from whence cometh the knowledge of the soul. "Large oaks from tiny acorns grow," says the poet; to-day we can say thanks to the wonderful thumb, we have our civilization.

Dodge Brothers Set New Record

Deliveries and Production Exceeded Best Previous Week in History.

Dodge Brothers have been establishing new high records continuously for several months, as compared with similar periods for previous years, but the record of the week ending April 11 is the best in the company's history. With retail deliveries aggregating more than 7,000, an average of more than 1,300 each production day, the best previous week was surpassed by several hundred cars. New retail orders exceeded the corresponding week of 1924 by 1,000, or approximately 19.7 per cent.

Although Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are now being built at the rate of 1,100 a day, both deliveries and new orders are some 200 a day in excess of production.

"Had dealers' stocks permitted, the number of deliveries for the record week would have been even greater," said John A. Nichol, Jr., Vice-President in Charge of Sales. "It is not a spurt, but a steady, healthful climb."

No Thoroughfare

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—I feel called upon to ask those whose duty it is to regulate motor traffic in the city, to prevent the passing of cars from LeMarchant Road to Freshwater Road and vice versa, through the thoroughfare between the Park and Miss Corbett's residence.

The corner at the junction of this thoroughfare and Freshwater Road is "blind." Pedestrians are constantly passing this corner, and children, especially, on whose behalf this note is written, are continually running, not walking, round there, heedless of danger.

That there has not been an accident hitherto is due solely to Providence and not to the motorist. I have seen cars pass through there at excessive speed, often without the warning sound, and some of them actually skid the corner.

Cars can just as conveniently pass around the east end of the park from one street to the other, in sight of any one, whether on pleasure bent or otherwise, and no time need be lost.

Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor, I remain,

Yours truly,
PARENT.

"Her Market Value" Opens Monday

Agnes Ayres Does Splendid Work in Screen Version of London Stage Play.

Gripping drama, sparkling comedy and intimate peeps into the lives of members of the smart set are closely interwoven in "Her Market Value," a Paul Powell Production starring Agnes Ayres and featuring Anders Randolf, which comes to the Nickel Theatre Monday.

"Her Market Value" is an adaptation by Olga Frintziou of Frances Nordstrom's stage play of the same name which has been running for over a year at one of the theatres in London. Though it is one of the greatest successes that Britain has ever known it has never been produced on the stage in this country, so local playgoers will be given an opportunity to pass judgment on it before the "first night" of Broadway.

The action of "Her Market Value" centers around Manhattan's spending class. Its principal character is Nancy Dumont, widow of a suicide stock broker who has left her penniless and in debt. To keep her from want and the appalling knowledge of her late husband's fortunes, three male friends, two of them married and the other an unsuccessful suitor for her hand, make a pool of forty thousand dollars and turn it over to her as a legacy.

It is difficult to imagine the outcome of this extraordinary situation but it is sufficient to keep the interest keyed up to the highest pitch until the last foot of film has been unreeled.

A New Plan for Traffic Laws

It is Stops, Not Speeds, that Matter.

(By H. W. SLAUSON, M.E.)

How large is a crowd? That depends upon where it is; fifty people might be a crowd in a small room, whereas five thousand would scarcely fill some auditoriums.

So the question of the safe speed at which to drive a car depends upon the same as the rate of travel. This has been realized to a certain extent by our law makers who have specified in some instances that speeds of from thirty to thirty-five miles are permissible in the open country, and speeds of fifteen, twenty and twenty-five in cities, towns and villages.

But such laws, at best, are only a superficial attempt to remedy the evil of reckless driving. Speed in itself can no more be a criterion of carelessness, without taking attendant conditions into consideration, than can a uniform "living wage" be made to apply to all sections of the country and to all strata of families. No one would attempt to specify, for example, that one thousand dollars is a sufficient annual sum with which to support a family, without taking into consideration whether such family is large or small or is to be raised in a rigorous climate where fuel and clothing are important items of expenditure or in the sunny south where such outlays are not necessary.

And yet, is it not just as illogical to say that speeds in excess of thirty miles per hour on an open country road represent presumptive evidence of carelessness, and not to take into consideration whether that road is slippery or dry, whether the car is equipped with good or bad brakes and whether the driver can obtain an unobstructed view for a sufficient distance in advance to permit such speed?

What we really intend to do when enacting speed laws is to insure that the driver will have the car under control at all times. Adequate control of the car means the ability to bring the vehicle to a dead stop within a short distance of the danger line.

For example, a car may be considered to be driven with due care if it can be stopped within four or five hundred feet on an open country highway on which other vehicles, pedestrians or any obstruction can be seen at least one thousand feet ahead of the car. On the other hand, a car, traveling a school street, on which a child might dart into the roadway thirty feet ahead, should be driven at such speed that it may be stopped within fifteen feet—and all of this regardless of the rate at which the speedometer may say that the car was traveling.

It will be noted that I have made the stopping distance equal to one-half of the distance between the car and the place of the danger. This is not only to give a "bride builder's factor of safety" but also to provide for the inevitable lag which occurs during the mental processes necessary to observe the danger and to apply the brakes. Experiment has proved that at least two-fifths of a second is required to remove the foot from the accelerator pedal and apply it to the brake. The danger may not be mentally translated as such for another second, and the action of the foot might not be instantaneous and positive when a driver is under the stress of high-speed travel.

Two Seconds Delay.

It is certainly not too much to assume, therefore, that two seconds may elapse between the appearance of the danger and the effective functioning of the brakes at the wheel. During these two seconds a car driven at fifty miles an hour will have traveled practically one hundred and fifty feet before it begins to slow down. Charts, which we see published frequently by a well known brake-lining manufacturer, indicate that two-wheel brakes, in good condition should serve to bring a car to a dead stop within two hundred and thirty-one feet when traveling at fifty miles an hour. This distance, added to the one hundred and fifty already mentioned, amounts to nearly four hundred feet, which may be taken as the distance required to bring a car to a stop under average conditions and when traveling at fifty miles an hour. Almost instantaneous brain and muscular functioning and the use of highly efficient brakes might cut this distance in half under the best of conditions. But the higher figure represents the day-in and day-out average of the majority of cars. It is this with which we must deal.

The action of brakes is merely to absorb the momentum of a heavy moving mass, as represented by the car. Momentum, in a horizontal direction, depends upon two factors; weight and speed. For ordinary purposes mass may be considered the same as weight.

Now a law which employs speed as the sole criterion of carelessness driving and which makes no differentiation between good and bad brakes, between smooth or non-skid tires, and between dry or wet or icy pavements, evidently fails in its purpose of promoting maximum safety of driving. If the cure were impossible or were worse than the disease, we would have no criticism to make, but the remedy is so simple and can take into consideration so easily and automatically the various conditions which we have mentioned as affecting the safety of car operation, that we marvel that seventeen million cars are still governed in their activities by such antiquated laws as to permit, "Twenty-five miles an hour, Your Honor," "Twenty-five dollars fine, Mr. Defendant," to be the stereotyped sound issuing from thousands of court rooms.

So long as it is the inability to stop in time which is the cause of most accidents and the reason for all speed laws, let us go directly to the source of the trouble. Let us require that every car shall be driven only at such a rate that it may be brought to a complete standstill within specified distances; these distances varying with country and city driving conditions much as do the variable speed rates now permitted. We would stipulate, for example, two hundred feet as the required stopping distance on an open country road; fifty feet in some sections of the city; even fifteen or twenty feet in the more congested portions. We could mark all school streets as "ten foot zones" indicating that on such streets the motorist must have his car under such control at all times that it can be brought to an absolute stop within ten feet after the danger has been noted or after a prescribed signal has been given.

One of the principal values of such a system is that it would take into consideration, absolutely and automatically, all conditions then prevailing which would affect the stopping ability of the car or of the driver in question. On a slippery road and without chains, the driver would need to exercise much greater care and would dare drive, possibly, at only a quarter of the speed that would permit stopping within the same distance under good conditions on dry roads. The design and condition of the braking mechanism would represent, also, a vital factor in determining the speed at which the car might be operated

Accordingly, the momentum of a car varies directly as the car's weight and as the square of the speed. The mathematical formula is:

$$I \text{ equals } MV \text{ squared}$$

In which I equals the momentum, M equals the mass (or weight) of the car and V equals the speed.

Since it is momentum which tends to keep the car going and which must be absorbed, by the brakes or otherwise, before the car can be stopped, it will be seen that, given the same retarding effect, a car weighing four thousand pounds will require double the braking effect to be brought to a stop as that necessary for a car weighing but two thousand pounds.

By the same formula, we observe that if we double our speed, we increase the stopping distance required, not by twice, but by four times. And if we are traveling, for example, at thirty miles an hour, we will need nine times the distance in which to stop that would be necessary if we were traveling at only ten miles an hour.

Now, although it is very evident from the above that speed exerts a tremendous influence on the effort required to stop a moving automobile, the factors of brake condition, driving ability and nature of the road surface are equally important. However, except insofar as some motor vehicle laws require periodic brake inspection, safety and care in driving are almost entirely translated, in the public mind and in the law, into miles per hour. There is no other reference to the really vital factor of "how quickly can the car be stopped."

Not only that, but, in order to avoid the possibility of unfair persecution of the automobilist, the laws of many states make the wise provision that evidence must be presented to indicate that the offending motorist exceeded the speed limit for a sustained distance of one-eighth of a mile in the city or one-quarter of a mile in the open country. Of course, one of the purposes of this provision is to enable the motorist to overtake a slow lumbering vehicle ahead of him by means of a short burst of speed which will keep him on the wrong side of the road for a minimum period of time.

The usual means for enforcing the speed laws is the "motorcycle cop." The motorcycle is a two-wheel vehicle. As such it is not as steady on its legs as is its four-wheel prey. This means that during wet and snowy weather, when speeding becomes most dangerous, the motorcycle enforcement officer must suspend activities. In consequence, during certain summer weather when driving is safest because stopping conditions are best, arrests for minor violations of the speed ordinance are most numerous. On the other hand, in wet or freezing weather, when even speeds well under the allowable limit are most dangerous, there are but few arrests or summons for careless driving.

Twenty-Five Miles—Twenty-Five Dollars.

Now a law which employs speed as the sole criterion of carelessness driving and which makes no differentiation between good and bad brakes, between smooth or non-skid tires, and between dry or wet or icy pavements, evidently fails in its purpose of promoting maximum safety of driving. If the cure were impossible or were worse than the disease, we would have no criticism to make, but the remedy is so simple and can take into consideration so easily and automatically the various conditions which we have mentioned as affecting the safety of car operation, that we marvel that seventeen million cars are still governed in their activities by such antiquated laws as to permit, "Twenty-five miles an hour, Your Honor," "Twenty-five dollars fine, Mr. Defendant," to be the stereotyped sound issuing from thousands of court rooms.

So long as it is the inability to stop in time which is the cause of most accidents and the reason for all speed laws, let us go directly to the source of the trouble. Let us require that every car shall be driven only at such a rate that it may be brought to a complete standstill within specified distances; these distances varying with country and city driving conditions much as do the variable speed rates now permitted. Electrically Cooked Food

HERE is illustrated a small compact Electric Range on which can be cooked the largest meal.

Electrically cooked food is more healthful than food cooked in any other way. The natural juices of vegetables and meats are condensed by electric cooking and all that which nature has grown in them for man's digestion and assimilation remains.

Ask Westinghouse dealers to show you Range 5-15. Notice its compact, sturdy appearance.

without danger of violating the stopping provision.

The operating machinery for such a method of speed regulation would be much simpler and more effective than that employed at present. Quibbling over the inspection and accuracy of speedometers and disputes as to the distance over which the speed-limit had been exceeded would be avoided.

FEET ACHE?
 Rub them well with Minard's and know what real foot comfort means.

MINARD'S LINIMENT

All that might be necessary for proof of careless driving would be a tape line and possibly a piece of chalk. No expensive motorcycles or high-speed cars are needed, nor any highly trained body of "motorcycle cops." Every patrolman could produce the necessary evidence of careless driving.

Suppose, for example, that a patrolman, roundsman or other ordinary police officer on foot is walking on what is known as a "twenty-foot street"—this meaning that any vehicle driven on that street must be operated at such a speed that it can be brought to a dead stop within twenty feet. The pavement is wet. The policeman sees a car approaching at what he considers to be a dangerous speed. He need only step to the curb, raise his hand and blow his whistle. If the motorist is able to bring his car to a complete stop within twenty feet from the point at which the prescribed signal was given, he has demonstrated that he was driving carefully within the meaning of the law. It is inconsequential whether his speed was ten or twenty miles an hour, whether he used chains or non-skid tires or whether his car was provided with two or four-wheel brakes. Those matters are entirely his own business. He has passed the test.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

A Slide Convicts of Carelessness. If, on the other hand, when the motorist hears or sees the signal to stop and applies his brakes, he finds that his car slides for thirty feet, it is obvious that he was driving "carelessly" in that his speed was too high, his tires too smooth or his brakes insufficiently effective to bring the car to a stop within the prescribed distance. Whatever the cause, he should suffer the consequence.

Such a system would not necessarily dispense entirely with the services of the motorcycle enforcement officer. It would, in fact, add to his efficiency in apprehending the careless driver. High-speed motorcycles may be used to overtake those who ignore the signal to bring their cars to a stop. Furthermore, no motorist will dare deliberately break the speed law through his present trust in the effectiveness of his rear-view mirror. As long as the motorist can obtain a clear view of the road ahead and as long as he knows that he must be chased by a duly constituted officer with a properly inspected speedometer for a distance in some instances of at least one-quarter of a mile, many a driver who should be apprehended is never "caught in the act."

As long as we have automobiles, we will have the eternal discussion of what constitutes a safe driving speed. There is but little room for argument, however, as to what constitutes a safe stopping distance. This stopping distance represents the entire basis on which safety depends.

Why not adopt the plan of using this stopping distance, not a speed limit, as the sole method of judging the carelessness of car operation?

REMEMBRANCE

"Silent we bow our heads, remembering
Those who went forth returning not again,
Young lives that knew no time beyond their spring,
Young eyes, long closed, that saw their duty plain;
A nation's splendid youth that gave its best,
Ungrudging, unreckoned, in the faith that we,
Freely by its labours would not fall the test
Of perfect comradeship and unity."

To-morrow the minds of all will be occupied with thoughts of those young men who hastened eastward from these shores when duty called, but whose places in the ranks were vacant when the final muster was taken. The sorrow caused by these sacrifices is deep rooted, and although time has tended to make our grief less poignant, such an occasion as Remembrance Day cannot but renew our bereavement and regrets, even while we feel proud of their great achievement.

It would not, however, be well for us, for our country, or for the Empire, if The Day did nothing more than recall our grief, or give us an opportunity to do honour to the memory of those who fell. They died for a cause, and they died in vain, unless the torch which they carried has been caught as it dropped from their lifeless hands by those whom they defended.

"In such alone the glory shall survive
For which they fought. The bitter tongues that rail,
Urging the comrades of the past to strive,
Class against warring class shall not prevail.
The voice that spoke of late throughout the land
Was not of faction but an urgent call,
Bidding us work together hand in hand,
Each labouring for the greatest good of all."

Remembrance Day must, above all things, quicken us to a sense of our responsibility, whether it is in the smaller affairs of our everyday life—our household duties, our regular occupations, our civic obligations—or in the weightier affairs upon which depends the security of the Empire.

There are enemies at work to-day trying to undermine its foundations. Their methods are not those adopted in open warfare but are often concealed under the guise of friendship, and because they profess principles which seem to conform with our highest ideals, we are easily misled as to their nefarious intentions. Our soldiers fought a desperate and merciless enemy, but one whose intentions were declared and whose methods of warfare, while questionable at times, could generally be countered. The insidious foe that is intent upon the overthrow of all that we cherish calls for the exercising by us of even greater vigilance if his plans are to be defeated.

To-day we are apt to be lulled into a sense of security by the desire universally expressed to outlaw war, and we may perhaps be inclined to think that the responsibility of the individual has lessened with the conclusion of peace. It is only necessary to think for a moment of the problems which confront the statesmen everywhere to make us realize that the unity of the Empire, its progress, and in fact its very existence depend as much upon our individual efforts to-day as upon the courage and determination of those who fought and died in their defence.

"Those whom to-day we honour had no thought
Of selfish ease or shelter in the night,
But in the noblest battle that they fought
They triumphed over self in hell's despite.
Have we, their heirs, no sacrifice to yield,
No selfish prejudice to cast aside,
To prove us worthy, in a lesser field,
Of those high things for which they strove and died?"

THE COLOURS

To-morrow the Colours will be carried through the streets of the city. As they pass by let one and all remember what they signify, and fail not to pay them that simple token of respect that is their due, the salute in the case of a soldier in uniform, or the raising of the hat in the case of a civilian.

The omission of this tribute in the past has not been due, we need scarcely say, to indifference or disrespect, but rather to the fact that many are unfamiliar with the practice which is customary elsewhere.

The Flag represents all the proudest traditions and achievements of our race; it is symbolic of duty well done, of sacrifice, and of truth and honour, and as such it is sacred.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

July 3rd.—A most amazing thing this day is two men coming into the port this morning are found to be of the crew of a Lunenburg vessel, and their tale that they did drift away in their dory while on the Banks, and saw no land in four days till they did sight Cape Spear this dawn. But Lord, what hardy fellows they must be that they should survive such an experience, and no food with them all the time they were adrift.
Meeting old Mr. Egges this day, he do tell me how many of our health troubles these days are due to the kind of clothes we do wear. Indeed, he do think highly of red flannel, which, he tells me, all did wear in his day. This amuses me greatly and I do tell him this tale of red flannel:
Customer: "You told me that these red flannels would not fade or shrink."
Clerk: "Yes, and have you been having trouble, Sir?"
Customer: "Trouble? This morning when I put the shirt on my wife asked me what I was doing wearing her pink coral necklace."
Home all this night with a great ache of my head which troubles me mightily.

New Grenfell Mission Ship
The trim steam yacht Strathcona II, acquired by the Grenfell Association for service on Labrador, arrived in port this morning from Falmouth, via the Azores. The Strathcona II, formerly a private steam yacht, is 40 tons register and can steam 10 knots. She is 95 feet long, 16 feet beam, and carries a crew of 13 men. The officers are as follows:—Captain, A. R. T. Kirby; Chief Mate, A. F. Round; Chief Engineer, C. J. Newman; Purser, J. D. Figg; Wireless Operator, C. J. Crewe; and the boat's G. W. Way, is a native of St. John's, and this is his first visit here in 27 years. The ship left Falmouth on June 11th and ran to Vigo, Spain, and thence to Fxal in the Azores. Coming across the Atlantic a heavy gale was encountered, but though the ship was tossed about by the tempest she came through without sustaining any damage. The Strathcona has splendid accommodation, and is fitted with a first-class wireless outfit, which was donated free of charge by the Marconi Company. The ship is lying at Job's compass and sails northward early next week.

Injured Through a Fall

A resident of the Higher Levels appears to have met trouble last night while on his way home. When crossing Martin's Meadow, near LeMarchant Road, he is said to have accosted two men, and before he had time to realize his mistake, was thrown over a two-foot embankment, and received severe injuries about the face and head. After having been taken to his home by a passerby who had heard his cries, he was later examined by Dr. Donahue who ordered his removal to hospital.

Digby to be Withdrawn
From St. John's Route

The following clipping appeared in the Halifax Herald of June 28th: "A cable received by the Furness Withy Company announced that the Furness steamer Digby now in port would be taken off the Halifax-St. John's and Liverpool service. When the Digby sails for Liverpool via St. John's this evening she will not make another trip on this service."

It is currently reported that the Digby has been purchased by another shipping firm, which will operate between New York and the West Indies. It is also stated that the a.s. Sachem is also to be withdrawn from the Liverpool-St. John's-Halifax route and that the Furness Company propose to put on two other steamers of the size of the Newfoundland. The Lithuanian is mentioned as one of these ships. Her passenger accommodation will be reduced from 500 to the complement carried by the Newfoundland, so it is stated. The ship to replace the Digby is an oil burner of a speed of 17½ knots. She is twin screw and carries two funnels. If rumor is correct she will make her first trip here in September. Enquiries made at the Furness Withy Co.'s Office this morning failed to elicit any information concerning the replacement, although the report that the Digby was to be withdrawn was confirmed.

BOSTON, July 4.

One woman dead, two seriously injured, four others less seriously hurt, and five slightly injured; this was the toll at six o'clock this morning, following the sudden collapse of a five story building, housing the Pickwick Club, the scene of the early Fourth of July celebrations. One wall of the structure weakened by excavation of the adjoining property went down, leaving three standing. The roof and upper three stories crashed down upon the second floor where 120 to 200 men and girls were dancing, and carried that floor and the ground floor into the basement. The police estimated at nine o'clock that at least eight persons had lost their lives in the collapse. One unidentified girl was taken from the ruins and rescue workers reported seeing bodies of two other women and two men in the wreckage. It was believed others would be found as the work of clearing away the brick proceeded. Men and women, estimated at between 30 and 50, were buried beneath the wreckage. The building, formerly the Dreyfus Hotel, was in Boston's Chinatown in south end. Eighteen persons had been rescued alive, although some of them were so badly mangled and bruised that doctors at the city hospital expressed fear for their lives.

A Holiday Incident

(I.C.M.)

The contrast between country and city life is very marked, and though the distance of a country village from a city may not be great, yet the customs of the one are entirely opposite to those of the other.

This was impressed upon us in our ramblings of Wednesday last, when, with a party of eight, we motored along the rural byways of the South-coast, and in the vicinity of Mobile and Tor's Cove, we revelled in the glories of rushing rivers and mountain heights. We had everything in our favour, and for the time being we had dismissed all care, and our pleasure was increased by the good conditions of the roads. A good road, and a good car, and good companions have a lot to do with the enjoyment of a holiday outing. Thus we had the best of it, but as we sped along, and had just begun the descent of one of the long hills of the locality, we saw in the distance a slowly moving procession coming towards us.

To us, at such a time and place, a procession was the furthest thing from our thoughts, for we had left the city and its throngs far behind us. What could it be? Soon our musings were answered, and we saw that it was a funeral procession which claimed its share of the somewhat narrow road. With respect and reverence we slowed down and halted, and the engine ceased its vibration, and a solemn silence fell upon us—for were we not in the presence of death? The situation seemed peculiar. But a moment before we had abandoned all serious thoughts, and seemed to claim the full stretch of the hill and the whole width of the road for ourselves. We thought we had full right of way, but not so. The cortege of death had equal and greater rights than we had; hence our insignificance for the moment.

This we felt, for the roadway being narrow, the cortege passed closely to us, nor was there more than eighteen inches to spare between the hearse and the motor car. We say "the hearse," but not such as we of the city are accustomed. The hearse which claimed the road with us was but a small country dray, and the horse which drew it was of the same class. The coffin was untrimmed, but was recently covered with a blue fabric. On the coffin was laid a cross of almost equal length, and which the driver, who walked, raised as the cortege passed us. The cross was covered with the same material as the coffin. The driver's robe was solemnly impressive, and it reminded us that not all the traditions of our fathers are forgotten.

Some twenty-five men and lads comprised the funeral procession. We thought that perhaps it was some stranger who was being buried, but from the last man of the number who followed, we learned that it was one of the villagers—one of the fishermen. And so the procession slowly climbed the hill, where, towards the sea, the little cemetery is situated, and there with the fathers of the hamlet they laid their humble brother to rest.

The incident was so sudden, and so different from pleasure-seeking, that it set us thinking, hence our notes. There was not much display. It was all plain. It was village-like and natural. "No boast of heraldry, no pomp of pride," it was a becoming tribute to a humble life. It had nothing of what the world would call great. It was all sincere, nor did it admit of any of the tinsel of superficial society.

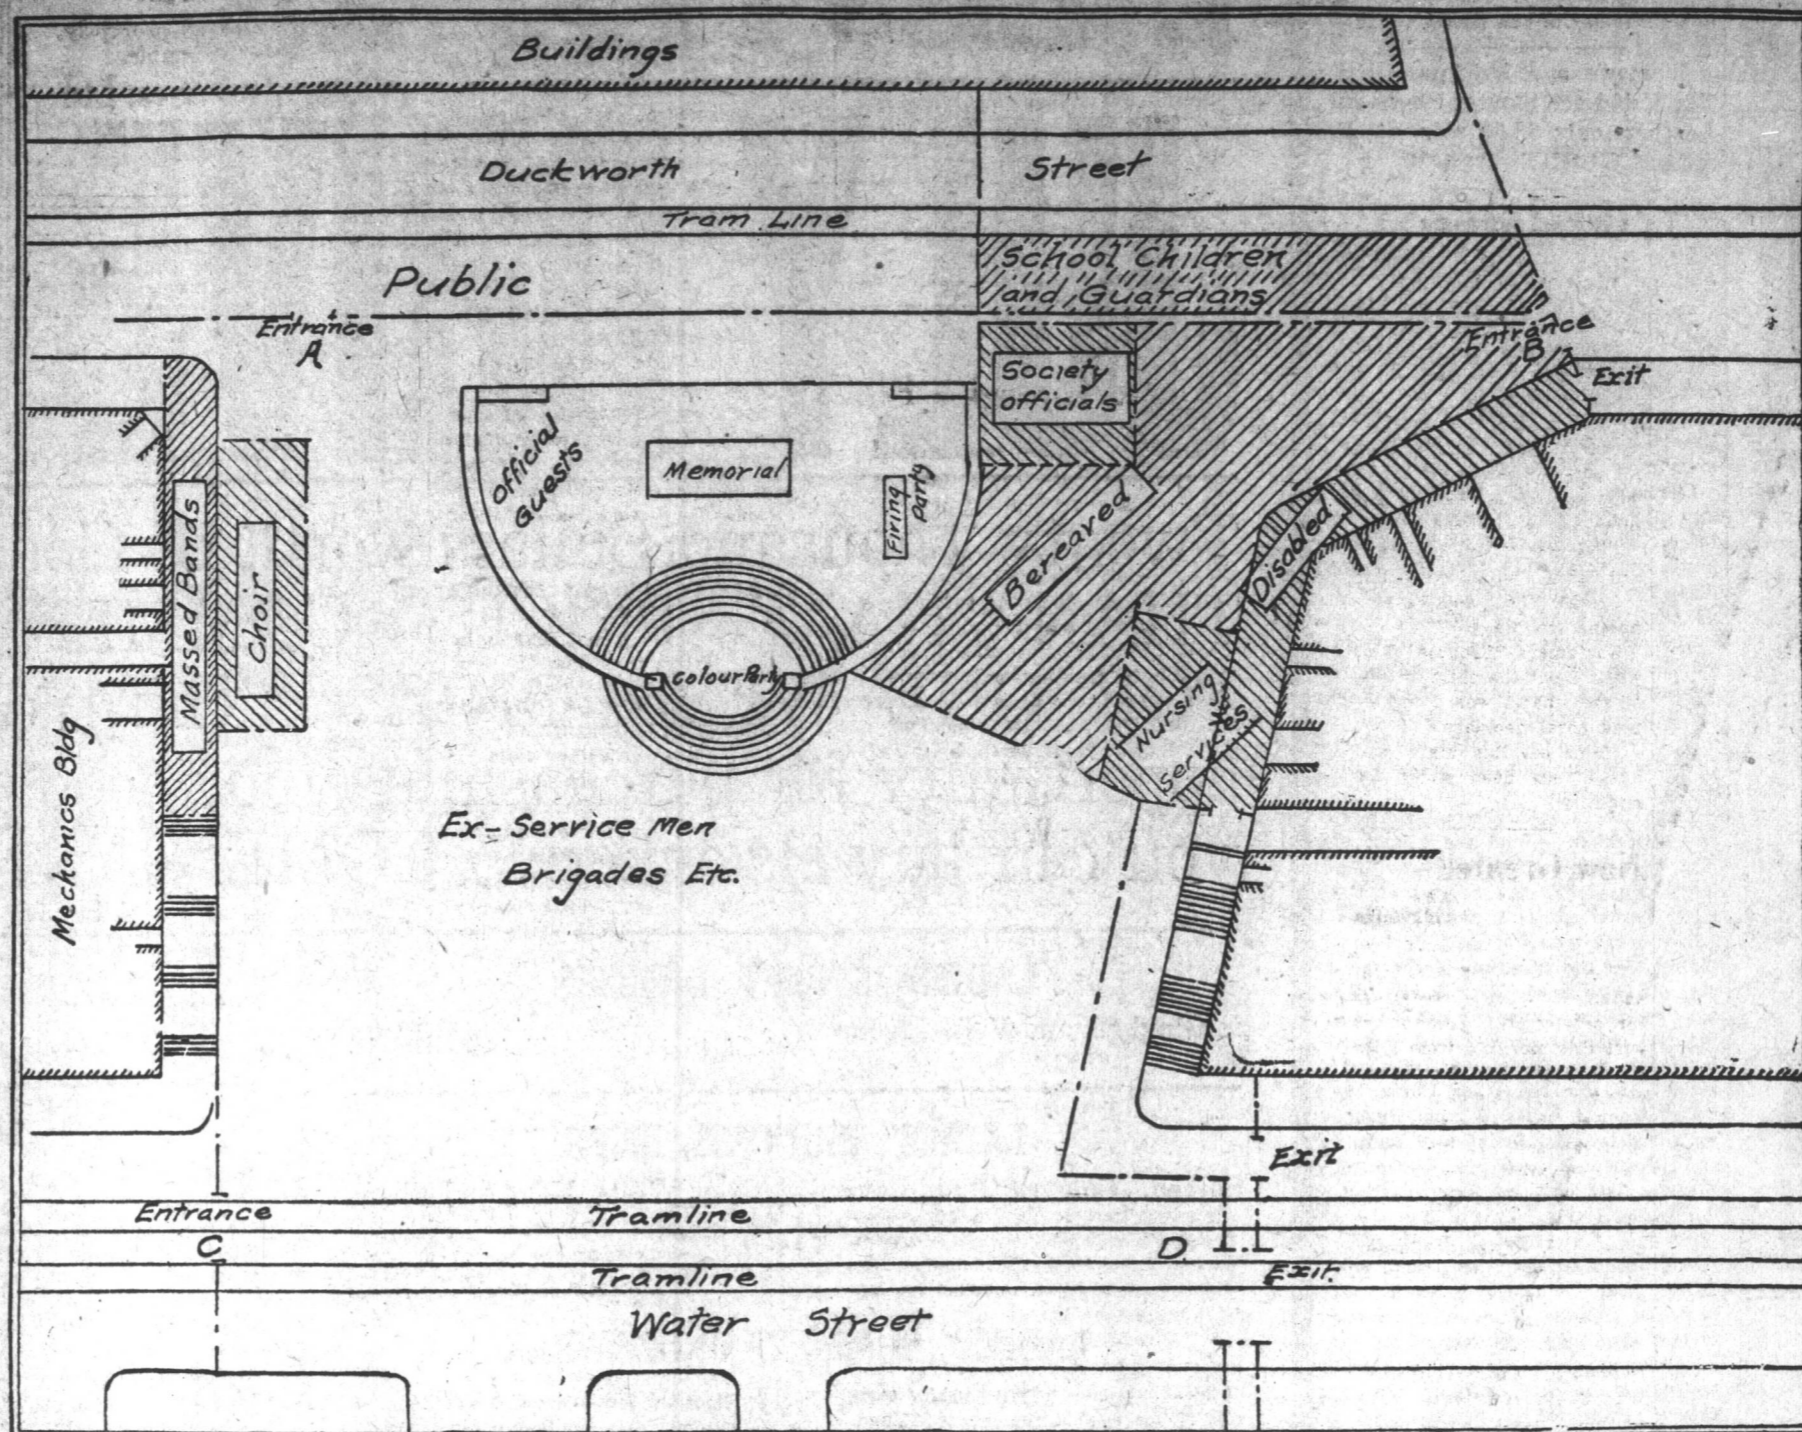

But it presented one feature which outshone all earthly greatness, and which imparts confidence and hope to the children of men. It was the cross. Only the cross. Not a gilded cross, nor a polished cross. It looked almost nude, but it was a cross all the same, and is an emblem of that life which lies beyond. We do not know why the driver raised the cross as the cortege passed our company, nor would we probably have noticed it only for his action. Perhaps it was slipping off his coffin, but it impressed us, and appealed to our better selves and sanctified the incident as far as we were concerned.

With the passing of the cortege we resumed our journey, and the panting of the engine called off our minds from the incident. But we had learned a lesson. We had had to stop, and whether we liked it or not, we had to wait. The unexpected had happened. (to be continued.)

God, Our Help in Ages Past

O God, our Help in ages past,
Our Hope for years to come,
Our Shelter from the stormy blast,
And our eternal Home!

Under the shadow of Thy throne
Thy Saints have dwelt secure;
Sufficient is Thine arm alone,
And our defence is sure.

Time like an ever-rolling stream,
Bears all its sons away;
They fly forgotten, as a dream
Dies at the opening day.

O God, our Help in ages past,
Our Hope for years to come,
Be Thou our Guard while troubles last,
And our eternal Home! Amen.

Ill and Unarmed

HINTON FLEW OVER HOSTILE JUNGLES.—PENETRATED 100 MILES UP THE BRANCA RIVER

Graphic details of obstacles overcome and perils braved by the Hamilton Rice Expedition in penetrating the Brazilian jungles nearly 1,000 miles to the furthestmost sources of the Branca River were told recently for the first time by Capt. A. W. Stevens, official photographer of the exploring party, who returned to New York Monday evening on the steamer Polynarp, with John W. Swanson, radio chief of the expedition.

It was a tale simply told by a gaunt, sun-blackened man in whose blood may still lurk a few of the fever germs that claimed the life of one of the adventurous white men and laid the bitter touch on practically all the others. To the grit of Walter Hinton, one of the NC-4 pilots and skipper of The World seaplane that flew from New York to South America, it paid particular tribute.

Hinton piloted the Curtiss Seagull flying boat, from which Capt. Stevens mapped the Branca River with the Fairchild aerial camera and made possible the ultimate success of the expedition. He was racked with the current malaria, nauseated, dizzy, but he stuck to his cockpit and flew to the head waters of the Branca—120 miles farther into the jungle than the last test explorers ever had been. The rest of the expedition, guided by Hinton and Stevens' maps, are now pressing on to this spot and will not return to North America before July.

Made Flight Unarmed.

Stevens spoke mostly of Hinton's pluck, but admitted the two of them had laid aside even their revolvers in order to carry more fuel and increase the distance they might fly over a country where they knew lurked hostile Indians with poison tipped arrows. They flew more than a mile high, fully aware that were they forced down into the stifling tropic heat of the valley and their motor should fail they would have to land and trust to the mercies of the savages.

"About all we could have done would have been to run for it or try to outswim them," he said, "but we didn't have to. We carried machetes of course, and an ax, but they were cut our way out of the jungle in case we were forced down."

The Rice expedition left Manaus last summer after the flying boat had been assembled in June and given its trials in July. The revolution in Brazil delayed the start for some time but the expedition "finally hopped on anyway," to use Stevens' words. Dr. Theodor Koch-Grunberg, German scientist, died at Vista Alegre.

The expedition traversed the Negro from its junction at Manaus with the Amazon to the place where its main branch becomes the Branca; followed there it becomes the Urucoara, at whose head on the river changes again like Parisian street to the Parima, whose headwaters is the much-alfresco stream's source.

At the latter spot the last gasoline depot was established by Dr. Charles Bull, former Harvard athlete and classmate of Dr. Rice, who was ahead of the main party with seven gallons of the precious fuel, travelling naked with the natives, living on the same food and being burned to almost their hue. He proved that a white man could live under the same conditions as an Indian.

See Marvellous Falls.

Hinton and Stevens flew on up to Parima over a five-mile gorge with the most marvelous series of water falls they had ever seen, their camera automatically clicking a record of the landscape unrolling beneath them. The stream finally petered out in the mountains across which lies the source of the Orinoco River and the turned back to the rendezvous where Dr. Bull awaited.

Before they did so, however, they discovered a hostile Indian settlement near the river's source and dropped parachutes with gifts of beads, fish hooks and other trinkets which they thought might establish friendly relations in advance of the coming of Dr. Rice with the main party.

This was March, the flight accomplishing in four hours what could not have been done by other means in two weeks.

Stevens and Hinton flew back over the river from Dr. Bull's outpost, established contact with the main expedition at Caxoeira Assel March, developed their films, and flew on to Boa Vista, where the plane is now being disassembled by Hinton for shipment to this country.

Repairing Streets

Near Memorial

The Council's employees were engaged this morning making some repairs to the surroundings of the National War Memorial due to the amount of vehicle traffic from Water Street to Duckworth Street the incline was badly torn up. Some macadam and gravel is being placed on the rough spots and being rolled. The operator found great difficulty in manoeuvring the steam roller over the incline.

BUT WHAT DOES.

"Happiness is relative and the possibility of ultimate adaptation to all conditions makes the degree of happiness enjoyed by each human being or as uniform; at all events the fact at material conditions are the first, high, if constant, cease to contribute directly to happiness must have been received by most people of ordinary human nature."—Ludovic.

Undoubtedly Mr. Ludovic is an optimist.

Or else his standard of ordinary human nature is very high.

There are few men who are content with the idea that desirable material conditions cause happiness; a few more widespread.

Who is the happiest person you know? The richest? No. And yet if you could discover an oil well in the backyard, or an imaginary rich uncle would die and leave you a few millions you are sure you really would be happy.

A Thumb-nail Sketch.
Here is a naive little paragraph from a letter from one of my most treasured Letter Friends who frequently lets a peep into her home life:

"I won third prize in that contest with an essay on 'What owning my own means to me.' I think that the reason I won was that I feel so strongly on the subject of the home."

It was $5. I also won $3 for a crossword puzzle. You see I have my little triumph though I am not what the world calls a successful person."

What a vivid thumb nail sketch of the little joys that make the ordinary life happy.

Can't you just imagine the postman bringing that letter and her excitement as she opens it, and her delight when she sees she is a winner, and the hundred things she at once thinks of that she will spend the check for, and her pride when himself comes home and she tells him about it?

Not One Bit.
Of course she feels that if she ever is a real author and gets $1,000 for a story she will be much happier. She won't be. Not a bit.

In one of the current magazines was an article on what the famous women of the theatre give up for their art. And in it occurs this pregnant sentence: "When the electric lights emblazoning her name have lost their thrill, the newspaper reviews of her performance have become stale and monotonous, the crowds who applaud and who rush back stage with extravagant words of admiration no longer signify a new sense of triumph, then is the time that she has begun to make the sacrifices for her art."

In other words, when the conditions have become constant, they no longer bring her happiness.

You Tell Me.
But if such things as these don't bring happiness what does, you may ask.

It's not exactly a new question. Nor one that anyone has succeeded in answering conclusively. But just the same it's fun to try. And so I will. But not to-day, if you please.

Grandmamas

By Lady Norah Bentinck.

"Young people aren't what they were."

How often you hear that on the lips of succeeding generations. But is the change as great as it seems? Everything has happened before and everything will happen again.

Life goes in cycles, and human beings are naturally reactionary. The father, whose one craze is his garden has a son whose only interest is aeroplanes. The missionary produces a dancer, the dancer a puritan.

The generation which revels in gamins, gallantry, and dissipation is often followed by a period of extreme rigidity. A century of Puritanism will never fail to cause the pendulum to swing violently in the opposite direction.

And, after all, it is largely a matter of fashion. Could the advent of jazz have shocked Early Edwardian ladies more than the revival of the waltz perturbed their grandmamas—grandmamas who had only just emerged from the tradition of the minuet and who never danced anything but quadrilles, gavottes, and an occasional schottische, which they performed with a fascinating demureness? And we remember how the waltz, when introduced from France by his sister, the Duchess of Suffolk and Brandon, sometime Queen of France, disturbed the chaste susceptibilities of Henry VIII.

The pendulum, as I have said, will swing back. We shall see—if we live—the shingled, careless, freedom-loving, devil-may-care maiden of today turn gradually into a thoughtful and more or less serious grandmama. From behind whatever spectacles may then be the fashion she will lament that "dear Elizabeth's girls aren't what we were in our young days," and, if she is a critic, she will sadly sigh, "Autres temps, autres mœurs," just as her mother did when she was gay and giddy.

Her metamorphosis will be gradual though, like all great changes. Laughing, pleasure-loving, inconstant youth turns imperceptibly into a staid, down, quiet, and perhaps a critical, old age, just as spring becomes winter through the gentle changes of summer and autumn.

But if, instead of being of a critical disposition, this grandmama possesses the rarer and better qualities of a philosopher, she will visualize the past gently to herself as she gazes into the fire, a wise smile will flit across her lips, and she will murmur to herself that wise French proverb, "The more it changes, the more it remains the same."

GETTING IN WRONG.

I used to borrow this and that, from neighbors here and there; I borrowed Johnson's Sunday hat, and Thompson's polar bear. When I went to a neighbor's door, to borrow worst or tea, I sometimes thought his face was sore, as he looked down on me. But I was always glad to lend whatever goods I owned; if things were needed by a friend, those things were promptly loaned. And as I journeyed west and north, my course seemed far from wrong; this thing of lending back and forth made like a grand sweet song. It evidenced good will to men, which is a priceless creed; and so I went to Jones again, and borrowed chicken feed. Then Jones remarked, in language terse, "I speak for neighbors all; we're tired of lending barbed wire fence, and cheese and codfish ball. Last evening, at the Blue Front store, we threashed this matter out, and we resolved to lend no more, to any chronic scout." "But if you come to me," I said, "to borrow churn or file, to ask for prunes or spoons of thread, you'd get them with a smile."

"But then we never go to you." This Jones skates made reply; "when we run out of glass or glue, a fresh stock do we buy. Man cannot have a string of friends who borrow all the time, who always, as through life they wand, are asking for a dime." The words of Jones, like precious seed, on fertile soil were thrown; I borrow no more chicken feed. I always have my own.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME.

B.L.S. 5; Star 0.
A fair attendance of spectators present at St. George's Field last night to witness the clash between B.L.S. and Star teams. The event was all that could be desired for all but the game proved one-sided and uninteresting, therefore the ways did not miss very much. B.L.S. teams had matters all their way from start to finish, a feature which was their excellent forward play, and before the final whistle they had netted five to their opponent's nil.
In the first half the Irish confined all to Star territory and after a minutes play, Eddie Phalen first blood. Seven minutes later increased the score with a scorching shot, and E. Phalen banged home No. 3 before the period closed. The second half was a repetition of the first, and had it not been for the splendid saving of the Star goalie, his team would have suffered a bad defeat. The Irish kept up a vigorous attack, but no further goals came until after twenty-two minutes of play, when H. Phalen found the net, on a pass. This was followed up a minute later, when E. Phalen was responsible for his team's final goal. There were little or no exciting moments throughout the game, and the final whistle blew, leaving the B.L.S. the victors by 5 goals to 0. Mr. H. Coultas refereed the game.

WEEKLY MEETING.

Regatta Committee.
The regular weekly meeting of the Regatta Committee took place in the T.A. Armoury last night, before a large attendance of members. After the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, the committee got down to business. Letters were read giving the names of those from whom Hickman's and Harvey's Mercantile crews will be selected, and from the Feildian Amateur and Intermediate crews will be selected. A matter which called for urgent attention was for the finding of ways and means to raise funds for the completion of improvements to the Lakeside. As already stated the funds of the Regatta Committee have been used up in connection with this work, and if the job is to be finished extra funds to defray the cost must be provided.

A proposition was made to have boxes at the approaches to the Lake so that all who would be at the Regatta could contribute any amount desired. This proposition was viewed from several angles and other suggestions to raise the funds were made and at length the proposition was left

Perpetual Motion Again

The old dream of perpetual motion is turning up once more, this time in the disguise of wonderful, recently discovered "atomic forces." By "radio engines," "vibration motors" and the like an inexhaustible source of power is supposed to be put on tap for the fortunate purchasers of these schemes and investors in their so-called securities.

Now the dangerous thing about such claims as this is that they are partly true; just true enough to attract some attention from persons who have a little knowledge of recent atomic discoveries. It is quite true, for example, that a quantity of radium may be sealed up in a vacuum with a small wind vane or some similar device and will then keep the vane moving, not, it is true, forever, but for perhaps two or three thousand years.

Practically this is of no importance. The radium costs a fortune and the energy slowly set free from it—which energy it is that moves the vane—is extremely small in amount. All the known radium in the world would not give off energy enough to run a small street motor. There is not the slightest evidence that any source of "atomic" or "vibrational" power will be discovered in the atoms of matter in general, or that the long-time motion which can really be attained by radium and similar chemical elements will ever have any practical value as a source of useful power.

The position of science is still what it has been for many decades. Perpetual motion, in the sense of a machine which will produce useful power out of nothing, is believed to be impossible. Make no investment, directly or indirectly, in any such machine or any such idea.

Earl Haig's Plea for Unity

OTTAWA, June 28.—(By Canadian Press)—Americans and Britishers from all parts of the world have buried with their dead in the cemeteries of France the memories of old mistakes. In the hands of France, of the United States and of the British peoples' primarily rest today the future peace and happiness of all countries. Thus spoke Field Marshal Earl Haig in his speech in Ottawa today, responding to the welcome of the Government of Canada and the City of Ottawa.

On his arrival here to preside over the meetings of the British Empire League of War Veterans, the leader of the British forces at the end of the war told the Canadian people that as the ambassadors of empire on the American continent they had a part to play in the destinies of humanity, and no less important than the part they had taken in the war. A link between the old world and the new, a bond between the hemispheres, Canada would always be the liaison between the English-speaking people of the North American continent, and help to work out the problems of the future along the lines of humanitarian principles and ideals which the United States and the British Empire had in common.

Premier King and his cabinet, Chief Justice Anglin, as representative of the Governor-General, civic officials and all the senior officers of the Navy and Army, the Air Force, the cadet services and most of the returned soldier's organizations headed today a reception of Parliament Hill in which many thousands took part.

A Deed of Daring

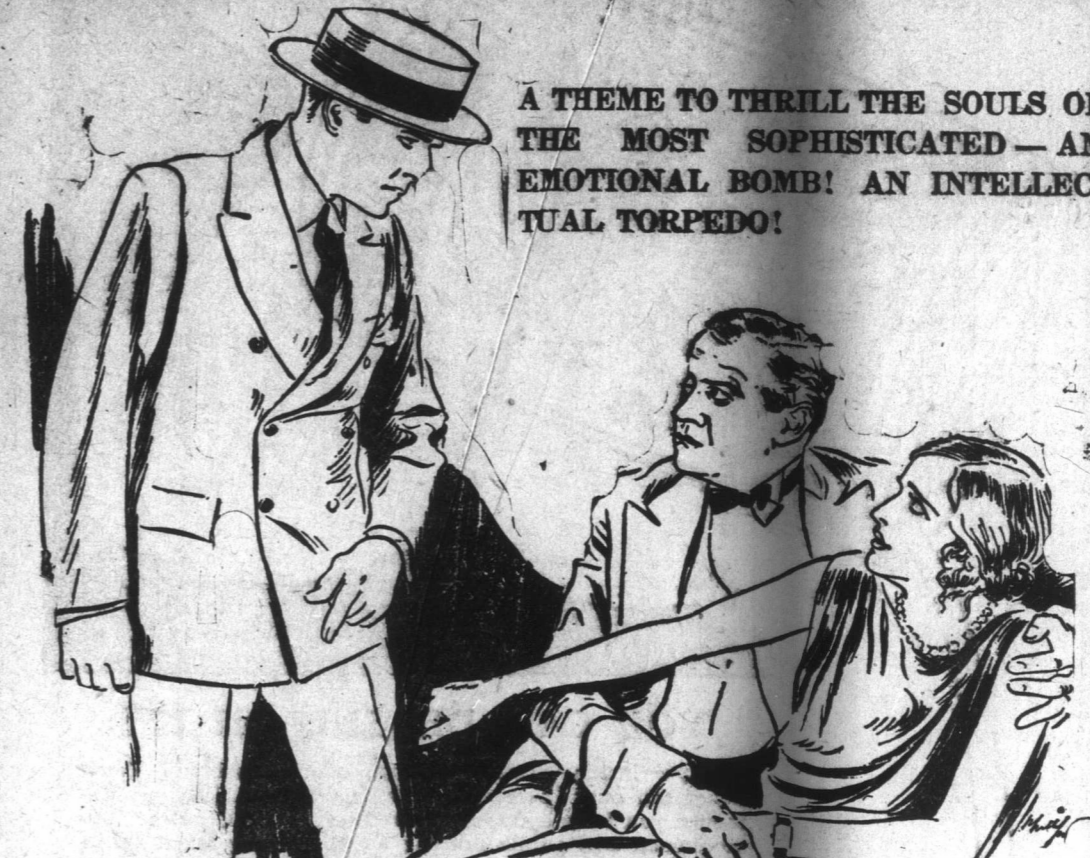

Constable Lowered Twice Down 60-ft. Well.

Twice a plucky constable was lowered down a 60-ft. well at Sheepscote, near Painswick, before he recovered the body of a five-year-old boy, Stanley John James. It appears that the boy's mother went to the well to draw some water, and while there deceased ran to her from the house. He spoke to her, and when about to turn round stumbled and fell head first down the well, which is over 60 feet deep, and contained six feet of water. Mrs. James at once raised the alarm, but neighbours who rushed to the well were apparently powerless to do anything. Half an hour later, however, P. C. Gay appeared on the scene, and lost no time in descending the well. Two men lowered the constable, who was clinging to the bucket, down the well. It was a perilous descent, but safely concluded. The constable, however, could not discover the body. He was then drawn to the top, and grappling irons were procured, and once again the constable made his descent into the well, and this time was successful in recovering the body and bringing it to the top.

"IF ALL HIS ENEMIES WERE DEAD."

How often to himself he said:
If all his enemies were dead
The world for him would glow with grace
And be indeed a happy place.

"If all his enemies were dead,
He'd rest untroubled in his bed!"
Oh, foolish man, who fails to see
He is himself an enemy.

One cannot think in bitterness
And happiness and peace possesses,
And this is something he should know,
It takes to men to make one foe.

If all his enemies were dead,
He would not come to peace. Instead
To-morrow he would leave his door
And start at once acquiring more.

Meadows. Tea was served at five o'clock, which included fish cakes and corn beef. The fish cakes and beans were prepared the day previously by kind friends. The company is grateful to the Women's Association, the Orange Association, for help, and to Mr. George Pittman, who provided the transport.

Point au Gaul sent a gallant detachment of six lads who marched six miles to Camp and another six home (the big six)! They have the Franklin spirit alright in Lamaline Company, for which we give credit to Lt. H. King—a former member of the King's Navy—who knows how to put things over in imperial style! Lamaline Company's discipline is splendid and is carrying the Company through. We congratulate the Rev. H. Kirby, Chaplain and O.C., and staff, on their great success.

Grand Falls Company reports fifty on the strength with an average attendance of thirty-seven. On Empire Day a joint church parade was held with the Catholic Cadets, and Girl Guides, the various units attending their respective churches. Captain Cooper, Adjutant, reports a contingent very enthusiastically looking forward to Camp, Topsail, on July 23rd, from the paper city.

Bank Manager, Captain A. S. Lewis, of the C.L.B. Savings Bank, reports one hundred and ninety-three members having accounts with the bank on May 31st, with a total amount of $4523.44 on deposit. Four per cent interest is paid and the Bank's securities are invested in British, Canadian and Nfld. Government Bonds. All ranks should open an account in their own C.L.B. Bank and get a bank book from the Quartermaster's Department.

This branch, to educate the lads in thrift and economy, was inaugurated by Lt.-Col. Robert G. Rendell, C.B.E., a former O.C., and is being successfully maintained. We are glad to report. Carry on, lads, carry on!

C. L. B. Cadets

A good parade Thursday night, some one hundred and thirty-five all ranks answering the roll. The Colonel was in command, the Adjutant, Capt. Stick and Capt. Harold Hayward were on leave, Lieut. Perlin, Assistant Adjutant, on the casualty list, and the following officers were on duty: Brigade Major Williams, Capt. P. B. Reed, Lieut. Hubert Rendell, Ern Chafe, and Mottly (muff). Capt. F. W. Burden, C.M.O., was also in attendance.

Howard Butler were on leave. Twelve recruits joined up: Ptes. Jas. Guppy, Fred Rendell, Pearce Bailey, Kenneth Ploughman, Chesley Pearcey, H. G. Rendall, Ralph Ryan, George Bailey, Reg. Barbour, Selwyn Law, Willis Rendell, and Albert Pearcey. On Empire Day holiday this Company held a special parade, the Company marching to the Memorial Cross at Christ Church where a short service was held, the flag saluted and a splendid patriotic address given by Lieut. Ploughman, a war veteran. A fine bunch of recruits shows healthy progress and more roomy quarters are needed. Headquarters St. John's congratulates Capt. C. T. Fitzgerald, O.C., and staff on their great work. A busy man is Dr. Fitzgerald indeed. He is playing a great game and carrying out his bat!

Heart's Content Company, under Dr. Anderson, O.C., is also doing well. They have 38 on the role with an average attendance of 28. The Company have been handicapped for supplies lately, but Quartermaster Mottly sent a full supply to Quartermaster Farnham on Tuesday.

Bay Roberts Company is gallantly carrying on! Major Dawe, O.C., and all ranks naturally miss the former Adjutant, Capt. trench, now at H. Q. St. John's, but the gap is being filled and everybody maintains the motto "Fight The Good Fight." Parades are being held in summer and a good contingent will embark for "Topsail Front" on July 23rd, to engage in Camp duties? A warm welcome will be given them.

Lamaline Company writes cheerfully. Port au Gaul detachment gave an exhibition of drill in April at the Women's Association Hall. The Chaplain, Rev. H. Kirby, made an address on "Life in the C.L.B." Tea was served in the Orange Hall and thirty-five dollars was raised for the Brigade Treasury. Sergt. E. Hillier deserves great credit as drill instructor. The lads showed wonderful progress. Lamaline Company held their first camp on June 2nd. The C.L.B. flag was raised at 5 a.m., quite on time! Bugle sounded the reveille and at three a.m. the lads were waiting for the dawn! Lamaline lads need no Sergt-Major to rouse them up. The bugle sounded "fall in" at six a.m., and the company marched three miles to Piercy's Brook, arriving at 7.45. A total of forty-seven lads were on duty. The officers helped to provide the rations. Breakfast was then cooked, games were played and the O.C., Rev. H. Kirby, Lieut. H. King and A. Strickland went fishing with some N.C.O.'s and everybody caught a big catch of trout. At noon the bugle announced dinner, and the trout just caught were on the menu and deliciously cooked, too, by Lamaline Company's expert cooks. Visitors to Camp wore Mr. C. C. Pittman, J.P.; Messrs. D. Hillier, C.L.B. Bible Class Instructor, R. J. Bonnell, A. Hillier and F. King. Football was indulged in at four o'clock on the Piercy

Overseas news is pleasant this week. Mr. Gerald LeMessurier, ex-member of Peild College Company, now studying at St. Augustine's, Canterbury, has won his cap and colours on the first eleven cricket team. He attended recently the consecration of the Bishop of Bermuda, a former Rector of the Cathedral parish, St. John's, Rev. Canon Browne, M.A., and met the following friends from Newfoundland: Lady Horwood, Revs. Edward Reid and J. H. Bradford, Canon and Mrs. Hewitt. The ceremony was performed by the Archbishop of Canterbury at Westminster Abbey on June 11th, and a large number of Newfoundland folk attended the reception afterwards. The Brigade Secretary, London, writes appreciating the work of the C.L.B. in England's Oldest Colony. He is very anxious to know when Bandmaster Vavasour and his artists are going to have the privilege of giving a band concert programme through a powerful broadcasting station here so that the Brigade in England can arrange to listen in and hear their Comrades playing "Hands Across the Sea."

All ranks were delighted to meet Old Comrade Sidney Skiffington here on a visit from New York. No doubt "Sid" will be here for the Regatta.

In Praise of Bashful Britons

WHAT'S WRONG WITH OUR NOBLE SELVES!

(By W. K. L., in Liverpool Weekly Post.)

"Modesty," said Robert South, "long before our great-grandfathers were born, is a kind of shame or bashfulness proceeding from the sense a man has of his own defects compared with the (supposed) perfections of nine whom he comes before."

"Modesty," says Goldsmith, "seldom resides in a breast that is not enriched with nobler virtues." Wherefore, my noble, virtuous, and bashful brethren, arise! Stand forth and shine, for, assuredly, the most modest race on the face of the earth is the British. Never was a race so conscious of its own defects, never did a people so industriously advertise its own shortcomings. It's a mania!

Julius Caesar taught us the art of War and the craft of Empire-building. Since then we have raised legions and fought wars that, in comparison, make Caesar's famous exploits seem like Saturday night brawls. To-day we are the rulers of a mighty Empire that wasn't even on the map in Caesar's time. Despite all this, we have not a name in our history that we would ever dream of comparing with mighty Caesar's.

From Shakespeare down to Shaw we have an illustrious line of seers and sages. Because of the dread fact that they are our own countrymen we pay them little more than lip service, though the rest of the civilized world is only too proud to accept them as masterminds.

In my time, British musicians, vocalists, and instrumentalists have had such a high time in their native country, that their only hope of fame and fortune lay in changing their homely names to such delightfully foreign cognomens as Brownovitch, Joneson, or Robinsini. Many a bashful British heart beat beneath an absurdly tight "Blue Hungarian" tunic, while long hair and broken English became the order of the day.

Always it has been our custom to sit at the feet of some foreign nation seeking wisdom. Just before the war it was German, German enterprise, German industry, German efficiency, German organization, the whole colossal issue, right down to German bands, German sausages, and German Emperors.

STILL A MYSTERY.

Then came France's turn. Day after day we were exhorted to take our hats off to France. Many of us did so, too, and might have been doing it yet but, for once in a way, there was a certain lack of unanimity. Those of us who were not too busy saluting France were invited to kow-tow to Soviet Russia, though nobody has even been able to tell us why, and the whole affair is still a mystery.

Meanwhile France, not having made any attempt to balance her Budgets, was in a very bad way financially. Bankrupt Soviet Russia was seeking a large loan from its bashful British admirers, and might have got it, but hadn't enough horse sense to prevent her more "advanced" thinkers from shrieking aloud that there was no serious intention of repayment. Allied Governments found themselves unable to pay their war debts (the creditors, be it noted, were the afore-said bashful Britons), and, at long last, it really seemed that there was nobody else left for us to fall down and worship.

About this time America, not quite so bashful as ourselves, respectfully reminded us of a few hundred millions of pounds we had borrowed from her for the Allied cause. Far too modest to expect any exceptional treatment, we forthwith arranged to pay—not only our own debts, but those of the Allies as well. Never did anyone nation make so little of such a remarkable achievement. Instead, instead of patting ourselves on the back, this amazing transaction merely served to concentrate our ever-ready hero worship on—America.

American enterprise, American industry, American efficiency, American organization—the whole astonishing issue, right down to American revues, American "movies," and American soda fountains. There are not wanting those who are prepared to enchain us in American loans.

WAY DOWN IN TENNESSEE.

We benighted Britons fondly speak of America as the Land of Liberty, seemingly unaware that no other race in the world enjoys such freedom as ourselves. Leaving out altogether the questionable boon of Prohibition, America enjoys the prohibitive laws and irksome restrictions that would seem improbable even in Colney Hatch. Why, in that much-boomed land of freedom you can't even read what you like. No, sir.

Way down in Tennessee, a school teacher was arrested for the crime of introducing Darwin's theory of evolution to his class. This is a penal offence—way down in Tennessee.

In Ohio, a solemn law forbids the driving of a donkey past a cemetery at a greater speed than six miles an hour. Seems like furious loitering to me. But nothing is too wildly improbable for America. Cigarette advertisements on boardings have been prohibited. Such innocent pastimes as fishing and whistling are strictly forbidden on Sunday's in some states. In New York itself two girls were arrested in a theatre for the horrid crime of "laughing uproariously." Such quaint ideas of liberty and personal freedom would raise a riot in bashful Britain.

Quite recently, an esteemed American citizen died, and was given a splendid funeral in his own home town of Chicago—where the pigs come from. There was a solid silver coffin which cost $2,500, and his name was to be found on the lid in letters of solid gold. There were thirty motor cars heaped with flowers, the value of which display of floral tributes was assessed at $10,000. Twenty thousand mourners followed him to the grave. For the rest, I cannot do better than quote the American newspaper account:

"Politics and officialdom were represented by municipal judges, one alderman, one State Senator, State representatives, and the City Sealer (the official whose duty it is to seal the doors of restaurants and clubs where alcohol, liquor is sold indirectly). Fifty policemen were specially detailed to keep the streets clear, but the congestion became so great that another company was sent to aid them."

Who was this great and good man?

NOT AN ANGEL.

His name was Angelo Genna, one of Chicago's most popular "boot-leggers" and a noted gunman. "More than twenty killings had been charged to his account," adds the report.

We are a modest people, but I think that, without undue self-praise it is safe to say that no such top-sy-turvy and outrageous proceeding could have happened in this country. Such is the power of the almighty dollar in a land where so-called prohibition has reached the dimensions of a flourishing national industry.

In proportion to population, there are annually eight times as many murders in America as in poor old England, and several times as many burglaries. Crime, and general contempt of the law, is such that the President of the U.S.A. himself, has just had to plead with the nation for the "universal observance of the Constitution by American people."

All kinds of curious "uplift" movements originate in America, and certain of those amongst us invite us to sit up and take notice. Let me offer them a few winged words from America's first and foremost citizen—President Coolidge.

"Before we assume too great responsibilities in governing others, it would be the best part of wisdom to discharge our responsibilities for governing ourselves. Very considerable duties must be performed in America before we undertake the direction of the rest of the world."

As modest men, we recognize the voice of a man and a brother. Meanwhile, in all that makes for progress, freedom, sane and sound government, and a dogged determination to play the game, what's the matter with li's old Britain?

I pause for a reply.

A Parliament of Industry

Mr. Arthur Henderson has advocated the creation in Great Britain of an Economic Council or Parliament of Industry like that created in Germany, whose discussions are reputed to represent the high-water mark of intellect in any democratic assembly. In France the German example has been commended by prominent politicians. In Italy the Fascists are would seem that, as the Irish Statesman points out, the political imagination of Europe is being exercised in trying to find some political organization of democracy which would be efficient and would exclude the mere demagogue. "The Germans solved the problem by allowing the voluntary vocational organizations, agricultural, textile, engineering, distributive, etc., to nominate their own representatives on the Economic Council. Here they judged as experts, and were justified by the wisdom and salty and expert character of the discussions in the German Parliament of Industry. . . . As efficiency becomes more and more necessary it is, we believe, inevitable that some reorganization of democracy on vocational lines will take place in Europe as the result of the ferment set up by the ideas of guildsmen, syndicalists, Fascists, and other groups."

THE IMPOSING CEREMONY AT THE OPENING OF THE RODDICK MEMORIAL GATES.

The official opening of the Roddick Memorial Gates took place on Thursday afternoon, May 28th, in presence of the Governors, Professors and students of McGill University, together with a large and representative gathering of citizens. The procession of the Faculty and students left Victoria College and marched along Sherbrooke Street to the entrance where Chancellor E. W. Beatty presided. Lady Roddick with a golden key and after opening the lock, which was also of gold, the procession marched to the University grounds and the special ceremony marking the celebration began. Lady Roddick was assisted by E. W. Beatty, Sir Arthur Currie, Principal of the University, Dr. John Redpath Dougal, Senator G. Foster, Rev. Dr. Dickie, who presided at the religious ceremony; Dr. C. F. Martin, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine who pronounced the discourse on the occasion and Colonel Bowie, assistant principal, who acted as Master of Ceremonies. Programmes were presented to all those who assisted at the ceremony, while Lady Roddick was presented with a special one bound in leather with purple water-color satin decorations on the inside together with a picture of the donor, Dr. Roddick and also of the Memorial Gates.

Dr. Martin in his discourse paid a glowing tribute to the work of Sir Thomas Roddick, and said that the University would ever cherish his memory, and that future generations in the medical profession would find in his long and noble career, one worthy of emulation. He was elected President of the British Medical Association, created a doctor of Laws by the University of Edinburgh and was created a Baronet by the King. Sir Thomas had a large part in the formation of the Society of the Red Cross of the Victorian Order of Nurses, and of the Alexandra Hospital for contagious diseases. He was the special friend and counsellor of young doctors, and many of the leaders in their profession to-day, owe their success to the gentle, kind-hearted and noble citizen, the late lamented Dr. Roddick.

When the ceremony was over, the golden lock and key fitted in a box with a glass cover, and having at the base a gold plate with the following engraved, "The Roddick Memorial Gates, erected for McGill University in memory of Sir Thomas George Roddick, opened May 28th, 1925 by Lady Roddick", was presented to her residence on Sherbrooke Street, as a fitting memorial of the simple yet imposing ceremony which marks a bright page in the history of Old McGill. To Senator Foster is due great praise for the success of the affair. The following inscription is on the tower:

"These gates were erected in memory of Sir Thomas George Roddick, M.D., L.L.D., F.R.C.S., L.M.C.C., M.C.M.XXIV."

The gilded clock in the tower strikes the hours, the chimes ring out the quarters and half hours, these tell the citizens, the strangers and visitors to Montreal, that time passes on, that memory is sweetest when good deeds are cherished, and like the great and inspiring life of the former son of Terra Nova may well be applied the words of Longfellow:

"Lives of great men all remind us. We can make our lives sublime; And departing leave behind us, Footprints on the sands of Time."

The Montreal Witness speaking of the affair says:

Noble in conception, in execution true, are the new gates to the University of McGill. There is strength and dignity in their severe simplicity. In the low tower, the four-faced clock, proclaiming to north, south, east and west the self-same time, is symbolic of the universality of truth, the same in the valley as on the mount, in the market place as in the hall of learning. The gates of the University are the gates to knowledge, culture, power. But their dramatic opening at the end of the curriculum is significant. Through them the fostering mother now points her brood the way of service, the way of life. "Freely ye have received, freely give." Erected by Lady Roddick in memory of her husband, they will tell of a kindly man, generous of his great skill to thousands who could pay no fee. To many through his surgery, he was a living gateway to a longer, happier life. Sir Thomas Roddick, Kt., M.D., L.L.D., F.R.C.S., was among the very first to recognize and to practice aseptic surgery. When a Member of Parliament he secured standardization and inter-provincial recognition of the medical degrees of the leading medical schools. Under his presidency the Victorian Order of Nurses became a great factor in the social welfare of the unfortunate sick. It is enough to show that at the end of his student years he passed out of the then very simple gates of the University to a life of great opportunity and found satisfaction in high service; not the least of which was his service as Dean of the Medical Faculty of his Alma Mater. On the occasion, last Thursday, of the presentation and opening of the Roddick Memorial Gates, with Lady Roddick on the platform there were a number of men who, each in his own way, have found large opportunities of service. Among them, the Chancellor of the University (Dr.) E. W. Beatty, heads the world's greatest transportation system. To what high services has he been called! Does he not represent a great gateway of opportunity? Then Sir Arthur Currie, soldier and academician, the Principal of McGill. To what high service has he been called! The gateway of opportunity which he happily now represents has no limits. Dr. Martin, a successor to Sir Thomas Roddick in the Deanship of the Medical Faculty, Rev. Dr. Dickie, minister of the Gospel, and others, each in his own way finding life in service—gateways through whom others might find life more worth living. In no other country are the gateways of opportunity more widely open than to-day they are in our own beloved Canada. But let opportunity be synonymous with service, and citizenship with patriotism. So let love of country prompt each one to Make Canada a Land to Love. In such service the gateways are wide open to all.

THE JESUIT MISSIONARIES LANDED IN CANADA 300 YEARS AGO.

Monday, June 15th, was the tercentenary of the arrival of the Jesuit Missionaries in Quebec. Three hundred years ago the first of the Jesuit fathers set foot on the shore of the St. Lawrence at what is now Quebec City, and began their momentous work which was to lead them through hardships and horrors to martyrdom at the hand of the Indians. The Jesuits were the first missionaries to Canada for they were in Acadia in 1611. It was not until 1625, however, that they reached Quebec. Sunday, June 21st, those who suffered martyrdom in Canada were beatified in Rome. A special service to mark the event was held in Ontario near the location of the early mission to the Hurons.

THE BAD MEN STILL TAKE CHANCES.

Notwithstanding the many risks incurred in holding up citizens to get their cash, the bad men take chances also with the taxi cab drivers. Hold-up men robbed a taxi driver of his cap, looted his pockets of $20, and then stole the taxi. When last seen by the owner, the cap was on the head of one of the three men as he piloted the taxi out of sight.

Alphonse Chapleau, taxi chauffeur, was accosted at his parked stand, Saturday night at 11 o'clock by three men who told him to drive them northward along St. Lawrence boulevard. When the car reached the Deaf and Dumb Institute, St. Lawrence boulevard, the driver was ordered to stop. A second order drove him from his seat, because a shining revolver was the persuader. On the sidewalk he was asked for his money which was not chivalrously removed from a pocket by one of the gunmen. His uniform cap was taken from his head, and then he was told to get home the best way he could. Chapleau was fifteen minutes walk to the nearest police station.

VALUABLE JEWELS SEIZED AT QUEBEC.

A special message of the Star says: Customs officers seized diamonds and jewellery estimated at over $100,000 on the C.P.S. Minnedosa over the weekend between Father Point and Quebec and apprehended two men whose names are withheld, awaiting investigation.

Startling developments are expected as it is said by the authorities that since the beginning of the season many attempts have been made to smuggle diamonds through Quebec.

The customs officers were searching the luggage of the two men in the case and were about to end their search when they fell on the diamonds. Further search brought out large quantities of valuables of the same nature. The men contended they intended to make a declaration but had not been given time. They were arrested and later released on bail.

BE FAITHFUL TO KEEP YOUR PROMISES.

Dear readers:—How many persons think lightly of a promise. What is a promise? It is a debt of honor. Don't forget that your promise should be just as sacred as your note. Your good faith or your lack of it is a part of your character. You can't escape that. What your promise should be backed up with your last dollar; if necessary, unless you can honestly break your promise with the consent of the other party.

The man of sterling character does not make promises lightly, because to him a promise is as binding as an oath. When he makes a promise he will keep it no matter what it costs him.

"And as they were parting, I heard one of them say: 'Don't forget your promise. That you made yesterday.'"

HEALTHY BABIES.

"An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure."

FEEDING BABY IN SUMMERTIME.

Is Baby 8 or 9 months old? It is time to think of giving him solid foods. To this age he has had nothing but liquid diet, but now his gums are hard, as teeth are coming to the surface, and he must begin to know how to chew. Sometimes this change is quite a problem, and during the summer months it is generally more of a difficulty. It is advisable to wait a month longer if the weaning time comes directly in the hottest weather. The great thing is not to let Baby be faddy-tempt him carefully, so that he will like what he eats, and do it gradually. Regularity of mealtimes is just as important at this time.

Ways to Help Trade

CHEAPER FUEL AND TRANSPORT.

(By Sir PERCIVAL PHILLIPS).

How can British industry be brought back to prosperity?

Manufacturers tighten their belts and talk courageously of "weathering the storm." But courage alone will not save them. The state of paralysis which affects industry is not due to temporary conditions which will be overcome by simply sitting tight. Despite slight local improvement in certain branches, the general trend is downward.

Plants are being kept going at a loss. In some centres the principal mills struggle along on a hand-to-mouth basis, with no prospect of permanent recovery. Pay rolls are maintained by overdrats. The leading banks, which are deeply involved in this crisis of industry, are the only mainstay of many important manufacturing concerns upon which thousands of workers are dependent for existence.

Tenacious Spirit.

In such centres as Sheffield and the shipbuilding ports I found a fine spirit of tenacity and determination to survive in the face of seemingly insurmountable obstacles. No man admitted defeat or showed despair. Yet when asked how they expected to rise from the sloughs of trade depression, every industrialist with whom I talked was forced to admit that salvation depended upon the alleviation of certain evils against which they are at present helpless.

They declared that industry will not revive until we have:

Cheaper cost of production.

Cheaper fuel and transport.

Lower local rates.

Protection against dumping.

Leveling of wages in "sheltered" trades.

Greater individual effort.

Fewer restrictions by trade unions.

In enumerating these requirements the majority of manufacturers put the cost of fuel and transport first. Coal is 100 per cent. more expensive in Sheffield and other centres of the iron and steel trade than before the war, and its use in many processes makes a heavy addition to the cost of production. Gas and electricity are proportionately higher. Railway transport generally is 50 per cent. more expensive, and there are also flat rate additions, varying from 2d. to 6d. per ton, which add to the cost of coal, raw and other materials, as well as to the cost of shipping finished articles. Dock charges are at least 60 per cent. In some cases 75 per cent. higher. All this is a serious handicap to the export trade.

Materials of every kind cost more.

The Sheffield cutlery industry is weighed down by an increase of from 30 per cent. to 100 per cent. in steel; the labour cost of various classes of knives has risen from 95 to 200 per cent. over pre-war figures. Export freight charges are in some instances absolutely prohibitive. The British manufacturer has to pay a minimum of 21s.—more than twice that of his German competitor.

Wages in the "sheltered" trades must come down. Municipal tramway cleaners are making more money than many highly skilled workers in the iron and steel trades. The burden of local rates is staggering in the manufacturing areas. Sheffield has suffered more perhaps in this respect than other cities, but the same anomaly exists wherever there are mills and factories.

Yet Labour seems strangely complacent. Instead of levelling down to the standard of skilled men, the desire is to force wages up to the inflated level of the unskilled municipal employee. Engineers drawing less than £3 a week will not support a movement to reduce the pay of street cleaners who are getting more.

Industry could be helped by the increase in individual output. "I have said to my men," declared one manufacturer, "Give us more for a pound in wages and you will benefit yourselves. They will not see it, and when told that the Germans are working harder for less money, merely reply: 'The Germans are wage slaves.'"

Tariff Walls.

Foreign and Dominion tariffs are another stumbling block on the path to recovery. The new German duties constitute a fresh offensive against British export trade. The efforts of the overseas portions of the Empire to protect their own industries at the expense of those in Great Britain are likewise causing grave anxiety. The heavy duty recently placed on steel by the Indian Government is a case in point. France contemplates increasing her duty on foreign ordinary steel 300 per cent. and the duty on tool steel 223 1-3 per cent. over pre-war tariffs. British plants are as well equipped and up-to-date in every respect as those of Continental competitors. Shipbuilders and steel manufacturers have not the slightest doubt of their ability to regain their place in the world's markets if relieved of the crushing burdens imposed by present conditions of production and shipment and if they have the wholehearted co-operation of all branches of labour—Daily Mail.

Repairs to Ferry Boat

The repairs to the ferry boat, Baxter at the Dry Dock wharf are going ahead rapidly, and the job is expected to be completed within another week. The Baxter, it will be remembered, ran into a storm on her maiden voyage from Glasgow to Quebec, and entered this port on Monday last to undergo the necessary repairs. Extensive damage was caused to her bulwarks and material about the forward decks.

Futility of Strikes

SIGNIFICANT SPEECH BY LABOUR LEADER.

Speaking at a railwaymen's meeting at Dovercourt, Mr. C. T. Cramp, Industrial Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, stated: "I do not depreciate the strike weapon, but it is useless to blind your eyes to the fact that conditions are so complex and involved that the rough-and-ready method of a strike will not meet the situation. You cannot make the foreigner buy more of your coal by the biggest strike, you ever had. You cannot force your shipping and produce on other countries merely by means of a strike. As a nation we live by our exports, and we are too prone as trade unionists to think that his business begins and ends as between employers and ourselves."

"I was treated without success. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased some, and after using one box of Cuticura Ointment and two cakes of Cuticura Soap I was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Forest Krick, R. R. 4, Rockford, Ohio.

Child Welfare Association

REPORT FOR MONTH OF JUNE 1925.

Visits to Homes 786

Attendances at Welfare Centres . . . 169

The six month's Report of the Registrar General is most interesting. The Infant Mortality Rate is a record figure, 77 per 1000. This is indeed encouraging. The next lowest record was in 1920, when it was 78 per 1000; but in 1920 in the annual report it was 146 per 1000. Each year it is noted that from June to December is the period in which our Infant Mortality becomes higher. Last year from January to June the Infant Mortality Rate was 94 per 1000, but in December it climbed to 141 per 1000.

Are these statistics of value? A great deal of valuable time and thought are spent on the collection of them, surely therefore we should do our best to make use of them, and obtain results for the expenditure. It is by noting them year by year we know what progress is made. Our social status to some extent become comparable with other cities, colonies and countries.

Figures have had a great influence on the Child Welfare work of the world. The educational side of our work is all the time trying to better the present statistics, and that is one reason why our Association takes so much notice of them. Education in

The first column of this table indicates the size or gauge wire in the Browne and Sharp gauge (B. & S.). This is the standard gauge in copper wire sizes in this country. All the copper wire you buy will be sold, according to these gauge sizes. The other figures are the number of turns of wire which can be wound (single layer, of course) in a space of one inch. The figures assume that the wire will be wound tightly with each turn as close to the next one as possible.

"Oh, why did I wake up so early," drowsily sighed Little Jack Rabbit, looking over the footboard of his bed toward the open window, through which the morning breeze, cool and moist, was gently blowing from the stilly darkness. Then, all of a sudden, Chipping Sparrow, the smallest of the morn-waking birds, sounded a plaintive note. Twinkling his nose, the little rabbit smelled the air. Slowly it changed to a warmer scent, and again Chipping Sparrow sounded his early morning call, the first bird note that is heard from field and pasture.

Pretty soon Bobbie Redvest from an apple tree piped a strain, and in a few minutes all the robins were answering one another from treetop to treetop.

"I might as well get dressed," thought the little bunny. "Mr. Merry Sun will soon be climbing up the Big Blue Sky." By the time the little rabbit had hopped down to the kitchen Song Sparrow was singing and soon all the Warblers, Chewinks and Thrashers had joined in the lovely chorus.

"I've heard all the early birds," laughed the kettle of water on the stove after lighting the kindling wood. "He's a clever chap, but lazy. See how red the sky is growing. Soon it will turn to gray. Then a rosy light will come, tinged with gold, and all the birds will be singing with joy."

Sure enough, Lady Love was right. The false dawn reddened and vanished and the gray of the real dawn, streaked with rose and gold, spread over the sky, and Mr. Merry Sun's happy face smiled in the low East.

All the Thrushes were singing now, and as the little rabbit stepped out on the back porch Professor Jim Crow, in Professor Jim Crow, flew swiftly by. "Brown Thrush," answered learned little Lady Love. "He is the best mimic of all the birds. But, dear me! When he is angry or excited, he makes a noise that sounds like Black Cat's 'Mi-a-aw!'"

Just then from out the bramble bushes, with a flit of his tail and a flap of his wings, Catbird winged his way like a gray flash, scolding at the top of his voice because the bunny boy had laughed at him. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Want November 11th as National Holiday

MATTER MAY COME BEFORE CABINET, IS REPORT OF VET COMMITTEE.

OTTAWA, June 25.—The establishment of Armistice Day, November 11, as a national holiday, was foreshadowed at the annual convention of the Great War Veterans Association this morning, when Rev. Mr. Payne, of Shagavan, Sask., reporting for the Armistice Day committee, appointed yesterday, said he had received assurances from Hon. E. M. MacDonald that the matter would be brought before the cabinet to-day and an effort made to have the bill introduced and passed through all stages in the House of Commons.

The Armistice anniversary has in the past been associated with Thanksgiving Day, proclaimed by the government. The bill, if passed, would make Armistice Day the national holiday, and Thanksgiving Day would cease to be a national holiday.
