German Troops Under General Von Der Goltz, Together With Russians Under Colonel Avaloff Bermond, Are Reported to Have Attacked the Letts, Thirty Kilometers from Riga and Occupied Sklotsh—State of Siege Proclaimed at Riga as Precautionary Measure.

BRITISH AND FRENCH WARSHIPS AT RIGA CLEAR FOR ACTION

Copenhagen, Oct. 10.—British and French warships in the harbor of Riga have cleared for action, according to a despatch from Riga to the Lettish information bureau, on account of the attack by German troops under the commander General Von Der Goltz, upon the Lettish army defending Riga.

Copenhagen, Oct. 10.—While the Allied battleships at Riga are prepared, according to reports, to open fire upon the Germans attacking Riga, Berlin advises from Milau, 27 miles south of Riga, declare that the Russian and German forces in that vicinity have reached an agreement in regard to the gradual evacuation of the country. This has been heralded to the representatives of the Entente at Milau.

A Berlin telegram from Milau states that Colonel Avaloff-Bermond, on October eighth, handed to the Entente representative a note addressed "To the representatives of the Allied Powers in Russia," and reading: "In order to combat Bolshevism, restore order and secure the safety of my base of action; I have, as head of the Russian army in the Western provinces, made an agreement with the commanders of the German army corps occupying the country, under which I guarantee the gradual withdrawal of their troops and the safety of their transportation to Germany."

The present Lettish government began to send a number of Lettish troops against the boundaries of my military base, which violated the neutral zone. This evoked a number of minor collisions while my troops were replacing German posts. I had given my posts orders, despite the continued provocation, not to let themselves become involved with the Letts. They thought it was on account of weakness.

PARIS INSTITUTES AN AUTOMOBILE POLICE PATROL

The Auto Squad Will Patrol Each Section of the City With the Object of Ending Night Attacks and Crime.

Paris, Oct. 10.—Automobiles were used last night for the first time for police patrol service in Paris. The Prefect is beginning the service with three cars, each manned by a sergeant and five policemen, and the plan is to have the automobile squad patrol each quarter of the city, calling at each police station every fifteen minutes. The object is to end the night attacks and crimes which have been very frequent since the armistice.

SUED FOR DIVORCE

Miss June Elvidge, of movie fame, who has been married to Lieutenant Frank C. Hadgery, of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, last November, is once more in the public eye. The Lieutenant desires his freedom and in the papers filed refers to a certain mysterious Jack. Among Miss Elvidge's best known contributions to film are "A Woman of Redemption" and the principal role in "Respect the Monk." Her husband is a resident of Ottawa, Ont., where he and Miss Elvidge passed their honeymoon.

STATE OF SIEGE

A state of siege has been proclaimed at Riga as a precautionary measure. Reserves are being formed among those who are unable to go to the front. Soldiers who were starting toward the front were showered with flowers.

The Lettish bureau says the Germans and Russians attacked on the front of St. Olaf, thirty kilometers from Riga, on the shores of the Gulf of Riga, and occupied the coastal town of Sklotsh and also attacked the coastal town of Dubbelin, thirty kilometers from Riga.

Another despatch from Riga says the Germans attacked repeatedly during the night in overwhelming numbers and with all modern weapons, but that the Letts successfully counterattacked. The despatch adds that both soldiers and civilians are filled with enthusiasm and that volunteers are joining the ranks day and night. These include students of all classes. Lettish soldiers who have been fighting with the British and French at Arras have just arrived at Riga by steamship and rushed to the front.

Efforts Being Made To Organize Tribunal To Arbitrate Labor Disputes

London, Oct. 10.—As a result of the recent railway strike, and the general labor situation, strong efforts are again being made to organize a tribunal empowered to arbitrate all industrial disputes. The action of the Transport Workers' leaders in taking up the role as mediators in the recent strike has given impetus to a movement to propose the revival of the Industrial Council, appointed by the industrial conference called by Premier Lloyd George last spring. This council failed to prove effective as an arbitration body, owing to the refusal of the "Triple Alliance" comprising the railwaymen, transport workers and coal miners, to accept membership in it. Pressure is now being brought upon the "Triple Alliance" to reconsider its former attitude. "The neutral" chairman originally proposed for the council has not yet been appointed.

Great Britain Is First To Ratify The Peace Treaty

LABOR PROBLEMS AND IRELAND TO HAVE PRIORITY

Chief and Foremost Subjects for Discussion When British Parliament Convenes Oct. 22nd.

London, Oct. 10.—Labor problems and the Irish question will be given priority over other subjects upon the agenda when parliament meets October 22. The main bill is down as the first matter for consideration, but it will probably be postponed. The special cabinet committee dealing with Ireland and composed of Lord Birkenhead, the Lord Chancellor; Sir James W. Mackenzie, Secretary of State for the Colonies; Sir John Macpherson, Chief Secretary for Ireland; and Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, will assemble early next week when Viscount French returns from Ireland. The plan of procedure will be drafted during the ensuing meetings.

The nature of the debate on the labor situation will depend upon the attitude taken by the labor party in connection with the conference with the Prime Minister yesterday, regarding nationalization of the coal mines. Robert Smillie, President of the Miners' Federation, and Frank Hodges, its secretary, state that the miners will probably not take immediate steps with reference to nationalization since the matter is now in the hands of the trades unions congress. C. W. Boverman, Secretary of the Congress, said that if a special committee was considered necessary to discuss the steps to be taken, the gathering would probably not be held until after the return from Washington of the British delegates to the International Labor Convention.

NUMBERED PLANE FORCED TO LAND AT GREENPORT

Made Perfect Landing in the Darkness Eighty Miles Short of Destination, Mineola, N. Y.

GASOLINE SUPPLY ABOUT EXHAUSTED

(By A. D. Merkle, Can. Press.)—Greenport, Long Island, Oct. 10.—By the Canadian Press.—The Handley Page plane Atlantic, which was compelled to land here last night with her eleven passengers, eighty miles short of Mineola, will not resume her flight to Mitchell Field today, according to the present plans of Admiral Kerr, commander of the giant bomber. The four engine eight Rolls Royce engines, which had propelled a dead-weight of 28,000 pounds for twelve hours against an average head wind of forty miles an hour, constituting, believed, a terrific grueling, and will have to be given a thorough routine inspection before another start is made. This, together with the work of taking about the three hundred gallons of gasoline and forty gallons of oil ordered from Mineola last night, will make a getaway, in the opinion of Admiral Kerr, impracticable before Saturday at least.

When Major Herbert Brackley, of the R. A. F., brought the plane down to a perfect landing on an unknown field in a driving rain and in pitch darkness at 11.45 o'clock last night, there was less than twenty gallons of gasoline in the tanks. The machine started out from Parrsboro, N. S. with nine hundred gallons aboard, which was considered ample for the run to Mineola. An hour before Long Island was reached, however, the main tank had become exhausted and all that was left to keep the engine running was that contained in the four auxiliary tanks with a capacity of twenty gallons each. Greenport, the overflow from these tanks stopped and a landing was imperative. Swooping down to earth, a close up inspection of the ground was made by Ray Jagwood, a former member of the Canadian aviation service, who is employed here, flashed a signal warning the aviators of the presence of high voltage wires. Automobile lights were flashed on various fields and along the main road, and flares were set up in an endeavor to assist the landing. But selected by the engine, the plane was forced to land on a field of corn, and a wide berth, and circling about again, far out over the Sound, again approached the fifty foot cliffs lining the shore. The engine was flashing and too low he gave the engines every change on the basis of the allotment made by the board.

In the case of an unanimous report there should be an appeal. Other wise an appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court of Canada, or to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council if the material has not been submitted to the board which is material to its findings. It may, within thirty days, be required to review the evidence on the strength of the new matter, and to amend its award if desirable, or necessary. While the subject matter for arbitration is different from that suggested by the government in July of 1918, the results of the arbitration are almost similar. The original proposal was one of rental of the system, the government offering two and a half million a year for two years, three million a year for five years and three millions and three-quarters a year for twenty-five years thereafter. The rental of the Grand Trunk to the Government of Canada, which is now in the hands of a receiver, and the fact that the American portions of the former road are now being administered by the United States government, rendered the rental proposal impracticable. The government's proposal is to acquire the Grand Trunk by purchase of the stock of the company, and to operate it as a public utility. ### German Mobs Smash Windows And Pillage Stores In Occupied Territory

Paris, Oct. 10.—Following the riot which occurred on Tuesday at Sarrebruck, in the occupied territory in Germany, in which a French major and three soldiers were wounded, several Spartacus were arrested, upon which workmen espoused their cause and demanded their release, promising in this case to help maintain order. The French authorities released the prisoners, but in the evening mobs, in which there were a number of men in German uniform, broke into clothing stores and other shops and pillaged them. At the same time shots were fired from windows at French soldiers.

A state of siege was proclaimed and machine guns were brought out. Shots were fired into the air, according to the Petit Parisien. Pillaging was resumed Wednesday but quiet was restored in the evening. The strikers, it is declared, are showing a disposition to resuming work.

Greater Opportunities For Trade Were Never Before Presented To Britain

London, Oct. 10.—"Never have there been greater opportunities for trade in Great Britain, and greater opportunities will present themselves in the future," said Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister for National Service and Reconstruction, today. "Nothing is more important for the country," Sir Auckland continued, "than to appreciate the outlook for trade and to seize the opportunities which the country's grasp. But we must have courage and determination and must summon the necessary unanimity. Every nation is short something that Great Britain can supply."

Referring in optimistic terms to the question of American competition, the Minister declared: "British manufacturers have a bugbear of American rivalry, but America is not well placed for world trade. Besides, she has her own troubles, while the exchange is hindering American exports. I assure you America cannot drive British trade from the world markets if we make up our minds to work together."

NEGOTIATIONS COMPLETED WHICH WILL RESULT IN ACQUISITION BY GOVT OF G. T. R. Y. SYSTEM

Details of the Arbitration Were Placed Before Parliament Yesterday Which Will Give Members of House Opportunity to Study Them—Minister Sponsoring the Measure Welcomes Full Discussion—Legislation Will Not Go Through Unopposed.

Ottawa, Oct. 10.—The long drawn out negotiations between the Grand Trunk directors and the government, which commenced on British soil in February, 1918, have at last been brought to fruition in Ottawa. A contract has been drawn up and, subject to the approval of the shareholders of the company on the one hand and of parliament on the other, a contract through which the Dominion will acquire the Grand Trunk Pacific railways which it already possesses, will this session be implemented into law. Roughly speaking the terms of the contract are as follows: Firstly, the government guarantees interest on twelve and a half million pounds of guaranteed bonds. This interest will amount to about two and a half million dollars per year. Secondly, there is a mortgage consisting of thirty-one million pounds, of debentures which will be a first charge against the gross earnings of the road, and the interest on which the road is now paying. Thirdly, the government will acquire at a price to be fixed by arbitration first, second and third preference stock of the company, and one million of thirty-seven million pounds. The board of arbitration will consist of one person appointed by the government, one by the company, and one by the two appointees mentioned, and in case of failure to agree, the third will be appointed by a judge of the supreme court of Canada, a judge of the Ontario supreme court and a judge of the Exchequer court. No maximum or minimum value is suggested to the arbitrators, who are empowered to apportion the value among the various shareholders. The government thereupon issues non-voting bonds which will be given an exchange on the basis of the allotment made by the board. In the case of an unanimous report there should be an appeal. Other wise an appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court of Canada, or to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council if the material has not been submitted to the board which is material to its findings. ### CINCINNATI JUBILANT OVER ITS CHAMPIONS

Mayor Proclaimed a Holiday Yesterday and Devoted Itself to An Official Celebration.

RAIN INTERFERED WITH PROGRAMME

Victorious Heroes of the Baseball World Feted and Dined by the City—Got Their Share of Money.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 10.—Today, Cincinnati abandoned itself to the official celebration of the triumph of the Cincinnati Nationals in the World's Championship baseball series. Acting Mayor Jacobs proclaimed a public holiday between the hours of 8 a. m. and 12 noon, but rain caused a postponement of what was planned to be one of the most impressive parts of the hastily improvised program.

The Reds arrived in Cincinnati shortly after seven o'clock, and it seemed that half of the city was at the Central Union Railroad Station to greet them on their return from Chicago.

Cheers Racked Building. When the train pulled in the building rocked from the cheers, and when the Reds alighted from their train a wild scene of enthusiasm ensued. The crowd called the players by their first names and cheered them all, individually and collectively. The players had to fight their way through the crowd to reach automobiles in which they were taken to the Business Men's Club, where an elaborate breakfast had been prepared for them. Fans on foot followed the automobiles and there was quiet a parade formed. Meanwhile, church bells, fire engine bells and factory steamboats and locomotive whistles added to the din. The elementary schools closed down until noon, and the high schools for all day and the pupils hurried down town to catch a glimpse of the new world champions. There were 400 speeches at the Club breakfast. Instead all devoted themselves to rejoicing over the victory. But there was one chant that seemed popular, it was this: "Who took the sleep out of Gleason?" Then the rain came up, as a result of which the demonstration planned for Fountain Square was postponed. Instead, the players went to Redland Field, where they held their last meeting of the season and prepared to receive their World Series checks as the victors.

Comiskey's Compliment

Chicago, Ill., October 10.—The Cincinnati Reds achieved the world's baseball championship because they played better baseball than his club, the Chicago White Sox, Charles Comiskey, owner of the losing team said today. Expressing disappointment at the fall down of what he termed "The greatest ball team that ever went into a World Series, Comiskey asserted, "as long as I could not win, I'm glad to let it go to Gary Hermann and Pat Moran."

NATIONALIZATION MINES REGARDED POLITICAL ISSUE

Lloyd George Says Whole Issue is for the Nation to Decide Not Any Section of the Country.

London, Oct. 10.—An official report of the speech of Premier Lloyd George to the miners' delegation yesterday shows that he declared the nationalization of mines was a political issue which must be decided by the whole nation, and not by a section of the country. The Premier added that if his expression of the government's view on nationalization was unacceptable to the nation, there were means whereby the nation could not only carry out nationalization but could also carry out the government.

A Trip To The Orient Described

Rev. A. E. Armstrong of Toronto Gave Illustrated Lecture on Missionary Work in the Far East at St. Andrew's Church Last Night.

The Mission Stations of the Far East, was the subject of an excellent address given last evening in the St. Andrew's Church school house by Rev. A. E. Armstrong of Toronto. The lecture was under the auspices of the W. M. S. The Rev. F. S. Dowling, pastor of the church, presiding.

After an opening prayer and hymn Mr. Dowling introduced the lecturer as the assistant secretary of the Presbyterian Foreign Missionary Board who by the generosity of a number of individuals has been able to make a tour to the missions of the Orient.

Mr. Armstrong began by stating that his tour of China, Japan, Korea and Formosa confirmed what he had always believed that the missionary results were tremendously worth while. With the little experience and the little resources a wonderful work had been accomplished.

Speaking of the revolution in Korea he said that the Presbyterian missionaries who have returned to the United States declare that the world has another Belgium on its hands. Japan is the only nation in the world now with Prussian militarism and the Koreans are being treated by the Japanese with Prussian militarism and the Koreans are being treated by the Japanese with Prussian militarism and the Koreans are being treated by the Japanese with Prussian militarism.

The lecture was illustrated with splendid lantern views of photographs taken by Mr. Armstrong on his trip. He showed many pictures of congregations in Korea where ten years ago there were seven Christians and now there are 2,000, of boys and girls schools, speaking of the need for $50,000 to enlarge this work, of medical missions where at one hospital Dr. Martin of Newfoundland treated over 3,000 cases, and many fine views of beautiful scenery. One picture showed 1,000 women assembled for a Bible study convention in Korea and another 500 men gathered in the same way. He spoke of the fact that the foreign congregations never forget to pray for Canadians and that a conference bearing of the forward movement set aside a week of prayer for it.

The scenes in China and Japan were most interesting and the entire talk was instructive and inspiring. Judge Forbes moved a vote of thanks which was seconded by Alex. Wilson. Rev. Canon Daniel pronounced the benediction at the close of the lecture. Mrs. James McDeviss acted as accompanist for the hymns.

GROUND FOR CONFIDENCE. We sometimes want to know how well a man has done when we are asked for an opinion as to how well he will do.

We almost instinctively judge the future by the past; this is reasoning by induction, a process that generally leads to right conclusions.

Certainly, it is reasonable to believe that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has accomplished for others it can and will accomplish for you, provided of course you are afflicted in like manner.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has made thousands healthy and strong by purifying and enriching the blood, curing diseases of the stomach, liver and kidneys, restoring appetite, relieving rheumatism, dizziness, indigestion, building up the whole system. Its record of cures of blood diseases, scrofula, salt rheum or eczema, psoriasis, pimples, hives and other eruptions, catarrh, dyspepsia and rheumatism is in thousands of letters voluntarily and gratefully written and forming a colossal volume of testimony. Surely anybody suffering from any of these diseases is fully justified in giving this medicine a trial.

The Quick Way to Stop a Cough

This home-made syrup does the work in a hurry and saves about 50%.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It is cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-oz bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. If desired, thus you make 10 ounces—family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly loosens the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. FOOD FOR THOUGHT ON MATTERS PERTAINING TO HARBOR CONTROL Intelligent Facts Herewith Given the People of St. John That They May be Fully Cognizant of the Status of the Harbor Proposition Upon Which a Plebiscite Soon Must be Taken.

St. John, N. B., Oct. 9, 1919. Editor, St. John Standard. Sir:—At some future time the taxpayers of this city, as owners of St. John Harbor, may be called upon, to exercise their opinions as to the best means of operating the harbor. A definite expression of opinion must be given whether the harbor, operated under a Commission appointed by the Dominion Government, will be destructive or constructive of results, as will greatly facilitate and encourage the greater volume of trade, which we have the right to anticipate, on account of our geographical position. Whether the harbor is to be operated as at present, or to be the property of the Dominion Government and operated by a Commission appointed by that Government, or to be nationalized.

The plebiscite to be ordered will determine whether the civic authorities may sell the harbor for an amount determined upon and that the harbor may be operated by an appointed commission. If a plebiscite should return a majority as opposed to the sale and a Harbor Commission, then it is to be assumed, that such a majority is either in favor of maintaining present conditions or of having the Port nationalized.

In order that an intelligent conclusion may be arrived at, the taxpayers should have every opportunity afforded them for familiarizing themselves with conditions at present obtaining. They should be placed in a position to say whether they are satisfied with the present and past efforts of Civic and Federal authorities towards furnishing such modern and complete facilities, recognized as most essential to the securing of success in the volume of trade, as the geographical position of the Port warrants, or whether the sale of the Harbor and its operation by a commission would ensure the creation of improved conditions, by furnishing adequate facilities for handling the increased volume of trade, and in doing so, whether the Commission would be expected to make the Port self-sustaining, by the imposition of such a schedule of rates as would meet the cost of operations, including the interest on bonds issued for the expenditures on necessary construction, or in lieu of either, would be desirable to nationalize the Port and depend upon the Government of Canada to make such expenditures as it might deem necessary, with such rates as would be attractive to shippers, transportation companies, etc., leaving any deficits due to the operation chargeable to the Canadian people as a whole.

Important questions for consideration would appear to be: How are we to secure, and as speedily as possible, these improved and much desired conditions, at the minimum of cost to St. John? Can we secure, and by what means, such a contract with the Dominion Government, as will impose upon it a specific amount of expenditures as will eventually furnish the Port with the necessary facilities for handling the trade as it offers?

If a contract be entered into, involving the sale of the Harbor and its operation by a commission, will the interest on the bonds for the purchase of the Harbor and expenditure on construction, be chargeable to the Port and if so, how long will it take, and by what schedule of rates, may the commission hope to increase the volume of trade to such an extent as to eliminate such deficits as may occur during the years of preliminary construction, and the building up of that trade?

If such a contract be not entered into, then by what means is it proposed to develop the Port? Will St. John continue to carry the load, or will it permit the development to rest with the Dominion Government and have such expenditures made, as in its wisdom, may seem fit and proper?

If under Harbor Commission the Port is expected to be self-sustaining, and such rates and fees must be imposed to make it so, then the matter would appear to have resolved itself into a question—whether the shipping must carry the load of development or the Dominion Government, under nationalization?

In order that all information available on the subject of the Port's development may be placed before the public, I take the liberty of furnishing the following, as a portion, relating to past intentions.

On the twelfth day of September, 1911, an agreement was entered into between the King, the City of Saint John, and the Canadian Pacific Railway a complete copy of which was embodied in an Act to confirm, and passed by the Provincial Legislature in 1912. This Act is printed in New Brunswick Acts of the Legislative Assembly, 2 George V, 1912, page 235. For those who may not feel sufficiently interested to read the Act, the following portions of the Schedule may be interesting:

And whereas, His Majesty is desirous of creating and extending harbor improvements and facilities upon certain portion of the said lands, and particularly upon the portion thereof in which the Company has an interest as aforesaid.

And whereas, for the purpose of enabling His Majesty to provide increased accommodation for the handling of traffic through the Port of St. John, the City has agreed to convey to His Majesty the parcel or tract of land hereinafter described as Parcel Number Two, reserving to the City the land and harbor property and wharves situated thereon now owned and occupied by the Company and lying between the part of His Majesty's and the northernly limits of the sixteen hundred foot strip and partly upon "the sixteen hundred foot strip."

And this Indenture further witnesseth, that the City in consideration of the premises and of the covenants hereinafter contained, and by and on the part of His Majesty to be kept, observed and performed, doth hereby grant, bargain and sell unto His Majesty, his heirs and successors, all that tract of land hereinafter referred to as Parcel Number Two, and described as follows, that is to say:

TEMPERANCE LESSON. In San Francisco, at a launching of a ship, a staunch temperance advocate exclaimed: "I strongly object to the custom of christening ships with champagne. 'I don't see why you should; there's a great temperance lesson in the ceremony," declared a local magnate. "How's that?" demanded the prohib. "I exclaimed the magnate, 'the ship starts off with a bottle of champagne. Immediately afterwards it takes to water and sticks to it for the rest of its days.'"

RAILWAY CONNECTIONS.

When announcement was made of the selection of Dr. A. P. Barnhill as a member of the Board of Directors of the Canadian National Railways the people of St. John were naturally highly gratified. The impression prevailed that Union Government had acted wisely in choosing a man of wide business experience, with time to devote to the interests of the railway system, and in every way capable of protecting St. John's interests while maintaining the fairest possible attitude towards other sections of the country. It was anticipated, and there was reason for the belief, that Dr. Barnhill's presence on the Board would result in St. John, and indeed the Maritime Province generally, receiving full consideration at the hands of the management in the operation of trains in eastern lines. Hence the announcement that with the inauguration of the new time table, which took place during the past week, this city remained without recognition, while Prince Edward Island was apparently entirely cut off, was received with a feeling of some surprise. It can only be inferred that the schedule now in effect was prepared without the knowledge of Dr. Barnhill, which should certainly not have been the case, or that it was adopted in opposition to his representations. The latter can scarcely be the case and we may expect that, realizing the manner in which the Board of Management has treated St. John and Prince Edward Island, especially with respect to the Ocean Limited connections, Dr. Barnhill will make such representations to Toronto as will result in early reconsideration of the existing arrangement and the introduction of such changes as will permit to these communities the enjoyment of advantages of which they are now deprived. By the exercise of his influence in this regard Dr. Barnhill will merit the appreciation and confidence with which his appointment to the Board of Directors was greeted by the people of this province.

NOTHING TO DO.

The younger generation in St. John complains that there is nothing to do. The boys who have come back from overseas and the girls who worked at home in that time of stress are looking for pleasure and are not finding it. Between the ages of twenty and thirty years, men and women alike seek entertainment and are not disposed to sit quietly at home reading or sewing or having a game, as is the more common custom of the older folks. People cannot exactly live at the movies, yet when a couple of even large are spent at the theatres, the possibilities of entertainment are about exhausted. There are a few small dance halls in St. John, entirely inadequate to meet the demands of this city, and they are generally crowded to the doors. But all people do not care for dancing. There are no public entertainments worth speaking of excepting a semi-occasional concert and a rare lecture. The institutions which are supposed to cater to the requirements of young men and young women are patronized, but naturally they do not undertake to provide constant entertainment, and the inducements which they hold out are not sufficient to draw the thousands who wander about the streets or sit moping in their homes. There are occasional small groups who manage to spend their time more or less usefully, though no doubt pleasantly, but the great majority are deprived of the opportunity to improve their minds by lectures, by classes of various sorts, by courses of study, or by clubs, and quite naturally under these circumstances they seek either entertainment and fall to find it.

Nothing to Mourn Over. (Sydney Bulletin.) For good or evil the destinies of this Commonwealth are linked up for a number of years to come with those of Britain. We are fated to stand or fall as a nation with the rest of the Empire. The Universal Housing Problem. (Singapore Free Press.) Much building is going on in Singapore now and there are slight indications that a number of houses pre-empted by a warlike ally may in the not distant future be available for others. The situation is still sufficiently serious to cause apprehension to men and families returning to the Colony as to where they will live. Bring Your Problems to Us. (Uganda Herald.) It is not going too far to think that we could save Africa from chaos and solve that problem which America cannot solve, while the West Indies made such a great fiasco of, and which South Africa is just realizing she ought to have thought of a generation ago, the impact of Black on White and how the two can work together in unity. Celebrating Peace at the Equator. (Zanzibar Gazette.) The dance will long be memorable as the response to a great historic occasion calling for real effort to outshine past achievements, and in this it must have been specially gratifying to the host and hostesses who were thereby shown that the present can vie with the past and that old Zanzibar the Mother City of the East Coast is equal to the youngest of them when anything special is called for and has to be done. There was a evidence that their profits are not unreasonable and have not been increased of late years to an extent greater than the legitimate costs of business justify. It must be admitted that the methods of the Board of Commerce are at times rather strenuous and quite possibly some merchants not deserving of criticism have been placed at a disadvantage by reason of the form of procedure adopted at these inquiries. Yet in view of the improper practices which have been revealed in numerous instances it is scarcely right to wholly condemn the board even though some innocent dealers may suffer. The better plan will be for the merchants, either wholesalers or retailers, who are summoned before the court, to justify whatever conduct on their part may be questioned.

The Retail Merchants' Convention also devoted some time to the progress of organized labor and entered a protest against the interference which labor now appears to exert in every phase of our national life. Undoubtedly the success which labor has achieved has been due to efficient organization, and aggressiveness, while mercantile interests, and particularly retailers, have not in the past enjoyed the benefits of co-operation. They have been deprived of the strength which union gives, but should be able as a class to exert a very powerful influence if all work together. Yet underlying this acknowledgment of their own shortcomings, as evidenced by lack of action in past years, the merchants express a feeling which is becoming very general, that certain branches of organized labor, led astray by radical leaders, are adopting an attitude hostile to the best interests of the country.

TREAT THE COW LIKE A LADY.

The cow is coming into her own. According to the New York Herald the national milk producer should be treated like a lady, for the popular belief that the cow is naturally indifferent to her personal appearance is declared to be quite erroneous. A surprising amount of femininity develops when cows are given attention, and little touches to the toilet are unmistakably appreciated. The daily bath, according to Mr. John Wanamaker, is almost a necessity, and "Bossy" should be doted up at least once in every twenty-four hours. Another newspaper comes along with the declaration that cows respond immediately to the influence of good music and that if milked to the accompaniment of Mozart or Beethoven, will yield their particular specialty in greater abundance than when the operation is conducted in an indifferent manner. One cow, whose record has been very carefully kept, produces forty-five quarts of milk in every twenty-four hours, being milked every six hours in the strains of the violin and piano. The increased production under the influence of music varies from ten to twelve per cent. Manicuring produces four per cent. additional, while the daily shampoo improves the quality of the milk in a very marked degree.

HOW MUCH DID IT COST?

The little bit of paving on Germain street between King and Union streets is now almost finished. Will Commissioner Fisher be so good as to give the public detailed information covering the cost of that work together with such other information regarding the time occupied, the number of men employed, hours per day worked, since the job was started.

BY LEE PAPE. Teachers. No school is complete without a teacher, and no teacher is complete without a school, although both of them would be more popular without either. Teachers are all ages, but they are getting younger all the time. Most of them are female gender by birth. When a teacher gets married she stops teaching. This would make the pupils much gladder if another teacher did not come to take her place right away. It would be impossible to have an education without teachers, but most children would just as soon not have an education if anybody asked them their opinion, with nobody does. When children grow up they send their own children to school for revenge, and thus education will never die out. The main difference between teachers and pupils is that teachers can walk out whenever they want to and never come back, any they don't, while pupils have to keep on setting there and come back the next day, which they do. Some teachers are popular even though they are teachers, which proves how much more popular they would be if they weren't. Most teachers know more than their pupils, thus making it very convenient for them. Some things teachers are supposed to know are physiology, geometry, history, arithmetic, reading, singing and keeping in after school. Some pupils give their teachers presents, such as trees and oranges, hoping they won't take it but not asking for it back in case they do.

It's Hard to Forget.

Natal would gladly march, we believe behind the banner of any great South African leader, Dutch or English, along the path of national development; for its belief in the future of the Empire is profound and unshakable. But can Natal be blamed if it is slow to strike hands with those not inconsiderable elements in our nation to whom the hour of Britain's greatest extremity seemed the long-looked-for hour of their own national "deliverance"?

A BIT OF VERSE

THE FIRES OF PEACE. (July 19, 1919.) On cliff and mountain height has tumbled down The crown of light triumphant Peace had brought Veiled is each head in nothingness and night, The glad and lustre pale to naught. Fallen are the diadems from every hill And split their gems; Their rubies which once burned so rosy red, Now turned to ashes of dull pearl, are dead And show no flashes of an afterglow. Gone all this beaconing of men's frail hands, Which for a giddy hour shone far and clear. Alone Truth's watchfire stands, the same in power, Pure, strong and sure and never weak. And through the cloudy mists of war and fear Speaks with quick tongues of flame The old and true words of a prophet: "I will show you flashes of an afterglow." Where its streams toss—snatch thou a brand! Speed it a fiery cross, bear it on high Throughout the land, that every eye may read Its fire-flung messages, every ear may catch Its silent music and rejoice to hear The still voice of its magic minstrelsy. Epit. Now, mid the flare of victory, when sink So many broken hearts, to mourn and weep. Let Pity's cry be heard, This is her call, That Britain think of them with loving care And her great heart be stirred, duty to keep. In reverence, a sober carnival. Fred G. Fenney in The Colonial Institute Journal.

Park—Oh, yes. Not only finished, but all my friends had had time to tell me how much better it might have been. Wasted. "I've sent you twenty bills for that account." "Well, some time," said the incorrigible debtor, "you'll get a sense enough to stop wasting postage." Louisville Courier-Journal. Her Studies. "So your daughter is musical?" "Yes." I liked the gown she wore, and I want to have another look at it.—Boston Transcript. Popularity. "Aren't you afraid some of the things you say will make you unpopular at home?" "No," replied Senator Sorghum. "A little unpopularity won't hurt. For a while I was getting to be so universally popular that folks began to wonder whether I wasn't becoming merely indifferent and inefficiently good-natured."—Washington Star.

FUR AUCTION SALE REACHES TOTAL OF $5,500,000

Skunk, Regarded in Commercial Circles as America's Leading Fur, Took the Honors Yesterday. Special to The Standard. New York, Oct. 10.—Skunk, which is regarded in commercial circles as America's leading fur, took the honors today at the annual fall auction in the Masonic Temple here. It brought a top price of $9 per skin, and showed an advance of 25 per cent. over the prices paid for this fur at the April sale in this city. A buyer of prime black and blue cat skins got up-bid when he purchased the best lot at $1.50 each. This was said to be the highest price ever paid for an ordinary house cat skin at an auction here. It was reported that many of the best cat skins were to be exported to Europe to be put up into cheap "fur" sets. A good share of the skunk skins were also bought for export as skunk is in fashion's favor on both sides of the Atlantic more strongly than any of the other state furs. Civet cat, which showed a gain of 35 per cent. over the prices it fetched at the April sale of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation, brought a top price of $1.06 per skin. Despite the fact that the auctioning of 22 varieties of furs, the general head of the auction, which concludes tomorrow, at $5,500,000.

Autumn Coats To Be Fur Trimmed

Pockets Are in Evidence—Mouflon is a Popular Fur—The Darker Tweeds Are Greatly Favored. (By Mary Pitcairn in The Daily Express.) The entry of autumn and the return of the costume rather than the frock, naturally mean a rush to the tailor's if only to find out what is definitely decreed for the coming season. There is a distinct liking for the darker tweeds at the moment, generally of the mixed order with a contrasting color, which can be emphasized by the gay tones of the new felt hats. A certain severity rules too in the general fashioning, giving a very workmanlike appearance to the whole. I am speaking, of course, of the really tailor-built designs, such as the best furs are now creating, but since it is not given to every one to feel at home in these models, notice of the whole question of autumn costumes.

How tremendous and trying this burden has been illustrated sadly of late. Men of vigorous health and strong constitution have been unable to endure under it. Louis Botha's death in South Africa was the direct result of the cares of his office. He gave his life for his country and the Empire as truly as if he had died on the battlefield. In England Lord Rhonda went to his grave under the burden of public service. Now in the United States Mr. Wilson is seriously sick from the same cause. The work and worry of the administration of his country's affairs and the struggle with great questions have cost his health. And in our own country Premier Borden's health gave way as a result of too close devotion to duty. Botha, Wilson and Borden were all men of robust health. And for their great sacrifices, what do they receive? Comparatively little financial remuneration and far more blame than praise. The country should heed Sir George Foster's plea. Criticism of the conduct and policies of public men there must be, but there should at the same time be more of acknowledgement of their services and sacrifices.

Western Lib's Adrift. (Montreal Gazette.) Interest has been excited in the western provinces by the nomination of W. H. Motherson as a straight Liberal candidate for the by-election to the House of Commons for Assiniboia, Saskatchewan. Mr. Motherson last year created some local sensation by resigning his position in the government of Saskatchewan because, as he said, W. M. Martin, the premier, was too much under the influence of hon. Mr. Calder and was not active enough in combating the Union Government at Ottawa. It was on this occasion that Mr. Motherson advised the Liberals to get in behind the Frenchman and win, the Frenchman being Laurier, Mr. Turin, whose appointment to the Senate caused the vacancy, was elected as a Liberal Unionist, and at the convention which selected Mr. Motherson, it was suggested that no action should be taken till the time of the general election which many seem to think is not far off. The fighting spirit was the day however, in a rather small convention. The Winnipeg Free Press says, in referring to the situation, that "little hope was expressed at the meeting of a successful result to the enterprise; but it was explained that it would mark the beginning of a definite campaign, to be carried on under the direction of the new Dominion organization, on behalf of the (Mackenzie King) Liberals, which, it was hoped, would check the drift to the new party."

Need of Union. (London Free Press.) Sir Robert Borden gave himself up wholly to the great duties to which he was called. He found men opposed to him in party politics who were prepared to join him to help in piloting Canada through a sea of troubles in which she might well have been engulfed. She was faced with grave danger but she was saved by great patriotism. The term of Union Government depends on something else than party unrest. As a matter of fact party unrest at the present time is a negligible quantity. There is no doubt whatever that the great masses of Conservatives and Liberals in Canada are firmly convinced that the interests of their country require men of both parties at the head of its affairs. It is the man above all others who has their confidence as the national leader is Sir Robert Borden.

Canada a Nation. (Quebec Telegraph.) The root of the doubt expressed by the Liberal opposition in the Commons as to the expediency of a ratification by Canada of the peace and the League Covenant seems to be in the fact that while Canada is asked to assume the liabilities of a sovereign nation, she does not enjoy those rights and privileges. In theory, though not in fact, Canada is still a colony of Great Britain. In all essential points of national conduct our will is supreme, as expressed at Ottawa. At the same time, our legal status is far below the dignity of our actual powers. To outside observers Canada is but the tail of the British Lion—and it is the lion that wags the tail and not vice versa either. Canada cannot declare peace or war, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's famous remark that when Britain is at war, Canada is at war, is absolutely true. We have indeed no existence in the international world. We have no diplomatic corps, we are quite unrepresented at all foreign courts; we do not even dare to create a department of foreign affairs as they have in South Africa, nor to appoint an ambassador to Washington—he is to be simply "high commissioner."

When Canada assumes the obligations of a state in ratifying the peace treaty, she should demand also the full privileges of a state. The British Empire, and the British monarchy will be none the less real when Canada manages her own foreign affairs, declares her own peace and war, and maintains her own foreign ambassadors. This is an opportunity. Let the Government rise to the occasion. Let the treaty be ratified upon one condition and that one—Canada be granted the full legal status of a sovereign state, her legislature equal with that at Westminster as a governing power with the British Empire.

Trouble in Quebec. In Quebec East the Liberal chiefs are worried over the number of aspirants for the party nomination, whose rivalries are creating a possibility of an independent, if not a Conservative, being chosen to fill Sir Wilfrid Laurier's seat. In Carleton-Victoria, the former nominee has had the race to himself so far. In Glengarry-Stormont and Ontario North, as in Assiniboia, the contest, so far as present indications show, will be between Liberals and farmers. In Kingston, though the road is not yet smooth, Sir Henry Drayton, minister of finance, will likely be a candidate and be elected, while in Victoria, B. C., Hon. Mr. Devon, who may be opposed by a soldier, is fairly sure to be returned. recent declarations by some unwise soldiers' representatives before the parliamentary committee at Ottawa not being calculated to help the soldiers in a political way.

IMPORTANT RESOLUTIONS WERE ADOPTED BY THE MERCHANTS

The Closing Day of the Retailers Was Busy With Discussions of Recommendation For Legislation.

Special to The Standard.

Moncton, Oct. 9.—The morning session opened at 10 o'clock with President A. O. Skinner in the chair.

The reports of the different branches were scheduled as the first business part of the session, but owing to the absence of some, the reports were postponed until later. The meeting then turned to the consideration of the following resolutions:

1. That it be a recommendation from this board to the Dominion board that legislation be secured, making Thanksgiving Day a permanent day to celebrate the day of Peace, and that this and armistice day be made on Monday. Carried.

2. That it be a recommendation from this board to the Dominion board that full enquiry be made as to the practicability that a number of the forms which are sent to the members by this department at Ottawa asking for information relative to their business, and see if it is not possible to have many of the questions asked eliminated. Carried.

3. That it be a recommendation from this convention that a special committee be appointed to gather full information concerning the advisability of a fire insurance department similar to that now in operation by the Saskatchewan provincial board. Carried.

4. That it be a recommendation from this convention that a special committee be appointed to examine the legislation that has been passed creating a Workmen's Compensation Department, and requesting them to ascertain the cause of same, and the position that these merchants are in who do not come under these operations. Left over for report of committee appointed which will be presented to the executive meeting in St. John tomorrow.

5. That it is the opinion of this convention that the manner in which the Board of Commerce is conducting its inquiry into the high cost of living is by no means satisfactory, and that it is not producing the result that it was intended the board should produce, and we believe that its operations will not be carried out satisfactorily until the investigations and operation of the board are placed under the direction of competent commercial men, and we ask that this matter be referred to the Dominion executive council with the request that they make every effort to have our wishes carried out. Carried.

6. That this convention again place itself on record as being strongly opposed to the present method of distributing parcel post matter through the mails, and that we are strongly opposed to having money taken from the Dominion Treasury to pay losses that are made by the parcel post department of the post office, and that we again urge the members of the Dominion executive council to take some definite action in this matter so as to have the present unfair system remedied. Carried.

7. That it be a recommendation from this convention that a special committee be appointed to consider the advisability of some features to the credit reporting department so as to improve same. Carried.

8. That this convention endorse the proposed legislation of the opticians' section of our association, and that the officers of the New Brunswick Provincial Board be requested to give them all the assistance possible in their endeavor to have it made law. Left over to meeting of executive.

9. That it be a recommendation from this convention to the members of the Dominion executive council that they prepare and publish suitable bulletins that can be given to our members to place in parcels so as to educate our customers of the importance and necessity of retail merchants in a community. Carried.

TREACHERY AT ARCHANGEL

"Friendly" Troops the Greatest Danger — Stab in the Back.

(London Times).

One of the tasks of those who fed the British public with "news" about north Russia was to inspire our confidence in the Russian formations which we had created, and which we were nursing for the task of carrying on after our departure.

We were given to understand that offensive operations were mainly carried out by these troops with a mere backing of British. That is not true, with the exception of the Russian gunners, who were loyal on all occasions and never hesitated to fire on their malicious competitors, the Russian troops were absolutely untrustworthy.

Deserters.

The men were recruited mainly from Bolshevik deserters and prisoners, and in the most reckless fashion. No test of suitability for recruitment was made; men were asked to volunteer, and they did so rather than go to prison. A few hours after prisoners were brought in they were dressed

"77" FOR COLDS

During the last epidemic of influenza it was said that six months' supply of drugs and medicine was exhausted in six days. Among these was Dr. Humphreys' "Seventy-seven."

The cause was partly due to the abnormal demand, but largely to every one anticipating their wants.

We now appeal to our friends to conserve their supply of "Seventy-seven." Don't buy more than you need; don't take more than is necessary. Study and follow directions.

At all Drug and Country Stores.

Humphreys' Home Medicine Co. 116 William Street, New York.

but it was common knowledge that some of them had served with the enemy and retained Bolshevik sympathies. Some, indeed—such as the regimental sergeant-major of Dyer's Battalion—were pointed out as Bolshevik spies.

A British liaison officer was attached to each Russian company, but as these officers were there solely in a consultative or advisory capacity and possessed no executive authority, they were held in no esteem. They carried no weight, and, if they gave an order, did so in the certainty that it would be ignored, overriden, or socially disobeyed. No expense was spared in the clothing and equipment of these useless and treacherous troops, and they were pampered in all kinds of ways. They always had their fill of food, and if rations were short, it was the British soldier who suffered.

They were pampered in vain. At the exact moment when our ears were being filled with wonderful tales about "Ironside broadsides" and our eyes were being dazzled with pictures of the solemn and splendid ceremony of the presentation of colours to Dyer's Battalion, the plot was being hatched for the mutiny in which the Russian units murdered their British officers in cold blood and deserted in a body to the enemy.

Native Levies.

There never was satisfactory ground for believing that native levies raised in this manner would turn out to be capable soldiers and trustworthy friends in battle. That such a belief existed testified to the unfitness for their job of the military authorities in Russia. The Russian troops, by reason of their untrustworthiness and their numbers—there were over 20,000 in the Archangel sector alone—constituted a standing menace to the security of our own soldiers. They were really far more to be feared than the Bolsheviks, because they were in a position treacherously to stab us in the back. They have done so already, and they will do it again if they get the chance, probably at the difficult moment of withdrawal.

More Farms-Good Times

How it Affects You

Among our returned soldiers there are thousands of practical farmers. Still other thousands are studying farming under Canada's supervision, by hiring out to farmers, and by taking courses in agricultural colleges. These men want to "go on the land," but they have no capital. So, through the medium of the Soldiers' Land Settlement Act, Canada says to them "If you are fully qualified to farm, I will lend you money to purchase land, stock and implements. You may pay it back within a stated time, and for the loan of it, I will charge you only a moderate rate of interest."

Canada makes this offer, not only because men who have fought deserve well of their country, but because it is of prime importance that more land should be cultivated.

The love of outdoor life and the resourcefulness of our soldier citizens are just the qualities to make them successful farmers, and upholders of the best Canadian tradition.

As evidence of the value of the Land Settlement Act, the following figures were available on August 15:--

Number of applications from soldiers.....	29,495
Number of applications investigated and approved (not all placed).....	22,281
Number of soldiers actually farming this year.....	9,043
Average amount of loan to each soldier....	$2,960
Total amount of loans.....	$26,767,304
Average size of farm.....	160 acres
Total amount of homestead lands—that is, virgin soil placed under cultivation.....	1,000,000 acres

This million acres was divided among 3,768 soldiers, 160 acres each being the original allotment; but 2,512 soldiers availed themselves of the privilege open to all soldier-homesteaders to obtain an additional 160 acres, making their allotment 320 acres each.

In addition to a million acres of virgin soil already placed under cultivation, more than 6,000 other farms are now being worked, many of which would have been less productive if returned soldiers had not taken them over.

It is just as true to-day as it was before the war that big crops favorably marketed mean general prosperity for Canada.

The more wheat and farm products Canada grows and sells, the more money will be spread through all classes of the community. Not only the farmer, but the merchant, the manufacturer, the industrial wage earner and the professional man will benefit.

Here is where YOU come in. $24,000,000 of the forthcoming Victory Loan will be used to make loans to soldier farmers.

By purchasing Victory Bonds you will help the soldier who is starting life anew on the farm as well as sharing in this national investment in farm development. You will not only get good interest on your money with the best security, but you will participate in the increased general prosperity which greater farm production brings.

Get ready to join in the promotion of greater national prosperity, therefore, by subscribing to the

MAKE 186 I. W. W. KNEEL AND KISS AMERICAN FLAG

Wetron, W. Va., Oct. 9.—Sheriff Cooper and fifty deputies arrested 186 men today in a raid on what was supposed to be I. W. W. headquarters, marched them to the public square, and forced them to kneel and kiss the American flag. Six were then locked up and the rest driven out of town.

A search disclosed a large quantity of "red" literature—half a ton, it was said—in which the flag of anarchy was extolled and the prediction made that the extremists would rule the world. The deputies also found the names of 187 men supposed to be members of the organization meeting in the barn. Immediately deputies were sent out and the men were rounded up in the public square. There was one fight after another in bringing the men to the square, and even after they were corralled there was resistance when the deputies gave them the option of kissing the flag or going to jail.

It is claimed that most of the men were Finnish furnace workers and that they came here from Woodlawn, Pa., near Pittsburgh, a few days ago. The record of the men at Woodlawn is being investigated by state and federal authorities.

Lease Signed For Martello Hotel

Board of Protestant Orphans' Home Held Meeting Yesterday—Building at West Side Given Clean Bill of Health.

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Protestant Orphan Home was held yesterday T. H. Estabrooks presiding.

After a discussion of the enlargement of the institution by the acquiring of the Martello Hotel property, West St. John, the president was voted power to sign the lease from the Government with the Department of Militia at Ottawa.

Plans for the renovation and repairing of the building are already in hand and will be proceeded with promptly.

President Estabrooks made an opening of the British street establishment for 45 children and of the possible 40 additional children in the West Side Orphanage, arriving at a figure of $15,000.

It was estimated that subsequent years would require considerably less money, as the initial cost of the second building would not have to be met again.

Tenders have been received for the complete renovation of the Martello Hotel building and a committee consisting of Joseph Likely, David Hipwell, C. H. Peters and J. Khag Kelley will decide upon the work today.

After the meeting a furnishing committee consisting of Mrs. David Hipwell, C. H. Peters and J. Khag Kelley will decide upon the work today.

The committee of management for the West Side Home will be the same as the present one for the British street establishment for early occupancy.

President Estabrooks, denying a rumor that the ex-military hospital (Martello Hotel) was unfit for occupancy by reason of the McDONALD, Waterloo; Catherine McDonald, Waterloo; Mrs. J. Owens, Coburg; F. R. Paterson, Duke; A. Simmons, Mrs. A. Simmons, Eileen Simmons, Lancaster avenue; W. L. Stovell, Mrs. T. Smith, Park Hotel; M. L. Vinnel, Coburg; W. P. Whelpley, Chubb.

The present enlarged scheme is considered by the directors as only temporary, and for the increased number of orphans and the ultimate plan for a large central institution is still very much alive and will eventually be carried out.

Mlle. Verlet To Give Concert Wed., Oct. 22nd

Wednesday, October 22nd, we will have an opportunity to hear Mlle. Verlet, the "Little Belgian Queen of Song" as she is lovingly called in her own home country near Brussels.

Mlle. Verlet came to America direct from the Paris Grand Opera Company where she was premier coloratura soprano. She had a brilliant reputation which she acquired in musical centers of Europe and during her American tour she has only increased her fame. For American music lovers were not at all disappointed in Mlle. Verlet's marvelous voice, in spite of her great reputation.

Mlle. Verlet was in Brussels or rather at her home near Brussels when the war broke out. Of course she and her mother were obliged to close their home and flee in haste, just getting away before the Germans advanced.

Her brother was less fortunate, however. He was a retired officer in the Belgian army and after seeing his country and mother safely out of the country, he determined to go back and before his services to fight the foe. Before he could reach Antwerp, however, he was arrested by the Germans and "Arrested," we call it—but the German way of making the arrest in this case was to knock Mr. Verlet down, beat him with the butts of their rifles and then force him to march several miles to Brussels, where he was imprisoned and left two days without food. Mr. Verlet was able to escape by bribing him, and was finally taken to a hospital. Mr. Verlet's injuries proved so serious that he spent fourteen months in bed. He was quite unable to work so escaped deportation to Germany.

Mlle. Verlet's concert here will be an invitation affair and the musical fans of St. John will be there in full force. This concert will be a first class opportunity for opportunity to hear the wonderful golden voice of the gifted Belgian.

THE THREE

For eleven years Martha Footes, head housekeeper at the Senate Hotel, Chicago, had overseen, massed, and ministered, unknown, to that great careless, shifting, conglomerate mass known as the Travelling Public. Wholesale hostessing was Martha Footes' job. Senators and suffragists, ambassadors and first families had found ease and comfort under Martha Footes' regime. Her carpets had bent their backs to the tread of kings, and show girls, and buyers from Moncton. Her sheets had smoothed the tired limbs of presidents, and princesses, and prima donnas. For the Senate Hotel is more than a hotel; it is a Chicago case institution. The whole world is churning in at its revolving front door.

For eleven years Martha Footes, then she beheld humanity throwing its grimy suitcase on her immaculate white bedspread; wiping its muddy boots on her bath towels; scratching its matches on her wall paper; screwing its pencil marks on her cream woodwork; spilling its greasy crumbe on her carpet; carrying its heavy dresser scarfs and pincushions. There is no surperior test of character. Eleven years of hotel housekeeping guarantees a knowledge of human nature that includes some things no living being ought to know about her fellow men. And inevitably one of these things must follow. You degenerate into a bitter, waspish, and fault-finding shrew; or you develop into a patient, tolerant, and infinitely understanding woman. Martha Footes dealt daily with Polish scrub girls, and Irish porters and Swedish chambermaids, and Swiss waiters, and Halsted street bell-boys. Italian tenors tried onions in her Louis-Quinze suite. College boys burned cigarette holes in her best white sheets. Yet any one connected with the Senate Hotel, from Pete, the pastry cook to H. G. Featherston, the head-director, would testify that Martha Footes' serene unexcitation.

Don't gather from this that Martha Footes was a beamish, motherly person who called you dearest. Neither was she one of those managerial and magnificent blonde beings occasionally encountered in hotel corridors, engaged in addressing strict reminders to the dump and crawling hallway of called that is doing something sloppy to the good effect. Perhaps she showed credit to Martha Footes' character is through Martha Footes' bedroom. Twelfth floor. Turn to your left. That's it! 1240. Come in.

In the long years of its growth and success the Senate Hotel had known the usual growing pains. Starting with a walnut and pine, she had grown into a massive structure, broken out all over into brass beds and birds-eye maple. This in turn had meant before making any veneer and brocade. Hardly had the white scratches on these ruddy surfaces been detected by the house painter when—whick! away with the spongy stuff. And in mind—a whole troupe of near-French furnishings, growing enamel beds, cane-backed spindle-legged dressing tables before which it was impossible to dress; peacock chairs with raspberry complexion. Through all these changes Martha Footes, in her big, bright twilight floor room, had clung to her old bed, valiantly.

The bed to begin with, was a masterpiece, towering edifice with a headboard that scraped the lofty ceiling. Head and-foot-board were fretted and carved with great blocks representing grapes and corncobspikes, and tendril arched knobs and other bedevillments of the cabinet-maker's craft. It had been polished and rubbed until now it shone like soft brown satin. There was monumental dress-er, too, with a carved marble top. Along the wall near the windows, was a couch; heavy, wheezing, fatigued couch, decked out in white ruffles, as fashion dictated the more that state of Chicago, Illinois, Martha Footes kept these cushions always crisy with a hand-dressed coverlet. Her bedchamber was a superbly furnished room. The couch made you think of a plump grandmother of long gone days, a beautiful, well-to-do affair that graced the guest rooms. The solid sort of desk at which English novelist of the three-volume novel had written his reports and of books without losing his dignity cramping his style. Martha Footes used it for making out reports and between last night and this morning it was 6.30 a. m. It is bed enough open one's eyes at 6.30 on Monday morning. But to open them at 6.30 Tuesday morning, after an all-night Monday. . . . The taste of yesterday lingered, brackish, in Martha's mouth.

Oh, well, it won't be as bad as yesterday, anyway. It can't. So she sat herself, as the lay theory has never were two days like that, her running. Not even in the hotel business.

For yesterday had been what Martha Footes called a "muddy Monday." The mucky, and cozy with trouble. The conventions, three banquets, the too full of Irish that it looked like sand-storm, a threatened strike in laundry, a travelling man in twelve who had the grippe thought he was dying, a shortage towels (that bugaboo of the housekeeper) due to the laundry table that hanging to the tune of a dred damp and irate guests, weaving in and out, and above,

Simple Letters of A Simple Fellow

(By Ed. Streeter.)

Dave Mable.— I had an awful dream last night. I dreamt I was the Prince of Wales. Me an Angus had been reading about him before we went to bed. We thought he was a lucky fellow only he missed so many chances to have some fun. I dreamt he came to me an offered me 2 1/2 dollars to take his place for a day. It seems we looked just alike. He sees the Pry Minister bored him to death. If he didn't get away from him a while he was afraid he'd kill him. I took him right up an elopet that night in the royal sweet. The next morning a fellow woke me up bowin an see: "Your Royal Harness, bath is drawn." I told him he could draw it out again. There be weeds in it if he fergit to get it. Then three others came as the Smith Brothers. Everybody was treated my bedroom like it was a hotel lobby. It seems one of them was the Pry Minister. He sez did my Royal Harness forget the Mayor was goin to make him a speech of weeds at ten o'clock. An that we had to go through a lot of factories before lunch. I told him I wasn't much of a fan on that factory stuff. An if the Mayor wanted to make me a speech there was no reason why he couldn't do it while I was in bed. They whispered together a minit. Then they regotted my Royal Harness was indispored. The court doctor would be right up. The doctor didn't seem much worried. He sez it was the same old trouble an I'd take my usual

"I'm glad to hear it. That's very gratifying." Lord, sez the newspaper men could hear me. There was such a jam in front of the factory I thought there must be a strike on. I went up to a big fellow in overalls an sez "How goes it my good fello?" He sez "Sick in bed. Hows yourself?" I sez "Glad to hear it. That's very gratifying." Then I ducked behind a packing case cause I didn't see no motor cops around. When we came out of the second factory the Pry Minister whispered to me that I'd forgot to kiss any babies. I'd better go through half a dozen on right there. I looked over the babies an told em he could kiss em himself. I wasn't runnin for Prince of Wales—I was. Then we went to a big civil lunch that was being given us. I had a pretty good time there till that big fellow leaved over an sez "The Prince will only take one helping of everything." Then he handed me a speech all done up in pink ribbon. I read every other line till I got it. Then every 4th line. They all seemed to think it was fine. When we finished everybody came up an shook hands with me. It was the best speech they'd ever heard. I sat the Pry Minister after lunch if he wouldn't like to go out to a talk. He sez of course not we had some important engagements. First he dragged me out in the country to watch those put the cover off an old statue. Then down to a park where a million children was all jammed up together. The minit they saw us they

When we came on the platform an old elio with a red bandage on his chest got up an talked. They sez that was the mayor. Pretty soon the Pry Minister leaved over an topped me. ## Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest OCTOBER. I like October weather with its touch of early frost And the trees aglow with jewels which some dead thing has lost. And I like the distant hills tops looming far away from town In their garb of gold and purple and that glorious autumn brown. I like the mist that rises with the cooling of the sun To betray some bit of beauty that has just been newly done; Oh, there's nothing that's too lowly on the breast of Mother Earth To receive a touch of color as a symbol of its worth. I like October's manner for it's generous with all; Every leaf is splashed with splendor ere the day that it must fall; And it passes from its labor to its everlasting rest. Not as one that's worn and weary, but as one that's at its best. Oh, it never comes October but the thought returns to me That I'd like to go and my toiling as a leaf upon the tree. I should like to flutter eastward, touched with scarlet and with gold, And pass onward robed in splendor for the Master to behold.

TODAY'S TALK BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS. THE WAY YOU THINK.

The sound and word of what we say doesn't always square with what we think. It is so much safer and happier to take a longer time to think than to talk. And as we older grow, we learn this. There is nothing more important than the way we think. In the same way that our actions have an influence upon those who are near to us, so do our thoughts have an influence upon our thoughts yet unborn. We are our own best or worst companions. Thoughts are deeds! The way that you think is the way that you are. The philosophy of a sound mind in a sound body is one of the greatest in life. Clean thoughts are indicative of a clean and healthy body. We are stimulated by those of our friends and companions who think. The man or woman who cleanly and honestly thinks, is on the road to certain success. When a nation stops thinking, it dies and is followed by one that does think. Every process of unfolding in this world among men must continue to be fostered by serious and earnest thought. In any emergency the first thing to do is to think. The greater thing that any master of education can do, is to teach one how to think. For to think is the beginning of all action. And it is the WAY in which you think that stamps you as one of our—or worthies. Think correctly and you are bound to talk correctly. Think clearly and you are sure to live cleanly.

Ran-Dom Reels

Advice is a free gift which can be taken or left, and is usually left. The meaning of a lady who insists on throwing a plate of corn-beef hash into a patient whom he has limited to a diet of beef broth and fresh air. Advice is nearly always given verbally, with the shoulders thrown back and the chest expanded, but sometimes it is written on a typewriter and sent through the mails in the form of an anonymous letter. Most people are in favor of abolishing the electric chair until they receive their first anonymous letter, accusing them of firing with some slightly wild. The only place on this continent where advice is not free is in a law office. If everybody who gave advice would charge the regular legal rate of $5 a minute, young wives would have more time in which to learn how to cook and the dyspeptic bridegroom would become extinct.

ON THE WAY TO A BETTER DAY

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday School Lesson For October 12 is "Fishers of Men."—Mark 1:14-20. A noisy motor-boat now runs on the Lake of Galilee. It carries passengers from the station of the Hain-Damascus railroad at the foot of the lake to the town of Tiberias, the only surviving community on the edge of this once populous section of old-world Jewry maintain their ties to the mint and cunning degree—in a town of indescribable stench and unsanitary conditions. Fellow passengers on the motor-boat are Jewish colonists, British soldiers, Turkish prisoners, and native Arabs and Galileans. While we wait for our journey across the lake to begin, olive-skinned small boys sport in the water, diving for coins, their shoes shining, winsome faces, with lustrous black eyes and beautiful teeth; reminding one of that Other Boy who used to trundle across the hills from Nazareth in order to go in swarming here; and who later made his home and did his work and spoke his words by this very lake. Of course I went swimming in Galilee, overboard from a native boat in the middle of the lake; and as the water went fishing there, thinking all the while of the other fishermen, brawny, dusky fellows, just like my boatmen, who quit their nets in order to become fishers of men and moulders of the new world order which is still today the highest hope of mankind. One Prophet Dead, a Greater Comes. A Back of the short story which is the basis of today's lesson lies a great principle. John the Baptist, the rising star of his time, the most promising portent upon his day's horizon, was dead. That, news sounded like the knell of hope to many who had been fed by his assurance that the kingdom which spelt deliverance for all hurried hearts was near at hand. It seemed as if the very existence of this better day which he heralded was dependent upon the continuance of the message and ministry of John himself. If ever a man seemed indispensable to a critical time, that man was John the Baptist. And he was dead. What now of his good news and his promised kingdom? "God removes the worker, but he carries on the work." Does more than one man in a thousand care a rap what the price of meat and potatoes or the price of necessary outer garments of wool and necessary under garments of cotton? The problem, the real and burning problem, is the cost of the necessities of life. The working girl who buys expensive furs on the installment plan, the blacksmith—Mr. Lewis says they were blacksmiths—who buy silk shirts at $10 apiece are fools. The workers who do not save in their earnings day after day for their old age, and in a period of uncertainty and of waiting, betake themselves to labor, hard, engaging, unrequited labor, are the result, under the law of supply and demand, would be to send these necessities still higher. Government agencies are not going to solve this problem merely by shifting expenditures from one quarter to another. They are not going to solve it even by diverting luxury expenditures

There probably never was an old bore who did not have tales to tell or what he might have been or might have done had he seized his hour of opportunity. Forty years hence thousands of young men of today will be telling their grandchildren that they were alive throughout the world's crisis hour, but failed to see its possibilities for them. They did not have the insight and the decision to forsake all and follow the great call. Not so these four fishermen. Our hearts warm to them as men of action. They heard the voice of opportunity, the call of the New Leader, and they answered with military promptness. "Behave!" I was once visiting Culver Military Academy, at the beginning of a summer term, when the wife of the superintendent asked a new student a question about some boy's whereabouts. He answered politely that he did not know. With a smile, his questioner turned to me and said, "That is the difference between a new summer student and an old winter student. The latter would have said instantly, 'I will go and find out.'" Blessed is the education which makes doers of youth; which teaches them instinctively to put their shoulders

SILK SKIRTS, FURS AND COST OF FOOD

(New York News.) Mr. William Mather Lewis, director of the Savings Division of the Treasury Department, is right enough when he says that there is some useless and reckless spending as common a profession in this era of high cost of living. Buying fur coats by the thousands on the installment plan, as he specifies, may gratify the vanity or even warm the body of a working girl, but it will not help to keep the wolf from the door. Wage earners who buy silk shirts by the dozen at $10 apiece, larger vision and more common sense know this as well as John. He joyfully laid down his tools, and gave up his life, for the sake of the kingdom to fulfill his beginning. In Whittier's words: "What matter, I or they? Mine or another's day. So the right word be said And life the sweeter made?" "Hail to the coming saviors! Hail to the brave high-binders! Forward march and sing the song of the brave who sing and dare." "Ring, bells in unrequited steeples. The working girl who buys expensive furs on the installment plan, the blacksmith—Mr. Lewis says they were blacksmiths—who buy silk shirts at $10 apiece are fools. The workers who do not save in their earnings day after day for their old age, and in a period of uncertainty and of waiting, betake themselves to labor, hard, engaging, unrequited labor, are the result, under the law of supply and demand, would be to send these necessities still higher. Some men have that pictorial and pertinent quality called a "news sense." Their conception of time, seas and opportuneness is highly developed. The living present is their meter. They speak and write to the occasion and to the hour. Such a one was Jesus, the most vivid of teachers. On this tour of Galilee wherein he called the four first disciples, he was preaching the present good news of a kingdom near at hand—"the time is fulfilled"—and echoing John's great call to repentance. This fact is often forgotten. Jesus began his ministry by proclaiming a better social order. He was the exponent of a kingdom, an organization of men and women with God as their king. Anybody who says that religion has nothing to do with conditions in the world and with the welfare of people economically and socially, has been a blind reader of the Bible. Moreover, there will be no new era for humanity until a great many persons have heard the divine call and command, "Repent Ye!" Both nations and men will have to mend their ways if we are to have the good time which has ever been the burden of prophetic messages. Things will never be right with men until men get right with God. The "news sense" of Jesus was further illustrated by his manner of summoning the four fishermen to join him in his kingdom enterprise. As always, he avoided set forms of speech. He would not use the stereotyped phrases of the rabbis. His unconventional invitation was, "Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men." Isn't that a picture phrase? These seekers after the finer creatures of the deep were given opportunity to catch men alive. Seizing the Main Chance. There probably never was an old bore who did not have tales to tell or what he might have been or might have done had he seized his hour of opportunity. Forty years hence thousands of young men of today will be telling their grandchildren that they were alive throughout the world's crisis hour, but failed to see its possibilities for them. If there aren't enough potatoes in the country to help feed the American people how can cutting off furs and silk shirts provide the needed potatoes? How can there be any difference as to meat, eggs, milk, butter and cheese? If the grain that feeds and fattens the live stock that provides meat for man is two or three times as dear as it normally is how can meat products come back to normal, whether silk shirts are worn by one man out of a thousand or by five hundred men out of a thousand? If, because of the high prices of grains which are the basis of all food costs, man's bread and butter costs him 50 per cent, 60 per cent, or 70 per cent, more than it cost him a couple of years ago, how can the articles he produces with his labor, how can the service he performs with his labor, come back to normal prices? How can any prices come back to normal levels whether silk shirts, furs, or pearl necklaces enter into the situation or don't? Prices will come down when there is an abundance of supply which is not tampered with by Government or any other price fixing. But even an abundance of supply—witness wheat—will not send prices down if the Government keeps them jacked up. If every worker will do a full day's work for a full day's pay and if the Government will stop monkeying with the natural laws there will be an abundance of articles of consumption and there will be plenty of power in the pay envelope to buy them. # The Expenditure of $610,000,000

How the last Victory Loan was spent

For Demobilization

For Trade Extension

BEFORE buying Victory Bonds again you may want to know how Canada used the money you loaned her last year.

Canada borrowed the money to carry on the war and to provide credits for Great Britain and our Allies.

CONSIDERABLY more than one-half of the Victory Loan 1918 was spent on our soldiers. This included $312,900,000, for paying them, feeding them, bringing them home, separation allowances to their dependents, maintenance of medical services and vocational training schools.

$59,000,000 of the Victory Loan 1918 was paid on account of authorized Soldiers' gratuities.

$9,000,000 was spent at Halifax for relief and reconstruction after the disaster.

Other disbursements were not, strictly speaking, expenditures, but National Re-investments.

To Great Britain for example:
$173,500,000 was loaned for the purchase of our wheat and cereals.
$30,000,000 for other Foodstuffs
$2,900,000 for Canadian built ships.
$5,500,000 to pay other British obligations in Canada.

Making in all, $220,900,000 advanced to Great Britain.

To our Allies, we loaned $8,200,000 for the purchase of Canadian foodstuffs, raw material and manufactured products.

The Re-investments will be paid back to Canada in due time, with interest.

These credits were absolutely necessary to secure the orders for Canada because cash purchases were impossible.

They have had the effect of tremendously helping agricultural and industrial workers to tide over the depression that would have followed the Armistice, had we not made these credit loans.

As far as money is concerned, 1919 has been, and is still—just as much a war year as 1918. Our main expenditures for war cannot be completed until well on into 1920. Thus another Victory Loan is necessary—Get ready to buy.

WESTERN GUEST CRITICISES INVESTIGATORS AND ST. JOHN

F. A. Banfield, President of the Dominion Retail Merchants' Association, Heard in Stirring Address Last Night—Methods of Price Investigators Arraigned—Canada a Very Rich Country—Other Eloquent Addresses—Executive Meeting Held.

What was later classed as one of the best banquets ever held in the city was greatly enjoyed at Bond's last night when members of the Retail Merchants' Association and their guests met in honor of J. A. Banfield and E. M. Trowen, president and secretary, respectively, of the Dominion Association.

Chairman F. A. Daniels, president of the St. John association, had with him at the head of the table J. A. Banfield, Winnipeg, president of the Dominion executive; E. M. Trowen, Ottawa, secretary of the Dominion executive; W. H. Banfield, Toronto; Mayor Hayes, A. O. Skinner, R. B. Emerson and P. L. Higgins, Moncton, president of the New Brunswick association.

Mayor Hayes, welcoming the guests to the city, said that he knew he was talking to gentlemen, no matter what investigators might like to call them, men who had the idea of service in mind and most substantial pillars to the municipality.

He spoke of a time coming when this question would not be that of higher prices or most wages, but that of consideration one for the other, each man his brother's keeper. He was glad to see men coming to the Maritime Provinces from the west, as he thought the west knew too little about the people of the lower provinces, the western business man depending mainly upon sight drafts to keep up communication.

Mayor Hayes congratulated Mr. Higgins upon his election as chief executive of the provincial association, and speaking of the growth of Moncton, said that he hoped the day would come when St. John would share in the success of that growing town.

A. C. Smith then obliged with an excellent rendition of "My Ain Folk," and gave, as an encore, "The Old-Fashioned Town."

The toast "Our Guests" was proposed by A. O. Skinner, who spoke of his visit to Moncton at the recent convention, stating that the city should copy from that place in one particular, and that was to have other head message to overcome the frequent traffic blockades at the Union Depot, an annoyance that will become worse, he said, as the tide of population flows to the North End, which it is bound to do.

J. A. Banfield, responding to the toast, launched immediately into the subject nearest to the heart and interest of the retail merchant. He said that through the workings of the executive there are now 37 masters for consideration, before the council at Ottawa.

than offset the entire national debt. The savings deposits to the end of last August amounted to $1,780,383,786 and the business accounts to $284,478,266, or an average of about $200 per head for every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

Canada heads the world in per capita wealth, he stated, the latest quotation being $19,200,783,125 or $2,870 for every man, woman and child in the country.

"What we realize that our entire debt amounts to only about one-tenth of backing the new Victory Loan," he said.

Concluding, he quoted the poem "Where Does the West Begin?" by Chapman, remarking that the west began at Halifax and St. John and extended to the Pacific coast.

Robert Carson lightened the "high brow" tension of the audience through two clever anecdotes and the solo, "There Must Be Little Cupids in the Briny," and "Murphy's Farm," in the latter referring to various persons present as the owners of a "very fine farm."

E. M. Trowen, Ottawa, stated in part that the merchants through making excellent headway, are only on the threshold, and reminded the members that they must put something into the association before they can get anything out of it.

The retailer gets a good education from every meeting, he declared, and compared the retailer to the warlike sells-footwear. In footwear he always looks for style, comfort and durability. Style in the association can be made to mean the public by a large membership; comfort is secured by the association of fellow dealers and durability is demanded if the association is to be of any good for a transient member as is useless as none.

Introduced by F. W. Daniel, Mr. W. H. Banfield, brother of the Dominion Association president, kept the gathering in continual raptures of mirth while he recited "The Mustache," imitated a patent medicine salesman on the streets of New York and then gave a burlesque on a forensic speaker.

After passing a vote of thanks to the entertainers of the evening, Messrs. Smith, Carson, Guy and Cochrane, accompanied the banquet ended by singing the National Anthem.

Following the banquet P. M. Higgins presided over an executive meeting of the provincial association, when it was decided to hold the next convention at St. Stephen, at a date to be set later, the action on the matter of the Workmen's Compensation Act was suspended until views were obtained from other branches, the carrying act was discussed and the following committees were appointed:

Referring to the great strike in Winnipeg early in the summer, he said that he had every respect for labor and that the working man had every cause to ask for living wages, but that he did strongly object to class rule of any kind.

With respect to the expansion and position of Canada today, he had lately come into possession of figures which show the savings bank deposits in the country to be sufficient to more

J. T. Hawke Talks On Moncton Boom

"Moncton is growing at an unprecedented rate, and it is not having a mere boom," said J. T. Hawke, of the railway city in an interview.

"What do you attribute the present progress and prosperity of Moncton?" "It is the natural result of the development of the maritime provinces and the recognition of the increasing importance of Moncton as a railway and distributing centre. The huge structure being put up by Eaton's is proof of the importance of Moncton as a trading centre, while the general development of Canada creating increased transportation contributes to the growth of the city."

"Most of the industries in Moncton started in a small way, and some have grown rapidly. During the war every industry was very busy, and practically all have adjusted themselves to peace conditions and are now doing well. New industries are coming in all the time and starting in a small way. That is an advantage. If they fail no great harm is done—no large number of people are left without employment. Happily most of the industries are going ahead and establishing themselves on permanent lines. "One of the great assets of Moncton is the fact its people have in the future. Men who have money here show a keen interest in local enterprise, and prefer to make their investments at home instead of putting their money into rich schemes in other parts. The workmen employed by the railway get very good wages, and they are thrifty too. In very few cities have the workmen such fine homes, and they take a pride in looking after them."

There is an enchantment about the Essex that intimacy does not dispel. For instance, many who ride in it only a few times, afterwards describe it as a "large, high-priced car."

It is interesting that such an impression persists about a car so widely known and discussed. For fully half a million now intimately know the Essex. And more than 12,000 are in service.

Its Charm Is Contagious. Frequently owners of Essex cars speak of this feeling of riding in a big car. One writes: "I know the Essex is not a big car. But I can't make myself believe it. Plenty of leg room, spaciousness, solidness, and riding ease as smooth as a swallow's flight, undoubtedly produce this feeling. I call it the spell of the Essex."

From the first, you have noticed how men always compare Essex quality and performance with that of large, costly cars. It is not associated in their minds with small cars. Yet they appreciate its small car advantage too. Its economy, steering ease and agility in threading traffic are valued by every owner.

Also, it is because the Essex is small that such quality is possible at a moderate price.

What is the Spell The Car Men Say Combines Small Car Economy With Costly Car Quality, at Moderate Price of the Essex?

MURDER TRIAL AT GAGETOWN IS PRODUCING SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE

Michael Petrovitch, An Austrian, Alleged to Have Killed Frank Koschitz, a German, at Minto on the 29th of June, Fighting for His Life — Damaging Web of Circumstantial Evidence Being Woven About the Prisoner

Gagetown, Oct. 8.—The opening of the supreme court here yesterday was marked by the second murder trial which has taken place in Gagetown within practically a year—that of Michael Petrovitch, an Austrian, charged with the murder of Frank Kaschitz, a German, at Minto, on the 29th of June last.

The trial has several interesting features, one of which is the large number of witnesses called, there being about twenty in all, mostly foreigners, numbering among them Russians, French, Austrians and Germans. There are two interpreters—Mike Stein and Louis Morrell. Among the witnesses called are the murdered man's widow, Dr. Hay of Chipman, who examined the body, two women who found the murdered man's body lying in the woods, and a man who heard the fatal shots.

Another interesting feature of the case is the strong chain of circumstantial evidence against the prisoner. The latter had boarded at the murdered man's home for some time, and they had always been good friends, until about two weeks before the murder, when the prisoner overheard Kaschitz say he would like to inform on Petrovitch for shooting someone out of season. From that time on the prisoner never seemed the same.

Kaschitz owned three cows and the prisoner two, and one of the cows drove them each day to pasture along a certain road through the woods. The night before the murder the prisoner refused to drive them and left the house saying he was going hunting or fishing the next morning with two friends. At about nine o'clock the next morning, Kaschitz left his house to drive the cows and hunt himself, and shortly before the time the prisoner is said to have been entering the woods by the road Kaschitz was accustomed to take. Shortly after two shots were heard. In the afternoon two women picking berries found the body of the murdered man lying on the left side of the road. Two rifle bullets had torn their way through the body, one from the front, the other from the back. About forty yards away, behind an uprooted tree, two empty rifle shells were found. Some of the prisoner's clothing was also located in the woods near the scene.

That evening Petrovitch returned to Kaschitz's home and when asked what had occurred remarked, "Well, Kaschitz was a pretty cross man," inferring that anyone in the community would be glad to do away with him. "Not so cross that anyone would shoot him," was the widow's reply. They then went to the house of a neighbor, who pointed out to Petrovitch that his rifle was a .38, and asked him what he would be if he should be suspected of the crime. This made the prisoner very excited and he claimed, "I'll give you my rifle and I'll give them a shot gun." But the neighbor told him he would have to tell whom he sold it to, whereas Petrovitch's rifle was a .38. "I'll tell them I sold it to some one in the United States."

The trial is proceeding very slowly on account of the number of witnesses called as witnesses. The whole of today's session was occupied in examining two of them and when six o'clock came the examination of Mrs. Kaschitz, the second witness, had not been finished.

This morning, James H. Hallifax, police magistrate at Minto, has called and identified the rifle, the shells and pieces of clothing shown him, as belonging to the prisoner.

Antonia Kaschitz, the widow, took the stand at eleven this morning, and was examined by Attorney-General Byrne, and cross-examined by C. D. Richards, counsel for the defense, who will continue the cross-examination tomorrow morning. She spoke through an interpreter, but at times, strange to say, was able to answer "Yes" to questions put to her in English. She occupies an important place in the whole trial, as it has been shown that the prisoner displayed considerable affection for her at times, she related on one occasion when she and the two men were discussing returning to the old country, the prisoner declared that "Antonia might go back to Germany, but Kaschitz never would." At the session tomorrow

"If that trade mark is to continue—as it has done for twenty-one years—as a good-will asset for the lifetime of the concern—each suit must be the matter of painstaking study. ## FIRST BIG WORLD'S SERIES WAS IN 1887

Detroit and St. Louis Browns Played Fifteen Games for the Championship. If the baseball magnates of thirty years ago had any conception of the magnitude of the world championship contests of the present it was a hazy one. Still, the club owners of the past were not without imagination and enterprise, as was proved by the world's series of 1887, in which the Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Browns were the contestants.

Considering the rather negative character of the three contests for the world's championship that had preceded the 1887 struggle, it was an event considerably in advance of the times. The world's series of the game, was between Providence and the Metropolitan, and was limited to five games. At the Grays won three in a row it was a short series soon curtailed.

The Big Four and several more terrific hitters hammered out a National League pennant for Detroit in 1887, and the men who with him, Rogers, Richardson, Rowe and White from Buffalo to the City of the Straits, paying the magnificent sum of $7,500 for a quarter of the greatest batemen in the history of the national game, evolved the idea of a greater world's championship. Frederick K. Stearns, president of the Detroit club, was the originator of the idea that was put into effect in the fall of 1889. The Browns, who had the head of the Browns, acceded to the Detroit scheme, although he was a bit afraid of what he thought was a daring experiment. The Browns won the pennant of the American Association, as was their custom in 1887, and then the plans were laid for a series to consist of fifteen games, one contest to be played in every important baseball city in the country.

The first move was the hiring of a special train to carry the players about the country, there being one coach for the Browns, one for the Detroit, one for the officials, members of the press and last but not least a dining car. As Comiskey won the toss for choice of the place for the first game, Detroit selected the Mount City, and the Detroiters went west for the opening struggle.

James Connelly, father of the City Cornet Band, will be at St. Andrew's Rink from 10 to 12 and from 2 to 4 to day in order to pay out the prize money as well as the drawings in connection with the City Cornet Band's Round the World Fair.

WILL HE BE TRADED? There have been murmurings that John McGraw, manager of the Giants, contemplates trading Benny Kauff to the Cardinals for McHenry, the hard hitting outfielder of the St. Louis club, but if such a move is made there are many fans in New York who would be very much disappointed. Benny is disliked in some sections, but he is a game kid and a fine little player, and there is scarcely any chance of his going to St. Louis.

UNMATCHED RECORD OF "FLYING PARSON" IN TRANS-CONTINENT FLIGHT INTERESTING AVIATORS

Setting a Pace for Westbound Fliers That Will be Hard to Equal—Will Easily Make San Francisco Today—His Matchless Flight for Three Days Has Thrilled Aviation Enthusiasts.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Interest in the great transcontinental air race at the close of the third day centered tonight in the hitherto unmatched contest of Lieut. B. W. Maynard, leader of the westbound fliers, and Captain L. H. Smith, pace setter for the contingent from the east, either of whom can reach his destination tomorrow, winning first honors in the cross-country flight.

Captain Smith, however, no longer alone leads the eastbound group, for two of his rivals, Lieutenants Kiel and Carl Spatz overtook him late today at Bryan, Ohio, where the trio remained for the night. So either of the three, good fortune attending them, might easily first reach the finish at Minneola, L. I., New York, whence the westbound men started.

Lieut. Maynard, the "Flying Parson" whose matchless flight across the United States for three days has thrilled aviation enthusiasts, tonight still easily led the westbound contingent, although Captain H. C. Drayton was a good second, one hundred or more miles behind. The "Sky Pilot" had chosen Salduro, Utah, 2,185 miles from Minneola, as his night stop, having left Salt Lake City at 5.30 p. m., Mountain Time. He planned to start from Salduro tomorrow morning, determined to reach San Francisco, 5,15 miles distant, before sunset. The "Parson" continued to hold an advantage over Captain Smith and his two companions from the West, who had Cleveland, and others at Buffalo and eastern points.

Other westbound fliers were well bunched, ten of them at Bryan, Ohio, one at Buchanan, Mich., one at Stillwell, Ind., one at Chicago, nine at Cleveland, and others at Buffalo and eastern points.

C. N. R. EARNINGS WEEK OF OCT. 7

Special to The Standard. Fredericton, Oct. 10.—The total enrollment of new students at the University of New Brunswick, now number ninety, of which fifty seven are taking the regular courses in the freshman class, seven taking regular work of the sophomore year, and one in the junior class, the remaining twenty-five being special students.

The largest number of new students to enter the University in any year previous to 1919, was in 1912, when there were fifty-two new students registered. This record has been broken this year by the registration of ninety new students, sixty-five of whom are taking regular courses.

The total enrollment at all classes of the University is also greater than at any previous time in the history of the institution, there being one hundred and seventy students enrolled as compared with one hundred and sixty-seven in the year 1918, which was the record enrollment.

INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE CONSIDERS PROPOSALS DESIGNED TO HELP WORKMEN

Samuel Gompers Brought Before the Conference a Proposal For Settlement of the Steel Strike—Many Other Concrete Propositions Before the Congress.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Concrete proposals designed to bring about a better relation between employers and the employed were laid before the national industrial conference today by members of the various groups making up the gathering. The proposals included arbitration of the nation-wide steel strike with return of the men to work pending settlement; an industrial peace starting immediately and continuing three months; creation of an arbitration board by the president and congress and including among its members all representatives; and a comprehensive plan for adjustment of industrial disputes through boards of arbitration in the various industries.
The conference today also took its first concrete action in adopting a motion, offered by Thomas L. Chadbourne, a representative of the public, providing that a committee consisting of three members from each of the groups of employers, labor and the public, be appointed to investigate the high cost of living.
The proposal for settlement of the steel strike, introduced by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and one of the delegates, soon after the conference met in the first of the day's two sessions, came as a surprise to the groups representing the public and employers.
In offering the proposal, Mr. Gompers explained that it had the support of the labor delegates including the representatives of the railroad brother-hoods. The proposal, like all others submitted today, under the conference rules, was referred to the general committee composed of five representa-

WILL MAKE NO INCREASE IN R. R. FREIGHT RATES

Washington, Oct. 9.—The railroad administration will make no increase in freight rates before the return of the railroads to private operation January 1.

Director General Hines, wrote T.
D. Whit Caylor, chairman of the Railway Executives today, that it would be impossible for the government to establish any general readjustment of rates, "because earnings of the roads under the abnormal conditions prevailing in the early part of this year did not afford a fair test of income."
The manifest desire of the public to have the interstate commerce commission exercise full authority in any readjustment of rates to be effective under private control also was cited by the director general as an objection to the railroad administration's undertaking such a readjustment.
"My view," wrote the director general, "has been and is that the important matter must be handled in accordance with the two following considerations:

"First—the question of increase in rates would not properly be considered on the basis of the unfavorable showing which the railroad administration was making in the early part of this year, because the showing was due largely to the abnormally small freight business, so that the results of that period could not fairly be taken as a test for making increases in rates. Necessarily, therefore, it seemed to me that the formulation of any appeal for a general increase in rates would have to wait a better opportunity for making an estimate as to what the earning capacity would be under normal conditions."
"Second—it has seemed to me that the public would not be satisfied under existing conditions to have any general increase in rates put into effect without the concurrence of the interstate commerce commission. The public sentiment to this effect has been manifested in many ways throughout the year and has been emphasized by the recent passage by the two houses of Congress of bills providing that

"FIDDLE-FIT" Keep Liver and Bowels Clean and Active with "Cascarets"

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, sour, gassy stomach—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels.
Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system, is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.
Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.
A Cascaret tonight will have you feeling clear, rosy and as fit as a fiddle by morning. They work while you sleep.

there shall be an opportunity to review any rates proposed by the railroad administration before those rates shall go into effect. It follows therefore, that time and opportunity must be provided for public consideration by the regular rate making authority of any rate proposals now made."
"Since the foregoing controlling factors must be respected, it is evident that it would be impossible for the government to establish any general readjustment of rates prior to January 1, 1920. It is also evident that any new rates to be established for the future should naturally be considered not from the standpoint of unified operation of all the railroads.
"I therefore see no escape from the conclusion that if the corporations desire to make progress at this time with this matter they enter themselves, upon a study of the problem to determine what tariffs they think ought to be proposed, with a view to filling tariffs accordingly with the appropriate public authority."

Soiled

Good as New

It certainly is exasperating to soil the cuff of a perfectly fresh shirt when attending to the furnace.

If you don't change it, you'll feel uncomfortable all day fearing some one will notice the soiled cuff—

Unless you are lucky and are wearing a W. G. & R. shirt with Double Wear Cuffs. Then, all you have to do is to turn the cuff and it's as good as new.

These new Double Wear Cuffs are a convenience men have longed for. Now that they have been invented, men are talking to them enthusiastically.

Double Wear Cuffs look equally dresy and lie perfectly flat either side out. A clever new idea in cuff designing makes this possible. Ask your dealer to show you
