ANNUAL MEETING OF UNITED FRUIT COMPANIES

Was Held at Kentville on Tuesday—Encouraging Reports Covering Business of Last Year Presented

More foreign markets were used by the United Fruit Companies of Nova Scotia in expanding their trade last year than during any year since the war, according to the reports submitted to the 13th annual meeting at Kentville on Tuesday.

President F. W. Bishop, in his annual address, made a strong plea for "boosting Nova Scotia," declaring that only through an active co-operation can this policy be made effective in the province.

The President commented on the new system of making returns to the companies for their produce, whereby companies can receive the actual returns from their fruit sales.

A vote of confidence in the board of management was unanimously passed, and the United Fruit Companies face the ensuing year with the unanimous support and increased prestige which makes for unqualified success.

The officers elected were: President—F. W. Bishop, Paradise, Vice-President—E. H. Johnson, Wolfville.

MARIA EVANS The death of Miss Maria Evans, a sister of Mr. W. H. Evans, of this town, took place last Monday at her residence.

MEMORIAL TO LATE DR. E. W. SAWYER A Woodstock, Ontario, despatch of June 11th says: "An eloquent tribute was paid to the memory of the late Dr. E. W. Sawyer."

SEMINARY GRADUATES TAKE PART IN PLAY AT TORONTO

The Toronto Globe gives a description of a play presented in that city and the Brigetown Monitor gives the following comment:

As will be noticed by the above, two talented young Nova Scotian ladies had a prominent part in the play. Miss Aileen Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Freeman of this town, and Miss Kathryn McLean, daughter of Mrs. M. T. McLean, of Wolfville, were formerly of North Sydney.

CHARLEY'S AUNT, which shows at the Orpheum next Wednesday and Thursday, as a play made folks laugh for thirty-three years, as a film it's the funniest movie ever made.

In Town Baseball League—High School Loses Close Contest to Braves

The best game played thus far in the Town Baseball League was that between the High School and the "Braves" last Friday night, which resulted in a win for the latter by the score of 4 to 3.

Phinney pitched for the High School, allowing only two hits and striking out eight. Munro, for the "Braves," struck out ten and allowed three hits.

Umpires: Foster and Phinney. On Monday evening there was a good turn out of fans in spite of the disagreeable weather.

THE PROBLEM OF RIGHT LIVING

IN A certain court in the neighboring republic the case under consideration was that of a woman who had been arrested because her fifteen year old daughter had been permitted to stay out of school and go to work. The case had been set down for the following day, and the judge demanded a bond of fifty dollars, in lieu of which the mother would be obliged to go to jail. Protest was made by the woman that she was nursing a nine months old baby and the judge told her that while he was sorry, she would have to take the baby to jail with her unless she could furnish the required bond. Frenzied by the situation facing her the mother shouted to the court: "We have a right to live! I cannot feed nine hungry mouths and my husband and myself and clothe us all on twenty dollars a week". The judge replied, "That is your problem".

Under the law the court was right. In most countries today laws exist which provide penalties for keeping children under a prescribed age out of school. We have such a law in Nova Scotia, with which no fault can be found since it was designed to protect children from ignorance and raise the standard of citizenship through learning. Very properly the state desires citizens of high quality. It realizes that illiteracy reduces the quality. Consequently it makes the effort to prevent illiteracy by making education compulsory. Countries without compulsory education are behind the times. They have as a rule low standards of citizenship when averages are struck. Compulsory education has one of the highest purposes ever written into law.

That is society's side of the matter as developed in the case under consideration. But as the wife and mother declared in court, that family has "a right to live". It has also the right to demand of the state how it can live on an income too small to feed, clothe and shelter it. The community is within its rights in demanding that children of a certain age shall go to school as the law provides. It has no right—morally nor ethically—to enforce a law which distresses human beings in denying to them the first necessities of life. Her problem? So the court said, but the court erred. It is society's problem.

No one would conclude—certainly not in this favored section—that the family would starve under any circumstances as long as the truth was known. Help from some source would be forthcoming. Humanity does not permit unfortunates to starve in this country if it knows of the distress. Yet, as far as the law is concerned, its responsibility is to see that the child goes to school. If it were an utter impossibility to feed and clothe a family of eleven on twenty dollars a week—and in these times no one will argue that it can be done properly—the law would still demand that the earning power of the child of school age be cut off, let the consequences be what they may. Without relief from some source members of the family or all of them would suffer under nourishment and exposure. In that case the state would experience greater damage than if the child never attended school another day in its life. Health is more essential than learning. At least health is the first requisite of progressive humanity.

It is not nor should it be the mother's problem as the court declared. When a state enacts a law of this or any other kind it should also assume responsibility for making possible its observance. The family has the right to live, educated or not. The state cannot in justice demand impossibilities of individuals.

Until society realizes its problem and sets about to effect a proper solution conditions will continue to be far from what they should. In Wolfville and surrounding sections, as in every other community, the problem of right living is a very real one and THE ACADIAN makes no apology for again referring to it, with the hope that the interest of citizens generally may be aroused to a real regard for the responsibility involved.

BIG PROBLEMS FACE NEW GOVERNMENT

THE NEW provincial government which is soon to take over the management of public affairs has a rather formidable undertaking on its hands. Mr. Rhodes will do well to consider carefully the men whom he will select to advise him in order that the best interests of Nova Scotia may be served and conditions so improved as to put the province well abreast of other up to date countries. The people have spoken plainly by their ballots and will naturally be satisfied with nothing less than the fulfillment, so far as it is possible, of such action as will demonstrate that a new order of things is in progress.

If we are to have a business administration a complete reconstruction of the whole political system will be necessary, and no government ever received a more absolute mandate from the people to make reforms than has been given to Mr. Rhodes and his following. Evidently in the late election—to a greater extent than is usual—the electorate have studied conditions as they saw them and acted accordingly. The late government which long outlived its usefulness has been weighed and found wanting and it is up to their successors to make good in order that they may not meet with a similar fate when called upon to give an accounting.

Those who look for speedy results may be disappointed as the government must be given a reasonable time in which to bring about necessary changes, but if in the end the desired goal is arrived at it will be well worth waiting for. In the meantime every good citizen will do his utmost to assist in every way possible those who have a most difficult work to do.

MONEY ALL GOES FOR FEES

THE PRESENT method of administering the affairs of insolvent debtors in this country is very far from satisfactory. In most cases after the expenses are paid little is left to divide among the creditors. It is one of the fortunes of business that occasionally there will be those who because of misfortune or bad management are unable to pay their bills and are obliged to seek for leniency at the hands of their creditors. In most cases it is not nor should it be a difficult thing to arrive at a satisfactory compromise. The way it generally works out, however, is that the entire assets go to fees and expenses with practically nothing left for those who should be provided for. Legal fees in this country have become needlessly exaggerated to such an extent that the carrying on of business has been made far too expensive. One of the reforms needed is a reasonable provision for handling affairs of this kind and the sooner something along this line is set in motion the better for the country.

WE NEED MORE FAITH IN OUR PROVINCE

IN ANOTHER column we publish this week from the Montreal Herald a letter written by a correspondent which is well worthy of the careful perusal of every Nova Scotian. At a time when the problems of this and other maritime provinces are engaging a great deal of public attention it suggests a policy which if properly put into operation ought to correct many of our so called "wrongs". There is a very trite saying that "God helps those who help themselves" and it is a fact that when Nova Scotians either at home or abroad really set about to help themselves they generally make good.

The practice is too common of pointing out instances where industries have failed in Nova Scotia before they were even well launched, and failing to take into account other undertakings that have met with phenomenal success. This province possesses wonderful possibilities as a return for industry and enterprise on the part of its people, and in most cases where failure has come it has been the result of an unwillingness or incapacity to wait for the results which are bound to come when conditions are right.

Perhaps what Nova Scotia needs above anything else is a more abundant faith on the part of its people, and this should be inculcated through our public institutions.

OFFER IT FOR SALE

THE IDEA that any concern can afford not to advertise is essentially wrong, says a contemporary, and has been disproved by experience. There is not a business in this country, except that of the governor of a prison, that could not be doubled in volume by skillful advertising. Even cemeteries have been known to advertise and prosper by it. The trend of the modern age in commercial affairs might be summed up in the dictum: "If your business is not worth advertising, advertise it for sale."

TOURIST TRAFFIC ADDING MILLIONS TO OUR REVENUE

Visitors From States Alone Spent $150,000,000 Here Last Year

The potentialities of the tourist industry as one of the important sources of income of the Dominion are again illustrated by an analysis which the Highways Branch of the Federal Department of Railways and Canals has just published. The study shows that the revenue during 1924 from the motor tourist traffic alone was in the neighborhood of $143,405,900. The figure is necessarily an approximation, but it illustrates something of the proportions of the industry as well as suggesting what could be done in this direction were a little studied attention paid to the systematic attraction and entertainment of tourists.

One of the leading factors in the building up of the tourist traffic is the construction of good highways. It has been estimated that, on the average, our tourist visitors spend upwards of $150,000,000 annually, and this average is increasing year by year. The Department of the Interior estimates that 7,370,000, or 48 per cent. of the automobiles in the United States are owned by citizens living in states contiguous to the international border or waterways. There are, therefore, some 35,000,000 potential tourists to Canada in these states. The figure, which is necessarily an estimate, illustrates the possibilities in the development of better highways, especially those running north and south. The northern towns would thus be benefited and the outlying territory opened up, as its potentialities become better known. No country possessing the admirable climate and scenic beauty of Canada can afford to overlook the development of its tourist traffic.

Distribution of the Traffic
The registrations of all types of motor vehicles in the various provinces last year reached a total of 650,321, which was an increase of 11 per cent. over 1923, while the 1923 figure was 13,08 per cent. larger than that of 1922. The general increase in the number of tourists has been very rapid. During the one to six month period it grew 34 per cent. for the two to thirty day period it increased 290 per cent., and for the one day period, 222 per cent. Ontario reaped the largest revenue from this source. In fact, more than half of the total came to Ontario. Quebec was second with approximately one-quarter of the total. Most of the balance went to British Columbia and New Brunswick. The other five provinces received relatively small percentages of the total.

The gradual improvement of our road system also has the advantage of attracting settlers to the country districts and of making country life more attractive. In fact, in addition to advertising the various parts of the country through the tourists who visit during the summer, the building of roads is one of the most important factors in settling the unoccupied tracts of land across Canada, and in keeping them settled. At the same time it is a leading factor in the appreciation in the values of farm land. When land in any locality becomes more valuable, the municipality naturally has less difficulty in its problems of financing. The funds which are expended in the construction and improvement of roads throughout the country are soon realized on. This should be borne in mind by those who are opposed to the principle of the gasoline tax. Ontario's three cent tax is expected to yield $3,000,000 annually from this source. Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba, Prince Edward Island and Quebec adopted the gasoline tax at various times, and during the past year realized $1,417,705 therefrom. In these five provinces, registrations totalled 229,170, hence, on the average, each owner contributed $6.19 towards this tax.

WATCH THE CAR AHEAD

You may be in an awful hurry, but don't follow too closely after the car ahead. Leave a safe distance for stopping your car, if the fellow ahead suddenly slows down or brings his car to rest. He may fail to give the stopping signal in time to warn you. His brakes may be better than yours or he may possibly have four brakes to your two, in which case he can stop in about half the distance you can. Slippery roads are always in season and nobody can tell just what will happen when he "jams" his brakes. Perhaps his car is wearing chains and yours has not yet donned them.

Don't rely on your rear light traffic signals too implicitly; they may fail to work, and, anyway, most of them do not warn until the brakes are actually applied. Remember, it is the following car that usually suffers more in a rear end collision. If the following car carries a rear bumper and the following car has no front bumper, the latter is sure to be the greater sufferer.

What is your friend ahead going to do at the next corner? You don't know, and perhaps he may give you no warning signal. If you haven't already done so, you better equip your car with bumpers front and rear. They are a great protection, and you cannot foresee how soon the occasion may come when they will be called into use and pay for themselves in damage averted.

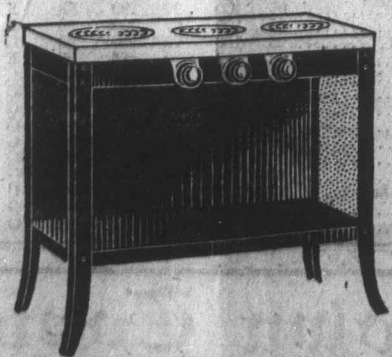

An advertisement is to a merchant very much what sowing seed is to a farmer. It may take a little time for the results to become apparent, but they are sure to come. The wise farmer is not niggardly with his seed, nor the wise merchant with his advertisement.

Sometime (in imagination) may you hear the sweet strains of the pipe organ, presided over by the organist, Miss McDonald, wafted to you over the waters, and may the memories of your sojourn amongst us be so sweet and pleasant that you will wish to return. ## DIARY OF MARGARET D. MICHENER

Dec. 22, 1850.—Sunday clear and cold. Rev. Hall preached in the morning from the text, "The path of the just is as the shining of the light", etc. I thought he preached a good sermon and showed the pleasantness of wisdom's ways. The contrast between the two characters. Mr. Grant from the College spoke after—and preached in the afternoon. There was a prayer meeting in the evening for the sailors. How different to the last one I attended. I could not at this time return thanks for the protection of my sailor. I know I am not as thankful as I should be for the many mercies I have.

23rd.—This has been a sad and gloomy day; it has stormed all day and I have not felt well in either body or mind.

24th.—Am feeling better today and have been busy helping mother dress the geese and some other work. It continues cold and blustering. There have many customers kept coming and going at the shoe shop. John Michener is here to tea. There is some one at father's the most of the time besides themselves.

24th.—Sam Marsters with some others started for Kempt in a boat. They got in the ice and were there all day until going to the shoe shop. John Michener is here to tea. There is some one at father's the most of the time besides themselves.

25th.—This day is hailed with glee by many of the young. They expect something more than usual. Some spend it in feasting and dissipation. Some spend it prayerfully and thankfully as it is said to be the day on which our Saviour was born, but is generally kept now as a merry day of relaxation. This is the first one for me to spend as a widow; things seem much changed at father's. Robert being away for the first Christmas in his life. John Michener came up to let us know he had got a letter from Hibbard, so they have arrived safely at Richmond and Robert likes the sea, so far. Our letters have not come yet. I went up to Capt. R. Davidson's this afternoon; when I returned John and Ann were singing and playing the accordians. It was the first time I heard it since Simeon's death, and it sounded very plaintive to me. We went to prayer meeting in the evening. There seems to be very little interest among the professors. Oh, for a kindling of that heavenly flame in their hearts to bring them to a realizing sense of their duty. Aaa Hinds was there and took a part in the meeting.

26th.—I arose early this morning, packed my satchel and came down home. It is a desolate looking place indeed. Mr. West has been here to work and there is dust and dirt over everything; a big snow bank filled the doorway. I called at a few places to get subscribers for my school and will stay tonight at Mary's till school begins. Joe Davidson came and brought me some things; every one is very kind to me.

27th.—This has been a fine day. I went around to inform the people that I would begin school on Monday. I called in to Hannah Coalfeet's. Emily Ann was there, also John Michener, who was getting some teeth drawn. Dr. Brown gave him chloroform and he was feeling very good natured. Broth-of thy fate. Tho' faint souls fear the keen confronting sun, And fair would bid the morn of splendor wait; Tho' dreamers, rapt in stary visions, cry "Lo, yon thy future, yon thy faith, thy fame!" And stretch vain hands to stars, thy fame is nigh, Here in Canadian hearth, and home, and name,— This name which yet shall grow Till all the nations know Us for a patriot people, heart and hand Loyal to our native earth, our own Canadian Land!

O strong hearts, guarding the birthright of our glory, Worth your best blood this heritage that ye guard These mighty streams resplendent with our story,

These iron coasts by rage of seas unjarred, What fields of peace these bulwarks well secure! What vales of plenty these calm floods supply! Shall not our love this rough, sweet land make sure, Her bounds preserve inviolate, though we die? O strong hearts of the North, Let flame your loyalty forth, And put the craven and base to an open shame. Till earth shall know the Child of Nations by her name! C. G. D. Roberts.

AN ODE FOR THE CANADIAN CONFEDERACY

Awake, my country, the hour is great with change! Under this gloom which yet obscures the land, From ice-blue strait and stern Laurentian range

To where giant peaks our western bounds command, A deep voice stirs, vibrating in men's ears

As if their own hearts throbbed that thunder forth, A sound wherein who hearkens wisely hears

The voice of the desire of this strong North— This North whose heart of fire Yet knows not its desire Clearly, but dreams, and murmurs in the dream, The hour of dreams is done. Lo, on the hills the gleam!

Awake, my country, the hour of dreams is done! Doubt not, nor dread the greatness

It Costs You Money

Every day you delay placing your goods before the public is costing you money.

True, everyone may know you are in business—know where your store is, but they do not have the time to run to your store to find out about the new things you are showing, about the special bargains you are offering and the hundred and one other things that make your store an interesting place to visit.

Many people may be going past your store every day to buy something you could sell them at a lower price than they are paying—and why? The other fellow invited them to buy—that's all. You didn't.

WOLFVILLE WINS TWO GAMES AT PARRSBORO

Defeated Parrsboro Yesterday 20 to 7, and Port Greville 7 to 6

The Wolfville baseball team played their first games this season yesterday, when they went over to Parrsboro on the excursion boat. Plans had been made to play Parrsboro in the morning and Port Greville in the afternoon, but owing to the rain in the morning both games were played in the afternoon, and were witnessed by a good crowd, considering the weather conditions.

The first game played with Parrsboro was an easy win for Wolfville, the score being 20 to 7. Barteaux pitched for Wolfville and the teams were as follows: Wolfville—T. Dick, Eaton, C. Munro, W. Barteaux, J. Elderkin, M. Saunders, E. Kennie, H. Gould, Rudolph. Parrsboro—G. Berry, D. Pettis, H. Leighton, L. Canning, C. Canning, L. Henwood, V. Moore, H. Johnson, C. Parker.

The game with Port Greville was more closely contested, the score being 7 to 6 in five innings. In this game Dick was the pitcher for Wolfville. It is expected that the Port Greville boys will play a return game here on Friday evening, when a good game is assured as the boys from across the Bay will be determined to make amends for their defeat yesterday.

LITTLE BILL

Little Bill is a source of annoyance and anxiety as well as expense to us. This should not be. It is you that should really be responsible for Little Bill. We refer to the Little Bill you forgot to pay. Perhaps when in town you wanted something else and forgot us altogether. Or again you did not want to leave your work, so phoned us and had the work or ad. charged, promising to send the money on first mail. Yet, though you may not have had an account with us, we charged it to oblige you. Remember we charged it to oblige you. Suppose the bill was only $1. If it was not paid in six months we lost 3c. in interest. Also it cost us 5c. to enter on our books. Now if we have to make out a bill it means another cost of 5c. so you see where our profit goes. Some of our accounts are three years old.

We are always ready to oblige our customers, but we want them to do their part. We not only have a right to the money, but we certainly need it. Please do not forget again. Send or bring it to us today. Thank you.

A POLICY SUGGESTION FOR NOVA SCOTIA (By a Correspondent in the Montreal Herald) Nova Scotians are kicking about their lack of markets and have set up that they cannot do business with the United States, because of the tariff; and with the more fully populated centres of Canada, because of their distance from these markets.

(2) I would suggest that a Board of Supervision of five or more Nova Scotians residing in each community be selected who would give their services free because of their sympathetic interests in the development of their native province.

It was at that moment that a whistle sounded beyond them from the trees far side of the meadow. Angus looked at his watch, and he saw that it was half past twelve. "That's a marmot!" he called.

But Movie Bill's saddle horse, a step from them on that upland meadow, turned, ears erect.

Piccolo had initiative upon occasion, dropped his pack, and grabbing up the rifle stepped quickly, but without a thought of where it would land, to the double horse, caught the lines. One of the Greer horses, apparently a pack-horse, was in the lead. Angus and Piccolo might have noted that he was looking at him then, as if he were looking at a man. He was looking at the little man step toward the horse, and catch the lines. He thought he saw something that looked like a pack-horse, but it was not a pack-horse, it was a horse. It was a horse, and it was looking at him then, as if he were looking at a man. He was looking at the little man step toward the horse, and catch the lines. He thought he saw something that looked like a pack-horse, but it was not a pack-horse, it was a horse. It was a horse, and it was looking at him then, as if he were looking at a man.

What's taken you, sir? This little gentleman with the 303 I expect such treatment from. He has not the imagination of a flea, though he has the freshness of a chipmunk. Alert! Oh, alert! And that's all. Pray be seated, gentlemen, and somebody explain. The squealer won't. He has no vocabulary beyond: "Hands Up!"—and "Now, dang you, come along with me." When I asked for the explanation to which I felt entitled he said: "Go on, keep on a-moving. Don't get fresh. Go on, keep on at the end of this meadow, and with my coat off at that. Found the horses had gone. I whistled for them, and one of them came—through the bush, and with him this Welsh gentleman." He paused and looked at Piccolo from toes to crown of hat. "Easy!" he sneered. "Anybody could hold up a man in his shirt-sleeves. Oh, agile! An agile brain! He kept me covered and backed up to where my coat lay, and felt it with his foot. Very well done indeed. Felt my little automatic. Extracted it. Shot it off against a rock wall only twenty feet away. Might have got a flick of my exposed lead; but no matter. What's the explanation? None forthcoming. He just said: 'And now, dang you, come along with me.' Well, I came. Can you explain Mr. MacPherson?"

Angus tried to speak, so on, but he said nothing. Something Movie Bill had said had revived a faint hope. He had remarked to his horse that it was in bad company.

"Are you with this fellow?" he asked, wagging his head toward Greer.

"Oh, MacPherson!" broke out Movie Bill. "Don't act like your friend. I went to him once to help him, and he treated me as if I was a darn housebreaker. I have a twist in me. We all have a twist I guess. I try to combat it; but when a man takes me for a burglar he just—well, he just can't. He got my goat. Don't you go and talk so that you get my goat, Angus. Shucks! man! Have I not eaten salt with you?" he smiled a wonderful smile over his lifted face. "As ye might say."

Angus sat down on Piccolo's pack-sack and gazed up at his friend. His rifle he laid gently beside him, leaning against the load.

"It's all very puzzling, Bill," said he.

"Elucidate. Elucidate, if you please." Movie Bill sagged slowly down to a sitting posture upon one heel. On a bent knee he rested an elbow and, chin in hand, he gazed at Angus. The ease of all their travel yards, of his tales of the Veld and Kaffirs, of Australia, dry-blowing, black-fellows, snakes (Movie Bill was a "grand listener"); it reminded him, that pose, a confirmed camper, of fizzes and bubbling in wilderness valleys, of stories of the mesas, stories of the sage-brush, his recounting of talks he had had with Chief Young Whirlwind, or Kicking Bull's philosophizing and views—the kind of knowledge such men (for in this they were of the same order, the same type, despite their different ages) care to gather, find fascinating.

"Why elucidate?" asked Bill Allardyce, in a low voice, the even voice that is usual to men of his kind and often maintained when they are under stress of emotion. "To clear myself? That's what gets my goat! When I was a boy I was everlastingly being asked to elucidate. I had years of it among uncongenial relatives not of my choosing. It gave me a kink. I do not like to elucidate. It like to be believed in."

"They were silent for some moments, and then Movie Bill said: "And yet you have reason. I am more than homely. I am more ugly—in the exact sense of the word—than Cyrano de Bergerac!"

"Oh, don't be flippant!" cried out Angus. "I have no doubt all is clear, Bill, but make it clear. Man, I'm not a god! I am but an ordinary man—an auld man who has been disappointed in many folks."

"You don't think my name should be Skin-Game Bill, then?" asked Movie Bill, but make it clear. Man, I'm not a god! I am but an ordinary man—an auld man who has been disappointed in many folks."

from you snowside. But here's the real Don Quixote of Washington State!" He drew a trembling sigh and murmured: "Man, it's a great relief to the heart!"

Little Lawrence had just seen a bumble bee for the first time in his short life. "Oh, quick, mummy!" he cried excitedly. "Here's a great big fly viv his overcoat on!"

Laughter has the approval of the world. It is the sign of a merry heart, and according to an ancient authority, "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine."

I ain't butting in," said he, and he looked on.

Well, just you stay with that rifle, Angus told him. "And your rifle you can either pass on, or just send it to the comic papers and see if you can't win a prize. You merit it. Dang it, I do not want to be killed. I should be with him if I was half a man. It is a fact I could not go. What you are grinding for? Have you no sense of compassion at all, as the figure phrases it?"

Angus suddenly became solemn, but through dread of MacPherson's face he said nothing.

"He is a fine old son of a gun. A short man, Angus MacPherson, but you are all Angus MacPherson the heels up!" he said in his simple manner.

He beheld, it was as though Angus had heard! He could only hear his thump. He could hear the blood in his veins somewhere, an ageing vein thumping. For him an infinity of years passed, and then there came a knock, in rapid succession, six shots, as the patter of a machine gun. Your partner has no six gun," retorted Greer in an even low voice.

Angus, with his rifle resting on his shoulder, stood staring in the direction that Piccolo had gone with his horse.

He was a wee man to allow to go a job like that," he muttered. "And he's a wonderful wee man too." They waited and listened. Greer, being at MacPherson to see how he held up, he stood by him. He was standing there, grim, like the carved figures on the Indian totem-poles he had seen at the coast. As for himself, he was resigned for whatever was to come. He was now but a biased spectate here came to their ears, at last, the clank of a horse hoof on a stone, and in a crashing of bushes. They saw, suddenly, the tossing up and down of a pony's head—Movie Bill's pony it seemed. Unexpected, it looked at first like some prehistoric monster come here in these queer upland solitudes, a moment in their tensely hardly cognizable.

And Movie Bill's horse it was; for they saw two men, a lithe man of medium height and a slender one walking together toward them. They were both dressed in the forest wear of the day. Piccolo walked a pace behind the nearer man, his rifle pointed at his shoulder. Despite his grimness there was something almost comic in his attitude.

"How-do, Mr. MacPherson," said Movie Bill, cheerfully.

Angus merely stood pat, staring at Movie Bill's eyebrows elevated a moment as in astonishment; and then he spoke.

"Ah—well," he said. "Hullo, Mr. Greer? Well, I got ahead of you all that."

Greer said not a word.

Movie Bill turned to take the bridle from his horse. As he did so it opened its mouth and let the bit fall out. He looked on the neck and finished that mess with a thrusting motion of the hand.

"Go feed," said he. "Now I know where you are, all's well. Of course you are lonesome, and had to go off with your pack-horse to join other members of your species. Darn bad company, though!"

He turned from addressing his horse, and looking at the rifle, to Angus.

"Say, Mr. MacPherson, said he, "there's a cold welcome you give me. My rifle is not pointed at me like yours, but it is in your hands! Are you mate with astonishment to find these altitudes so far from home?"

Miss Coleman is an exceptionally fine primary teacher, and our regret is that she is not returning to us again, as her place is hard to fill. However, we congratulate the school that secures her as teacher, for they will have one who is competent in every phase of primary work.

NOVA SCOTIA MAY SELL APPLES TO THE U.S. MARKET

Virginia and New England Crops Short—Annapolis Valley May Supply Lack

Nova Scotia apples may be on the U.S. market the coming season. Mr. Comeau, general agent of the D.A.R. here, and just back from Boston, says that, like the strawberry crop, the apple crop in Virginia and the New England States promises to be short this season, which may open the U.S. market for Annapolis Valley Gravenstein. This situation arose in the U.S. about five years ago.

Referring to Mr. Comeau's presence in that city, a recent issue of the Boston Transcript said: "Mr. Comeau brings an enthusiastic report regarding 'Apple Blossom Week' in 'Evangeline's Land' which has recently been enjoyed by thousands of Nova Scotians and visitors from the U.S. 'Blossom Sunday', an outdoor festival which has no parallel anywhere in the world, was observed June 7th and Mr. Comeau says that 10,000 persons, coming from every part of the Province, visited the Annapolis and Cornwallis Valleys to see the hundreds of miles of fragrant bloom. Not only was the display of blossoms great, but the fruit has since set well, and from indications there will be a crop of about 2,500,000 barrels of apples this year, fully half-a-million barrels above the average crop.—Morning Chronicle.

WANT NOV. 11 AS NATIONAL HOLIDAY

Matter May Come Before Cabinet, is Report of Vet. Committee

OTTAWA, June 26.—The establishment of Armistice Day, November 11, as a national holiday, was foreshadowed at the annual convention of the Great War Veterans association this morning when Rev. Mr. Payne, of Shaunavon, Sask., reporting for the Armistice Day committee, appointed yesterday, said he had received assurances from Hon. E. M. MacDonald that the matter would be brought before the cabinet today and an effort made to have the bill introduced and passed through all stages in the House of Commons.

The Armistice anniversary has in the past been associated with Thanksgiving Day, proclaimed by the government.

The bill, if passed, would make Armistice Day the national holiday, and Thanksgiving Day would cease to be a national holiday.

CANADA'S GREAT HARVEST SEA

Catch for May Shows an Increase Value of Million Dollars

OTTAWA, June 29.—Canada's fish harvest increases in value. In May, 1925, $7,264,600 pounds of sea fish were landed on both coasts and the value of the catch, $2,832,165, is nearly a million dollars higher than in May, 1924.

On the Atlantic coast the catch of mackerel, shad and scallops was plentiful and the lobster fishing brought more than twice the catch in the previous May, in spite of rough weather toward the end of the month.

On the Pacific coast, 1,884,300 pounds of salmon were taken, compared with 927,400 pounds in May, 1924. The bulk of the salmon catch was sold in Seattle.

Four fishermen lost their lives on the Atlantic coast during May, 1925.
