Original Poetry.

The Parting Hour, The parting hour,-the parting hour! Each feeling heart must dread, To bid adieu to those most true To whom our souls were wed

The parting hour,-the parting hour What sorrow shades the mind When last we trace the friendly face Our eyes no more must find !

The parting hour,-the parting hour ! How does it bring to view The joys of old, of friendship told, All fled like early dew !

The parting hour,-the parting hour ! How much like death it seems : The friends away no more may stay,-Save in our transient dream

The parting hour,-the parting hour Calls clearly up the past, The joys we found on friendship's ground Were sweet,-too sweet to last.

The parting hour,-the parting hour ! To friendship doth belong .--Around that hour, by love's own power, A thousand memories throng

The parting hour,-the parting hour But rivets love more fast,-We scarcely knew we loved so true 'Till sad adieus were past !

The parting hour,-the parting hour ! Its sadness shall be o'er When we shall greet, with pleasure mee The friends we loved before.

From Stevens History of Methodism. An Early Methodist Hero. NELSON AMONG MOBS.

After spending three weeks in the west Wesley went to Epworth, where he found that one of his preachers, John Downes. had been impressed as a soldier, and placed in Lincoln jail. An "inexpressible panic," he says, prevailed in all places. He passed to Birstal, the home of John Nelson, but there learned that this heroic man had also been seized tor the army, and carried off to prison. Soon after he heard that Thomas

"I cannot fear," Nations. said the brave Yorkshireman; "I cannot fear, for God is on my side, and his word hath added strength to my soul this day." He was seized the next day while preaching at Adwalton. He was much esteemed among his fellow-townsmen, and one of them offered five hundred pounds bail for him, but it was refused, and he was marched off to Halifax, where the Birstal vicar was on the bench as one of the Commission .--Nelson's neighbours came to bear witness for him, but the commissioners declined to hear any other than their clerical associate, person to the knee of the priest, to receive as the truth of Heaven, whatever sense or who reported him to be a vagrant, without visible means of living. Nelson, who had nonsense he may utter in the name of the Church, without any right to question it, always been an industrious workman, reand without any means to authenticate, it pelled the charge manfully. " I am as able It subjects the people to the priest, the priest to get my living by my hands," he said, to the bishop, the bishop to the Pope, and it "as any man of my trade in England is, makes no matter what may be the character and you know it. He was ordered to Bradford. On leaving Halifax many of the common people what are a start of the Pope—he is the vicar of Jesus Christ and the infallible head of the Church! The common people wept and prayed for him as he passed through the streets. "Fear not," he cried to them; "God hath his way in course, from which it has never turned aside, save to recruit its strength, is to involve the people in darkness; to create and to increase the whirlwind, and he will plead my cause; a superstitious reverence for the ghostly only pray for me that my faith fail not."-At Bradford he was plunged into a dunpower of the Church : to render the masses subservient to the priest; and to bring all geon, into which flowed blood and filth from the power of the individual and of the state a slaughter-house above it, so that it smelt, into obedience to the power which she claims he says, "like a pig-stye; but my soul," to exercise by divine right. And as Popery he adds, "was so filled with the love of God that it was a paradise to me." There rises to the heights of its aspirations, the peowas nothing in it to sit on, and his only bed ple sink into darkness and degradation. If there is an exception to this rule, where is quity. And now, for three hundred years, was a heap of decayed straw. But even it to be found ?

John Nelson had been travelling about the land, working by day and preaching at night. His good sense, cool courage, sound piety, and apt speech, secured him suc cess wherever he went. He had spread out Methodism extensively in Yorkshire, Cornwall, Lincolnshire, Lancashire, and other counties He was a man of such genuine posers usually became his best friends, and the rudest to n delighted to hear him. H passed through Wednesbury soon after the terrible riots there, and preached in the open air. The mob came but would not molest him. At Nottingham several persons tried to throw squibs into his face and at his feet while he was preaching, but others threw them back; and a sergeant of the army came to him with tears and said : " In the presence of God, and all this people. I beg your pardon, for I came on purpose to mob you; but when I could get no one to assist me I stood to hear you, and am convinced of the deplorable state of my ing God." "He then kissed me," says Nelson, "and went away weeping."

No evidence could better prove the power of the artisan preacher. He journeyed on hired a man to beat the town drum, and to Nelson's lodgings they set up three huz-ight, as it was not agreeable to his con-zas, and their cierical leader cried out to them to pull down the house; but no one science for any man on earth. He reproved offered to touch it till Nelson had done preaching; they then broke the windows, leaving not one whole square of glass in one another, and thus allowed the preacher and his hearers to escape. Not long after the minister gathered the rioters together again, and gave them more drink. They then came and broke the stanchions of the windows, pulled up the paving in the streets, threw the stones into the house, and demo ished its furniture; but they again coarreled among themselves, and dispersed after

A pamphlet has recently been published in England on this subject, in which the advantages of a Railway from the Atlantic to the Pacific, through British territory, are pointed appear to have enlisted the sympathies of the Imperial Government, and great as the cost will be there is no reason to doubt that it will be adopted. The revolt in India, and the recent commercial treaty with China, which must cause a large and lucrative trade to spring up between that vast and important section of the globe and Europe, have caused anxious enquiry to be made as to the shortest practicable East. These events, independent of the gold discoveries in the Fraser River region, are of ufficient importance to cause the attention of he people in England to be directed to obtainspeediest mode of communicating with hose distant regions. Those who have brought the subject of this Railway prominently before the world have succeeded in showing that it is deserving of attentive consideration on several grounds. In the secondly, it passes through British territory ; and thirdly, it will place the trade of the East in the hand of Great Britain. This pamphlet gives the distances from England to the various ports as follows :-- solid basis for future progress, prosperity and power, until they are bound together in a closely connected link. The people, who should regard one another in a fraternal light as subjects of the same paternal government, have had con-paratively little intercourse with one another, and are in some respects estranged for want of a unity of action and interests. Whether the expediency of a Federal Union be, or be not admitted, there can be no difference of opinion an the alivantage of possessing an Intercolonial Railway, which an reasonable persons, above or below, must acknowledge to be a present desideratum and a future necessity.

THE TURN OF THE TIDE .- From the vigor which is beginning to be displayed in all kinds of business, it may fairly be inferred that the tide of prosperity which commenced rapidly to ebb about a year ago, has at last turned and is beginning to flow again. The severe lessons, lately sent an address to the Emperor praying which many have learned, with respect to land that the measure might not be carried into exe-speculation and over trading, will, however, we cution in that province. The Emperor did not trust, make men more cautious in future. But receive the address favourably, and replied that there is one point in which we think the extreme the measure should be executed not withstanding for the support and extension of religion. The feel the revivilying influence of returning prosperity .- Montreal Witness.

From Late English Papers.

Lord Sianley has forwarded to the newspaper Lord Canning's defence of bimself and his policy, so severely impugned by Lord Ellenborough's celebrated despatch. It is an ably written State paper, which teems with noble sentiments and nanswerable reasoning, and the grasp of a statesman is visible in every line of the document .-Now that the whole affair is over, there can be no doubt that the Governor-General was most shabbily treated by Lord Derby's President of the Board of Control, and his authority weaken ed in India at the time when he ought to have been strengthened by the whole material and moral power of the Home Government. Nothing was so calculated to paralyse his hands as the premature publication of the censorious despatch, if the virus had not been extracted from by the debates in the House of Commons .-The whole spirit of the debates showed that Lord Canning, in the course which he pursued, had the confidence of Parliament and of the country, and it Lord Ellenborough had not saved the Cabinet by his timely resignation the whole of his colleagues would have been driven from power. Lord Canning's boldness saved India, and, without undue severity, he knew when and how to temper justice with mercy.

An embarrassment of a very delicate nature has recently sprung up between France and Portugal, arising out of the slave trade, and is likely to excite considerable interest for some time to come, in consequence of the course which the Emperor's government has adopted. It seems that the Portuguese some time ago seized as a slaver a vessel called the Charles Georges, be longing to Nantes, and that a court of justice in Lisbon has pronounced the seizure lawful. The ship thus seized and condemned was engaged at the time in transporting a number of ' tree blacks' from the coast of Africa to one of the French West India Islands, and as this method of giving fresh vigour to the French tropical possessions was a favorite one with Louis Napoleon, which he has since greatly modified in deference to the general opinion of Europe, it can readily be conceived how annoved he must have felt at this interference of the Portuguese with his pet scheme. Compensation was demanded for the seizure of the slaver and refused, and now there are two at Tiensin. French vessels of war proceeding to the Tagus to support the demands of the Emperor's government. Under such circumstances Portugal, un less supported by some of the great European powers, must give way, but she is probably backed in the course she has pursued by this country -a surmise which has found expression in some of the Paris papers. The Tuileries and the Doetry. Autumn.

BY THOMAS BOOD. I saw old Autumn in the misty morn Stand shadowless like Silence, listening To silence, for no lonely bird would sing Into his bollow ear from woods forlorn, Nor lowly hedge nor solitary thorn ;----Sbaking his languid locks all dewy bright With tangled gossamer that fell by night, Pearling his coronet of golden corn.

Where are the songs of Summer ?- With

sun. Op'ning the dusky eyelids of the South, Till shade and silence waken up as one, And Morning sings with a warm odorous mot Where are the merry birds ?- Away, away, On panting wings through the inclement skies

Lest owls should prey Undazzled at noon day,

And tear with horny beak their lustrous eyes.

Where are the blooms of summer ?-In the West, Blushing their last to the last sunny hours,

When the mild eve by sudden Night is prest, Like tearful Proserpine, snatched from her flowers To a most gloomy breast,

Where is the pride ot Summer-the gree prime____

The many, many leaves all twinkling ?- Three On the mossed elm; three on the naked lime Trembling-and one upon the old oak tree! Where is the Dryad's immortality ?---Gone into mournful cypress and dark yew, Or wearing the long gloomy winter through In the smooth holly's green eternity.

The squirrel gloats on his accomplished hoard, The ants have brimmed their garners with ripe can lines grain,

And honey bees have stored The sweets of Summer in their luscious cells; The swallows all have winged across the main But here the Autumn melancholy dwells,

And sighs her tearful spells, Amongst the sunless shadows of the plain. Alone, alone,

Upon a mossy stone, She sits and reckons up the dead and gone With the last leaves for a love rosary, Whilst all the withered world looks drearily, Like a dim picture of the drowned past In the hushed mind's mysterious far away, Doubtful what ghostly thing will steal the last, Into that distance, grey upon the grey.

O go and sit with her, and be o'ershaded Under the languid downfall of her hair ; She wears a coronal of flowers faded Upon her forehead and a face of care ;---There is enough of withered every where To make her bower-and enough of gloom ; There is enough of sadness to invite, It only for the rose that died-whose doom Is Beau y's-she that with the living bloom Of conscious cheeks most beautifies the light There is enough of sorrowing, and quite Enough of bitter fruits the earth doth bear-Enough of chilly droppings for her bowl; Enough of fear and shadowy despair, To frame her cloudy prison for her soul.
