QUANTITY AND SOURCE OF SEED GRAIN USED IN CANADA

By GEORGE H. CLARK, Seed Commissioner, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa The areas of field crops in the following table are those reported as sown in 1914 according to the Census and Statistics Monthly of July and November last. The rates of seeding for wheat, oats, barley, flax and corn were obtained from an inquiry inducted by the Seed Branch in the spring of 1913 into the condition of seed grain actually being used by Canadian farmers. Rates of seeding for other crops are estimated. The quantities of seed required for 1915 are figured from the foregoing Courteous Service on the basis of the 1914 areas. But a large extension in the 1915 acreage is anticipated, and the quantities of seed required will be increased accordingly.

ESTIMATED ACREAGE OF FIELD CROPS IN 1914 WITH THE QUANTITIES REQUIRED FOR SEED IN 1915

About 75 p. c. of Canadian farmers grow their own seed grain. The remainde purchase their seed from neighbouring farmers, grain dealers and seed merchants. The proportion of farmers who do not grow their own seed is largest in the news provinces and in Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. The amount of highclass seed made available by members of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association, Experimental and Demonstration Farms, and by worthy seedsmen, is an exceedingly mall proportion of the total amounts required,

Analyses of five samples of No. 2 Canada Western oats, taken from shipments from five terminal elevators at Fort William, showed the oats to average 313 noxious weed seeds per lb., including nine species, and a much larger number and variety of
