

THE 4:15 EXPRESS.

By Amelia B. Edwards. The events which I am about to relate took place between mine and ten years ago. Sebastopol had fallen in the early spring; the Peace of Paris had been concluded since March; our commercial relations with the Russian Empire were but recently renewed; and I, returning home after my first northward journey since the war, was well pleased with the prospect of spending the month of December under the hospitable and thoroughly English roof of my excellent friend, Jonathan Jelf, Esq., of Dumbleton Manor, Clayborough, East Anglia.

therefore heard nothing of the contemplated improvement. Mr. Derrhouse smiled complacently. 'It will be an improvement,' he said; 'a great improvement. Stockbridge is a flourishing town, and needs but a more direct railway communication with the metropolis to become an important centre of commerce. This branch was my own idea. I brought the project before the board, and have myself superintended the execution of it up to the present time.'

when the ruddy-faced official appeared at our carriage-door. 'Tickets, sir!' said he. 'I am for Clayborough,' I replied, holding out the ticket. He took it; glanced at it by the light of his little lantern; gave it back; looked at it again; and disappeared as my fellow-traveller, and disappeared.

hand, and a clear, jovial voice was bidding me 'Welcome to Dumbleton.' 'And now, my dear fellow,' said my host, when the first greeting was over, 'you have no time to spare. We dine at eight, and there are people coming to meet you; so you must just get the dressing business over as quickly as may be. By the way, you will meet some acquaintances. The Biddulphs are coming, and Prædergrat (Prædergrat, of the Skirmishers) is staying in the house. Adieu! Mrs. Jelf will be expecting you in the drawing room.'

And yet there are people who think there is nothing to be thankful for.

Why are those things on your dress called bugle trimmings? George wanted to know.
"O," Emily replied lightly, "because pa blows over the bill."

I can't afford more than one flower on my hat, she said to the milliner.
"Wall, you will have it!" As I sit next to the wall in church, you can put it on the side next to the congregation, was the soft reply.

A New York dentist says that women who gossip a great deal lose their teeth's enamel.
We doubt it. The women whose teeth are coming out are the ones who have them lying around in wash basins, or window sills, etc.

A little four-year-old girl remarked to her mamma on going to bed, "I'm not afraid of the dark."
"No, of course you are not," replied her mamma, "for it can't hurt you."
"But, mamma, I was a little afraid once when I went into the pantry in the dark to get a custard."
"Was you afraid of 'a' custard?"
"Was you afraid of 'a' custard?"

Our Strong Minded Girl asks what to do for the lover in the rose which his lady pressed to her lips with a blush and then folded in a letter to him.
That depends. In all probability he will wonder why she enclosed that decaying vegetable, and never dream of the origin of love if he has received it from his obtuse mind.

Balver says there is in man an original obtuseness of fibre as regards sentiment, compared with the delicacy of woman's.
And this is true. When love dawns in a woman's heart it brings a train of holy thoughts, of doubts and fears and joys and confidence, that a man's coarse nature cannot comprehend.

Household Hints.
SHREDDED OATS, WITH CREAM—Put into a porcelain lined pan two quarts of boiling water; add half a teaspoonful of salt; stir into it, gradually, six ounces of shredded oats, boil twenty minutes, and add milk to cream. It is very good the next day served with bread and sugar.

Not a Vessel, but a Yacht.
"Is this the vessel you have been bragging so much about?"
"Yes, sir; there she lies. Beauty, ain't she?"

Richard Proctor is telling the young men of England how to keep their health and increase their strength.
He says that "work with a hammer is excellent for a muscular surface, and also for the muscles at the back of the upper arm."
