A Reminder to HOUSEKEEPERS:

Libby's Evaporated Milk is superior in many respects to ordinary milk

It is pure cow's milk reduced to its present consistency by evaporation. It is put up in cans containing a NET weight of 16 ounces. By adding one part of water to one part of contents of can a resulting milk product will be obtained which will not be below the American legal standard for ordinary milk. The retail price is very little (if anything) higher than the price charged for ordinary milk. It is NOT SWEETENED and therefore does not change the flavor of the tea. IMPORTANT.—It is carefully sterilized in the process of canning and is guaranteed by Libby, McNeill & Libby to be absolutely pure.

Ask your grocer for a can and try it.

GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

THE Alliance Grand OR Love That Kne Now Bounds.

CHAPTER XXIV. By the end of that time, however, both ladies began to tire of discords and minor keys.

It was in the dawn of this happier state of affairs that the pair sat one morning on the balcony of the pension, where they preferred chief rank to an almost lost identity among the multitude thronging the huge hotels.

WAS MISERABLE COULDN'T STAND

Testifies She Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lackawanna, N. Y. "After my first child was born I felt very miserable and could not stand on my feet. My sister-in-law wished me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and my nerves became firm, appetite good, sleep elastic, and I lost that weak, tired feeling. That was six years ago and I have had three fine healthy children since."

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should be convinced of the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health by the many genuine and truthful testimonials we are constantly publishing in the newspapers.

she has the right to expect of me at present. But it is a relief to have her decently settled. The thought of her harassed me frightfully the last month. Now, Leonora, I must call back my spirits and attend to you again."

Leonora raised her well-smoothed eyebrows. "Or, mamma," she said, "I may see fit to attend to myself. I think, if ever I am to do that, it is about time I began."

This extraordinary outburst of independence on the part of the usually pliant-dispositioned daughter took Mrs. Alwyn thoroughly aback. Up went her eyeglasses to inspect the fair speaker with some dismay, but that expression graduated rapidly through surprise and curiosity into gratification, as she followed the graceful gesture of pleased recognition, tempered with dignity, which Leonora was bestowing on some passing people below.

"My dearest child, is that—" "The gentleman who rescued our luggage at Zurich? Yes, mamma. He passed us there twice on the Hohe Promenade. He was with a slighter-figured man, but very distinguished—Count Kuster."

"Count? How do you know, Leonora?" "The young lady blushed. 'They were entering that poky little museum, mamma, just as we were leaving. You were gone back for your sunshade. They bowed to me and passed into the first room. And I—I looked at her names in the visitors' book.'"

"And this gentleman is—" "Mr. T. Morecombe-Wood." "Not titled, then?" "No, mamma, but English, and very likely of better standing than a certain count. He is not just an ordinary holiday-maker, I feel sure. Both those men in blue blouses were carrying his luggage just now, and—oh, mamma, he has turned back. He's coming here!"

And Leonora suddenly began arranging oolanders on her bodice, while her mother appeared wrapped in contemplation of the clear still lake, though veritably less absorbed in its beauties than in the chances of her own and her daughter's amour propre getting speedily healed by the medicine of a desirable marriage.

Not to let imagination, however, outstrip common sense, the mother shunned further discussion of this new-comer to the pension, and when dinner-time found Mr. Morecombe-Wood filling the place of the last arrival at the dinner-table, he received from his (presumably) fair magnets neither more obvious attention than from the other eighty odd sharers of the repast.

He was a man of fair height, inclining—not developed—into embonpoint, extremely pale, with short hair and mustache of inky blackness; very quick and much-comprehending eyes, that never met other people's long enough for their own expression to be too patent; of an age still interesting to the opposite sex; of easy manner and conversation with his own; distinctly unobtrusive, yet a close observer might have noticed that he kept his attention very much on the alert for all that Mrs. Alwyn and her elegant daughter said and did. Though addressing them less frequently than the freedom of the pension would have permitted had he chosen to push familiarity, still, mixing with groups near by, he could glean from Mrs. Alwyn's well-weighted remarks that she was travelling mainly for her daughter's health; that with this view residence at home or abroad was immaterial to her; and that the chief disadvantage of a roving winter would be the want of society, her own home-circle having lain among the very elite of the land.

This much acquired, Mr. Morecombe-Wood's glance followed Miss Villiers with growing and—as day after day slipped by—less guarded approval. A rainy evening bringing music to the fore, Miss Villiers was persuaded to expound, not a hum-drum ballad that any school-girl could pipe forth, but the grand scena from "Der Freischutz." From the plaudits at its conclusion Mr. Morecombe-Wood's were missing. He ventured to carry them—a separate offering—to the fair cantatrice while a miserable tenor was murdering "Adeleide," and he contrived to make them so impressive that thenceforth their intercourse grew rapidly freer,

15 YEARS SUFFERING FROM PILES

Mr. J. McEwen of Dundas, Ont., writes: "For fifteen years I suffered from Piles and could get no permanent cure until I tried Zam-Buk. Perseverance with this herbal balm resulted in a complete cure, and I have not been troubled with the painful ailment since."

Mr. Henry Fougere of Poulamond, N.S., says: "I suffered terribly with Piles and could find nothing to give me relief until I tried Zam-Buk. This cured me. I consider Zam-Buk the finest ointment on the market."

The above are specimens of the many letters we are constantly receiving from men and women who have ended their suffering by using Zam-Buk. Why not do likewise?

Zam-Buk is best for eczema, blood poisoning, ulcers, sores, cuts, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Send this advertisement with name of paper and one cent stamp for free trial box.

And soon afforded Mrs. Alwyn the insight she desired into the gentleman's individual history.

A party of noisy Americans, one evening, were planning excursions on the water to watch the moon rise from a certain point.

"Would Mr. Morecombe-Wood join them? Oh! he must; they were going to have fine times!" declared a Brooklyn belle in high-pitched persuasion; and while she waited reply, Miss Villiers's soft tones happened to remark to her vis-a-vis that the sunsets from the Drei Linden were so lovely. She and her mother were going there directly. And Mr. Morecombe-Wood resisted the lively American's invitation, and went strolling also toward the Drei Linden, asking permission of one couple he found there to share with them the enchanted hour, though one is bound to confess after they got together the sunset seemed entirely forgotten!

"Those riotous tourists are the bane of the Continent in summer-time," he complained. "One gets so out of patience with them. I often threaten myself with returning to England for the empty months."

"Then you never live in our own country?" Mrs. Alwyn asked.

"As little as may be of late years. When a man with enough, or more than is good for him, doesn't anchor in some domestic harbor early in life, he finds English society rather barren by the time he's my age. He gets rid of life more easily by wandering, and has to take every city in turn for his make-believe home."

"Not 'hat to, surely!" said Mrs. Alwyn, very graciously. "I'm afraid you confess yourself hard to please if you say that."

"An impeachment I plead guilty to," the gentleman returned. "Neither London nor other capitals, nor lands native or foreign, have furnished temptation strong enough to fasten me to any hearth, I can truly say—up to this summer."

The last sentence was added with a slight change of tone. Mrs. Alwyn looked keenly but benignly at the speaker, who looked at Leonora, who looked at the ground. And, had the sentiments of the trio been gauged just then, the germs of exultation might have been discovered in each breast, though all went gingerly to work toward securing their fruition.

Another morning later on they strolled under the trees by the lake's shore; and Mrs. Alwyn filling up a pause with lauding the glories of Philatus, Mr. Morecombe-Wood said, laughing, that after his noble attitude our English peaks and fells sung small, and even—this with subdued watchfulness—"even Devonshire slopes turned into ant-hills."

"Keewick, I saw but once," said Mrs. Alwyn, "when I was first married to Mr. Villiers. Derbyshire I have never seen, nor—with an expression that seemed to say "and she never wished to see it"—nor Devon."

"The best of all, some say, and—Miss Villiers, you look tired; here are two vacant seats;" then placing himself at angles on the grass, so as to command the countenances of both companions—"and the one I know most. I lived on its eastern borders in former times, and I keep fancying 'twas there I came across your name. Mrs. Alwyn. 'Alwyn'—yes, it struck me as soon as I heard it."

Mrs. Alwyn's face clouded, despite her effort to look unconcerned. "And somehow I had connected it with a great smash-up I remember hearing of there. I fancied it was a Mr. Alwyn who was hard hit in a mining mishap my people used to talk about."

THE GREATER QUESTION.

At this season of the year for Farmers with up-to-date ideas is, what are the best means to use to get the best returns from the land.

Fertilizers must be used liberally if large returns are looked for. There are several good chemical fertilizers which may be recommended, but Sulphate of Ammonia has been proved to give the best returns, and is the most reliable and economical source of Nitrogen for agricultural purposes.

For vegetables, grass, and all leafy crops, about one and a half cwt. per acre is the best quantity to use, and this should be applied when the plant is making its growth, as well as before sowing the seed.

If a liquid manure is preferred, a 1/2 oz. of Sulphate to one gallon of water should be used, and applied once a week for a month. This quantity should not be exceeded.

It is a good plan to reduce the Sulphate to a fine powder, and mix with four or more times its own bulk, for the purpose of dusting the manure, which is very powerful.

For potatoes the following mixture is strongly recommended:— 1 cwt. Sulphate of Ammonia. 26 lbs. Fine bone meal. 10 lbs. Carbonate of Magnesia. 15 lbs. Sulphate of Potash. 21 lbs. SULPHATE OF AMMONIA.

1 cwt. Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to 43 square yards.

The use of Carbonate of Magnesia, in conjunction with Sulphate of Ammonia, is of great importance in potato culture.

For turkeys use the following:— 67 lbs. Superphosphate. 13 lbs. Fine bone meal. 13 lbs. Sulphate of Potash. 20 lbs. Sulphate of Ammonia.

1 cwt. Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to square yards.

Sulphate of Ammonia of excellent quality is now made by the St. John's Gas Light Company, and may be obtained on very reasonable terms.

Full particulars may be obtained at the Gas Works, or at the Board of Trade Building. Ask for special booklet on the use of Sulphate, it will be found of great value in securing the heaviest crops.

High Death Rates.

We have before us the annual report of the Registrar General on the Vital Statistics for the year ending December 31st, last. They demonstrate once again how terribly backward we are in matters of public health. The demonstration is perennial. It occurs every year without ever failing. The city of St. John's with its 33,000 people had a death rate of 24.24 per 1,000 in the year 1913. This is far too high in looking through the Municipal Directories of England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland, as given in Whitaker, we cannot find a single municipality with a population equal to or greater than St. John's with such a high death-rate as there is in this city. What can be done by superior public health work is to be seen in the case of London with its population of four and a half million and a death rate of 15 per 1,000 or Glasgow with a population of nearly 800,000 and a death-rate of 15 per 1,000. Taking London as a normal of what can be done with an enormous population and under great difficulties, it means that 300 persons lost their lives in 1913 in this city through causes, which could be met by better sanitation and better public health provision. Moreover, we are not reckoning by a very high standard. Some of the metropolitan boroughs have a much lower death-rate than 15 per 1,000. Woolwich with a population of 121,408 has a death-rate of 9.2; Hampstead rate is 10; Lewisham, 10.5. The best showing we find is Ealing in Middlesex with a population of 61,235 and a death-rate of 7.9. If, however, we take the London average, it means that more lives are lost every year in this city than were lost at the ice this spring, and from preventable causes and yet we take it complacently and are not inclined to be up and doing to lessen this yearly havoc. Turning now to the Colony as a whole, 1913 was a bad year, the death-rate was 17.83, which is the highest for ten years excepting 1896 when it ranged to 20.2. Of the main causes of death Pneumonia and Bronchitis were very deadly in 1913. The year 1906 was also a year in which these two lung diseases played sad havoc. The moral of it all is that we are by no means alive to our duty as citizens, and that we have not yet realized what can be done by the Government of the Colony or by the Municipality in making Newfoundland and its capital healthier than they are at present.

Great Shipment of Films at Rossley's.

There was a good house at Rossley's last night, and Felix Martin kept the house in roars. There arrived by the s.s. Digby one of the largest shipments of films for Rossley's; there are a great many feature pictures of two, three and four reels among them, with all the leading moving picture favorites. When talking pictures were first seen and heard it was considered a good invention. But the very last and latest invention of the Wizard of Electricity is Kinoscopia; living, moving and talking pictures without a screen. This being the last week of Levene's Stock Co., Mr. Rossley will soon present a real novelty before his patrons.

Train Notes.

The Trepassey train arrived in the city at 9.30 p.m. yesterday, with upwards of 20 passengers. The local from Carbonear and Placentia did not reach the city until 12.50 a.m. to-day. Yesterday's outgoing express left Port Blamford at 8.30 a.m. to-day. The incoming express with the Lintrose passengers, left Gaff Topsail at 8.30 a.m. to-day, and is due in the city about 5 o'clock to-morrow morning. An express with the Kyle's passengers, left Port aux Basques at 9 a.m. to-day.

Mongolian Arrives.

The R. M. S. Mongolian, Captain Hatfield, ten days from Liverpool, reached port at 11 o'clock to-day. She was detained off this coast by ice. She brought 23 packages of mail matter, 520 tons of cargo, and as passengers:—W. Hodges, S. Milley, W. Frew, Mrs. Frew, J. Carter, Misses K. and S. Carter, Mr. D. Ryan, Mrs. Ryan, Miss Ryan, J. P. McLoughlin, J. and Mrs. Barr, Miss S. and B. Barr, 6 intermediates and 11 in stowage, besides a number of emigrants who are bound to Canada.

Salt Steamer Arrives.

The s.s. Meadowfield, Capt. Dunbar, arrived to-day from Santa Pola, after a lengthy passage of twenty-three days. Favorable weather was met until reaching this coast. Then ice was experienced and the ship had to be nursed along. She brought 4,500 tons of salt to Bowring Bros., Ltd. The Meadowfield is a sister ship of the Craigheron, now landing salt at Jobs, and was never here before.

Reids' Boats.

The Argyle sailed from Placentia for the westward at 8 a.m. to-day. The Bruce is at North Sydney undergoing Canadian inspection. The Dundee sails for Port Blandford early to-morrow morning to take up the regular service on Bonavista Bay. The Ethie sailed for Carbonear at noon to-day and from there will take up the Trinity Bay service. The Glencoe left Placentia at 1 a.m. to-day. The Kyle, now on the Bruce route, reached Port aux Basques at 8.20 a.m. to-day. The Lintrose left Port aux Basques at 10 p.m. yesterday. The Meigle sailed from Port aux Basques on the Bonne Bay route at 4.35 p.m. yesterday.

Beatrice Coming With Coal Cargo.

The s.s. Beatrice is now on the way from North Sydney to this port with a cargo of coal to Hynes & Co. and Mullaly & Co. Owing to being unable to procure two steamers, the Beatrice will land half her cargo at each firm, because of the present need of that commodity by each concern. It is likely the Beatrice will be chartered to take another load on similar conditions.

Personal.

Hon. S. Milley was a passenger by the Mongolian to-day from Liverpool. Mr. G. and Mrs. Barr and W. and Mrs. Frew, who were in England, returned by the Mongolian. Mr. George Knight leaves to-morrow by the Mongolian en route to Montreal on business. George is the undefeated sprinter of Newfoundland and while in the Canadian town may have a "try" with the "cracker-jacks" there. Mr. Percy Padley, who had been spending the winter in England, arrived by the Mongolian this morning, and will be engaged as chauffeur with Mr. S. K. Bell the coming season. Mr. Padley's many friends will be pleased to see him back again.

SALT CARGOES.—The brig, Clementine, Capt. Parsons, left Cadiz on Saturday last with a cargo of salt to A. Goodridge & Sons. The s.s. Craigheron left Cadiz yesterday with a cargo of salt for the same firm.

The Haunted Swing.

The little rope-swing beneath the maple Moves forward and back as of old; but now The babe who swung when the days were warm Lies quiet within where there is no storm. She lies too still, in the perfumed place; With a smile too changeless on her face. And the wax-white rosebuds winking there Than her motionless hands are far less fair.

The wind keeps swaying the heupen swing And coaxing: "Baby, come romp and sing!" For the wind is stupid and cannot know Babies must not sing and swing in the snow; And the wind is blind, so he cannot see The shimmering, sheltering shroud; and he is deaf, and cannot hear our cries Or the drip of tears from our parents' eyes.

The voice of the wind has lost its grief As though his longing had found relief. The little rope-swing more rhythmically Goes back and forth 'neath the maple tree. Do I hear—or merely believe I do—Mid the wind's soft crooning the baby's coo? Who knows but her snow-white baby soul Is swinging out there by the maple pole. —Strickland Gillilan, in Woman's World for June.

Celebrated Norwegian Jigger

Fishermen should use these Jiggers and rig them with swivels same style as in Norway, then the Jigger acts like a minnow and when spinning attracts the fish, so that instead of jigging they really snap the Jigger and in this manner you never fail to catch them. Ordinary leads can be used, but the Norwegian style seems more simple and easily made. Our fishermen should try this great Norwegian fish killer. O. Missionary Services. At Grand Falls.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Sunday, May 3rd, was observed as Missionary Sunday by the Methodists of this town. The missionary deputation consisted of the Rev. J. T. Newman, of Botwood, and the Rev. W. T. D. Dunn, of Lewisporte, Chairman of the District.

Rev. W. T. D. Dunn, occupied the pulpit at the morning service. Taking Matt. 28 chap., v. 18-20, as a basis, he delivered an able discourse on the authority, Divinity of Christ, and the source, virtue and universality of the Gospel. This was greatly appreciated by a large and attentive audience.

At night a platform meeting was held. W. Pike, Esq., J.P., occupied the chair, and in a few well chosen remarks struck the true note of the meeting. The pastor in his report, commended the efforts of the past year, and urged upon the audience the necessity of still greater efforts that Methodism in this town might be independent of all missionary help. Rev. J. T. Newman followed with a well reasoned and convincing plea for Christian missions. He urged their value to the church, the individual, the nation, and commerce, substantiating his contentions by the testimonies of unbiassed men such as Colonial Governors, Statesmen and Capitalists. He ended with a strong appeal for an extension of missionary activity in keeping with the facilities and power now at the disposal of the Christian church.

The Rev. W. T. D. Dunn, in the closing address, commanded the rapt attention of the large gathering, as he delivered a most inspiring and eloquent appeal. He showed that:

- (I) Never before was the Christian church confronted with greater responsibilities, larger opportunities, or more insistent demands than at the present time.
 - (II) The direct influence of the Gospel, and the indirect influence of Christian nations have robbed the heathen nations of their ideals in every department of life.
 - (III) Now is the time to do constructive work—to re-build the nations according to the standards of our Holy Faith and the ideals of our Christ.
- The services of the day made a deep impression upon the hearers. This is evidenced not only by the splendid offering placed upon the altar of Christian missions, but also by our spiritual gains. A clearer idea of the nature of our calling, a greater conception of our responsibilities, a wider vision of our possibilities, and a nobler resolve to try to hasten the consummation of the Great World-Programme—when "He shall have dominion from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth."

LONDON, To-day.

Baron Wimborne, Manager of the English Polo Team, which has challenged for the International Polo Cup held by the United States, to-day decided to sail to America on May 23rd, with a Polo team composed of Mr. Tompkins, Major J. Y. D. Bingham, Major F. W. Barrett and Major C. F. Hunter. Wimborne's efforts since the weakness of his team was made apparent when he tried to induce some other team to undertake the task of trying to capture the Polo Challenge Cup from America. Having failed, he decided to make the best of a bad bargain and take the team over himself.

LONDON, To-day.

Covent Garden was commended last evening by the King for a gala performance in honor of the King and Queen of Denmark, who are paying their accession visit to this country. For the audience the performers had the leaders in the political, diplomatic and social world of London. Men in the uniforms of their rank and women in beautiful gowns and jewels of untold wealth, made a scene which was of gorgeous brilliancy, but it was for a time marred by a suffragette demonstration. During an interlude a suffragette rose in the balcony stalls and shouted, "King George, women are being tortured in your Dominions." Two men sitting nearby seized the disturber, dragged her outside, while other men started "demonstrating." They kicked and clawed as they were being carried from the building. Meanwhile other suffragettes in the gallery above the Royal Box, threw down a great quantity of suffragette leaflets.

NEW YORK, May 11.

CATANIA, Sicily, May 11.
The army, navy and civilian authorities are continuing their efforts to relieve the distress of thousands of Sicilians deprived of homes and property by the earthquake, which destroyed a dozen villages, and caused death or injury to hundreds of persons during the night of May 8th. Many peasants, afflicted by the catastrophe are migrating from the district, taking with them all that they could recover of their effects, and leading their farm animals with them. Others for the present, refuse to move from the scene, until they know the fate of their missing relatives. The injured, found among the ruined homes have been taken to the nearest hospitals, after treatment by the Red Cross surgeons. The village priests are untiring in their efforts to console the stricken people, many of whom are forming in processions to the neighboring shrines. Official returns of the dead give the number as 150, but it is believed that many more are still buried in the debris. The injured total many hundreds, and from time to time their numbers are added to, by finding beneath the ruins, others who were unable to free themselves owing to fractured limbs. Several slight shocks were registered by the Observatory here to-day, but no further damage is reported.

NEW YORK, May 11.

A Washington special to the Herald says that Huerta intends to sacrifice the northern part of Mexico now in the hands of the Constitutionalists, in a final effort to save himself and preserve the government over which he presides. Such is the belief of an American business man from Monterey, who is now in Washington. This American says he received information regarding Huerta's project before the fall of Monterey. His informant was a high Mexican official, who had just returned from Mexico City, who stated that Huerta intends to concentrate his troops in the vicinity of San Luis Potosi, when in a position to offer strong resistance to the American forces, he will commit some overt act, which will compel the United States to actually begin hostilities.

NEW YORK, May 11.

The dead from Vera Cruz were landed on American soil to-day, and the City, State and Nation paid tribute. Two hours after the city was reached, the seven flag-draped coffins were removed from the armoured cruiser Montana, and placed on cassettes in the Plaza Battery Park. Few witnessed this ceremony for the sun was but half risen, but thousands lined the streets later, to watch the slow procession wind its way to the Navy yard. Not since the Dewey parade has there been such a demonstration. President Wilson arrived in the city from Washington shortly after 7 o'clock. Almost unobserved, he was driven to the house of his close friend Colonel House, thence to the Battery, to take his place in the procession.

GLASGOW, May 11.

About 100,000 spectators cheered the Aquitania yesterday as the giant new Cunarder, towed by a fleet of tugs, made its first trip on leaving Brown's yard in the Clyde for Greenock, twenty miles down the river. The event was regarded as so important that even the strict Sabbath keeping Scotch had the time of the church services changed, so that the congregations might see the newest leviathan as she proceeded under her own steam for Liverpool to-day. She will start her first trip for New York on May 20th.

Divorced Life

By Helen Hesson Fuesler

A Curious Encounter

Sooner or later, if she remained in the city, Marian knew she would run on to Frank Deming, the man whom she had divorced. She had often wondered what he would do and say, if such an event transpired. What actually happened nearly swept her off her feet with astonishment.

One day, as she emerged from one of the shops, she was startled at hearing his familiar voice at her side.

"Will you forgive me, Marian, for inflicting myself upon you?" he began, falling into step beside her. "I simply couldn't pass on."

She gazed into the familiar gray eyes, and a flood of strange uneasiness went through her.

"We ought not to be seen together, Frank," she answered uncomfortably.

"Why not?" he demanded, the plea in his eyes reinforced by the tone of his voice. "You used to have no objection to being seen with me," he added with a touch of bitterness.

"Don't rake up the past," said Marian. "We've decided to forget it."

"I, for one, can't forget it," he put in. "The past stalks beside me all the time. I've tried hard to forget. But I can't."

She walked on at his side in silence, touched by the pathos of his statement.

"Can you forget?" he asked.

"Oh, don't ask me that, Frank," she said. "Go on, Frank. Go away. Don't talk to me. What's the use?" she continued hopelessly.

"Don't order me away. I've got to talk to you. There are things that I can't go unsaid any longer. I was going to write to you to-day, and ask you to let me see you. Dorothy tells me you are going on the stage," he added abruptly.

"I've been thinking of doing so," she answered indefinitely.

"It's an awful life," he protested.

Man Missing.

A young man named John Wiseman is now missing. He had not been seen or heard of since leaving home on Barter's Hill four weeks ago. He is about 33 years old and has a wife and four children. He is a tailor by trade and had been working during the past winter with a Water Street firm. However, he has a better liking for sea life, was one of the Roosevelt's crew with Commander Peary in the North Polar expedition, hence it is thought that he shipped from this port in some steamer. Up to last evening the police had not been acquainted of the man's disappearance.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland and—april.

Vitagraph Actors

AN ARTIST'S GREAT MADONNA.

"The Artist's Great Madonna," a two-reel story by the Vitagraph Co., attracted large audiences to the Nickel Theatre yesterday. It is a clever story, different from all others seen at the Nickel, and was splendidly acted. It tells of the trials of a great artist to procure a suitable model and how he succeeds. The "Ex-Convict" is a good drama by the Selig Co. "Magic Shoes" and "Angel Cake and Axle Grease" are comedy pictures which kept the audiences in rars of laughter. There was also a Pathe Weekly which was very interesting. Mr. McCarthy rendered the Irish song, "Mother Macree" and Miss Gardner "Where did you get that Girl," and delighted all who heard them. This evening the programme will be repeated. To-morrow there will be a Biograph feature film in two reels, entitled "The Little Tease."

Black Diamond Line.

It is understood, as previously noted in the Telegram, that the Black Diamond Company are engaging a steamer by charter or purchase to run the service between Montreal, St. John's and intermediate ports, replacing the ill-fated City of Sydney. The new steamer will take up the route about the middle of next month, meanwhile the Morvanna and Cacouna will perform the service.

ICE IN THE STRAITS.

The Fisheries Department have received these reports:—
Bonnie Bay—Ice off shore but in sight; bay clear; wind east.
Cow Head—Can just see ice in the distance.
Lark Hr.—Drift ice about four miles off shore; wind east; bay full of ice.
Flower's Cove—Ice good distance off shore; wind east.

Hindu Genius.

Romance of Mathematician Without Learning.

Mr. S. Ramanujan, the young and untaught Hindu whose work in the higher mathematics has excited the wonder of Cambridge, that home of mathematics, is now in residence at Trinity. He will read mainly with three Fellows of the college—Mr. Hardy, Mr. Littlewood and Mr. Neville. They are engaged in going through masses of work he has already done, and are making some surprising discoveries in it.

Mr. Hardy, Fellow of Trinity, says: "So many inaccurate statements have been made about Mr. Ramanujan that it is perhaps as well to give the actual facts. He is a native of Madras and is about twenty-six years of age. He received the ordinary Indian school education. He was never connected with the University of Madras; he has never passed any examination of any kind whatever. Until a little more than a year ago he was a clerk in the employment of the Port Trust of Madras.

"His mathematical education is rather a mystery, and he is not learned in any other subject. The first I knew of him was about fifteen months ago. He wrote to me explaining who he was, and sent a large number of mathematical theorems which he had proved. There were a great many very remarkable results. His theorems were all in pure mathematics, particularly in the theory of numbers and the theory of elliptic functions. While many of them were quite new others had been anticipated by writers of whom he had never heard and of whose work he was quite innocent.

Hospital Enquiry.

Yesterday the Hospital Enquiry was opened on the premises. Dr. Keegan produced his commission. In the latter he is spoken of as Resident Physician. His duties were not defined in the commission, nor have they been defined subsequently. He took his appointment to be head of the institution. He explained the general organization of the hospital as he found it on his appointment and the changes introduced by him. The Commissioners then inspected the X-Ray room, the Dispensary, Office and the new operating room and some of the wards. The Commission will meet again on Wednesday afternoon and continue the examination of Dr. Keegan and the inspection of other departments.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferers and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected. An insurance policy will provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?

INFECTIOUS DISEASE.—Two cases of typhoid at Bonavista and a few cases of diphtheria at Rushton, P.B. are the only diseases reported in the outports at present.

Three Features of the R. J. & W. Report

St. John's, May 12th, 1914.

Principally for the three following reasons will the shareholders of Robin, Jones & White, Limited, have reason to congratulate themselves on their investment when they examine the Company's annual report.

FIRST—Because net earnings (after allowing for depreciation) amount to $103,309.83, an increase of OVER FORTY PER CENT. over the previous year.

SECOND—Because after provision of bond interest, depreciation, and preferred dividends there remains the sum of $41,202.63 earned on the Common Stock—or NEARLY EIGHT PER CENT.

THIRD—Because a 2 p.c. dividend has been declared on the Common Stock which purchasers obtained as a bonus, and reserves have been strengthened to the substantial total of $127,002.87.

Shall we send YOU a copy of this annual report and the other information we have ready?

Cricket Association Meeting.

Yesterday afternoon the members of St. Bon's Cricket Association held their annual meeting and the following officers were elected for the coming season: Captain, H. S. Knight; Secretary, J. A. Miller; Sub-Captain, F. Hogan. It is understood that there will be no inter-collegiate contests the coming year and the colleges are arranging for rugby football instead. The Cricket Association is not at all anxious that interest in the game should flag, and will accordingly arrange for inter-class competition during the coming season.

Yesterday at 8 p.m. the Central and Eastern firemen were summoned to the residence of Mr. Charles Tide on Gower Street, when a quantity of soot that had accumulated in the chimney had taken fire. A volume of smoke and a few sparks greeted the many spectators who hurried to the scene. A few pails of water extinguished the blaze and no damage was done.

Willie Hoppe.

Red McGehee says

It's pretty warm for billiard talk, but if you're sweatin' try some chalk an' listen to my twittler. The meek I wanna talk about don't field nor run the bags nor clout—he's no .300 hitter. He's Willie Hoppe. Know him, boys?

At talkline billiards he's the noise—the bring-back-bacon kid. Those doggone little ivory balls just seem to come when Willie calls an' do just as they're bid. At eighteen-one an' eighteen-two there's no stunt that he can't do with that hypnotic stick. He's champ now, too, at fourteen-one. He'll average thirty-ood per run—an' that's no baby's trick. The seven-inch square anchor space jus' helps to show off Willie's grace—don't hinder a bit. His high runs? Gad, I've lost all track; he runs a hundred, then starts back till all the counters quit. He nurses with a mother's care an' makes his watchers gasp an' stare to see his weird control. Each time he shoots he seems to know just how far each ball's goin' to go to fractions of a roll. If Willie, when he cashes in, can get Pete interested in a match at eighteen-two the saint can't help appreciate Willie's prowess. He'll forget the gate while Willie caroms through.

Coal Prices and Labor Cost of Discharging.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Five or six years ago when labour was only $1.50 a day the contractor's price for landing coal was 28 cents per ton, now with wages at $2.50 a day the contract landing price is only 33 cents per ton, just 5 cents per ton more. It is quite plain from this that the increased rate of wages did not materially affect the cost of coal, although when the increased rate was adopted the coal dealers increased the price eighty cents per ton. It would appear from a casual glance at the rates above quoted that the landing contractor suffered greatly by the increase in wages but this is not so. He still makes about the same profit per ton. Under the old conditions with a different type of ship the work of landing was a much slower process. Now coal is handled more quickly; the present day carriers are fitted with larger winches, a larger drum will take a tub up and down a ship's hold a great deal faster than a smaller one—as a natural consequence the men have to work more lively. And, again, the hoisting tubs in use now are larger than those used five or six years ago. This keeps the lifters more busy than formerly. Any person can see that with larger tubs running at a faster rate the output will far exceed that under the old conditions. This offsets to the contractor the increase in wages to his men, and it also pays him better for his time as he lands a greater number of tons in a given time and about the same landing cost per ton.
Some coal dealers do not employ contractors to discharge cargoes. They land their own coal thereby saving the contractor's profit. Better handling facilities, as shown above, have decreased the amount of labor necessary to land a cargo of coal, and have also shortened the time, thereby effecting two great savings of expense to the coal merchant in having a less amount of labor extended over a shorter period of time. The laborer is as much dependent on coal handling for his living as the merchant is on coal sales, and in this way he may be regarded as a shareholder in the business, therefore it is just and equitable that he should have a share in this saving of expense by getting an increased wage. The coal merchant should be well satisfied with his saving on the time character of the ship, but he is not. He evidently wants all the saving, and when he doesn't get it all, he uses the increased wage rate as a lever to raise the price to the consumer, devoutly trusting in fallacy of popular opinion to unjustly blame the L. S. P. U. for the increased price. All we want is a just share in the saving which present day conditions have brought about from time to time by lessening the hours of labor and accomplishing more work per hour.

JAMES J. McGRATH
President L. S. P. U.

AGRICULTURAL PRIZES.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Morris's agricultural fiasco is suffering this year because of the spendthrift character of the Government policy. A slim remnant of that fimb known as the Harbor Main Agricultural Society still exists with the very limited funds for that held a meeting on Sunday, 3rd inst. The object was to reach a decision for the benefit of the parent society in St. John's as to the most suitable provision to be made for the district with the very limited funds for that purpose. Some were there who wanted a mowing machine presumably to cut down the two blade crops from the additional level acres that are the outcome of Morris's famous policy; others wanted better calves; others Shetland ponies, contending it was unfair for one high official in the land to have so much luxury from this bill of fare; others wanted seeds, etc. but eventually a decision was reached to equip the district with two bulls.
This ruling was gained by a majority of one; seventeen being in favor of it and sixteen against it. Thus, you see, Mr. Editor, only 33 persons of the 1,500 voters from Turk's Cove to Holyrood still adhere to this barren and deserted project of Morris's invention. Yes, this so-called Agricultural Society has a staunch claim at the present time to the recommendation given it by its first President, Mr. O'Toole when he denounced it "a fake and a cod."
But it is purposely to give you an echo of our exhibition held at Harbor Main last November that I write you this note.

Of the number that won prizes then about fourteen in Harbor Main have not received them yet, and we want to ask Mr. Woodford to inform those people of his constituency why this is so. The action smells of red-tapeism, too, Mr. Editor, because others that did not command any prizes when the exhibition was being held received some when payments were made. For the animals and products of as many as fourteen persons to be labelled with prize ribbons and tickets by the judges and to receive none when payments were made, and the owners of other stock and vegetables that commanded no prizes when the exhibition was on and afterwards to receive them in preference to the lawful winners make a very ludicrous farce out of the whole proceeding.

Surely the judges gave in the lists of winners according as they awarded the prizes. Then who made the omissions and substitution daily is necessary. Some explanation is necessary.

Yours etc.

Generous Donation.

The Rector of Chamel asked us to publish the following communication from the Shipwrecked Fishermen and Mariners' Royal Benevolent Society, intimating that the Society has voted a generous contribution to the Marine Disaster Fund. Rev. Mr. Read is the Hon. Agent for the Society in Newfoundland.

London, 17th April, 1914.
Dear Sir,—With reference to the recent terrible Disaster to Newfoundland Seal-Fishermen, it will no doubt interest you, as our Hon. Agent in the Colony to know that our Committee decided to-day to vote £500 to the fund being raised for the assistance of the numerous widows and orphans.

I remain, yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) GERALD H. MAUDE,
Secretary.

The Rev. H. J. Read,
Chamel, Newfoundland.

In Style by Accident.

He came home just before dinner and hung up his hat. She failed to meet him at the door, as was her custom, so he wandered out to the kitchen. At the door he halted, somewhat disconcerted.

"What's this, Isabel? Green hair?"
She was bending over the frying pan and didn't deign to notice him.
"And purple eyebrows!"
The slice of ham in the pan squirmed, and she stabbed it viciously.
"Why, Isabel, he went on whimsically, "I didn't know you went in for these extreme fashions!"
She tossed back one rainbow lock and fixed him with a baleful eye.
"Look here, you!" she hissed. "I don't want any funny talk out of you! I'm all worn out dyeing Easter eggs!"

The Rokeby Venus.

Picture Which Was Slashed Has an Interesting History.

The slashing of the Rokeby Venus by an English suffragette centres world interest upon this wonderful painting.
The Rokeby Venus took its name from Rokeby Hall, in Yorkshire, Eng, where it hung for many years before it was brought to London. The painting shows Venus half reclining before a mirror. At the time the painting was brought to the National Gallery in London about seven years ago, several Americans tried to buy it. The National Gallery had to pay what was then considered an enormous sum to retain the painting in England.

In 1906 the picture was sold under an order of the Court of Chancery for $150,000 to Messrs. Agnew & Sons, and an outcry was started that America was after the Velasquez. A sum of $225,000 was raised by public subscription and the painting was obtained for the National Gallery. When, in April, 1910, a doubt as to its genuineness was set on foot by a critic in The Morning Post, Lord Balcarras, who had charge of the fund, announced that he had a standing offer from an art collector to buy the picture for $275,000. The genuineness of the masterpiece was soon afterwards established to the satisfaction of all art critics.

The painting is one of the very few works of Velasquez which depict the nude human figure. The Spanish inquisition prescribed a fine of 1,500 ducats, excommunication and a year's exile for any one who painted an "immodest picture." In the later years of his life Velasquez painted two pictures of the woman depicted in this painting. One of them was called "Venus and Adonis" and the other "Psyche and Cupid." Both were listed among the pictures in the Alcazar at Madrid in 1666, 1686 and 1700 and then disappeared.

Charles B. Curtis in his book "Velasquez and Murillo" suggests that both paintings were in the palace at Madrid when it was burned in 1734, that "Venus and Adonis" was destroyed and that "Psyche and Cupid" survived and was the painting which eventually fell into the hands of Robert Morrill of Rokeby Park, in Yorkshire, and came to be known as the Rokeby "Venus."

There is a black spot near the head of Cupid which has been attributed to scorching in the fire.

Mr. Morrill bought the picture for $2,500 on the recommendation of Sir Joshua Reynolds.

Miss May Richardson, the suffragette who mutilated the valuable canvas, was arrested on July 4 last for dropping a petition in the lap of King George while he was driving through Bristol. She served three months for that. The moment she was released she went to Hampton and was arrested there with Miss Rachel Pearce, charged with setting fire to the former home of Chancellor Tristram. Miss Richardson was sentenced to jail for four months but would take no food and was set free when physicians said she had appendicitis.

"Piltzie" in Africa.

Edmonton's Perambulatory Newsboy Is Reported at Cape Town.

Piltzie Ryan, the Canadian "newsboy," who is walking around the world, from Edmonton, Alberta, for a prize of $6,000, paid an unexpected visit to Cape Town recently, says The Cape Times. He has been in South Africa for some little time, having worked his passage from Australia to Durban. The Mother City of South Africa is not on Ryan's route, but he has come here to get his book signed by Lord Gladstone, as he missed him in Pretoria.

Ryan has already covered 32,540 miles, to Pretoria, that is, and sells newspapers and postal cards to pay his expenses. "Newsboy" is rather a misnomer, as Piltzie Ryan is now twenty-nine years of age, and has sold newspapers for twenty-three years.

In Johannesburg he met Sir Lionel Philips and Gen. Botha, who signed his book. "He treated me finely, and I had a fine chat with him," is Ryan's opinion of the hon. member for Yeoville, and of Gen. Botha he says, "He was a very fine man to me."

During his travels Ryan has had many adventures having been to Mexico and South America. He says that in the latter country he was arrested four times as a spy, and escaped he was under sentence of death as a prisoner of war, but a motor-car took him away in good time. He returned to the U. S. A., and from San Francisco managed to work his passage to the Hawaiian Islands, and then went to Suva, New Zealand, and Australia.

Dear Sir,—
I wish to state that I am well satisfied with the results which your Company have given me in connection with my Endowment Policy No. 47,775, which matures on the 17th of March. I find that the returns give me over $424.00 more than I have paid in premiums, in addition to the protection that I have had during the Policy term. I consider this all the more satisfactory taking into account the fact that the dividends were applied as a Bonus every five years. I, therefore, received a return beyond Bank interest, in addition to the protection.

Yours very truly,

Learning to Want Less.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Most of the unhappiness in the world comes from wanting things you cannot have. Now there are two ways of making the discrepancy between what we have and what we want, less. One is to obtain some of the things we want. This is the most common way; the only way that occurs to the average person. The other way is to stop wanting some of the things we lack. A great many people live a lifetime without ever trying this method.

A Zulu prince who is studying to be a missionary told an interviewer the other day that it would have been far better for Zululand if the whites had stayed at home. "My people were once de mos' happiest people in dis worl'," he said, "and now dey are de mos' miserablest. Fifty years ago, before de white folks came, dey had everything dey wanted. Dey wo' no clocs an' wanted none. De air was warm an' de sun shone. Dey had lan' an' didn't hab to wo'k, fo' t'ings grew ob demselvs. Den de wite folks came an' took de lan', an' put my people to wo'k, an' made dem want t'ings dey didn't know was in de worl' befo'."

Now analyze that. The Zulus have no less than they ever had, but they want more. Therefore they have changed from "de mos' happiest people in dis worl'" to de mos' miserablest. Of course we must not forget the other side of the case. There are some things that it is right to want. To a certain extent a nation's progress is measured by the standards of living which the people hold. For instance, it is well that our people today want better sanitation in their homes than they used to have. It would be unfortunate if they stopped wanting that. But there are countless other unnecessary things which we have come to feel that we cannot live without. And so we toil and mull all the days of our life to possess them and find at last in possession little of happiness but much of care and worry and work.

You all know how Thoreau, the Concord philosopher, became weary of the cares and demands of even the simple society of his day, and went out into the woods and lived in a hut to show that men could still be happy and civilized without the trappings of civilization. Of his experiment he wrote:

"For more than five years I maintained myself thus solely by the labor of my hands, and I found, that by working about six weeks in a year, I could meet all the expenses of living. The whole of my winters as well as most of my summers I had free and clear for study."

Now wasn't that a worth-while life?

No, I don't suppose we all could go out into the woods and live like Thoreau. I must sadly admit that it isn't "practical," that pin-prick of a word which so often bursts the idealist's fair bubbles.

But even if we couldn't follow Thoreau's example we could at least try to get a little of his spirit.

"My greatest skill," he once said, "has been to want but little."

I can think of no skill we men and women of to-day more need to acquire than that.

Ruth Cameron

WALT MASON'S DAILY STORY.

FALSE ECONOMY.

"A stranger came here to the sylvan solitudes this morning, and was fortunate enough to find an unoccupied cave down by the creek," said the wise man of the woods. "He expects to remain here permanently, and I am glad of it, for he seems a perfect gentleman of the old school. He says that he left his home after several years of married life, because economy had become a mania with his wife."

"When it isn't carried to extremes, economy is the finest thing I know of, and no home can be successfully conducted without it. But women never are able to do anything moderately, if they go in for extravagance, their conduct would astonish inebriates; and if they elect to be economical, they can give pointers to professional misers."

"I was unusually fortunate in my wife. She was a remarkable woman, and I consider it an honor to be referred to as her husband. For years we lived together in peace and harmony, and there wasn't a single cloud upon our horizon. Those were indeed halcyon days. When the day's work was done I donned my slippers and took up the evening paper, and had a pleasant time reading the crime news. We had an admirable hired girl who was a good cook, and had a hundred noble qualities of mind and heart. She was such an excellent domestic that unprincipled women were always trying to bribe her to leave us, and accept portfolios in their homes; but Matilda was loyal to us, and probably would have remained with us until her dying day but for the fact that my wife attended a lecture, and heard that waste is the besetting sin in American homes. The lecturer said that we throw much of our substance into the bargain can.

"So my wife began keeping cases on Matilda, and found to her horror, that she sometimes threw away a crust of bread, or an eggshell with a fragment of albumen clinging to it, or a bone with a few shreds of fat on it. For days together my wife was snooping around the kitchen, calling down that unfortunate handmaiden about forty times a day, and at last Matilda couldn't stand it any longer, and handed in her resignation. I don't blame her. I'd have done the same thing had I been in her place."

"My wife was not at all dismayed. She said it was the best thing that could have happened. 'I'll do my own housework,' she said, cheerfully, 'and save not only the girl's wages, but the value of all the stuff she wasted. You can lend a hand with some of the work just as well as not, and in one year we'll save $342.75. I have it all figured out.'

"From that moment there was no comfort for me in my own home, and you can still see the furrows on my careworn cheeks, where the tears trickled down. I had to be up and doing at all hours, performing menial tasks which formerly were attended to by Matilda. I had to get up and light the kitchen fire every morning, and carry in eighteen armloads of wood from the shed, and carry out ashes, and pump water, and a million other things."

"In the evening I never had a fair chance at the newspaper. As soon as supper was over my wife would say: 'I want you to come and dry the dishes while I wash them, and then you can bring in the clothes that are hanging on the line, and take the mop and scrub the back porch, and sweep the sidewalk, and see that the chickens are all on their roosts, and bring in forty-seven buckets of water, for I want to wash the lace curtains to-morrow. I know you'll be glad to help me when you know that it is saving us money.'

"I wasn't glad to help her, and I hinted as much upon divers and sundry occasions, but hints make no impression upon a woman who has the economy bug. For three years we practiced the most rigid economy, and my wife placed our savings in the bank. Then the cashier of the bank took a vacation and forgot to come back, and we were courteously informed that we'd never see hide or hair of our money again. It was then that something seemed to give way in my head, and the busy haunts became intolerable to me."

Painful Swellings Reduced. Muscular Strains Ended.

Such Troubles Now Quickly Rubbed Away by Powerful Remedy.

If you have any muscles that are strained and weak, that are frequently subject to rheumatic pains; if you have any painful swellings that refuse to go away—get busy with Nerviline. This is the very sort of trouble that Nerviline is noted for curing quickly. "I have proved Nerviline simply a wonder in reducing a hard, painful swelling. It followed an injury I received in my left leg and caused me great pain and discomfort. The muscles were strained and sore, and no other remedy gave me ease and comfort. I got from rubbing on Nerviline. There is a soothing, pain-relieving power about Nerviline that touched the root of my trouble. Nerviline reduced the swelling, it destroyed the pain, it brought my limb back to perfect condition." The experience of Mr. Bowen, whose home is in Middlesex, is not unusual. Thousands are proving every day that muscular pains of every kind, chronic rheumatism, lumbago, neuritis and sciatica will yield to Nerviline when nothing else can possibly cure. Nerviline is an old-time family pain remedy, used nearly forty years with great success. The large family size bottle costs 50c., trial size 25c. at all dealers.

The Bystander.

I stand by my window a lone, and look at the people go by, pursuing their shining bone, which is so elusive and shy. Pursuing the beckoning plank, and no one can make them believe that troubles and kepecks are junk, vain baubles got up to deceive. Their faces are haggard and sad, from weariness often they reel, pursuing the succulent scud, pursuing the wandering wheel. And many are there in the throng who have all the money they need, and still they go racking along, inspired by the demon of greed. "To put some more bucks in the chest," they sigh, as they toil, "would be grand;" the beauty and blessing of rest is something they don't understand. We struggle and strain all our years, and wear out our bodies and brains, and when we are stretched on our biers, what profit we then by our pains? The lawyers come down with a whoop, and rake in our bundle of scrip, and plaster a lien on the coop before our poor orphans can yip. I stand at my window again, and see the poor folks as they trail, pursuing the yammering yen, pursuing the conquering kale; and sorrow is filling my breast, regret that the people won't know the infinite blessing of rest, that solace for heartache and woe.

Decrease in Sport.

Due to Labor Depression. Owing to the slackness of work on Bell Island and the consequent number of men, including ten office hands, who were paid off recently, there is comparatively no talk of sport, excepting a few baseball "fans" who are active. Heretofore football enthusiasts were much in evidence at this time, but this year such is not the case and the lack of interest displayed is regrettable, as formerly people from the city always looked forward eagerly to witnessing the fast series of games on Bell Island. The output of ore from the Iron Isle this year is expected to be the smallest for many years, which is demonstrated by the fact of both companies having reduced their staffs considerably.
